neighbor, John Krug, who notified police officials. Bad Axe State Police and Village Marshal William Wood said that Mr. Darbee had fallen partially off the rear of the tractor when he was found Tuscola Coroner Ben Collon said that death was evidently due to a heart attack. The tractor had hit a tree before stopping, officials said. Funeral arrangements complete.

Protect Children From Polio Now

Although Cass City School was about 90 per cent inoculated against polio at the close of the 1957-58 school year, Mrs. Helen Stevens, school nurse, is concerned over the danger of an outbreak in the village.

The recent epidemic in Detroit points out the seriousness of failing to have all three of the Salk shots, she pointed out.

Although the vast majority of students were protected last year, Mrs. Stevens said that she will have no accurate check of inoculations for at least two more weeks this year.

Meanwhile, she cautions, it may be too late for some boy or girl in the Cass City area who is Judging Team not protected.

ROADS ARE SAFER ... BUT NOT SAFE ENOUGH

I guess you think that I'm hypped on safety . . . and I am afraid that I'll have to plead guilty. There's still a lot of room for improvement . . . still far too many people are

Just the other day, I was reading a release from the National Safety Council in the U.S. They reported that February was the fourth consecutive month showing a reduction in the number of deaths from traffic accidents. Even so, more than 5000 people lost their lives in traffic accidents in the U.S. in the first months of this vear.

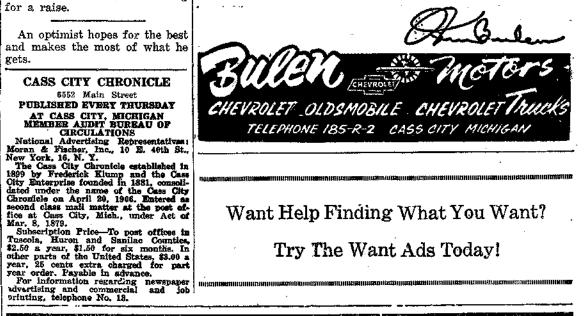

Authorities are convinced that the more people who know and practice safety rules, the less accidents and the less fatalities. And you can sum the safety rules up into two short sentences. Don't take chances. And make sure your car is mechanically safe.

When you ride too close to the car ahead . . . or skip out to pass when the time is short, you are taking chances. Honestly now, how much time do you save?

When you put off that brake check . . . or steering check, you are taking chances too. Play it safe, bring your car in regularly for a complete safety check. One not-so-serious accident will pay for a good many safety checks . . . and help you to avoid the delay and grief that an accident can cause. Come in soon won't you? turns over a new leaf for his wife

As I have contacted different groups of people, I wonder how many realize that they have some misconception about food. I would like to list some facts or fancies that have come to my notice -- so each of you check on your own food facts. Food sense, not nonsense, is vital. Misinformation is often passed from one generation to another, from one neighbor to another. This encourages poor eating habits and deprives the believers of adequate nutrition. Following are some fancies, and the facts.

Fancy: Canned vegetables have less nutritive value than fresh, cooked vegetables. Fact: The nutritive values of canned and the freshly cooked product are dependent upon the nutritive value of the original food and the method by which it has been prepared.

Fancy: It is dangerous to leave food in a can that has been opened. Fact: The United States Department of Agriculture says research shows it is safe to keep the food in the original can after it has been opened. It is important to cover the can and to keep the food refrigerated. A few acid foods may dissolve a little iron from the can, but this is not harmful or dangerous to health. Another container, such as a dish on your cupboard shelf, might even have bacteria on it which could cause food to spoil. Cans and foods are sterilized in the canning process.

Fancy: Cakes made from standard recipes cost less than those made from mixes. Fact: "Homemade and mix cakes usually cost about the same. In some cases, mixes are even less expensive. When comparing costs, compare not only the total cost of the in gredients, but the cost of baking

Each dollar spent in the grocery store is vote" cast for food purchased. Buying you do today is shaping the pattern for what you will get tomorrow. Buying intelligently not only gives you better food for your money but it promises you more of what you want in tables and fruits are a good buy. Fact: Generally speaking, the waste in preparation of wilted, decayed, immature or over-ripe products is less than the best quality fruits and vegetables. So the best quality is less expensive in the long run, though not in the original price. However, lower quality produce can be a good buy for some uses. For example, scarred or poorly shaped apples can be used in sauce and pies to an advantage. Fancy: Comparing various pro ducts to judge their value is not spoke on the rural women of worth the time and effort. Fact: Saving a few cents on an item may seem unimportant at the time, but small savings on single items become big savings on your total grocery bill week after week. Substituting similar foods which are lower in price is an intelligent approach to lower food costs and wise shopping. Fancy: Dairy products are expensive. Fact: Dairy products give a higher percentage return in necessary food values than they cost in percentage of food money. When you spend 15 per cent of your food budget for dairy products, you actually buy 80 per cent of your family's nutrition

CASSLAND GROUP

Concluded from page one, porter, Mr. Merchant; minute-man for legislation, Alfred Goodall; program, Mr. and Mrs. Arlington Hoffman, and Blue Cross service chairman and news re porter, Mrs. Carpenter.

The topic for discussion, 'Issues regarding a constitutional convention," was led by Ed Golding Sr. Because this vital question will face the voters on the Nov. 4 bailot a stand was decided upon. The group has opposed a constitutional convention because to surrender authority to any person, group or body of government in such a way as to remove the natural rights of individuals means the loss of our American heritage and the suppression of minority groups. The group also feels that such a move would be too costly to a state now having difficulty in paying its bills and which is now casting about for new ways to tax the people.

The meeting adjourned until Oct. 14 when all Farm Bureau members are invited to attend and enter into discussion of important issues.

To Ask Former 4-H'ers for Funds To Build Camp

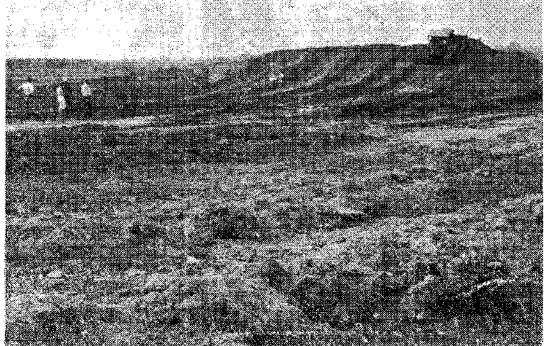

Former 4-H members living in Tuscola County will find it easy to participate in the 4-H Alumni Roll Call now going on to raise funds to help build Camp Kett, according to Bill Muller, County Extension Agent in 4-H Club

During the Roll Call drive which runs until November 15, every man and woman now living in Tuscola County who ever be-longed to a 4-H Club will be asked to answer the Roll Call by contributing $1.00 or more toward building the new State 4-H Training Center. Contributors' names will be listed at the Center under the county where they lived when they were 4-H mem

Special envelopes and Roll Call eards have been placed at the County Extension office and at ty. In addition, 35 organizations in the county have been contacted and given a supply of envelopes for 4-H alumni in these organizations, Muller said.

We do not know how many people there are in Tuscola County who have belonged to a 4-H Club in their youth, but we believe a great many of them will respond to the 4-H Roll Call when they are aware of its purpose, the a-gent said. Dedicated to training youth leaders, the $300,000 State Training Center will be located on a 140 acre tract owned by the 4-H Club Foundation of Michigan on Center Lake in Osceola Coun-

many politicians running fer of- how to look fer the signs. fice this fall is claiming they was raised on the farm. And most of them is gitting away with it.

I admit it's gitting harder all the time to spot the genuine article. After a year or two in town a country boy can set on a bus with a lady standing and never git the least urge to git up and give her a seat. Sometimes, if he ain't too far gone, he'll stand up and offer to race her fer it, but that's as far as he'll go. And you can take a boy that's lived so far back in the country his breath smells like creek water and sooner or later he'll git to where he can make a left turn from a right-hand lane as good as a lot of folks that has lived in the city all their lives. And a boy from the country that's always run and got his shotgun ever time he saw a will finally git to the place where he can look a bushytail in the eye without thinking of squirrel stew. I know it's a fact that onct a country boy gits to town and lives there a few years, he gits all the bad habits of the city feller that ain't never saw a barnyard gate, much less washed his face in the horse trough.

But that old saying you can git a boy out of the country but

> If you see a feller taking long, straight steady strides down the street with his head in the air, you know he ain t from the country. A country boy takes short, uneven strides and keeps his head down like he's dodging the clods. And a boy raised in the country has a little more give-and-take than a city feller. Fer instant, I saw in the papers vesterday where a policeman trapped a woman shoplifter in a phone booth in Boston. If that policeman had been a country boy he'd have-flushed her out of the booth and give her a running start.

A country boy can git to be chairman of the board of a big city bank, or he can even git to be President of the United States, but he ain't going to do no work on Saturday afternoons. squirrel on the court house lawn The first thing old Andy Jackson did when he got to the White House was to pass a order down the line that he'd conduct the nation's business on Sunday or ever night in the week but nobody need bother him after the whistle blowed fer Saturday noon. Yep, there's still a heap of ways to spot the real country boy and these politicians ain't boy and these fooling me none.
