

Hospital Bids Exceed Estimates

Village Authorizes $7,500 for Planner

From the Editor's Corner

The community will miss Otto Prieskorn. Since coming to the community in 1936, Mr. Prieskorn was one of the leaders in business and many civic projects. Outwardly gruff, his demeanor hid a true community spirit.

His service was known to his business associates. A strong booster of the Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations, he could be counted upon to do his share in any venture designed to promote the community. His death is Cass City's loss.

The Chronicle's plea for needy families in the area has brought 12 names of families truly in need of assistance. Considering the plight of these families it might be appropriate for us to pause and "count our blessings" this Christmas.

To Judge Yule Displays in Cass City Sunday

Judging for the largest amount of Christmas home decorations prize money ever offered in Cass City will be held Sunday night when out-of-town judges will determine the 15 best decorations in the community.

First prize will be $50. Second prize is worth $40 and third prize brings the winner $30. Twenty dollars is offered for fourth place and fifth place brings $10. In addition there will be 10 prizes of $5 each.

The top five prizes in the contest have been doubled this year by the Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the event.

Winner of the event last year was Willis Campbell. James Champion was the second prize winner. Displays of business concerns and civic organizations are not eligible to compete in the contest.

Cold Weather Hinders Pageant Sunday Evening

Although the number of visitors in Cass City Sunday to see the annual Christmas Pageant was reduced by bitter cold weather and the absence of publicity from nearby striking daily papers, authorities reported that they felt the pageant was again successful.

Visitors at the event included five special buses from neighboring cities. If they were repeat visitors they may have noticed the improved lighting and the change in programming that made many of the features of the pageant more clearly visible.

Another added feature of the 1958 pageant was the singing of the Cass City High School Choir which recorded new numbers for the event.

Most of the principal characters in the pageant and many of the persons in less important roles are veterans who help in the community enterprise each year. Mrs. James Bauer, pageant director, said that she feels that these persons deserve a vote of thanks for their continuing efforts through the years.

Otto Prieskorn Succumbs Monday In Saginaw

Cass City lost one of its prominent businessmen early Monday morning when Otto Prieskorn, 68, died in St. Luke's Hospital, Saginaw, following a heart attack.

Mr. Prieskorn had entered the hospital Sunday evening for a rest and a check up when he suddenly succumbed. He had suffered from a heart ailment for many years. Although he had been ill in the weeks immediately preceding his death, he had been able to work steadily at his store during the Christmas season.

Cass City stores were closed Wednesday from 1 to 3 p.m., the time of service, in respect for Mr. Prieskorn.

Son of Mrs. Mary Krull Prieskorn and the late Adolph, he was born at Caseville Feb. 22, 1900. He and the former Miss Mary Allan were married at Bad Axe, June 25, 1927.

Mr. Prieskorn enjoyed a successful varied career as a businessman. He operated a meat market at Fairgrove and a general store at Gott's Corners before moving to Cass City in 1936.

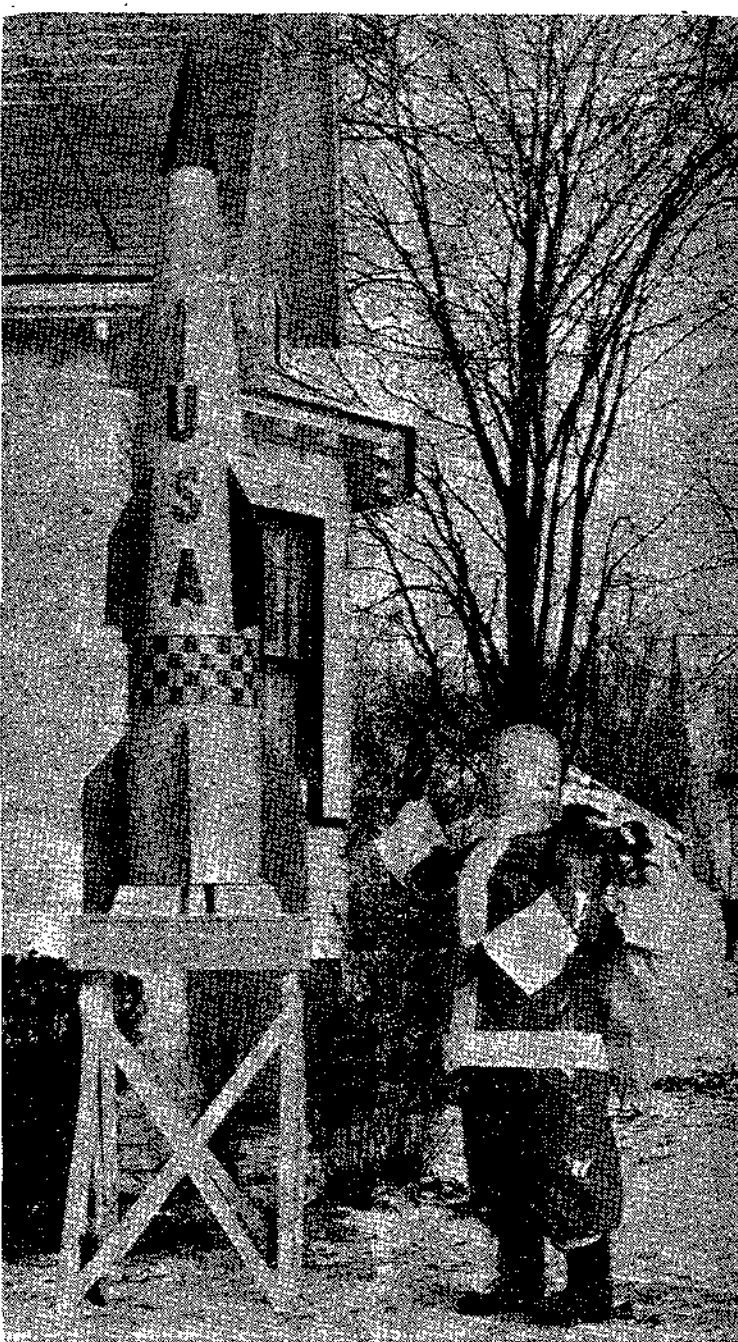

Together with his wife, he operated a clothing store here until 1948. After a one-year vacation, he opened the Ben Franklin Store on Main Street which he operated until his death.

Mr. Prieskorn was one of the residents to help start a drive for a swimming pool in the community. He was a member of the Rotary Club.

Surviving, besides his widow, are a son, Gerald, of Bay City; his mother; a brother, John, of Harbor Beach; a sister, Mrs. Claud (Alma) Betteridge of Caseville, and two grandchildren.

Rev. John Hall Fish, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, officiated at the final rites held at the Douglas Funeral Home.

Burial was in Elkland Cemetery.

Community Aids Destitute Family

It will be a merrier Christmas for one family in the area this year, thanks to the generosity of area residents and organizations. A couple of weeks ago the Chronicle issued a call for help in securing names of needy families in the area. . . one family was reported several times.

When interested persons learned of the family's plight, prompt action was taken. This family was literally out of food and fuel. The husband and father has been out of work for 13 months.

The county welfare department gave some assistance and the pastor of the church which the family attends bought shoes for one child in the family.

The local American Legion Auxiliary purchased boots for the child and furnished a box of food. The American Legion gave the family a check for a utility bill. Two other citizens donated $5 and $10 each.

Santa Slated at Cass City Park Tuesday Evening

Santa Claus will not overlook Cass City in his flying trips to Thumb villages this year. He is scheduled to make his annual trip to Cass City Tuesday night, Dec. 23. He is expected to arrive at the Cass City Recreational Park at 7:30 p.m. with free candy and nuts for all area children.

This year Santa's helpers are the Gavel Club and the Cass City Chamber of Commerce. Because of the Gavel Club's financial obligations to the park project and hospital fund, funds for candy were furnished by the Chamber. Sunday a veteran crew of Gavelists packed 1,000 boxes for Tuesday's distribution by Santa.

Early Copy

Because of Christmas Thursday, the Chronicle will be printed early next week. For this reason all deadlines will be advanced.

Your cooperation in bringing in copy early will be appreciated so that the Chronicle can be published Wednesday instead of Thursday next week.

Supervisors Freeze Wages of County Officials

The Tuscola County Board of Supervisors froze the wages of elected county officials at $4,800 Wednesday, Dec. 10, when they unanimously voted to leave the salaries at their present level.

The action was taken following a request by Tuscola County Prosecuting Attorney James Epskamp for a raise to $5,200.

The board read and placed on file a request from the Tuscola County Schoolmasters' Club for broader health service in the county. The letter said that the club feels that health service is at a minimum in the county and that it should be increased.

The Schoolmasters also went on record in favor of a County Health Center or a Tri-County Health Center. A health center for Tuscola County in conjunction with neighboring counties has already been turned down by supervisors.

Irl Baguley, director of social welfare for the county, appeared before the supervisors and explained who was eligible to enter the new county hospital.

The committee on parks was authorized to investigate the possibility of obtaining land in Watertown Township for a county park.

The board also okayed an increase of the treasurer's bond from $25,000 to $50,000.

The next session of the board will be Monday, Jan. 12.

Need $20,000 More In Hospital Fund

Total cost of building the hospital will be $826,757.35, a cost which averages about $22.50 per square foot. System Will Warn Of Plant Disease Danger

Forecast Plan In Use, Others Under Study

The eternal struggle between the farmer and the crop pests which endanger his production and profits may be aided greatly in the future by plant-disease forecasts in the same manner as weather forecasts are helpful, the USDA says.

Dr. Paul R. Miller, head of the plant-disease forecasting work for USDA's Agricultural Research Service, says that the relationship between disease development and weather provides the basis for accurately predicting future occurrences of plant-disease epidemics. Plant-disease forecasts are now available, others are planned.

A USDA forecasting service predicts the occurrence of late blight of potato and tomato, blue mold of tobacco, downy mildew of lima bean, and downy mildew of cucumber. This service is provided in cooperation with various states. Three other diseases—apple scab, bacterial wilt of corn, and wheat leaf rust—are regularly forecast by plant pathologists in individual states.

Cooperative forecasts of major diseases of cereal grains are now being considered. The project also involves experimental research designed to obtain more precise information on disease development to improve the forecasts.

With accurate forecasting, Dr. Miller says, growers can be notified these fields are due to texture, depth, drainage, amount of sand or clay in the soil; and the organic matter supply.

Beatty says farmers can get valuable information from their county agents and from vocational agriculture teachers on how to push good soils up to higher yields and make less productive soils give more crops.

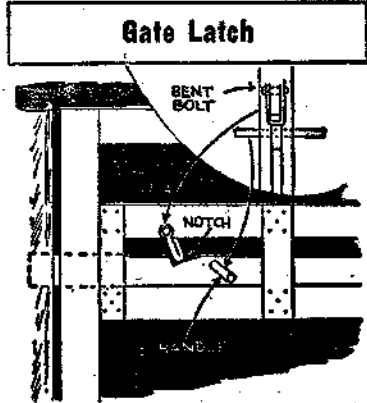

New Federal Regulations Aimed At Plant Pests

New Federal regulations providing stricter control over importation and interstate shipment of dangerous plant pests have been announced.

The new regulations will affect shipments of biological specimens and other materials by scientists, collectors, biological supply houses, and others.

The regulations extend plant-pest control protection to all plant pests including insects, mites, nematodes, protozoa, bacteria, fungi, parasitic plants, and viruses, which may be imported into this country for research and other purposes. Previous regulations had applied only to certain injurious insects and mollusks, like snails.

The new regulations regulate entry and interstate movement of all these varieties of plant pests. They apply to the continental United States, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands. Permits are required for movement of plant pests into or through the United States, or interstate. Also authorized are inspection and other regulations of transportation, products and articles that may carry these pests.

Alfred J. Goslin of Gagetown died Saturday at his home. He had been ill for nine months.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at St. Agatha Church in Gagetown, of which he was a member. Rev. Glenn W. Cronkite officiated. Burial was in the church cemetery. Rosary devotions were held Monday night at the Hunter Funeral Home.

Mr. Goslin moved to Tuscola County 59 years ago. He was born in Fair Haven, Mich., March 12, 1887. On June 29, 1915, in St. Agatha Church, he married Lottie Fournier, who survives.

Other survivors include: eight daughters, Mrs. Leo Seurynek of Gagetown, Mrs. Gary Goebel of Port Austin, Mrs. Lee Wood of Essexville, Mrs. Frank Vermursh of Unionville, Mrs. Wayne Greyerli of Saginaw, Mrs. K. Pavelsu of Center Line, Mary Ann, at home, and Connie of Detroit; four sons, Harold of Gagetown, Aloisius of Unionville, Keith of Bay City and Patrick of Unionville; a brother, Julius of Gagetown, two sisters, Mrs. Vida Karner of Farmington and Mrs. Delphine Abendo of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and 24 grandchildren.

Some people who have had very little formal education make up for it with lots of understanding.

The man who advocates letting well enough alone never seems to recognize what is well enough.

A political plank has to be wide enough for some side-stepping.

Specialist Talks About Production

Soil Expert Suggests Realistic Goals

In farming, as in business, a well-planned and properly regulated method of operation is one of the essentials for success. The farmer, in effect, is his own efficiency expert, and he should use his experience in farming and his knowledge of his soil and crop possibilities to plan realistic, profit-promising production goals.

Farmers can cut costs of crop production, increase yields and boost profits per acre by setting up realistic crop production goals for the different soils on their farms, reports Dr. Marvin Beatty, University of Wisconsin soil specialist.

"Once you have figured out the yields you think are possible," he says, "you need to put on the fer-

Proper planning, experience, can show way to higher production capacities.

It's required to get those yields. This calls for a soil test to determine what the plant nutrient needs are.

Other important steps toward reaching top production goals, are the use of well-adapted seed varieties; timely seedbed preparation; improved cultural practices; and effective weed and insect control.

Every farmer knows where his good fields are and where the less productive ones are. Beatty points out. The differences in the soils of Red several weeks and sometimes two or three months in advance when conditions favor an epidemic of a specific disease. Thus they have a chance to apply control measures in time to prevent crop losses.

Forecasts also indicate when a disease is not likely to become serious enough to justify the expense of control.

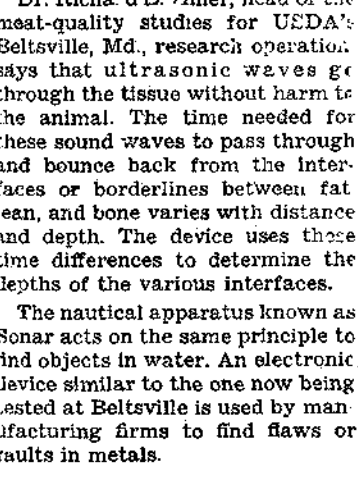

Device Will Measure Chop On Live Animal

An electronic device that measures the size of a potential steak or chop in a live animal may prove highly beneficial in livestock marketing and breeding.

This device uses ultrasonics—high-frequency sound waves—to determine the depth of back fat and depth and width of loin eye muscles in cattle and hogs. These measurements are particularly important in selecting meat animals that produce a high percentage of their weight in the more desirable cuts.

Dr. Richard L. Hiner, head of the meat-quality studies for USDA's Beltsville, Md., research operation, says that ultrasonic waves go through the tissue without harm to the animal. The time needed for these sound waves to pass through and bounce back from the inter-faces or borders between fat, lean, and bone varies with distance and depth. The device uses these time differences to determine the depths of the various interfaces.

The nautical apparatus known as Sonar acts on the same principle to find objects in water. An electronic device similar to the one now being tested at Beltsville is used by manufacturing firms to find flaws or faults in metals.

Truck-type rear view mirror attached to tractor as shown will give operator ability to keep eye on the trailing implement without having to turn his head.

Some men never know when they are well off because they never are.

Big money is made and lost in the same way—by taking chances.

Some Yule Lights

Are Fire Hazards

Detective Captain Glenroy Walker, chief of the fire marshal division of the Michigan State Police, is warning that some foreign made Christmas tree light bulbs being offered for sale have been found defective by American standards and are dangerous fire hazards.

He recommends that they be tested by lighting them before being hung on the tree. Defective bulbs will either short out, burst into flame or give visible indication of overheating during a 10-minute period.

Well known American brand name Christmas tree bulbs usually have the brand name or trademark stamped on them and can be expected to be in accordance with American standard specifications. It was pointed out, however, that only the wiring, not the bulbs themselves, carry the Underwriters Laboratories, Inc. approval.

Not all imported bulbs are hazardous. Some that have been laboratory tested perform equally as well as American standard bulbs.

Dear Mister Editor:

The time of year has come when business folks are handing out 1959 calendars and then financial experts are writing up their predictions for next year.

It's

The calendars are gitting better or worse, sorter depending on a feller's age. Back years ago we had pritty wimmen in hats and veils, showing 'em from the waist up. Then we had a spell where the wimmen showed their knees, silk hose and sometimes a few unmentionables. Then we had what you might call the Marilyn Monroe era when they showed 'em wearing practically nothing, up or down. This year I see they've gone out for more landscape scenes. My preacher is going to claim the calendar fashions is improving.

And them writers making the financial predictions for 1959 don't take no chances with their reputation. The way they predict the situation, they can't lose. They claim we'll have a little rise here, a little dip there, that prices will rise some and fall some. That's like saying tomorrow will be a bright and sunny day only it might rain. When a feller stays a fraction of an inch above water, a little dip puts him under.

I ain't no prophet, in fact I ain't too shore about what happened this year, but I'll give you my predictions for 1959.

Both the Democrats and the Republicans say they are going to reduce taxes. I predict there'll be no reduction that's visible to the naked eye. I been here a long time and I ain't never saw taxes come down unless they put on some other levy to balance it off. Like the experts say, prices will go up and down. For instance, the price of corn will go up around planting time, and the farmers will start planting it like they had to get some of it grown to git into heaven. About the time they git it to market, the prices will fall.

I predict 1959 will be about as usual. It'll rain too much at times, be too dry at times, politicians will do no better and no worse than common. Most people will spend more money than they ought to, and most of us will spend more'n we got.

For folks like me in the nip and tuck class, we'll git a little ahead once in a while, decide maybe we can pay our taxes for a change, then someone will happen and the surplus is gone and we'll be back nipping and tucking.

The best advice I got for 1959 is to put our faith in the good Lord and live it day by day.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Maryland Feeder Asks Middle-Road Cattle

Not Too Big, Nor Too Little, He Suggests

"I don't want pony type cattle and I don't want them big and rough. I want middle of the road steers," says Roland Mullinix, veteran feeder and farmer of Woodbine Md.

"I have found Hereford breeders are not producing the little dumpy cattle that will not make a profitable gain, nor are they breeding for big horsey type cattle," he says. The thirteen farms operated by Mullinix cover 2,000 acres. There are 400 acres in corn, 450 in small grain, 150 in alfalfa, 200 in mixed hay and the remainder in woods and pastures. During the past year they fed over 800 head of Herefords for the trade in the Baltimore area.

Roland Mullinix, inset, is veteran Maryland feeder and farmer.

Mullinix wants his cattle to be of a medium size, loose-hided, good-headed with strong hindquarters and plenty of places to put meat. However, he warns you can go just as far overboard on too much size as you can on cattle that are too small. He prefers weaned calves for them if they have been crop fed and well dehorned.

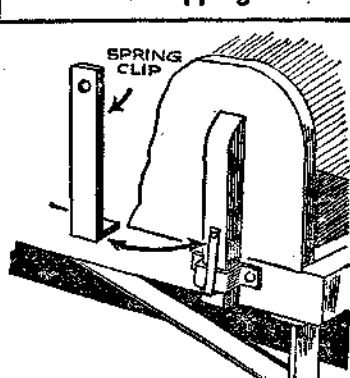

Most of the steers and heifers in this operation are purchased through the Virginia and West Virginia Feeder Calf Sales.

Stock "Winterizing" Plan Outlined By Foundation

A 10-point program for "winterizing" livestock was recommended to farmers by the American Foundation for Animal Health.

1. Check sanitation and ventilation facilities of hog and poultry houses to guard against pneumonia and other respiratory diseases.
2. Exercise caution in allowing cattle into drought-stricken fields of corn, Sudan grass or cane since poisonings may result.
3. Have ewes treated for internal parasites before the fall breeding season.
4. Examine cattle on pasture for lice, ring worm, warts and lumpy jaw and have affected animals treated before winter confinement.
5. Set up a workable mastitis program for dairy herds before winter confinement.
6. Isolate newly-arrived feeder cattle and feeder lambs for reasonable period before allowing them to run with the home herd and flocks.
7. Have all fall pigs properly vaccinated against hog cholera and against erysipelas, in areas where the disease has been a problem. The veterinarian will know when this should or should not be done.
8. Rid farm buildings of rats and mice.
9. Continue or complete cooperative area control efforts against brucellosis.
10. Avoid feeding hay, silage or feed grains which have a high mold content.

No Slipping

Using wheelbarrows with detachable sides is sometimes tricky when traveling over rough ground as holding piece for the sides may jump out of their stirrups. This can be prevented by securing sides with spring-steel clips as shown. Springs are screwed to cleats of detachable sides and bent to fit under the stirrups.

Favors are seldom satisfactory—so live that you don't need them.

Plan Agricultural Classes in January

Area farmers will be able to hear current agricultural information this winter at Tuscola. This information, according to Don Keblor, Tuscola County extension agent in agriculture, will be presented at six weekly class sessions, beginning Monday, January 5, 1959.

All classes will begin at 8:15 p. m. and end at 10:15 p. m. at the Tuscola elementary school. Topics covered at these classes will include fertilization, beef and swine management, forage production, harvesting, handling and storage, chemical weed control and sprayer selection, dairy feeding, wills, estates, rental agreements, father-son partnership arrangements and labor saving methods for dairy and livestock management.

Keblor adds that the program and topics were planned by a local committee of farmers. These farmers selected the agricultural topics they believed were most desired by their neighbors. The committee members are Howard Slafter, Tuscola; Leon Keinath, Millington; Wilmer Schmandt, Elmer Haines, Newell Hart and Carl Keinath, of Vassar. Assistant were Everett Brown, principal, and Welcome Baldwin, school board president.

Michigan State University specialists will be presenting the materials for these classes, and the dates are January 5, 12, 19, 26, February 9 and 16.

There is no charge for these classes and everyone interested is invited to attend. For a complete program, contact one of the committee members or your county agricultural agent's office. These classes are not limited to Tuscola County farmers, and neighboring county farmers are invited, too, remarks Keblor.

The Want Ads Are Newsworthy!

MICHIGAN MIRROR NEWS BRIEFS

Highway safety experts are getting worried about the killer with two martinis under his belt. He is not legally intoxicated. But the jolt to his system, that feeling of well being, confidence or power, transmits itself to the accelerator and makes him a menace on the highway.

State traffic officials are taking the emphasis from the "Drunk Drivers Go To Jail" slogan and applying it to drinking drivers. They are concerned about research which shows that more than half of all traffic accidents in the country involve either a drinking driver or a drinking pedestrian.

Standards of drunkenness devised in chemical tests given at police stations no longer apply. There is evidence that only a little alcohol has a big effect.

If a driver has less than .05 alcoholic content per volume in his bloodstream, he is considered sober. If it is more than .05 and less than .15, the point can be argued.

A man or woman with .15 or more is loaded with alcohol, as dangerous as a loaded gun.

The concern about drinking, rather than drunken drivers is a major problem as the holiday season approaches and the parties begin.

In winter, car windows are closed and the drinking driver is denied even the fresh breath of air that makes him more alert.

Traffic researchers claim that a driver goes faster in winter too. The windows are closed and he loses the sensation of speed and motion that comes with wind blowing through the car.

State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs and Secretary of State James Hare note that the late winter months are the most disastrous on the highways for these and other reasons.

Drivers are handicapped by ice and snow and the earlier hours of darkness.

In November, Hare said, the state's traffic safety gains were damaged by "bad luck," a series of multiple-death accidents.

Five were killed in a one-car accident near St. Johns; four were killed in a two-car wreck near Holland. There was no evidence that the drivers were drinking in either one.

Three other accidents each killed three people and two others took two lives.

Some officials are optimistic that something can be done about the problem, whether drivers are "drinking" or not. The answer lies with the driver.

Hare suggested a special survey to determine the number of drinking drivers and pedestrians who become the tragic statistics when the week-end toll is counted. Tougher law enforcement and other educational campaigns through the newspapers, which he credits with helping bring down the toll on the highways in recent years, are ideas.

Judges could help by making voluntary surrender of the driver's license for a 30-day period the condition for releasing on probation a drinking driver convicted of reckless driving.

Childs, whose troopers have conducted a continuing all-out war against drunk and reckless drivers, doesn't believe added enforcement is the complete answer.

The driver should be educated and warned, again and again, that even a few drinks makes him less alert and more prone to take chances behind the wheel, he said.

As the Mirror anticipated months ago, Michigan is headed for a state income tax.

The details of the plan have been announced and it will become the major issue of the 1959 legislative session which convenes Jan. 14.

One Michigan newspaper noted that Democrats, considered in theory to be the "poor people" of society and politics, are not completely sold on the idea.

It said the Democrats have gained ground economically and are certainly among those who would carry part of the burden.

So the arguments will start in earnest when the state's 70th legislature meets.

The best bet in Lansing is that there will be some form of an income tax within two years.

It's the rounder who avoids the straight and narrow path.

Miss Annette Pinney participated in the traditional MacMurray freshman society one-act play contest, which was held Friday and Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ryan, formerly of Cass City, left Tuesday on an all-expense-paid trip to New York City. The Nestle Company of White Plains, N. Y., is arranging the trip.

Leslie Severance, 11, received $5 a pound for his 90-pound grand champion Shropshire lamb at the Detroit Junior Livestock Show. Arthur Severance had the grand champion pen of lambs.

Ten Years Ago
The Presbyterian Guild Society elected the following officers: president, Mrs. Harry Little; vice-president, Mrs. David Ackerman; secretary, Mrs. Arnold Fisher; and treasurer, Mrs. Harold Perry.

Billy Zinnecker received $2,608.50 for his Aberdeen Angus steer, grand champion of the Detroit Junior Livestock Show. Alex Murray received $1,112.63 for his Angus, the reserve champion steer.

Santa Claus will visit Cass City Christmas Eve. He will be at the big lighted Christmas tree erected by the Gavel Club near the S T & H service station, where he will distribute candy to the children.

Officers of Acme Lodge, F & A M, of Gagetown will be installed Monday night. They are: Leslie Profit, worshipful master; Thomas Laurie, senior warden; Burton Roth, junior warden; Earl Maharg, secretary; James Purdy, treasurer; Charles Ross, chaplain; Ephraim Knight, senior deacon; Royce Russell, junior deacon; and Leslie Beach, Tyler.

Twenty-five Years Ago
County Treasurer Arthur Whittenburg, disbursing officer of federal funds in the CWA program, signed checks amounting to $5,078.34 to meet the payroll for 468 workers in Tuscola County last week.

In 10 days, depositors in almost 14,000 banks throughout the county will have their accounts guaranteed up to $2500 by a federal corporation. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, in cooperation with the United States government, is putting the finishing touches on its organization.

A "mystery pageant" will be held on Christmas Eve, following services at the Presbyterian Church. The entire group attending the service will participate in an open-air hymn sing and tableau.

Clayton O'Dell received $5.20 a pound for his grand champion Shropshire lamb. Harry Crandall Jr. received $210 or $2.00 a pound for his reserve champion lamb, a Southdown.

Thirty-five years Ago
B. F. Benkelman, who several weeks ago sold his general merchandise stock to the Detroit Jobbing Co., has sold his store building and business property on East Main Street to C. W. Heller. The property, which will be used for his produce business, joins the Willy Brothers garage, also owned by Mr. Heller.

Pearl Fleming, a freshman at Kalamazoo Normal, has been awarded a varsity reserve emblem and sweater for service on the football squad at the school.

Frederick J. Libby will be the principal speaker at the Presbyterian Men's Club banquet Friday evening.

Henry Ford declared this week that he feels the country is "safe with Coolidge" and that he would never consider running against him on any ticket.

Grade Holstein Leads DHIA Tests

Henry Hohman of Vassar is the owner of a grade Holstein cow, seven years old, that produced 2,250 pounds milk and 118 pounds butterfat to lead the list of 128 cows producing 60 pounds of fat or more for the month of November.

Other dairymen having cows which made 85 pounds or more butterfat during this period are: Alvin Frahm, Frankemuth; H. T. Donahue, Cass City; Charles Crittenden, Kingston; Leo Schian, Vassar; Clayton Rohlf & Sons, Fairgrove; and Dolan Sweeney, Uby.

In the 305-day class, we find the registered Holstein cow, Pietje, age seven years, and owned by Clayton Rohlf & Sons of Fairgrove making the exceptionally high record of 845 pounds of butterfat and 22,998 pounds milk. Other dairymen with cows in this class and producing over 550 pounds fat are: George Foster, Fostoria; Clarence Merchant, Cass City; Jay Marr, Mayville; Jensen & Weinzierl, Millington; Ernest Keinath, Millington; Tony Kozan, Reese; and Foster Hickey, Fairgrove.

In the herds averaging 30 pounds or more of fat we find the following above 39 pounds: Dolan Sweeney, Uby; Quibro Farm, Caro; Clayton Rohlf & Sons, Fairgrove; Dan Lukasavitz, Cass City; Clarence Merchant, Cass City; George Foster, Fostoria; Tony Kozan, Reese; Alvah Hillman, Cass City; Jackson Brothers, Caro; John Graham, Caro; Edward Golding, Cass City; Werner List, Vassar; Ernest Keinath, Millington; Charles Crittenden, Kingston; Harold Blaylock, Vassar; and Royce Russell, Gagetown.

All county dairymen doing dairy herd improvement association testing are now under the I. B. M. testing program, said Alfred Ballweg, county extension director. This means that all records on herds and individual cows are processed each month through an International Business Machine at Michigan State University.

Alfalfa Aphid Spreads Into Another State

Crop Pest Makes First Appearance In Oregon

Spotted alfalfa aphid—scourge of alfalfa fields in much of the United States—made its first appearance in Oregon this year.

Since 1954 when the aphid was first found in New Mexico, it has spread to three-fourths of the states in this country. The USDA estimated 1954-57 alfalfa damage at more than $50 million.

While the aphid survives temperatures below freezing, it has not yet overwintered in the northern part of its range in the United States, says Robert W. Every, Oregon State College extension entomologist.

A thorough survey for the aphid was conducted in Oregon this fall and an early spring survey is slated.

Spotted alfalfa aphid popped up in Oregon for first time during past year.

to indicate need for control programs if the pest maintains itself through the Oregon winter.

The aphid is spread primarily on air currents. Prior to the infestation in the United States it was known to occur in India, Israel, Italy and other Mediterranean countries.

The aphid is pale yellow, about 1/16-inch long, and has six or more black spots along its back. Under favorable weather conditions, it can reproduce rapidly—20 or more generations a year.

Both the adult and young aphids suck juice from alfalfa leaves and stems and also secrete a toxic sticky substance, called honey dew, turning hay into a black sticky mess that clogs machinery used for hay and seed harvest. The aphid also feeds on crimson, alsike and other clovers but causes little damage.

New Variety Soybean Released In N. Carolina

Hood, a new yellow-seeded variety of soybean has been released for production in North Carolina.

Charles A. Brim, soybean breeder for the N. C. Agricultural Experiment Station, reports the new variety matures about two days earlier than the Ogden and nine days ahead of the Lee.

The Hood looks very much like Ogden, Brim said, but it is ahead in seed yield, seed holding and seed quality. It does not, however, hold its seed as well as Lee.

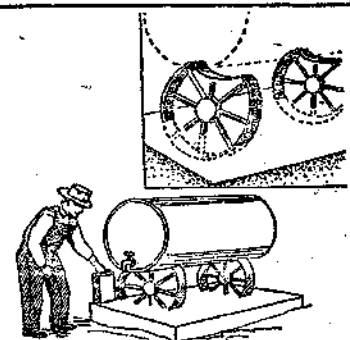

Hood is resistant to bacterial pustule, wildfire, frogeye and target spot. It has slightly more oil than Ogden, while its protein content is a bit lower.

"With these characteristics, Hood should prove to be a popular variety in many areas of North Carolina," Brim continued. "It is especially suited to areas where the Lee matures too late. And it will be particularly welcome in northeastern North Carolina counties where late fall rains often hamper harvesting of the Lee."

About 1,500 acres of the new variety were planted for seed increase in eight states in 1958. Brim says the resulting production will be available for further increase in 1959.

By 1960 there should be ample seed stocks for extensive plantings in adapted areas.

Tank Holder

Discarded implement wheels set in concrete provide sturdy holding tank. Wheels are altered to accept tank by removing one spoke and bending rim at that point to fit the curving side of the tank. Curving of the rims, of course, is done before wheels are set in concrete.

Wise Use of Credit Is Recommended

Use It To Up Income, Boost Living Standards

Every economist will tell you that wise use of credit is a strong plank in the foundation of our nation's economy. Today, Americans buy all types of necessities and conveniences they otherwise might not be able to afford, were it not for the availability of credit. But many farmers ignore the value of sound use of credit.

Wise use of credit can help farmers increase their net income and boost their living standards, reports R. A. Christianson, U. S. Department of Agriculture economist, stationed at the University of Wisconsin.

"Don't be afraid of credit," says Christianson, in a statement summarized by the Midwest division of

SOUND CREDIT CAN BOOST FARM INCOME

Wise use of credit can show farmer way to better crops, bigger profits.

The National Plant Food Institute. "Rather consider credit as a means to better farm income, just like a good dairy herd is a means toward better income."

Christianson cautions farmers, however, not to use credit unwisely, for such a step can spell financial ruin.

He advises farmers to consider three questions when they are thinking of applying for a loan: (1) Can your net income be increased with borrowed funds? (2) Is borrowing money the best way to get the things you want? (3) Do you have enough financial strength to stand the risk involved?

Michigan economist. That borrowing money to buy fertilizer and other profit-building production items can be good business for farmers in some cases in the present cost-price squeeze. They suggest these precautions: don't over-estimate your future income; don't underestimate your expenses; make sure you allow sufficient leeway for poor crop years as well as good ones.

Enzyme Test Big Aid To Frozen Food Packers

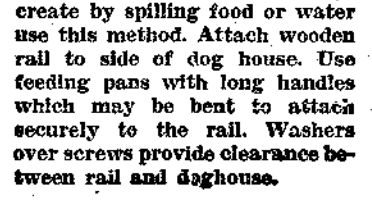

A simple new test for enzyme activity, developed by USDA, is helping food packers save time and money in quality control of frozen vegetables.

The test is made with chemically treated paper discs, easy to prepare in the laboratory, which show by a change in color whether the vegetables have been properly blanched.

To make the test, discs of standard laboratory filter paper are first soaked for 30 to 60 seconds in an alcohol solution of two chemicals (orthotolidine and urea peroxide). After the treated discs are thoroughly dry, samples of the vegetables to be tested are pressed against them. The time it takes for the paper to turn blue is noted.

If this color change requires a minute or longer, the vegetable was blanched properly and is ready to freeze. But if the blue color appears in less than a minute, it means that blanching was not sufficient to prevent enzymes in the vegetable from eventually causing undesirable changes in flavor, color, and nutritive value in the frozen product.

No-Spill Feeder

To prevent the mess that dogs create by spilling food or water use this method. Attach wooden rail to side of dog house. Use feeding pans with long handles which may be bent to attach securely to the rail. Washers over screws provide clearance between rail and doghouse.

Tips for Keeping Ice Cream Told

Gone are the days in which ice cream was sold only for immediate consumption. Today in our stores we see cartons and cartons of flavored ice cream that can be taken home and stored in home freezers until we want it.

Since many people do this, it's a good idea to know something of the keeping qualities of ice cream, as well as how the package it comes in and the temperature of the freezer affect it.

In a recent study, U. S. Department of Agriculture workers found that a uniformly low temperature of 20 degrees F. changed ice cream very little. Higher temperatures caused the ice cream to change more rapidly, so it would be best not to keep it long under these conditions. If the temperature goes up and down often, the ice cream tends to lose its smoothness and becomes icy and coarse in texture.

The package that the ice cream comes in also affects its storing. It will shrink away from the side of the container unless it is packaged in moisture-vapor-resistant containers. This shrinking usually makes the surface gummy and causes a change in flavor.

Mrs. Frances T. Clark, county extension agent in home economics, says that ice cream can be stored successfully in the home freezer for a month if (1) it is firmly frozen and is protected from melting on the way from store to home freezer, and (2) if it is stored at a uniform temperature of 0 degrees F. or below.

Other U. S. D. A. studies show that it is best to store ice cream at the lower level of the freezer, since temperatures are higher and change more at the top level.

If you use only part of a carton, be sure to return the unused ice cream to the freezer before it thaws.

The Gilford area will have a re-upholstery workshop on December 16, 17 and 18 from 10 a. m. to 4 p.m. The workshop will be held in the Gilford group's Extension Hall in Gilford.

A preliminary re-upholstery meeting for the Kingston area will be held December 19 at 8 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Carlyle Everett, Kingston.

The Deford extension group is furnishing gifts for all the patients at the Cass City convalescent home for their Christmas community project.

I am going to talk with you about a type of traffic accident that has been hitting the newspaper headlines lately. It is an old traffic problem with a new look -- the problem of run-off-roadway accidents. With the holiday season practically here, rural area residents and motorists might be interested in a new look at the increasing traffic problem -- the run-off-roadway accidents.

This year-around problem will be even greater during the busy Christmas season when more drivers will be on the roads. But first, some facts about the problem. Run-off-roadway accidents are the second greatest cause of traffic casualties in Michigan's rural areas. In 1957 there were 4,970 rural fatal and injury run-off-roadway accidents in Michigan. These accounted for 27.7 per cent of the rural deaths and 26.9 per cent of the rural injuries.

Another alarming fact is that these accidents have increased more than other types in recent years. Between 1948 and 1957, deaths from rural run-off-roadway accidents increased 52 per cent. In comparison, deaths from collisions between vehicles increased only 11 per cent. Because of the seriousness of the problem, a study was made by the Michigan State Police, and the results recently reported by Orrin M. Lucas, traffic analyst for the police agency.

The study showed that the driver should receive most of the blame for run-off-roadway accidents. The primary causes for these accidents were found to be driving too fast for conditions, inattention, fatigue, a high incidence of alcohol and failure to take proper account of the great reduction in visibility during hours of darkness. Another point to note is that the hours from midnight to 3 a. m. account for 20 per cent of the run-off-roadway accidents when less than 5 per cent of the daily traffic is out. The most critical single hour is between 2 a.m. and 3 a.m. This, also, is the worst for reported "speed too fast", and "under the influence of alcohol" violations, as well as the worst hour for "had been drinking drivers" on state and U. S. routes and on other rural roads.

Throughout the holiday season more drivers will be on the road. There will be more drinking drivers because of the increased number of parties and social visiting, and more drivers will be plagued by fatigue and inattention because many will be making long and hurried trips to visit with relatives and friends.

Let each one of us appoint ourselves a committee of one to see that we do not fall victim to a run-off-highway accident. Also, let each of us set a good example of driving for the rest of our family and friends.

Happy and safe driving for the holidays can be a good slogan for each one of us.
