Decision Due Soon On Land Transfer

From the Editor's Corner

It would be a fitting climax to the outstanding example of poor statesmanship by Michigan legislators if the one-cent use tax would be declared unconstitutional.

The House Agricultural Committee has disclosed that in the period 1947-58 food prices climbed 20 per cent, farm prices declined eight per cent. In addition, the farmers share of increased consumers' food dollar fell 10 per cent in the same period and is down to 39 per cent so far this year.

Although the middleman's marketing and processing charges advanced 44 per cent, his profit has declined. Food corporations show diminishing earnings in the 1947-58 period. All reports indicate that labor and other expenses such as supplies, fuel, taxes, transportation and advertising take the lion's share of the cost of moving farm crops to the dinner table.

Little League to Organize Tuesday

Persons interested in Little League baseball are asked to attend an organizational meeting at the Scout rooms in Cass City Tuesday at 8 p.m., James King announced this week.

Plans for next year will be discussed.

Area Makes Good Show at Tuscola County Fair

The 1959 sheep show at the Tuscola County Fair had over 325 entries, the largest in the fair's history, according to Walter Goodall of Cass City, sheep superintendent.

Burt R. Jackman of Crosswell, along with his son Stanley, had the most champions this year, taking honors in the Oxford, Lincoln and Cotswold breeds.

Jackman, who has been exhibiting at the fair for 40 years, also was awarded the Reid J. Kirk Memorial Trophy for the second year in a row for having the Grand Champion Oxford.

Winners from the area are: Shropshire, champion ram, Lloyd and Linda Severance of Decker; Cheviots, champion ewe and premier breeder, Larry Goodall of Cass City; Suffolks, champion ewe, Wilbert J. Goodall of Cass City; Corriedale, champion ewe, Walter P. Goodall of Cass City, and Kenneth Baur of Cass City had both the champion ram and ewe in the Hampshire class.

Beef Division

In the Shorthorn and Polled Shorthorn classes, Mack Little and Sons of Cass City took the champion bull, reserve champion bull, champion female and reserve champion female.

Greenleaf Slates Open Meeting to Discuss Planning

There will be an open meeting for all Greenleaf Township residents Thursday, Sept. 10, at the Greenleaf Town Hall, Supervisor Stanley Wills announced this week.

An undisclosed special guest speaker will be present to explain what township planning is and what the benefits for residents will be if planning is adopted.

A planning program is now under way in several area townships including Elkland and Evergreen.

Area Resident on State Fair Board

In the front of the Michigan State Fair premium book is a page that states the objectives of the Michigan State Fair, the oldest in the nation. This page is the only one of its sort in the nation and has been printed in its entirety for the past 11 years.

That page was written by a Cass City man who has achieved fame because of his work with the Fair and with the dairy industry as a whole.

He is Edwin J. Smith and lives in the first house past Novesta Cemetery, the house he helped his father build many years ago.

Mr. Smith started his career in 1915 when he graduated from Michigan State University (then Michigan Agricultural College). He taught agriculture in Blissfield High School, starting their first ag courses.

He later became chief milk inspector for the city of Detroit from 1922 to 1929 and in 1938 joined the Borden Company. When he retired, he was the public relations director for the Borden Company for the state of Michigan.

Many of the things we take for granted in the milk industry are the direct result of an idea of Mr. Smith's or the result of his hard work.

One of his most noted achievements is in getting the first state-wide pasteurization law in

McDonald Jailed On Felony Charge

Paul McDonald was sentenced to two and one half to five years in Jackson Prison before Circuit Court Judge T. C. Quinn, Wednesday, Aug. 26, for breaking and entering with intent of larceny.

McDonald broke into Moser's Grocery Store, Denmark Township, the night of July 25 and pleaded guilty when arraigned August 12.

Domestic Cases

In the case of Carol Brink vs. Duane Brink, petition was granted to modify decree granting custody of Gary Brink to Mrs. Alfred Brink, the grand-mother, and custody of Wendy and Terry Brink to the mother.

Duane, the father, had previous custody but had the children staying at a house of a third party. He was also behind in his support payments.

Witnesses were Carol Brink Simmons, Larry Munger, Glen Simmons, Alice Brink and Duane Brink, who was reprimanded sternly by the court.

Ann F. Hovermill was granted a divorce from Wayne F. Hovermill. Custody of one child was awarded to the mother and all money set at $12 per week.

A divorce from Anthony Tazynski was granted to Phyllis V. Tazynski and the name of Phyllis V. Sherwood restored. A property settlement was approved.

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY—Walbro Corporation had something to celebrate Thursday besides their fifth anniversary. The company received a plaque from Clinton Manufacturing Co. as one of their outstanding suppliers. In a letter explaining the plaque, President Dan Thomas said that Walbro had "less than one per cent carburetor rejects and no engine failure in the last six months." Examining the plaque are, from left: President W. E. Walpole, Miss Vernitta Linderman, Miss Edna Linderman and Mrs. Chester Muntz.

Trailer Living's Fun—But Be Sure You Know How

It's time to move. You put your house plants in the sink, pick up your outdoor flower garden, unhitch a few pipes and off you go. You live in a trailer.

Sounds convenient, doesn't it? It is, according to Mrs. William Adamic, a resident of Walnut Trailer Park, here in Cass City.

When Mr. Adamic gets transferred, as he often is in his job as a lineman for the telephone company, the Adamic family goes through the preparations recited above and are ready to move.

"We like living in a trailer and plan to continue living in one until the baby is of school age," said Mrs. Adamic. (The Adamics have one girl, Cherie, one and a half, and are expecting another baby in December.)

"It is all a matter of getting used to living compactly. We didn't think we had so much stuff until we moved it all in the trailer," she said.

"The only problem is when you can or something like that, then it is best to find some other place to store the canned goods."

"Also, in the summer I pack all winter clothes away in a drawer and vice versa to keep closet space free," she added.

When asked about neighborliness in the trailer camp, Mrs.

Adamic said, "As soon as you move in everyone is there to help you get set up. There is very seldom trouble with the neighbors unless you have children and then not very often."

"The main thing is to remember that you are living quite close to your neighbors and have to be considerate of them. In turn, they are considerate of you."

"Trailer folks seem to be quite a close knit group. They have something more unusual in common than just living in a house. They take turns entertaining in the evening and in general seem to have that 'old-fashioned neighborliness.'"

Mrs. Adamic explained that when moving into a trailer park the first thing you do is look at the rules. Some parks don't allow children or pets but most charge a dollar or two extra a month for them.

The highest rent they have had to pay is $25 a month and in one park she had been in it was a rule that all children had to be inside by 10 p.m.

"All the parks have a central laundry room where there are coin washing machines and dryers. Most of them have a playground for the kids also," she said.

The Adamic trailer has two bedrooms, a full bath with tub-shower combination and a living room-kitchen combination. Closets run along the side and there are cupboards up higher. All the doors are sliding.

To move a trailer over 35 feet long, you need a permit and can only do it during the week. Large trailer moving is prohibited on the week end.

"A lot of persons look down on people living in a trailer. I think it is because they don't really know anything about it. I have seen many change their minds about trailer folks as soon as they see how we live," said Mrs. Adamic.

"We have the paper delivered, milk delivery, a yard, a patio, flower beds, everything a home should have. We just live in a trailer instead of a house, that is all."

"A lot of towns are zoning out trailer parks or else requiring them to have a permit to operate. But like I say, if everyone could see how we actually live, I think they would change their minds."

Farewell Party for Sandusky Youth

Everett Diem of Sandusky, a member of the Cass City Roller Skating Club, was honored at a farewell party at the Cass City Roll-Arena Sunday.

Some 80 persons attended. Games, skate dancing and speed events followed by a buffet lunch were highlights of the evening.

Mr. Diem left Wednesday for the induction center at Fort Wayne.

In All Tuscola County Schools

Mrs. Yedinak to Screen Students

This year, for the first time, schools will open with a new hearing screening program added to the services rendered to Tuscola county schools.

The newly trained hearing screening technician for Tuscola County will be Mrs. Mike (Lillian) Yedinak of Cass City.

Last year, Mrs. Yedinak became the vision screening technician for the area and this year when the county decided to advance the hearing program, she was recommended.

To become a hearing screening technician, she attended Wayne State University for the summer session where she was part of a class of 15 who were in training for the same thing. They were integrated in regular audiology, physiology and psychology of hearing classes besides attending special classes and doing field work.

The first stage of the program will be the testing of all students in kindergarten, second, fourth, sixth and eighth grades in the county.

Testing is done with an audiometer, which can find out if there is a hearing deficiency and if so the depth of it.

The second stage is the re-testing of all students who failed the first test. Mrs. Yedinak then sets up three clinics and the students who failed the second test are re-examined thoroughly by a state audiologist, an otologist and herself. If the case warrants it, a hearing aid is recommended.

Those parents who are able buy their own, but under certain conditions needy students are eligible for state aid.

One of these conditions requires that they attend a state clinic where they are re-examined because only a few of the hard of hearing people can be helped with a hearing aid.

Also, since each hearing aid is different, the one that is best for the patient is found. Every brand is represented at the clinic.

The patient does not go to a retailer for his hearing aid but to the dealer. The state will still not pay for the aid unless the patient agrees to go to a state school for the hard of hearing for eight weeks to learn how to operate the hearing aid and live with it. Tuscola County students will go to the Michigan School for the Deaf.

The percentage that fails the first test is around 15 per cent and the percentage that fails the second test is around seven per cent.

Mrs. Yedinak wrote out some questions and answers for us that we are passing on to you.

What is hearing conservation? A thorough program of early detection of hearing loss and medical or nonmedical rehabilitation.

Why is it necessary to have a

Taylor Boy Slowly Improves After Polio Attack

David Taylor, six and a half-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taylor of Gagetown and the first area polio victim of the season, is reported to be improving in Mercy Hospital in Bay City.

The boy was taken out of isolation Monday but because of the paralyzed condition of his tongue, palate and part of his neck, he can't eat and is having trouble talking.

Until recently he was being fed intravenously but now is swallowing liquids with some difficulty. "We tried to feed him a half a teaspoon of Jell-o the other night and he couldn't swallow it," said his mother.

Besides the paralysis mentioned, one side of David's face is partially affected and part of his right arm.

So far, the doctors have no idea as to how long the boy will have to stay in the hospital. "It will have to be at least until he can eat," they say. "It may be two weeks and it may be longer than six months."

David did not have polio shots.

Bonnie DeLong Bids For State Title

Miss Bonnie DeLong, who was recently named Cass City homecoming queen, will compete against 40 other beauty queens from all parts of the state in the Miss Michigan State Fair contest Sept. 9.

The queen will be crowned by Gov. G. Mennen Williams as the climax of the Governor's Day program.

Bonnie is a nurses aid, loves to swim and has an interest in painting. She will participate in the mammoth opening day parade at 11 a.m. Sept. 4 through Detroit's downtown business section.

Coming Auction

Saturday, Sept. 5—Norman Hoppe will sell cattle and dairy equipment at the premises, four miles south and a quarter of a mile west of Cass City.

Elect Wallace President of Gavel Club

Jim Wallace was named president of the Cass City Gavel Club at a meeting Tuesday evening at Parrott's Dairy Bar.

Vice-president is Dr. K. I. MacRae. Bernard Ross will serve as secretary and William Ruhl is the treasurer.

Committees will be appointed by the president at the next meeting.

In the business meeting, Kenneth Eisinger reported that 25 per cent of the necessary students have signed for the Dale Carnegie leadership course.

Funeral services for Harold were held Saturday at 2:30 p.m. at the Evangelical United Brethren Church in Cass City with the Revs. S. R. Wurtz and Oran VanLoon of Berkley officiating.

Mr. Douglas was born in Ferndale in 1923, the son of Harold O. and the late Mrs. Edith Ballard Douglas. He married Miss Bessie Ann Connolly in 1950 in Berkley and following their marriage they made their home in Cass City.

He rested at Little's Funeral Home until noon when he was taken to the church.

Harold was a member of the Novesta Church of Christ but since moving into town, had been attending the EUB Church. He had also been honorably discharged from the Navy where he was a Fireman First Class.

Surviving are his wife; one daughter, Linda, 7; two sons, Harold, 9, and Billie, 3; his father and stepmother of Berkley; a half brother, Joseph Douglas of Berkley, and a stepgrandfather, Joseph Boyer of Omer, Mich. Burial was in Elkland Cemetery.

Harold Douglas, father of three children, was killed Wednesday while working on street lighting circuit wires for the Detroit Edison Company, for whom he worked as a high wire lineman.

The crew had been working on wires on Bay Street in New Baltimore when it started raining. The men went back to the truck to get raincoats and then on to the next pole.

It was then that Harold screamed. He was knocked to the ground, stumbled up again and then collapsed.

A close friend of Harold's pulled him from the wire by his helmet and across the road. Artificial respiration was started immediately. State Police, who were directing traffic at the scene, called an ambulance.

Artificial respiration was continued all the way to the hospital but to no avail. He was pronounced dead at the hospital.

The man that pulled Harold away from the wire was Noel Sugden of Lapeer. He came to call on the Douglas family Friday and it seems that he blames himself and the crew for not working enough on the man.

"There is no doubt that the men did all that was possible for Harold and I wish they did not blame themselves," said Mrs.

Douglas. "Noel went to pieces and ran from the house screaming. They feel as deeply about it as we do."

It is thought that Harold slipped or fell in some way against the live 4,800 volt wire. There were burns on his chest and across his eyes. It is reported that all the electricity was supposed to have been turned off.

"Harold was not a sloppy man at all, especially in his work," said Mrs. Douglas, discussing the fall that must have caused the death. "It was an unavoidable accident, I'm sure."

The children have been told and the two older ones realize what has happened. The smallest, only three, knows but still is not sure what it is all about.

The Douglases were to have moved to Utica next week end, as Harold had been transferred to Mt. Clemens. He had been with the company for 10 years.

"I guess it is just as well that we had not been able to sell the house here," said Mrs. Douglas. "If we had been there when it happened, we would have known no one. Here we have our many friends."

"I think the thing that touched me the most was the basket of flowers placed at the head of the casket. Harold was a fireman and the fire company had sent flowers. On top was his fireman's hat I appreciate that more than anything."

Funeral services for Harold were held Saturday at 2:30 p.m. at the Evangelical United Brethren Church in Cass City with the Revs. S. R. Wurtz and Oran VanLoon of Berkley officiating.

BEST BRAKES... STOP ON A DIME AND GIVE YOU MORE STOPS PER DOLLAR They're bigger too. With 'em, Chevy out-stopped all competitors in its field in a NASCAR*-conducted test of repeated stops from highway speeds.

*National Association for Stock Car Advancement and Research

BEST STYLE... BEAUTY THAT DOESN'T DEMAND A BIG BANK ROLL The experts at POPULAR SCIENCE magazine looked them all over and said that "... in its price class, Chevy establishes a new high in daring styling." Chevy's leadership in sales for '59 says a lot for its looks too!

BEST RIDE... CARRIES YOU AS CAREFULLY AS IT PAMPER'S YOUR DOLLARS "The smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class." That's the way MOTOR TREND magazine describes Chevrolet's cream-smooth ride. It's way more fun to sample than to read about though. Get out in a Chevy and see what Full Coil springs do.

BEST ENGINE... YOU COULD SPEND JARSFUL OF JACK AND NOT GET-A V8 LIKE CHEVY'S Talking about our standard as well as Corvette V8's, SPORTS CARS ILLUSTRATED says, "Indeed, this device is surely the most wonderfully responsive engine available today at any price."

BEST ROOM... NO CRAMPED QUARTERS Let's take the official figures filed with the Automobile Manufacturers Association. They show Chevrolet's front seat hip room up to 5.9 inches wider than in comparable cars. Count on real comfort.

BEST TRADE-IN... YOU GET MORE DOLLARS BACK FOR YOUR CHEVY Last year, for example, Chevrolet used car prices averaged up to $128 higher than comparable models of other makes. Just check the NADA* Guide Book.

*National Automobile Dealers Association

BEST ECONOMY... SOCK AWAY YOUR CHEVY SAVINGS As sure as two Chevy Sixes won their class in this year's Mobilgas Economy Run, getting the best mileage of any full-size car!

Now there's an Impala Sport Sedan... one of Chevy's full series of Impalas for '59

See your local authorized Chevrolet dealer—you might as well get the most!

Engaged

Diane Sbresny

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sbresny Sr. of Gagetown announce the engagement of their daughter, Diane, to Pvt. Stanford R. Draker, son of Rev. and Mrs. John Roach of Pigeon.

Wedding plans are indefinite.

ENGAGED

Fonda Rees

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Rees of Midland announce the engagement of their daughter, Fonda, to Mark Tuckey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Tuckey of Cass City. Mark is employed in Midland and is a 1957 graduate of Cass City High School.

An October wedding is planned.

The fellow who trusts to luck often gets there, but has to walk.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rockefeller

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller are now living on a farm near Gagetown following their marriage.

The former Miss Sharon Fritz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Fritz of Owendale, married John D. Rockefeller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Rockefeller of Gagetown, Aug. 1 in St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Linkville.

The Rev. Paul Waschlewsky performed the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with white gladioli, palms and candelabra.

Miss D. Hahn of Unionville, cousin of the bride, sang "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Mrs. Arthur Schulze on the organ.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a traditional floor length gown of embroidered tulle and Chantilly lace. It was designed with a scalloped neckline edged with pearls and sequins which continued down the smoothly molded bodice forming a panel to the hemline.

The very full bell skirt was caught at the sides into large taffeta bows and the back was dramatized by a series of lace ruffles and crystalized pleated tulle cascading into a chapel train.

She had matching gauntlets and a pearl and sequin studded headpiece held her fingertip veil of French illusion. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, white carnations and ivy with a white orchid in the middle.

Miss Olive O'Connell was the maid of honor with Miss Kay

ENGAGED

Phyllis Dodge

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dodge of Cass City announce the engagement of their daughter, Phyllis Elizabeth, to Larry G. Sadler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Sadler of Decker.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Most any man feels he has achieved success when the world accepts his estimate of himself at par.

The first concern of education has always been to build character.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Donald Wallace

Beatrice Eleanor Leslie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Leslie of Decker, became the bride of Robert Donald Wallace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wallace of Cass City, at 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 22, in a candlelight ceremony at the Shabbona Methodist Church.

The Rev. Joseph Shaw officiated and Alex Lindsay sang "Because," "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Janet Auslander on the organ. The church was decorated with white gladioli and palms.

The bride chose a gown of Chantilly lace and silk organza over taffeta, styled with a fitted lace bodice embroidered with pearls and iridescent sequins, a scooped neckline and long tapering wrist pointed sleeves. The bouffant skirt of silk featured lace panels, caught with silk rose encircling the chapel length train.

A crown of rhinestones and sequins held her veil of silk illusion and she wore a pearl choker, a gift from the groom.

Her bouquet was of stephanotis, ivy and a white orchid on a ribbon.

Mrs. Evelyn Leslie was her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Sharon Wallace, sister of the groom, and Jean Leslie, sister of the bride.

They wore identical gowns of tulle and silk organza over taffeta with a basque bodice featuring a portrait neckline and short cap sleeves.

The bouffant ballerina length skirts were accented by a hand embroidered design and deep hemlines. They wore matching crown headpieces and carried colorful nosegays of pink and white carnations.

Methodist Sermon Themes Announced

"Seeking the Holy Grail" will be the theme of this month's sermons at the Methodist Church, according to the Rev. Ernest E. Robinson.

For each of the next 10 months, the sermons will follow the same pattern but a different theme.

The theme for October will be "Questions About Jesus."

Names of the September sermons under the "Holy Grail" theme are: Sept. 6, "Unnecessary Unhappiness"; Sept. 13, "What Are Your Intentions?"; Sept. 20, "Walking to Arrive"; and Sept. 27, "Complete Healing Assured."

The October sermons on the "Questions About Jesus" theme will be: Oct. 4, "Communion Services"; Oct. 11, "Jesus Asks About Himself"; Oct. 18, "Can We Get By Without Jesus Dying?"; and Oct. 25, "When Does Jesus Come?"

TIRE KICKERS

For some unknown reason people still go around kicking tires when they're looking over a used car. I see it nearly every day . . . and I'm danged if I can figure it out. Where this custom originated I'll never know . . . for kicking tires won't tell you a thing. But there are signs to LOOK for to let you know what condition tires are in.

For instance, even wear on tires usually means that the car has been well cared for—and that the owner has avoided rough driving.

But if wear is uneven, you can be sure this is a telltale sign of tire abuse. And if there is excessive wear on the left front tire it might mean incorrect toeing or even a bent steering arm. Uneven wear on both front tires is often times an indication that the car is out of alignment. Other signs to look for are cuts or bruises. This generally means the former owner was in the habit of bumping curbs when parking . . . not slowing down when going over bumps or railroad tracks. Rough handling of this type not only causes tire wear but often damage to the steering gear, as well.

Tires tell other tales about the treatment the car has had, too. That's why it's one of the first things we check for clues before taking a car in.

Tires are one of the first things you should check, too, when shopping for a good used car. Kick them if you like . . . but then get down and examine them carefully for signs of wear.

You won't find any worn out tires on the used cars on our lot. Drop in soon and check over the many outstanding 'buys' we have to offer. Here at Buleen you can depend on getting a car that will give you driving satisfaction.

CLEANUP We have 4 new Chevrolets, 1 new Chevrolet Truck (engineered for Beet Haulers especially), 1 new Oldsmobile. Plus several Demonstrators. Buyers of the above will get GOOD DEALS for we must move them before October 2nd when the new CAR comes out.

USED CARS and TRUCKS. We have a complete stock as a result of all the trades we have been taking in moving 85 new cars in July and August.

USED PICKUPS are very scarce. We have two (2). A '54 and a '52. If you have been looking for one, come quick. They don't last.

Spotlighting Highway Department

By Elmer E. White

Michigan Press Association
Deep concern was expressed within the state administration as the Senate prepared to investigate the highway department.
Not since the days when Gov. G. Mennen Williams was focusing attention on the operation of former Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler has the spotlight of unfavorable publicity been centered so much on the department's administrative practices.

Considerable furor existed even before the investigation committee was officially named.
Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie said he would rather be spending his time building roads than answering questions.

Sen. John H. Stahlin (R-Belding), who authored the resolution setting up the probe, told Mackie not to worry. He intended to get most of his information from independent sources.

Any investigating committee can be a forum for powerful thrust in the drive by politicians and administrators alike for favorable public opinion.

Mackie already has called on his public information section to answer statements by Stahlin.

Resources of the Republican State Central Committee's press agent were thrown into the battle to help pave the way for the investigation when a dispute developed over right of way procedures in Gratiot County.

Legislative investigations often are barren of conclusions. When there are conclusions, they often are not translated into laws or changes in administrative practices.

The lack of reform by law, however, does not diminish the effectiveness of legislative investigations.

Getting a point across to the public is often satisfaction enough for the investigator or the investigated.

Both Mackie and Stahlin will be using all of their skill and resourcefulness to do this during the time when publicity is focused on the investigation.

A severe setback for thousands of users of Michigan state parks. That's the way House Speaker Don R. Pears described Gov. G. Mennen Williams' veto of the bill to charge entrance fees to finance a park improvement program.
But Williams said there was still time to get an adequate and equitable financing plan ready for the 1960 park use season.

The governor's veto of the park bill was generally regarded as a surprise.

Williams, who favors a bonding program, shortly before the veto had announced he was "opposed to but not opposing" this year's bill.

It has been three years since the Conservation Commission has had capital outlay money for state parks. The park fee bill, which called for an annual charge of $2, would have been too late for the 1959 season.

During the past three years, it has been a battle between the park fee approach and bonding.
This year's bill would have used the fees to retire a five-million-dollar bond program.

But the governor, who said 30 million dollars was needed, said the program was "grossly inadequate" and a "feeble effort."

Almost surprising as the veto of the park fee bill was the signature Williams put on a bill requiring reflectorized license plates.

Motorists next year will pay a 35-cent fee when they purchase license plates.

The governor said he was for the bill because traffic safety experts had assured him it would help cut the death toll on highways.

Opponents of the bill objected to what they considered to be undue pressure by lobbyists.

Sen. John H. Stahlin (R-Belding) said a Minnesota firm was the only one able to meet specifications for the reflectorized material to be used in coating the plates.

But State Controller James W. Miller has assured Stahlin others will be bidding.

Stahlin, incidentally, claimed rumors were being circulated that he was trying to lower the specifications for the material so his Belding manufacturing firm could compete.

"This is not true," Stahlin said. "We don't want anything to do with the thing."

The new type plates will be mandatory beginning in 1961. However, the extra fee will be charged a year early to build up a fund for purchase of the material that will make plates pick up light and reflect it at night.

As one aftermath of the license plate bill, the 1959 plates will last two years instead of the three originally intended. It had been planned that tabs would be used in the upper right hand corner of the 1959 plates in 1960 and 1961. Use of the reflectorized plates in 1961 means the tabs will be used in 1960 only.

TO THE POINT

Walters Graduate Of Naval School

Robert A. Walters, son of Mrs. Margaret A. Walters of Cass City, graduated from recruit training Aug. 22 at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, marking the end of nine weeks of ill.

The graduation exercises, "boot camp", included a full dress parade and review before military officials and civilian dignitaries.
In nine weeks of instruction, the "raw recruit" is developed into a Navy Bluejacket, ready for duty with the fleet.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

When that feller Tommy Manville got married the ninth time he was quoted as saying it was a victory for hope over experience. That's the way I feel about ole Khrushchev coming to visit us. I'm hoping but I ain't expecting much.

The papers is saying he's bringing about 40 of them Kremlin boys along with him and I don't see how we're going to compete with that two-platoon system. We ain't got more'n four or five in our party that's pulling in the same direction and we can't git but about a half a platoon on the field at the same time.

Personally, I think our State

Department should have got Harry to write ole Khrushchev a letter afore this visit. Them Russians ain't really had our Sunday punch till they git a letter from Harry. He didn't git much done playing the piano fer Joe at Tehran, but when he sets down to take pen in hand he's harder to git around than a woman trying to double park.

All the writers is trying to build up Khrushchev's visit as a mission of peace. I think that's the right attitude and I'm hoping they is right. But I'm always afeared of these affairs. Fer instance, we ain't never lost a war but we ain't never broke even with our allies when it was over. The Russians won more at Yalta, Tehran, and Potsdam than we've won in all the wars we ever fought.

And some of them writers is overdoing it. One reporter from Moscow says he thinks Khrushchev is easing up on his aim to git West Berlin. He'll be telling us next that Liz Taylor is wearing high neck dresses and keeping her mouth shut.

Personally, I'll be mighty happy if we just hold our own on this visit. Them Russians is the best double-talkers the world has ever saw. Hitler twisted history but them Russians invented it. I recall once when they claimed they was growing corn on the cob in bunches. Why they didn't claim it was already buttered, I'll never know. Then they fixed up a 14-volume history proving they won World War II all by their selves. I went along with that hoping they'd rest on their laurels fer 50 years. When they come up with a two-headed cabbage I didn't say a word, and when they claimed a feller Mozhaisky built the first airplane in 1885 and kept it in the air 26 minutes, I didn't argue. They said it was in the Russian archives, which was also invented by the Russians. As long as they're just talking, they ain't hurting nothing.

One reporter summed up this visit as an opportunity to git Khrushchev cured of his "gross ignorance" about America. I figger "gross" ignorance is 144 times worse than plain ignorance, so I reckon we got our job cut out fer us while he is here.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

The Extension women's groups' secretaries and treasurers will have their officers' training school on September 9 at 1:30 p. m. in the courthouse.

From agricultural research laboratories have come some new food products that I thought you might be interested in.

This is a recent menu that was served to some Congressional leaders in Washington, D. C. The first course was chilled pineapple juice with a fresh flavor, color and aroma. It was made from dehydrated pineapple juice powder. To reconstruct it, they just added cold water. The powder is one of several flavors and it can be stored and shipped without refrigeration.

Two baked pork chops were served on each plate to show the contrast between lean and fat meat of the same cut. Mashed potatoes were made from dehydrated flakes and granules that are already on the markets.

Applesauce was given added flavor with apple essence, a concentrate of natural apple flavor and aroma. This apple essence is not in retail stores, but some manufacturers are using it for apple jelly and other apple products.

The main course at this luncheon included a new wheat product shipped directly from the California laboratory. It was an instant whole-wheat pilaf with a chicken flavor, and is a modern version of a favorite old world dish. The whole wheat is cooked tender with chicken broth, then dehydrated. It needs only the addition of a little water and quick heating to be ready to serve. This pilaf dish was developed as a convenience food to increase the consumption of wheat.

Dessert at the luncheon was strawberry sundae and cake. The ice cream was made from concentrated sweetened cream. This recently developed cream product gives ice cream excellent flavor and texture.

The strawberries were a new variety named Surecrop; a large, firm, pleasantly tart berry. This variety is being tested by commercial growers for sale fresh and for freezing. The berries served at the luncheon had been frozen by a new low freezing process designed to hold the fresh fruit texture.

The cake served with the sundae was prepared from a plain cake mix developed for the school lunch program. The mix included four commodities distributed to schools, dried whole eggs, non-fat dry milk, flour and shortening.

Thus, the Congressional leaders saw and tasted new food products developed from agricultural commodities and soon many of the items on the menu will appear on the shelves of the grocery stores.

Farmers Can Save On Corn Costs

Using Fertilizer For Higher Yields

Farmers are saving 20 to 30 cents a bushel on their corn growing costs by stepping up the use of fertilizer and getting higher yields per acre, reports Dr. Kermit C. Berger, University of Wisconsin soils scientist.

"As costs of production go down, profits go up," says Berger in a statement summarized by the Midwest office of the National Plant Food Institute.

"The farmer with the low-cost, high-yield corn crop gets a bigger return for each acre, each hour and each dollar he devotes to corn production."

Berger reports that statewide average corn yields increased to 66 bushels per acre in 1957, compared to 43 bushels eight years before.

In that eight-year period, he says, the amount of fertilizer nutrients applied to corn has tripled.

HIGH ACRE YIELDS FROM PLANT FOOD CUT COSTS OF PRODUCTION.

Farmers find it pays to add more plant food, because it gives them more net income from their corn crop, Berger points out. The extra yields per acre cut down the cost of growing each bushel. In the case of the 63-bushel average, costs per bushel can go down 20 to 30 cents, depending on the individual farmer.

Where individual corn yields average 100 bushels, costs can go down from 50 cents or more per bushel, he says.

Test Tile Lines With 90-Degree Junctions

Ninety-degree junctions performed as well in laboratory tests as the 45-degree junctions usually recommended for connecting lateral tile lines to main lines of drainage systems used on farms.

Use of 90-degree junctions, U.S. DA says, could result in considerable saving of the cost of installing several hundred million feet of drain tile on U.S. farms each year.

Forty-five degree junctions, the engineers said, involve more hand labor and installation expense, and because of special fitting problems, poor connections often result. These junctions usually require that lateral lines be laid on a curve just before they connect with the main line of a drainage system. Their studies showed no significant loss of carrying capacity when water entered the main line from the laterals through the 90-degree junctions.

Model systems made of small "tile" fittings were used.

BEAR STAMP $2.00

Bear hunters will need this special $2.00 stamp on small game licenses before stalking the furry animals in Michigan this fall. Conservation Department game men feel the new stamp requirement will improve management of these big game animals and curtail a waste of bears which has increased in recent years because of indiscriminate killing. A metal seal will be issued with each stamp, similar to the one used for deer. Bears may still be hunted during deer seasons on a deer license. No stamp or seal will be required. Bear stamps and seals are available through mail or personal application at the Department's Lansing headquarters and the Highway Department's information office at Mackinaw City.

Both School Systems Have Good Points

"My own personal opinion is that a happy medium between the two school systems would be the best" is the statement made by Klaus Schulze, as he compared the German and American school systems.

Schulze, a German citizen, is in America to do postgraduate work in engineering at the University of Michigan. Previously, he spent a year in Cass City going to high school at the expense of the Cass City Rotary Club.

The whole German system is much different than the American system, both in the attitude of the students and parents and the mechanics of the programs, according to Klaus.

In Germany there is no kindergarten and the student starts in the first grade at the age of six. After the first four years of school, the students with the better grades and the higher IQ's are allowed to take a test to qualify them for high school.

"Since not all students are allowed to go on to high school, it is considered a privilege. The children are instilled with a respect of school at an early age and even in these lower grades, they realize the importance of getting good marks," said Klaus.

The tests the students take consist of a math test, a spelling test and a written essay. If the student passes, he then goes on to high school in what would be the fifth grade in the United States.

The students who do not go on to high school attend elementary school for several more years until they have a total of eight or nine years' education. They then usually go on to a trade school for about three years, serving their apprenticeship at the same time.

The new high school students of approximately 10 years of age find themselves in a completely different situation than is presented in our schools.

In the first place, all the subjects in the school are required; there are no electives. Also, more emphasis is placed on the sciences and languages than in the American schools.

Everyone is required to take math courses and in all the schools at least one language is required, usually two. English is the most popular language and French runs a close second. If the student is going on to a university, as most high school students do, Latin is also required. In some of the schools, for the more classical minded students, Greek is taught.

Another major difference is the fact that since all students are taking the same subjects, the teachers move from room to room instead of the students doing the shuffling.

The German school day ends at noon, consequently, there is often quite a bit of homework. The main principle of this is the thought that the student should be taught to think for himself, so most of the work is done outside of the class room and supervised by the parents.

"As far as studying and discipline are concerned, the German school is much rougher than the American system," said Klaus.

Extracurricular activities are practically nonexistent compared to the American schools.

"There is no inter-school sports competition. Once a year there is a track meet between all the schools but that is all," said Klaus.

Besides the mechanical differences between the two countries' school systems, there is a great difference in attitudes. Often times in this country the teacher and the school are not accorded the proper respect. In Germany the opposite is the case. In fact, the minute the teacher enters the room in the German schools, all the students stand to greet him.

Even the parents' attitudes are different. "In Germany the parents supervise the homework and instill a sense of the importance of education in the student," said Klaus. "Even the younger members of the school system realize the importance of good grades and studying."

"I don't believe that either of the school systems is superior, but I do believe that each one of them has advantages of its own. I think the American system of extracurricular activities is an advantage, the same as the German attitude of respect is an advantage."

"Also, while the German system of requiring subjects guarantees an adequate education, it is too bad to see a student who is brilliant in the sciences fail Latin and have to take the whole year over, graduating a year late. You see, if a student fails a subject, he takes the whole year over, the same as the grade schools here in America."

"I think that the best way to stamp out communism is to make sure the school systems are in top condition. The communists are placing great emphasis on education and we need to do the same thing to compete with them."

"Both school systems have their advantages and disadvantages and as I have said, I personally believe that a medium somewhere between the two of them would be the best way to fight communism."

To Discuss Feeder Outlook in Caro

All farmers interested in livestock feeding during the year ahead are invited to attend a "Livestock Feeder Outlook Meeting" to be held at the Caro Livestock Auction Yard Friday evening, Sept. 11, beginning at 8:30 p.m., according to Alfred Ballweg, county extension director.

Hugh Henderson, beef feeding specialist, and Don Stark, livestock marketing specialist at Michigan State University, will be there to discuss the supply and price of feeder cattle, as well as various kinds of feeding systems to use with different grades of feeder cattle. The use of growth stimulants and tranquilizers will also be discussed.

"We hope that farmers can attend this meeting at a time when they need to be looking ahead to the feeding season," said Ballweg.

A free lunch will be served through the courtesy of the Caro Livestock Auction Yards.

Altar Society in Farewell Party

The September meeting of the St. Pancratius Altar Society combined with a farewell party in honor of Mrs. Freda Ritchie was held Monday.

Games were played and a gift presented to Mrs. Ritchie. Refreshments were served by Mrs. William Bliss, Mrs. Corrine Creguer and Mrs. Clifford Demo.

Campbell Tells of Superintendent's Problems

"Nothing takes the place of the practical experience of doing, regardless of what the occupation or whether the experience is a good one or bad one," said Willis Campbell, superintendent of schools, while discussing the different duties of the superintendent.

Mr. Campbell feels that training is not complete until you have actually done the thing that you are training for. This is not saying that doing is all there is to an education, for this would be a gross understatement. There is much to be found in books that can't be found elsewhere.

After all, books can't tell you how to be tactful to a board of education and the people they represent and books can't tell you how to deal with each discipline problem, but they can give you examples to follow, to base your own opinions on.

Books can't tell you what to do when a mother tells you to mind your own business because you are trying to get her school-age children to come to school, where by law they are required to be. (This is a rare case but it happens in the lives of all superintendents occasionally.) These are minor everyday things that come up, each day's problems a little different than the day's before.

The life of the superintendent is also filled with the humdrum things that must be taken care of every day. These things include keeping track of the money, coming and going; what grade of paper towels to use; how much meat to buy for the day; what brand of vegetables do the kids seem to like best, for if they are not eaten, the kids do not get their money's worth and it is thrown away.

"This is not a profit organization," said Mr. Campbell. "We want to use all the money allotted to us yet not go over the limit. We just want to break even."

The first thing the superintendent does in the morning, and he tries to set an example by being on time, is to check the attendance of the personnel, so that substitutes may be contacted.

After that is done, he checks the attendance of the students so he can call the cafeteria and let them know how many to plan on. He sometimes has to call several times during the morning to keep them briefed on changes and plans. Then follows the routine business of consulting the principals, repair men, salesmen, teachers and parents with questions or business with the school.

Not mentioned so far is the fact that the day may start as early as 6:00 a.m., when the weather is adverse. Parents call and want to know if there will be school that day. The drivers need to know also so they can plan accordingly.

Of course, during the day are the usual variations such as having to take a sick child home, or in rare cases to the hospital. "No two days are just alike. That is why it is so difficult to learn except by doing," he said.

"One of the best helps a superintendent can have is to be surrounded with people who know their jobs and, of course, hiring them is also the responsibility of the superintendent," he said.

Chronicle and Merchants Bring Special Section

This "Back to School" section is brought to you by this newspaper in cooperation with local merchants, schools and health organizations as a service to the community by offering specials and extending information about the schools, fashions and trends as it concerns all of us and our children.

We all realize that getting a family ready for school is a large and expensive task. Consequently, these articles are supplemented by announcements from area merchants of their own readiness to serve the community in solving their "Back to School" problems as the September 9 deadline nears.

We sincerely hope that this special section will be of some aid to you when preparing your family to go "Back to School."

Cass City Schools Open Wednesday

Cass City Schools will be the last to open in the area this fall. They will open Wednesday, Sept. 9, at 8:45 a.m. for all students except those in kindergarten, who will not report until Sept. 10.

Enrollment for new students entering Cass City School in grades seven through 12 started Aug. 31 and will continue through Sept. 4 in the principal's office from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., daily, excluding the noon hour.

Mrs. Marie Murray, elementary principal, will be in her office in the elementary building each afternoon from 1 to 4 p.m. during the same week to enroll new students in the elementary grades.

Buses will operate over practically the same routes as last year and rural students are encouraged to get a bus the first day, even if rearranging is necessary later.

The cafeteria will open the first day and the price of lunches will be 25c. Starting Sept. 14 meal tickets will be sold each Monday for the week for $1.25. Lunches may be purchased without a meal ticket though.

Books
New books for this year are Home Economics I and 3, French II, Advanced Algebra, Refresher English, Gregg Shorthand Simplified, Gregg Dictation Simplified and Personal Typing.

Secondhand books will be sold in the west vestibule, the same as last year. Anyone having books to sell should bring them to the clerk in charge not before Tuesday, Sept. 8.

The clerk will assist in pricing and will try to dispose of them at the agreed price. There will be a five-cent charge for each transaction.

The "Used Bookstore" will be open Sept. 8 to Sept. 11 from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

New books may be purchased in the main office beginning Sept. 8.

Pupils Need Right Food—Mrs. Jackson

"Bodies are like an auto and food is their fuel. If there is not enough fuel, there is a lag and if there is too much, it is not used and it turns to fat."

This is the example used by Mrs. Thomas Jackson, home economics teacher at Cass City High School, when explaining the importance of eating proper foods.

The grades are the place to start teaching proper nutrition because the high school girls have already formed their eating habits and have not yet reached the stage where they are interested in proper foods. "We seem to teach these things in high school for them to use in the future, not now," she said.

"A balanced diet is very important to a growing child. And, of course, breakfast is the most important meal because it has been around 12 hours since the last meal and by lunch time, it may be 16. Naturally, a lag is there. The child that eats breakfast is more alert and more healthy. Also without a proper diet, susceptibility to disease is higher and the power to shake it is lower."

"I have found that most of the children do not eat breakfast either from habit or lack of time. This is why it is important to teach the child proper nutrition in the earlier years and make sure that he gets up early enough to eat breakfast."

"I do realize that it is often hard though," said Mrs. Jackson. "The basic seven is an easy way to show the food needs of each person every day. They include green or yellow vegetables, citrus fruit, potatoes or some other vegetable, milk or a milk product, bread or cereal, butter or fortified margarine and a protein food, such as meat, fish, cheese or egg," she explained.

"I think the cafeteria here at school does a very good job in planning meals and giving the students what they should have. Of course, there are going to be complaints from the kids about certain foods, but that is natural. No one food is going to please everyone. But all in all, the menus are very well planned and appetizing."

"The eating patterns of children often are reflections of the eating habits of their parents. If parents don't take time for breakfast, the children aren't likely to do so either."

"I have taken informal surveys in my classes of what the girls have eaten for the last three days and breakfast is often not the only meal that is deficient or non-existent. Some of them haven't had meat in three days!"

"Often times, I'm afraid the girls don't eat well because they are afraid of gaining weight. If they would only realize that a bag of potato chips and a coke for lunch is more fattening than a whole day of balanced diets!" she said.

Mrs. Jackson also felt that parents should watch the calorie content of the foods their children eat. Parents often watch the calories in their own food and forget that excess calories or too few calories have the same effect on their children.

When packing lunches the same rules for a balanced diet should be followed. A sandwich usually provides the bread and protein, fresh fruit or vegetable (such as carrot sticks or celery) and a light dessert, such as a cookie, almost complete the requirements. Milk should never be forgotten at any meal. It can be taken in a thermos or bought at school.

To Stress College Prep and General Programs at School This Year

"Beginning this year we are placing greater emphasis on the division of students into these two programs, college preparatory and general. You must, beginning with your entry into the ninth grade, be registered in one or the other."

This paragraph is taken from the front page of the mimeographed sheets titled "Enrollment Information," distributed to all Cass City High School students this fall.

The object of the increased emphasis on the separate programs is to better guide the students into the courses that will do them the most good for a future vocation.

"For a while, the colleges and universities relaxed their requirements for entrance to, and continuance in, their various curriculums."

"The last year or two, the requirements have been raised to a new high because the colleges have more applicants to pick from. Since the colleges are being more choosy, the high schools must do a better job of preparing these applicants for admission," said Arthur Holmberg, principal of Cass City High School.

Those not going on to higher education have need for a vocational training or at least courses steered in a set direction.

When a student chooses the courses he wants from year to year, he is very likely to end up with a hodgepodge not adequate for college entrance and not giving sufficient training to be of help in a vocation.

To try to give the student what will be the most practical for his needs, the stricter regulations have been adapted.

Of course, as the sheet explains, a student can change from one program to another, but he will be required to make up any deficiencies before graduation.

The college prep students are also warned that most colleges will not accept anyone with lower than B average and that a C average is required to stay in the program.

"We try to help each student find the vocation or education that is best suited for his ability, interest and ambition," said Mr. Holmberg. "These are carried out in the type of program they are advised to take."

In the ninth grade interest tests, to determine the student's major area of interest, are taken along with tests which are designed to give an idea of where the greatest aptitude of the student lies.

Also, reading tests are repeated as some of the classes are divided by aptitude and advancement.

The record of each student, the tests he takes, reports and his grades are kept in a folder in the office of the principal so a complete picture of each student is readily available.

"The one big disadvantage we have is the fact that we have no professional counselor. Every school of this size should have at least one full time counselor or more," said Mr. Holmberg.

"As of now, Mr. Holes counsels the eighth grade, the ninth grade and 10th are assigned to different teachers and I have the 11th grade," he said.

"Concerning the number of students that continue on to higher education, a great deal depends on the attitude of the parents. With no encouragement the student is not likely to do as much as he is capable of," said the principal. "It is a shame that more parents do not take an active interest in their child's education."

To encourage higher education to those deserving of it, some of the big companies and foundations got together and founded the National Merit Scholarship Fund.

Each year, in the spring, the juniors at various schools are invited to write tests and they pay a dollar for the privilege.

If his score is high enough, the student is invited to write in the semifinals. From the highest scores, a chosen few go for interviews and take more tests. The top few thousand, left from the hundreds of thousands who started the series of tests, are given education money as their needs warrant it.

The advantage of taking the tests, even if the semifinals are never reached, (to this time, no Cass City youth has ever been in the semifinals, but this year there is one exceptionally high score and Mr. Holmberg has hopes that the recipient will make the second stage) is that the scores have meaning to the students themselves in showing where the students stands in respect to his fellow students and to other students in the United States.

Each student is shown his score and has the chance to make the comparison for himself.

Also, the scores are mailed to the colleges who are eager to obtain the high scorers as students. They often write the student, giving application information and information about other scholarships available.

"Cass City High School belongs to an organization known as the College Agreement Association," said Mr. Holmberg. "Over 300 Michigan schools belong to it and the purpose is to keep the education and social standards high so the colleges will know that the student recommended from that school has a desirable education."

"Someday we will have the professional counselors needed and our program, which is improving every year, will be better than ever."

Vocational Program Important In Cass City School Curriculum

Even while the rate of graduates attending colleges and universities is increasing steadily, there still remains a large number of students who will never, for one reason or another, be able to go on to institutions of higher learning.

For this reason the general program has been set up in Cass City High School to give the students who will have no other chance to prepare a vocation to have training in some field.

There are several requirements for the general course, but while the college prep requirements are academic, the general program is more on the practical vocation side.

The following are the units required for the general course: three units of English; one major (three units) from any of the fields listed under the college program or from the following: agriculture, commerce, home economics, industrial arts or music; two minors from any of the fields listed or one of the following: art or music.

In this curriculum, the student can major in a vocation rather than the more academic fields. Requirements of all students are one unit each of science, math, American history and American government.

Cass City and area, being primarily a farming community, has great interest in the agricultural courses in the high school.

Agriculture is offered in a four stage course so that the student training in the mechanics of the can graduate with four years' farm.

Some of the fields covered in the ag courses are: livestock production, farm mechanics and dairy production, soil erosion control, crop rotations, fertilizing, soil treating, farm management, field layout, marketing, farm accounting, farm law, contracts and partnerships.

The commerce major consists of five courses: business training, typing 1 and 2, bookkeeping and shorthand.

The first, business training, gives the student an introduction to the field of business and covers such topics as facts about money, banks, filing, credit, insurance, taxes, buying, marketing and the different types of business institutions.

Bookkeeping is a course in the complete bookkeeping cycle to train the student to keep books for a small business. In the first semester of shorthand, the students get the basic theory and learn brief forms and general rules. The second semester is filled with dictation and more advanced forms. Typing is divided into courses 1, 2 and personal. First year typing is the learning of the keyboard, different letter styles and centering. Second year is more detailed work such as tabulation, more centering and company typing.

The personal typing course is a one semester course for students who want to learn to type for their own use and is more general than the other courses.

Homemaking is a three-year course in grooming, cooking, kitchen techniques, entertainment, house furnishings and sewing. In the four years of shop, the student learns such things as tool operations, hardwares, mechanical drawing, use of woods and metal and welding.

All of the classes are designed around the practical nature of the talents rather than the theoretical side.

"We feel that we should give the student all the education we can so as to prepare him for the job of supporting himself and his future family," said Mr. Holmberg, principal of Cass City High School.

Business looks up only to those who are willing to look it up.

Bright Colors Best For School Children

Children need bright colors and easy fitting togs to make them look and feel their best. And the better they feel, the better they will do in school.

Since back to school fashions usually feature children's wear, it may get confusing for the parent to decide what to get in the line of school clothing for their children.

The first thing to consider is the fact that children get everything dirty almost as soon as they put it on. So when buying children's clothes, be sure to look for washfast qualities.

In this day of modern science, everything from silks to wools can be purchased with "machine washable" labels. It is well worth the time and money of every parent to obtain machine washable fabrics.

Since, with machine washable skirts, dresses, sweaters and even snowsuits and winter coats, dry cleaning is not necessary, they will pay for themselves.

The next thing is to decide if the garment will be comfortable on the child. Children, unlike adults, can't tell exactly what is wrong with a dress or shirt, they just know that for some reason they don't like to wear it.

Also, children are very active and have a habit of getting into every conceivable position, the better to tear those tight fitting clothes.

For the girls, chemise and trap-eze styles are the most comfortable and usually, quite easy to take care of. Jumpers made of the wool and orlon blends, combined with a drip dry blouse, are lightweight, warm and can be thrown in the washing machine.

Just remember, when you go to buy these winter togs, a little time and money spent now is worth it in the long run.

More Local Grads Look to College

"Over the past five-ten years the number of graduates from Cass City High School going on to attend higher schools, colleges and universities has increased appreciably," said Arthur Holmberg, principal of Cass City High School.

"Previously the average of our graduates attending institutions of higher learning was around 15 per cent. It is now better than 25 per cent," he said.

The percentage of the graduates of 1959 that are planning to continue their education, as far as Mr. Holmberg has knowledge, is around 33 per cent. It is believed that this is an all-time record.

The following are the students that, according to records in the principal's office, are expected to attend colleges or universities this fall from the class of 1959: Albion, Kathleen Zinnecker; Alma, Dian Cardew and Suzanne Starman; Central Michigan University, Edwina Dering, Sue Edzik, Mary Gracey, Rosemary Lounsbury, Bob Tuckey, Janet Walsley and Ronald Wright; Ferris Institute, Bill Ruhl; Michigan State University, Judy Greml, Mary Ann Hobart, Jim Hutchinson, Newell Harris and Janet Perry; MSU Oakland Branch, Bob Johnson; Princeton University, Forrest Walpole; Huntington College, Huntington, Ind., Margaret Graham; University of Michigan, Peggy Shaw and Fred Leeson; Western Michigan University, David Ackerman, Ronald Copeland and Susan Tye.

Those attending other schools and institutions from the class are: Hurley Hospital School of Nursing, Sandra Bryant, Carolyn Gross and Janet Peck; St. Joseph Mercy Hospital (Ann Arbor), Barbara Irver; Grand Rapids Bible Institute, Phyllis Gelatt, Mary Hanby and Dick Perry; Humboldt Institute (Minneapolis-business), Rose Leyva and Vera Wright; Saginaw Business Institute, Kay Hartwick.

Prepare for a rainy day, but take time out to enjoy the sunshine.

It's unusual to find more than one genius in a family—probably one is all they can afford.

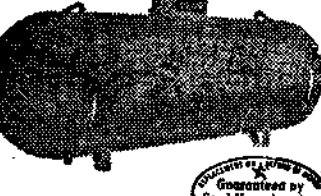

It's impossible to cultivate some people's acquaintance unless you install an irrigation system.

Pupils Face School with Mixed Feelings

All over the United States children are preparing to return to school with mixed emotions. Cass City youngsters are no exception and for the most part are glad that school is starting again.

The girls seem to be looking forward to school more than the boys, if indications are correct. Most of the boys are indifferent to the fact that school is starting again but the girls are enthusiastically waiting for it.

Also, the boys expressed a decided interest in the sports angle of school while the girls wanted to see old friends and meet new ones.

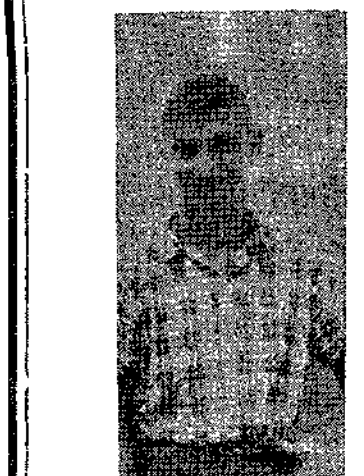

These are the answers we received when interviewing some of the Cass City youth at the recreational park.

Barbara Ballard
Barbara Ballard - seven years old - third grade - said, "I don't know why I want to go back to school, I just want to." When asked what she had been doing all summer, she replied, "Go sailing and swimming at the cottage and also swimming at the pool almost every day."

Kathy Ballard
Kathy Ballard - 14 - ninth grade - said, "I can hardly wait to get back to school because I want to see the kids I haven't seen all summer." She spent her summer the same as her sister, sailing and swimming.

George Maleck
George Maleck - 16 - junior - "I don't like the change from a lazy summer to school work, although it is all right after it gets going." (We feel that many of the students feel this way.) He likes the end of the school day the best when there are classroom discussions and he is informed. Last year he liked most of his teachers but did dislike the occasional noisy classes.

Tom Maleck
Tom Maleck - 17 - senior - Tom wants to go to either Michigan State or University of Michigan next year but this year he says, "I don't mind going back to school. I like it." He has been working at Douglas Funeral Home this summer.

Jim Woodworth
Jim Woodworth - 11 - seventh grade - "I don't mind returning to school. It's not too much fun sometimes but it's not too bad. I don't like math very well." Jim likes to have a good time outside and is "never glad to see the summer end."

Sheila Newas
Sheila Newas - 13 - eighth grade - Sheila is new to Cass City. In fact she had moved to town only the night before we interviewed her. Sheila is from Saginaw and her father is working at Erie's. She said, "I think I'm going to like it here in Cass City." She had spent her summer the same as many Cass City girls, swimming, playing sports and baby sitting.

G. Miller - L. Nicholas
Gary Miller - 13 - eighth grade - Gary says, "Going back to school is all right."

FORESIGHT
Success always comes to those people who know what to expect and when to expect it.

school is OK with me because I don't miss vacation time; there is not enough to do." Gary doesn't like English grammar.

Leslie Nicholas - 12 - seventh grade - Leslie, as some of the other children interviewed, has gone to Cass City School all his life. He said, about going back to school, "It's OK but I'm not glad to see vacation over."

We have a suspicion that while the kids seem glad to go back to school, mother is more glad than all the youth put together!
