

Cut Salaries, Curriculum to Pare School Expenses

The Cass City School Board moved to try to bring costs in line with revenues last week after voters had refused to grant the school two additional mills for operating expenses.

The board ordered drastic cuts in the curriculum and abolished all supplemental pay to teachers.

Because the cuts were ordered just before school opened there was a good deal of resentment by the teachers and a representative of the Michigan Education Association met with school authorities to discuss the measure. The teachers are naturally disgruntled.

The lack of funds may remove Cass City from the list of schools acceptable to the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. If so, it means that students entering college will be forced to take an entrance examination to enter school.

Teachers Cut

Supplemental pay that has been abolished includes $200 each for the vocal and instrumental music departments. Gone, too, are $400 for Athletic Director Irv Claseman and $300 for Coach Mike Yedinak.

This money was for work after the normal school hours. The board has agreed to continue Junior High Athletics with limited expense. Coach Claseman has said that he doesn't quite see how the program can run under the proposed cuts.

Unpleasant Year

It promises to be an unpleasant year for students in high school. Many of the finer extracurricular activities, standard in every high school, will be abolished. The dramatics teacher has been cut $150 and there will be no school play. Gone is the $100 fee for the debate coach and Cass City will not have a debate team. The $100 fee for supervising the school annual has been cut and there will not be an annual. Other cuts include extra home economics ($200), junior class sponsor ($100) and extra library fee ($200).

Other Reductions

All bus trips to football games and basketball games and similar trips have been abolished. Mileage and expense items for teachers or students to attend conferences will not be allowed. General expenses have been ordered slashed $1,100. There will be no new bus purchased at present.

No Art Course

Cass City will not offer art in any form as the art teacher has been eliminated.

No Sixth Hour Classes

One of the biggest and most important reductions in the curriculum is the abolishment of all sixth hour classes for teachers.

The affect of this cut is not readily understood unless the way sixth hour classes operate is explained.

Teachers at the school are required to teach five hours for their basic wages as specified in their contracts. If they teach six hours they are given $500 extra for the work.

The elimination of the sixth hour means that students will be forced into larger classes, larger than the accepted norms for adequate education.

The cost-cutting provision means that a classroom may be idle for some hours during the day and bulging with students at others.

Previously Announced

Cuts that were previously announced have been implemented. The girls' physical education program has been abolished. Transportation of students by bus to school will be from one mile out and beyond. No students will be picked up in town.

Film rentals are reduced. Outside assemblies will be reduced or abolished. Counseling is back on a half-day basis and fees have been upped.

Elementary workbook fees go from $4 to $6. Farm shop and general shop costs jump from $2 to $4 per year and rental of the gyms increase from $7.50 to $10, plus janitor fees. The commercial fee remains at $20.

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1961

TWELVE PAGES

From the Editor's Corner

Our kids went back to school Wednesday.

Back to the same old brick and mortar, to the same desks, typewriters and books... but not the same school.

Although most of the kids won't know it, the quality of the education will have deteriorated. There will be more youngsters vying for the attention of each instructor in crowded classrooms.

The teachers, too, may not be the same. Many are disgruntled (over cuts in salaries) ... finishing out the year while waiting to head for greener pastures.

Much of the fun of school will be gone. Although appearing in the senior play, for instance, never prepared us for anything in later life, we remember it as one of the "finer," more enjoyable aspects of high school life. Going to high school should be pleasant as well as fruitful and it may well be more fruitful if it is more pleasant.

Doubtless the situation is temporary at Cass City High School. It will be corrected when voters decide that better education is worth more money... but not for students in junior and senior high school this year.

Another important election will be held Tuesday. It would be nice to report that area residents are aware of its top importance and that a heavy vote is in prospect.

However, the facts are that it is doubtful if as many persons will vote in this election as did in the primary when only a pitiful 15 per cent cast ballots. Why not resolve now to be one of the minority and vote Tuesday!

A bakery is scheduled to go into the building that formerly housed Parrott's Dairy Bar.

It's a myth that persons who retire generally die young, says Dr. Wilma Donahue of U of M. Three studies indicated that mortality is lower in the period following retirement, regardless of age.

Highway deaths decreased three per cent in August, but are up 12 per cent for the first eight months of the year.

The Saturday Evening Post will combat declining ad revenues with a new style magazine and upped circulation prices this month.

The new front at Little's Furniture adds to Main Street's sparkle.

Walbro Corporation authorities announced this week that they have purchased the building that housed the Cass City Skating Rink. It will be used for administration and engineering.

Plan New Water Pump

There should be no more water shortages in Cass City if the village council carries out its plans.

When a water main between the two pumps in the Recreation Park broke Aug. 31, the water supply disappeared. No water was available from about 7 to 10:30 a.m., when the pipe was repaired.

A new pump will be built to operate in such emergencies. Village President Curt Hunt said.

An emergency meeting of the village council was held around 11 a.m. to discuss the break.

"That water main was just like anything else, it got old and broke," Hunt explained.

"We've had a council meeting and we're calling in Hubble, Roth and Clark, our consulting engineering company from Birmingham."

An emergency pump system in a different location will be planned by the engineers, according to Hunt.

"The engineers should be up to survey within 10 days or two weeks," he said. As yet, there is no idea of the cost involved as it may mean some land purchase, Hunt added.

Owner Moves Out As Bees Invade Home on E. Main

A swarm of bees made news last week when they invaded the home of E. A. Elliott.

"I moved out!" Mr. Elliott exclaimed. The bees came in on the second floor of Elliott's home on East Main street and moved downstairs.

Elliott moved to his sister's, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Anthes, Sept. 3 he returned home after Clarence Miller fumigated with cyanide gas.

They swept up five quarts of dead bees afterwards. "I got stung a few times," Elliott said. "They talked to me in the Dutch language."

Auto Plates Sale Starts Sept. 1

Michigan automobile license plates went on sale Sept. 1.

James M. Hare, secretary of state, announced that half-year plates for passenger cars will be valid for six months, expiring at midnight, Feb. 28, 1962.

THE PIPE IN THE PARK gave out last week and the village crew stepped in to fix it. This meant digging a large hole over the pipe. City engineer Bill Schram, left, directs operations as Dale Rabideau looks on. In the hole, Dean Toner, far end, holds something while Eldon Stoutenburg, Ed Anthes and Dave Ware busy themselves with the pipe. (Chronicle Photo)

Village Improvises Without Water

By Mary Basing

What happens when there's no water supply?

That's the question that everybody answered Thursday morning, Aug. 31, when a break in a 15-year-old water pipe stopped water circulation in Cass City and pumped a layer of mud and gravel into one of the pump sheds.

While village workmen dug a ditch and worked to repair the link, residents used their ingenuity in a desperate effort to make it to work clean.

The pipe broke between the two pump sheds in the Recreational Park, making both pumps useless.

Village President Curt Hunt commended the workmen on their quick response in fixing the break within four hours.

"The village crew did a good job," he said.

"Four hours shouldn't be too much of an inconvenience," Arlington Hoffman at the Farm Produce Company said.

"I think that's pretty good time," Mrs. Hoffman added.

With the temperature hitting the high eighties, the question of an adequate water supply was asked.

"We keep a reserve in the fire tankers and General Insulated Wire has a big square tank on the ground that could be used in an emergency," Village Clerk Wilma Fry said.

General Insulated Wire's water tank contains non-drinking water used in a recirculating type of cooling system that operates the machinery in the plant, according to Paul Alfano, General Insulated office manager and plant accountant.

"It would be a problem to pump out the water," Alfano said. "Specialized portable pumping equipment would be necessary to get that water out and, of course, the plant would have to close down."

The village has 2,100 gallons of water stored in three different tanks, Elkland Township Fire Chief Al Avery said.

"If we had a bad fire and needed water, we would call in help and haul water from the nearest ditch," he said.

"Hospitals could get water from Wesley's Milk Company in an emergency as the company has its own pumping system."

Avery thought the tank at General Insulated could be tapped with a fire hose but that he would have to see it before he could be sure that the village has the pumping equipment necessary, he said.

"We don't have much more water than we need for ourselves," Harvey Bartle at Wesley's Milk Company said.

Emergency water could probably be hauled from Wesley's to the hospitals for drinking purposes, he added.

Walbro Corporation keeps no water reserve. The company was still getting enough water to cool air compressors that are needed to run plant machinery to keep working Thursday morning.

"If the water went down completely we would have to close," Walker Matlack of Walbro said.

"I don't quite know why we had water this morning."

The hospitals and Stevens Nursing Home hauled water from the Cass City Floral greenhouse.

Bigelow's Hardware, which has its own well, Wesley's Milk Company and other private wells.

Martin's Restaurant sold more milk and Jae Kitchen, owner of the laundromat, went slightly berserk.

"It seems to me the price that they charge for water, they could have better equipment," Kitchen snorted.

"When we are out of water we're out of business. If I could sell this place, I would. We have laundromats in three other towns and there's no trouble anywhere else."

The usually busy laundromat was deserted, as Kitchen and a helper fixed an overturned washer and investigated the pumps in the back room.

"Due to no water we're going to have to replace a $75 pump. If the water pressure ever went down completely the blowers could explode," Kitchen said.

The complete refrigeration system at Erla Food Center is run by water. When the motors of the cooling system went out, Richard Erla started shipping meat out as fast as possible.

"We have $25,000 worth of meat in the cooler; without water we have no business."

"We're thinking of putting in a well; the village won't like it, but

Forecast Light Con-Con Vote

A light vote is forecast for Tuscola County Tuesday when voters will choose delegates to the constitutional convention. Tuscola County electorate was conspicuous by its absence in the primary election July 25, with only about 15 per cent of the county's 20,000 registered voters casting ballots.

While Tuscola County remains overwhelmingly Republican, Democrats have made slight inroads in recent elections into this traditional political stronghold.

Offices to be voted for are the con-con delegate from the 20th Senatorial District and the Tuscola Representative District.

In the primary race for the senatorial delegate's post, Richard Erla of Cass City, the only Democrat, drew 489 votes while the four Republican candidates totaled 2,531 votes, with Claude L. Wood of Brown City winning.

An active Democratic worker on the county and regional level, Mr. Erla was candidate for State Senator at the last general election. He is a co-owner of Erla Food Center and Packing Company in Cass City.

Mr. Wood, who snagged 868 primary votes, is a lumber dealer and farmer, active in Sanilac County politics.

At the primary election for the representative district delegate, three Democrats drew 530 votes while the two Republicans snared 2,668 votes.

Shuford Kirk of Fairgrove, as the Tuscola representative district delegate on the Republican ticket, marked up 1,882 votes over his Democratic opponent's, Stephen Erdody of Caro, 192 votes.

A supervisor from Juniata Township for many years, Mr. Kirk has headed many special committees for the county. He recently resigned as chairman of the Tuscola County Republican Committee.

Helping Elkland Township

Golding-Patterson Like Their Work

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of articles about the township clerks and supervisors in the Cass City area. Others will follow weekly.

By Mary Basing

Local township officials are often lost in the everyday crises of cold war events that make up national news. Crucial to the affairs of every township, however, are the prudent enterprises of township supervisors and clerks.

C. E. Patterson and Edward Golding Sr. are part of the five-man township board who tend the business of Elkland Township.

Both said they like their work but are much busier than most people think.

Being Elkland Township clerk is a "continuous round of pleasure" for 93-year-old Mr. Patterson, clerk for 33 years.

"I've worked with seven supervisors, counting the one we have now, and I've never had any opposition nor been called on the carpet for anything -- yet," he said with a chuckle. As clerk, Mr. Patterson's salary is $800 a year.

The township clerk's varied duties keep jolly Mr. Patterson busy looking after the deeds to the cemetery, the income and outgo of township funds and the registration of voters.

"I keep records of all things, such as the fire department and the cemetery," he said. "That cemetery is a big affair."

About 150 - 175 men and women were registered when Mr. Patterson started his clerkship in 1928. Now, about 1,400 voters are recorded in the township.

"Registration is my biggest item," Mr. Patterson confided. "Election time always brings a large amount of work."

Mr. Patterson, father of two township clerks and supervisors in the Cass City area. Others will follow weekly.

In Canada, where he lived until he was 20 years old, he attended school "through the fourth reader" and "didn't get by very easily."

"You really had to learn in the Canadian school," Mr. Patterson said with a flourish. "Nowadays, people can't write; children learn more about athletics than anything else."

"I have a lot of experience with people not being able to write when they register to vote."

"I can't read what they write so I have them print it." Mr. Patterson said he then types the names on another sheet. When asked, "Can you really type, Mr. Patterson?" he said:

"Oh yes, I can't go piano style but I can type."

While Mr. Patterson helps make writing readable, Elkland Township Supervisor Golding figures taxes.

Mr. Golding, 58, who has served three years as supervisor, said that he averages a phone call a day, usually concerned with taxes and assessing.

"There's a lot more work to township government than appears at first," the full-time farmer said.

"I find it interesting though."

A supervisor's duties include assessing, figuring and spreading the tax roll amongst the population and attending the Board of Supervisors' meeting in Caro every month.

"Burning the Midnight Oil

"When we spread the roll in October, my wife and I burn the midnight oil," he said.

"We have to work day and night figuring out each individual's taxes; then adding across and checking down, it takes a long time."

Elected every two years, Mr. Golding heads up the five-man township board composed of John Marshall and Albert Gallagher, trustees; Del Profit, treasurer, and Mr. Patterson. His salary is $1,200 a year.

"I didn't know too much about my duties when I was appointed to replace Eward Rawson when he died," Mr. Golding said.

But with the help and advice of the 25-man Board of Supervisors in Caro, an electric adding machine and indispensable Mrs. Golding, the supervisor learned what to do.

Township's Worth Increasing

Now assessed by county equalization at $10,624,207, Elkland township has shown rapid increased evaluation since 1951 when it was assessed at $3,503,800, according to the supervisor.

Asked if he would run for reelection at the end of his term, Mr. Golding grinned and said he presumed so.

"That's quite a ways off but I'll probably be interested."

Concluded on page twelve.

Deford Tries Again

Deford voters will try again to settle the question of money for operating the school. A vote will be taken on three mills for one year for operating. It will be the second try for the district to secure extra operating money. In the first try two weeks ago the vote ended in a tie.

Tonight's meeting and vote is scheduled for 8:30 at the school. All registered voters in the district will be eligible to cast ballots.

State Hospital at Caro Plans Open House Sept. 8-9

The Caro State Hospital for Epileptics will have an open house Sept. 8 and 9 from 1 to 4 p.m.

Sponsored by the Michigan State Employees Association, chapter 22, the open house will feature State Representative Al-lison Green and State Senator Arthur Dehmel as speakers.

There will be a program of patient entertainment directed by Mrs. Evelyn Lane, head of the occupational therapy department, and conducted tours. Dr. W. W. Dickerson, medical superintendent, will give the welcome.

All guests are asked to meet at Murray Hall.

Just For Fun

Mrs. Woelfle Paints China

By Mary Basing

Never too old to have fun learning is the philosophy that seems to motivate Mrs. Adolph Woelfle's life.

At the age of 63, Mrs. Woelfle launched out on the venture of hand painting china.

"I started in 1955," Mrs. Woelfle, now a well-preserved 69, said. "I was sick in '54 and '55 with a heart condition and couldn't even do my own housework. Time hung a little heavy on my hands."

An ad in the Caro paper caught Mrs. Woelfle's attention and within a week she was signed up for eight weeks of china painting lessons.

"I've been taking lessons twice a year ever since," she said.

In September and January, Mrs. Woelfle attends lessons given by Mrs. Evelyn Blackmore of Vassar. Plus the cost of the $20 lessons, there is the cost of equipment and unpainted china.

"You can buy your china from the lady in Vassar or send for it in Detroit," Mrs. Woelfle said.

The price of china varies considerably according to Mrs. Woelfle, who has a large collection of catalogues.

Besides china, certain kinds of paint and brushes of various widths and textures are used.

The process of painting china takes patience. First the design is drawn on with black pencil, then the first coat of paint is applied. The china is then fired in a kiln. Next it is repainted and fired until the desired design or shade of color is achieved.

Apparently a woman of no mean talent at the art, Mrs. Wo

I went a little hog wild over the soil conservation air tour.
My initiation into air travel was an exciting experience. In a car you can feel yourself move, but except for an occasional jar from an air pocket, it seemed like someone was projecting pictures against a giant screen below us.
I asked the pilot how fast we were going and though he said about 17 mph, I guess I didn't hear right because later I saw the speedometer register a cool 112.

Calamity almost hit the home of the Calkas recently in the form of a crushed Chi Chi.
A Pomeranian, Chi Chi had the misfortune to get his leash caught under the feet of three boys who promptly lost their balance and fell on him. The Calkas thought the end was near but latest reports indicate the little dog will survive.

Several weeks ago Koepfgen's saddle horse, Prince, developed an infected sore on his back. Even after lancing, old Prince has been incapacitated for almost three weeks now.

The Koepfgen pacers, Mam-selle and Mite B. Gold, are through racing for the season.
Gold developed a bad leg earlier but was still being worked.
Now they have both been turned out.

Letter to Editor
Cass City, Michigan
Sept. 5, 1961

Mr. Editor:
The voters of this community and many others have just expressed their feelings for more stringent economy in local government operations. Altho' I was in the minority, I still respect the rights of those who disagreed with increased costs. What does disturb me, however, is that these same people seem so satisfied with our proverbial "rat-hole" type of spending for the past twenty-five years in proffering aid to Nationalist China, Laos,
Thailand and many other places.
Our state gets back one dollar for every dollar and forty cents sent to Washington. I do not know how our community feels about Federal Aid to education, but the situation would be comparable if it were practiced.
If voters have opinions concerning these matters, letters should be written to Senators
Philip Hart or Patrick MacNara, Senate Office Bldg., Washington, D. C., or to Rep. James O'Hara, House of Representatives
Office Bldg., Washington, D. C.
Thrift is a noble virtue, but, I for one hate to see it start and end at the school door.

Sincerely,
Jack Esau

Uncle Tim From Tyre Sez:

Dear Mister Editor:

I see by the papers where they has outlawed exposed shirt tails on the public streets in Florence, South Carolina.

That's a mighty fine law and I aim to write the Mayor of that city and congratulate him. This fad of wearing your shirt tail blowing in the breeze is a abomination unto decency.

Man is a ornery animal anyhow. Fer centuries he has been plagued with the job of keeping his shirt tail in. It would crawl out ever time he'd lunge fer the butter at the table.

body come out with a invention to keep the shirt tail from crawling out. They put little rubber strips inside the waist band.

And about the same day this smart inventor solved the creeping shirt tail problem, some other feller come out with this crazy fad of wearing the shirt tail on the outside.

I see where the column writer just back from Russia says ole Khrushchev ain't getting no place with his horse meat program.

Well, Mister Editor, fall is just around the corner, vacations is getting over and folks will have to git down to work again.

Yours truly, Uncle Tim

History Challenges My Imagination

By Ilene Warren

In January of 1533, self-willed and tempestuous that he was, King Henry the Eighth of England put aside his queen, thereby flouting papal authority, and took to wife the lovely, ill-fated Anne Boleyn.

It was four hundred twenty-eight years ago today, on September 7, 1533, that a child was born to the ill-starred marriage.

Elizabeth was born into a world poised at the threshold of the light that would slowly push back the shades of the dark ages.

It was during the reign of Elizabeth I that the names of Shakespeare, Marlowe, Spenser and later Jonson and Bacon - became luminaries in the field of literature; men of the sea with courage and venturesome spirits sailed to new places; the colonial empire of England was begun.

But in paying tribute to the achievements attained during the reign of Queen Elizabeth I, we often overlook the troubled childhood of the woman who was to become a queen.

As I read about the queen, I muse about how much this unhappy and insecure childhood was responsible for her later attitudes.

however, she was steadfast: No one could deny her deep love for England. Elizabeth would do anything for the welfare of her budding empire.

History (obviously!) challenges my interest and imagination - I only wish I had more time to give to the reading of it.

My husband is proud, almost to the point of vanity, that he is Irish. The fact that his maternal grandparents, the Lart Langdons, were a net combination of Scotch, English and Irish is not permitted to enter the picture.

I happen to be the common mongrel variety of American: about equal shares of Scotch and English, some (only a little!) Pennsylvania Dutch (which is just another way of saying German), and (we think) some good old American Indian (and if I have a tendency to stress one bloodline, it's that of the Scotts).

A fine opportunity to do just this arose recently out of the resignation of Janio Quadros as president of Brasil. I said to Ron, "There's just one more example of your Irishmen - temperamental, turning tables at the drop of a hat: that Johnny O'Quadros is as bad as the rest of the Irish!"

MIRAGE Stretching the imagination will work wonders, but it will never make both ends meet.

COMMON-SENSE This tired old world of ours seems to be in desperate need of a little clear thinking.

IN REVERSE The man who dreams of past possibilities has a poor chance for success in the future.

Michigan's Aeronautics Department Unique Among State's Agencies

By Elmer E. White
 Michigan Press Association
 Like Topsy, Michigan's Department of Aeronautics just grew. And unlike many other agencies of state government, the Aeronautics arm had to attain its maturity in a relatively short time. While many functions of government were young when the state of Michigan was young, aviation itself was only born a few short decades ago.

The state took a hand in the development and management of Michigan aeronautics in 1929 when the Board of Aeronautics was created by legislative action.

This agency presided over the birth and infancy of flying in Michigan, so to speak, and was still in operation through the adolescence of the new and precocious child.

It wasn't until the post-World War II boom in flying, 1945 to be exact, that the present Department of Aeronautics was organized.

In that year, the Legislature passed what later became known as the Michigan Aeronautics Code. An Aeronautics Commission, expanded to eight members from the original five appointees plus the Highway and State Police commissioners by the addition of the Director of Conservation, is the governing body of the Department of Aeronautics.

The Aeronautics Department is perhaps unique among state agencies in that it has had close connection with the federal government since the department was established by the Legislature.

Pilots, from private airmen who fly tiny single-engine jobs to the captains of mighty airliners are licensed from Washington.

But they are registered with the Michigan department, and one of the major functions of the state agency is providing an enormous amount of services to the men and women who fly.

These range from preparing charts and publications used as aids in planning and executing a trip in Michigan to helping organize such things as "dawn patrols" where private aircraft fly into one or another of Michigan's airports, breakfast together and enjoy other entertainment before flying home again.

A great deal of the department's work is in helping local communities and their airport operators plan and make arrangements for airport construction, expansion or improvement.

It also helps administer some of the programs of, and cooperates closely with, the huge and complex federal agencies which regulate and control aviation.

If somebody asks you where the greatest concentration of state government workers is located, think twice before answering in what would seem to be logical fashion, "the Capital City of Lansing."

True, Lansing and Ingham county have more state workers than any other county in Michigan, on a head-count basis.

But in Little Luce county of the Upper Peninsula, a total of 8 per cent of the population is on the state payroll. In Ingham county, only 3.3 per cent of the total population works for the state.

The catch is that in Luce county there are only 650 or so men and women on the state payroll while in Ingham there are more than 7,000 people working for the State of Michigan. This interesting comparison of where the state's work force is located came to light when the Civil Service released statistics along this line recently.

If Ingham has the most state employees, and Luce has the greatest percentage, there is no county among Michigan's 83 without a single state worker.

Other significant figures in the information released by Civil Service included:

There are six counties with more than 1,000 state workers stationed there. Wayne, which has most except for Ingham, has more than 4,500 workers for the state. Other 1,000-plus counties are Oakland, Kalamazoo, Washtenaw, Jackson and Lapeer. Fewest state workers were in Muskegon county, which had only four, the Commission said.

Naturally, the greatest number of workers were in counties where large state institutions are located. Total number of state workers is something over 31,500.

A little-known though decidedly obvious police arm of the Michigan Highway Department is the Weighmaster section.

A clarification of its role in the overall law enforcement picture of the state came recently from the Attorney General. The state's jurisdiction extends over the whole state for purposes of performing his specific duties.

While the weighmaster stations along Michigan highways are a familiar sight to most motorists, they probably get little more than passing attention from anyone but truck drivers.

The Highway Department wanted to know if weighmasters had statewide jurisdiction to enforce the vehicle code.

Weighmasters are assigned to specific posts, but might sometimes be sent to another sector. The Attorney General said weighmasters can operate anywhere in Michigan, but can only enforce provisions of the vehicle code which concern their specific duties.

I have been getting telephone calls on the addition of vinegar to the blanching water for green beans. The addition of vinegar to the water will not cut down on the time for processing the beans. This idea was started in Iowa some years ago. Columbia University did a study which showed that the addition of vinegar did very little good in the destruction of bacteria because the vinegar solution became a buffer. So you can add vinegar if you wish, but do not cut down the time for the processing of the beans.

Style and fit for clothing is more important than price or ease of care when the older woman shops for clothes. That was reported during a recent survey done in the Midwest. From this survey also was found that the older women had definite clothing preferences. They indicated they preferred a wider selection of styles. They felt that many times the available styles sometimes made them feel older.

Specific clothing preferences included one-piece dresses with side openings. They liked three-quarter length sleeves, gored skirts of mid-calf length, V-shaped necklines, and necklines with collars. Choices were also listed for small prints and solid colors, especially the more subdued, such as navy and light blue. Medium heeled pumps with closed heels and toes rated highest in shoe styles.

Age did seem to influence interests and preferences. The younger group from age 55 to 69, was more interested in style change, shopped more often and desired a wider style selection. They liked matching jackets for dresses and some preferred short sleeves. The older group, age 70 and over, went shopping with someone else and was more likely to patronize a specialty shop. This group preferred one-piece dresses with front openings to the hemline and laced shoes with medium heels.

Income was not as closely related as age in clothing preferences, but a third of the women said they sometimes refused to go out because they lacked proper clothes.

Throw bouquets at yourself and you'll find you are the world's worst marksman.

VOTE REPUBLICAN TUESDAY SEPT. 12

In much of the world today the people are denied the free ballot. But we have this privilege. Let us use it.

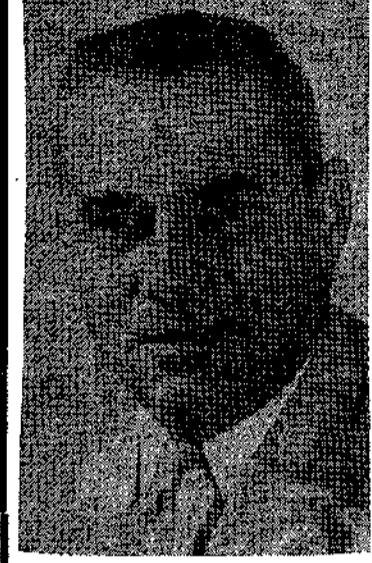

Claude L. Wood

It is to be hoped that a great many of the problems to come before the Constitutional Convention can be resolved on a non-partisan basis.

The philosophy of the Republican party with regard to the most important question to come before the convention, namely "apportionment", is best suited to the needs of the 20th Sen. District.

New Program for Feed Barley Growers

Michigan barley growers who plan to participate in the 1962 feed grain program should become familiar with the new farm program before seeding winter barley. This is the suggestion of Charles Beer, extension specialist in agricultural economics at Michigan State University.

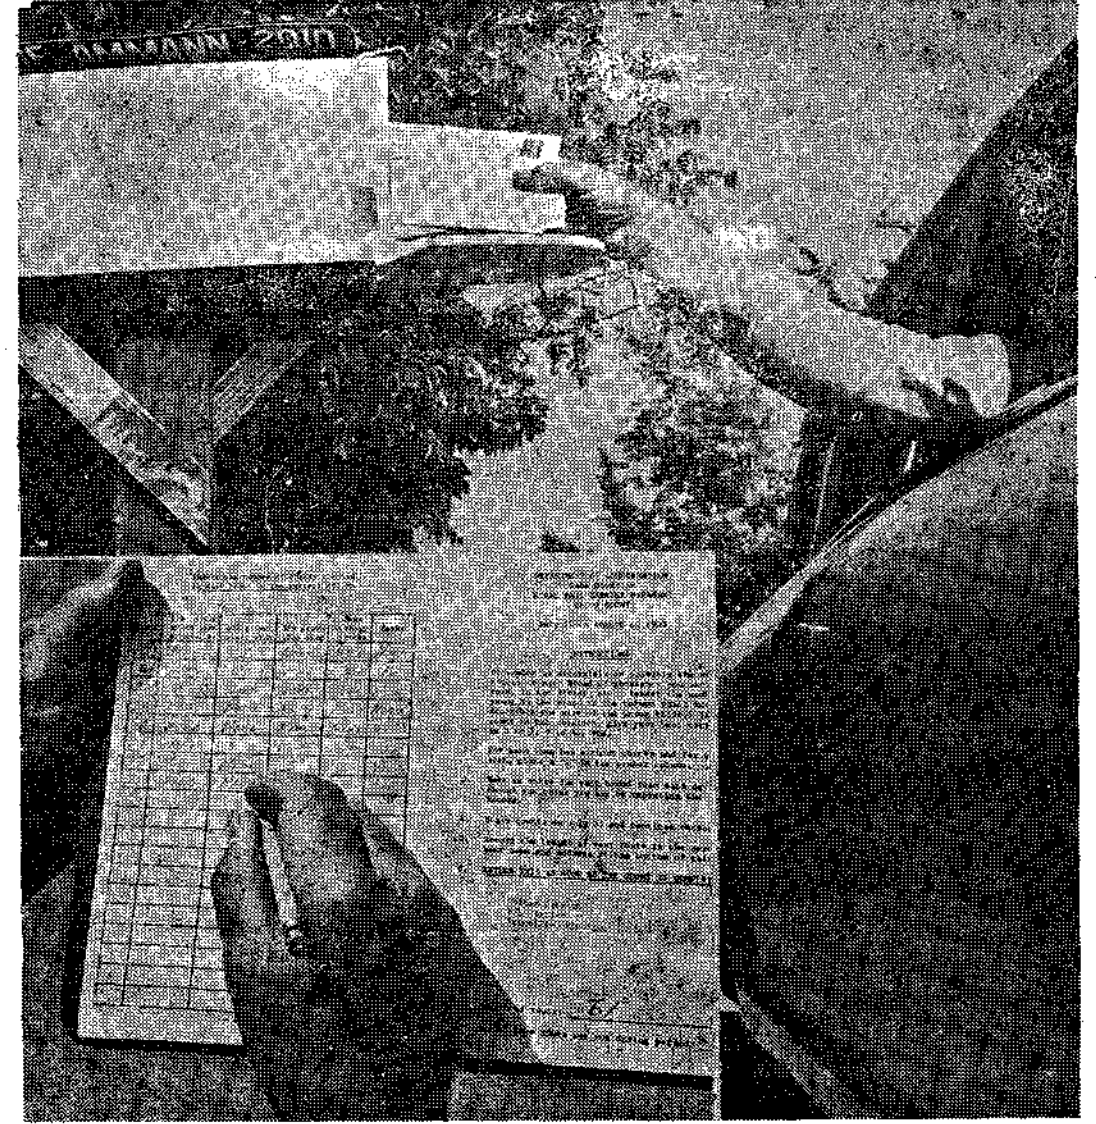

Barley is included in the 1962 program, although it was excluded from the 1961 program for corn acreage reduction. While compliance is voluntary, Beer points out that the producer must comply if he wishes support on either barley or corn in 1962.

Base acreage for barley is based on the acreage produced in 1959 and 1960. The law says a producer must not exceed this base if he wishes to take part in the program for corn or grain sorghums. If the grower wishes a price support on barley, he must reduce his base acreage by 20 per cent. For diverting these acres, he will receive a payment based upon the support price (approximately 90 cents a bushel) times 50 per cent of his normal yield.

The producer may also divert up to a total of 40 per cent of his base acreage of barley or 20 per cent plus 20 acres, whichever is larger, and will get 60 per cent of his normal yield for the second 20 per cent of his acreage that is taken out of production.

Producers of malting barley are exempt from this requirement if they have previously produced malting barley and plant only malting varieties in 1962. They may plant up to 110 per cent of their base acreage.

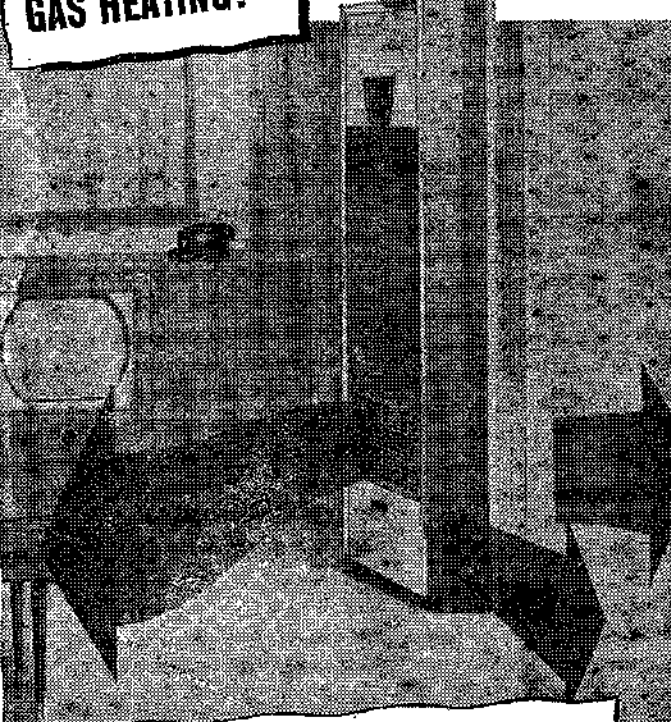

Conservation's Good Samaritans

A well-deserved pat on the back is in order for some 900 of Michigan's rural mail carriers. Besides getting the mail to John Q. Public six days a week, they keep a sharp eye on pheasant and grouse numbers along their routes during this time of the year to lend an all-important assist to the Conservation Department's management of these birds. During late July and early August, these men voluntarily make pheasant and grouse brood counts, keeping a day-by-day tally (see insert) of the number and size of young birds they see. When weighed with results of other Department surveys, carrier counts give hunters a reliable preview of pheasant and grouse shooting prospects for October. Carriers also cooperate with the Department early each winter in a census to help measure how many pheasants survive the fall hunting season.—Mich. Dept. of Conservation

Mrs. Amos Langton, aunt and godmother of the bride, was organist and accompanied Mrs. Irving Langton, aunt of the bride, as she sang "Ave Maria," "Panic Angelicus" and "On This Day O Beautiful Mother."

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Eby of Carleton. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Zyrowski, of Kingston.

The bride chose a gown of white silk organza over satin. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a scalloped Sabrina neckline and large puffed sleeves. Appliques of rose-point lace were at the top of the bodice and on its full skirt with a chapel-length train.

A crown of pearls and rhinestones held the elbow-length handrolled veil of French silk illusion. The bride carried a cascade arrangement of pink and white rosebuds.

The maid of honor was Miss Joan Gray in an aqua street-length gown. It was styled with three-quarter-length sleeves and a bell shaped skirt. Her matching headpiece was a single large flower with a face veil. She carried a cascade of carnations tinted to match her gown.

Miss Jane Lasko and Miss Cathy Zyrowski, nieces of the bridegroom, and Miss Paula Langton, cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids. Their gowns and headpieces, like those of the maid-of-honor, were in rose pink, Nile green, and lavender, respectively. Each carried a cascade of carnations tinted to match her ensemble.

Flower girl was Cindy Langton, cousin of the bride, in a dress of yellow organza featuring a full skirt. She carried a basket arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums. Danny Zyrowski was ring bearer.

Ben Zyrowski was his brother's best man. The ushers were Richard Eby, brother of the bride, Thomas Berghuis and James Lynn.

A breakfast was served to the wedding party immediate families in Pine Grove Hall after the ceremony. At 8 p. m. a reception for 500 guests was held in the hall.

The four-tier wedding cake, baked by Mrs. Walter Miller, was cut by Mrs. John Zyrowski, sister-in-law of the bride.

For a honeymoon trip to the Pacono Mountains in Pennsylvania and to Niagara Falls, the bride had changed to a black and white checked suit, with white accessories. The corsage was from her bouquet. The couple will live on Preston Ct. at Mount Pleasant after Sept. 5.

Mrs. Zyrowski, a registered nurse, is a 1957 graduate of St. Mary Academy and a graduate of St. Joseph School of Nursing at Flint. Her husband is a graduate of Kingston Community High School. He has a bachelor of science degree in Education from Central Michigan University at Mount Pleasant where he is now studying for his master's degree.

Some fishermen catch nothing on their trip but inside straight.

The self-made man has one fault—he is not self-contained.

The fellow who borrows trouble never has optimism to lend.

Mrs. Strandgard, 64 Dies in Caro

Mrs. Jennie Strandgard, 64, of Deford died Friday at the Fisher Convalescent Home in Caro where she had been a patient for one year.

Mrs. Strandgard was born in Rock Island, Ill., Dec. 8, 1896. She married Richard Strandgard Dec. 8, 1919, at East Moline, Ill. They moved to Tuscola County in 1947 from Pontiac.

Surviving besides the husband are three brothers, Charles Fishwild, Pontiac; Clyde Fishwild, Deford, and Benjamin Fishwild, Berkley.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at the Collon Funeral Home in Caro. Rev. Alan Weeks of the Deford Methodist Church officiated at the final rites.

Burial was in the Perry Mount Cemetery, Pontiac.

Building a reputation may be a hard job, but at least it's easier than making excuses.

Wilson-Sutherland Vows Spoken

Miss Donna Sutherland and Gene Douglas Wilson were married Aug. 19 at 8 p.m. in the Sutton Methodist Church.

The candlelight, double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Alfred Gascho of Romeo before an altar decorated with gladioli and palms.

Mr. Harold Satchell of Caro was organist and Mrs. Andrew Wright of Caro and Mrs. Russell Hyde of Unionville sang "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me."

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Esther Sutherland of Rochester, Silas Sutherland of Madison Heights and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wilson of Ellington.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina-length gown of white Chantilly lace, featuring long tapered sleeves and a Sabrina neckline. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion with scalloped edging was held by a crown of crystals.

She carried a cascade of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Barbara Powell of Cass City was matron of honor for her sister. She appeared in a gown of pink and white and carried a cascade of pink and white carnations.

Flower girls were Florence Powell and Pamela Sutherland. They wore pink nylon dresses with matching hats and veils and carried cascades of pink carnations.

The best man was David Wilson, brother of the bridegroom. Guests were seated by Robert Fischer of Cass City and Alvin Evans of rural Gageton. Mrs. Sutherland wore a black dress with white accessories. Mrs. Wilson wore a light blue lace dress with matching accessories.

Both mothers wore corsages of pink and white carnations.

A reception was held in the church parlors following the ceremony.

Pre-nuptial events included a kitchen shower given by Mrs. Esther Sutherland and a miscellaneous shower given at the home of Mrs. Arnold Fischer.

The couple will live at 3648 North Hurd's Corner road.

Experience has a way of extinguishing the fire in flaming youth.

The only thing some people seem to create is their own lack of good opportunities.

BULEN TALKS Cars

AN AUTOMOBILE ALARM CLOCK

Ever notice how truckers solve the tiredness problem while on long highway drives? They stop often for coffee, light snacks and a short rest when they feel drowsiness coming on.

That's sound advice for any motorist starting out on a long, tiresome drive. It is amazing how even a fifteen minute rest and a little fresh air will renew your alertness when your eyelids start getting heavy.

There are occasions, however, such as on turnpikes and other restricted or other heavily traveled roads where parking is difficult or illegal, when some kind of driver alarm would come in handy.

An insurance company has recently come up with a gadget designed by its own engineers that may help to keep a sleepy driver on the ball. Once turned on, it provides the driver with a three stage alarm process that he must respond to every 60 seconds with a light touch on the horn.

Commencing with a flashing light, the warning, if unheeded, goes on to blow the horn. If there is still no driver response, the car's ignition turns off and on, finally shutting off altogether. Only a touch of the horn button will arrest the system, which then starts over again in one minute.

The best alarm system of all, though, is still a rested driver. Add to that the peace of mind from a mechanically sound car. We can't make you get enough shut-eye, but we can make sure you're driving a safe car if it's brought to us regularly for service.

The St. Pancratius Altar Society will meet Monday, Sept. 11, at the church for its first fall meeting. Mrs. Dan Eria is president of the group.

Striffler-Benkelman Families Meet

The 13th annual Striffler-Benkelman reunion was Sept. 4 in the church parlors of the EUB Church at Cass City. One hundred members and guests ate together at noon with the Rev. R. J. Striffler of Bay City giving the invocation. Those attending from out state were: Mr. and Mrs. Ed Fritz and family of Gary, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. William Hedderich of Rockford, Ill.; and Glen Benkelman of Cleveland, O. Business session was conducted by Jack Esau and Mrs. Alma Seeger, president and secretary-treasurer.

Gifts were presented by Mrs. Louis Striffler to C. E. Patterson, 93, oldest member present; to Mrs. Esther Kaiser of St. Clair Shores, with the largest family present, there being 11; and to Mr. and Mrs. William Hedderich of Rockford, Ill., for having come the farthest.

Fourteen births and eight deaths were reported for the past year. Delvin Striffler of Caro conducted the memorial service for the deceased members.

New officers for the coming year are: Mr. and Mrs. George Southworth of Elkton, presidents; Mr. and Mrs. Delvin Striffler of Caro, vice-presidents, and Mr. and Mrs. William Hedderich of Rockford, Ill., secretary-treasurers. The Striffler-Benkelman Broadcast was edited by Mrs. Burke Aerehart of Detroit, who also showed colored slides of her husband's and her recent trip through England.

The balance of the afternoon was spent in visiting.

The fellow who tries to make his job a snap usually gets bit.

Two-thirds of the year is gone—and most of its resolutions.

Experts to Speak Of Feeder Outlook

It is getting to be that time of year again when farmers who feed cattle must decide when and where to buy feeder cattle. For many of them they must decide if livestock feeding will be a profitable venture, considering the cost of feeder cattle, feed, labor, etc., according to Alfred Ballweg, county extension director.

In order that livestock feeders may get a better insight into the "outlook" situation, a meeting is scheduled for Monday, September 11, in the high school gym at Cass City to begin at 8 p.m.

This will be a tri-county meeting of farmers from Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties, said Ballweg. Appearing on the program will be Don Stark and John Ferris of the agricultural economics department of Michigan State University. These two men will have just returned from a regional outlook meeting at Peoria, Ill.

Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting and furnished through the courtesy of the Caro, Bad Axe, Sandusky livestock auction markets.

Farmers are invited to attend even though they may not be cattle feeders, said Ballweg. The energy wasted in useless worry would light up all the cities in the world.

BOOK REVIEW

"The Northern Light" Better Than Average

By the Rev. Robert J. Searls

A. J. Cronin, English writer and physician, a favorite novelist of many American readers, adds "The Northern Light" to a long list of successful novels. (You will recall especially "The Keys of the Kingdom.") This most recent of his books can hardly be called a great book, but it is better-than-average reading. The story is about the newspaper publisher of a staid and righteous daily paper, established for generations in Hedleston, an English rural community not too far from London. Unexpectedly, owners of a chain of newspapers offer to buy him out but he refuses. The thought of a "sensational" type paper in Hedleston fires him up. When the intruders begin to publish in competition with him, Page fights back - championing the cause of a responsible press.

Complicating the fight for Page is his wife's overriding devotion to social climbing; his son's difficult fight back from a mental breakdown; a threatening cardiac condition; his own naive trust in his friends and business associates. Just as Page appears to have won the battle, a new, more personal pressure is applied by the rival press. Finally, without a printing press, short of staff, without newsprint, losing advertisers and readers, the Northern Light is reduced to a single stenciled half-page. Will this "break his back"? Will he now divest himself of his kid gloves and wade into the fight - using his opponents' unethical tactics?

All through the ruinous conflict Henry Page stands, above all, as a man of integrity. Practiced in his relations with the enemy as well as his friends, this is a refreshing and stubborn kind of integrity that brooks no compromise. Cronin's books have what I call "wholesome realism." By this I mean that he reports life as most of us see it - not just what seems to be real in bedrooms. There are people who remain loyal and honorable as well as those who defect. Again in this book there are the exploiters, the unscrupulous, the unprincipled; but they are matched by the honest, the dedicated, the selfless. And I submit that we know that there are both kinds of characters in this world.

Page wins out and The Northern Light survives its unwanted war. But the book has no happy ending - this, too, is realism - for life has many unhappy endings.

The book is easy and enjoyable

WHERE DO THEY GO FROM HERE— —AND WHY

WILL THEY BE ABLE TO USE THEIR EDUCATION WHERE THEY ARE GETTING IT ... HERE AT HOME?

Right now, as our young people are about to embark upon another term, is a good time to ask ourselves some very pertinent questions. Once they have completed their education, how many of them will go elsewhere to find job opportunities on which to build their lifetime careers? Why can't more of them find ample scope for their abilities and ambitions right here in our own community?

Are too many of the dollars we spend going out of town to help create job opportunities there instead of here? If more of our dollars stayed home, wouldn't more of our young people do likewise?

Every dollar spent locally adds two or three dollars to local trade volume as it circulates from hand to hand... makes for better business and more jobs locally. Home-spent dollars also help maintain good schools, streets, parks and other civic services that attract new residents and stimulate community growth. More and more job opportunities here at home will inevitably develop when MORE of MORE of the time...

Smoke Bomb Calls Crowd, Firemen

Elkland Township firemen were called to the front of Freiburger's Paint and Hobby Shop at 9:43 p.m., Sept. 1, when smoke was reported coming from the basement of the building.

However, the cause of the smoke turned out to be a smoke bomb, an object about the size of a $2 roll of nickels that when lighted gives off a great deal of smoke.

A crowd gathered but was dispersed by Police Chief William Wood.

WATER SHORTAGE

Concluded from page one.

"We're thinking of putting one in." Lack of water slowed the workmen behind the Chronicle but not completely.

"We had a barrel of water to mix cement," Fay McComb said. "It will last till noon if we don't work too fast."

Warren Wood made coffee with the water in his dehumidifier. "It wasn't very good," he said with a laugh. "I certainly wouldn't recommend it."

And Mrs. Florence Searls carried the taste of iced tea and toothpaste in her mouth all morning, after brushing her teeth with left-over iced tea.

Bean Damage Visible from Air

By Mary Basing

As the small, easy-riding plane took off from the graveled runway of the Caro airport, its three passengers and pilot settled back to view the neat patchwork of farms falling away beneath.

Aug. 29 was a fine day, so pleasant, in fact, that fewer people than expected took part in the air tour of Tuscola County sponsored by the Tuscola Soil Conservation District.

"We had hoped for about 75, but I guess the especially nice day cut down on attendance," Maynard McConkey, district chairman, said.

"Farmers probably wanted to work in the fields. Even with 50 persons taking part, it was well worth the effort."

This was the fourth time the district had sponsored an air tour. McConkey said he thought it would arrange another next year.

Two planes out of Bay City's Hoffman Flying Service were the transportation. A choice of four routes gave tourists a good chance to view their farms from the air.

For about 30 minutes, Mr. and Mrs. William Henry of Watrousville and this reporter saw the incredible neatness of area farms and towns on the northeast route from about 1,000 feet up.

The area north of Caro stood out for its tremendous amount of bean damage.

"Around here is the worst area for bean damage," Jerry, the pilot, said as he pointed to the great patches of dry-looking earth that showed through the surrounding green of bean foliage.

The state pond for wildlife near what is called Standpipe road looked from the air like a picture of the Canadian wilds. The small, neat rows of trees planted by the Michigan Department of Conservation on the Edgar Ross farm are planned to remedy some of the damage caused by wind erosion in the area.

Frank Spencer's tile planning and strip cropping and the strip farming on the Curtis Hunt farm point the way toward better land for the county.

From the air the kidney-shaped farm pond on Steve Karpovich's property looked merely decorative. However, a farm pond can retain runoff water, provide drinking water for livestock, store water for fire protection, impound water for spraying and irrigation and provide family recreation.

Karpovich's pond has the added attraction of a trout stock. The tile drainage system of Evelyn Schultz' and the erosion control structure of Ed Vargo's land were other steps taken by area residents to conserve and improve their soil.

All along the route, the bare spots in corn fields told the damage that uncontrolled water can do.

Coming over Cass City, Mrs. Henry asked if the General Insulated Wire plant was the new hospital. Soon the knoll that Hills and Dales General Hospital is built against came over the horizon and General Insulated assumed its proper title.

Three other things distinguished Cass City from the air: its wide main street, the Recreational Park, with the emerald water in the swimming and wading pools sparkling in the sun, and the perfectly shaped race track on Ralph Youngs' farm.

Attend the church of your choice—make it a family affair.

MICHIGAN IS RECREATION

You can't beat Michigan as a place for industry because you can't beat Michigan as a place for recreation.

Everybody in Michigan has the out-of-doors close to home. Every community is within six miles of a river or lake and at no spot in Michigan can you be more than 85 miles from one of the Great Lakes. Nineteen million acres of forest land are scattered throughout the state. This state, one of the great centers of industry, is a vast recreation area. Here you can work and have a vacation every day.

Where it's fun to live it's better to work and the day's work is usually better done. In Michigan living is more fun than anywhere.

Help carry Michigan's message to the nation. Clip this ad and mail it to someone in another state with your comment. Let's talk up Michigan and its advantages for industry. Together we can assure a greater future for all of us.
