BULEN TALKS Cars

WHAT THE PEOPLE WANT

"What do YOU look for when you buy a new car?"

...If you're like sixteen out of seventeen Detroit radio listeners recently asked that question, you'd answer that dealer integrity, reliable service and economy, in that order, count most. Price would place a poor fourth.

Summing up, the consensus of opinion, one listener to the program called "Phone Opinion" responded: "One of my pet peeves in buying an automobile, and I'm sure the majority of your audience agrees with me, is the rosy picture they paint you before you buy the car... "We are going to take care of your car"... "It's the best car on the road"... etc.

...Everybody has the same story, basically. But after the sale it's a totally different story: you go back for repairs - even minor ones - with your warranty still in effect, and they just give you the runaround. They stall you off by referring you to one mechanic after another and keep you waiting for hours until you finally get tired and leave."

One lone dissenter - an automobile salesman - claimed price was the most important of all to buyers, economy and service notwithstanding.

As most automobile dealers realize, actual public behavior is a compromise between these two attitudes. To be successful, a dealer must be competitive in price, but back his product with honest dealing and reliable service if he is going to acquire and keep customers.

Our town is not so big that we can afford the one-shot no-repeat sale, or to lose customers by offering less value for the buyer's money.

MOST VALUE,

1961 Models. Because you can buy them for much less than you will pay for the soon to be announced '62s. And, they will go just as far, carry the same 12 months or 12,000 mile Guarantee.

Only a very few left, and they must be sold before the last of this month. We're in the "mood". If this makes sense, Come In and let us show you the bargains available.

The Chronicle exchanges editions with other state weeklies. Among the items that came to us last week was this little story from the Clinton County Republican News.

"When the farmer's wife answered the doorbell, she found a contrite motorist on the door step. 'I just ran over your dog,' he said, 'and I would like to replace him.'"

"Okay," agreed the woman. "You can start by chasing the cows in from the back pasture."

The local postal clerks each have a separate drawer where they seem to keep their stamps, money and other necessities.

When Betty Carmer took a blood clot in her leg, I romped into the post office one bright morning with a face full of shining innocence and asked the hard-working male personnel:

"Don't you guys ever get your drawers mixed up?"

I've decided to let someone else pick up the mail.

If the pool in the Recreation Park had to close Sept. 3, I wish someone would turn down nature's thermostat. It reminded me of the village without water: when it isn't there you miss it.

While I suffered in the high temperatures, as everyone else did, I kept thinking how nice it would be to swim in the pool.

Saturday, Sept. 16, my parents are coming for me. I intend to spend about a week enjoying a quiet, restful interlude in bed before the green and white banners beckon and MSU starts educating for another season.

The Profits made my last week end in the Thumb worth remembering. Sept. 10 we went for a day of water skiing and sun to Saginaw Bay.

Next day, my skin turned plum colored and the strained muscles made me walk stiff legged (water skiing is also hard on the back), I wondered how long I'd be forced to remember Cass City.

Cass City, Michigan
Sept. 7, 1961

Dear Mr. Editor,

I received the Chronicle at noon and read the article at the top of the page while eating dinner. Then as I went back to work I began musing and as the Psalmist expressed it, "while I was musing the fire burned: then spake I with my tongue."

Then tonight I read more and mused further.

Seems to me we have had it so good the last few years we do not appreciate the good things we have and are not thankful enough for them.

Out of water, out of business for four hours and ready to throw in the sponge! What if the farmer did that? The rains may put him out of business right when he should be harvesting his wheat and the Port Huron paper said he took over a two million dollar loss in three Thumb counties this year. What does he do? Why, the cheery optimist that he is, he is getting the ground ready to plant more wheat. Of course, the heat and drought may ruin it next year but then it may not and some folks must grow wheat or other folks will soon be crying for bread.

Then Mr. Editor I'm afraid you are not too great an optimist yourself pointing out to the youngsters all the things they are going to miss and that it is going to be an unpleasant year. If I know boys and girls they are still going to have a lot of fun this year. They still have a great many things their mothers and dads never dreamed of.

And the poor disgruntled teachers as you described them should learn to take a few things on the chin and do their best for the sake of those under their care. I believe most will.

Let me reminisce a little.

Fifty years ago this week I started teaching school at the wonderful salary of $35 per month out of which I paid board. Board was not high but it took about 30 per cent of my pay. The next year I received $45 which was a good increase. Five years later another raise to $75.50 per month with the only supplemental pay I ever got (although I didn't know what to call it) $5 for building the fires, sweeping, dusting and the like for nine months.

In the 30s I was teaching at Greenleaf and wages had gone up to $130 per month. In the first four years there 17 had passed the 8th grade. (14 of these graduated from Cass City, two of them valedictorians of their class. Greenleaf had some industrious Scotch.) The cost of sending these to High School was more than was left to run the district. Taxes had become so high throughout the state that a referendum vote put the 15 mill amendment on the statutes of the state and the schools were hard hit and I mean really HARD for valuations were low. Mr. McRae came to me like the gentleman he was (and is) and told me they just couldn't pay the wages they would like the next year. If I could get as much as $80 nearer home to take it. This I did and they hired a beginner (a good one) at $55. The next year McHugh had used up all their surplus and I taught without a contract for $40 a month and at the end of the year they gave me what was left in the treasury, $96, making my wages $48 per month for the year.

These conditions were typical throughout the state. So teachers take heart. Things have been worse (and could be again).

And now you kids who are going back to the same old brick and mortar remember that all that brick and mortar was new since my day and some of it is quite new and not paid for yet.

Now take a look at our High School of my day. Sixteen credits required for graduation, twelve of them required. Among those twelve were two years of foreign language, either Latin or German. Laugh you may at our list of electives and see what you would choose. If you had taken two years of Latin you could have two more or you might want two of German. Then there was a year of Modern History, a year of Chemistry or the following one semester subjects: Physiology, Bookkeeping, Botany, Zoology, Arithmetic, Physical Geography and occasionally Trigonometry.

There was a Superintendent who was over all the grades and taught his share of classes, a Principal and two other High School teachers.

There was the assembly room where each of us had our own seat and did our studying when we had free periods. Sometimes classes were held there. Then there was a lab and two recitation rooms.

High School enrollment in the fall was about 120 with about 40 freshmen. By the end of four years there were 15 to 20 graduates. No compulsory school law compelled you to go and no buses to take you and the expense all your parents till 1910 the district was made to pay your tuition, which was fifteen dollars. Few country children got to go. I always felt I was privileged.

We had electric light in the assembly room, the office and the laboratory. None in the halls, recitation rooms or in the lower grades.

Drinking water. One tap over the lavatory and half a dozen tin cups hanging on chains. I don't know if they were ever washed. There was no hot water. How did we ever survive all the bacteria we must have consumed? But we did. A hardy lot I guess.

Toilets for all twelve grades at the end of a board walk out back.

So kids if you have lost a few things you still have lots more than granddad did and he had more than his pa.

And now Mr. Editor this has grown so long you may want to throw it in the waste basket and that is your privilege but at least I've mused and my tongue has spoken.

Sincerely yours,
Jason A. Kitchin

WSCS Holds First Meeting of Season

The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church opened its fall session with a meeting Monday evening with 43 present.

Dinner was served by group No. 1 of which Mrs. Willis Campbell and Mrs. Warren Wood are co-chairmen.

During the business meeting, an invitation was accepted to be guests of the Deckerville WSCS Nov. 2. The Cass City society will be host to the Caseville society Nov. 6.

Mrs. Ellwood Eastman presented devotions using as the theme, "All the Ends of the Earth Shall Turn to God," and stressed the urgency for mission workers.

Rev. Douglas Weeks of Asbury College was introduced as the speaker. He spent the past summer in Ecuador, South America. He taught English in a night school and worked in the mission field.

Rev. Weeks stated that while

Beverly Hurd Signs At Saginaw Hospital

Beverly Hurd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmore Hurd of Gagetown, registered as a student at Saginaw General Hospital School of Nursing Sept. 5.

She was one of the 52-member class of 1964 that went through Orientation Week, ending Sept. 8. Activities of the week included a faculty-parent-student reception, a picnic and ball game and two student parties.

Brief introductions to the first year subjects were given by instructors. There was also registration with Central Michigan University, which teaches a portion of the first year curriculum.

Legion Auxiliary Meets Monday

Twenty-five were present Monday evening when the American Legion Auxiliary met in the Legion hall.

The Unit has been asked to purchase 23 gifts for the Christmas gift shop program. Mrs. Harve Klinkman, rehabilitation chairman, is purchasing chairman.

Plans were made for a bazaar and bake sale to be held Nov. 4. Mrs. Dorus Klinkman was named general chairman.

Mrs. Dorus Klinkman reported on the Seventh District Association meeting held at Reese.

A silver collection was taken to pay the dues for two members who will be hospitalized for a long period of time.

At the close of the meeting, games were played with top prize going to Mrs. Leo Tracy. The door prize went to Mrs. Vern McConnell.

Mrs. William Donnelly, Mrs. Philip Olsowy and Mrs. Nellie Mathews served sandwiches, cookies and coffee.

The October meeting will be held in the Legion hall.

Livestock Show Slated in Caro

For the past 12 years the Caro Board of Commerce has sponsored the 4-H-FFA Livestock Show and Sale, according to Ed Schrader, County Extension Agent in 4-H club work. The show provides an opportunity for the young feeder to compete for the top honors each year. This show will be the 38th to be held at the Caro Auction Yards. Over 50 4-H and FFA members will be showing and selling top market hogs, spring fat lambs and top choice steers. The livestock, all owned by 4-H and FFA members, are all top animals.

The show will start promptly at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday with the fat lambs. Following the lambs will be the hogs and the steers, all to be judged before 12:00 noon.

Community Good Goal of Club

Community service seems to be the goal of the Junior Woman's Club of Cass City, now in its ninth year.

Organized in 1952 with Mrs. Joan Smith as president, the club is divided into departments such as finance and project, community affairs, home and youth, conservation, education, fine arts and international affairs.

Each committee presents a program throughout the year. Each must meet certain aims in order to qualify for the state award which has been earned every year.

The club now has 25 members. It meets once a month and is federated. Conventions meet and the delegates take part in talk-over sessions concerned with family living, children and community betterment. The Michigan Federation supports a Girlstown unit named Loeb Rio near Belleville.

The Cass City Club sponsors a Brownie Scout Troop. It has helped get people out to vote at elections. They save stamps to help veterans in hospitals.

Now working on its annual birthday calendar sale of listings in order to finance various projects, the club in the past has used the proceeds to buy play equipment for the Recreation Park and Christmas decorations for the village.

Also during Christmas, club members have shopped for, packed and delivered Community Chest baskets.

The club has donated to the hospital fund, contributed money for trees for the landscaping and last year donated an alternating pressure pad unit.

One of the club's latest projects is the Bookmobile Cart that the women purchased and stocked. They take books and magazines twice a week to the patients in local hospitals.

Rev. Paul Pelletier appeared before the meeting on behalf of the Catholic Family Service, requesting the UF appropriate $4,198 in its budget for that organization. Another request was received from the Tuscola County Retarded Children's Association, presented by Don Stamats, president of that organization. The Association's request was for $12,780.50.

Following lengthy discussion, the United Fund established allocations of $1,000 to the Catholic Family Service and $8,000 to the Retarded Children's organization.

My First Visit to The Upper Peninsula

By Ilene Warren

First of all, a couple of sidelights on last week's column.

Sidelight number one: There were two errors. In outlining my "pedigree" one nationality was omitted - it should have read "some Irish (only a little!)", Pennsylvania Dutch... at cetera. Also, it's not the Scots I'm proud of having in my ancestry but the Scots.

Sidelight number two: Anne Boleyn (pronounced Boo-lyn with the accent on the second syllable) was mentioned in last week's column. Last Friday, H. M. Eulen (owner of Eulen Motors where I am employed) commented that his surname evolved from the name Boleyn. I thought that was quite interesting. I was unable, however, to ascertain his relationship to the unfortunate Anne.

I goofed this year on renewing my driver's license. Thank goodness for the little reminder to check birthdays on the bulletin board in the Pinney State Bank. It jogged my memory last week and I was chagrined to discover that my license renewal was a month overdue.

Last Friday morning, bright and early, found me in the Sheriff's office at Sandusky making application for my driver's license renewal.

So check your birthday - your license may be up for renewal this year, too.

Labor Day week end found my husband and me enjoying ourselves on our first trip to the Upper Peninsula. My sister May and her husband were going to recheck the property they recently purchased on South Manistique Lake and they invited us to go along with them.

We hadn't seen the Mackinac Bridge before so that was quite a thrill for us. It's a magnificent achievement. (Coming home on Labor Day, the vehicular traffic was confined to the west two lanes of the bridge for a walkathon was in progress on the other half.)

There are many beautiful scenes in the Upper Peninsula - and we visited only a small portion of the area. Two that come readily to mind are the Tahquamenon Falls and one section of the Lake Michigan shore where large whitecapped waves rolled in almost on top of each other to tumble noisily against the beach. Sunday was our busiest day. In the morning we attended

Church at the small RLDS Mission in Germfask where my husband was invited to preach the morning sermon. In the afternoon, we viewed the Tahquamenon Falls - some day I should like to take the boat trip up to the Falls. In the evening, we drove to Grand Marais to visit the bear pit - only, no bears. Bear hunting was in season (we did see one dead bear slung across the trunk of a Chevy convertible in Grand Marais) so we were warned that the likelihood of seeing bears was rather slim.

We did, however, spy two little visitors - one was a skunk who was nosing curiously along the gully and the other was a half-grown kitten that scuttled into the brush as our car approached.

The bears are something of a problem - especially the tramp bears - and so this open season was declared to reduce the number of them.

Lila Walsh, a friend who lives near McMillen, told us that she didn't mind the bears coming to the orchard at the back of their property but when they parked beneath her clothesline, that was just too close!

Well, I don't mind the deer that have slowly trekked their way southward - but I hope those bears keep themselves in the northland!

The fellow who lives in the past is sure to fail - no one ever backed into prosperity.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Sez:

Dear Mister Editor: The fellers at the country store didn't git nothing solved Saturday night on account of Zeke Grubb's preacher come by afore they got started good.

The Parson allowed as how this was the night fer the regular monthly meeting of the Light Committee but they had to call it off on account of Katie Hightower took sick. He said Katie was named this year to pull the main switch and you couldn't have no meeting of the Light Committee with the main switch puller absent.

Anyhow, he said, ne was glad to git the night off to rest up from the Choir Committee meeting they had Friday night. He claimed things was real rough Friday night. The choir director served notice she was going to quit if they didn't keep them flat voices out of the choir. It was voted to keep 'em out, but the Parson said they'd have to appoint another committee to figger out how to do it.

Then Ellie Sanders got up and allowed as how they ought to have more solos. The Parson said Ellie was sorter heavy-set and sung the same way and done a powerful job of moving the congregation with her solos. He said one Sunday when she got through with her special everybody in the church clapped. By the way the meeting went, the Parson said he was expecting a heap of solos by Ellie from now on.

One member bring up the complaint that the choir loft was so hot in the summer that he couldn't sing good. The Parson said this feller couldn't carry a tune in a bucket and the rest of the choir had to sing real loud so the congregation couldn't hear him, even in the winter time when he wasn't suffering from the heat. But it was voted, the Parson said, to ask the congregation to appoint an air conditioning committee to look into the matter fer next summer.

The Parson said that personal he was agin putting any air conditioning in the church, said he was having it hard enough making it hot fer sinners like it was. Anyhow, he claimed, they wasn't no vacant time left in the church fer the Air Conditioning Committee to meet unless they wanted to meet joint with the Stove Committee and the Stove Committee was already overlapping into time allotted to the Fund Raising Committee.

All the fellers enjoys having the Parson drop by on Saturday night. Ed Doolittle invited him to set a while longer but he said he had to git on home and work up a little sermon to go with the music Sunday morning, someone that would go good with one of Ellie's solos.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

State Blessed with Plenty Of Water for Every Use

By Elmer E. White
Michigan Press Association

Who owns the commodity that makes Michigan the Water Wonderland? Nobody does. And everybody does. And the right to use water is determined by where it is found, why it is there and how it is used.

Michigan's problem is not one of water rights for survival, as is the case in some arid southwestern states.

There is not even much of a problem of getting enough water for drinking, washing, watering crops and livestock and related purposes, although these factors enter into Michigan water law.

Ground water and surface water in Michigan are covered by different sets of legal principles. Diffused percolating waters which can be tapped by wells, and underground streams, though important in Michigan, are found in watercourses, such as lakes and streams and diffused surface waters, such as rain or melting snow, running freely over the land or standing in puddles.

The rule of "reasonable use" governs ground water. The right of landholders to sink wells and pump water is recognized in Michigan courts.

Wasteful, malicious or other unreasonable use of ground water can be prevented by the courts under the currently accepted interpretation of the law. The place where conflict occurs in use of Michigan water is when a body is used for recreational or agricultural purposes.

The so-called "Riparian Doctrine" governs use of this water. Only owners of land in contact with surface water sources have the right to use it. They don't own it, and they can't move it outside its natural watershed.

Riparian owners must share their rights with other riparian users, and upstream owners cannot hold back waters except long enough to build reservoirs.

The doctrine can be summed up: "Use the water, but pass it along or leave it substantially undiminished in quantity and quality."

People who don't own land with riparian rights gain access to water through public lands bordering on water. They also have the right to travel on, or fish in lakes where surrounding land is totally owned by private individuals, if the lake has an inlet and an outlet.

When the state sells any of its land bordering on a watercourse, it reserves the right of ingress and egress to posterity, also.

The days of paying for higher education in Michigan at so much a head may be numbered. For some time legislators have tended to look further than "just numbers" when making appropriations. They try to consider to some extent the cost of the training as well. But it's a difficult problem to deal with.

Educators and lawmakers have long complained that there was really no accurate way to compare the cost of educating a medical student at Wayne State University with a liberal arts freshman at Western Michigan University.

So formulas used at various times really boil down to little more than a complicated head-count basis for budgeting.

All this may be changed due to work of the Michigan Council of State College Presidents. The organization recently announced through its executive director, M. M. Chambers, that accurate figures should be available soon to tell exactly how much it costs to educate one student for one hour in any given academic program, in a given institution.

The figures will be kept current and permit close comparison of educational costs among the universities and colleges.

Chambers said the figures will be made available to "an interested public" in order to inform the people just how their education dollars are used.

There will likely be two other, and possibly much more valuable

Henry Thiel, 81 Dies in Hospital

Henry Thiel, 81, Cass City area resident since 1909, died early Saturday in Hills and Dales General Hospital where he had been a patient for a week. The body was in the Douglas Funeral Home until Monday when it was taken to the Church of the Nazarene for funeral services at 2 p.m. Rev. Lloyd Wilson, the pastor, officiated and was assisted by Rev. S. R. Wurtz. Burial was at Hickory Island cemetery near Unionville.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm Thiel, German parents, he was born July 23, 1880 in Kolb, Russia. In 1908 he married Katrina Schorr. She died in 1926.

He remarried and is survived by his wife Mathilda, a patient in Stevens Nursing Home; two sons, Henry J. Thiel and Jacob A. Thiel of Midland; four daughters, Mrs. Owen Zapfe (Emma) of Cheboygan, Mrs. Arthur Dast (Leta), Mrs. Harold Leffer (Lucille) and Mrs. Lester Leffer (Linda), all of Midland; 17 grandchildren; six great-grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. Katie Hergenrader of Kingston. A son, Reinhold, died in 1922.

Mr. Thiel was a member of the Church of the Nazarene and of Salem EUB Church, Cass City. He was an aide to a general in the Russo-Japanese war.

If a gal can remember that figures don't lie, it's a lot easier to stick to a diet.

No Advantage in Feeding Sprouted Oats to Cattle

Feeding sprouted oats to dairy cattle caused no apparent nutritional improvements in cattle on test rations.

From information received from Michigan State University, Don Kebler, county extension agent in agriculture, reports that over the past 100 years there have been different methods to sprout oats available to farmers. Presently several types of oat sprouting machines or hydroponic units are on the market.

"If any advantages do exist for these machines, they must be very small or inoperative under normal conditions of cattle management", Kebler says.

Sprouted oats did not increase milk production during the MSU tests when fed in addition to a usual heavy grain ration, but they did increase production when the cows were fed a limited amount of grain. The cows responded only when slightly under fed.

Tests also show the digestible energy and digestible dry matter of the sprouted oats was less than that of original oats. The sprouted oats also contained less total digestible nutrients and showed a 10 per cent decrease in digestibility due to sprouting.

On a dry matter basis, the sprouted product contained much more fiber, a little more ash and protein and much less dry matter and valuable carbohydrates than the original oats.

In the trials at Michigan State, 16 per cent of the original dry matter of the oats was lost in converting it to the sprouted product. Similar losses can be noted in brochures published by some companies that have made sprouted oats machines or "hydroponic units".

Ambition, plus a fixed course, are the magnets that get things coming your way.

Deford Dairyman Tops August DHIA

Ronald Hampshire of Deford is the owner of a grade Holstein cow, Loch B, age five years, which produced 111 pounds of butterfat in the month of August, to lead the list of 98 cows producing 65 pounds or more fat, according to Alfred Ballweg, county extension director. Standing in second place in this class is a grade Holstein cow, Gwin, age six years, owned by Dan Lukasavitz of Cass City, with a production of 99 pounds fat. Other dairymen owning cows which produced 81 pounds or more fat during the month of August are Henry Hohman, Vassar; Howard Loomis and Son, Gagetown; Blaylock and Rupprecht, Vassar; George Foster, Fostoria; Robert Opperman, Vassar; Werner List, Vassar; Charles Crittenden, Kingston; Dolan Sweeney, Uby; Carl Bauer, Reese; Bruce Ruggles and Sons, Kingston; Don Stilson, Cass City; Edward Golding, Cass City; Frank Satchell, Caro; Rosessite Farm, Reese; and Alvin Frahm, Frankenuuth.

In the class of herds producing an average of 30 pounds or more fat, the registered Holstein herd of Clarence Merchant, Cass City, was first in the list of 35 herds with an average production of 53 pounds butterfat. In second place is the registered Holstein herd of Dolan Sweeney, Uby, with an average production of 49 pounds butterfat. Other dairymen whose herds produced an average of 41 pounds fat or more are Carl Bauer, Reese; Rosessite Farm, Reese; William Parrott, Cass City; Ben Loeffler, Reese; Lawrence Bublitz, Fairgrove; Ronald Opperman, Vassar; Clinton Blackmore, Vassar; Jay Marr and Sons, Mayville; Ronald Hampshire, Deford; Frank Satchell, Caro, and Edward Golding, Cass City.

In the 305-day records class a registered Holstein cow owned by Dolan Sweeney topped the list list with a production of 715 pounds fat. Dairymen whose cows produced in the 600-pound class were Werner List, Vassar; Rosessite Farm, Reese; Quibro Farm, Caro; Lawrence Bublitz, Fairgrove; Ronald Hampshire, Deford; Ronald Opperman, Vassar; producing 565 pounds fat or more in this class were cows owned by George Foster, Fostoria; Alvin Frahm of Frankenuuth; Carl Bauer, Reese; Tom Laurie, Cass City; Blaylock & Rupprecht, Vassar; Frank Satchell, Caro; Clarence Merchant, Cass City.

Agent's Corner

Frances T. Clark
County Home Demonstration Agent

I thought that before I start this fall series of workshops for the home economics extension groups, it would be nice to give you a summary of two of the workshop series I carried on last year.

Seven reupholstery workshops were held in different areas of the county. Twenty-six chairs were reupholstered, all in different types of reupholstery material. Some of the women used nylon frize, others used a combination of cotton with nylon or rayon fibers, or they used an all wool fiber. Some of the brave ones used twill-backed plastic material.

The women found out that reupholstering is really a hard job, but a very satisfying one. I found that many of the women can hammer a nail as well as a man. The average cost per chair was $14.75. The women estimated that a saving of $767 was realized on those chairs.

Other articles reupholstered were a hassock, a sectional, two antique chairs, 3 channel-backed chairs, three day beds and two davenport. Reupholstery jobs done were restyling, retieing the springs, tightening up the frames, repadding, etc. The total estimated savings for all of the articles reupholstered was $1,198.50.

The amount saved in dollars and cents by making the best possible use of available materials was a pleasant surprise. But even greater returns are family satisfaction and pride in homes, surroundings and family cooperation.

In the advanced clothing construction workshop, 33 women completed garments. Both man made fibers and natural fibers were used. In these workshops, the women had a choice of any type of material except wool. Some chose all synthetic fibers, others used synthetic fibers in combination with cotton, while others used all cotton or silk. Plaids, striped or solid colors were used. Some of the women combined two patterns if they could not find the right idea they wanted in one pattern. All of the women were to use a more complicated pattern than what they used in the beginning clothing workshop. The average cost per garment was $6.51. The women estimated that $429.66 was saved on these garments.

I also held six cotton dress construction workshops in different areas of the county, plus one blouse construction workshop. Sixty-six cotton dresses and five blouses were completed in these seven workshops. The average cost per dress was $5.27 and the average cost per blouse was $2.45. The total estimated savings for the 66 dresses and five blouses was $720.14.

The women who completed the cotton dress workshops are now eligible to enroll in the advanced dress construction workshop that will be held this winter.

The women who completed garments in the advanced dress construction workshop will be eligible to enroll in the simple wool construction workshop. The dates for this workshop are September 19, October 6, 13, 18, 23 and 26. The meetings will start at 1:30 p.m. and will be held in the 4-H memorial building.

Again, it was pleasant for the women to help stretch their household budgets. But more pleasant was the satisfaction they got from being able to create something for themselves and their daughters or other members of the family or neighbors. Every woman in these workshops did not stop with the garment she made in class but did many other types of sewing such as restyling of old garments, helping 4-H club girls, helping other members of the family or neighbors, and the making of draperies, etc.

I felt that it was worthwhile, on my part, for all the time and energy I put in these workshops.
