

Veterans Man Evergreen Posts

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of articles about township supervisors and clerks in the Cass City area. Others will follow weekly.

By Mary Basing

When Arthur Craig, now supervisor of Evergreen Township in Sanilac County, was township clerk in 1921-22, he spent most of his time burying rats.

This is the story that the present Evergreen Township clerk tells.

"There was a bounty on small animals and people kept turning in dead rats for Art to bury," Harvey Fleming said with a laugh.

"Don't forget the woodchucks," Supervisor Craig added later. "I didn't keep going with the clerk job because I was too busy."

Twenty-six years later, however, Craig found time to serve his township. Since 1948, he has taken care of Evergreen's assessing and tax determining.

"I like being supervisor as long as it goes all right," Craig said. "There's a lot of arguments; not so much over assessing as with the 29 Sanilac supervisors that meet in Sandusky."

"They don't always agree." Craig makes $250 a year plus $15 a day when he attends the Board of Supervisors meetings in Sandusky about 22 days out of a year.

Like other supervisors, his main duty is to assess real estate and personal property and spread the tax roll. Evergreen Township is assessed by county equalization at $917,397.

Craig and his wife were both born within a few miles of their present home. He hasn't noticed much change in the community, he said.

The one township unit school is all paid for.

"We're real pleased with that." Though the township doesn't have too many blacktopped roads, those it does have all been resurfaced. The population of the township is about 800.

Occasionally the township board (Arlington Gray and Earl Petteplance, trustees, L. Severance, treasurer and Fleming) is called to decide unknown civil claims.

"People who have sheep or chickens bothered by a dog with an unknown owner come to me to find out who's the justice of the peace. They get the justice to find the value of the sheep and turn this valuation in to the clerk," Craig explained.

"The board will act on it and determine whether or not money from the dog tax should be paid to the destroyed animal's owner."

Craig's only understatement about the constitutional convention was:

"I like local government on a local level."

The 72-year-old full-time farmer will be chairman of the Board of Supervisors in 1968. He doesn't know whether he will run for re-election.

"That's the question," Craig said, "whether or not to run again."

There's no question in Harvey Fleming's mind.

"No, I'm not running again, I'm through this time. I can say I like being clerk but we want to go to Florida and elections tie us down too much."

Except for a lapse of two years in 1950-53, Fleming has been clerk since 1935.

Keeping abreast with the trends of changing records is the hardest job for Fleming.

"Records change around so much," he said. "Now there's a new card registration that will make it harder to vote."

Fleming spoke about the address card that must be sent to the address given by the registrant. If the card comes back to the clerk he knows the address given was false.

Fleming, who averages about $225 a year, keeps the records of Evergreen Township, handles registration and oversees elections.

"I don't have to keep records of births and deaths anymore," he said. "That all goes in to the county now."

"Years ago, we used to have about seven road districts, now there is only one. Things change." The township's fire protection comes from Cass City and Snover.

"They've saved a good many buildings too, I'll tell you," Mrs. Fleming said.

SOS to Meet

A meeting of the Save Our Schools Committee has been set for Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Cass City School.

Invitations are out for anyone interested in attending, committee authorities said.

JOHN ZABINSKI STILL lives alone with his dog, but he won't go long. He's anxiously waiting for his new bride from Poland to join him in Cass City. John exhibits a jacket he brought back from Poland as a memento of his two-month visit to his former homeland. While across he married his former sister-in-law. (Chronicle Photo)

They Like Yankee Dollars in Communist Poland--Zabinski

Very few persons get a glimpse of Communist Poland these days and fewer still, before returning, make arrangements to bring back a brand new wife to this country. But friendly John Zabinski did just that this summer.

The Polish immigrant enjoyed a fabulous two months in his former homeland and married his former sister-in-law.

It was one of the highlights of an up-and-down career for Mr. Zabinski.

From Lima he went to Detroit. Things were rosy for many years. Holding a steady job in a slaughterhouse and trucking concern, Mr. Zabinski thriftyly saved his money and invested it.

Just before the big depression the Polish immigrant of 1912 had become a minor capitalist who owned five homes in Detroit.

But the depression wiped him out. He lost everything.

He began the long road back to economic stability, yowing to leave the city and put his money in a farm.

In 1945 he purchased his present farm on the River Road, southeast of Cass City, and in 1947 he moved in.

Travels by Plane From now on, the only time he plans leaving his Cass City home is when he takes a vacation as he did on his European trip.

Mr. Zabinski left by plane for Poland July 8 and returned home the same way Sept. 5. The entire trip cost about $1,500.

What about the Polish people? Outwardly they aren't too much different than area residents.

"When they dress to go to church on Sunday you couldn't tell them from churchgoers in Cass City," he explained.

But there are plenty of differences. It's dawn to dusk for both women and men workers and the wages are from 80c to $1.00 per day. The dollar doesn't buy much either. . . sausage sells for about 75c a pound.

Love that Buck Despite the fact that Poland is Communist they love that "dirty capitalist" Yankee dollar.

When Mr. Zabinski entered Poland he exchanged American money for Polish at the rate of $24 Polish to $1 American. . . and stopped on their first series of downs.

Two passes netted 30 yards and gave Clio a first down on the Cass City 29-yard line as the first quarter ended.

After a running play moved the ball to the 25, Hobson again found a receiver in the open and connected for a pay-off heave.

When the extra point was good, Clio was in front 14-0.

Passes Backfire Cass City got back into the game on an alert play by Larry Robinson. The little back intercepted a Hobson pass on the Clio 36 and scampered for a touchdown. Dick Creason converted the extra point and the score at the half was 14-7.

Neither team scored in the third period. Clio salted away the game in the early moments of the final quarter. With the ball at midfield, a pass play went all the way. When Clio's third straight try for point was good, they led 21-7.

Sustained Drive Immediately following this had no trouble. When he got ready to leave he had some $500 in Polish money that he wanted to convert to American dollars. . . then he had plenty of trouble. No one would give up the American money. He finally gave the remaining Polish money to the son of his new wife before boarding the plane.

Religious Freedom There is religious freedom in Poland. Mr. Zabinski reported that the churches were crowded and included the youth of the country.

There are very few cars and fewer good roads. People are healthy and reasonably happy. . . making the most of what they have.

But all of them would like to get out. Going to the United States is the dream of most of the Poles.

The new Mrs. Zabinski will be one of the fortunate few. Because of an appreciated assist from the United States Counsel in Poland, Mr. Zabinski said he expects his wife to join him in Cass City in about another month. . . the climax of a once-in-a-lifetime trip.

Dems Slate Meeting There will be a meeting of all Democrats in the area at the New Gordon Hotel Wednesday night, Sept. 27, authorities announced this week.

First Fall Meet for Hospital Auxiliary Mrs. Phyllis Wenk will be guest speaker at the first fall meeting of the Hills and Dales General Hospital Auxiliary, Monday evening. The meeting will be held in the hospital's meeting room at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Wenk will demonstrate her work as hospital anesthetist. Authorities are urging all members and other interested persons to attend.

Woman's Study Club At Knapp Home The first fall meeting of the Woman's Study Club was held Tuesday, Sept. 12, at the home of Mrs. A. J. Knapp. Twenty members and two guests attended.

The Misses Nina and Gertrude McWebb became members of the club at this meeting.

A short program and a tea were held Tuesday.

The next meeting of the club will be Tuesday, Sept. 26, at the home of Mrs. William Wetters. New officers will be installed at this time.

Cancel Class The expectant parents course originally scheduled at Hills and Dales General Hospital has been cancelled.

The teacher of the course, Mrs. Mary E. Gillette, has resigned.

Coming Auction Saturday, Sept. 30—Dwyane Locklin will hold a general farm auction at the farm, 11 miles north and three miles east of Lapeer.

Search for New Band Man

Restore Supplemental Pay to All Teachers

Supplemental pay for Cass City's teachers has been restored.

The action was taken Monday night by the board of education. It was made possible by an anonymous donor who offered to underwrite any losses the school may have if a subsequent vote fails to allow increased millage. The amount of the supplemental pay item is $1,700.

Also to be placed under study will be reintroduction of portions of the school program recently deleted if and when it becomes practical.

The board's action was hailed by most observers as a step toward healing the fractured relations prevalent in the school.

Because the donor stipulated that he must remain anonymous, the action was taken following an open meeting at the school to discuss the loss of Don Gillette, band instructor.

Resigns Here Mr. Gillette accepted a position in Mt. Morris for exactly the same salary he received in Cass City.

He said that he was leaving because "lack of faith in the leadership and direction at the school, actions of the superintendent and because of the manner in which the attempts to handle salary cuts was made without regard to me personally or professionally."

Mr. Gillette's work in Mt. Morris will be with grades 10 through 12 for band and instrumental instruction and 7th and 8th grade music, he reported.

Carry On Meanwhile, steps were taken by Cass City students and instructors to carry on the band program.

Roger Parrish, vocal music instructor at the high school, has volunteered to teach the band on a temporary basis. "I am not a band man," he said, "but I will do what I can to help."

Handling the band on a temporary basis means that Mr. Parrish's vocal classes will be enlarged and his schedule changed.

Search Begins Supt. Willis Campbell said the search for a new band man had already begun. A telephone check with Michigan State University, the University of Michigan and Mt. Pleasant revealed that four men may be available. The school is now running down the leads.

Delegation Attends A delegation of parents and students interested in the band were at the meeting to discuss the problem.

Jerry Stroupe, president of the Band Boosters Club, said that the loss of the band for even a year would be a serious blow to students following a career in music and to parents who have invested in band equipment.

Principal Arthur Holmberg explained that band was considered an essential part of the school's instruction, but that students would have enough credits to graduate without a credit in band this year.

Practice Daily Tom Jones, senior student and president of the band, said that the band was going out everyday to practice. . . we want to compete in band activities.

The absence of a band man has already cost the band a coveted chance to play with other bands at Michigan State's band day in October.

When the plight of the school became known to the MSU band director Saturday he cancelled out the Cass City band and substituted another on the waiting list.

Main concern of the band now is the Solo and Ensemble Festival and the Band Festival in the spring. Students would like to attend the Solo and Ensemble Festival whether or not a band man is hired. . . they concede that competing as a band would be impossible.

U of M Slates Extension Course At High School A fall field course in education has been scheduled at Cass City High School by the University of Michigan.

Designed for graduate or undergraduate work, it carries two semester hours of extension credit, but is open to those who do not wish University credit.

The class meets each Tuesday in Cass City for 11 weeks. A different instructor will teach each of the sessions. Total fee for the course is $36.

The same course will be held on different nights weekly at Yale, Big Rapids, Roscommon and Alpena.

From the Editor's Corner With all the hubbub about local school finances in the last few weeks it's probably a poor time to mention it, but did you know that Cass City is an ideal site for a community college?

The Russell Committee, in a survey of college needs ordered by the Legislature, reports that Michigan needs 20 more community colleges.

In the upper Thumb, the committee reported, either Cass City or Bad Axe should be the site for one of the schools. A community college for Cass City is not a new idea. Fred Pinney worked on the idea (we've been told) more than 10 years ago, before we came to the community.

It would be another feather in the cap of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce if they could activate a successful campaign to bring the college here. . . one that would equal its job in starting the campaign that brought industry to the community.

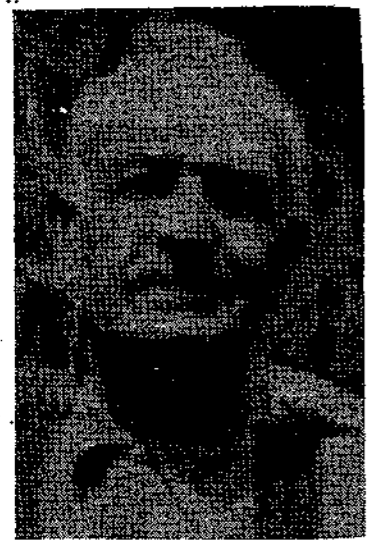

We don't believe the county is going to the dogs, but nevertheless we believe a new record was established Wednesday morning when nine criminal arraignments were heard in Tuscola County Circuit Court in Caro.

We were slightly envious last Friday when we ran across a former businessman of Cass City, G. B. Dupuis. Mr. Dupuis left the community several years ago.

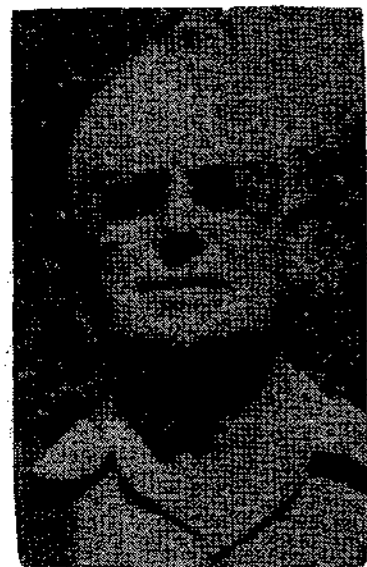

When he did he weighed well over 200 pounds. Today he is a trim 147 pounds. . . and changed so much that we hardly recognized him. Where did I put the Metreol?

In 1906 Deford was quite a town, a history of Novesta Township written by John McCracken in September of 1906 reveals.

At that time Deford had a bank, elevator, foundry, bakery, blacksmith shop, hotel and two general stores. The booklet was brought to the Chronicle by Mrs. John Crawford.

Letter to Editor

The Chronicle welcomes letters to the editor. In most instances letters will be printed in full. However, the paper reserves the right to edit letters to fit space requirements. All letters must be signed. Names will be withheld upon request.

Dear Mr. Editor:

Although Mr. Kitchin's letter of last week was most interesting in his reminiscences of yesterday, we parents today cannot and must not make our children be satisfied with second best.

Only last fall I read that Dowagiac, Mich., a town much larger than ours, was cut to half-day classes for all because of school problems. I felt a great surge of pride, perhaps even smugness, that our curriculum was so far superior.

Everyone has growing pains, some more painful than others. Our own Community Hospital, the pride of 7 counties (at least) certainly has had her share. Whose ears haven't been poured full of rumors, rumors and more rumors - but those at the helm have ridden out the storm.

Now who among us hasn't heard the wild crop that's been going along with our school crises. It's most disheartening to hear some of the sharp-edged stories that hurt so many - and ultimately our children must pay through lesser opportunities. Oh, I'm sure mine will learn the "R's" but today's world calls for outgoing talented people - in speech for our senators, diplomats, presidents; music and art in their own great fields. If we aren't able to send our children to college - their high school education becomes even more important.

We all can appreciate the high cost of everything - but if there's something we particularly want, it's usually purchased. No one wants higher taxes but "higher taxes" has almost become synonymous with "democracy." If it's worth keeping, it's worth paying for. If we don't make the proper choices of what's worthwhile - democracy itself is endangered.

Cass City's future has looked so hopeful - are we outgrowing our small town pride or are we merely apathetic concerning our children's future?

I have no solution for our problem, as no one person has. But I want to stand and be counted as one who is anxious that other concerned citizens (and that's everyone, parents and all) make their voice heard. And the chance is available through Home-Student Council Meetings. Democracy is strong if united in purpose. Let us search for facts instead of repeating the latest "have you heard."

An anxious parent,
Mrs. Stuart Merchant

 "Lady" is dead. The clever canine companion of the L. E. Dickinson household and the friend of many persons in Cass City died Sunday. Most folks will remember "Lady" walking downtown with her owner on shopping tours, proudly carrying a basket between her teeth - either empty or full of groceries. The pointer had been a member of Dickinson's family since a pup and lived to the ripe old dog's age of nine years before her death, Sunday. Fifty descendants of the late Mr. and Mrs. Glen McQueen gathered at the old McQueen home, now owned by Glenford McQueen, who returned from duty in Korea with the first Marine division on Sept. 2.

Three Sanilac County teachers with a combined total of 118 years of experience in their profession will be feted in Decker-ville Wednesday night. They are Park Russell, Snover, a 30-year teaching veteran; Jason Kitchin, Cass City, 35 year in the teaching profession, and Carrie Klouse, Forrestville, dean of the trio with 43 years in the classroom.

 One of the finest memorials in this community is that to Hiram Baxter. A sum of money was left so that the youth might enjoy the savings of an elderly couple. In memory of her husband, Mrs. Baxter gave this money to the Cass City school to be used in the purchase of articles deemed most useful. Part purchased necessary books, part supplied the dishes for community gatherings, and now a new electric refrigerator has been purchased with the balance. A suitable inscription will be placed thereon which will long remind the community of that frugal couple who saved so carefully and provided so generously for the future of today's young people.

 G. and C. Folkert, who have specialized in holiday goods every fall since they have been in business in Cass City, will place a larger stock than ever before in the 1926 season. They have rented the west half of the A. H. Ale Block on West Main St., which they will open about Nov. 1 with an exclusive stock of holiday goods.

Cass City, Mich. Sept. 16, 1961.

To the Editor:

First, to put the record straight regarding the last election for raising taxes. If this election had carried, there were so many illegal procedures connected with this election, it would have been voided in the courts.

Nationwide, there is growing dissatisfaction with the quality of education in our high schools today. As one nationally known individual expressed it, "We are teaching too little about too much."

The only sure thing about graduating today is the student has put in the required time. One midwest judge was just about floored when he had a high school student up before him that could not read or write.

I graduated from high school in 1920. The program then was to give the student a good basic foundation of education in preparation for acquiring of additional knowledge as he went on through life. If a person couldn't make the grade, he did not graduate. To graduate from high school meant something. I had only one degree teacher and he was the poorest I had. The time I spent in his classes was just about wasted. It is also unfortunate that ability and experience means very little in the teaching setup today.

A few years after I graduated, some starry-eyed educator threw this good program out and instituted a program of classwork geared to the lowest I. Q. of the class. This was found to be wrong, to the sorrow of a generation of students and the loss to the whole country. Western European countries seem to have a better system than we have. At least, we could study their systems and pick out the parts that would improve our program.

Our system has changed some since the days of convoy education but it is still on the low side of average. We are not realizing the full value from the teaching potential we have in our degree teachers today. We should be graduating near-geniuses instead of below average caliber.

The Broken Home

Only four months ago we had in Cass City a large and happy home, one in which the whole community took pride. It was a home in which the talents, personalities and futures of its children received their basic training under the ideal conditions of congenial surroundings, good equipment, competent instructors, and a spirit of community cooperation that was an example to every village and town in the state of Michigan.

Today, due to lack of information and misunderstanding, our once happy home is disrupted and under a strain that is detrimental to the whole community. This is not a time to point fingers or make accusations. But it is imperative that all immediately join hands and with cool heads and mellow tongues work out our differences to the mutual benefit of the entire community, in order that those children being educated in Cass City's schools may receive the best possible education that our facilities and teachers are capable of producing.

I urge that the 6th hour classes be restored immediately, so that every student will have an opportunity to acquire all the knowledge he is capable of absorbing. I believe it is a waste of talent and facilities to eliminate the 6th hour of instruction, and certainly false economy when the first 5 hours of instruction cost $900 per hour and the 6th hour is taught for $500. Restoring the 6th hour classes would also relieve overcrowding and a better job of instructing could be done.

I respect the vote of everyone who cast a ballot for or against the millage increase. The voters certainly demanded that our school system be operated on an efficient and economical basis. But I do not believe that one single voter wanted a decline in education or to dishonor contracts already made. I am not concerned with legal opinions as to whether or not the teachers' contracts can be broken, but I am gravely disturbed over the thoughts of 'breaking them and also the consequences. These contracts were entered into in good faith by the teachers and the people via the Board of Education, and I believe these contracts should be honored and paid in full with both parties fulfilling their obligations 100 per cent. There is no other honorable and honest way.

I think we have one of the best teaching staffs ever in Cass City and I feel they have done an excellent job in the performance of their duties. I would like to see each and every member continue to be a member of our community, and as a word of encouragement to them I believe the grass will be green in Cass City again. I know we have a first class student enrollment - one of the finest you will find anywhere. Let us not through lack of information and misunderstanding waste or destroy the good things we have.

Mr. Editor:

Yes, we went back to school Wednesday.

Oh, sure there are lots of things that have changed. I imagine by now anyone who has contact with students has probably heard quite a list. All things that have added to our education. Yes, classes are larger. Sure, we gripe about not having buses to take us on field trips and to games, and not having proms, annuals, etc.

But if I know the students and teachers of C. C. H. S., they'll come through. They'll find ways to get to away games and other places, and if they can't have proms, I'm sure they'll find a substitute. As for the annuals, as seniors we want them very much. Why shouldn't we? That's part of graduating, but if there's a way to have them, and I'm sure there is, we'll find it. It seems at times like this when odds are against us is when we do our best.

As for the teachers their job is harder, but don't say they're not doing their jobs or that they've quit trying, just because of salary cuts. It's not so. I don't think there's one of my teachers who hasn't said at least once that if anyone needs extra help they'd be glad to help all they could. This is on their own time with no thought of payment. Some may be forced to leave, but while they're here they're doing their jobs and doing them well. Hats off to them for it.

Sincerely,
Betty Jean Spaulding
Senior, C. C. H. S.

P.S. If this is deteriorating education I hope it doesn't go any further in that direction or we'll never get all those assignments done.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Sez:

Dear Mister Editor:

I see by the papers where school houses in a heap of places is so crowded for space this year they're operating on two shifts. And the same piece says some of the schools in Chicago is serving breakfast in the school lunch rooms.

In one generation this country has come up with no-shift automobiles and two-shift schools. It looks to me like that people, somewhere along the line, is getting progress all twisted up. Or maybe the crowded school situation come about on account of folks not being able to settle an argument between their conscience and their pocketbook. There ain't nothing that makes a feller any madder than fer his conscience to interrupt when his money is talking.

And me and my old lady got in a argument over this school breakfast item. When I was getting what little schooling I got, I went to bed early so's I could get up early and help milk the cows, churn, and bring in the wood for the day. Then I set down to a solid meal. Now they're fixing it so's the kids can stay out half the night and get some watered orange juice and a piece of toast.

My old lady says they take care of these things now with vitamins, that folks don't need, the same eating habits they did in the old days. Could be, Mister Editor. Science has provided so many substitutes for things that it's getting hard for me to recollect what it was we needed in the first place.

Speaking of scientists, I see where our missile experts claim two miles is about as close to the target as we can be sure of with our long range shots. I don't think two miles will make much difference. We got so many of them foreign countries saying "Yankee Go Home" that we're bound to hit one right on the barrel-head ever time we shoot.

I see where the column writers is still discussing President Kennedy's health. That can work both ways. I never knowed a feller that had a operation or spent time in the hospital that didn't brag about it. Whenever he hears about another feller that has been in similar toils, he feels toward him like a long lost brother. A heap of folks that was Democrats shifted to Ike after he had his operation. And they say, fer instant, that when Senator Kefauver was trying to git to the White House, he begun to slip when it was found out he hadn't never had no operation or been sick a day in his life.

Well, I see where the Census Bureau come out last week with some more figgers on various things they had put together from the 1960 census. I was interested in one item that said a million and a half Americans quit smoking from 1953 to 1960. I reckon this was only a small fraction of them that swore off.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

A Different Kind Of Flying Story

By the Rev. Robert J. Searis

In "Fate Is The Hunter", Ernest Gann, author of "The High And The Mighty" and other novels has given us a different kind of book. This is not a novel. It is not a biography.

But it contains all the elements of an exciting novel and it is autobiographical inasmuch as it concerns one period of Gann's personal life and one segment of that period -- namely, his occupation as an airline pilot.

There have been novels and television dramas by the score about flying but these have dealt primarily with military flying.

Briefly, Gann begins his tale at the time he is taking instruction in flying commercial airplanes after free-lancing as a Lindbergh-era barnstormer. We are taken on his first flight as a co-pilot and on many of his subsequent flights as captain of an airliner before World War II.

During the war he was one of the pilots of a commercial liner flying military personnel and material to Iceland, Greenland, Europe, the 'Hump' in the far east. Like many pilots after the war, he gave up his seniority with the airline with which he had been associated to fly for one of the newer lines that had sprung up.

If, like me, you have watched those relaxed, bronzed men carrying flight bags and brief-cases as they come onto the field, you have wondered just what happens up in the cockpit. After reading this book, you will know. You will know the fears these fearless men have. You will know who does what up front. And why.

There are suspense-filled accounts that I predict will appear on the coming year's TV diet. If so, I hope to see them. They embrace a wide variety of emergencies, all of them terrifying.

I do not agree with the thesis of the book that fate is the principal factor in one's survival, but this is not allowed to intrude with the movement of the accounts. With the author, I see the stupid irony of seniority as the sole criteria for promotion (this is even more dangerous as it affects the military in our nation); I also agree with him about the folly of many decisions made by federal bureaucrats in relation to airlines and airline routes following the war.

If you like stories about flying, and with them a dash of excitement that comes almost without warning, you will enjoy the hours spent with "Fate Is The Hunter."

"Fate Is The Hunter" by Ernest K. Gann, 1961, Simon and Schuster; available from Elkland Township Library.

Needed: A Water Code for Michigan

An ever-widening circle of problems and doubts is clouding Michigan's waters in this age of population explosions. From the shores of the Detroit river (top, left and right) to the semi-remote reaches of northern inland lakes and streams (bottom photo), public water rights are taking more and more of a back seat to dredgings, fills, and other loosely-controlled private developments. Badly needed is a firm, clear water code, comprising a number of basic laws, which will define and protect the rights of shore-line owners and the public's stake in recreation, fish and wildlife, as to who owns submerged lands in connecting waters of the Great Lakes; what dredging can be done to improve real estate; what fills can be made—where and under what conditions; and so forth. It would also provide the legal framework for setting limits and responsibilities in regard to water use for industry and agriculture.—Mich. Dept. of Conservation

BULEN TALKS Cars

THE ART OF DOUBLE TALK

"It pays to be honest," the old adage says. And it does too, in the long run. But if you're in the car business looking for quick results without worrying too much about the future, it can be tempting to indulge in a little double talk.

Take price, for instance. It is a normal human reaction for all of us to want to pay the lowest price. Providing two given products are identical, the lowest price signifies the greatest value. That, naturally, is what we want for our hard earned money.

Realizing that a low price attracts prospective buyers, a dealer can take a worn-out car and advertise it at a "bargain" price. But, of course, it isn't a bargain. If he then tries to switch the buyer to a better car at a much higher price, it is almost certain that it isn't a bargain either.

The dealer with the switcheroo technique has entered on a policy of trying to "take" the public for as much as he can and he is not about to suddenly reform. If that angle doesn't work, he can advertise a car at "below cost" that he really doesn't have at all. Or "new" cars that the fine print describes, as "demonstrators." They may not have been new when the dealer bought them and have been driven thousands of miles with the speedometer disconnected.

A reputable dealer has the cars he advertises. If he wants to keep his reputation - as we do - he reconditions them so they will render their owners reliable service. The irony is that his advertised prices may seem higher than his unethical competition. Really, the only thing higher is the value the customer receives.

WANDERING WITH WARREN

Every Season of Year Appreciated

By Ilene Warren

Summer is nearing its end. For me, it has been a lively and lovely time. But as this slips into memory, I shall look forward to next year's summertime.

Yes, Saturday will mark the beginning of autumn. Some of the leaves are already changing color. Today, as I stood at the kitchen sink doing dishes, I looked out the window at the tall elms that line the banks of the Cass River. From the top of one a yellowed leaf broke free and gently, slowly drifted down. Like little Linus in "Peanuts" I could almost hear its soft sigh.

I like autumn. Last year (remember?) gave us a long, pleasant fall. Perhaps this year's will be lovely, too.

But, when it comes right down to facing the seasons, I guess there's much to be enjoyed in each one. My objections to winter are concerned with traveling difficulties and the icy discomfort of walking uptown each noon to buy a sandwich and cup of coffee for lunch. As for spring, again the problem is travel: those muddy roads (to say nothing of high water) try my naturally sunny disposition (no snide comments, please!).

Last Sunday, I was entertained at my house by a young lad who possesses enough energy to move mountains could his energy be harnessed for such a purpose!

He, his mother and two sisters came to spend the afternoon with me while his father and my husband went to a church meeting. Upon arrival, he first checked the cats and dogs; I guess to see if they were still here. When he came in the house to wait while preparations were made to migrate to the cooler atmosphere of the river bank, he verbally prodded us to hurry. Finally, loaded with blanket, a pitcher of Kool Aid, plastic glasses, portable radio and some toys, we made the trip to the river bank where we attempted to relax - but not Gary. When his mother nixed the river wading, he obtained a stick, trotted down the steps leading to the river and began to "fish."

Despite possessing great imagination, he soon became dissatisfied by the lack of realism in his fishing pole. I tied a long-stemmed buckthorn to the end of the stick - that lasted for awhile - but eventually I ended up going to the house to get some string for him. He stood at the edge of the river, made his cast and called, "Here, fishie, fishie, fishie. Here, fishie, fishie, fishie." Once, his mother chided, "You don't call fish like you do pigs or cows." But he continued his vain attempt to inveigle the fish to bite his string.

Later on, I peeled a green milkweed pod baring the white soft seeds still encased in silvery scales - when this rather fish-like object was tied to the end of the string, Gary was content with his fish and continued to toss it in and out of the water until on one cast it broke loose and sailed out onto the river where it slowly drifted downstream.

Gary is quite a lad. I like and enjoy him very much. He's in my church school class where he both challenges and entertains me. Not long ago, we were studying Moses. Because my class ranges in age from 3 to 5 (Gary is 4), I emphasized the story of Moses' babyhood and how he received the Ten Commandments and touched lightly on his final ascent of the mountain to die. But here Gary interrupted me: "I know where they put people who die," he averred solemnly, "they put 'em in secretaries."

Some people get there by pull, others by push.

You can't stay ahead of your bills if you allow them to do all the running.

Don't worry so much about the future that you forget the tasks that should be done today.

Michigan Mirror

Con-Con--City Folks Against Farmers

By Elmer E. White Michigan Press Association

Constitutional convention for Michigan is rapidly taking on overtones of a "city folks versus the farmers" battle.

Partisan politics are to blame for much of this. Both Democrats and Republicans have been quick to seize on slogans and catch-phrases aimed at making the other side look bad.

Thus the Democrats are calling for an end to "representation of stumps and wilderness" while the GOP wants to "keep the Senate from becoming a caucus club for Southeastern Michigan."

Both the appeals are based on sound, if totally different, government philosophies, and both reflect what the political scientists call the "rural-urban dichotomy." Put simply, this means city folks tend to think their interests oppose to a great degree those of the rural dwellers, and vice versa.

There are differences of opinion and suspicion between the farmers and city laborers. But if pure partisanship is removed from the scene, the differences are harder to find. For example, much of the Democratic party tends to favor development programs of one kind or another which are directed from the state (or federal) level in an attempt to solve major problems such as delinquency, urban renewal and the like, which are chiefly city burdens.

And the Democratic strength lies in the cities.

Republicans, on the other hand, generally tend to favor a greater extent of local control in government affairs. The GOP draws its votes from wider areas, and consequently recognizes a greater dissimilarity in the needs of people and places.

Party emphasis on the rural-versus-urban question creates uneasiness among city Republicans and country Democrats.

Partisan harmony may be difficult to come by, but agreement among the good citizens of Michigan, whether they live in the cities or the villages, can, if given a chance, transcend political differences.

Especially this is true in so vital an undertaking as the writing of a new basic law for Michigan.

The chief manifestation of the rural-urban split as it applies to Constitutional Convention is in the hassle over whether, or how, to reapportion the Legislature, particularly the Senate. Maneuvering for simple partisan advantage could work against the best interest of all the people of Michigan, if it is pegged to a fight over whether people or people plus territory should be the most important consideration for solving the apportionment problem.

Genial Clarence W. Lock, Michigan's revenue commissioner, has compiled quite a record of national recognition in his chosen field.

Most recent achievement for the director of the state revenue department, which handles the tax collecting for Michigan, was his election as a member of the Board of Directors of the National Tax Association.

Earlier this year, Lock was named to the Advisory Council of Tax Institute, Inc., and elected secretary of the National Association of Tax Administrators.

Lock, who took over as Revenue Commissioner after serving many years as deputy to Louis Nims, now retired, has demonstrated by his activities at the national level that Michigan is still among the leading states in government organization and operation.

This, despite the cash crisis of 1959 and attendant tax financing troubles.

State officials are again looking into the wage and fringe benefit picture for Michigan's 31,000 classified employees to see if they are being short-changed in comparison with people doing comparable jobs in private industry.

This year's survey of public agencies is due for completion in November, and will be used by the Civil Service Commission to see if there should be any changes in state employment practices.

John Downes, chief of the wage and salary section of the Civil Service Department, is directing the study.

Chief items in the survey are interviews with workers in some 37 public agencies in Michigan, 22 states and the federal government, and a mail survey of wages paid by 370 private employers.

It will be up to the four-member Civil Service Commission to evaluate findings of this year's study in comparison with surveys done in other years to determine whether state employees are compensated too generously, or not generously enough.

The recent 3 per cent wage hike and institution of group insurance programs have grown out of similar studies in the past.

About the time you catch up with the Jones', they refinance.

Bumper Beet Crop Expected in County

Until weather permits storing of beets, delivery will be limited to the daily capacity of the factory, 300 truck loads per day. Delivery hours will be from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m.

County Bean Crop Excellent

Fifty per cent or better of Tuscola county's bean crop is in the bin, as of September 15, according to reports from growers and elevator agents across the county, advises Alfred Ballweg, county extension director. Yield reports vary from a low of 7 to 40 bushels per acre with an expected average yield of from 22 to 25 bushels per acre. Some northwest areas of the county are 80 per cent completed while others still have over 50 per cent yet to harvest. Pick is low and quality is good, say elevator men, with moisture going down as weather improves and season advances.

We have completed harvesting the 1961 bean variety test plots on the Arnold Zwerk farm in Denmark township. Over all they all look good but some are better, said Ballweg. We pulled 200 feet of row of each variety to harvest and use for yield check, etc. You get the feel of what is actually there. The 1961 plots included Idaho Seaway, Sanilac and Michelite, also Michigan Seaway and Sanilac along with 0181, Saginaw and Michelite 62. Results of these trials will be available during early 1962.

Harvest reports from other counties are: Saginaw, 50 per cent completed; pick light, moisture down, average yield 25 bushels. Bay, 75 to 80 per cent completed; yields from 20 to 45 bushels. Sanilac, 30 per cent harvested with yields better than anticipated. Gratiot, 35 per cent harvested, total yield lower than 1960. Huron, harvest better than 50 per cent completed; expect total Huron crop to be somewhat above 1960.

According to the September 1 crop report, Michigan navy bean production will be 6,579,000 bags. This is above the August report of 6,322,000 bags and 279,000 bags over the 1960 final production figure.

The government take over price for the 1961 crop is around $5.83 to $5.85 and will be later or not until May 1, 1962, said Ballweg.

Honor Walt Miller at End of Long Career

Walt Miller of Owosso, freight agent for the Grand Trunk Railroad in Cass City from 1940-55, was the honored guest at a retirement banquet Saturday night in Owosso.

It marked the end of a long and distinguished service for Mr. Miller. He started railroading at 17 when he went to work for the Ann Arbor railroad.

Four years later he started with the Grand Trunk system and stayed for 48 years.

Many associates in railroading were present to honor him. F. A. Summerhayes of Durand, chief dispatcher, was toastmaster for the program. Among the various speakers was Angus McEachin, local agent.

Mr. Miller received a copy of his record compiled over the years. Compiled by Trainmaster W. W. Muncie of Durand, it showed not a single demerit for Mr. Miller.

G. W. Walker, assistant superintendent at Detroit, presented a 48-year retirement pin. Mr. Miller is a member of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers and he was given a billfold with his name engraved by S. A. Bell-graph.

A member since 1913, he was the oldest serviceman among 2,900 members.

A representative of the New York Central presented the honored guest a chrome spike, inscribed with his name and years of service.

Mr. Miller's wife, his three daughters and their families were present. They are: the Ivan Schrams of Pontiac, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilson and family of Waterford and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keating and sons of Cass City. Also attending were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Kirton of Cass City.

What will Mr. Miller do now? He looks forward to doing some fishing and says he definitely will not get up at 6:45 daily.

EVERGREEN OFFICIALS

Concluded from page one

The Flemings came to Evergreen in 1926.

"I was born in Danville, Ill., and came to Detroit in 1911. We got married there in 1920," the clerk said.

They have six children and 19 grandchildren.

Knowing that as a farmer, Fleming would have a full schedule, this reporter thanked him for taking time out for an interview.

"Oh that's all right. I always save something to do tomorrow," he replied with a grin.
