

Seek Graham's Ouster

A petition alleging misconduct in office and seeking removal from office has been filed against Tuscola County Probate Judge Henderson Graham.

The petition was filed in the State Supreme Court by Meredith H. Doyle, State court administrator. It had been approved by Chief Justice John R. Dethmers.

Judge Graham is charged with attempting to borrow $20,000 from the estate of Edwina D. Green, Caro. The girl's parents were killed in an automobile accident in 1959, and according to Doyle's petition, Judge Graham approached the girl's guardian and sister, Mrs. Sylvia Goszkowski on February 3, 1961, and asked a $20,000 loan from the estate.

Doyle states in his petition that Graham improperly sought a loan from an estate under his jurisdiction. The petition alleges that Graham had threatened to increase the amount of the guardian's bond if the loan was not negotiated.

Judge Graham said he had asked for a larger bond on the estate when he learned Mrs. Goszkowski was investing the funds. In an effort to avoid the increased cost of bonds he had suggested she loan him some money and no bond would be necessary because he would know where the money was.

Graham stated he had offered to sign a promissory note or mortgage paying six per cent interest and that the funds would have to be repaid by February, 1962. He said the guardian had wanted to make a long term loan.

Judge Graham's attorney, Thomas R. McAllister, Huron county delegate to the Con-Con, released a statement which says that Graham had made a mistake in judgement but had committed no crime, nobody was injured.

McAllister said the estate had already invested the money and had none to lend. "The question is," he said in his statement, "who arranged for the tape recordings of Graham's meeting with Mrs. Goszkowski in Detroit?"

Graham said he didn't know until April when he met with Doyle that the room had been "bugged" both times he had talked to Mrs. Goszkowski. It had presumably been done by State Police.

Graham, 44, has said he will not resign. He has been County Probate Judge since 1957.

At a meeting with Doyle and Circuit Court Judge Timothy Quinn in Lapeer last June, he was asked to resign but refused.

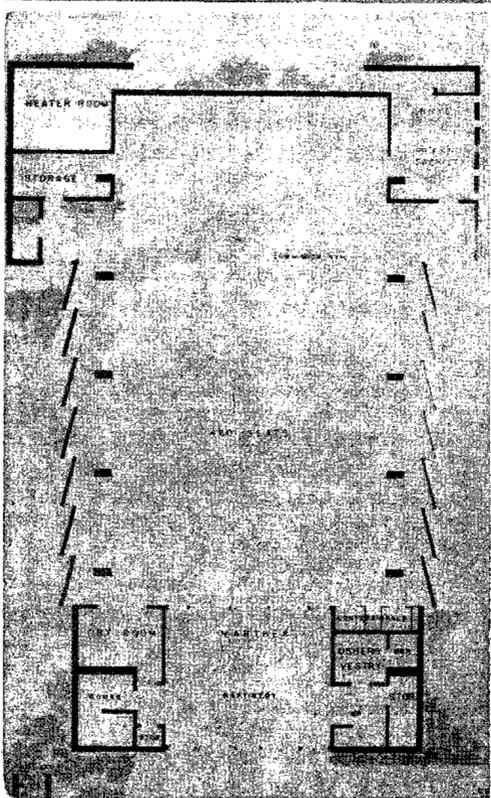

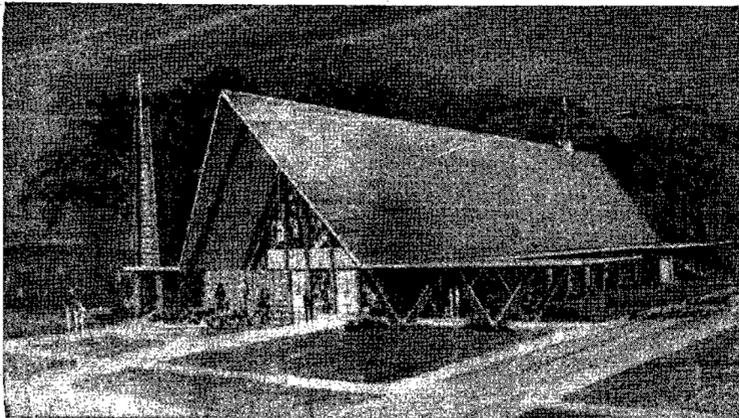

In full, the petition asks the Supreme Court to initiate removal proceedings under Section Six, Article Nine of the State Constitution.

Under the section's provisions, the court would request the State Legislature to adopt a concurrent resolution (requiring two-thirds approval in both Houses) demanding that the governor remove Judge Graham from office. The Supreme Court purportedly has no removal powers itself.

It further requests that pending the legislative decision, Graham be ordered to step down from the bench.

Doyle claims in the petition that Graham's actions "constitute misconduct in office and misfeasance, are contrary to the canons of judicial ethics and have exposed the courts and judicial branch to public contempt."

TOP PICTURE—This is the architect's conception of what the proposed $135,000 St. Pancratius Church building will look like when it is finished. Construction is tentatively scheduled to start next April.

BOTTOM PICTURE—The floor plan of the new church provides for more seating and all lighting will be indirect. It will also feature some new innovations (see story.)

St. Pancratius To Get New Church Building

Plans for a new $135,000 St. Pancratius Church building have been approved, according to Father Arnold Messing, pastor of the St. Pancratius Catholic Church, Cass City. The plans were approved recently by the Bishop of the Saginaw District and by the Building Committee of the Saginaw District.

The building, tentatively scheduled to be started in April, 1962, will be built to the right of the existing church which was built in 1903. The old building will be eventually torn down and replaced.

The new church will feature a number of new aspects as well as improving on some of the old.

For instance, total seating for an overflow crowd is estimated at 600; in the old church, overflow seating was an estimated 200 seats. The new seating includes 460 seats on the main floor plus 70 in the balcony. There is also room for additional chairs to be set up.

Another special feature will be a granite altar. The baptismal font will be located in the center of the narthex of the church.

The exterior walls will be of brick with the front area of faceted glass. All lighting will be indirect. The walkway in front of the church will be covered by an extending roof.

The contemporary building was designed by Morris Wesolek and MacMillan, Bay City architects.

Holmberg to Speak at Union Service Nov. 22

Arthur Holmberg, widely-known lay speaker and principal of Cass City High School, will speak at the annual community Thanksgiving service, according to the Rev. Robert J. Searis, chairman of special services for the Cass City Council of Churches. An ordained layman (Elder) of the Presbyterian Church, Mr. Holmberg is no stranger to the pulpit. His selection as this year's speaker symbolizes the growing participation of the laity in the ministry of the church, according to Mr. Searis.

To be held the night before Thanksgiving, Wednesday, Nov. 22, at 8 p. m., the service will be at the Church of the Nazarene with the order of worship in the hands of the host pastor, the Rev. L. A. Wilson.

The service is open to the public and the church is located on the south side of Third street between Seeger and Oak streets.

Committee Tells Curriculum Needs

"We have to be specific . . . people want to know what they're going to get for their money," declared members of the Citizens Committee for Better Schools at a meeting held at the Cass City High School Monday night.

The Committee, backing a three-mill tax levy for school expenses to be voted on sometime next January, is studying ways to present the problem of school needs to the public.

A group of 13 committee members, school board officials and school officials heard Rev. John Fish outline a 13-point possible curriculum development plan.

The plan was the result of a previous meeting at which a letter from a University of Michigan official was read which cited accrediting violations at Cass City. UM is one of Cass City's two accrediting agencies.

Included in the plan were a number of classes that have been dropped this year due to the lack of sufficient funds plus some needs listed by the UM official as necessary. In brief, the plan included mechanical drawing, an art teacher, a physical education program for junior and senior high, advanced math, personal typing, third and fourth year foreign language, increased counseling service, metal shop equipment, access to office equipment for commercial classes, an administrative clerk, a full time librarian, maintain an adequate financial compensation for the faculty.

"Not all these are possible, some are not advisable . . . they need to be studied," stated Rev. Fish.

"We should put back into the school what we need to be accredited, plus a step forward," said Vic Greeney, committee chairman. "We don't want a minimum school . . . we want a progressive school," he asserted.

According to a report from Bad Axe State Police Corporal Frank Lyon, Henry R. Fox, Birmingham was riding on the crossbar of a tractor demonstrating a five-bottom plow and when the gears were shifted he fell onto one of the wheels.

His clothing caught on one of the lugs and he was thrown under the wheel. He suffered a fracture of the left leg, a pulled muscle and bruised right arm and face lacerations.

Fox was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital where he was listed as suffering from shock.

Another In Series

Doctor Builds Fallout Shelter

"It's like insurance . . . we hope we never have to use it, but if we need it, it's there," is how Dr. Robert C. Hervey, Cass City veterinarian, feels about fallout shelters. He is presently constructing a fallout shelter in his basement to house his wife and three children in the event of nuclear attack.

"We discussed the problem and visualized what can be . . . these weapons do exist. If we are ever under attack, we are going to want these and we won't have them if we don't plan ahead," he gave as his reason for building a shelter.

Dr. Hervey's shelter is based on plans taken from "The Family Fallout Shelter," a manual distributed by the local office of Civil Defense.

Begun three weeks ago, the shelter measures 8' x 12' and is approximately 6'8" high. When finished, it will contain sanitary facilities, bunks, food and other necessities.

"It can be used for other things," he stated. Future plans call for tiling the floor and use of the room as a club room for the children, a study room and a music practice room.

The basement type shelter is more economical than the outside, underground shelter but not as good, states Dr. Hervey. It is, of course, easier to build in basement type when doing new construction.

"Everyone should have one, if possible," he asserted. "We are dealing with people who don't think like we do . . . we shouldn't wait for the government to take action."

He had some other definite ideas. "There should be both private and public shelters." He mentioned that the school would be a good place for a public shelter if adequate facilities were made available.

Dr. Hervey pointed out that war is not the only source of fallout. Radioactive materials are being transported by various means daily throughout the United States and an accident by one of these carriers could create the same problem as a nuclear attack.

Dr. Hervey came to Cass City five years ago after receiving his veterinary degree. He was formerly from the Saginaw area. He met his wife while stationed in the service in Washington state. They live with their three children, Rhonda, 6, Robin, 7, and Becky, 10, in an attractive home which has adjacent offices for his veterinary practice.

In closing, he denounced those who have expressed the "We wouldn't want to live if that (nuclear war) happened. That," remarked the doctor, "is a defeatist attitude."

He extended an open invitation to those interested to drop in and see his shelter.

Aside from the doctor's shelter and other types listed in the manual there are a number of dealers throughout the Thumb selling pre-built shelters.

The closest such dealer is William B. Ayre, Caro, Thumb Area distributor for Family Fallout "Living Shelters," a shelter made of heavy gauge steel.

All players, captains and team sponsors are urged to attend an organizational meeting of the Cass City Independent Basketball League, Dean Hoag announced this week.

The meeting is slated at the New Gordon Hotel at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, Nov. 14.

Woman Hurt In Fall From Stool

Mrs. Joseph Sommers, Cass City business woman, was seriously injured when she fell on a wooden stake while cleaning her outside windows Saturday afternoon, Nov. 4.

Mrs. Sommers reportedly was cleaning wax off her windows when the kitchen stool she was using tipped. She fell on a wooden stake, driving eight inches of the square three-foot stake through her right leg above the knee. The stake narrowly missed severing an artery.

She was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital for treatment.

26 Donate At Blood Bank

Twenty-six persons donated blood at the mobile blood bank Friday, Nov. 3, at Hills and Dales General Hospital, according to Jack Smith, laboratory technician.

Seventeen of the donations were for Kay Kendall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Kendall, Cass City. Kay was scheduled to undergo a heart operation the early part of this month.

The other nine donations were replacements for the Hills and Dales blood bank. Users may pay for the blood or replace it by donations.

"We need the blood more than the money," stated Smith. "If a user pays and later donates blood, his money will be refunded."

From the Editor's Corner

Willis Campbell reports $522 collected in the Elkland-Novesta Community Chest drive during the week. He has set Wednesday, Nov. 15, as the target date for a final accounting for 1961.

The Michigan Department of Conservation reports that prospects for hunters in the northern lower peninsula are brighter than usual . . . there has been an increase in the whitetails. Presumably a nimrod's best chance of bagging a buck next Wednesday would be right around home where the deer herd is exploding, but staying home spoils "the hunt" for many deer slayers.

Regardless, it's an odds-on bet that the biggest buck reported by area hunters will be shot near here . . . better feed grows then bigger.

Big or small, we want to hear all the details from every successful hunter for listing in our "buck luck" column.

Notice
The Cass City State Bank and The Pinney State Bank will be closed Saturday, Nov. 11, for Veterans' Day, a legal holiday.

Hawks' Magnificent Rally Capped by Win over Lakers

Dick Creason paced Cass City to two first-half touchdowns Friday and the markers, coupled with the Hawks' stubborn defense, were enough for a final game victory at Cass City Recreational Park as Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port bowed 12-6.

The victory capped a brilliant comeback for the local griders. After losing three of their first four games, the Hawks picked themselves up by their bootstraps and stormed to four straight victories.

In the last four games the brilliant defense allowed just one touchdown. "It was our defense that won for us," said Coach Mike Yedinak. The string of victories moved Cass City from fifth to third place in the league behind champion Bad Axe (6-0-1) and Caro (5-1-1).

Score Early
Cass City staged its only sustained drive of the game after receiving the opening kick-off.

With Larry Robinson, Mike Bryant and Dick Creason alternating with the ball they drove for a first down on the Laker 36 in 10 plays.

After two line plays gained just three yards Roger Karr connected with Marty Yedinak on a pass good for 14 yards in a key play that kept the drive moving.

Three plays later Creason dashed for 16 yards for the touchdown.

Score Again
The Lakers were on the move when the Hawks scored their second touchdown. They had combined passes and runs to move from their own 41 to the Hawk 29. On fourth and three the visitors tried to connect again through the air but Creason intercepted and raced 82 yards for the final marker of the game. It proved to be the margin of difference.

Lakers Threaten
Midway through the third period the Lakers started a drive that ended deep into Cass City's territory. Taking the ball on their own 47 they moved by a first and 10 on the Hawks' 12-yard line. Four plays gained only four yards and Cass City took over on downs.

The Lakers scored a consolation marker midway through the final period. Tim Wurtz broke into the open and dashed 49 yards for the touchdown. Neither team threatened to score again.

Coach Yedinak said that Creason, Chuck Seeley, Robinson, Karr, Wilbert Goodall and Jim Concluded on page two.

WANDERING WITH WARREN

It's A Case of Shovel or Hovel

By Ilene Warren

The weather has the chill of winter in it these days. I'm reminded of a bit of verse I wrote many years ago:

The winds that blow are crisp and cool;
The stars are bright at night—
And fleecy clouds that sail the sky
Are blown along in flight.
The days grow short; the nights are chill;
Autumn will soon be o'er—
And winter's winds will bring the snow
To drift about our door.

And when the snow begins to drift out will come the snow tires, chains and shovels! When the snow's around your door, it's either shovel or stay in your hovel - and in this Day of the Dollar it's mostly shovel!

In last week's column I wrote about Caesar Bason, a negro who fought at the Battle of Bunker Hill. This brought to my remembrance stories of white and colored men who fought side by side in World War II and in the Korean War—but must it take war to be the leveler of barriers?

It has seemed to me that men should be accepted for what they are as individuals—not be judged for being members of a particular race. If they are undesirable as individuals then one may make a choice of non-acceptance.

This equality that we talk about doesn't mean that we do more for someone who is different - for instance, in this predominantly white area, our treatment of those of other color should be the same as our treatment of other whites. To do more carries with it something of patronage. And I don't think, in the desire of those people for equality, they expect better treatment - some do, of course, but most of them ask simply for equality.

In doing further thinking along this line, one begins to wonder (at least I do) just how good is our treatment of each other? Maybe there needs to be a little improvement along our "love thy neighbor" policy!

I have been interested and concerned about Civil Defense for a long time (as evidenced by a small blue booklet titled "United States Civil Defense" I've had since 1950). In the past, whenever I broached the subject the usual response was either one of scoffing or a "what's-the-use?" attitude. Now, however, especially since President Kennedy's speech on the subject, there are more people who are thinking about what they might do to be prepared in case of nuclear attack . . . and a few who are doing something about it.

There has been no indication of panic by any of the people with whom I've discussed this topic - there has been, nevertheless, a fatalistic attitude expressed by some. This is, too often, a common tendency when faced with seemingly insurmountable problems - but I'm reminded of what Epicurus wrote: "A strict belief in fate is the worst of slavery, imposing upon our necks an everlasting lord and tyrant, whom we are to stand in awe of night and day."

Exchange Vows In Double-ring Wedding Ceremony

St. John's Catholic Church, Ubyly, was the scene of the Oct. 28 wedding of Rose Ann Morell of Ubyly and Joseph Emming of Ruth. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Fr. Zygmunt Gaj at a nine a.m. Mass.

The church altar was decorated with white fall flowers and a bouquet of white carnations was placed on the Blessed Virgin altar. George Peruski was soloist and Mrs. Gerekowicz was organist.

The bride chose a gown of imported rice paper silk and Chantilly lace with a fitted bodice of lace with sequins, designed scalloped neckline and long lace tapering wristpoint sleeves. Her veil was a fingertip imported silk illusion, secured to a queen's crown of seed pearls and crystals and handmade silk roses.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride had a cascade bouquet of white orchids, azalea and carnations with velvet leaves and ivy.

Janis Morell of Ubyly, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her gown of silk organza was fashioned with a fitted bodice with round neckline and one-quarter sleeves.

Bridesmaids were Doris Ann Volmering of Ruth, cousin of the bridegroom; Delores Osentoski of Tyre and Mrs. Mike Kubacki of Cass City, both cousins of the bride. Their gowns were pink, styled the same as the honor maid's. They carried cascade bouquets of carnations and satin streamers.

LOW-COST TRANSPORTATION

In a New York junkyard of old cars not so long back, a man with a sharp eye for antique autos found a delapidated hulk that appeared to be of European vintage.

He paid the unsuspecting junk dealer $350 for it - and thereby got the world's rarest and most valuable classic car. It was... a Bugatti Royale, made around 1927 by a strange feudal sort of auto maker in French, Alsace-Lorraine. Every piece of the intricate, 130 mile-an-hour beauty was handmade and to antique car collectors the $350 junk was priceless. It is to car collectors what a rare stamp is to stamp collectors.

Originally the car cost $40,000 - for the engine and chassis, and King Alphonso of Spain, its original owner, paid extra for the coachwork.

This car, in the language of car dealers, was a "clunker." Most dealers run across clunkers now and then although few ever have the thrill, or the misfortune, to acquire a hidden gem like the Bugatti Royale.

But the "as is" car can be a godsend for the man with a little mechanical knack, or the time and interest to repair it. An old car though, is a problem for the car dealer - he knows that the car is basically sound, but the price it would bring even in top shape isn't worth turning skilled mechanics loose on it.

We often have good older cars that can run for a year or a summer without fixing, offering transportation that's almost cheaper than shoe leather.

Good cleaning and rapid cooling are two "musts" in preparing a freshly-killed deer for the tenderest, tastiest results. Let's suppose you've just bagged your first whitetail. What now? Assuming your deer is dead, first put your rifle back on "SAFE" and attach the metal seal. Cut open the entire body cavity, moving from between the hind legs almost to the base of the neck (1). Insert the knife with the cutting edge UP and use your first and second fingers to hold the skin and muscles UP away from the innards. Next, remove the innards, working down from the neck to the tail. Turn the deer belly down and let it drain. Afterwards, tie the fore legs between the antlers or beside the head (2) so it will be easier to drag the deer to camp. In camp, prop the carcass open (3) and protect it from sun, rain, and flies in warm weather. If the weather is warmish (above 55 degrees), head for a locker plant or your home freezer. For the trip home, carry the carcass atop your car or across the trunk (4). Many a venison dinner has been overhated and spoiled on the front fender of a car.

Dr. MacRae to Head Church Council in '62

New officers of the Cass City Council of Churches were elected at the fall meeting, held Oct. 31 at the Methodist Church. Dr. K. I. MacRae was named president for 1962, succeeding Stanley Kirm who has held the post for several years. Mrs. Marian Douglas follows Dr. MacRae in the vice-president's position. Replacing Gilbert Albee as treasurer is Ronald Geiger. A secretary will be named in January.

The pilot effort of the Council-sponsored Cass City School of Religion held last winter, found such wide and enthusiastic response that the Christian Education Committee, headed by the Rev. John Fish, was asked to plan one to be held the last two weeks of January and the first two in February.

The Council also voted to examine social issues in the life of the community and to try to offer Christian commentary by releasing statements.

SCHOOL MEETING

It was pointed out that the question, "How far will three mills go to assuring the solving of all or some of these needs or making some advance in each case", should be asked of the School Board.

The relation of the School Board and the Committee was pointed out by Guernsey.

"We want to work in cooperation with and for the School Board," he explained. "We are going to rely on the Board for our leadership."

"The Board should think of us as a very active tool," remarked Committee Secretary Chris Schneider.

Copies of the curriculum development plan were to be made and distributed to Board members for study and discussion at the next School Board meeting Monday night, Nov. 13.

Former Resident Stricken Thursday

Final rites were held Monday, Nov. 6, for Dr. Grey F. Lenzner, 62, Bad Axe osteopathic physician, at MacAlpine Funeral Home, Bad Axe. Dr. Lenzner died of a heart attack Thursday night, Nov. 2, at a cottage near Cassville where he was vacationing.

A graduate of Cass City High School, he set up practice in Bad Axe in 1928 after graduating from Kirksville College of Osteopathy. He was born May 10, 1899, in Cass City.

He married Miss Laura Jaus on October 25, 1940, at Geneva, Ohio. Surviving are his widow and a sister, Miss Gladys Lenzner, Cass City.

Officiating during the services were Rev. John Safran, Detroit, and Rev. Joseph D. Ryan, pastor of the Bad Axe First Presbyterian Church. Burial was at Colfax Cemetery.

IT SEEMS TO ME Another Viewpoint About Fallout

By Rev. Robert J. Searls

It seems that the national discussion of the family bomb shelter has finally come to Cass City. I see that construction firms in the cities are profitably peddling glorified septic tanks to the public as Civil Defense bomb shelters, thus adding to the current wave of panic and hysteria sweeping our nation. (Marquis Childs reports that no other nation is similarly crazed.)

Much of the confusion stems from CD policies that keep changing because it is not dealing realistically with the problem. A few years ago they were telling our schools that all our children needed to do to survive nuclear attack was to crouch under their desks, covering their heads with their hands! This stupid policy was replaced by an equally asinine one that put its trust in the mass evacuation of cities. Not officially abandoned until just a week ago, anyone who has ever driven in Detroit during rush hour knew how nonsensical it was.

Now it is bomb shelters! This column is hardly long enough nor this writer astute enough to examine all the implications of this but let me just suggest some things that have not always been faced.

This plan, like those before it, refuses to take into account a realistic view of nuclear warfare. It assumes we will have ample warning - an assumption shattered every time a test rocket is fired. It assumes that the attack would be made by a less than one-megaton bomb. (Did you notice the jolly little man, Mr. K. of the Kremlin testing anything that small? It assumes that you can provide filtered air, electric power, pure water, etc., in your shelter long enough to survive. I just don't believe it. It assumes that when you do come out (at the end of two weeks, optimistically) there will be something to come out to. This assumption literally was pulled out of the air;

it is not proven fact - although we are led to believe it is. The truth is that CD may be right in its assumptions, although I do not think so. But no one knows! At best, we would come out to a cave-age struggle for existence. Construction of shelters has so little to commend itself that only one member of the presidential cabinet has bothered to construct one.

With each shelter built we add one more stimulus to panic; one more testimony that increasing numbers have given up and now think of nuclear war in terms of "when" instead of "if"; one more temptation to think "I wish they'd get it over with" instead of "what can I do to make peace?"

Our alternative is not "Red or dead," but "are we men or moles?"; or so it seems to me.

Open House Honors 50th Anniversary

Approximately 250 persons attended the open house held Sunday, Nov. 5, in honor of the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Galloway, Cass City. The affair was given by members of the family.

Mr. Galloway was born in North Branch on May 14, 1890, and Mrs. Galloway, the former Myrtle Vance, was born in Silverwood, Oct. 15, 1892.

The couple was married in Mayville by Rev. George L. White. They both were employees of the Lapeer State Home. He had worked there for 19 years and she for 15 years.

They have two sons, George and Vern, both of Cass City, and two grandchildren.

Guests attended from Ypsilanti, Davison, Brown City, Flint, Lapeer, Port Huron, Pontiac, Keego Harbor, North Branch, Clifford, Cass City, Detroit, Plymouth, Deford, Saginaw, Fostoria, Columbiaville and Dexter.

During the open house, gifts were given and refreshments were served.

Presbyterian Group Has Thank-offering

The Presbyterian Women's Association met Monday at the church. Mrs. M. Vender presented, as a portion of the program, a review of the study book, "One World, One Mission."

A special thank-offering service (receipts of which are to be designated for missionary work) was presented by Mrs. D. Ackerman, Mrs. E. Golding Jr., Mrs. A. Krueger, Mrs. C. W. Price and Mrs. D. McNaughton.

In other business, the group voted to send children's clothing, left over from its summer sewing sessions, to the Presbyterian Refugee Center in Miami, Fla., for distribution among the Cuban refugees.

DRAFT CALL

Men of 25 or above; actual cut-off age for inductions is to remain 26, even though many men are technically subject to draft until 35.

4-F's: Their status is unchanged.

Physical-mental standards: Not to be lowered. At present, about 20 per cent of young men examined for draft are turned down for physical reasons; another 20 per cent for mental defects; and 10 per cent for moral and "administrative" reasons.

Men awaiting draft exams: They can expect to be called up for physical and mental examinations earlier now. Draft boards are to increase their calls, in an effort to double their pools of men available for induction at the same time that actual inductions increase.

Married men: They can expect no special deferment or exemption from draft. Some, with multiple dependents, may get deferred by local boards on a "hardship" basis, but this must be proved in each case.

Fathers: Heads of families will not be drafted. Deferment applies even to men whose wives can produce medical certificates of pregnancy. But it does not hold for fathers who are divorced, separated, do not maintain a "family relationship."

Divinity students, ministers: They are automatically deferred by law, cannot be drafted now.

Essential workers: Local boards decide the status of farmers, technicians, defense workers. Deferment is provided if a board concludes that a worker's job is more important to national welfare than his services in the military, but the board must decide each case on its own merits.

Six-month trainees: These "short-term" reservists cannot be drafted while taking active-duty training, or afterward so long as an individual maintains his reserve or National Guard status with part-time training. However, as reserve members they are subject to call for limited periods.

Youths taking ROTC training: They stay deferred as long as they take Reserve Officers' Training Corps programs in school. Those earning reserve commissions through the ROTC must serve two to four years of active duty as officers, if they receive a call.

Veterans of active service: Men who served in the past are not to be recalled unless they are in the Ready Reserve. Veterans of World War II and the Korean War, not in the reserves, as a rule are past military age now.

Volunteers: Men who wish to get their draft duty over early still may sign up to be called for two years' duty without waiting for "involuntary induction." Many "drafted" men actually volunteered to go. They get priority, are taken before other inductees.

Youths who wait for drafting: Their chances of being inducted eventually are higher, with the armed forces expanding. The majority of the 250,000 men to be added to the armed forces will be volunteers and draftees. Once inducted, a youth must serve two years. About a year is likely to be spent in an Army unit overseas. After active duty, each draftee is obligated to spend two more years as a Ready Reservist with part-time drill and two additional years as an available Standby Reservist.

Those who want to enlist: Active duty in any of the regular services provides an alternative to the draft, but takes more full time service. At age 17 or above, a youth may enlist in the Air Force for four or six years, in the Navy for four or six years, in the Marine Corps for three, four or six years, in the Regular Army for three, four, five or six years, or indefinitely.

Youths who now want a look at alternatives to the draft may obtain a free booklet giving essential details of each. Entitled "It's Your Choice," it can be had by writing to Department of Defense, Washington, 25, D. C.

Reservists' prospects: Some members of the Ready Reserve of each of the three armed services are being called. The tour of service: up to 12 months.

As plans for calling up reservists are laid out by Defense officials now -

How many reservists will be called is still far from certain. That will depend to some extent on the speed of recruiting, as the services seek to raise their manpower levels.

At most, however, there is authority for calling up a quarter of a million of the 4 million US reservists - or one in 16 of those who have reserve status.

DOWN MEMORY LANE

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

Five Years Ago

Ron Warren of Shabbona has been hunting deer with a bow and arrow since 1952. This year he had already gone north and returned empty-handed. This week, while at home, he spotted a spike-horn deer crossing the Cass River. He dashed back to his home and picked up his bow. On his return he failed to spot the buck at once. Finally he saw it, seemingly looking directly at him. However, the deer did not move and Mr. Warren dropped the prize with a single shot. After four and a half years of trying, Mr. Warren had bagged his buck just 220 yards from his back door.

The recent snow storm, one of the worst in the history of the area for the early part of November, disrupted the daily routine of persons in the village and on the farms near Cass City as snow blocked communications and transportation.

Pfc. Charles Tuckey and S/Sgt. Jack Gibbons, who are at the USNAS at Olathe, Kansas, flew to Cass City in Sgt. Gibbons' plane. Because of bad weather, the young men didn't arrive here to visit Charles' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luke Tuckey, until 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

Twenty-five Years Ago

The Want Ads Are News Too.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Sez:

Dear Mister Editor:

I see by the papers where some science fellers at the University of Illinois has developed a contraption they call "Plato" that is liable to git the attention of them Congressmen when they come back in session.

The piece I was reading said professors could take Plato and keep all students honest. The students git prepared questions on a TV screen and feeds their answers into the machine. Plato will then ring a alarm bell if a student is trying to dodge a question or don't answer correct.

Now if the taxpayers even git to using Plato on politicians, you can see, Mister Editor, that the end is in sight for about 90 per cent of the fellers now holding public office. Fer instant, in all my days I ain't never met a office holder that didn't ceny he ever had anything to do with hiking taxes. They all raise their right hand and allow as how they was just innocent bystanders when any tax-raising took place, standing way off watching the proceedings like a calf peeping over a pasture fence.

If Plato turns out pritty good with students, the movement could spread to Government officials, so you can look fer the next Congress to outlaw Plato as unwise, unnecessary and un-

American.

Speaking of students I was reading where a organization of teachers is mighty upset about the word "ain't" gitting put in the new dictionary and now being official. On account of me being such a good speller myself, I ain't never owned a dictionary and this is the first notice I've had that "ain't" ain't been official, legal and proper all the time. What I'd like to know is when it got took out of the dictionary in the first place.

I note in one of them little pamphlets I got from the Agriculture folks that the bad weather last Spring will keep us from having any surplus crops this year. This surplus, which under the New Frontier is being called our "abundance," is costing the taxpayers about $2 million a day fer storage. Maybe the farmers will come out about even on account of not having any extra taxes to pay fer storage.

Well, the Census Bureau keeps putting out items they has compiled from the 1960 census. They had a couple last week that was mighty interesting. Fer instant, they say in 1960 we had 50 million Americans of driving age that can't drive a car. From my observation along the highways, about 49 million of 'em is behind the steering wheel anyhow. And they now estimate that the population of the world has doubled in the last 100 years. In the next 100 it'll either double or nothing.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Classified Ad Sells Housetrailer

"It sold the trailer" remarked Mrs. E. J. Powell in regard to a classified ad she ran in the October 5 and 12 issues of the Chronicle.

This is just another example of how you can turn idle merchandise into active money through the use of low cost Chronicle classifieds.

The advertisement read: For Sale—35 foot housetrailer. Inquire one mile west of Kingstontown."

In the school of experience everybody pays his own tuition—and few enroll in the same courses.

Production comes to a standstill the minute the man who knows it all goes into action.

Many homemakers are wondering which items to select for their family's two-week food stockpile for use in case of a national emergency and how to work these extras into the food budget.

Nutritional requirements would remain the same but, during periods of inactivity, total calories needed would be lower than usual. The preferences of your family, as well as their nutritional needs, should be considered. Psychologists say familiar, well-liked foods seem particularly comforting to folks during times of stress.

You'll need to consider these possibilities as you make your selections... there may not be electricity to operate your food freezer nor fuel to cook foods in the usual way, and the amount of pure water may be limited.

You might start your "emergency shopping list" with meats and other complete protein foods to insure an adequate protein supply. Among these you'll be considering... canned meats such as roast beef, corned beef, lunch tongue, hash, meat and vegetable stews, chicken, turkey, meat spreads, cheese spreads, and combinations such as spaghetti and ravioli with meat, as well as salmon, tuna fish and sardines. Whenever possible, choose cans and jars in sizes that will fill your family's needs for only one meal. This is particularly important for meat, fish, poultry, vegetables, evaporated milk and other foods that deteriorate rapidly without refrigeration once the container is opened.

Since it may not be possible to preserve fresh milk or cream, canned or evaporated milk might be your choice, since little water is needed to dilute them, and, full-strength they could be used as cream. If an adequate water supply could be counted on, non-fat dry milk would be included. As one source of vitamins, single-strength canned juices would be preferable to concentrated juices, since extra water would not be needed to dilute them. High Vitamin C juices should be included in amounts to meet the daily need for this important vitamin. Orange, grapefruit, cranberry and tomato juices are classified as being high in Vitamin C. Other single-strength juices for use as nutritious beverages would include... apple, prune, grape, pineapple, tomato-vegetable combinations and unsweetened fruit juices. Sweetened or salty beverages encourage thirst so are to be avoided.

Next, consider the canned fruits and vegetables which might be stocked. These can provide needed nutrients, menu variety and will not need cooking. Among canned fruits you might select applesauce, apricots, an assortment of berries, cherries, cherry and cranberry sauce, fruit cocktail, figs, grapefruit, mandarin oranges, peaches, pears, pineapple, plums, and for snacks perhaps a supply of dried prunes and raisins.

Your vegetable stockpile might include canned asparagus, beans (green, baked, kidney and lima), corn, chili con carne, potatoes (boiled, salad, sweet, French fried sticks), peas and pickled beets. Among soups, choose the single-strength, ready-to-serve types which would not require water to dilute.

To maintain the eating quality of your reserve food supply, keep canned food in a dry place. Select a place where temperature is fairly cool—preferably not above 70 degrees F. and not below freezing.

Crackers which are packaged with an inner and outer wrap could be used as an alternate for bread. Ready-to-eat cereals can also help meet cereal intake needs. However, they should be replaced every 2 to 3 weeks. Look over the cookie shelf, too, but be sure the package you choose has both an inner and outer wrap.

By dating all containers as you purchase them, and moving older foods to the front over a period of time, your emergency supplies can be rotated and replaced regularly to insure freshness.

Certain staples could be very important in the degree of enjoyment you are able to build into emergency meals. Such staples might include... salt, pepper, sugar, cooked salad dressing, peanut butter, jams, jellies, catsup, chili sauce, salad mustard, syrups, onion and garlic salts as well as other herbs and seasonings popular in your own family. Instant tea may be considered as a beverage choice since it can be used with either hot or cold water.

You will probably want to store a large part of your food supply in clean containers of heavy plastic, glass, cans, or metal containers which can be tightly sealed. This is particularly true of foods in paper boxes which need protection from insects. Store such boxes, unopened, in a can or metal container which can be tightly closed and check periodically to see it remains tightly closed. This additional protection has another advantage... it extends their storage life.

If your reserve foods must include foods for infants, toddlers, elderly persons, or someone on a limited diet, you would want to remember special kinds of milk, strained, chopped or other specially prepared foods they required. Once your emergency-food plan is ready, you can prevent upsetting the food budget by choosing just one or two of the extra items each time you shop.

Certain cooking and equipment needs must be considered as well. The USDA suggests such items as: a small compact camper's cooking unit; one or two cooking pans; can and bottle openers; disposable knives, forks and spoons; paper plates, towels, cups and napkins; measuring cup; matches and a pocket knife as well as special equipment for infants and others requiring special care.

If you already have plastic dishes, cups, forks, knives and spoons, you may prefer to include them instead of disposable tableware. However, it's well to consider that water for washing them might not be available.

The one low-price compact that's every bit as lively as it looks—Valiant '62!

You're looking at the sports-loving compact car given an award of merit by the Society of Illustrators for design excellence! Come see it!

Unlike some compacts, Valiant will take off like a scared kitten at the drop of a "Scat!" You'd have to pay extra for an optional engine in most any other compact at Valiant's price to match Valiant's standard 101-hp Economy Six.

A modified version of this engine shot Valiant to victory over all American compacts competing in the 1960 and '61 Daytona Beach compact car competitions! Yet, for all its go, Valiant puts plenty of care-free miles between gas pumps. A Valiant scored 26.13 mpg in the last Mobilgas Economy Run!

And this new Valiant has the distinctive good looks to match its gumption. America's most famous artists recently honored the 1962 Valiant. For the first time in seven years, the Awards Committee of the Society of Illustrators has bestowed its coveted citation on a car—Valiant!

That's even more proof that the 1962 Valiant is indeed the Style Leader of the Compacts!

For looks and liveliness, you just can't match Valiant at Valiant's low initial price! And this year's Valiant offers a bundle of economy extras. Like half-as-often oil changes and almost never 32,000-mile lubrication on major chassis points. See your Plymouth-Valiant dealer. Drive the low-price compact that's quality-engineered by Chrysler Corporation. Find out why...

Nobody beats VALIANT for value!

in attempting to unseat the in-year since it was promulgated by the Corporation and Securities Commission.
Congressmen Gerald R. Ford of Grand Rapids and Robert P. Griffin of Traverse City were among Republicans most often mentioned as possible candidates for the Number One spot on the ticket.

The Governor's communication problems during his first year in office, when even Democrats commented on his mistakes, gave Republicans one of the most advantageous opportunities in many years.
The fact that Swainson and his team were in office and started campaigning some time ago, however, made a quick, wise decision by the GOP an urgent requirement.

Department officials pointed to the several needs studies which led to current and future construction schedules. Traffic loads, safety factors and local development of roads were all taken into account in the studies.
Another basic argument, though seldom used by department officials in discussions with civic leaders, was the effect of any decision to change the schedule.

A dictate by the Liquor Control Commission prohibiting sale of non-returnable beer bottles in Michigan after mid-January threatened as much fireworks as the anti-bias real estate rule tied up in court for more than a year.
