

Board, Committee To Work Together

Cass City School Board members passed a resolution accepting the aid of the Citizens Committee for Better Schools in promoting an election to raise tax millage for money for operating expenses. They also ordered a special meeting to determine the millage needed.

The decision came at a regular Board of Education meeting Monday night, Nov. 13, in the High School Library with members of the Citizens Committee present.

Made by Trustee Horace Bulen, the resolution read in full: "We appreciate and accept the aid of this Citizens Committee and any other committee working to further educational opportunities in the Cass City Schools by procuring additional operating millage so urgently needed."

The resolution passed six to one.

Considerable discussion preceded the resolution. Some board members feared giving endorsement to the group because of the implication of such approval and the fact that the board would be liable for the actions of the committee.

It was pointed out that the committee was not trying to usurp the board's powers and that any major committee action would be subject to board approval.

The question of limited membership was also raised. Committee Chairman Vic Guernsey countered by declaring that membership had never been limited. It was also suggested that ideas be obtained from those opposed to the millage increase. Guernsey concurred that this would be a good idea.

Bulen clinched the approval by stating, "I don't think we can be in a position of turning down any proffered aid. . . . I don't think we should give them a blank check of endorsement, but I don't see how we can do anything but accept help."

Board President Lester Ross remarked after the resolution was passed, "I hope that the Committee feels that the board should call the next election." (The remark was made in reference to an earlier article in the Chronicle which listed three mills as the proposed millage and January as the election date. Neither item was official and were only suggested and tentative items.) The Committee concurred that the Board definitely should set the date.

Ross then proceeded to push for the setting of a date but the majority of the members felt that the millage needed should be determined and a special meeting within the next few weeks was ordered.

In other business, Principal Arthur Holmberg reported on a recent meeting with Dr. Lester Anderson, Michigan State chairman of the North Central Association, an accrediting association.

Anderson told Holmberg that Cass City has been on the borderline for the better part of 10 years as far as North Central is concerned. He advised that Cass City has two alternatives, either not apply or apply and be refused accreditation.

Holmberg recommended to the Board that the school not apply for North Central accreditation this year because it cannot qualify. He suggested that the school wait until it can reach the minimum qualifications before applying again.

The Board passed a resolution requiring that an administrative member or a counselor be present during the questioning of students taken from class in regard to a criminal act.

Approval was given to two student council suggestions. A telephone booth can be placed on the first floor provided it will not cost the school in any way, and sweatshirts may be sold by the student council provided no downtown merchant wants to handle the business.

Board member John Esau told of a recent visitation to the three special education rooms at Vassar, Caro and Akron. He stated that he was quite well impressed with the program and that the administrators of these schools were satisfied with the results. He recommended that it be instituted at Cass City next fall if possible. He was appointed by the board to attend the visitation.

Accident Takes Life of Former Cass City Girl

The 14-year-old daughter of a former Cass City businessman died Saturday night from injuries suffered in a car accident south of Lapeer.

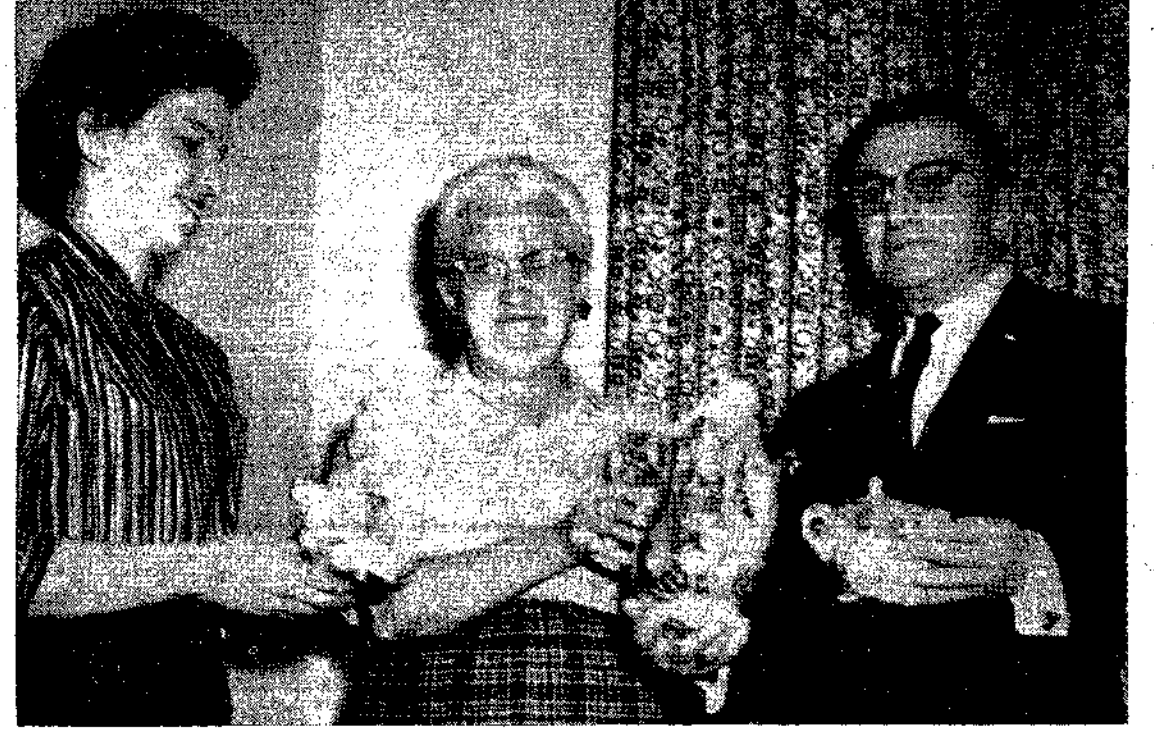

Carol Bush, 14, 4590 Crawford, Dryden, daughter of Mrs. Cheryl Bush and James Bush, former Cass City residents, was killed when she was thrown from a car driven by John S. Bergoch, 17, Imlay City.

According to a report filed by Sheriff's Deputies Thomas MacGregor and Clayton Dockham, both Bergoch and the Bush girl were thrown from the car when it went into a ditch on General Squires Road, 13 miles south of Lapeer.

No statement has been obtained from Bergoch who is listed in a state of shock at Almont Hospital.

Mr. Bush is the former manager of Bush's Drive-in Restaurant, Cass City. Carol was a student at Cass City School for part of the 1958-59 year and left November of the 1959-60 year, while a seventh grader.

The accident reportedly happened at about 9:30 Saturday near the intersection of Squires and Mill Roads.

Retires After 29 Years On Job

"I'll take it easy . . . catch up on some things I haven't been able to do," is how Mrs. Sadie Fordyce intends to spend her time after retiring from General Telephone Company, Cass City. She has been employed by the company for nearly 30 years.

At a retirement dinner held Saturday, Nov. 11, at Martin's Restaurant, Cass City, she was presented a silver coffee pot, sugar and creamer set by District Manager H. F. Janson. He also presented her with a color telephone. She also received a gift from the Cass City Schools on behalf of her service to them.

Mrs. Fordyce started her telephone career in 1913 and worked until 1918. In 1927, she returned and will work until her retirement, Dec. 1.

At the dinner, Richard Hendrick, master of ceremonies, introduced her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fordyce, Farmington.

Two other guests who worked with Mrs. Fordyce during World War I were present. They were

Mr. John Dickinson and Mrs. Vera Copland. In all, approximately 75 people attended the dinner. Sandra Copeland sang "Autumn Leaves" and Charles Iseler sang "The Way You Look Tonight." The guests sang a song especially written for Mrs. Fordyce.

To area people, Mrs. Fordyce was better known as "The Voice With The Smile."

At one time or another, during her 29 years of service, all the guests worked with Mrs. Fordyce. They attended from Farmington, Rochester, Elkton, Caseville, Montrose, Bad Axe, Argyle, Harrison, Caro and Cass City.

What does Sadie remember about her 29 years of service?

"There are a number of things . . . being an operator you try not to remember these things. . . . I can't think of anything right now," she hedged in a later interview.

Perhaps in future years she will remember and with pleasure, those past 29 years.

Area History Revealed

Stagecoach To Caro — $1.00!

If you were so inclined, in 1887, you could take a stagecoach from Cass City to Caro for just $1.00, or to Tyre for 75 cents and to Marlette for $1.50.

This pertinent information and more about Michigan cities in 1887 was available to the public in a book entitled "Michigan State Gazetteer and Business Directory." A copy of the book was brought to the Chronicle office recently by Mrs. Nancy (Schwaderer) de Beau-bien.

For just $5.00 every two years, a person could find out about Michigan agriculture, banks and bankers, Michigan business, Michigan government, Michigan military, Michigan newspapers, Michigan population and postoffices, Michigan railroads, Michigan steamboat lines, telephone stations and a number of other important facts. In short, it was a combination "Yellow Pages Directory," "Who's Who in Michigan" and "Encyclopedia Michiganana."

Rather than do a complete narration on each area town, we have taken excerpts directly from the directory. At the end of each biography is a list of the merchants. Since the book is available for public perusal, these have not been listed.

Cass City "A thriving village and station on the PO&PARR in Elkland township, 16 miles from Caro, seat of justice. The settlement was founded in 1836 and is one mile north of the forks of the Cass River.

Among the improvements are a flouring mill, four churches -- Methodist, Presbyterian, German Methodist and Baptist -- a weekly newspaper, two banks and a fine brick public school building erected at the cost of $8,000. Exports, lumber, shingles, flour, feed, grain and livestock. Population, 1,000."

Gagetown "A small village in the northeast corner of Elmwood township, a station on the PO&PARR, 15 miles from Caro, the seat of justice and 32 miles from Bay City.

It has a steam flour mill, saw and shingle mill, two good hotels, planing mill and a brewery. There are Catholic, Methodist and Episcopal churches, a district school and a Catholic school in course of erection. Exports, grain, lumber and cedar poles. The place was settled in 1863. Population, 400."

Kingston "Known locally as Newbury and is situated in Koylton and Kingston, townships, 16 miles from Caro, the county seat. It is a station on the PO&PARR. The village has a Baptist and Methodist Episcopal congregations. Bank at North Branch. Stage semi-weekly to East Dayton; fare, 25 cents. Population, 300."

Tyre "A village and station on the PH&NW Ry, in Austin township, Sanilac county, 30 miles north of Sandusky, the county seat. It contains a Methodist church. Bank at Minden City. Population, 250."

The book has a number of other interesting and unusual entries, including two pages of Diamond Wall Finish and fresco paintings, complete with color samples.

It also contains a complete narration on the Upper Peninsula and on Michigan's vacation merits of that time.

Particularly contrasting is a comparison of advertisements and advertising copy then and now. From cover front to cover back, nearly every page has an advertisement of some sort.

One advertisement heading a page read "Good Morning, Alderman, Looking Better." "Yes, I have been Drinking 'Niagara Falls Lager Beer.'"

Another read: "My sense of taste and smell was destroyed 10 years ago by Catarrh, and

From the Editor's Corner

We were informally quizzed Monday by six area pastors at a luncheon meeting, regarding policies and the reasons behind the policies at the Chronicle. Some of the queries were ones that every editor is asked.

Probably most frequent is "Can I read the copy before it appears?" No newspaper allows this. Not because the material is secret but because if everyone were allowed to see stories before they are printed, it would be impossible to publish a paper.

Another question: "Why detailed coverage of the school and the council and not the local hospitals?"

The answer is that both local hospitals are corporations while the school and village spends taxpayers' money and is public business. . . . you have a right to know how your money is spent.

Although not asked by the pastors, another frequent request is for front page position for stories. The Chronicle and every other newspaper judges every story by its general news interest. . . . the story interesting the most people lands on the front page. The more good stories that break in any particular week, the more lesser interest stories are crowded off the front page. That's why stories may occasionally appear on the front page and a similar story in another week appear on an inside page.

Every story brought in as many days before publication deadlines as possible will receive preferential treatment as the work can be completed before inexorable deadlines near.

Two Receive Sentences In Circuit Court

Four criminal cases were handled by Circuit Judge Timothy Quinn during the regular Circuit Court session held Wednesday, Nov. 8, at Caro.

George S. Shink, Detroit, was arraigned on attempting to force entrance to a coin box and pleaded guilty. Bond was set at $500 while a pre-sentence investigation is being made. He will be sentenced November 22. Shink reportedly attempted to force a coin box in a Vassar Laundromat owned by Jae Kitchen, Caro, on November 1, 1961.

A Caro man, John Dillon, was given two years probation, $100 fine, and $150 costs, all to be paid at $15.00 per month starting in May, 1962. He is also to start psychiatric treatment within 30 days. Dillon was charged with taking without intent to steal, a 1961 automobile belonging to Duncan Cameron, on October 13, in Indianfields township.

Another Caro man, Alger McAlpine, was given a one year

Early success was reported by two area hunters on opening day Wednesday.

Always Serve Patient First Says Anesthetist

Mrs. Phyllis Wenk, anesthetist at Hills and Dales General Hospital, told members of the Cass City Rotary Club that her first duty was towards the patient.

My second obligation is to the doctor and the third to the hospital that pays my salary, she continued.

Mrs. Wenk was describing her duties at the hospital for the benefit of Rotary members at their regular session Tuesday noon at the New Gordon Hotel.

Working as an anesthetist requires special knowledge. Besides training to become a registered nurse, Mrs. Wenk attended a special school to earn her right to work as an anesthetist.

Probably the most important part of my work is the knowledge of drugs, how they work and what can be expected from them, she said.

To tailor the anesthetic to the patient, Mrs. Wenk visits everyone that is scheduled for surgery the night before the operation. At this time she checks the general mental condition of the patient and tells them what to expect in the operation.

There have been about 800 major and minor surgical operations at Hills and Dales in about a year, Dr. H. T. Donahue, who introduced the guest speaker, announced.

The figure is slightly higher than that at the Marlette Community Hospital which has been operating for over 10 years, Dr. Donahue said.

Area Nimrods Urged to Report Hunting Success

Hunters killing buck deer near Cass City or elsewhere in southern Michigan are urged to phone the Conservation Department's district office near Caro.

The hunter can telephone his report collect to the office at Caro OS-3-3435. A game biologist will go to the hunter's residence or frozen food locker, determine the age of the deer by the amount of wear on the teeth, measure its antlers and record the weight. Even if only the head remains he can still obtain the necessary information.

"We need to examine 500 southern Michigan buck deer this year," concluded on page two.

62 Children Attend Clinic

Sixty-two children were examined at the Tri-county Crippled Children's Clinic held Tuesday, Nov. 7, at Hills and Dales General Hospital, Cass City.

The examining physician, John O. Goodsell, M. D., Saginaw, an orthopedic specialist, termed the clinic one of the most successful ever held. He was assisted by Dr. J. E. Rank, Saginaw, and Mrs. H. Kummer.

The clinic was offered to the area's crippled children in need of medical attention to be examined and evaluated for their orthopedic needs. It is estimated that it will not be held for another two years.

The examining staff of the clinic, sponsored by Michigan Crippled Children's Commission, included orthopedic nurses, a physical therapist and local public health nurses of Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac Counties.

Volunteer workers who assisted in the clinic were Mrs. Lewis Bishop, Mrs. H. T. Donahue, Mrs. Cameron Wallace, Mrs. Grant Hutchinson and Mrs. George Murray, all of Cass City, and other members of the Hills, and Dales General Hospital Auxiliary.

The examinations were divided into 30 patients in the morning and 32 in the afternoon. There was no charge for the clinic. The number of patients attending compared with earlier estimations.

BUILDING CHANGE ROUSES INTEREST IN THE PAST

The Old Makes Way For The New

Last month one of the old landmarks of the community was changed when the tower atop Wood's Drug Store building was removed.

"It surely will flatten out Cass City's business district," was one of the more facetious remarks overheard.

Aside from the physical operation of removing the tower from its perch three floors above street level, one other thing particularly attracted your reporter: In raised metal letters encircling the front of the tower was the name "New Sheridan." That, too, has now disappeared. Most of our residents are aware that this 3-story building at the town's main intersection was once a hotel, for even though that chapter of its history ended almost forty-five years ago, there are still quite a few citizens who remember Mike Sheridan who built and operated it.

But, turning back to the name, just why should the word "New" be used? Was there a predecessor from which it must be distinguished? The answer has not been difficult to find and several older residents have confirmed the details.

Not only was there a Sheridan Hotel here before 1900, in one respect it is still here. At least the structure which housed it remains in active use being presently occupied by the Ryland and Gue plumbing shop. Located on the north side of Main Street, a half-block west of the main intersection, this frame building was once the Sheridan Hotel with a second floor balcony which supplied shelter for its front entrance and a driveway from the street along its west side which led to the livery barn in the rear. Purchased in 1885 by Mike Sheridan and his brother John (John left Cass City a few years later), it served as the Sheridan Hotel until Mike Sheridan left it to occupy his new hotel quarters. (Since then, six or seven different businesses have been located in it. Prior to its purchase in 1885 by the Sheridans, at least part of the building dates even further back but this reporter could not determine how, or by whom, it was originally used. The trail became too dim.)

Thus it was, however, when his new building was completed in 1900 that Mike Sheridan called it the "New" Sheridan. Judged by standards of its time, this new hotel was as good, if not better, than any other hostelry in the Thumb of Michigan. No doubt it was a proud occasion for both its owner and the whole community when it opened for business shortly after the twentieth century began. Its own horse-drawn carryall was dispatched to meet each of the four passenger trains arriving daily in town - as was a similar conveyance from the New Sheridan's competitor: the Gordon Hotel.

One other sidelight seemed of interest: What was on the corner before the New Sheridan was erected? Oddly enough, it was of construction could hardly have been foreseen. In the final analysis it was a casualty of the automobile age just then being born. All that was left of the New Sheridan was its name on the tower and some memories - now, with the removing of the tower, only the memories remain as pages from the past. (Acknowledgment is made to William Zinnecker for his assistance in compiling this article.)

Let's Go To The Fair

This was a familiar cry not only in Cass City but in its surrounding area back in the days when the Cass City Fair was an annual feature.

It was in 1889 that a group of citizens formed the Cass City Fairground and Driving Park Association and made a purchase of property from Robert Orr. If you grew up after the days of "The Fair" you still should have no trouble in identifying the location of the fair for it is a very much used part of our community today.

There may be no need for nostalgia concerning the passing of "The Fair" -- for it did serve a purpose. Had not the original association been formed seventy-two years ago and had not this association made a purchase of part of the Robert Orr farm, Cass City might not have as convenient and complete a recreation park in which to take pride.

Michigan Disaster First For Red Cross

There are a few of our elderly citizens who remember the terrible Fire of '81. There are many more who remember the tales of fear and courage, of horror and pain - 125 lives lost in this great conflagration; thousands of people were homeless and without food. The American Red Cross, then newly organized, gathered blankets, clothing and other necessities for the suffering refugees. This was the first disaster in which the Red Cross, under the direction of Miss Clara Barton from her headquarters in Dansville, New York, lent a helping hand. Its prompt service earned favorable attention to the endeavor of Miss Barton and her assistants.

We might remember this page from the past the next time a Red Cross worker knocks at our door.

BULEN TALKS Cars

WINTER STARTING PROBLEMS

Some morning soon we're going to get a rash of calls in our service department from motorists who can't get their car started because of an overnight cold snap.

We know from experience that nine out of ten of these calls would be unnecessary if these motorists had taken a few simple steps to prepare their cars for winter.

Drivers have trouble starting their cars at low temperatures because of two basic reasons: their battery power is down and the engine that the battery has to turn is much harder to move.

Zero temperatures, for instance, reduces battery output... 60 per cent. from peak efficiency.

There is little that can be done about this aside from keeping the battery fully charged and, if possible, warm.

Engine inertia from cold-stiffened oil requires 2 1/2 times the amount of electrical energy for starting that it would at 80 degrees. The remedy here is light-weight winter oil to cut down the drag as much as possible.

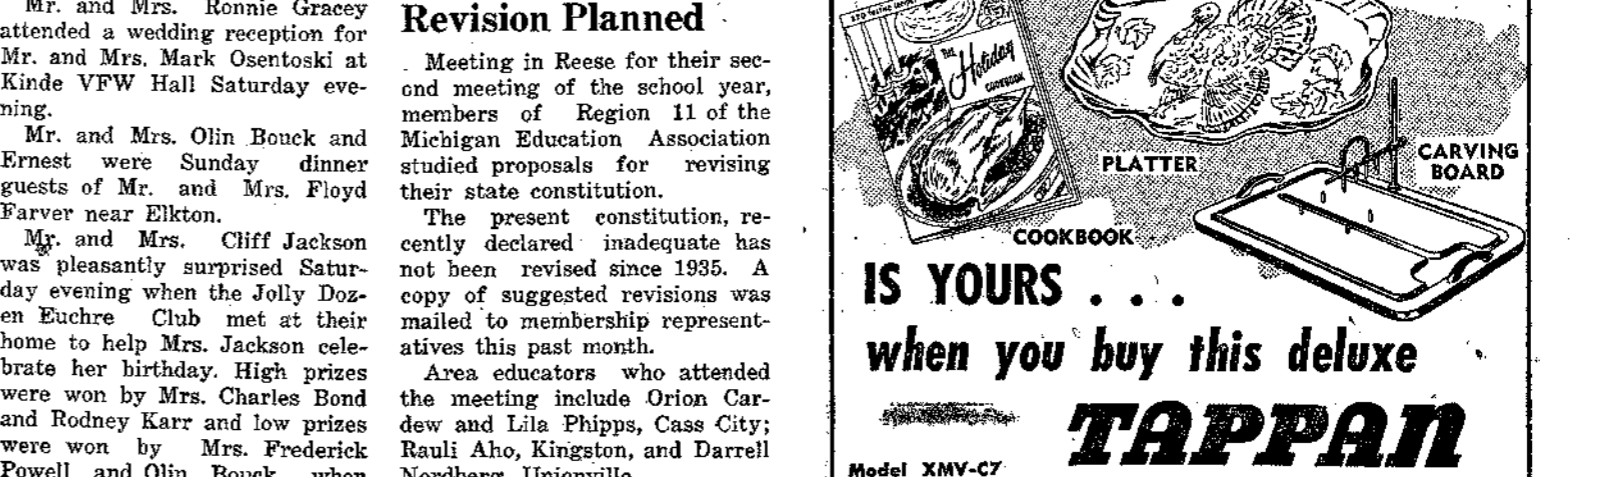

A properly tuned-up engine - clean, efficiently gapped plugs, new points, tightened battery terminals and a clean carburetor... will make maximum use of reduced winter battery starting power. Coupled with a fully-charged battery and light-weight oil, the combined cost of winterizing your car will seem small compared with a few towing charges.

Bring your car in for a check-up. Our mechanics will perform only the work that is necessary at minimum cost to you.

Fuelgas Announces Water Heater with Lifetime Guarantee

Mr. Clarence Habermehl, President of Fuelgas Co., Inc. of Flint, Michigan, with branch offices located in Alpena, Bay City, Bad Axe, Cass City, Houghton Lake, Grayling, Remus, Tawas City and West Branch, announced today that by December 1 of this year the company will market the world's first water heater with a lifetime guarantee.

They will come in 20, 30, 40 and 50-gallon sizes and for the first time, the tank will carry an unconditional lifetime guarantee. According to Mr. Habermehl, this was made possible after extensive studies of water conditions in Michigan and by applying these findings to a special manufacturing process, the company was able to hold retail cost in line with the competitive market.

BOOK REVIEW

Honest Abe... It's A Very Good Book

By the Rev. Robert J. Searls

I am told that English 'cinemas' have ushers who normally receive a tip for seating the customer. Standing operating procedure when a mystery is playing and the tip is less than usual calls for the usher to whisper, as he seats the customer, "The butler did it," thus ruining the suspense.

When I started to read Jim Bishop's "The Day Lincoln Was Shot" I already knew the names of both the victim and the guilty party (an usher told me). But Bishop has a direct style that manages to keep interest and excitement as if the story were fiction.

If he were to write this same book today (publication was 1955) I suspect he would call it "The Anatomy of An Assassination," for that is the orientation of the volume. With the exception of one background chapter, the book pinions our attention on what was happening in the lives of Mr. Lincoln and the conspirators. Starting at 7 a.m. on that sad Good Friday, through the 10 p.m. period when the shot was fired and until a 24-hour period was completed at 7 the next morning, Bishop lets us in on the 'inside story' of all parties concerned.

Jim Bishop is a masterful craftsman, using a large and descriptive vocabulary precisely and with impact. We know him as a columnist in our daily newspaper and a frequent guest on serious TV programs. This Lincoln volume follows the pattern he set in the earlier success, "The Day Christ Died".

"Honest Abe" is by all odds considered by the American people as the greatest and most human president our nation has produced. Literally thousands of books have been written about him. (I believe more have been written about Lincoln than any other man but Jesus.) And for pure enjoyment and reading ability, this is the best of those I have read.

If you know Washington, D. C., (I lived there for five years) this book holds still more interest. Bishop refers to farms in sections now being redeveloped into new residential areas after years of old-style homes standing jammed against each other. If you like the book and get to take a trip to the capitol city, you will also want to visit, not only the Lincoln Memorial - easily the most inspirational of our patriotic memorials - but Ford's theatre, the Lincoln Museum and the Peterson house where the great man died.

This is a marvelous reading experience for the entire family.

"The Day Lincoln Was Shot" by Jim Bishop, Harper and Brothers, 1955. Available from the Elkland Township Library.

He pointed out the fact that a chicken was riding on the front bumper of their car. She had had a four and a half mile ride and seemed to be enjoying it.

Thirty-five Years Ago
The beauty contest conducted as a feature at the Monday night session of the IHC (International Harvester Co.) short course created much interest. The men voted Miss Rainey the most beautiful woman and the vote of the ladies was announced as favoring Harry Duke as the most handsome man. Both are members of the teaching staff of the Cass City School and were awarded prizes.

Time is money—and if you have one you don't need the other.

WANDERING WITH WARREN

Everyone's Interested In Fallout Shelters

By Irene Warren

And so we've had our first snowfall... that is, if we may refer to the smattering that fell on November 8 as a snowfall!

"O the snow, the beautiful snow; the lovely radioactive snow!" By the time the U. S. resumes its nuclear testing, people will own Geiger counters and before they'll shovel the walks they'll be trotting out the little instruments to measure the radioactivity of that white drift of lovely snow! Then we'll all cry out, as did Francois Villon, "Where are the snows of yesterday?"

Exaggerated? I think so. Consider the statement of Dr. Merrill Eisenberg, director of the environmental radiation laboratory of the New York University Medical Center: "Fallout is not a good thing. But of all the sources of man-made exposure to ionizing radiation this is among the smallest. The total dose from fallout to the present time has been about five per cent of the dose the average person receives from natural radioactivity." Remember, of course, he is speaking of the fallout from test bombs - fallout from a bomb dropped on a city under attack would be something altogether different to that area.

Last week's Time magazine featured a brief article concerning fallout shelters and other civil defense measures in Russia. So apparently the United States isn't the only nation interested in such matters. Also, from the pictures of some garments supposedly guaranteed to give a measure of protection, Russia must have some speculators, too!

This playing on the... oh, what shall I call it: gullibility? of the people is what triggers my impatience. Bally-hooing of outsized septic tanks for shelters - plastic burial suits in case someone dies in the shelter - special garments for protection, and so on.

Thus it is that I am pro-civil defense: Though this organization does not have all the answers it at least affords some protection against the speculators who attempt to bilk the public.

Well, I finally got one of them shop-bought permanents. Though I was mighty tired of sittin' before the task was completed it still was a far cry from the first permanent I ever had (the summer of '37) at the McCaslin Shop where I had to sit under that frightening electrical contraption!

People are always telling me that if you want the latest gossip go to a beauty shop... well, if last Thursday's any example, this ain't true. Shucks! I didn't hear any gossiping at all.

There's an art that more people, including myself, should cultivate. That is the art of listening. We spend money learning how to speed-read; we take courses to learn how to express ourselves - but we do little or nothing to become better listeners.

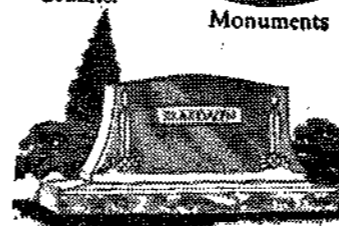

The person who becomes a good listener often reaps a reward as illustrated in the following story. Several men were waiting in a steamship office to apply for a job as wireless operator. A late comer entered the room and sat quietly apart from the others, who were engaged in the car that's just right for just about everybody

You've never seen anything like it, because there's never been anything like it... until today. On the outside the new Ford Fairlane 500 measures a quick 197 inches from stem to stern. A good foot shorter than the cars from which it borrowed its name, it calls the snugest parking places home. At the same time, on the inside the new Fairlane 500 is every inch as big as some of the biggest Fords ever built.

The new Fairlane 500 is priced way under previous Fairlanes, well under many compacts. But Fairlane economy doesn't stop with a pretty price tag. It runs to amazing gas savings—with the world's first economy V-8 or the nickel-nursing Fairlane Six. Routine service is reduced to a minimum—30,000 miles on many items, only twice a year or 6,000 miles on the rest. And it adjusts its own brakes.

More Comprehension, Less Speed Reading Needed - Hare

By Elmer E. White
Michigan Press Association

Speed reading with comprehension has been highly touted in the U. S. in recent months, especially since President Kennedy's reading and understanding abilities were made known. The experts report anyone can increase his reading speed while maintaining his current level of understanding. Michigan residents presumably could improve their reading ability the same as others, but incidents reported to Secretary of State James M. Hare indicates many persons need work on their comprehension rather than speed.

Hare's most recent problem with the public's reading habits came in an area which has plagued him for more than two years: reflectorized license plates. "All communications media gave us excellent coverage on the procedure for returning the 35 cent fee collected for the reflectorized plates," Hare said. "Yet it appears that a large percentage of Michigan license plate purchasers still do not know that they must get their 'credit card' from Lansing."

An estimated three million people paid the 35 cent fee for the plates approved by the 1959 Legislature. The law was never implemented with appropriations for equipment, however, and it was repealed this year. Refunds credited against the purchase of 1962 license plates must be approved in Hare's Lansing office from master files.

Michigan week, a promotion which began nine years ago to encourage state residents to recognize the resources available to them at home, has come a long way.

In recent years the seven-day observance has been used to convince non-residents of the many advantages Michigan has to offer industries, tourists, convention-goers and every other classification of business and individual. Plans for the 1962 Michigan Week, scheduled May 20-26, got under way almost before the current year's promotion was finished.

Edwin O. George, Detroit, was named general chairman. He appointed 16 regional chairmen several weeks ago and most county chairmen have now been named.

The 1961 promotion also brought a new angle. The Prime Minister of Ontario and several members of his cabinet, comparable to Michigan's major agency heads, were shown the "Water Wonderland" and a sampling of her people to emphasize the need for continued good will between the two governmental units.

Michigan Week officials indicated they hoped to invite officials of other states during the promotion each year.

Thus the promotion first designed to make Michigan residents appreciate their surroundings becomes more and more an effort to get outsiders to see us as we see ourselves.

Public officials take an oath through the nation to uphold their respective state constitutions and the basic document of the United States which guarantees the rights of individual citizens.

State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie recently reminded his colleagues in the road building field of one way they could further fulfill this obligation: by making roads safer and more pleasant on which to drive.

Mackie urged the nation's highway officials to keep in mind their "responsibility" to preserve natural beauty as much as possible when building new roads.

"If we can add the subtle but pervading note of beauty to our highways, we will have given the motorist a bonus in his ease and pleasure of travel," Mackie said. Michigan's recently-constructed highways have frequently been praised by department officials as having built-in safety features. A large portion of these guards to safe driving have been areas where roads were diverted around clumps of trees which block the glare of oncoming headlights.

Mackie pointed out today's modern highways become paths of pleasant motoring and are safer to drive on if separated by at least 125 feet. The cost of maintaining the roadways also goes down when there is less conflict between opposing traffic, he said. "Thus the modern highway can become not only a corridor of commerce, but a corridor of safe, scenic attraction," said Mackie.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Sez:

Dear Mister Editor:
My old lady has already started doing her Christmas shopping. She allowed as how, if she'd followed her "intuition," she would've started in August after everything got picked over.

I always keep quiet when my old lady gets a "intuition." I recollect asking her about it right after we was married and she said wives couldn't git the truth out of husbands by questioning 'em, so they had to develop "intuition." When you come up agin a situation like that, Mister Editor, the thing to do is let the situation alone and that's what I been doing fer 40 years with my old lady's "intuition."

It looks to me like Americans has lost all respect fer the calendar anyhow. It used to be Christmas started about the middle of December but now they start shopping fer it in August and git the mistletoe and decorations strung up along about Labor Day. People is paying last year's bills, driving this year's automobile, and spending next year's income. And I reckon ain't no more'n half of 'em got a calendar in the house.

I tried to git this problem on the agenda at the country store Saturday night but the fellers was too busy discussing plans fer fallout shelters. Zeke Grubb has got a big basement at his place and he said his old lady was already gitting it cleaned out and making plans to stock it with water and food to last fer several weeks. Clem Webster told Zeke he better git his old lady to fill half the basement with throwing-size rocks. Clem said he was reading a item the other day where rocks would be the only thing left fer preserving law and order after World War III. Some of the fellers said they has even noted the young generation is gitting worried and serious about the future. Ed Doolittle pointed out, fer instant, that this was the first fall in several years he ain't read nothing in the papers about college students eating grasshoppers. Bug Hookum allowed, with the upside-down fix the world's in, he wouldnt be surprised to read where a grasshopper has eat a student.

Well, I see by the papers where Senator Fullbright says the American people, if they had a chance, would vote agin foreign aid. It ain't fer a ignorant feller like me to say, but I think the taxpayers would demand some controls. Fer instant, I was reading where 72 per cent of the people in Guatemala couldn't read and write in 1954, then we give 'em $3 million to build schools and in 1961 a report showed 72 per cent still can't read and write. What happened to that $3 million is a matter of concern fer all Americans.

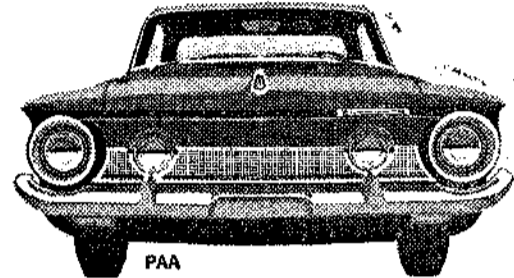

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

The colorful squashes, displaying all fall's warm colors, are in abundance now. Members of this family range in tones from pale to rich gold and different shades of green. They range in size from the small Acorn to the big, big Hubbards. Squash are really hard to beat for beauty (try some for candle holders), for abundance, for food value and for economy. The squash is particularly rich in Vitamin A, has some Vitamin B and C. For approximately 3 1/2 cents per serving, it is really and truly a bargain. There are several varieties. The smallest in the family is the Acorn. It gets its name from its acorn shape. It has a thin, hard, dark green skin with deep ridges. The Butternut is shaped like a bell and is a gold color. The skin is thin and easy to peel. It cooks quickly and is easy to prepare. The Buttercup is easily distinguished due to its topknot or turban. The fairly hard skin is smooth, green and the flesh is a dark orange color. It has a nutty flavor, but has a drier texture than some of the other varieties. The Delicious is another variety, has a rather pointed end much like a top. The skin is a rich dark green, and some will have light green stripes on the pointed end. The Hubbard cousins are alike except for color. The true Hubbard is green; Golden Hubbard is orange; and Blue Hubbard is grayish blue. They are the granddaddies of the family; large, hard shells and thick, deep orange-yellow, finegrained flesh. The home economics extension women in the third year of sewing have finished their workshop. I now will be starting a series of workshops for the second year series. The first series will start November 16 and the other five workshops will be November 21, 27, December 4 and 8.
