

Lemanski New Football Coach

Oarie Lemanski

Football fans whose memory of Cass City High School's football teams stretch back to 1954 will need no introduction to Oarie Lemanski, new head grid mentor at the school.

Lemanski was an outstanding quarterback on the great grid teams at Bad Axe from 1952-54. Hired last week to replace Mike Yedinak, Lemanski will be coming to Cass City from Rogers City where he has coached for two years.

Although Lemanski's squads did not have an enviable record, they showed improvement each of the two years that he was there.

His duties at Rogers City were the same as they will be in Cass City. In addition to handling football, he will be junior varsity basketball coach and varsity track coach.

Wins Honors

As a quarterback, Lemanski was a regular at Central Michigan University. In 1958 he was named second team All-Michigan and All-Conference quarterback and received Little All-American honorable mention.

Before entering CMU, he earned a starting spot on the Michigan State University freshman team. He fractured a leg in the annual spring green and white game and left State to enter CMU where he graduated.

He married the former Lenore Jensen of Allen Park in November, 1961. His wife was a January, 1962, graduate of Central Michigan.

Lemanski is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Lemanski of Bad Axe and received his entire elementary and high school education in Bad Axe.

Escapes Injury In Car-Bicycle Collision Thursday

Larry Guilds, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Guilds, Cass City, escaped injury Thursday evening, May 17, when he ran his bicycle into the side of a late-model car driven by Joe Kilbourn, Deford.

According to a report by Village Chief of Police Carl Palmateer, the accident happened when Kilbourn, going north on Seeger Street, attempted a left turn onto Pine Street.

Young Guilds, also going north on Seeger, couldn't stop in time and struck the car on the driver's side. He was thrown from his bicycle.

A hole was punched in the door and the left fender was damaged. Larry is the second member of

RETRACING THEIR ROUTE home from Anchorage, Alaska, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Cox, Cass City, and their two daughters, Donna, one, and Kim, three, look at a map of Alaska. The Coxes returned home via the Alcan Highway following Mr. Cox's discharge from Elmendorf AFB, Anchorage, the latter part of April. On the table is a $100-plus fur parka, one of the souvenirs the Coxes brought back from their two-year stay in Alaska. (Chronicle photo)

From the Editor's Corner

Although the Chronicle staff will be working on Memorial Day, an attempt will be made to get the paper out early in the afternoon.

Copy submitted as early as possible will help us put the edition "to bed" earlier so that the staff can take part of the holiday off.

An estimated 45 per cent of the graduating class at Owengage High School plans to take some sort of advanced schooling, authorities report.

This trend is being repeated in every high school.

Not so encouraging, though, is the statistic that is not so widely publicized.

In the first year of many universities (including Michigan and Michigan State) 50 per cent or more of the pupils flunk out.

The reason? Not enough space to take care of the demand... hence, a stiffening of the curriculum to weed out all but the best.

And the situation will be worse in future years. Taxpayers show no inclination to loosen their purses for education, whether it be elementary, high school or college.

Coming Auctions

Saturday, May 26—Herman Kocuba will sell cattle, machinery, milking equipment and household items at the place, one mile west of the Kinda school.

Saturday, May 26—Miss Winifred Schell will hold a household auction at the house, 4137 Vulcan St., Cass City.

Costs, Climate Hex Alaskan Consumer

Area temperatures have been soaring to unseasonal heights, causing some discomfort for area residents. A Cass City man, his wife and two children, after spending the winter where temperatures hit 30 to 40 degrees below zero, are having a particularly hard time adapting to the heat.

Merle E. Cox, 22, his wife Shirley and their two small children, Kim, three, and Donna, one, recently returned from a two-year stay at Elmendorf Air Force Base, Anchorage, Alaska.

Last winter, during a two-week stretch, the temperature dropped to between 30 and 40 degrees below zero at Anchorage. Farther north, in Fairbanks, the mercury dipped to a staggering 70 degrees below zero.

"It was starting to get warmer when we left," Cox reports, "but we're still used to cooler weather."

Cox, a 1957 Cass City High School graduate, was discharged the latter part of April. He joined the Air Force in October, 1958.

After basic training at Lackland AFB, Lackland, Texas, and a one-year stint at Grand Forks AFB, Grand Forks, North Dakota, he and his family were transferred to Alaska.

Anchorage is located in the southwest part of Alaska on Cook Inlet and is surrounded by the Chugach mountain range. It is approximately 500 miles from the Arctic Circle and about 150 miles from Mt. McKinley, the tallest mountain in North America.

Cox estimates Anchorage's population at about 50,000 persons. It is a "modern town", complete with skyscrapers.

The Coxes found that not only were the temperatures low, but prices were sky-high.

"Rent was high, prices on food were high... everything had to be shipped in," Mrs. Cox relates. By way of comparison, a loaf of bread cost 54 cents and fresh milk was 90 cents per half-gallon. Prices in the commissary, where the Coxes did their shopping, were slightly lower.

Fresh fruits and vegetables were particularly high, Cox says. There was never a shortage of any item, however, because the city was constantly stockpiling food.

Cox attributed the high cost of living to the short growing season.

Getting back to the weather, Cox stated that the snowfall during the winter was "not too bad." Because the city was surrounded by mountains, the wind seldom blew.

Weather-wise, Cox disliked the rain most.

"It rained every day in the fall," he said, "until the snow season... it made you almost glad to see the snow come."

The Coxes left Alaska April 27 by car, driving down the 1,500-mile Alcan Highway.

"We were fairly fortunate in that we had no trouble," he tells. "The road was fairly decent for this time of year. It is usually broken up."

"Judicial Faith Shaken"

Judge Blasts Court Ouster

County Probate Judge Henderson Graham, stripped of his judicial powers last week by the Supreme Court, turned the keys to his office over to Circuit Court Judge Timothy Quinn, the high court's representative, Tuesday noon.

Graham was relieved of his duties by the Supreme Court Thursday, May 17. Although he cannot assume his duties as probate judge, he will continue to draw his $10,000 per year salary.

The Supreme Court "enjoiner" came within a month after the house turned down a high court request that the Legislature remove Graham from office. The request was defeated 105-3 on April 26.

Graham lashed back at the Supreme Court Tuesday in a two-page statement.

"I can only say that this action leaves me with a very shaken faith in the judicial system of the State of Michigan," he remarked in regard to the enjoiner.

"The question might be asked," he continued, "why did the Court even bother to recommend to the legislature that I be removed if they intended to overrule them anyway?"

"It would be well to point out that thousands of people have indicated their confidence in the operation of the court while I have been in office -- for which I am grateful. The only pressure for my removal was a resolution signed by all but one of the members of the Tuscola County Bar, and one letter by a citizen of the county. This should be indication enough that a vicious effort is being made to capture the Probate Office for lawyers."

The case stems from Graham's alleged attempt to borrow $20,000 from an estate, under his jurisdiction. The Court also charged that Graham commingled his personal money with funds from another estate under his control.

In asking the Legislature to remove Graham from office on April 4, the Court announced, "We simply cannot overlook a disclosed pattern of secretly-attempted and once-successful borrowing by a probate judge from estates under his jurisdiction."

Graham, near the end of his statement, thanked the people of Tuscola county for their support and vowed to continue the fight to regain his office.

"If we stop our efforts now," he said, "it would be an indication of defeat..."

Graham, a 48-year-old farmer, has held his judgeship since January 2, 1957. He could presumably run for re-election. He is married and the father of three children.

County Firemen Told LP Gas Fire Controls

Elkland Township volunteer firemen were hosts at the monthly Tuscola County Firemen's Association meeting Thursday night, May 17, at the Fire Hall.

An estimated 60 persons from throughout the county and locally heard Ken Eisinger, Fuelgas Company manager, deliver a program on "LP Gas Fire Control."

Using slides to supplement his talk, Eisinger told the group some basic facts about liquid propane gas, what to do in case of leaks or fires and how to extinguish LP gas fires.

The program, according to Eisinger, was designed to coordinate volunteer fire departments to work along with LP gas personnel in the event of a fire.

Frank Krowsek, county Civil Defense director, followed Eisinger's portion of the program with a talk and a 25-minute movie on Civil Defense.

The next Association meeting will be June 21 in Unionville.

300 at Annual Spring Concert

Sweltering temperatures failed to stop an estimated 300 persons from attending the annual Spring Band Concert Thursday night, May 17, at the High School.

Outstanding performances by the school's four bands marked the program. Approximately 120 band students in the fifth, sixth, junior and senior high bands took part in the hour and a half long concert.

Tom Jones, senior band member, was awarded the Harold Ferguson Memorial medal. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Jones, Cass City, is the third Cass City student to receive the annual award. He graduates this year and has received two scholarships to the University of Michigan.

Jones received a long ovation from the audience for a solo number on the bass horn.

The band, under the direction of Richard Case, band instructor, was well received by the audience, getting several long ovations. Particularly outstanding were the senior band's rendition of "The Pearl Fishers Overture," by Georges Bizet, arrangement by Lucien Cailliet, and "Hall of Fame," by J. Olivadioli.

Hawks Win Two Diamond Contests

Cass City remained in contention for the Thumb B Conference baseball crown Thursday by defeating defending champion Frankenmuth 3-1. The loss eliminated the Eagles from the title chase.

Coach Irv. Claseman said that it was the finest played game of the season. Cass City made just one error and Frankenmuth had only two bobbles. The game was ended off in just one hour and 15 minutes.

Wayne Brown pitched a strong game as he posted his fifth win against two defeats for the season.

The Hawks scored two runs in the first, enough to salt away the victory. Hillaker walked, stole second and scored on a safety by Karr. Dillon, singled, moving Karr to third where he romped home on a single by Robinson.

The Hawks scored their final run in the fifth as Dillon lashed out a double, followed by singles by Ellis and Morley.

Frankenmuth scored its lone run in the second on hits by Bert Bleke, Bob Zucker and Ron Land-scover.

Good defensive play helped Brown from running into serious trouble throughout the game.

Sebewaing Game

Freshman Jim Champion got his first starting assignment of his high school career Monday and he responded by pitching the Hawks to a 14-2 decision over Sebewaing in a non-league encounter at Cass City Recreational Park.

Champion was nicked for six hits, walked a pair and struck out seven. He showed a live fast ball and fair change of pace and curve. He shows promise, Coach Claseman said, of providing Cass City with strong pitching for the next three years.

There wasn't much to the game. Cass City scored four runs in the first on two walks, three errors and a single by Creason.

They added another in the second inning on a walk, stolen base and another single by Creason.

Karr got the lone hit in the fourth, but the Hawks turned errors and bases on balls into two more runs.

In the fifth, four hits, two walks, a hit batter and an error gave Cass City its final seven runs.

Its reliability is probably its greatest single asset

When you build a quality truck, the inclination is to run around asking users what they think of it. We do quite a bit of this.

It's a funny thing. You'd think people would talk mostly about the mechanical features of the vehicle—the good ride, its power, the double-wall construction, cab comfort, or tough tailgate.

These things get comment, of course, but they're consistently outnumbered by expressions of satisfaction with the dependability of a Chevrolet truck. Its greatest single asset seems to be the fact that it does its job well day after day without a lot of fuss or attention—and that's what impresses people the most.

Quality is the key to reliability. The next time you have to buy a truck, call your Chevrolet dealer and make your money go farther.

WHAT'S IN A NAME

It is little wonder the public is becoming confused by the steadily increasing number of new names, models, sizes and options being offered in new cars these days.

As if the situation wasn't had enough, there are a whole new series of new names now descending on us in the form of 1962 1/2 models. To the "old" names like Polara, Nova, Skylark, Monza, Cutlass, Grand Prix, Comet and Daytona are to be added such names as Wildcat, Coronado, Monterey S55, Meteor S33, Spyder, Monte Carlo, SP100 and Jetfire.

An automotive trade paper recently explained the whole thing in a cartoon. A salesman is talking to a purchaser and he says:

"This model is halfway between our deluxe and medium-price models, and in between our compact and low-priced regular-size sedan, but midway, economy-wise, between the deluxe compact and the medium-priced first-line models."

We hope this doesn't leave you as confused as a group of ladies recently polled by a financial paper on their automotive knowledge. They thought that a brake drum was used by musicians, that radiator hose was a brand of nylons and that the police should do something about universal joints.

Names and styles and options will continue to change. Sometimes, like the hemlines on women's skirts, for no apparent reason. But the names that stay, and the dealers who service them, will be those that acquire and keep loyalty through quality performance. A purchaser soon tires of a new chrome strip or fender contour but the memory of reliable service lingers long.

WANDERING WITH WARREN

It's Been A
Busy Little Shanty

By Hene Warren

When we had our bathroom installed a few years ago, there was quite an argument in the Warren domicile. Like Lizzie Borden, I was about to use the axe - only it was the old outside toilet that I wanted to hack down. The "head" of the household, however, had other ideas. "What a dandy tool cupboard it'll make," he insisted. Busily converting the building, he soon began to stash away the shovels, an old roll of building felt and so forth. One day as I trudged homeward from a hot hour's work in the garden, I grudgingly veered toward the "tool cupboard." Opening the door and peering inside, I raked in my hoe, hand cultivator and rake. "Hmmm," I mused. Trotting to the house, I hauled my little seed box, handrake, trowel and all the other paraphernalia used for amateur gardening, out to the "house" and installed all my tools alongside my husband's. My, it HAS been a handy little shanty. One of these days though...

A lot of turtles must be on the move this spring. Driving to and from work, I have seen several at the roadside and a few crossing the highway. A sad sight, though, was seeing two of them crushed on the pavement. One of them was on the centerline of the highway - surely that wasn't an accidental slaughter. A turtle is a small creature; with very little effort it can be missed when traveling down the road.

A love of "puir wee beasties" makes me loth to kill anything. Even snakes and spiders have been spared by my tenderheartedness - not all, but many of them. The only things I wage active war against, albeit reluctantly and with some shuddering, are worms and grubs... with the big woolly caterpillars being excepted for some vague feminine unreasoning.

I almost gave up growing tomatoes after my first discovery of a green monster gnawing at the tender tomato leaves. War being declared, however, the challenge made it necessary for me to continue in the game. Now, it is almost with nonchalance that my defensive battle is waged against these interlopers in the tangled tomato vines.

Everything seems to be relative - and so, most likely, the people who nonchalantly kill little animals on the highway feel no more remorse than I when getting rid of the tomato worms. Nevertheless, there still seems to be a difference: On the one hand, we have harmless - sometimes helpful - little creatures while on the other hand we have destructive pests.

Speaking of little animals, last week on my way to work I spied a tiny, but rather long animal at the side of the road. When I stopped to investigate, the little creature ran into the grass where it raised its head to investigate me. It was either a chipmunk or - since it seemed rather bigger and with a long neck - a weasel. Whichever it was, it wasn't very afraid.

Hold Last Rites
For Claude Martin

A 67-year-old Grant township man committed suicide Wednesday afternoon, May 16, at his home by running a hose from the exhaust to a window in his car, according to a report from Alden McAlpine, Huron county coroner.

The victim, Claude Guy Martin, was found dead in his car Wednesday at about 3:00 p.m. by his son Maynard. Death was from carbon monoxide poisoning and time of death was listed at 1:00 p.m.

McAlpine stated no note was found and that when the victim was last seen at 11:00 a.m. he seemed to be in good spirits. Relatives reported that Martin had seemed "lonesome" in recent months.

Cass City Ladies
Post 1343 Series

In Bowling Tourney

Catherine Mellendorf and Nancy Helwig are waiting to see if the tremendous 1343 series they posted in a Marlette doubles tourney will stand up for the championship.

The odds are that it will. Mrs. Mellendorf, who was given a 28-pin spot, bowled an actual series of 656. Coupled with her 84-pin spot for the three games, she came up with a 740 series. Mrs. Mellendorf posted games of 236, 225 and 195 without her spot.

With her spot of 123 pins, Mrs. Helwig registered a 603 series on games of 157, 131, 192.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Sez:

Dear Mister Editor:

Zeke Grubb's preacher come by the country store Saturday night, reported he had been visiting amongst his congregation ever night for a week and had a sore throat from hollering loud enough to get heard above their TV sets. He said he wasn't even shore if some of the members would recollect he was there.

At one member's home, he said, he suggested they have a short family prayer afore he took his departure and the mother ask if he couldn't hold off a few minutes till Wagon Train was over.

But the good Parson admitted TV was here to stay, said he was learning to live with it. He predicted the day was coming when big groups of churches would chip in and hire one minister to preach on TV for all of them. He figured it would save money and the savings would be used to put ping-pong tables in the Sunday School department.

But the bad news, allowed the Parson, was his doctor telling him he was getting ulcers. The doctor ordered him to take it easy and let the church members do more work. The Parson said all his members were working now, 40 was working for him and 200 was working agin him, but they was all working.

He said him and Rufe Zinder got out the records for the last 5 years to see how the work load was running and the records wasn't good. They showed that 10 per cent was pushing the wagon and 90 per cent was just riding. It was that 90 per cent, he allowed, that was giving him ulcers. He said Rufe told him he didn't have no ulcers himself but he was getting tired blood and, after looking at them records, he figured he was just pooped from pushing.

The Parson said him and Rufe decided to make a little survey to find out what that 90 per cent of unemployed church workers was doing. They found 40 per cent was putting over someone that had took place at the church. These members couldn't recollect what it was but they claimed they was so upset they couldn't git over it.

Another 8 per cent was setting at home keeping score on how many times the Parson had come to visit. One woman, he reported, was keeping score on a blackboard in the kitchen. About 22 per cent was figuring out how to git rid of the preacher. The Parson told the fellers they didn't have nothing special agin him, but git rid of a preacher was just one of their aims in life. He said ever church had some of them kind of members. The other 20 per cent, he reported, was just wearing the varnish off the pews. He allowed as how this was hard on the pews.

To sum up the survey, he told the fellers, his ulcers was here to stay.

Yours truly,

Uncle Tim

The Committee on Training and Retraining of the "Over-all Economic Development Plan for Tuscola County" is slated to meet Monday evening, May 28, in the Cass City High School Vocational Agriculture room at 8:00 p.m., according to Alfred Ballweg, county extension agent.

Prime purpose of the meeting, Ballweg reports, will be to discuss the possibilities and problems connected with a program for vocational training and retraining for persons who are unemployed or need further training to find job opportunities.

The training and retraining program is a portion of the proposed over-all economic development plan currently under study by the Tuscola County Rural Area Development Committee (RAD).

Charles F. Kamp, coordinator in industrial arts and vocational education in the Flint Public Schools, will be featured speaker. Also speaking will be representatives of the vocational training program underway in Bay City.

The meeting is open to the public, Ballweg states, and it is expected that the county superintendent of schools, various school superintendents and members of RAD will attend.

On other fronts, three area persons are among 14 recently named to the Committee on Government, a sub-committee of RAD. They are: C. R. Hunt, Cass City, Joe Mosack, Gaytown, and Albert J. Peter, Kingston.

Breath-Taking — That's Our Concert Band

By Dave Kraft

Philharmonic, professional, superb, breath-taking — I'm referring to the High School Spring Band Festival this past Thursday.

I've been to a number of high school band concerts in past years, but I don't recall ever attending one as outstanding and satisfying as the local concert.

I think Band Director Richard Case is to be commended and envious for the outstanding performance of the band.

It must be a truly wonderful feeling to work with these students, to stand before them in front of an audience and to seemingly pull the music from them until it fills the room with an awesome, magnificent sound that literally engulfs those present.

I'm always visibly moved by these concerts. The other night, I had the terrible urge to take the baton away from Mr. Case and attempt a little directing of my own.

To comment on a single individual performance is like trying to judge grains of sand. The whole band was just great, from the elementary to the high school.

Two performances did stand out, however — Those of Sally Edzik on the kettledrum and Tom Jones on the bass.

By itself, instrumental music well played is wonderful, but to me, the kettledrum provides the emotion. Miss Edzik's performance was excellent.

In regard to Jones' solo, I didn't realize so much music could be gotten out of a bass horn. The fact that Jones did it so effortlessly is enough tribute to his skill.

I went for an airplane ride the other day. It was a curious experience. The plane never left the ground. It's just as well — the silly thing didn't have any wings.

Actually, it wasn't an airplane at all, just a room with a mock instrument panel at one end and a row of paper windows along one side.

I still got air sick.

If I'd started with the band, I'd do a little scientific investigation of fish life somewhere in the northlands. He asked me if I'd like to take his place at a Detroit Edison breakfast in Caro.

Breakfast would be served by two attractive airline hostesses in conjunction with a D. E. sales promotion. Being the dutiful husband that I am, I said, "Just two?"

After meeting the girls at the Caro airport, the 35 newspaper representatives, county electrical appliance dealers, D. E. officials and I adjourned to the D. E. office in Caro. That's where the phony airplane was.

When everyone was seated, the hostesses began serving breakfast on little trays used on regular airline runs.

There were the usual remarks about fastening the seat belts, for the girls' protection, as well as our own.

The food was fine — what I was able to eat of it.

The seats were arranged in threes. I picked, with my usual foresight, a seat in the middle. Since I'm left-handed, this left me virtually helpless.

It's a long way from my lap to my mouth under normal circumstances, but with my arms pinned by the gentlemen on either side of me, it was almost impossible to eat.

One of the items they served us was a large breakfast roll and butter. Somehow, I managed to break the roll. That was the least of my troubles.

The butter was soft and when I tried to get it off the little paper serving tray, it spread all over.

Finally, after what seemed like several minutes of struggling, I got a small amount on my knife. Just as I was going to apply it to the roll, the "plane" must have lurched because I buttered my thumb.

I ended the meal with coffee on my freshly cleaned suit and sausage grease on my tie.

What made me sick, however, was the fact that I never did get to meet either of the hostesses. If the session is any indication of what current flying is like, this bird is going to walk.

Sanilac 4-H'ers

Attend Caro Meet

Mrs. Alan Rogers and Mrs. Alvin Burk were two of the leaders from Sanilac County who went to Caro Saturday, May 12, to interview 4-H members in the 10-County District level competition to go on to State competition.

Eighteen Sanilac County 4-H Club members were selected to represent Sanilac County on the District level in Caro in the National Award program at a 4-H Junior Leader meeting May 3 in Sandusky. The members were selected by their 4-H club record from the achievement summaries they filled out and by interviews conducted by members of the 4-H Council.

Out of the 18 sent from Sanilac County, they brought nine first place winners and three alternates. First place winners were: Reef, Bob Davis, Sandusky; Canine, Bonnie Doelle, Melvin; Health, Janet Bechtel, Melvin; Tractor, Bob Burnison, Snover; Flower Garden, Kathy Widdows, Snover; Conservation, John Duff, Marlette; Home Improvement, Barbara Nuzum, Brown City; Poultry, Dale Meredith, Snover; Junior Leadership, Jean Innes, Deckerville. The alternates were: Vegetable Garden, Linda Severance, Decker; Handicraft, Jack Burns, Decker, and Recreation, Mary Lou Jones, Decker.

These winners will go on to compete on the State level later on in the summer months. In most cases, State winners are awarded a trip to National 4-H Club Congress held in Chicago in November.

Michigan Mirror

Say Proposed Constitution Is A "Basic" Document

By Elmer E. White
Michigan Press Association

The proposed Constitution presented for approval to the people in November or next April will be a "basic" document, according to Edward Hutchinson, Fernville Republican who helped write it.

Hutchinson, a former State Senator and delegate to the recently completed Constitutional Convention, is a recognized authority on Michigan's basic law, both the 1907 document and the proposed one.

"A Constitution should be a conservative document, which provides only the basic framework for laws to originate from," Hutchinson said.

Democratic attempts on the final day of the Convention to change the most controversial sections of the proposed Constitution failed.

They said the document which was prepared did not accomplish Constitutional revision as the people wanted it.

Republicans, however, viewed the Constitution which will be presented to the people as a "true compromise." One GOP delegate said Democratic members of the Convention had achieved adoption of more changes than he had.

Leaders of the Convention on both sides admit the proposed Constitution will not please everyone. "Everyone can find something to object to in the new Constitution," said President
Stephen S. Nisbet, R-Fremont.
"That isn't the point, however.
The point is to explain the improvements, and there have been many."

Republican Vice President
George Romney, R-Bloomfield Hills, was joined by Democratic delegate Mrs. Edward Cushman, Dearborn, in supporting the "compromise."

"The question is not whether this is the best document Michigan could ever achieve some time in the future, but whether it is an improvement over the present Constitution. And it is," she said.

A strong civil rights section, changes in the judicial system to include an intermediate Court of Appeals, and continuation of several earmarked funds for government operations, were lauded by members of both parties in varying degrees.

Although most Democratic delegates said they would not help "sell" the document to the people, GOP members said this position was contradictory to the Democrats' position in attempting the last-minute substitutes.

"Even with this final attempt to change our document, the Democrats proposed to change only a small percentage of the decisions and modify a few more," said Delegate D. Hale Brake, R-Stanton. "This indicates to me that the document is a good one, even though I don't agree with each and every section we have written."

A tax stalemate in the Legislature again this year brings to the minds of many one question:
"Why didn't the Constitutional Convention solve the tax problems?"

This points up a little-known fact of state government. A Constitution does not spell out tax solutions. Michigan's Constitution, in fact, has little to do with the tax problem faced by the state in recent years.

The proposed Constitution prepared by the Convention would prohibit a graduated income tax, but leaves the tax field generally open for exploitation by the Legislature. This is a function of the Legislature: to provide taxes to meet expenditures.

The taxation stalemate, then, hinges on the opposing philosophies of how to collect public monies.

One side says Michigan should change its present forms and follow the trend of an increasing number of states; should impose an income tax on individuals and corporations.

The other side contends that inequities in present tax programs are keeping the state from getting the revenue which could be derived under the present forms: sales and use taxes on presently exempt items; that income tax is burdensome to compute and an invitation to heavier taxation.

Proponents of the income tax program respond that expansion of some present taxes, the so-called "nuisance" levies, would be needed for at least a year until the income tax became fully effective.

Solution of budget and tax problems could be put off until late this year, even after the November election, because of an extension of the Legislative session to an unnamed date.

The likelihood of a long delay on agreement between the two forces is slight, however. As one lawmaker, who hopes to be re-elected, puts it: "If we stall on this long enough, we won't have to worry about Michigan's problems next year. The voters will decide the future for us."

Michigan's freeway system will soon get a new service feature to help and protect motorists, State Police Commissioner Joseph A.
Childs reports.

A 24-hour patrol force will be assigned to some 650 miles of limited-access routes throughout the state to provide a crime preventive, traffic supervision and general assistance.

"The crime situation has not developed to any extent on these highways but is on similar roads in other states," Childs said.

Patrols on the freeways will be spaced to pass any given point within two-hour intervals. They will use both the access routes and crossovers on the medians.

This will enable the State Police to provide relatively quick assistance to stranded or ill motorists, as well as keep an eye out for criminal elements which might like to take advantage of stranded motorists or use the rapid routes for escape from local authorities.

Boat Owners Up In Tuscola County

Michigan boat statistics released this week show that Tuscola County now has 1,698 registered motorboats, an increase of 367 above last year's total.

According to Secretary of State James M. Hare, 431,014 motorboat certificates are now in the hands of marine enthusiasts using Michigan waters.

"As the summer vacation season nears we expect many new applications," Hare said. "We hope that those who are purchasing new watercraft register at once to avoid the June rush period. If new boat owners cooperate by registering early, we can process their applications promptly and get their boat numbers back to them within a few days."

To stay on the level a man must learn to take a great many bumps.

Feature Printed For Dual Purpose

This feature has always had a dual purpose. One, to relate past history and, two, to evoke memories of bygone days. Perhaps such memories as are shared in the following material taken from a letter written in 1916 by Jennie Burt Lyon:

"During our early days in the little schoolhouse on the corner, seven miles east of Cass City, on Friday nights there would be a 'spelledown' and well-acquainted indeed must one be with the spelling book to stand as long as Carrie Greenman. She usually carried off the honors. Many a pleasant hour did I spend in the Greenman home with Carrie and the others. It was a rare treat for us to be allowed to go home with a schoolmate and spend the night. We read, played games and ate apples; and such apples as came out of the Greenman orchard, I have never tasted any like them since.

"In the early days our schoolhouse was surrounded by poplars and brush, and we played 'follow your leader' up and down tree trunks and through the woods, until the passerby must have thought he had come upon a tribe of Indians. I read with interest the notes which are in the Chronicle from time to time from the Wichware School, about their new organ, their entertainments, and the progress they are making under the leadership of their efficient teacher. I understand our old-time schoolhouse was burned and that a new one has been erected on the old site.

"My parents lived on a farm a few miles east of Cass City, joining there as pioneers, with the Bonds, the Haggertys, and others. Well I remember the first time I was allowed to go with my parents to the town, Cass City, and I had been told that we would cross a river before we reached there. The thought of seeing for the first time a real river, the bridge, and a city was too much for my childish imagination, the excitement kept me awake nearly all night. I have since visited a few points of interest in our country, but nothing has been as wonderful as that first trip to Cass City. The Cass River was greater than the Mississippi and the Hudson were later, and Mr. John Laing's store was larger than Marshall Field's is now, and the stick of red and white striped candy which Mr. Laing gave me was far better than a box of the richest chocolates..."

No Dates on Two Pictures of Week

We are not dating the two pictures featured this week but will leave that detail for you. If you remember when Fred Maier drove the meat delivery wagon for Harry Young's market, with the Deford Hotel as one of his stops, it might help you in fixing the date; and for all practical purposes, the same date could be used for both pictures. The second one shows I. W. Hall at the wheel of his 5-passenger "Touring" model parked in front of the present Neitzel Studio, with the background showing the intersection of Main Street and Maple Street. Surely you can recognize it.

The fourth meeting for the beginning dress construction workshop will be held at the Gilford Extension Hall, May 23 from 1:00 to 3:30 p.m.

Have you ever tried cooking for one week without the use of onions? Since onions rate high on my grocery lists, I would be completely lost. That teasing aroma of onions cooking whets the appetite and adds flavor and variety to what might otherwise be a drab dish.

Onions are classified according to type, size and color. The yellow varieties comprise about 75 per cent of the total production. Other colored onions are white, red and brown. The smallest onions are used for pickling, while the small white onions are very good creamed. The big juicy Spanish onions are wonderful for salads, sandwiches and particularly good on hamburgers. The larger, regular, dry onions are good when the recipe calls for chopped onion.

Dry onions are available throughout the year and the supply is fairly uniform. If there is a peak season it occurs from March through June. New York, Texas, California and Michigan produce more than half the nation's crop.

The early crop is marketed mainly in April and May and is produced in Texas and California. This crop was much shorter this year than usual, due to the freezing weather in Texas. In fact, the crop this year had to be replanted, the damage was so severe. Consequently, the prices rose, but now have leveled off again.

The mid-season crop of onions comes from New Jersey, New Mexico, Washington, Oklahoma and Virginia.

The late crop comes largely from Michigan and New York. This marketing period extends from August through March. Most of these onions are sold from storage, and with our cold weather in the winter, do not need refrigerated storage.

When shopping for onions look for those which are bright, clean, hard, well shaped and have dry skins.

The green onions are associated with springtime. There are many types and are regular onions harvested when the bulbs have reached a diameter of about 1/4 inch. Scallions are also members of the onion family, being shoots from the white onion varieties and pulled before any bulb has formed. The delicate shallot mentioned so often in French recipes, can be distinguished by its bulbs which are made up of cloves, like garlic.

Leeks, too, are favorites of the onion family. They are much milder than green onions and a delicious ingredient in soups and stews. As a vegetable, they may be prepared in any way that asparagus is served.

Today on the spice counter we find more dehydrated onion products each time we browse through. Drying of onion chips, flakes, green onions, etc., also onion juice, has created a wide variety of comparatively stable products particularly suited to the shopper who uses only a little onion at a time, or uses it only occasionally.

Choose Theme for Annual Soil Stewardship Week

The Stream of Life has been chosen as the theme of Soil Stewardship Week for 1962, Maynard McConkey, chairman of the Tuscola Soil Conservation District, announced today.

Soil Stewardship Week starts Sunday and is over Saturday and is sponsored by the more than 2,900 Soil and Water Conservation Districts in the United States.

The Tuscola District in cooperation with other districts is taking this opportunity to emphasize the fact that "The Earth is The Lord's" and man is only the steward of soil and water a very short period of time.

The district directors have distributed material to the ministers throughout the entire Tuscola District including nearly 80 churches that will assist in the preparation of a sermon on Soil Stewardship.

"Water is a gift from God and we in Michigan are so blessed with an abundance of water that we take it for granted and fail to appreciate our fortune.

"But even in our water-surrounded State of Michigan an adequate supply of wholesome water is rapidly becoming a problem with which we all must be concerned if our standard of living is to be maintained," directors say.

The directors of the Tuscola District are asking all ministers and all people in the district to pause for a moment to consider their God-given responsibility to be good stewards of water and soil.
