

Red Tape Snarls Farmers' Efforts

Farming under governmental regulations is a complicated business. That's what Gerald Prieskorn and Cliff Ryan, both of Cass City, are telling friends and acquaintances this week.

The pair had planted wheat in a 5.6-acre field in back of the Prieskorn house last fall. Determined to get the best possible crop and the largest possible return on their money, they invested $75 in fertilizer. Other costs included $20 for seed and $30 for combining... a total of $125.

Although it proved to be not too good a year for wheat, the duo felt that they would realize a small profit as they confidently hauled their wheat to a local elevator. Things went along smoothly until the elevator asked to see the marketing card for the wheat.

No card? Better get one in Caro.

The part-time farmers hustled over to the county seat to make it legal to sell the crop. Shouldn't be too much trouble... after all 5.6 acres was considerably below the minimum for controls... 13 acres, wasn't it?

No, that was last year (or next year when the regulations will again be relaxed). This year you've got to have the card, they learned.

It was probably the most expensive card Ryan and Prieskorn ever bought. The penalty for growing 100 bushels (five acres) over quota was $159.

Added to the $125 already spent, the total cost, without considering labor, was $284. Revenue from the wheat was $257.25.

The chagrined pair totaled their loss last week and figured it cost them $26.75 in cash to raise the crop.

Farming is a complicated business.

7-Period Schedule Awaits Students

Students and teachers of Cass City high school will return to a considerably modified daily schedule when school opens next week. After following for many years a six-period day of equal length hours, the school has adopted a seven-period schedule. This type of daily program, which has been adopted by many schools in the area, makes possible an expanded offering of subjects. At the same time, it increases the work load for both students and teachers. High school students must now carry a minimum of five courses rather than four. Teachers will have an additional assignment per day.

Baker Ends Fire Fighting Career

Ed Baker, Cass City businessman, announced his retirement this week from the Elkland Township Fire Department after 20 years of service. He cited age and business as the reason for the action.

"I'm getting along in years... I've reached the point where I'm not much use to them," he commented in an interview Tuesday. "Many times I'm tied up with business and can't leave when a call comes in," he continued.

Baker came to Cass City 36 years ago from Hastings. During his 20 years with the department, he has been fire chief for three years and president of the Tuscola County Fire Association for two terms.

He is a past member and president of the Cass City Gavel Club and has been secretary-treasurer of the Northeastern Michigan Radio Club.

Baker is the owner of the Baker Electric Shop and has been in business in Cass City for the past 31 years. He is the current president of the Tuscola County Electrical Contractors Association.

Baker has also had an active career in village and area scouting. He was Tuscola District Chairman from 1948 to 1954 and Valley Trails Council vice-president from 1952 to 1954.

He has been awarded the Scoutmaster Award, the Scoutmaster Key and the highest award in scouting, the Silver Beaver Award.

The Bakers have two sons and a daughter. Their daughter, Mary, is the wife of "Speed" Wilson, new Cass City High School basketball coach. Jim, their oldest son, is with General Cable and their other son, Bob, is slated to graduate from Central Michigan University in January.

Fringe Benefits Revised for Village Crew

Village employees will receive new insurance benefits in lieu of a raise in salary, it was decided Tuesday night by trustees who met in regular session at the Municipal Building.

The new policy will include a raise in payment for rooms from a maximum of $10 daily to $14 daily. Also included will be life insurance, based on the position the employee has in the village. Top men will have insurance of $6,500 yearly with the minimum set at $4,000 yearly.

The insurance package is expected to cost the village some $1,183.50 more per year.

The council is also working on a program to define other fringe benefits, including sick leave, paid vacations, holidays and other similar questions.

Discussed in detail was sick leave. The plans call for the men to earn a half day a month up to a maximum of 30 days if no time off is taken.

Other Business

The council renewed its membership in the Michigan Municipal League and discussed attending the League's convention in Detroit Sept. 19-21. It is likely that Fred Auten and Lee Rabideau will attend at least one day during the event.

John Haire reported how government loan for water was received through a Federal agency. The information was placed on file.

A contract for money for maintenance of M-81 (Main Street) was signed with the State.

Ugly Man Hurt in Two-car Accident

A 24-year-old Ugly man was taken to Hubbard Memorial Hospital, Bad Axe, Monday afternoon with injuries suffered in a two-car accident at the intersection of McMillan and McTaggart Roads, seven miles southwest of Bad Axe.

Admitted to the hospital with head cuts and bruises was Alvin E. McKee, Ugly.

According to a report filed by Huron county Sheriff's Deputy Gary Kelley, the accident happened when McKee's car and another car driven by Theodore Schubert, 56, Bad Axe, collided almost head-on at the open intersection.

No injuries were reported for Schubert and no traffic citations were issued.

Fender Damaged In Village Accident

A damaged left front fender was the only casualty in a two-car accident Saturday afternoon at the corner of Pine and Oak streets, according to a report filed by Patrolman William R. McKinley, Cass City police.

According to the report, the accident occurred when a vehicle driven by S. C. Striffler, 80, Cass City, struck another driven by Myron D. Karr, 16, Cass City, as Striffler made a left turn at the intersection.

Striffler's car was damaged.

CHOOSE YOUR WEAPON—If you're partial to swords, old handguns or vintage rifles, you can probably find something among the collection of Ezra Mosher, 72, Gagetown, to suit your fancy. Although most of his guns, the result of 50 years of collecting, are of the Civil War era, he has a sizeable Indian arrowhead collection that dates back even further. Here he examines two of his handguns with a portion of his 40 rifles forming a background.

Guns, Swords, Arrowheads Comprise 50-Year Collection

A gun in a rural home is almost as much a part of the fixtures as a light switch. Using it for hunting, pest control, pleasure and, in extreme situations, protection of property, few farmers would be without at least one gun in the home.

Ezra Mosher, 72, rural Gagetown, is an exception to the rule. He has not one, but between 75 and 100 handguns, rifles, shotguns and miscellaneous firearms, collected over the past 50 years.

His guns, ranging from Civil War vintage to World War II souvenirs, occupy an entire corner of his large farm house, 10 miles northwest of Cass City. They cover the walls, crowd the corners, blanket a small table and fill an upright gun rack.

Another corner holds his collection of arrowheads, while still another holds an assortment of antique clocks.

Started 50 Years Ago

He began collecting guns about 50 years ago. "I was working on a building and a fellow brought out this old muzzle loading gun... I brought it home and that's how I got started on it, he recalls.

Mostly Rifles

The major portion of his collection consists of rifles and shotguns. Most of them date back to the Civil War, except two muzzle loading Kentucky rifles which may be older.

Among his unusual rifles are a finely engraved, handmade German hunting rifle of unknown caliber and a .32 rim fire rifle with two triggers, one for breaking it open.

He also has a number of double barreled and over-and-under shotgun-rifle combination firearms.

Various Handguns

His handgun collection has perhaps the most variety. They range from mammoth cap and ball Army and Navy pistols to a two and a half inch handmade brass replica complete with revolving cylinder.

His cap and ball pistols include a Remington, a Starr and a Butterfield. The latter is a Navy handgun and the other two are Army handguns.

He has a derringer-type .22 pistol with a three-inch barrel and a .32 caliber pistol, made by the same company, with an 18-inch barrel.

Pepperbox

Two unusual handguns include a five-shot .22-caliber "pepperbox" and a Moore "tit-cartridge" .31 caliber revolver. The pepperbox, instead of a single barrel, has a long five-shot revolving cylinder.

Most unusual about the Moore "tit-cartridge" revolver is that it is loaded from the front of the cylinder instead of the rear. The bullet is a bell-shaped affair with a recessed lead ball. The discharge cap is in the bottom of the shell in a tiny lip-like point.

More modern handguns include an Italian revolver and a Japanese 7-mm pistol with a wooden holster that converts into a stock for a small rifle.

How much is his collection worth? "I wouldn't know," answers Mosher.

The most he's ever received for any of his guns was the $100 he got for a cap and ball revolver.

He doesn't recall where he got some of his guns. Most of them he got in the area while peddling fish for a living.

"When I started, they were giving guns away... You can hardly find any now," he tells.

"Cap and ball guns at best sold for no more than $14.00. Now a good one sells for $125 to $150."

He has paid an average of $5.00 for most of his guns. He guessed that the most he had ever paid for any of his guns was $35 for two pistols. He changed his mind a little later.

Traded Gun for Land

Among his rifles is a muzzle loading .38 caliber rifle that his grandfather traded for 40 acres of land on Bach Road, northwest of Mosher's farm. The land is now estimated to be worth $10-20,000! He has sold only two or three of his guns since he started.

Other war relics include a German submachine gun, various swords and a New York State Home Guard helmet, a Philippine sword and spear, all from the Spanish-American War. He also has a miniature muzzle loading cannon.

He has bullet molds for most of his guns and loads his own shells. Nearly all of his guns are in working condition.

"I don't care if they shoot... I'd just as soon they didn't," he asserts.

Barrels, Sidewalks and Tractors

Council Talks; Defers Action

Litter barrels, sidewalks and tractor bids resulted in lengthy discussions by the Cass City Village Council Tuesday night at their regular meeting in the Municipal Building.

The council was petitioned by the Cass City Chamber of Commerce for 22 litter barrels to help keep Main Street clean.

Discussion indicated that the village will perhaps install a few more barrels, but that the requested number was not necessary.

Two of the councilmen, Fred Auten and Jim Seals, said that they felt it was not the council's job to take care of merchants' dirt.

All of the council agreed that if the barrels were to be installed they should be covered and attractive as possible.

The barrel question has been under discussion for several months now and will not be resolved for at least another month.

Ware Appointed

At the request of the Chamber of Commerce, Leo Ware was appointed as a representative of the Council to meet with the Chamber so that the ideas of the two groups can be exchanged. He will relay the council's sentiments about barrels.

Other projects that Ware is expected to discuss with the Chamber will include a clean town, safety and delinquency with a special emphasis on shoplifting.

Sidewalk Bid

The bids for new sidewalks were discussed and the bids for asphalt rejected. Concrete bids were neither accepted nor rejected.

The council will act on these bids after a representative of the State of Michigan explains the amount of participation the State plans in repaving the curb.

Village Engineer William Schram said the State inspector is due some time after Labor Day.

Tractor Bids

Four bids were received for a new industrial tractor for the village.

Because of the closeness of the bids and variables in specifications, the bids were referred to committee for consideration.

It was felt in the preliminary discussion that the choice would finally be between Rabideau Motor Sales and Cliff Ryan. Ryan's basic bid for tractor, cab and heat houser was $3,964.54, while Rabideau's bid for comparable equipment was $4,014.50.

Other bids received included Leonard Damm and Son, $5,200, and Ebert's Garage, $4,802.

Before reaching any decision Village Engineer Schram and the streets and parks committee will review the bids and examine the tractors.

Name Paul Alfano To Chamber Board

Paul Alfano was named a member of the board of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce at the organization's regular meeting last week.

Alfano will be filling the unexpired term of Ralph Gauer. Alfano's term has a year and a half yet to run.

Many Winners Friday in Final Drawing in Village

The 11-week free drawing sponsored by the Cass City Chamber of Commerce ended Friday night as shoppers crowded the town for the final drawing.

They were attracted to the corner of Main and Seeger by the chance of taking home one of the 37 prizes offered, valued at several hundreds of dollars.

Evidence of the popularity of the program was shown by the mass of tickets issued by cooperating merchants.

A total of 115,500 tickets was printed and most of them found their way into the weekly drawing for the 10 free bikes presented every Friday.

Friday's weather was ideal for the events and most of the crowd stayed until the last winner had been determined.

From the Editor's Corner

Don't look for everyone in the Cass City post office to be wearing new uniforms this year.

That's the unofficial word from the local department. Only clerks who spend half or more of their time at the "window" are eligible.

Just how this will affect the local office no one is quite sure. Best guess is that perhaps two of the employees will receive the $45 yearly grant for uniforms.

A Chronicle advertisement run for Rabideau Motor Sales was cited at a regional New Holland Co. sales seminar held last week in Ohio.

The ad was placed in a slide presentation depicting the best use of media and presented to the dealers by the company.

And while we're boasting a bit, we'll add that this same advertisement sold four major pieces of equipment for Rabideau's.

We remind our readers and advertisers that Monday is Labor Day and a short work week for the Chronicle. All copy possible should be in this week end so that regular Thursday publication deadlines can be met.

With the exception of governor, probably the most important offices to be filled in the November election will be members of the State Supreme Court.

This court's recent decisions on reapportionment and payment of unemployment benefits have had more effect on Michigan than any bill (including tax measures) that was poured through the hopper in the last session.

Supposedly non-partisan, court members have followed party lines in both of the recent decisions.

Paul L. Adams and Otis M. Smith are candidates with Democratic endorsement.

Michael D. O'Hara and Louis D. McGregor were endorsed at last week's GOP convention.

Both Adams and Smith will have a line reading "Justice of the Supreme Court" under their names on the ballot.

This does not mean that they are better qualified for the office than their opponents, but only that they are currently serving on the Supreme Court bench.

Both were appointed to their present positions by Democratic governors.

When considering the qualifications of candidates, the prudent voter will consider more than his legal training and experience.

A study of the candidates' political background is apt to be more revealing in gauging qualifications than any other single factor.

Decker Driver Not Held in Traffic

Death of Reese Girl

A seven-year-old Reese girl on her way to mail a letter was killed Monday night when she ran in front of a car driven by an 18-year-old Decker youth, according to a report from the Bridgeport State Police post.

Killed instantly was Phoebe Webb, 7, daughter of Mrs. John Adams, Reese. Driver of the car was Dallas Nichols, 18, Decker. He was not held.

Nichols told police that he didn't see the child until she ran across the road in front of him.

Investigating Troopers Aaron Storm and Ronald Morgan reported that the child's vision might have been obstructed by a tree. She had also waited for a car coming from the opposite direction and may not have noticed Nichols' vehicle approaching from the east.

The accident took place in front of the child's home, three miles west of Reese on M-81.

Downed Power Lines

Are Real Shockers

The next time you step outside in the yard, look up at those electric lines overhead. Unfortunately, accidents involving these same electric power lines cause several deaths and serious injuries to Michigan residents each year because they fail to "look up".

Families must use good judgment and learn to live with the hazards of electricity, according to Richard Pfister, agricultural safety engineer at Michigan State University. Pfister points out that "do-it-yourself" TV antenna repair frequently breeds trouble. "If the antenna is too heavy or a strong wind is blowing, it may break away and allow the mast or guy wires to touch a nearby power line," he adds. The results can be fatal.

Kite flying near electric lines can be a dangerous sport. A wet kite string or a kite string with wire on it may give your children the last "shock of their lives," Pfister warns.

Insulators and light bulbs broken by "B-B guns" result in large losses each year to power companies. Such destruction can lead to heavy fines or imprisonment for the person inflicting the damage. And employees of power companies must subject themselves to added dangers in replacing the equipment.

The pruning of trees located near power lines is another danger. "A limb falling against a power line can cause death to anyone in contact with the limb," Pfister discloses. Or the falling limb may cause the power line to break -- knocking out power in the entire area for several hours.

In rural areas, farmers who have long hay or grain elevators should always make sure they lower the elevator before moving to avoid contact with power lines. Suburban areas have a special hazard with drilling wells or removing the casing from old wells. Each year a number of people are killed when such equipment comes in contact with overhead power lines, says Pfister.

Moving tall equipment and machinery can pose many problems. Advance planning should be done with the power company to check the height and location of electric lines. They will be glad to cooperate in this project -- if notified in advance.

"Remember to 'look up' when working around electricity -- your life may depend on it," is the safety specialist's final advice.

Good Crops Result Of Top Management

Good crop returns just do not happen year after year. Experience, planning and management make it so, as seen by Don Kehler, county extension agent in agriculture.

Proper fertilization and correct placement of plant food nutrients can make a big difference in any crop's response and yield.

Fertilizer is going to be used this fall for wheat, band seeding and topdressing of alfalfa, and experience has shown that the operator who uses fertilizer, according to recommendations based on soil tests, have had the most favorable results.

Bus Robertson, Michigan State University soils specialist, made this comment on a recent survey. He said the farmers who had been soil testing and following fertilizer recommendations are receiving better crop yields than those who have not soil tested or followed the recommendations.

Soil testing is not a toy anymore. It has been developed into a real scientific agricultural tool being used by more farmers every year.

Alfalfa is one crop where commercial fertilizers are not generally used except at planting time. Yet there are dairymen who are topdressing and making fall band seeding who use 250 to 300 pounds of fertilizer each year. These operators are raising four and a half to five tons of top quality alfalfa hay per acre on three-year-old seedings. As lime is needed, they add this too.

Soil samples can be tested at the Tuscola county soil testing laboratory or at the MSU state laboratory. The county laboratory tests for pH, phosphorus and potassium, and the state laboratory tests for these and also magnesium. The cost of a state laboratory test is $1.50 per sample and the county laboratory charges 50c per sample brought in by the individual.

Tuscola county also has a soil sampling and testing service, remarks Kehler. Any person owning land in the county can apply for this service at a cost of 20 cents per tillable acre.

This service sends a competent sampler to the farm, tests the soil samples and gives fertilizer recommendations. Fertilizer recommendations can usually be made for three years on the results of the tests.

Applications for this service can be made at the County Extension Office, or by contacting Marr Sherman, Millington, or Bernard Sonquist of Akron.

A Glacier Passed This Way

LEGEND ICE FRONT
About one million years ago, climatic changes began in the northern part of this continent, causing great masses of ice to accumulate in the Hudson Bay region. Over a long period of years, continental glaciers were formed and ice fanned out from east of Hudson Bay, pushing southward to central Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio. As the so-called Wisconsin glacier approached the Great Lakes area, it moved into the old river valleys and divided into major ice lobes which deepened and broadened the valleys into basins. The ice pushed over all of Michigan and pressed into the watershed of the old Mississippi River system. Its advance was finally halted short of the present Ohio River, when new climatic changes made cold give way to warmth. Then started a grand retreat that gave rise to the most complex succession of lakes known to geologists. The retreat, illustrated above in capsule-form, was marked with many halts and occasional re-advances. As the ice lobes retreated into basins they had carved during their advance, tremendous volumes of meltwater were ponded between the glacier front and the northerly sides of an earlier moraine. Thus were born the first ancestors of what eventually became the Great Lakes.

Meeting Slated at High School

A growing interest in livestock production and feeding in Tuscola county in both swine and beef cattle shows promise of this area becoming a more intensive livestock feeding area, reports Alfred Ballweg, county extension director.

There is a slow but increasing growth in the number of farmers feeding hogs. This is a very healthy situation because it permits a better distribution of labor and helps to supplement the income of many of our cash crop farmers. All livestock producers should keep up to date on "market outlook" and therefore, are invited to attend a meeting to be held in the Cass City high school agricultural room at 8:00 p. m. on Friday, Sept. 7.

Appearing on the program will be John Ferris and Don Stark of Michigan State University who will discuss "livestock outlook." Karl Wright, also of MSU, will discuss "costs in feeding cattle and hogs."

Farmers from Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties are invited. Coffee and doughnuts will be served through the courtesy of the Fullmer Livestock Auction Market.

Hopeful Solution to Water Conflict

For lack of adequate controls, Michigan's boating boom has churned more and more friction between water-use groups, weakened public safety, and generally left recreationists puzzled about their rights on the state's waterways in recent years. Promising to turn the tide on this uneasy situation is a new law going into effect August 1. It sets up a Boating Control Committee composed of one member each from the Secretary of State's office, the Michigan Waterways Commission, and the Conservation Department; with the Michigan Sheriffs Association serving in an advisory capacity. At the request of local governing boards, this three-man committee will hold public hearings and be authorized to establish boat speed limits, regulate the size and horsepower of boat motors, restrict use of motorboats, and adopt whatever other regulations seem necessary to protect public safety on any particular body of water. Such regulations will require final approval by local governing units. Under the new law, the state will provide, on a 2-1 matching basis, up to $20,000 per county each year for enforcement work and equipment.

WILL

Nearly one million boys and girls 16 and 17 years of age, who should be in high school, are not. They have left their books behind and hang out in gnags on street corners, or work casually from time to time at low paid jobs. Few are equipped for regular employment. Many of them are habitués of the juvenile courts.

These are high-school dropouts.

They are a big problem now, and in a few years will be an even bigger problem. The U. S. Labor Department has estimated that within the next 10 years 7,500,000 youths will quit school before finishing high school. Educators are concerned about this prospect, unless the schools are able to provide courses that will keep these young people in school and train them for useful lives.

The number of jobs available for unskilled workers is decreasing year by year, because of advances of technology. But the number of people who will be seeking such jobs is increasing rapidly.

Why are large numbers of young people leaving high school before graduation and why is this problem considered so serious by educators and other civic leaders? Will your child be a high-school dropout?

European Insect New Threat to Michigan Farmers

Michigan farmers may be in serious trouble if scientists don't find a control for a European insect that threatens grain crops. The insect was recently identified as the cereal leaf beetle -- a pest that could cut oat yields from 10 to 50 per cent, reports Alfred Ballweg, county extension director.

G. E. Guyer, chairman of Michigan State University's entomology department, says the insect has been known to destroy grain crops from Spain to Northern Russia. Somehow the beetle has been transported to Michigan where its population has virtually exploded in the last two years. It now covers much of Berrien county.

The adult insect can presently be found on corn but it is not causing extensive damage. It simply chews long, straight streaks in the corn leaves. The adult beetle looks like an asparagus beetle and is mostly metallic green in color. It is most destructive in its larval stage. In that stage, it resembles a Colorado potato beetle, except that its color turns yellow instead of pinkish and its body is covered with a sticky substance that looks like black glue. The larva eats the green outer cells of young oats, leaving only the whitish rib structure of the leaf.

Farmers who suspect the insect is invading their fields are asked to contact the MSU entomology department immediately. The Michigan and U. S. departments of agriculture are working with MSU to track down the insect and work out a program of eradication.

The specialists are worried that even if a chemical control is found it might be too expensive to use or it might leave a harmful residue on the crop.

Guyer says that they may be able to find an effective control by studying the insect's life cycle. He says the insect can be controlled by pesticides or by rearranging cultural practices. Preliminary studies indicate the best time for chemical application would be in early May when the oat plants are young and the insect is in the egg laying or early larval stage. But specialists can't be sure without more research. That's why it's important that farmers be on the lookout for the insect and report any signs of the pest to the MSU entomology department or the State Department of Agriculture. Then the insect can be controlled by stopping it before it gets started.

Several agricultural agencies are already working together to establish a satisfactory control program for the coming season.

LONG AND SHORT OF IT—Shown are four of Ezra Mosher's 25 assorted handguns. Top to bottom: Remington Army-issue cap and ball revolver; .32 caliber single shot with 18-inch barrel; matching .22 caliber derringer, and a five-shot .22 caliber "pepperbox" style derringer. The last three are of unknown makes. (Chronicle photo)

One gun in particular, he has remembered every day of his life for the past 50 years... the one that cost him his right arm. When he was about 21, he was duck hunting from a boat, using a shotgun with a flintlock-type hammer.

As he pulled the gun toward him by the barrel, the hammer caught on a board and when it released it had enough tension to discharge the load into his arm.

Since depression years, he has lived on the same 147-acre farm. He acquired it by taking over a $4,500 debt. He has raised a boy and a girl of his own and three stepsons and a stepdaughter. His son Jim and his family live with him at his farm.

COMMENTS BY KRAFT

You Might Have Noticed A Slight Limp

By Dave Kraft

If any of you have ever paid any particular attention to me, and few people do, especially my wife and child, you may have thought you detected a slight limp in my gait.

You've probably all seen the scene in the movies where somebody makes a toast and then everyone throws their glass into the fireplace.

About 49 years ago, when I was still in college, I went to a party at the home of one of the leading industrialists in a town of about 40,000. His home was what travel folders call palatial.

Among the guests were two French students, an Italian student and a German professor. As the party wore on, the bottled spirits got lower and individual spirits got higher.

Finally, the professor made a toast to the party-giver, drank his drink and threw his glass into the fire. The three students followed suit and soon everyone in the room got into the act.

What has this to do with my suspected limp? I was standing in front of the fireplace . . . I had more lacerations than a roast steer at a Texas barbecue.

That's not the whole cause of it. Another time, shortly after I started college, I went to a sock hop . . . that's where you leave your shoes at the door and then when it's time to go home, there's a mad scramble and at least two or three people are maimed for life.

Anyhow, after the dance was over, I went to find my shoes and they were gone . . . the tragedy was that it was the first time I'd worn them.

I was driving a 1929 Model A Roadster at the time and it wasn't in the best of shape. My electrical system consisted of an electric lamp cord and everytime you let up on the gas, the lights went out.

My windshield wipers were manual . . . I used to have this little Mexican boy, Manuel Ortiz, ride on the front and swish the wipers back and forth.

The big problem was the steering . . . it didn't. I had to get out and kick the tires every time I wanted to go around a corner.

Have you ever tried to kick the tires of a Model A Roadster with your stockings feet . . . while it was moving? After the first couple of kicks, your arches collapse like a tin can with all the air sucked out.

That's not the real reason I limp . . . you see, there's this nail in the bottom of my shoe and . . .

We went to the County Fair in Caro last week. It didn't seem big or as active as last year . . . we had a good time, however.

I got sick on three rides and spent $5.00 winning a 79-cent Teddy bear.

Tried my luck at the archery booth . . . broke two balloons (threw the bow at them when I missed with all the arrows), lost three arrows (two of them went through the top of the tent and the third isn't really lost . . . the last time I saw it, it was sticking in the booth attendant's leg).

Sally had a nice time at her fair. We set her on one of the tables in the 4-H building and she ate part of a cake and knocked two displays on the floor before we could stop her.

Summertime is motor scooter time. There's someone in town who finds it inconvenient to ride his muffler-less scooter at any time except after the baby is asleep.

Then it's necessary for him to drive past with his motor wound to the pin.

I'm going to stretch a rope across the street and attach a camera to go off as soon as he hits it. It'll be interesting to see the look on his face when the motor scooter stops and he doesn't.

There's nothing to worry about or take care of. My draperies stay a whole lot cleaner. For all the electric appliances we have—range, water heater, clothes dryer, air conditioner—we think our $35 per month electric bill is a real bargain. Believe me, once you have electric heat, you won't want anything else."

It Seems To Me Does That Hospital Bill Bug You?

By the Rev. Robert J. Searls

Does that hospital bill 'bug' you? It does many people... but is actually less today than ever before, considered item by item. Your bill usually includes a daily rental for your room, which, while increased, amounts to less now than it previously did, when you realize how much sooner a patient is released these days. The 'extra' includes blood tests (essential), X-rays, medications, etc. These things in turn account for the fact that more patients go home these days than formerly did when hospitals were "places to die"; now, it seems to me, they are temples of life and light.

And do you realize how many more people help the hospitalized patient now than formerly? Doctors and nurses in hospitals we take for granted, but in addition there are orderlies, nurses' aides, volunteers who help with library and television services, plus kitchen, caretaking, laundry and office personnel. Then there are the 'lab' people, medical records clerks, etc., not to overlook religious personnel, etc.

Now, about that bill... if my loved one is the patient, "hang the expense."

Or so "it seems to me."

It seems that new progress in 'rocketry' comes to our attention weekly. Now it is the story about

Gemini, the name given the moon-probe project. The initial trip may involve the 'payload' (the man and an amazing number of items) being taken to the moon by one rocket and home by another. All this constantly amazes me and my only contribution is the fact that school teachers have known for years that the moon is made of green cheese.

Congratulations to project Gemini, and count me out 'cause I'm happily married.

Or so it seems to me.

I noticed in a recent Sunday paper that Katherine Porter's book, SHIP OF FOOLS, is at the tip top of the best seller list.

The New York critics appear unaware of my review, so take your choice... it's them or me!

Or so it seems to me.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Sez:

Dear Mister Editor:

Zeke Grubb's preacher dropped by the country store for a spell Saturday night, said the Congress, come Sunday morning, might have to declare his church a disaster area.

The trouble all started, he told the fellers, when Ellie Sanders, who does the solo singing in the Choir, told him she aimed to do a special for Sunday, one of them new "Gospel Songs" that is sung grand opera style. He allowed as how, when Ellie gits on one of them pieces, she bellers and hollers like a calf lost on the range.

The last time she done one of 'em, he said, it scared the hiccups out of little Susie Plumber. The doctors had been trying to cure her for three days. But it wasn't a net gain, he reported, on account of Susie has had to take them tranquilizer pills ever since.

Anyhow, said the good Parson, he got Ellie to run over the song for him and he was plum floored at the first note and was still on the floor when she got through. He said it's got about the same tune as that song, "Mama Loves To Twist." He told the fellers he liked that tune pritty good when he was out slopping the hogs or feeding the chickens but it was a little on the Judas Iscariot side for the church.

He reported he was dreading the results when Ellie cut loose with that thing Sunday morning. He predicted a few of the old folks would faint and the young 'uns would start patting their feet. If preachers wasn't so scarce right now, he allowed, the Deacons would give him his walking papers. But he reckoned they would figger he was better than nothing.

But to give Ellie her due, he said, she was worth her weight in gold for church weddings. At most of them affairs, he explained, they decorate the church and altar with bushes and flowers till they got the place looking like one of them Tarzan sets in the movies. He said he always got lost once or twice at ever wedding but Ellie's songs was coming in loud and clear and he followed 'em till he reached the piano — then he knowed where he was. He recollected one time when he was plum lost. A flash went off like lightning had struck the church. He jumped about two foot and his glasses fell off. He found out later that one of them photographers was hiding in the bushes and had took a picture.

The good Parson left a little early, said when Ellie put on one of her specials he always tried to git a sermon to match. He claimed a preacher that didn't cooperate with the solo singer in his Choir wasn't long for the clergy. The problem now, he said, was to find a short sermon that would match the tune of "Mama Loves To Twist."

Yours truly,

Uncle Tim

Do you like to cook with Michigan beans? During the Fairgrove Bean Festival there will be a "Bean Bake-off." This bake-off is open to men, women and youth between 12 and 17 years old.

There are nine classes for adults to enter and include the following: sweetened baked beans, beans baked with tomatoes, bean salads, yeast breads, non-yeast breads, cakes, cookies, pies and novelty products, such as candy. All products must have beans used as one of the ingredients.

The 12 to 17-year-olds can enter the following classes: yeast bread, non-yeast bread, cakes, cookies, pies and novelty products.

You can secure entry blanks at the Farm Bureau office or pick it up when you turn in your product. The bake-off will be held at the Fairgrove school cafeteria. All entries must be in Sept. 4, not later than 11 a.m. Your baked product must include your recipe and the number of persons the recipe serves. Any recipe entered in previous years cannot be accepted. In other words, we are looking for new, attractive ways to use our state product, the Michigan bean.

I will be having the home economics extension groups' chairman in for their officers' training on Sept. 5 at 1:30 p. m. in the Court-house. Then on Sept. 6 the council members will have their officers' training in the Courthouse at 1:30 p. m. Both chairmen and council members must have their handbooks for their meeting.

This is jam and jelly-making time of the year. From the questions asked me, I think one of the weakest links in the chain of making jams and jellies is the paraffin covering. Many homemakers just use too much paraffin. The heavier the layer, the more it pulls away from the sides of the jelly glass and this allows the jelly to spoil.

The paraffin should not be more than 1/8 inch thick. This calls for about one tablespoon of melted paraffin for a standard six-ounce jar. Many times bubbles will appear in the paraffin. I would like to suggest that you prick any air bubbles that appear. Bubbles cause holes to form in the paraffin as it hardens and the jelly or jam may not be sealed perfectly. To be real sure, I like to use the self-seal jars that you can seal completely and not use paraffin at all.

When you have improper sealing, it causes jelly or jam to darken at the top of the container. The product may ferment or mold and not be acceptable for consumption.

Michigan's Birth Rate in Steady Decline Since 1957

By Elmer E. White

Michigan Press Association

Michigan's birth rate has been on a steady decline for the past four years, State Health Department officials note.

The number of births recorded in 1961 was 192,230, a drop of 2,698 from the 1960 report.

The state's birth rate has been dropping over the last four years at a rate of 1.2 to 1.4 per cent annually, said State Health Commissioner Albert E. Heustis.

***

A highlight of tourism in Michigan through last fall is Mackinac Island, which this year is celebrating the 150th anniversary of the War of 1812. That was the year the British captured Fort Mackinac in a surprise attack on the American garrison.

The fort museum on the island depicts the original garrison life through various years with manikins fully dressed in the uniform of the day.

While no automobiles are allowed on the island, visitors may soak in the historic atmosphere of the tourist spot on bicycles, horseback, in horse-driven cabs, or short walks.

***

The island fort was built by the British in the 1780's after they abandoned the old Fort Michilimackinac, at the present Mackinaw City on the mainland.

This restored fort also is a highly-regarded tourist attraction.

The fort on the island was turned over to American forces in 1796 but was recaptured by the British in the War of 1812. It was turned back to the Americans in 1815 and remained an active army post until 1895.

State officials turned a major portion of the island into the current tourist attraction by making it a state park development.

***

Mental health programs have increased and improved greatly in the past 12 years under the direction of State Director Charles F. Wagg, according to the Mental Health Commission.

Wagg recently was nominated by the Commission for a national award recognizing contributions to the field of mental retardation.

In this specialized field of mental health, the Commission noted Michigan's home and training school locations increased from five in 1950 to nine this year. The facilities to accommodate mentally retarded children jumped from the care of 2,800 patients to 10,082 in the same 12-year period.

The staff serving in institutions for the mentally retarded also was increased during the 12 years, from one staff member for every 8.77 patients in 1950 to one staffer to every 2.5 patients this year.

Expansion of therapy departments, improvement of the quality as well as number of staffers and extension of clinical services in the operation of 19 child guidance clinics and 12 branches were also cited as major accomplishments during the period.

Wagg started his service with the Mental Health Department 25 years ago and was named director in 1949. A year later he started a long-range program of improvement which prompted the Commission citation for service.

***

The annual calm of the summer has finally arrived in the State Capitol.

The legislative chambers, busy for about six months each year, become almost deathly quiet during the summer months between sessions.

In an election year particularly, the interim committees named to study various state problems frequently delay their working sessions until well after the August primary.

Soon to begin, however, are the endless committee meetings on laws or ideas for laws relating to trading stamps, state parks, juvenile delinquents, community colleges, and scores of other miscellaneous subjects.

In the interim between the 1961 and 1962 legislative sessions, some 70 committees existed to study various sections or groups of laws. Less than 10 per cent of the committees turned in reports or recommendations.

Of the committees which do work on the study assigned, however, most present valuable recommendations to the Legislature: either proposing regulations or recommending retention of the status quo.

Don't carry a grudge—you only hurt yourself by carrying an unnecessary load.

***

Teachers in the school of experience never have to worry about getting top pay.

***

Too many people allow their minds to become stagnant from the lack of exercise.
