

Tire Iron Toter Fells Fat Rat

A 30-minute life and death struggle as dramatic as any television episode was waged at the corner of Main and Seeger Streets in Cass City early Thursday morning, Sept. 27.

It was the age-old conflict of man against animal and, as usual, man won out.

The man was Dick Harbin, 23-year-old General Cable employee, recently from Port Hope. The other combatant was a mammoth, nearly foot-long rat.

Harbin was returning home from the night shift at about 1:30 a.m. Thursday when he saw the rat crossing the street.

"At first I thought it was a muskrat, it was so big," says Harbin. "I backed up and shined the lights on him and he stopped."

By this time, the rat had returned to the sidewalk and was backed up against the wall of Wood's Drug Store.

"I looked at him for a minute, trying to decide whether it was a muskrat or a rat," Harbin continues. "Finally, I went around to the trunk and rummaged around for a weapon. A tire iron was the longest thing I could find."

"All this time, I was quite brave," Harbin explains, "but when I started for him and he snarled, I lost some of my courage."

Then began a silent seesaw struggle won by the rat. "I tried to get around behind him, but everytime I did, he'd hear me and turn around."

Finally Harbin conceded and decided to resort to intelligence instead of force. Using a hammer, he propped a large plastic cleaning bag up between the wall and a barber pole.

"Then I started throwing things to drive him into the bag," tells Harbin. "I threw baseball spikes, screwdrivers, my jack, boxes and paper, but he wouldn't go."

Once he almost went in, but the bag collapsed. After setting it up again, Harbin made another concentrated drive and the rat was more obliging. It was just a matter of dispatching him.

The battle had its more humorous side.

"I got to thinking about it later," says Harbin. "Here I was, standing in the middle of the sidewalk in the glare of the headlights with a tire iron raised over my head."

"Everybody looked, but nobody stopped. One guy almost ended up in the ST&H Service Station before he realized what was happening. I was hoping the police would go by."

"It's probably just as well they didn't, they might have hauled me away, rat or no rat," he concluded.

Urge Extra Effort As Hospital Nears End of Fund Drive

Progress in the Cass City Hospital Building Fund drive indicates that there is a fighting chance to reach the $75,000 goal by Oct. 11, the closing date of the campaign, George Dillman stated today.

Speaking for the campaign executive committee, Dillman added, "With $56,315 pledged we have reached 75 per cent of our goal. Although this is excellent progress, we still have a big task ahead of us to raise $18,685 more within about a week."

"Because of the shortness of time remaining, we hope that those who have not to date been contacted and who wish to make a Founders' pledge will phone the campaign office. Arrangement will then be made for a volunteer campaign helper to call on a person to get the pledge card signed."

"Among the hundreds of givers to the drive are many of our leading farmers and businessmen. We are happy so many of our public-spirited citizens are being included in this important community project."

Mrs. Stanley Kim, cochairman of the Loyalty Founders Committee, reported excellent progress is being made by the members of her committee. She stated, "There is genuine interest in having the proposed new building, as indicated by the really sacrificial three-year pledges being made by people of average income. The gifts of many represent an expression of appreciation for the services of the Cass City Hospital through the years."

Angus McEachin, cochairman of the Loyalty Founders Committee, stated, "We are pleased that people throughout the area served by the Cass City Hospital are giving generously to the drive. Many realize that by giving, lives will be saved. Our drive for the new building is really a crusade to save lives."

Lesinski Lashes At Romney in Brief Talk Here

Lieutenant Governor T. John Lesinski told some 35 area residents and county Democratic officials that George Romney was a "character of compromise" Friday morning at the New Gordon Hotel.

After lashing out at the GOP candidate for governor, he said that he felt the campaign was "progressing well" and that he had been receiving a fine reception outstate.

Lesinski delved into practical politics for a moment in his brief talk by urging the party faithful to work for "selective registration."

Selective registration means getting a copy of the poll book, finding out who is not registered and then seeing that all Democrats are registered.

At election time, have a person at the polls to check off these names and make sure that all favorable votes are cast, Lesinski said.

The Lieutenant Governor was introduced by Dick Eria.

Increases Valuation Co. Board Divides School District

Property valued at approximately $18,120 was set into the Cass City School District Thursday, Sept. 27, by the County Board of Education following the board's dissolving of the Humes School District.

County Superintendent of Schools, William A. Scott, announced that 20 per cent of the Humes district was set into the Cass City District, with the remainder going to the Caro district. Total valuation of the district is $906,016.

Assets of the district, totaling $2,297,000 were divided on the same basis.

The school was the first to dissolve out of 12 districts informed earlier in the year that Caro would no longer accept their high school students.

Three others have annexed to Caro. Of the remaining eight, one, Lewis District, will vote on Friday, Oct. 5, on whether or not to annex to Akron-Faigrove-Thane District, also affected, did not vote on the annexation, according to Scott, because of pending property transfers.

Injuries Slight In Area Accident

Minor injuries were reported in one of two accidents investigated during the past week by Tuscola county sheriff's deputies.

A 15-year-old Cass City boy was released Sunday from Hills and Dales General Hospital where he was treated for injuries suffered in a car accident early Saturday morning a mile north of Deford.

Released from the hospital was Frank Mosher, 15. He was treated for lacerations of the forehead and elbow. An occupant in the car Mosher was driving, John D. Crawford, 17, Novesta township, suffered a bruised shoulder and a slight abrasion on the forehead.

According to a report from Deputy Sheriff Carl Palmateer, Mosher, unlicensed and driving a car belonging to Crawford's mother, failed to negotiate a dead end road, a mile north of Deford at about 2:00 a.m. Saturday.

No injuries were listed in a two-car accident Tuesday in Kingston involving a Kingston man and a Crosswell woman.

The accident reportedly took place when a car driven by Basil L. Simpson, 26, Kingston, made a right turn at the intersection of M-46 and River Street in Kingston and struck the left front corner of a car driven by Audrey E. Farr, 33, Crosswell.

According to investigating officer Deputy Sheriff George Baird, the accident happened at 10:10 a.m.

The program will be under the direction of Supt. Willis Campbell, in charge of the education phase of the clean-up project.

President C. R. Hunt has issued a proclamation making the dates for the campaign official and urging the village to get behind the project.

Others slated to speak are Robert Stickle, driver training; Police Chief Carl Palmateer, and Dick Eria who will be master of ceremonies.

Featured in the parade will be the band, school children, boy scouts, club floats and other individual entries. A clean-up queen and court will be selected and prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. Parade judges are Mrs. Gerald Prieskorn and Mrs. Richard Case.

Mrs. Bauer has urged residents and business men to start looking for things around their homes and businesses that need to be cleaned-up, fixed-up or painted, in order to guarantee the success of the campaign.

Mystery Object Still Unidentified

A mystery balloon-like object that floated across Cass City skies late Monday morning is unidentified despite several attempts to find out what it was.

Sighted at about 10:00 a.m. Monday by Luke Tuckey, the balloon was visible to the naked eye and was moving in a south-westerly direction.

When the Chronicle was notified by Tuckey's son, Charles, a Walbro employee, at 11:45, the balloon was still heading in the same direction but was just barely visible to the naked eye.

Seen through a pair of binoculars, the balloon seemed to be comprised of a clear or silver plastic dome, dragging uninflated fabric and apparatus.

The balloon changed shapes, appearing at times perfectly round, then oblong and then pointed. It also seemed to be turning all the time.

A check with the Port Austin Radar Station failed to turn up any concrete information on the object. Sources there said that the thing, if a weather balloon, was either from Bad Axe, Flint or Tri-City Airport weather stations. A telephone call revealed that there is no U.S. weather station listed at Bad Axe.

The younger Tuckey estimated the balloon to be traveling at about seven to eight thousand feet. He also estimated it to be about 20 feet across.

Community Chest Drive Underway

The annual Elkland-Novesta Community Chest drive started Monday night when 57 persons attended a kick-off dinner meeting, at the New Gordon Hotel.

A whirlwind drive is scheduled this year, according to President Paul Alfano. The drive started Monday and is expected to be over Oct. 19.

Again this year, volunteer solicitors are aiming for $7,000 to meet the needs of the many charitable groups the organization serves.

Introduced at the meeting were the outgoing officers and directors. They included President Archie Hicks, Treasurer Mrs. Maxine Profit and Vice-president Richard Root.

Last year a total of $7,196.19 was donated and $7,316.84 spent.

The amount of cash on hand to start the year dipped to $1,794.74.

Although the money goes to many different agencies through the United Health and Welfare fund, much of it is used in Cass City.

For example, the Cass City Little League and Pony League each received $200 and the summer recreation program was given $400. The local Boy and Girl Scout programs received a total of $650.

Alfano also introduced Supt. Willis Campbell to the group. Campbell will ramrod the campaign for the 14th straight year.

Under his direction the Chest has never failed to reach its goal. Invocation at the dinner was presented by the Rev. George Getchel.

From the Editor's Corner

Mrs. Lucile Bauer is probably one of Cass City's most controversial persons . . . we've had many battles with her through the years and have the scars to prove it.

Lucile sets herself to a task with what mildly may be called a "singleness" of purpose. In her quest for achievement, she undoubtedly steps on many toes.

But we've never seen her tackle a task and not bring it to a successful conclusion. Her latest, clean-up, paint-up, fix-up, is going great guns as the community has rallied around to make the town beautiful. It's a project that deserves support.

If you are not already keeping the barn door locked tight, you'd better start right now. Cow number 18 in the area was swiped from around Elkton recently and then their rustlers are still on the prowl.

This quip is going the rounds in Cass City these days: Going to school in Mississippi is getting to be more dangerous than riding a rocket in orbit.

It just goes to show, that in the minds of most laymen riding a rocket is getting to be old stuff . . . Wednesday's shoot caused scarcely a ripple in the activities in town and very little comment . . . Compare that with John Glenn's ride a few short months ago and you begin to believe that when man reaches the moon the average man will yawn and wonder what else is on TV that night.

Antlerless deer hunting will be held concurrently with the regular firearm buck season this fall in 32 northern areas shown above where forests have been growing up and over-browsing has occurred to create serious winter food shortages for whitetails. Nearly 86,000 permits will be issued for anti-deer hunting with the hope that hunters will beat winter to the draw in taking some 37,000 surplus antlerless deer. If not harvested by hunters in November, this surplus will be wasted by starvation and other causes of mortality next winter. Permit application cards will be available at hunting and fishing license dealers in mid-September. They are to be mailed in completed form to the Department of Conservation, Lansing 26, and postmarked not later than Oct. 10. Hunters are reminded that a large part of areas 5, 16, and 22 involve private hunting club lands. Permit applications must be made for numbered areas—not counties. Hospital Campaign Explained to Lions

Lions Club District 11-D Governor Lloyd Jacoby is slated to pay a visit to the Cass City Lions Club Monday, Nov. 5, local members were notified Monday at their regular meeting at Martin's Restaurant.

In honor of the event, the club voted to make the meeting a "Ladies Night."

Featured speaker at Monday's meeting was Ward Jenks, Cass City Hospital Fund Drive director. Jenks explained the reason for the drive and what is expected to be accomplished with the money received.

After giving a brief history of the hospital, he explained why the area needs two hospitals, comparing the choice as "Democracy at work."

In a lighter moment, when asked if the drive was accepting money from service clubs, Jenks answered, "It's not a matter of accepting... they just haven't offered." He explained further the drive was not seeking money from the village clubs to avoid a feeling of "double taxation."

In other business, Paul O'Harris, Broom-Sale co-chairman, announced that the business district still has to be covered. It is expected that the final part of the sale will be taken care of the latter part of this week.

The club also voted to send $50.00 to the Pigeon District 11-D meeting for the Leader Dog School, Rochester.

O'Harris reported on a recent meeting in Vassar that was calculated to help area clubs find new projects. He stated that in view of the reports heard at the session, "we are probably the best financially situated club in the area."

Also a guest at the meeting, besides Jenks, was Millard Ball, co-owner of the M&R Standard Service Station.

Many succeed by making the most of others' opportunities.

TIRE INFLATION

Aside from faulty alignment, nothing will wear the tread off your tires as quickly as underinflation. Yet service records show that nine out of ten motorists keep less pressure in their tires than they need.

Here are some figures to illustrate the cost of underinflated tires: total tire life is reduced 5 per cent if tires are kept only 10 per cent underinflated; tire life decreases 16 per cent at 20 per cent underinflation; at 30 per cent underinflation a tire will last only two thirds of normal. At 50 per cent of normal inflation, tire life would drop to 22 per cent.

Overinflation up to 15 per cent is permissible and is even advocated by some authorities for better than normal tire wear, though this of course makes for a "harder" ride and tends to produce body looseness. A sensible general rule seems to be to keep your tires slightly higher than standard recommendations for better wear, or at the recommended figure if maximum softness of ride is desired.

When buying new tires, try inflating them to double normal pressure, then deflate to desired road pressure. Keep to 40 mph for the first 100 miles. This flexing of the rubber without heat will considerably lengthen tire life.

Incidentally, it is usually useless to balance new tires until they've had a chance to "settle" themselves over several hundred miles. It is best to buy new tires in matched sets. We will be glad to give you a liberal allowance for unused tread.

THANKS FOR THE FINE RECEPTION GIVEN THE 1963 CHEVROLET. We were sure you'd like it.

Freeways Stimulate Travel

MICHIGAN EXPERIENCED the biggest summer travel season in its history this year. State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie reports traffic volumes during July and August were up five to 10 per cent compared to last year. Most of the increase is the result of travel stimulated by more than 800 miles of new freeways like this one in Northern Michigan.

Foreign Hotspots WSCS Meet Topic

Sixty-three persons heard Mrs. Jerry Shea's program, "Report from Lands of Decision," delivered Monday night at the regular monthly meeting of the WSCS at the church parlors.

Mrs. Malvina Howarth gave a report on Argentina; Mrs. Delbert Profit told of conditions in Southern Rhodesia, and Mrs. Shea described the work of the church in Pakistan.

"Unfortunately, for a first-time offender the maximum penalty is $100 fine and costs. For second offenses, a jail sentence of 30 days can be levied," Loesel said.

One man had fixed his gas pumps to give a fifth of a gallon less than full measure for over a holiday week end. Each of his 18 pumps were set the same. We caught him, Loesel concluded, but the maximum fine was still just $100 and costs.

Pigeon Priest Shows Holy Land Slides To Altar Society

Father Bernard Kirchman provided the Rotary Altar Society with an interesting program at the monthly meeting Monday evening. Pastor of St. Francis Borjia in Pigeon, Father Kirchman visited the Holy Land last April during Easter Week. He showed and narrated slides of his trip.

Plais are being made by the Society for the annual bazaar in November. The addition of fresh eggs, poultry and home-canned goods will be an added attraction this year. Chairmen for bazaar projects are: Mrs. Enoch Rutkowski, Mrs. Clifford Demo, Mrs. Julia Tekili and Mrs. Alden Asher.

Mrs. Michael Patrone was a guest. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Tekili, Mrs. Demo, Mrs. Stephanie Kujzaida and Mrs. Myrtle Hennessey.

AS IT IS—Jim McDonald points to the farm pond that covers part of the area in which his father unearthed the skeleton of a huge mastodon 35 years ago. The animal, originally 30 feet long, was said to have roamed Michigan over 15,000 years ago. The elder McDonald died in 1934, when Jim was just eight months old, and two years later Mrs. McDonald sold the skeleton to a Detroit man. Two years ago, Jim, with the financial aid of the government, turned part of the L-shaped excavation into a 14-foot deep pond. (Chronicle photo)

Grant Attorney Fees in Divorce

Attorney's fees were granted Wednesday, Sept. 26, in the divorce suit filed by Mrs. Frances Coykendall, Cass City, against her husband, Cornelius, during a Circuit Court session in Caro.

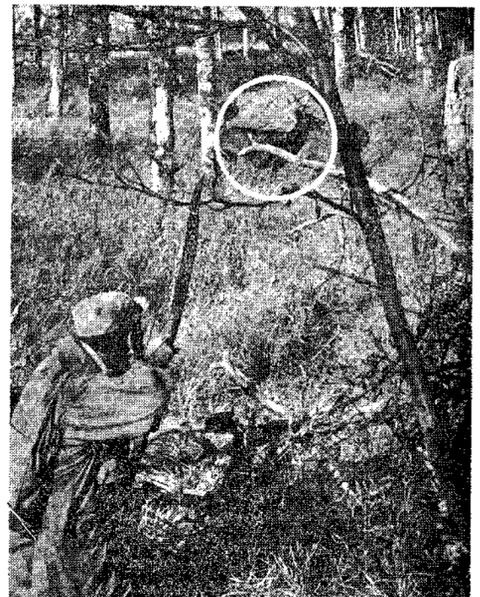

Mr. Coykendall was ordered to pay Mrs. Coykendall's attorney $150. The order, according to a court source, was routine and is necessary in all divorce cases.

Mrs. Coykendall charges extreme and repeated cruelty in her suit. The couple were married in St. Johns in August, 1932.

AS IT WAS—Francis McDonald, in this cut from a post card, holds the two enormous tusks belonging to the gigantic mastodon skeleton he unearthed on his farm while digging a ditch 35 years ago last August. The discovery brought national and scientific attention to McDonald and Cass City and sent a peak of 3,000 persons per week to his 120-acre farm northwest of the village.

Aiming for Action

With his heart beating a little faster than usual, an archer takes aim for a split-second showdown between his shooting skill and the fleeting speed of a bounding whitetail. This is that moment of truth bowmen dream about as they twang away at practice targets during the off season. It's the hoped-for challenge that is expected to call upwards of 30,000 archers back to Michigan's woods this October. Only some 2,000 of these latter-day Robin Hoods will get their deer, but this will by no means be a full measure of what bow hunting is all about. Successful or not, most archers get a special thrill stalking game Indian-style against autumn's many-splendored backdrop of colors. For many, this is the "meat" of the hunt.—Mich. Dept. of Conservation

35 Years Ago Cass City Made Scientific History

Thirty-five years ago a 33-year-old Cass City farmer, digging a ditch to drain water onto a deep-burning muck fire, discovered the remains of a huge prehistoric mastodon and turned his farm and Cass City into the center of national and scientific attention.

While digging the ditch to put out a fire started by Mexican laborers in late August, 1927, Francis McDonald struck what he first thought was a log.

Only after he had almost completely smashed it, did he realize that it was not a log, but something resembling ivory.

As the ditch progressed, he removed a stump and found a gigantic skull bone.

Realizing that he had made a real find, McDonald called in a geologist to help in the excavation that was to uncover the remains of the mastodon, a shaggy elephant-like monster that roamed Michigan 15,000 years ago!

"It was an exciting thing," when he found it," tells Mrs. McDonald. "Everyone was in a roar."

When the bones were finally excavated, with the aid of a Dr. Charles C. Mook of the staff of the American Museum of Natural History, Washington, D. C., they included the tusks, measuring nine feet (the one he thought was a log) and 10 feet in length and weighing about 180 pounds each, and the complete skull. Also among the bones were the front leg, the lower half of another front leg, all the ribs on one side, a complete foot, save for eight of the 25 toes, and other bones. The skull weighed several hundred pounds.

"At first I thought I had found the remains of a fossil alligator when I came upon the skull," McDonald was to state a few years later in an article for a Detroit newspaper.

"Then I unearthed another tusk and knew the animal to be a mastodon. Dr. Mook helped excavate the rest of it and painted the bones with a preservative. Some day I'll let a museum have it, but at present, I'm going to keep it here for study. I certainly hate to think of parting with the old fellow."

McDonald, then a bachelor, was operating his 120-acre farm alone. After the news got out, he had to hire four men to help farm and to help show the bones.

"He charged 25 cents admission," tells Mrs. McDonald, "He had to because he had to hire help to take care of it. People would pull him in off the field or out of bed at all times of the day or night. It was terrible."

The exhibition made over $500 in one week, representing over 3,000 persons. A Chronicle news article published shortly after the find reported that upwards of 400 persons per day were visiting the farm.

Mr. McDonald died in 1934 of appendicitis, leaving his wife and three sons to care for the farm and the remains of the mastodon. Two years later, nine years after the discovery of the bones, Mrs. McDonald sold the exhibit to Lee Barrett, Detroit, for $300.

The bones finally wound up on display in the old Detroit City Hall. Mrs. McDonald believes they were removed to the new city hall when it was completed.

McDonald's mastodon was about 150 years old when the beast died, presumably of old age. Of the 14 mastodon discoveries at the time, the local find was the largest and most northerly discovery.

He was an estimated 30 feet in length, including his tusks!

According to the article from the Detroit paper, the bones of the animal go far beyond the dawn of history. The big animal was the companion of the Indian in ranging the forests, but the roots of its family tree extend back into the Upper Oligocene time, which some geologists estimate at 3,000,000 year ago.

The first mastodons arrived in America by way of the Bering Straits, then a bridge from Asia. They used their tusks as spades and fed themselves with their trunks. The species remained until the coming of the glaciers.

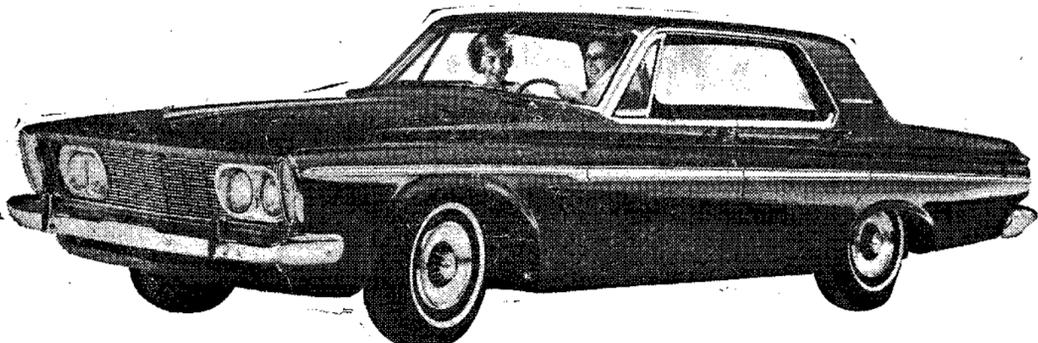

Not much is left at the McDonald farm to show that it was once the center of so much attention. All Mrs. McDonald has to show of the event is a postcard of her husband holding the two gigantic tusks and the aforementioned newspaper article.

Her son Jim, now operating the farm, has a watch fob made of a piece of one of the tusks.

Even the excavation hole has been changed. Two years ago, Jim, in cooperation with the government, turned part of the acre-wide "L" shaped excavation into a 14-foot deep farm pond. He also stocked it with fish.

College Courses May Be Mobile

Like the mountain and Moham-med, agricultural short courses at Michigan State University will be brought to the students -- if there is enough interest.

MSU, which has a record of one of the most successful short course programs in the country, is planning a series of courses especially for young farmers in Michigan's "Thumb" area.

Alfred Ballweg, county extension director in Tuscola county, announces that a study is under way to determine interests of young farmers in Huron, Senlac, Lapeer, St. Clair and Tuscola counties.

During the next few weeks young farmers in these counties will be contacted to assist short course instructors at East Lansing to plan courses that are of interest in this region -- one of the "bread baskets" of rural Michigan.

Michigan State officials point out that courses held in the state would be taught by qualified instructors and carry regular short course credit. Most subjects would be taught by staff members at

MSU. Nominal fees would be charged for each course.

Among the possible subjects which would be offered are farm management, animal husbandry, farm mechanics and engineering, dairying, crop and soil management, and disease and insect control for both crops and livestock.

County Director Ballweg advised interested young farmers in-terested in such courses to contact the Extension Service office in Court House, Caro, and points out that this is not an enrollment for courses to be taught this winter but merely a survey to estimate the interest in having these courses available. This will enable many to take advantage of advanced training while carrying on the farm business.

It costs more to support one bad habit than many good ones.

Auxiliary Votes To Donate to Landscaping Project

Members of the Hills and Dales General Hospital Women's Auxiliary voted to donate $25.00 for the purchase of bulbs to be planted during the coming Clean-up, Paint-up Campaign and in conjunction with fall landscaping work around the hospital. The decision was made at the group's regular meeting Monday, Sept. 24.

Mrs. Richard Palm, chairman of the bridge tournament, reported that the project is under way, with 64 women participating. The tournament is a fund raising project for the Auxiliary.

In other business, members learned that about two dozen puppets are distributed each month under the direction of Mrs. Cameron Wallace to child patients at the hospital. The group also learned that over 100 sheets have been mended since the first of the year, according to a report from Mrs. Grant Hutchinson.

Five members were to have attended the East Central District Workshop in East Tawas yesterday (Wednesday) and an invitation has been extended to members to attend the two-day State Auxiliary Workshop at Hidden Valley, near Gaylord, on October 16-17.

Communion Services Slated at Churches

Four area churches are slated to observe World-wide Communion Sunday, Oct. 7, during their regular church services, according to their ministers.

Local churches expected to observe the event are the First Presbyterian Church, the First Methodist Church, the Evangelical United Brethren and the Church of the Nazarene.

Communion in many denominations all over the world is celebrated on the same day.

The world has never been a problem in itself--only full of problem people.

"Die-lute'em" Girl Was in Music Man

By Dave Kraft

We went to the Caro showing of "The Music Man" the other night. Wonderful show. Terrific show.

Except for the woman who played Shirley Jones' mother. I can't remember her name, but I hate her.

I'll tell you how much I hate her... I hate her from another picture yet.

She was none other than Sophie, the "die-lute'em" girl of Spic-N-Span fame. Darn near spoiled the whole picture.

Everytime she came on, I got the feeling I was home in front of the television set and she was going to tell how I "can't water down those liquid cleaners 'cause it takes all the power out of them" and like that.

It's always surprising to find out how many popular songs originate with hit shows like "The Music Man." Of course, there are those songs which the title immediately brings to mind, but there were others, like "Till There Was You" and "Gary, Indiana" that I had no idea were connected with the show.

Speaking of commercials, have you ever watched a certain commercial and hoped that just once something would go wrong or that the characters would rise up in revolt and pull a switch ending?

The one I think has all kinds of possibilities along this line is the ballpoint pen commercial. You know... the one where the writer is using the pen, it fouls up, he turns around, does something with the pen and then starts writing again.

I always wish it would go something like this:

"This is Emmet Schurdlu. He is the construction foreman on a giant skyscraper construction job high over New York City. Up here, it is important that you have a dependable ink pen. (You better believe it.)

"Wait a second... his pen has stopped writing. Now he's doing something to his pen... now he's started writing again."

"Well, what's this? It seems to have stopped writing again. He's shaking it up and down. It still won't write. He shakes it again. Still no write.

"He shakes it harder... nothing. Now he has it in both hands and he seems to be bending it as if he were... He did! He broke it in two!"

"Now he's hurled the pieces over the side of the building and he seems to be climbing onto the guard rail as if he were getting ready to jump. He is! He's going to jump.

"No! Schurdlu, come back. It's just a commercial... We'll buy you a new pen. Please, Schurdlu, we're on television. Don't... Al-right for you, Schurdlu."

How about Dick Harbin and that rat? (See story elsewhere in this issue.) Brings back memories of my first rat hunting episode at the Vassar dump. Seems like he'd be a good man to back you up.

Here is something for pure coincidence. That Wednesday night, a friend and I did some rat hunting. I'd just bought a new rifle and I wanted to try it out.

There seemed to be no rats at the village dump, so we took a quick trip to Vassar.

We were on our way home and had just turned the corner by Curley Calka's when my friend suddenly yelled, "What's that? Was it a muskrat?" I didn't see the animal but I figured it was the same one that Dick tangled with.

I suppose we could have stopped and dispatched it with a quick rifle shot but Carl Palmazzer gets real touchy about shooting guns inside the village. Besides, I liked Dick's story better.

Charlie Goff, owner of the M-81 Motel, dropped in the other day to rub salt in an already festering wound. He had a picture of his motel that some joker from Flint had reportedly taken from an airplane for a post card order, a year ago.

It was beautiful. So sharp and well focused. Too sharp, as a matter of fact.

Not that I'm jealous, mind you, but just between you and me, I think he either climbed a telephone pole or put his camera on a long stick.

I don't feel too bad. I may not be able to get aerial photos, but Charlie never got his postcards, either.

Criticism is easier for all of us to give than receive.

It's a waste of time to think unless you are ready to act.

There's always talk of inflation, but nobody seems to care what happens to our currency just as long as it remains current.

THE ANSWER?

After reading some magazines half the world thinks it has discovered how the other half lives.

BOOK REVIEW Flower Drum Song Is Still Entertaining

By the Rev. Robert J. Searls

THE FLOWER DRUM SONG, by C. Y. Lee, has been a popular book since it was published in 1957, and has been made into both a stage play and a motion picture. I saw neither of these, but re-reading the book (presented at a popular price last spring by the Ben Franklin Store) I was captivated once again.

Ostensibly, it is the story of an old Chinese immigrant and his daughter when they immigrate to San Francisco. Life begins to take on direction when they encounter the household of old Master Weng. Partly, this is a very vital portrayal of cultural contact between old-world and 'Americanized' Chinese. About the old, there is a graciousness which is missing from the hustle of American life.

I was interested in noting the role of the family as portrayed here. Old Master Weng is a widower and Madam Tang, his dead wife's sister, guides the household, her ministrations accepted in tolerance. The Old Master, for example, keeps a large fortune in American money in the home, preferring not to trust the banks. This old-world custom irritates Madam Tang, who constantly predicts that he will be killed by robbers. One of his sons is Wang Ta, who becomes a medical student because if he quits school he must earn a living. He is not, however, the wastrel he might at first seem to be. The romantic thread of the story follows him and the newly-arrived servant girl. We go with him through all of San Francisco's Chinatown, and it is perhaps here that the real value of the book lies as we see the differing outlooks of the American Chinese as they try to adjust Oriental ways to our culture.

I found this book entertaining and winsome, informing and educational. But most of all, it is a 'clacking good book.' (I don't know any more Chinese.)

THE FLOWER DRUM SONG, by C. Y. Lee, Grosset and Dunlap, New York, 1957, 244 pages. Available at the Elkland Township Library.

Most people get their fingers burned trying to pull somebody else's chestnuts out of the fire.

Deford Man in Simulated Attack At Fort Hood

Army Pfc. William D. Mathews, son of Mr. and Mrs. David W. Mathews, 5879 Bruce St., Deford, was one of 3,500 "Aggressors" who tested the combat readiness of the 1st Armored Division at Fort Hood, Tex., in Exercise "Iron Fist."

During the six-day maneuver Mathews, and other "aggressors" selected from Fort Hood's 2nd Armored Division, subjected the 1st Division's personnel to simulated attacks with chemical, biological and nuclear weapons as well as with conventional armaments.

The 22-year-old soldier, a tank driver in Company C of the division's 67th Armor, entered the Army in October, 1961 and completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky.

He attended Cass City High School.

Argue About Oral Vaccine; Salk Shot Effective, Safe

By Elmer E. White
Michigan Press Association

A continuing dispute over the effectiveness of oral vaccines to combat polio leaves only one conclusion for the general public, according to State Health Commissioner Albert E. Heustis. "The unquestioned effectiveness and safety of the Salk vaccine speaks for itself," Heustis said. "There is no doubt of the need for a vaccine against polio and several other diseases, such as whooping cough, diphtheria, tetanus and smallpox."

Heustis urged parents to check both their own immunization records and those of their children for all of the diseases for which immunization is available.

Polio case reports continue to drop every year. In 1952, Heustis said there were 3,912 reported cases of polio in Michigan. Last year there were only 33 cases and this year only six case reports were received during the first eight months.

"We have, however, had 1,167 cases of whooping cough reported, three cases of diphtheria and five cases of tetanus," he said.

"And while we have had no reported cases of polio deaths, we have had two deaths from whooping cough, two from diphtheria, and one from tetanus."

Heustis described the disease deaths as "needless."

"There is an effective vaccine against each one of these diseases, and they can be combined into a single solution for one-shot immunizations," he said.

The health commissioner said the expansion of Seaway transport and jet travel gives Michigan citizens "no choice but to maintain a constant vigil against disease."

Within the next six months, a process of change started nearly three years ago will have gone its full cycle. All Michigan drivers will be carrying the new tamper-proof licenses issued by the state.

The old emulsion-process license issued until 1960 will become a matter of history in mid-April, said Secretary of State James M. Hare.

New licenses are printed on paper which cannot be altered. This form was praised by law enforcement agencies because it is easy to determine if alterations have been attempted.

Hare said the new form also was popular because it included the basic information about Michigan's driver "point system" and financial responsibility law.

An attempt to avert juvenile delinquency by making its consequences clearly known to young people is getting under way this year in at least three school systems in Michigan.

A booklet entitled "You and The Law" will be used along with suggested films and a classroom guide in an attempt to acquaint teenagers with basic legal processes and the results of law violations.

The pilot test of the educational course is being conducted this year in Okemos, Ypsilanti and Gaylord schools. Officials of the Michigan Crime and Delinquency Council said the Fremont and St. Clair school officials also were considering the program.

"The booklet is designed to tell teenagers, in simple terms, what the law is, how it operates, and to use specific examples of law violation to demonstrate to juveniles how apparently innocent pranks can lead to arrest and a criminal record," the Council said.

State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs lauded the effort as an effective aid in making young people aware of their responsibilities and also the consequences in event laws are violated.

On Oct. 10, Miss Carol Lane, women's travel director for Shell Oil Company, will be in Caro to talk to all Home Economics Extension group project leaders. The meeting will start at 1:30 p.m. and will be held in the Wilber Memorial 4-H building. The title of her talk will be "Adventure a la Car."

Do you know how much you spend of your disposable income on food? The average amount we Americans spend is about 20 per cent. Of that 20 per cent, we spend approximately 32 per cent for red meat, poultry and fish. These figures show a change in our eating habits. Since the 1930's we have been spending more on meats and protein foods and less on cereals and potatoes. An interesting side note... now that we have potatoes in so many processed forms, (chips etc.) the potato consumption curve is going up.

Along with this increase in meat consumption, we have shown a definite preference for beef and poultry. At the same time there has been a decrease in the consumption of pork, veal and lamb. There are many factors which determine the supply of meats coming to the market and the prices we will be paying.

Here are some of the factors which will determine the supply of beef for the balance of 1962 and early 1963.

Currently, as of July 1, there were about four per cent more cattle being fed than a year ago. The cool summer has been kind to livestock producers. For, along with adequate moisture, it has provided a good supply of range feed. This means the producer does not need to put the cattle on a concentrated feed program as early and can delay shipping the cattle to market.

Another influencing factor is the number of cows which will be marketed. Cows usually grade out in the lower U.S. grades and are used extensively for processed meats, since tenderness is not such an important factor. The price we pay for beef will be influenced also by the competition beef receives from other meats, such as pork, lamb, poultry and fish.

Usually, during the summer months there is a definite downward trend of prices for roasts, particularly. This is due to our preferences for quick cooking meat during hot weather. This summer the weather has been so cool that it has stimulated beef appetites and caused roast prices to be quite high.

It is expected that the fall downward prices of beef probably will not begin until late September or October. In the meantime, prices may go up slightly until fall seasonal marketing of beef starts.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Sez:

Dear Mister Editor:

I see where one of them column writers says it's going to cost about $600,000 to repair some leaks in the Capitol dome. That's a heap of money to fix up a few leaks, but what surprises me is that they still got a dome on the Capitol. From what I been reading about them grain storage, fertilizer and stockpiling boys, I thought they'd stole the dome off the Capitol and was takin the door hobs off the privies, at least the ones that was brass.

I ain't got no patience, Mister Editor, with folks that is stealing from the Government. They is too many ways these days to turn a honest dollar with them Government agencies in Washington. Fer instant, take this feller Dr. Howell, a dentist from Alliance, Ohio.

I see by the papers where he has wrote to the Agriculture Committee of the Congress and made 'em a fair proposition. He says his only income is from the manufacture of false teeth and he reports he has now got a big excess of false teeth.

He admits it ain't in the best interests of the taxpayers fer the Government to buy his excess and store it with the surplus crops on account of the added storage costs. Farthermore, he writes; it would complicate our foreign policy to ship his excess overseas. The people over there would git to eating more corn on the cob, and while this might help the corn surplus problem, he figgers them foreign dentists and corn growers would git mad and they would turn to Communism if we didn't anchor 'em down heavy with more foreign aid.

He told the Agriculture folks he has got several false teeth customers that is getting paid fer not producing corn and wheat and other things, so it would be a heap more simple if they would just send him the money and he would go into the non-producing false teeth business.

Now that's a good, honest proposition, Mister Editor, one that not only fits in perfect with our foreign aid policy, but also with our farm policy and I predict they'll take him up on the deal.

Well, the candidates around the country fer the U. S. Senate and House is coming down the home stretch and about all of them has took to the newspapers, radio and television. Most of 'em looks and sounds pritty good and I'm shore, no matter who wins, wonderful things is in store fer all of us in Washington come the next session of the Congress. The trick to politics, Mister Editor, is to git contributions from the rich, votes from the pore, and promise pertection to both agin each other. Personal, I'm going to drive to the polls November 6 mighty slow, sorter like I was going to see the tax collector.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Let Winter Help In Weed Control

Control weeds this fall and let old man winter lend a helping hand.

Farm crops specialists at Michigan State University report that farmers can control quackgrass by spraying before mid-October. Yellow rocket and broad-leaved winter annuals can be killed by spraying after one or two good frosts.

The specialists, William F. Meggitt and Milton H. Erdmann, recommend 15 pounds of dalapon per acre to control quackgrass. On corn fields, two pounds of amitrole-T or four pounds of atrazine will do the job. Each of these chemicals should be mixed with 30-40 gallons of water per acre and sprayed when the quackgrass is 4-8 inches tall.

If possible, farmers should plow 7 to 10 days after spraying with dalapon or amitrole-T. However, Meggitt and Erdmann agree that plowing can be eliminated if freezing weather arrives shortly after spraying.
