Expand Hospital

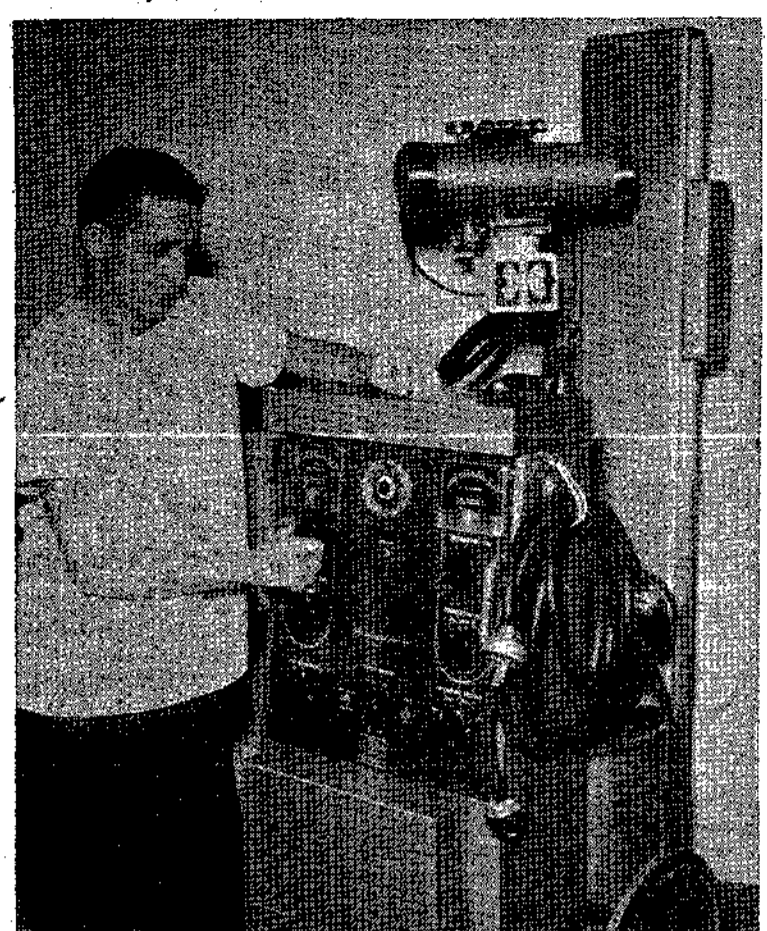

Hills and Dales General Hospital has recently completed a $5,800 expansion program which included the setting up of a second operating room and the purchase of a portable X-ray unit, according to Richard Palm, administrator.

The program was undertaken because of a steady rise in patients, Palm reported. During the two years the hospital has been in operation, over 4,400 patients have been treated.

He attributed the need for a second operating room to an "increase in surgical procedures at the hospital."

The X-ray unit was purchased by the hospital primarily for use on patients who are unable to be moved, such as fracture cases.

Made by Universal, the unit is completely mobile and can be operated from any part of the hospital.

PORTABLE X-RAY—Charles Warner, X-ray technician, Hills and Dales General Hospital, demonstrates the workings of a new Universal portable X-ray unit just purchased by the hospital. The purchase was part of a $5,800 expansion program recently completed, which included the setting up and staffing of a second operating room at the two-year-old hospital. (Chronicle photo)

Goods Using Feeder To Cut Costs

Ronald and Ed Good Jr. of Owendale are typical of progressive young farmers in that they are constantly looking toward mechanization so that they can increase production without increasing labor costs.

The Goods already boast one of Huron County's finest Holstein herds, milking some 35 cattle and maintaining a herd average of 501 pounds fat.

Not content to rest on their laurels, the Goods have started an experiment that they hope will increase dairy profits.

They installed a New Holland Vibra-feeder. With labor saved in the automatic feeding, the men hope to increase the size of their herd and cut feeding costs. They will go to a heavier silage program, with a subsequent reduction in feed costs. They believe they can hold their milk production with the new program.

The Goods farm 480 acres on their Owendale area farm. The land is all tilled.

Ed Good Sr. is a State representative from Huron county.

BULEN TALKS CARS

A MODERN PARABLE

The U. S. Bureau of Public Roads says that last year the average motorist traveled 9529 miles on 666 gallons for 14.3 miles per gallon.

It's a curious trait of human nature that most of us like to exaggerate a little about poor or good mileage... It's best to add... a grain of that proverbial salt to most folk's testimony on mileage matters.

If you are dissatisfied with your mileage, check it against the official figures and chances are you'll find you're pretty close to normal.

Reminds me of a story going around some years back that had more truth than fiction. It concerned an economy-minded motorist who set his sights on gas savings to the exclusion of all else. He finally decided to buy one of the smallest small cars.

He enquired about mileage of every owner he met and all the figures seem to average out about 23 MPG. But despite the most careful record keeping over a thousand miles, the best figure he could come up with was 17 MPG.

When a second thousand mile check failed to raise that figure, he took his problems to his dealer, offering to pay for it if the dealer would adjust the motor to "get 23MPG like the other owners are getting."

"You'd only be wasting your money," the dealer replied. "There's only one way to get that mileage and that's the way they do it."

"How's that," asked the motorist.

"By lying about it."

Agent's Corner

Frances T. Clark
County Home Demonstration Agent

The apple season is upon us. I wish I could say there is an abundant supply but the crop this fall is going to be short. This under-average-sized crop is going to affect us as consumers.

What happened this year to make such a difference in our total apple crop? During the growing season, the rainfall was well below normal. This reduced the size of the apples and therefore the total volume of the crop. Apples, like other fruits and vegetables, need moisture for proper growth.

Over the years we have changed our "apple eating habits." For example, per capita consumption of apples has dropped sharply during the last 50 years. The decline has continued gradually since about 1940, especially of fresh apples. In contrast, capita consumption of canned apples has shown a steady increase in recent years.

Despite this decline in the use of fresh apples, they are still one of the top fresh fruits in number of pounds consumed per person, second to fresh oranges in some years, but occupying the top spot in others.

The most important processed apple products are applesauce and canned apples. Other processed products include canned apple juice, fresh apple juice and cider, frozen apple slices and dried apples. In recent years approximately 70 per cent of the apple crop has been marketed fresh, and the other 30 per cent marketed in the various processed forms.

When you purchase a bag of apples, you can be thankful that you will be able to use every apple in the bag. The apples have been graded and are free from blemishes and there are no worms. This condition, however, is only possible because apple producers take such excellent care of their orchards in order to produce quality fruit.

There must be a constant spraying beginning with the first spring growth until harvest time, to control diseases such as scab and leaf spot, worms and bugs. Proper timing of spraying is very important, for there must be a regulated elapse of time between the final spraying and picking of the apples.

The trees must be pruned or trimmed in the dormant season. Proper pruning allows the light to reach the fruit to insure good color and also helps to increase the size of the fruit by reducing the amount of fruit on the tree. A good orchard man will tell you apples should be handled like eggs, therefore it is essential that apples be picked and handled with care to prevent bruising. And, proper storage is very important.

So you see, it takes a lot of work to produce that bag of apples, but is there anything better than a fresh, crisp, crunchy, juicy apple?

The fellow who boasts continually of his family tree is living proof that the strain has run out.

Dear Mister Editor:

The fellers at the country store Saturday night was voicing their blessings for the Congress not being in session. Ed Doolittle allowed as how this was the only season of the year when a pore man could go to bed at night and not expect to read in the papers next morning where the Congress was working on a new plan to tax him for his own welfare.

Zeke Grubb said, now that Congress has adjourned, it looked like just about everybody has crossed the New Frontier and is headed for the Promised Land. He reported, fer instant about seeing in the papers where the better barber shops in Washington was now getting into this "status" business and has installed them Kennedy rocking chairs for the customers to set in while they're waiting. Zeke claimed the piece said one barber shop there has put in a phonograph playing classic music and is serving coffee, tea and doughnuts. But Bug Hookum was lamenting that barber shops, tea or no tea, won't never reach the proper "status" till they invent a contraption that'll keep hair from getting down the customer's back. Bug never was a feller to appreciate c'assic music and the finer things in life.

And while the barbers was crossing the New Frontier, Clem Webster reported that Senator Wiley from our good state of Wisconsin wasn't making much headway with his plan to help the farm surplus problem. You will recollect, Mister Editor, that Senator Wiley told the Congress sfore it adjourned that one of his loyal constituents had invented a cheese charcoal filter that would cut the tar and nicotine out of cigarette smoke. He has been trying to git the Government to endorse it, pointing out that it will be a fine thing fer our surplus dairy products.

Clem allowed as how it sounded as sensible as anything else that has come out of the Congress on the Surplus problem, but he told the fellers it ain't liable to amount to nothing during his life time. Clem said if the Government endorsed it next week it would take them Congressional committees and farm experts 10 years to decide on what kind of cheese.

Josh Clodhopper told the fellers he saw in the papers where Billie Sol Estes claims he was getting in financial distress even afore the Government closed in on him. All the fellers was agreed that, after observing how the Congress works out these matters, they ain't no excuse no more fer a feller getting in financial distress. All he's got to do is follow three simple rules laid down by the Congress, increase his spending, decrease his income, and raise his temporary debt limit. And one feller allowed as how it didn't make much difference if he raised it temporary or permanent.

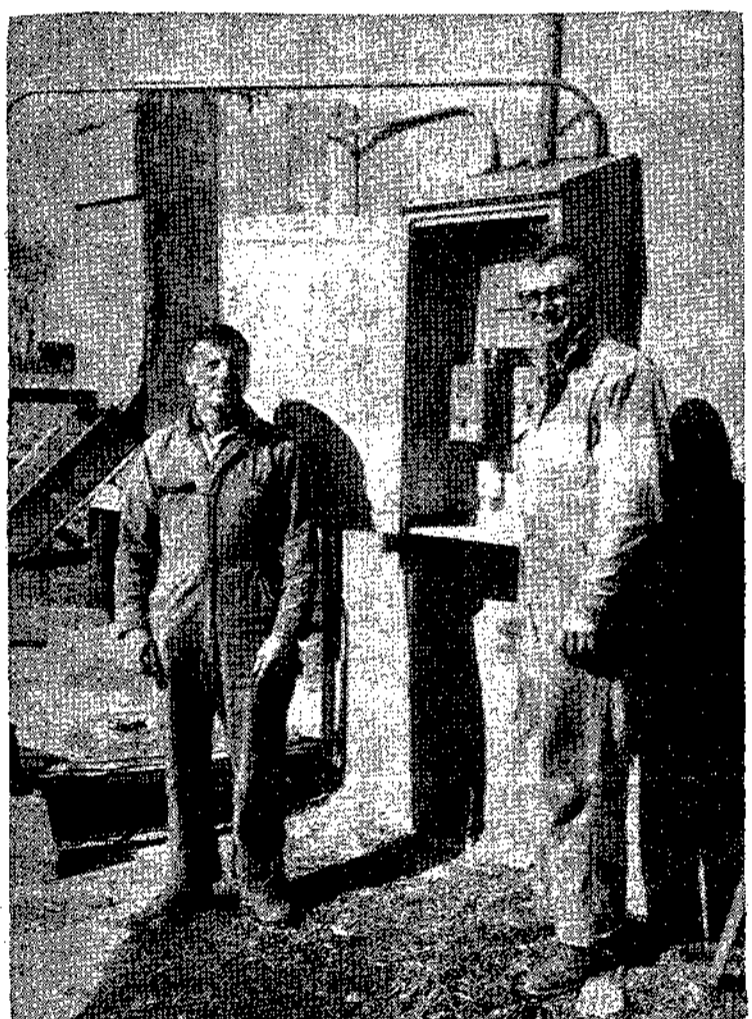

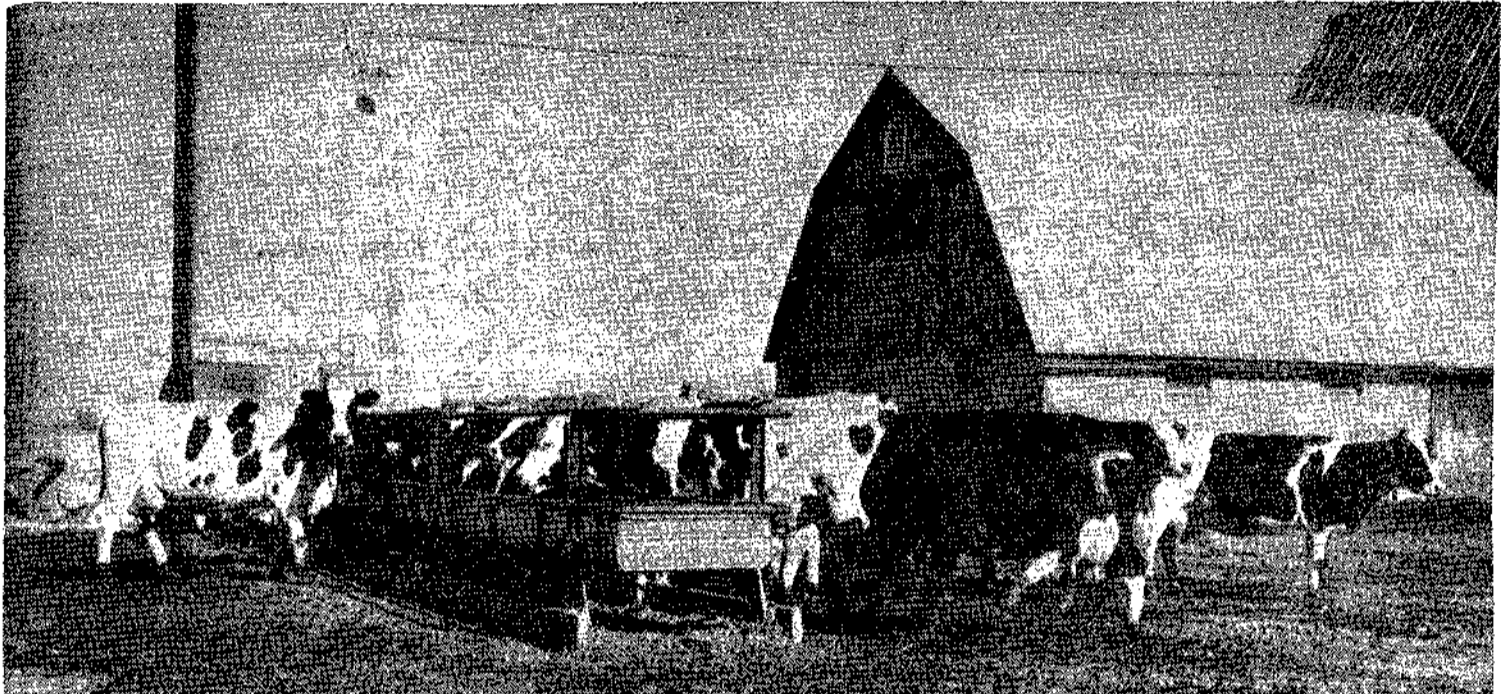

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim
