Cass City police, assisting the Sheriff's office, investigated an accident Sunday when cars driven by two rural Cass City persons sideswiped each other at the top of a hill on Dodge Road, threefourths mile south of M-81.

The drivers were Mrs. Melvin Ertman, 24, and David Parrott, 18, both of Cass City. Riding with Mrs. Ertman were her two children, Mary Lou, three, and David, one. No injuries were reported.

A Cass City man was ticketed for not having his car under control Saturday night, after it slammed into the rear of another car parked on East Main Street. Ticketed was Howard Blades after his car struck one owned by Mrs. Ruth Tennant. Both cars

From the ditor's Corner

Most pheasant hunting success by local nimrods has been reported east of Cass City. Birds are not impossible to find, most hunters say, if you are dedicated enough to work hard for shooting

The weather has been against good pheasant and duck hunting and it has also been a drag on business. Stores dealing in seasonable merchandise report that business has dropped off considerably from last year when weather was more seasonable.

Despite the lag, most retailers expect business to be as good or better than last year. All local plants are working at peak levels and, more important, have been doing so during the summer months when employment is usually at a low ebb.

We congratulate Mrs. Gerald Prieskorn for forming a group to serve as a liaison between parents and the school. Cass City has moved ahead with industry, village improvements and, to a limited extent, business. Not so with our school. For a variety of reasons including high property taxes, the community has been unable to secure the funds necessary to move ahead in education.

If the revised Romney tax plan is adopted, it means more money for school districts. Now is the time to prepare a plan that will update our system to standards comparable to other progressive facilities . . . in both curriculum and buildings.

General Telephone to Spend $100,000 in Local Exchange has announced plans to spend an estimated $100,000 in its Cass City exchange in 1964 as part of a continuing service improvement and expansion program. Total expenditures for the Cass City district will be close to $198,900.

Eastern division expenditures for the year were announced Thursday night, Oct. 24, at a luncheon in Port Huron attended by telephone officials and newspaper representatives from six Gen-Tel districts.

Construction plans in the Cass City extension include $50,400 for buried cable in the southernrural area to Deford: $23,700 for buried cable east along M-81;

$17,500 for a construction truck and $200 for engineering work. Richard Drews, Cass City district manager, exlained that currently all lines to Deford and the south-rural area are above ground. Work on that portion is

Appeal Board to Ease Money Burden

Trustees decided Tuesday night to form an appeal

Creating the board was deemed necessary after trustees received a storm of protest over the cost of curb and gutter from residents of Third Street, which was tentatively selected as the next street to receive curb and gutter.

Some of the residents on the street have limited incomes and felt that paying an assessment would be too big a financial

Members of the council agreed and the board of appeal for curb and gutter work was established. Persons who find that paying now for curb and gutter is a hardship can appeal to the board and payment will be deferred. Not until the home owner dies or the property changes hands will the assessment be collected.

Trustees pointed out that this would work no hardship, as the addition of curb and gutter would add to the value of the property when sold.

The cat, apparently indulging in some pre-Halloween antics, wandered into a house owned by Mr. and Mrs. Albin Stevens on the corner of West and Huron streets Tuesday night, Oct. 22, and set off the six-day search.

In a last ditch attempt, the Stevenses closed the house up tight Sunday night and the cat was finally located between some rafters in the east wing of the

Church Street

One of the busiest streets in the community is Church Street. This has been declared a major street by the council and funds are being set aside to curb and gutter and repair this road from weight and gas tax monies received from the State. The work will be completed in 1965.

Dump Problem Vexing

The village dump has plagued a succession of councilmen for at least five years and is again a problem for trustees, the council learned at its regular meeting Tuesday night at the Cass City

After discussion, trustees said that they would contact Gary Stine, who runs the rubbish route in the village, and ask him to township-village building that would house the fire hall has loomed just over the horizon. Tuesday night the purchase of the building on East Main Street, owned by H. O. Paul Jr., was discussed for this purpose. Trustees will look over the building, but the general concensus was that it would be cheaper to build a new building than to buy the Paul building and remodel it. Light Request

A request for a light in the alley back of Cass City Hospital sparked a discussion by trustees of the street light program.

Lights in the village are placed at each corner and none is in the alleys. It costs the village about $30 yearly for each light. The street committee will investigate the request, but it is doubtful whether a light will be erected.

Time To Clean-up

With just three days left in the annual Clean-up, Fixup and Paint-up Campaign. Cass City Village and Chamber of Commerce officials are reminding residents that there will be free pickup of all leaves and rubbish all day Friday and Saturday morning.

Residents wishing to have their refuse carted away are asked to have it in front of their homes on the two pick-up days.

Council members will be checking the alleys toward the end of the week to see what progress is being made and to offer suggestions on possible clean-up measures.

Your Posture

By Dr. E. P. Lockwood

Are you satisfied with your posture? Maybe your shoulders are a little too rounded, one shoulder high, the other low. It may be that one leg is shorter than the other resulting from a tilted pelvis, toc much curve in the lower spine, etc. "If your posture is bad, your friends advise you to straighten up. They mean well. You do try, but how successful are you? While you are thinking about it you can improve your posture, but what happens when you aren't thinking of it? Usually you are the same old again.

. "The spine is the backbone of posture and the position of the spine is controlled by muscles. Proper muscle tension is necessary to have good posture. This interference is caused by partial displacement of a segment of the spine. When this condition is corrected, the body resumes its na-

Children as well as grownups should be examined regularly for postural defects, the same as they are checked for defects of eyes, etc. Normal health is a normal condition, permitted only by a normal spine.

One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the practice of scientific Chiropractic, written by Dr. E. P. Lockwood whose office is located at Cass Cit_f, Tel. 872-2765).

THE FAST PACE OF PROGRESS

It wasn't so many years ago that the average automobile mechanic diagnosed car troubles like the country dentist working on his unfortunate patients. The story goes that the dentist had a stock reply for his victim whenever he hollered that he had pulled the wrong tooth: "Calm yourself friend, I'm coming to it."

Changes in all branches of industry, in fact, are moving so fast that it is estimated that the average engineer now graduating from school has only half his normal working life ahead of him unless he's prepared to return to school for refresher courses on his specialty.

Automobile mechanics, for instance, must keep going back to factory schools, just to learn how to use newer scientific tools. That's a very real bonus in efficiency you get when you have your car serviced at a franchised dealer's garage. Even the new 24-month warranties that the car industry is so justly proud of are helping to make our new cars even better. Statistical records of part failures must now be kept up to date on a national scale, which enables the manufacturer to spot immediately those part failures that consistently cause the most trouble and remedy them.

Our new Chevrolets are shining examples of this modern progress. Why not drop in for a demonstration drive soon?

SAFETY LIGHTS, or Running Lights. Have you noticed cars approaching in daylight with a light in the grille? Even in sunlight you'll notice them immediately. Accidents are often caused by not seeing the other car. This newest development, which I think is great, was picked up from Greyhound Buses and Diesel locomotives which run always with lights on. These lights are inexpensive, and, they just might save your life.

ried a bouquet of white spider mums. Her attendant and sister, Kay

Marie Decker, wore a royal blue wool suit. Stu Wieland of Caro was groomsman.

Hawks Post First Grid Victory of Season, 19-13

Cass City posted its first victory of the year with a combined ground and air attack that netted a 19-13 victory over the Vassar Vulcans Wednesday, Oct. 23, at

The Hawks moved into an early lead as they took the kickoff and mounted a sustained drive that netted six points. With Walt Hempton and Dave Parrott gaining most of the yardage, they moved from their own 37 to score. Hempton capped the drive with a four-yard burst to score. The kick was blocked. Vassar had the ball for just five plays in the first quarter. The Vulcans started a drive on their own 43 that knotted the count. Moving on the ground deep into Cass City territory with second and nine yards to go, they switched to the air and scored on a pass that covered 14 yards.

Neither team was able to score in the third period. But on the first play from scrimmage for the Hawks in the final quarter, Quarterback Ed Retherford spotted the Vassar defense crowding in close to the line and tossed a 35yard pass to Ron Randall. Randall took the ball and rambled the last 15 yards to paydirt for the marker.

What proved to be the winning marker was scored when Cass City took advantage of a break. Don Englehart scored from four yards out after the Hawks recovered a Vassar bobble. Hempton passed to Cass Pasieczny for the extra point.

The Vulcans moved for another marker late in the game and then added the extra point, but this only served to make the final score closer.

Hempton was again credited with the most tackles on the team, 23. Mike Karr was credited with 16 and Tom Ellis with 13 tackles.

The Hawks completed three of nine passes, good for 68 yards. Parrott led all runners with 104 yards on 19 attempts . . . more than the rest of the backfield put together. Hempton averaged four yards a carry with 32 yards in eight attempts as the Vulcans keyed their defense to hold him in

Englehart averaged 5.2 yards per carry with a net of 26 yards. Retherford averaged 35 yards

Complete Season The Hawks will wind up the grid season Friday when they play Marlette at Cass City Recreational Park. The game is rated a tossup on the season's records.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Sez:

You might recollect I was telling you here awhile back about the U. S. Education Department advising a new kind of arithmetic fer the school kids, claiming the old "tutem law" of two times two is four ain't necessary true in all cases. Well, we got another jolt coming from the deep thinkers. A science feller named Dr. Kaplan has announced that what we been calling the Big Toe since the beginning of time ain't always the Big Toe.

After studying this matter and measuring toes fer years, he says about half the time the toe next to the Big Toe is the longest. It's gitting to the place, Mister Editor, where nothing me and you was raised up to believe is sacred no more.

We was discussing these matters at the country store Saturday night and Ed Doolittle said the worst ain't got here yet. Fer instant, he reported he was reading a piece in the papers where the wimmen folks is gradual taking over the pool rooms. Ed said this piece claimed the heavy mahogany tables with the green tops, the dirty light bulb hanging from the sealing, the windows with soiled curtains, all was on the way out. Now they was putting in pool rooms with thick wall-to-wall carpets, sweet music playing, soft lights glowing, swanky lounging chairs setting around, and furnishing college girls to teach the wimmen all the fancy shots.

Farthermore, Ed reported they was putting these fancy pool rooms - which they was calling "salons" - close to the automatical laundries, shopping centers and places where wimmen would be tempted to git the pool habit. Ed said this piece claimed they was 2,000 of these fancy pool "salons" fer wimmen opened in the last year.

Zeke Grubb told the fellers just; ever-day-life was gitting so confusing he hated to hear the phone ring, was afraid it was fer him. Bug Hookum claimed about the only place in the country where things was normal and going according to plan was in the Congress. Fer instant, reported Bug, he had saw where they was completing a 10-story office building fer Congressmen fer $83 million and the curtains fer the office windows was costing $700 per window. Bug allowed as how this was normal percedure fer the Congress. He said he got this item from the Wall Street Journal, in case we wanted to check. I got to find out at the next session how come Bug has took to reading the Wall Street

Well, Mister Editor, I got to stop now and git the yardstick and see if what I been calling Big Toe fer nigh on to 70 is actual been gitting credit where credit didn't belong. Yours truly. Uncle Tim the Edsel Ford Freeway. We had to go to Wayne the other day on business and since shortcuts for me usually turn into longcuts, we decided the smartest bet would be to go straight down M-53 to M-94 or better known as the Edsel Ford

I should have known something was amiss when we got just outside Detroit. The road became a two-laner which means that there are two cars abreast. Now it has always been my contention that "two-car" was the same as "too-many cars."

It was right about then that I learned that Detroit driving and adroit driving are pretty much the same. The slogan, "The life vou save may be your own," is rather limited and should continue: "and the lives of several hundred other drivers who don't seem to give a darn."

Aside from a 15-minute delay when we got lost because of a detour, we 'made it to Edsel's freeway without too much

Here's how you get on the freeway: First, you turn off the twolaner onto a one-laner, which in reality is not a one-laner but is really a funnel.

Suddenly, without warning and before you can turn back, the funnel spills you out into three lanes of traffic where nobody, but nobody, is doing under 70 miles an

When I say "but nobody," I mean just that. You won't believe this, but there was this kid on a foot-scooter and I was hard long stick. Every time another car got close to us I'd reach out and smack it one or if it was on my wife's side, I'd pass the stick to her and she'd whop it. After you're on the freeway for awhile you get caught up in the madness of it all and pretty soon you're driving just as crazy as everyone else.

Your eyes glaze over and you crouch behind the wheel. To allow another vehicle to pass you becomes a cardinal sin. Better to go down in flames than relinquish your lead to another driver.

Your knuckles turn white as your grip tightens on the wheel you know that when they plant you just before you go to that big pile-up in the sky, you still have a hold of that steering wheel.

Then suddenly you're at the Wayne turn-off. But you can't stop! You know you'll never stop! It's in your blood and you've got to go to the end of the line.

And that, friends, is how we happened to be in Nashville, Tenn., on Monday morning instead of at work . . .

I assume it's an honor to have a freeway named after you, but if I ever have a choice I'd rather have a street or an alley or a light post or a waste paper basket named after me.

Some of the things I called Edsel . . . I mean after all.

I got a real nice letter from Sue Greenleaf telling me how glad she was that I'd come to my senses and returned to Cass City. I'd tell you what she said, but garsh, some of the things she said . . . I mean they're just too

My wife had the car at the time and it wasn't noticed until she got home. It would have been a small matter for whoever did it to stop and report it so our insurance companies could have taken care of it.

White Man Practices Progressive Polygamy

By the Rev. Robert J. Searls

columnist Dave Kraft! It was containing a study, for ministers. getting a wee bit lonesome being this paper's only make columnist, but as it turned out he didn't end his column but just took a leave of absence, which I did at one time, too. At any rate, we're happy to know that he is back in the fold with his plotting mind and "Krafty" style.

Last Fourth of July an attempt was made in Baltimore to integrate an amusement park. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake of the United Presbyterian Church was one of leaders at that "Play-In." They were unsuccessful at that time and since then many church and other groups have avoided the park in protest. But the park did integrate in August and closed with receipts larger than ever! And what is more encouraging is that the future never looked brighter for the park, with reservations for next year higher than ever. So, desegregation is not always financially a liability -- or, so it seems to me.

Allow me to bring you up to date on the proposed merger of the United Brethren Church and the Methodist Church. On September 20, the representatives of the two denominations completed the first draft of the plan for union. The Methodist Church has elected Bishops for life while the EUB Church elected them for four years at a time. The Methodist practice will be part of the new church whose name is proposed as The United Methodist Church. There are other changes, too, but these for the main are just adjustments of detail. Current membership of the Methodist Church is 10,234,986 and EUB membership is 761,754. 1964 is the earliest the merger could be officially achieved - but church mergers in process now mark a period of exciting church history. Or, so it seems to me.

Roman Catholic participation in the President's cabinet will reach three with approval of John Austin Gronouski as Postmaster General. It never before contained more than two.

A Southern Baptist clergyman who preached against segregation and was asked to resign his pulpit has announced plans to enter the ministry of the Episcopal Church. Dr. Henry J. Stokes Jr. was pastor of the First Baptist Church of Macon, Georgia. It is a reminder that many Christian people are paying a high cost for preaching the Gospel in America. Or, so it seems to me

The white man practices 'progressive polygamy,' declares an Anglican churchman from Africa. The missionaries say "one manone woman," said Bishop S. O. Odulola, "But when we come to your universities we find that you don't live like that." He was speaking about our high divorce rate and that while we do not accept the idea of more than one spouse "at a time," we have made it very easy to obtain divorces and to marry again. That sort of hits home, it seems to me.

WELCOME BACK to fellow- subdivision of good small homes, Down payments could be made while the minister is in middle age, with additional payments to be made each year, so that upon retirement it would be paid . for. Of course, trust funds and other matters enter into any long-term deal of this sort. This kind of thing is being done at various spots around the nation. Some even have only one heating plant for 10 or 12 homes, so that when warmer climates lure their occupants south for a month or so in the winter, their heating problem at home is taken care of. Maybe someone with the resources will look into it and Cass City will have another source of revenue and population. Or, so it

MEA Starts State Drive for Compulsory Teacher Tenure

By Elmer E. White

Michigan Press Association Teacher Tenure

The initials TNT have taken on new meaning this fall as the Michigan Education Association started a concentrated drive to convince state lawmakers it is "Time Now for Tenure."

Michigan has had a Teacher Tenure Act since 1937, but it is a permissive one. Only school districts which vote to give teachers tenure come under provision of

The MEA's goal now is to make tenure effective in all districts.

According to MEA President Octavius Townsend, tenure would encourage greater care in the initial selection of teachers and provide for continuous employment, after a successful probationary period, for as long as the educator rendered efficient service.

If inferior service was rendered the teacher would go through a regular procedure of negotiations with school officials on whether his contract was to be maintained.

Under the permissive law now in effect, only 59 of Michigan's school districts have elected to adopt tenure. Just over onequarter of the state's teachers now are under tenure, Townsend

A petition drive by the MEA is aimed at getting nearly 300,000 signatures urging legislative action on tenure. The petitions. when presented to the Legislature. will serve as a public mandate to enact a statewide tenure law.

Presentation of the MEA petitions to the Secretary of State is scheduled for late this year, with transmission to the Legislature slated early in the 1964 session. The Legislature is given 40 days to act under the State Constitution on matters brought before it by initiative petition.

Twenty-four states and the District of Columbia now have tenure for teachers.

Any action by the Legislature, or even lack of action, would place the tenure question before the voters in the November, 1964 general election.

In addition to inducing better initial selection of teachers, MEA spokesmen say tenure will provide better services to children, better community leadership, greater staff stability and professional security for teachers."

MEA units throughout the state are now holding informational sessions on the tenure proposal in an attempt to educate both the school staffs and the general public on its position in proposing the new law.

The Nation's Nicest

A drive on Michigan's freeways, especially the newer sections, indicates very vividly the fact that engineers have taken into consideration the pleasure of country motoring.

Several of the newer sections use standing timber and hills as natural dividers for the two strips of highway.

One stretch of a new freeway has now gained national recognition for this outstanding feature in highway planning. A 22.5 Northern Michigan has been named America's most scenic new highway.

The section honored this year in the Parade Magazine contest runs from Vanderbilt to Indian River. It is located between two sections of I-75 which took runner-up spots in the contest the past two years.

Beauty, utility, safety and imaginative design were cited as reasons the Interstate route was selected as "the year's best example of a 'motorist's highway,' a joy to see as well as to drive."

The entire Northern section of

was designed to take advantage of the park-like atmosphere from Clare north as a means of preventing driver monotony and reducing the risk of motorists going to sleep at the wheel. Monkey Business

If you have ever considered buying a monkey for a pet you might be in for some surprises. Dr. Donald Goohon, veterinarian with the State Health Department, says monkeys are more pests rather than pets.

Coohon notes that the same reason which makes monkeys excellent laboratory animals makes them unsatisfactory as household pets. "Since monkeys are susceptible to so many human diseases they are virtually indispensable as experimental animals, and this fact, along with their poor personal hygiene habits make them undesirable as pets." 非水水

An increasing number of monkeys are being sold for household pets, Coohon noted.

The Michigan vet's warning about monkeys includes the fact that innumerable viruses, bacteria and parasites are found in mon-

"Monkeys belong in three environments only," said Coohon. "The jungle, research laboratories
