The chances are good that the Community Chest drive will again meet its quota. About two-thirds of the envelopes have been returned and $3,506.79 collected. The important factory contributions are yet to come and will be the determining factor, Chairman Willis Campbell reports.

We hope that you will join us at the final organizational meeting Tuesday of the new school community organization. It's open to all and its design is to boost the school and become informed about school problems. As indicated by the favorable millage vote in Detroit Tuesday, an informed, awakened electorate can secure what is vital for the education of the students.

The day is seemingly past when taxpayers will vote funds for schools without being wooed and told exactly what the need is and where the money goes. We aren't implying by this that the school group now being formed is a device for securing tax money. It definitely more isn't. But this is certainly one of many problems that the group will become informed on as it progresses in its task of learning about the school and trying to become qualified to help the school function.

Clean-up Push Meets C of C Expectations

Cass City's second annual fail clean-up campaign, completed Saturday, although not as spectacular as its predecessor, has been termed a success by Mrs. James Bauer, Chamber of Commerce president.

"It was up to our expectations," she stated Monday. 'It wasn't as big as last year because there wasn't as much to do."

"There has been a big improvement in the village in the last year," she continued, "People are becoming more constious of their vacant lots and property improvements."

"We'll continue the programs until we have the village where we want it," she concluded. The next big clean-up push will be in the spring in April or May. Painting and improvement of village businesses and residences will be stressed.

Probably the most outstanding major improvement of the recent campaign was the graveling of a parking lot behind the American Legion Hall and the improvements on the Legion Hall. Of maior concern in the recent drive were village alleys.

In other Chamber news, the board was to have met yesterday (Wednesday) with a Detroit Edison official in connection with the designing of a brochure about the village.

A philosophy of "finders, keepers" backfired on a 21year-old Cass City man and led to his arrest Monday by Cass City Police.

Arrested on a charge of larceny was James C. Ridgway, Cass City. Ridgway found a billfold belonging to Jack F. Steinhilber, Saginaw insurance agent, on Main Street on Monday, Oct. 28. He asked a passing woman where he should turn the billfold in. After instructing Ridgway, the woman wrote down his license number as he drove away, and it was turned over to Cass City Police Chief Carl Palmateer.

Later in the week Steinhilber received the billfold in the mail, minus $55 it had contained when he lost

Should you have trouble with chipping nails, keep these points in mind. Most important, maintain a high protein diet of meats, poultry, fish, eggs and dairy foods; use an emery board instead of a file, and remember to file gently from each side toward the center, rather than straight across. Your starting point to lovelier hands is a professional manicure at HELEN'S. Appointments not always necessary, or HELEN'S phone 872-3535. BEAUTY SALON, 6469 Main Street in Cass City.

New Chevelle Malibu Sport Coups

Now-Chevy spirit in a new kind of car!

We built this one to do more than just stand around looking beautiful. Held its weight down in the 3,000pound range. Then built four lusty engines-two sixes and two V8's-with output all the way up to 220 horses*!

And if that makes you think this is one frisky car, you've got the right idea.

You've also got a roomy car here. Yet its 115-inch wheelbase keeps it highly maneuverable in traffic and very easy to park.

With its Full Coil suspension, it's got a ride CHEVROLET that reminds you of the Jet-smooth kind the way it muffles noise and cushions bumps.

And the fine hand of Body by Fisher craftsmen shows up beneath this one's suave good looks, too.

Sound good? There's more. Like the fact that Chevelle comes in three series with eleven models-convertibles, sport coupes, sedans, wagons, even Super Sport models with front bucket seats. Like the fact that (and see if this isn't one of the nicest surprises of all) the new Chevelle comes at an easy-to-take price! Like to hear more? The listening's wonderful at your Chevrolet dealer's-and so's the driving. *Optional at extra cost

On Health By Dr. E. P. Lockwood

The late Elbert Hubbard, one of the most brilliant writers of recent times, personally investigated the claims of Chiropractic.

He wrote in his book, The Science of Keeping Well "Above all things a good chiropractor has faith in nature. He does not make the proud boast that he cures people He knows that it is nature that heals. All the chiropractor can do is put his patient in line with the healing forces of nature. Chiropractic never brings an adverse result. The chiropractor does not pin his faith in any single panacea. He simply knows the physical fact that a pressure of a bone on the nerve brings about a condition where the telegraph system fails to act properly. With skilled hands he brings about the right relationship and proper adjustment. He finds the cause and removes it.

Chiropractors are not doctors of medicine. They are doctors of health. From them we get a new science which is adding greatly to the happiness and welfare of the world.'

THE TOUGHEST CAR RACE OF HISTORY

The car race some experts have called the toughest sports contest' of all time began at New York City in 1908.

Six cars started out on a race over 13,000 miles of land and 8,060 miles of water (this part of it on ships). They were in a race westward from lew York to Paris. This was, don't forget, in 1908 and you can imagine the kind of roads they had to use. They drove across the U.S., Japan, Manchuria, Siberia, Russia, Poland, Germany and France, fighting blizzards, failures, fallen bridges, deserts and tundra.

Deanery Meeting

An estimated 150 Thumb Catholic women attended the annual open fall meeting of the Thumb Deanery Council of Catholic Women Wednesday at St. Agatha's Parish, Gagetown.

"Civil Rights" was the theme of the program with Rev. Theodore LaMarre, Saginaw, as the featured speaker.

Fr. LaMarre, spiritual director of the Catholic Inter-racial Council of Saginaw, is also a member of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People and the social action department of the Michigan Catholic Conference. He is a former member of the Saginaw Human Relations Council.

He was appointed by Gov. Romney to the newly established Civil Rights Commission.

Fr. Frank L. McLaughlin, St. Agatha pastor, and the Altar with Mrs. Raymond. Society Toohey as president, acted as hosts.

Rev. Isidore Mikulski of Caro, spiritual moderator, opened the meeting with a prayer to "Our Lady of Good Counsel," and Mrs. Jarold Clark of Croswell, deanery council president, conducted the meeting.

Mrs. Frances Champagne of Wilmot, rural life chairman, displayed "Rural Life" exhibits.

The Rt. Rev. Charles A. Roark of Bad Axe, dean of the Thumb area, also addressed the group.

The owner of one of the nation's largest department stores (Macy's) and one of the larger grocery chains (IGA) say that the newspaper is the most important advertising medium.

Orville W. Johler, vice-president in charge of advertising for more than 5,000 Independent Grocers' Alliance food stores, said that 38 years' experience had taught his firm it was wise to spend 90 per cent of the advertising dollar in newspapers. The reason we buy more retail newspaper food advertising than any other organization in the world is that it pays tremendous dividends, he said.

"There are no miracles in advertising. If you work with your newspapers instead of sitting back and waiting for your advertisements to do all your work, you receive fantistic results."

David L. Yunich, president of Macy's, said that large retailers. cannot afford to depend on the business which comes from people who may walk past their stores. This is even more true of those located in remote areas and in regional shopping centers, he continued.

"... Therefore, retailers must invite people, they must attract more people to their stores. The most powerful way of doing this for any store is through good and effective advertising in strong, interesting and widely read newspapers.

"A vital newspaper, from the retail advertisers' point of view, is one which is constantly striving to keep pace with the pattern of living, presenting to its readers a responsible report of news and special interests as well as merchandise news," he concluded.

Dear Mister Editor:

The fellers at the country store Saturday night was all in fine fettle and words of wisdom was flowing around the place free and easy like foreign aid in the Congo.

Bug Hookum got the session off to a fast start by announcing he had saw in the Wall Street Journal where the odds was now quoted even on whether the country would be done in by bombs or by bankrupcy. Bug said he preferred bankrupcy on account of he has had considerable experience in this field.

This is the second time in a month Bug has quoted the Wall Street Journal and it could be he's trying to git hisself a little status around here. Personal, I got a hunch he's been reading it at the Bank while he was waiting to pay on his note, but I wouldn't say nothing out loud to hurt a feller's status.

Anyhow, Ed Doolittle agreed with Bug on his bankrupcy decision, allowed as how they wasn't no nicer way to end the journey. Ed said it reminded him of the story about the pawlbearer that was watching his rich friend gitting lowered into the ground in a brand new air conditioned Cadilack. "Man," said the pawlbearer, "that's what I call living!"

Bad Axe, which dominated the league, also dominated the allstar selections with five men on the mythical squad. In the backfield they placed Lynn Sommerfeld and Dick DeChane. The fleet DeChane was the only non-senior to make the team. He is a sophomore. Sommerfeld is a pile driving fullback.

Rounding out the backfield is Dennis Loux, the 195-pound back around whom the Eagles' attack was directed.

In the line the Hatchets placed Big Larry Frederick at end. Other Bad Axe linemen to make the grade were Mike Murdock and Tom Wolschlager. The Lakers, who finished last in the league, also placed two men on the first cleven. They were Roger Richmoud and Pat Hunter. Caro was represented by Fritz McMullen and the final spot went to Frank Piesko.

Second Team

The Hawks placed two men on the second team line. Tom Ellis, who played tackle, and Mike Karr, a Hawk linebacker, won the coveted spots.

The remainder of the selections were:

Ends - Tom Elliott, Marlette, Mark Nigg, Caro.

Linemen: Bob Jameson, Marlette; Jim Wagner, Sandusky; Tom Worley, Frankenmuth: Pat Lynch and Gary Peckham, Bad Axe; Don Baker, Caro; Gary Miner, Vassar, Winning honorable mention from Cass City were Jim Knoblet, Cass City, at tackle and Dale Mc-Intosh, plucky 135-pound guard. Knoblet is a junior and McIntosh a senior.

Dems Hold Key to Success, Failure of Romney's Tax Bill

By Elmer E. White Michigan Press Association Tax Fight Taxing

This isn't an election year, but activity in the legislative halls would tend to dispute this fast. The majority of Republicans are hoping to be able to come up with a compromise to please both Gov. George Romney and all GOP members on fiscal reform.

Democrats, on the other hand, are hoping they can give the Governor a setback and at the same time protect their political necks.

Romney, regardless of his intentions in the 1964 political arena, needs at least a substantial victory on fiscal reform to keep himself alive. Despite a relatively successful regular legislative session, most political observers agree he is now facing his first real fight.

Many Republicans have long opposed a statewide income tax, which forms the core of Romney's fiscal program. The Governor has indicated he cannot accept a program which would eliminate this basic feature.

With the 'so-called "moderate Republicans" fully supporting his program, Romney will still need a considerable number of Democratic votes to accomplish his aim. This puts the Democrats in the highways. Experts recommend the following EXPRESS WAYS to safely take advantage of our fast, convenient EXPRESSWAYS:

1. Keep right when entering. Use the acceleration strip to build up to the average speed of the traffic.

 Pick your lane . . . and stay in it. Lane wander-ing is dangerous. Generally, keep right. Where slow trucks and merging traffic make a lane. hazardous, move over a lane.

3. Stay one car length back for every 10 m. p. h. Use turn signals when changing lanes.

4/ if you must stop, signal for right hand turn as you decelerate. Get completely off the right side of the highway.

When leaving, look for advance turn signs, Move to the proper turn-off lane. Signal. Use deceleration lane, and slow down.

Watch "Highway Hypnosis" (move head and eyes constantly). Start a trip well-rested. Keep fresh air circulating. Avoid sun glare (and bright dash lights).

Michigan's new Interstate Expressways give us special advantages ... and special problems. Our new minimum Expressway speed is 45 m. p. h. and the night limit has been raised to match the 70 m. p. h. daytime speed limit (effective September 6). Expressways have reduced accidents. When one does occur, hawever, it's likely to be serious due to the high speeds, and many are rear-end collisions, and the runoff type. Brivers using Expressways must adjust their habits to high speed travel.

"Do you save stamps?" Man, born of woman, enters into a life of pain, tears and toil. In our current complex society he must decide how to live, where to live, determine a career, a creed and fight with the bill collectors. All this under, as the sociologists and psychiatrists like to say, "the shadow of the mushroomshaved cloud." And then some joker comes along with "Do you save stamps?" These four words have become important to the buying very

ent. In a mercenary sense, she has become a philatelist .... favorite flowers. among other things.

Of course, my wife saves string, old shoes, tintoil, paperclips, broken dishes, bent hairpins, old snapshots of boyfriends (you'd be surprised to see some of the guys she used to go out with) and very little money. So it is only natural when a store clerk whispers seductively in her ear, "Do you save stamps?" that she whips out her stamp book and starts pasting.

You can get stamps at hardware stores, markets, shoe stores gas stations, butcher shops, taverns and the post office. They come in green, red, blue, yellow, plaid and one place will print a color to match what you're wearing . . . while you wait.

For 2,978 books you can get a Thunderbird . . . to go with the getsenglesbergen (vintage 1987) which you got for 27 books and $3.98 postage charge.

The other day I went to the store for my wife. Ordinarily. I don't go to the store for or, for that matter, with my wife. On this particular day, I had to pick up some sugar, some potatoes and some catsup. I got to the checkout counter and that's when the trouble began. "I see you got the sugar worth

50 extra stamps," says the clerk, "smart fella." "Thanks," I heamed. "Oops, I think you made a mistake . . . you can get 27 extra stamps with Krindleman's catsup and this stuff you have is worth only 26 extra stamps." "Well, we don't like Krindleman's catsup, so if it's all the same I'll take this stuff." "Suit yourself. A stamp saved is a stamp earned, I always say. Let's see now . . . 12 more stamps for Sterdheim's milk. That makes 88 extra stamps plus what you get for just buying your groceries here!"

"How about that! Well, I'll see yon." "Hold it, sir. You don't have your stamps." "Oh, that's okay. I don't think I want them." "But you have to take your stamps." "Naw, you give them to someone else." "Listen fella, public and my wife is no differdon't be a troublemaker . . . you got some stamps coming and you're gonna take 'em." "I don't want them, thanks."

"Okay, give me back those groceries." "What d'ya mean, give you back those groceries . . . I paid for them." "Paid, schmaid. You take your stamps or you don't leave the store with those goodies."

With that, he came around the end of the checkout counter and grabbed ahold of my sack of groceries. We jostled each other around a bit and people began shouting and screaming.

Finally, I got him down on the checkout counter with his head hanging over the edge near the cash register. "I don't want your lousy stamps," I bellowed and pushed the "No charge" button. The cash register door sprang out and slammed him in the head. I let go of him and he slid off the checkout counter into a heap on the floor.

I grabbed up my groceries and was out the door and into my car before anyone realized what was happening. I went home and about an hour later the police were knocking at my door.

To be brief, they told me the clerk had filed an assault charge against me, but he was willing to let it drop if I'd take the stamps. If I didn't, they'd throw me in the clink. They also informed me that the judge was a stampsaver from the word go and he'd probably throw the book at me. Man, born of woman, is here a short time and is too late smart. "Do you save stamps?" You better believe it. ****

With a little bit of luck, the story about hops will be in this week's issue. Mrs. Steve Karpovich probably feels it's about Charlemagne, in 768 A. D., actanica.

Beer, Poultices Were By-Products Prohibition Ended Cultivated Hop Crop in Area, State

There was a time when hops were a major Mi, higan crop and nearly every farm had at least one vine growing along a tence row or on an arbor. Now, aside from a few scattered arbors and those growing wild, Michigan and Thumb area hop gardens are his-

Usually, hops are associated, and rightly so, with the brewing of beer, hew, very few, persons, however, recall when hops were used for making wine, bread and, oddly enough, poultices. Interviews with several Cass City residents, inquiries at the Sebewaing Brewery and letters from area persons uncovered the history of hops in Michigan and revealed what could well be one of the most utilitarian herbs known to man.

Brewmaster Reports The death knell for commercial hop raising in Michigan was sounded with the advent of prohibition in the 1930's. With no other commercial value and no end of prohibition in sight, existing hop gardens were either destroyed or left to fend for themselves.

"Most of the hops are now grown in the west," reports John Newell, brewmaster at Sebewaing Brewery in Sebewaing.

"Hops were grown in Michigan years and years ago before prohibition," says Newell, a veteran of 34 years in beer-making. After prohibition they were largely imported from Europe until United States hop growers caught up. Now we're one of the largest growers of hops in the world. Newell explained that hops supply the "flavor and bouquet" of beer. A minor authority on hops, Newell raised some on an arbor behind his apartment in Detroit this past summer. He also explained the difference cluded. between cultivated hops and the wild variety found on many Michigan farms and woodlots. Wild hops lose their bouquet and bittering value quicker than the cultivated variety, although root settings from wild ones can be cultivated to provide a good variety of hops," he stated. Ancient Herb

Mrs. Karpovich has made quite a study of wine-making and reports that "you can make wine out of almost anything." Her recipe for hop wine consists of hops, honey, yeast and water. As an aside, she remarked that King Edward VIII, the British monarch who later abdicated his throne. was served hop wine at his coronation.

The picture didn't turn out so I asked her if I could take another. This time when I left, she gave me some strawberry wine and, I think, some black raspberry wine.

The picture, as you can see, d'dn't turn out as well as it could have, but I was afraid to try it again. Not that the wine isn't good because it is. It's just that lately I've been taking a lot of hazy pictures of my thumb.

Hops were first introduced in America about nine years after the pilgrims stumbled ashore at Plymouth Rock or in 1629. "Humulus Lupulus," as hops are known biologically, are a member of the mulberry family and the term "getting hopped up" may be closer to the truth in the modern sense because the herb is closely related to hemp, the source of marijuana.

In brief, the encyclopedia reports that "the hop is a tall vine, cultivated for its scaly, conelike fruit . . , which is used to make beer." "Hops are perennial and flower in midsummer. Flowers on the female plant are clustered in cone-shaped seed catkins which have large thin scales or bracts. The beer flavor comes from a yellow resin-like substance called lupulin found at the base of the bracts. Hops are harvested the last part of August and mid-September, Five-sixths of America's hops are grown in California, Oregon and Washington. They are also grown in Idaho, New York and Wisconsin.

There are four varieties of hops, fuggle, the late cluster, the early cluster and the red vine. Bread Ingredient

Perhaps the second best known use of hops, outside of making the well-known "home brew," is as a yeast in the making of bread. Scotty McCullough, who still gets some calls for hops through his Cass City drugstore, recalls that "they used to use it to make bread rise." A letter from Jason Kitchin, Cass City, also mentioned the gathering and drying of hops by an uncle around the turn of the century for his mother's bread. McCullough reports that "we don't get much call for hops anymore. Years and years ago, we used to sell quite a little bit of it." The going price for hops, sold in a one-ounce box, is about 25 cents an ounce. Odorless when sold, hops give off a strong, pungent odor when drying.

Although hops are widely noted as a major ingredient for beer, few realize that the herb can be used in making wine. Mrs. Steve Karpovich, rural Cass City house-

Hold Services for Mrs. Moore, 45

Funeral services were to be held Wednesday from the Cass City First Baptist Church for Mrs. Beatrice Moore, 45, former Cass resident, following her City death Sunday, Nov. 3, at Hills and Dales General Hospital where she had been a patient for two weeks.

Born in Brown City July 4, Zawilinski 1918, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Amos Kennedy. Stafford 2111, Sugden 1966. She married Harold Moore in Cass City Feb. 7, 1958, and the couple moved to Detroit.

She was in the restaurant business in Cass City and Peck before moving to Detroit.

Surviving, besides her husband, are: a son, Edward DeBlois of Tucson, Ariz.; a stepson, Carl Moore of Detroit, and three sisters, Mrs. Kenneth Cumper and Mrs. Harold Martin, both of Cass City, and Mrs. Hannah Pierson of National City, Mich. Two grandchildren also survive. The Rev. Richard Canfield,

First Baptist Church pastor, officiated at the services and interment was in Evergreen Cemetery, Brown City. Funeral arrangements were by Little's Funeral Home.

His latest is CARAVANS and, as always, sounds in the novel as it were biographical. That is one mark of the polished novel; and indeed, the author has spent quite a period of time 'researching' this novel, as a six-page addendum to the book (in total, 342 pages) testifies. The teller of this story is identified as an embassy minor official, Mark Miller, a recent graduate of Yale and before that of Groton. He is also a Jew, which is a fact that he would just as soon forget. The embassy is the US embassy in Afghanistan; the period is soon after WW II. The main plot is prompted by letter from a US Senator inquiring about a young American girl, Ellen Jaspar who, like the woman "Laura" in the play, haunts this novel throughout. As a college girl, she discovered that the world was quite a different place than she had been taught in Dorset, Pa., her home town.
