

Set Bus Policy

To park school buses at home or at the school was the question facing Cass City Board of Education members Monday night at an open meeting following a closed teacher tenure session with the system's teachers.

Board members decided to handle all complaints individually, as they arise in the future. Earlier in the year, the board stated that all school buses driven by village residents and parked at their homes, would have to be parked at the school. They later rescinded the order.

The controversy over bus parking arose when a resident complained to the council that a bus in his neighborhood was a hazard and unattractive.

Chief reasons against parking the buses at the school are that drivers would be inconvenienced and special precautions would have to be taken to insure against vandalism.

A meeting was to have been held Wednesday night with the bus drivers and the problem was to be aired then.

Adult Class

An adult class in typing and bookkeeping was discussed and will be offered this year, if enough persons are interested and a teacher is available.

Two village adults have asked permission to attend classes on a part-time basis and the board, at the suggestion of Superintendent Donald Crouse, gave approval with stipulation that they may come if they desire and can conduct themselves properly.

Seeking the permission were Derek Romain, 24, and Joan Lindsay, 20.

Table Toppers Try for Sunday Sale Again

Tuscola County Table Toppers Association members filed a petition bearing 6,020 signatures requesting that the question of the sale of beer and wine in Tuscola county be put on the November General Election ballot.

In two previous attempts, the question has lost by small margins. In the 1960 election, 8,257 were for the Sunday sale and 8,864 were opposed.

The petition was filed Monday at the clerk's office, Caro, by Roy Pascoe, a Table Toppers official.

Four Fined Heavily For Vandalism

Four Owendale youths found that drinking and telephone receivers don't mix when they appeared before Justice Douglas Williams in Caro on two different occasions to answer to vandalism charges.

Arrested Thursday by Cass City Police Chief Carl Palmateer, and sheriff's deputies were Frank G. Enderle, James Roe, Mike Mandich and Dennis M. Pavlichek, all of Owendale.

The group pleaded guilty to taking telephone receivers from General Telephone Company booths in Cass City and from Independent Telephone booths in Caro; destruction of county road signs and three of them admitted taking speakers from the Caro Drive-in Theatre. The vandalism took place Sunday, Aug. 23.

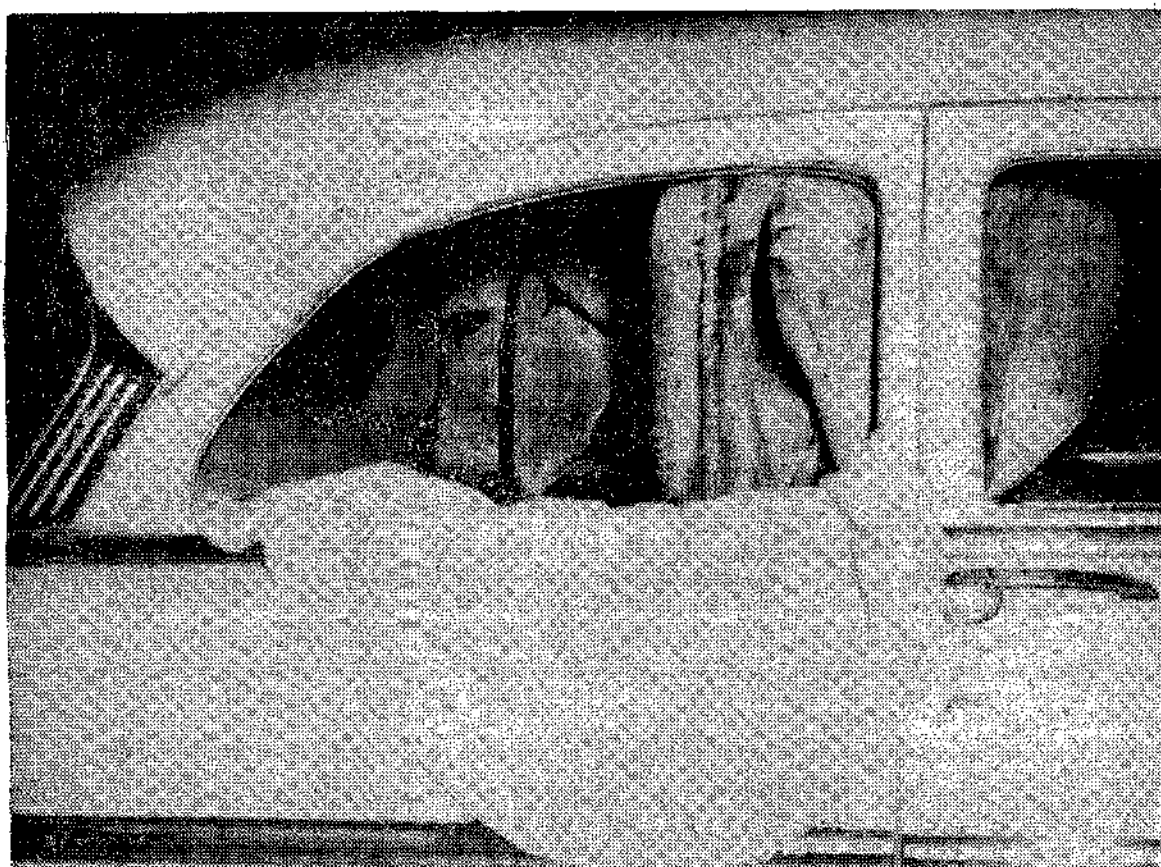

The group were arraigned Thursday, Aug. 27, for the Cass City destruction and each was fined $56.25 and five days in jail, plus restitution of $7.50, according to Palmateer.

Monday, they were arraigned for the other acts and each was fined $29.30 plus restitution of $7.50 to ITC and $29.30 plus $3.75 restitution to the county.

Roe, Mandich and Pavlichek were also fined $19.30 each plus $3.33 restitution for the theft of the drive-in speakers.

All four youths had been drinking.

OBVIOUSLY, the driver of this car is a Democrat and the closest he could come to a mule was this rather dejected donkey. Why the donkey was in the car and who the owner was has not been verified, but this being election year it's a natural happening. The scene took place Monday evening on Leach street, a block south of Main. There have been no reported sightings of elephants in cars, as of press time.

Area Drivers in Automobile Crashes

A Cass City man was injured slightly Saturday in a two-car collision at the blind intersection of Buehly and Short roads, according to a report filed by Tuscola county sheriff's deputies.

Lyle C. Schember, 23, Cass City, was slightly injured when his car and a second car driven by Edward Buehly, 68, Cass City, collided at the intersection. Neither driver saw the other vehicle until just before the impact.

Riding with Buehly was his wife, Janet, 68.

Bus Mishap

St. Agatha School bus driver Elery J. Sontag, 50, Gagetown, started the school year with a minor accident Monday when he struck a parked car while turning his bus after unloading.

Sontag told investigating officers that a front wheel caught on the fender and he couldn't turn in time to avoid the car, owned by Leroy Stapleton.

Hit and Run

Village police are still searching for the driver of the car which struck a parked car Saturday morning in front of Gross and Maier Meat Market and then left the scene.

Patrolman William McKinley reported that Mrs. Harriett McIntyre of Cass City had parked her car in front of the market and when she returned, the right rear door had been caved in.

Monday, Aug. 24, Chief Carl Palmateer investigated a minor accident at the General Cable parking lot when a car being backed by Mrs. Jeanine Wurm, 34, of Sebewaing, struck a parked car driven by Jeannette M. Cross, 20, of Kingston.

Both cars were slightly damaged.

Name Hunter to Clerk's Vacancy

R. M. Hunter, retired Cass City businessman, was appointed Elkland township clerk Friday following the sudden death of Clerk C. E. Patterson Wednesday evening, Aug. 26. The appointment was by the township board at a special meeting.

Patterson's quick replacement was made because the deadline for absentee ballots was 2:00 p.m. Saturday and the ballots may be obtained only from the township clerk.

In Circuit Court news, Stephan J. Frank, 39, Bad Axe, pleaded guilty to an indecent liberties charge Wednesday, Aug. 26, when arraigned before Circuit Court Judge Timothy Quinn.

Bond of $1,000 was continued and a presentencing investigation was ordered for Wednesday, Oct. 7.

Annex Vote Passes In Greenleaf

Greenleaf School District voters approved a four-point annexation to Cass City Public Schools in an election held Tuesday.

Forty-five ballots were cast in the election with 31 in favor of the annexation and 13 opposed.

One ballot was spoiled. The other three propositions were raising of tax limitation for debt retirement, approved 19 to 17; assumption of bonded indebtedness, approved 22 to 13, and raising of tax limitation for operating expenses, approved 26 to 18.

The annexation will affect 16 students in grades kindergarten through eight. The district has been transporting its high school students to Cass City on a tuition basis.

R. M. Hunter

Township supervisor Ed Golding reported that several candidates were considered in the light of availability and desire to serve. Hunter was named to serve the remainder of Patterson's term or until the November election.

At that time, a candidate's name will be placed on the ballot, Golding explained, and will be elected to the full term.

Hunter is the former owner of the Western Auto Associate store in Cass City. He retired in 1962.

From the Editor's Corner

Being ill has very few advantages, but as I lie here in bed at Hills and Dales Hospital Saturday I can think of a couple.

One of the first is that I received five books to read from the Monday Night Poker Club that I occasionally play with. Now you may think that receiving a gift of five pocketbooks is not very earth-shaking, but that is only because you do not know the bandits I play with.

Those five books represent the only thing that I have taken from those guys on Monday nights in the last three years.

I also received a single red rose from the Sales Department of Walbro Corporation and immediately envisioned which one of the lovely young girls at Walbro was so thoughtful to send it to me. But by the time a second rose arrived from Walbro Sales I was no longer under an oxygen tent and so light-headed.

A source of gratification to me, although not unexpected, is the way the staff pitched in and in producing the paper while I'm loafing.

NFO Continues Action, Pickets Rowdy in Caro

National Farmers Organization members continued their struggle hold on Thumb livestock sales during the week and succeeded in keeping auctions at a minimum.

Meat prices, locally, however, have dropped back to normal with large quantities of meat coming in from the western part of the state where the NFO does not seem to be in action.

A huge crowd of NFO members gathered Tuesday at the Michigan Livestock Exchange Yard in Cass City and kept all but five head of cattle and six hogs out of the market. No incidents were reported.

It was a different situation in Caro Tuesday with members of the militant union attempting to forcefully hold back vehicles with cattle from entering the auction yard.

One NFO member was hurt slightly when hit by the door of a truck he was attempting to stop.

Sheriff's deputies, Caro police and State Police were called to the scene before the situation got out of control.

The group succeeded in keeping all but 28 head of livestock out of the yard.

Auction yards in Lapeer closed Tuesday as the result of picketing and meager sales were reported in Marlette Monday night.

Local NFO officials report that contracts are going out to meat packers but declined to comment on the contents of the contracts.

Voters Post 40% Turnout In County Primary Election

Forty per cent of Tuscola County's 17,500 registered voters turned out for Tuesday's Primary election, nearly doubling the total vote cast in the last presidential primary.

It was a long night for some election officials with the last returns coming in at 7:30 Wednesday morning. An estimated 8,200 persons went to the polls.

Officials attributed the high interest in the election to the race in new state representative districts, the new senate district and county contests.

Most controversial was the three-candidates race for the Judge of Probate for the county. Although he didn't poll the largest number of votes, ousted Probate Judge Henderson Graham will be on the November ballot. He will share the ballot with C. Bates Wills, Vassar.

Wills received 3,037; Graham - 2,693, and Richard Kern, Caro - 2,321.

Orrville Hubbard, Kingston, carried Tuscola county against his opponent Roy Spencer in the race for 78th district state representative, but lost to Spencer in the over-all district count.

Hubbard posted a 1,432-1,267 over Spencer in the county but ended up with 2,845 to Spencer's 4,756 in the district. Spencer will be opposite Wilma Dillon, Democrat, on the November ballot.

County Democrats posted a strong vote, despite a split in the party. All candidates of the rebel "New Era" Democrat party, except that of Sheriff, were named to the November ballot. In that race, Mose Hill, Quanicasee, topped Fenton Loss, Vassar.

The following are the totals of the county election:

New Flashers Set for M-81 Track Crossing

Grand Trunk Western Railroad Company officials have announced this week that work on a $10,000 automatic flashing light signal at the M-81 crossing in Cass City will begin on or about Tuesday, Sept. 8.

G. J. Stonehouse, signal engineer, explained in a letter to the Chronicle that the new signals will be the "most modern available and will be installed in accordance with the standards prescribed by the Public Service Commission."

The signals will be equipped with back-to-back units so that motorists will have two signal standards to observe regardless of traveling direction.

An extra pair of flashing lights is scheduled to be installed on the southwest signal to warn vehicular traffic approaching the track from Nestles Street.

The company recently completed other crossing improvements at the same site.

Voters Approve New Jail Levy

Although voters were closely divided on the issue, Tuscola County will get its new jail with the passing of the two-year one and a quarter mill levy in Tuesday's Primary Election.

The issue carried by a 4,517 to 3,523 margin or 694 votes.

The levy will cost voters $1.25 per $1,000 of assessed valuation as equalized.

Village Mourns Death of Clerk C. E. Patterson

Cass City lost one of its best-known and most colorful citizens Wednesday, Aug. 26, with the death of Charles E. Patterson, 95, Michigan's oldest township clerk.

Patterson died suddenly at his home. Funeral services were held Saturday at Little's Funeral Home with Rev. R. E. Betts, EUB Church pastor, officiating.

Cass City businessmen paid their respects to Patterson by flying their flags and by closing during funeral services.

Michigan's oldest township clerk, in both service and age, Patterson spent his early years as a house builder and owner of several village businesses.

He suffered a severe stroke a year ago last spring but recovered and returned to his clerking, a post he has held since 1928.

Born in Simcoe, Ont., Sept. 9, 1868, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Patterson. He came to Michigan when a young man and settled in Argyle.

He married Miss Christina Striffler in Cass City Nov. 9, 1898, and they settled in Argyle until 1903 when they moved to Cass City. Mrs. Patterson died April 30, 1954.

Patterson was an honorary member of Rotary International of Cass City and was one of two members specially honored at a January, 1960, Rotary meeting.

Surviving are: a daughter, Mrs. Claude (Cecile) Wood of Cass City; a son, Grant of Perry; three grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren. A son, two brothers and two sisters preceded him in death.

Interment was in Elkland Cemetery.

Area Townships Nominate Officers

Little interest was shown in Saturday's caucuses held in Evergreen, Elmwood and Greenleaf townships with only token attendance by township residents who nominated township officers.

Elmwood

Twelve persons attending the Elmwood caucus returned all officers to their positions with the exception of Justice Art Freeman who was replaced by Richard Downing. Freeman did not seek re-election.

Other officers nominated included: Milton Hofmeister, supervisor; Harlan Hobart, clerk; Royce Russell, treasurer; Art Carolan, highway commissioner, and Les Lounsbury and James Turner, both trustees.

Evergreen

Largest turnout for any of the caucuses was at Evergreen where 25 persons renominated all previous officers.

Officers include: Floyd Kennedy, supervisor; L. D. Severance, treasurer; Arlington Gray, clerk; Brewster Shaw, justice of the peace; Alvin Burk, constable, and George Krause, trustee.

Greenleaf

All incumbents were renominated by the estimated 10 persons who attended the Greenleaf caucus.

Nominated were: Stanley Wills, supervisor; Anson Karr, clerk; Aletha Fox, treasurer; Ronald Fox, trustee; Robert Hall, justice, and Henry Bartnik, Robert Hoadley, Lee Hendrick and Clifford Jackson, all constables.

Oops!

An experiment in the effectiveness of voting machines got off to a bad start Tuesday in Precinct No. 1, Indianfields township.

A mistake in printing, made by a national printing concern, listed the candidates for the State Senate District 35 instead of for District 28.

The mistake was not discovered until 18 persons had cast their ballots. The 19th person allegedly asked why one of the candidates from her district was not on the ballot and the mistake was discovered.

An official of the printing company was called from Saginaw and the correct candidates were listed.

IT'S A CASE of having your cake and eating it too for Dick Szarapki, Cass City hobbyist. Dick got tired of catching trophy-sized fish only to have them shrink in the freezer or disappear on the dinner table so he took up taxidermy and now he eats his fish and keeps them too. He's shown here examining some of his handiwork.

Fisherman Finds Way to Eat Fish and Keep Them, Too

One complaint common among fishermen is that no one believes them when they tell how big the one was "that got away." One Cass City fisherman, however, had a decidedly different problem.

Nobody believed him when he showed them how big his catches were even when he froze them in the refrigerator ... mostly because every time he took them out, they were a little smaller.

"I finally got tired of it," says Richard Szarapki, 25, rural Cass City. "Every time I'd take a fish out of the freezer, it would be about an inch shorter."

Now, Dick not only gets to eat his catches, he also has found a way to keep them life-sized ... simply by mounting his own trophies.

As a matter of fact, Dick has become so proficient at the art of taxidermy that he's planning on branching out to other wildlife, taking a short course, applying for a license and perhaps going into it commercially.

Just One Lesson

He began his new-found hobby over two months ago when he watched a friend mounting his own catches and decided to try his hand.

"I watched Theron Meadows of Caro do one fish," tells Dick, "and then I tried it myself." Now he modestly admits that he does it as well or even better than his teacher.

An avid fisherman and hunter, Dick has a natural eye for the

Mrs. Robert J. Martus

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Martus will live on Dupont Street, Flint, following their northern Michigan honeymoon. The couple exchanged nuptial vows Saturday, Aug. 22, in St. John Vianney Church in Flint.

The bride, the former Miriam Louise McCormick is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard W. McCormick of Flint. Mr. and Mrs. William Martus of Cass City are parents of the groom.

The bridal gown of organza over taffeta was fashioned with a deep collar edged in re-embroidered Alencon lace. The lace-trimmed controlled skirt fell into a cathedral-length Watteau train. A princess crown of pearls and crystals held her English illusion veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of three white cabbage roses entwined with ivy. Joan Durish of Swartz Creek was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Judith Potter of Flint and Jean Martus of Battle Creek, sister of the bridegroom.

Carrying cascades of aqua and lavender chrysanthemums with ivy, they were dressed identically in aqua shantastik paneled sheaths. Matching bows with bouffant veils completed their attire.

The bridegroom chose his brother, William E. Martus Jr. of Hagerstown, Ind., as best man. Ushers were Frederick Leeson of Cass City and James E. and John T. McCormick, brothers of the bride.

The Skylark Room at Bishop Airport was the scene of a reception for 200 guests.

The bride's table, overlaid with white net accented with aqua and lavender bows, was centered with white gladioli in a crystal bowl. Crystal candelabra decorated the punch table and the cake table was graced with aqua chrysanthemums.

Mr. Martus, a graduate of Central Michigan University, is a teacher and coach at Hamady High School. His bride is a graduate of the University of Michigan and will also teach at Hamady.

BULEN TALKS Cars

There's a lot to be said about hearing, especially if you're on the receiving end of an intelligent conversation. According to a recent scientific journal, tribesmen in a remote part of the Sudan hear better than people living in New York, Dusseldorf, Germany, or Cairo, Egypt. But I think a lot depends on who was doing the yakking. Anyway, scientists came up with that one just recently.

This makes me wonder if those same scientists have ever paid a scientific visit to BULEN MOTORS where expert mechanics can rev up a car motor and by cocking an ear tell you what they think is wrong with it. There's no magic attached to it; they're just been factory-trained and have been on the job so long that hearing a ping that shouldn't be there is second nature to them.

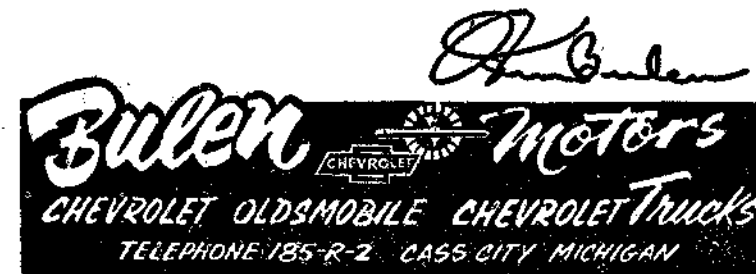

Of course they don't rely entirely on the human ear to diagnose a car's ailments, they've got modern tools and electronic equipment all over the place and what's more, they know how to use it.

When your car doesn't sound just right to you, even if you happen to be in Dusseldorf, take it to BULEN MOTORS and let the experts give it a listen. You'll be glad you nipped a big repair bill in the bud.

SUGAR 'N' SPICE

'n' EVERYTHING NICE

By John Sommers

"Curiouser and curiouser" as Alice says in "Wonderland", the weather, and in the Michigan counterpart we couldn't agree more. Now that August is over and we've already had two weeks of October we don't know what to expect for this busy "opening of school", "last summer fling" time.

In the bakery this problem is multiplied by the weather - should we make something light and delicate for a heat wave or rich for cool or full bodied for cold. Sure as we plan one the weather will fool us and be the other.

We've got some "humdingers" coming up for LABOR DAY, and for fall so if you've got "picnic" plans or "going away" plans or "reunion" plans - be sure and plan US into your eating - for instance, for any Labor Day plans we're featuring LEMON MERINGUE PIE a happy compromise, full bodied, rich and full of flavor yet light and tender good.

So be like Alice - "curiouser and curiouser" and come in for your baking needs - we'll even make you an Unbirthday cake if you order it at

With the loss of seven top men by graduation this spring, Lemanski faces the season with an inexperienced and lightweight team.

First game of the season will be at Cass City Friday, Sept. 18, when the Hawks meet Irv Clasen's Port Huron Catholic Central. Lemanski reported that a scrimmage with Buena Vista will take place either Friday or Saturday.

Off-Campus Class Slated at Caro

Registration for persons planning to enroll this fall in Central Michigan University's off-campus class in Caro will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 8, at Caro High School.

The Class, Education 425 (science in the elementary school), carries two semester hours of credit and is open to graduate students, seniors and qualified juniors.

Persons planning to enroll must be present at registration and must have been accepted for admission prior to registration.

Take note, beginning canoeists. Here are five basic and simple strokes which can make the going easier for you. The J-stroke is used to turn the canoe toward the paddle side by forcing the stern in the opposite direction. Serving as its opposite is the draw stroke which "pulls" the canoe sideways by forcing the water underneath the keel. Useful in getting a boat closer to a dock, this is a repeated stroke made by dipping the paddle and pulling it toward the canoe in a short, straight motion. The bow stroke comes into play for power and control when a person is alone in a canoe. It provides front end weight and balance in high wind or waves. The sculling draw is a guiding stroke used to steady a canoe in rapid water or high waves. It is simply a squared off figure-eight. For cruising, the pitch stroke is performed by the man in the stern of the canoe. As he draws the paddle to the rear, he twists it slightly to force the water away from the stern. This holds the canoe on a straight course.

New Pews Ready for Methodists

Churchgoers attending the Cass City Methodist Church Sunday will sit in new pews slated to be installed Friday by the Kawkawlin Church Furniture Company, Kawkawlin, according to James Braid, pastor.

Contracted by the Board of Trustees and approved by the Official Board, the company is building the pews at a cost of $4,046, Braid reports.

The project is being financed through contributions of members and friends of the church as well as memorial gifts. Some gifts have been made in honor of living persons.

The pews, of solid oak with green upholstering on cushioned seats, will also increase the seating capacity from 200 to 210 persons. The original pews were sold to the Nazarene Church of Cass City and were removed Monday.

All chancel furniture, the communion rail and baptismal font have been refinished to match the light oak in the pews.

Other major improvements include the redecorating of the entire inside of the sanctuary. The Woman's Society helped with the project by donating $500 for the sanctuary work and also donated an additional $300 on the pew project.

Painting was done by Paul Cobb of North Branch. Walls, ceiling and woodwork will all be painted a lighter color to blend in with the pews.

Other recent work included refinishing of the floor of the sanctuary by Jerome Root Jr. to prepare it for installation of the pews.

Publisher Recovers

Chronicle Publisher John Haire is expected to be released within the week from Hills and Dales General Hospital where he is recovering from a mild seizure.

Haire was taken to Hills and Dales Thursday, Aug. 20, where tests revealed he was suffering from ischemia of the heart.

Council Buy Saves Cass City $3,000

Village trustees approved the purchase of a secondhand sewer cleaner Wednesday morning, thereby saving the village approximately $3,000 over the cost of a new one. The decision came at the regular Wednesday morning breakfast meeting.

The sewer cleaner will be purchased from Bay City at a cost of $600. A new cleaner would cost approximately $3,600.

Council members also learned that water samples sent to Birmingham from the new tower were not tested because the company had gone out of business. New samples have been sent to Bay City for testing.

Also discussed was additional insurance for the machinery sheds behind the Municipal Building. Clerk H. L. Bridges told council members that he could find no insurance policies on the buildings.

Coffee Shops in Rest Areas?
Impossible, Say Road Officials

By Elmer E. White
Coffee Anyone?

Ideas for cutting down motorist fatigue and thus reducing road mishaps pour into the State Highway Department and other offices in Lansing by the dozens.

One recurring suggestion over the last several years has recently been repeated by one Michigan man with authority to put such ideas into effect.

State Rep. Edward K. Michalski, Detroit Democrat, has renewed the proposal to provide roadside coffee shops at every highway rest area.

This suggestion has been answered time and time again by state officials. They say it would

It Always Seems...

You're trying for that parking space, when someone quickly takes your place.

You try so hard to be polite, unthinkable to ever fight for what you first thought was your own.

You sit and count to ten alone. Ironically, it always seems... the other guy has radar beams!

It always seems that Labor Day is here once more before we know it... and with summer about over the living isn't always easy. But we know one way to make it so. Install a Gas Water Heater, and end your hot water problems for all times. Economical too! Just call us for further information at be impossible on the freeway routes because Federal regulations prohibit commercial development on the roadsides.

Michalski contends state-owned, privately operated coffee shops on the super highways would break the monotony of driving, provide respite for passengers, and open new job opportunities for unskilled workers.

The Detroit legislator also urged a full check of off-highway facilities to be sure food, gas and lodging is available on a 24-hour basis near the high speed routes.

As a member of the Legislature, Michalski would have a voice in appropriations to the Highway Department which would be needed to put his plan into effect.

Barring any change in Federal highway policies, however, the coffee shops in rest areas appears out of the question.

A slight modification to Michalski's plan might be feasible, however. It could instead provide for the creation of off-free-way rest areas where a motorist could drive up an exit ramp to the coffee shop and just across the road to the entrance ramp with a minimum of interruption to his trip.

Extensive encouragement to private businesses to locate eating facilities immediately adjacent to exit ramps might be advisable as a means of keeping the state out of the restaurant business.

Workmen's Injuries

Traffic accident rates was not the only area of safety which took a turn for the worse this year.

State Labor Department statistics show a poor record in both manufacturing and non-manufacturing injuries during the first six months of the year.

The department has not drawn any conclusions on whether the increase in compensable workmen's injuries was attributable to the current business boom which keeps more men at work.

Some 18,154 compensable injuries were reported to the state Workmen's Compensation Department through June this year. This represented a 26 per cent increase in injuries over the last six months of 1963 and a 12 per cent hike over the first half of last year.

Injury rates in manufacturing and non-manufacturing were about the same. In the manufacturing firms, the increase recorded was 27 per cent over the July-December, 1963, period, and the non-manufacturing rate was a 25 per cent hike.

Another Battleground

Failure of the state Apportionment Commission to reach agreement without court appraisal this year may have provided a foretaste of a similar deadlock to be seen within the next year.

Another commission created under the new Constitution has similar earmarks of deadlock. This is the Highway Commission, to be composed of four persons with no more than two from the same political party.

The Apportionment Commission was named by the two major political parties, four members from each. The Governor will appoint the Highway Commission but must make it an evenly divided body.

Argument can be made that the Highway Commission's job is not a political one. Its responsibility is to appoint a competent highway engineer-administrator to serve as Highway Director at the pleasure of the Commission.

It can be anticipated, however, that Republican Commission members will be able to find a person to fill the requirements of the post who has faithfully served their party during the years. The same can be said of the Democrats on the Commission.

A strong challenge lies ahead for this new Commission to avoid following the pattern set by the Apportionment Commission.

Strong hope still exists that the motoring public can be served in the future by a basically non-political highway director who has at heart the interests of the entire state because the Commission chose him without consideration of his or their political leanings.

CASS CITY HOSPITAL, INC.

Patients in the hospital Tuesday forenoon included: Wrayburn Krohn and Ava Edwards of Cass City; Mary Korzek of Silverwood; Mrs. Veronica Grimski of Ubyly; Mrs. Vera Commins of Deford; Elias Wilson of Snover and Frank Retelle of Sebawaing.

SCHOOL BOARD

Substitute Teaching

Pay for teachers substituting in other classes during their conference hours was raised from $2.50 to $3.00 an hour. Substitute teaching salaries were raised earlier in the year from $15.00 to $20.00 and Crouse suggested that the board would be justified in raising the hourly rate.

Under this plan, instead of hiring a substitute teacher for the day, teachers on duty instruct the class during their conference hours.

Tuition of a Greenleaf girl attending Ubyly will be paid by the school.

School Sites

A site for the proposed new Cass City High School still has not been determined and Architect Warren Holmes has been contacted to answer questions and to provide a cost comparison of two of the suggested sites.

Favored by most of the board are the Youngs' property at the east village limits and the Donahue property at the north village limits.

Crouse reported that both properties have equal possibilities and problems.

The system will begin the school year short one teacher. However, arrangements have been made for Mrs. Richard Drews to fill in on a half-time basis and Principal Arthur Holmberg and James Seals, assistant principal, will also substitute.

It's the nature of the things involved that causes marriages to go on the rocks.

An ounce of practice is worth a pound of preaching.

body contours of his catches and although he's only been mounting his own trophies for a short time, they have a high degree of realism.

His first attempt left something to be desired, he admits. A medium sized trout, the finished product looked just like what it was... a trophy mounted by someone who'd never done any mounting before.

Improves Steadily

However, Dick persisted and his improvement can be seen in each consecutive mount.

One thing unique about Dick's trophies, currently on display at Albee's Hardware, is the fact that he uses styrofoam as the main component for his body forms.

The styrofoam is faster, easier to contour, inexpensive and never loses its shape.

Dick outlined the technique he uses in mounting a fish.

"First you have to catch the fish... that's the hardest part," he joked.

He begins by laying the fish on the styrofoam block and making an outline. From that point on, the fish is handled like no regular catch.

In cleaning, always cut along the side that will be next to the mounting board, never along the belly. This way it is easier to turn the stomach and the cut never shows.

Use Dull Knife

When skinning the fish, never use a sharp knife or the skin may be cut.

After the fish is skinned, clean all meat from the head. Dick has developed a small, spoon-like hook which he uses for removing meat from the cheeks of the skinned fish.

When he has the fish skinned, he may stop and put the skin in the freezer until he has time to finish it. One thing in favor of the skinned fish, is that it takes up less room in the freezing compartment than a whole fish. Preparing the styrofoam for the body can be the easiest or the most difficult, depending on the taxidermist's skill.

"You have to keep working the styrofoam down with a wood file until the body looks natural," Dick explains.

After the body is shaped, the form is placed in the fish skin and it is sewn with nylon thread.

Next he fills the head with plaster and just before it hardens, he inserts the eyes. The gills are pinned and the fins are fitted with fine screen so they'll dry properly and in place.

Speed Required

As a preservative, Dick uses plain Borax soap which he rubs on and lets dry. The whole drying process may take a day or so. Actual mounting time, however, according to Dick, is about a half hour to 45 minutes.

"You have to do it in a hurry, because as the skin dries, it shrinks and also becomes harder to work with," he says.

When the fish is dried, three coats of varnish, actually a liquid plastic, are applied and the fish is ready for the wall board.

So far, Dick has done seven trout, six bass, two pike, and one black crappie. He has also mounted a few deer horns and plans to try his hand at other mounts.

Szaranski is married and has a son. He is employed in the laundry room of Hills and Dales General Hospital and is a part-time farmer.

IT SEEMS TO ME

A Timely Theme For
Race Conscious Public

BOOK REVIEW

Written in time to catch the eye of a race-conscious reading public, short story writer Shirley Ann Grau has chosen the theme of race relations about which to write her first full length novel, THE KEEPERS OF THE HOUSE. I doubt that later judges of the writing of this particular era in our nation's history will list this volume as a significant contribution to the problem.

If we ignore that issue (which, of course, we cannot do) the book is very entertaining and easy summer reading. We are aided in the sorting out of the generations by the gimmick of heading the chapters with the names of the principal person involved. I was a little confused by the shifting from the third person to the first person without discernible reason for doing so.

The plot is relatively simple. Will Howland, a widower, meets a young Negro named Abigail and takes her into his home as his mistress, bearing his children. Many years later, his only white granddaughter, also Abigail, marries a segregationist politician and the Howland secret is exposed. Both the first and final sections of the novel bear the name 'Abigail,' appropriately enough.

In the intervening sections of the book, the lives of the Howlands and their contemporaries are seen as typical of upper middle class families of that time in the South.

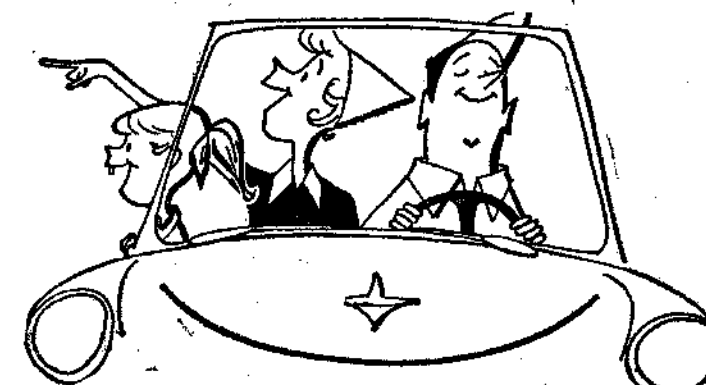

Especially interesting to me is the carefully drawn word-picture of John Tolliver, aspiring to a career in politics. He had not been aware that most of the Howlands traced themselves back to a Negro mistress of Will Howland. Just before an election where he was certain to be elected to his first elective position, which, in turn, would prove only the first of many such elections, the truth came out. To John Tolliver, the truth was unacceptable. And, in this instance at least, eliminated him automatically from any hope of an elective career. He places funds at his wife's disposal to pay for the college education of his daughters and bows out.

With a little more effort, Miss Grau could have written a novel for these times that would rank her high on the best seller list, and reward her efforts by winning for herself a reputation as one of the growing list of writers speaking to her age. I am looking anxiously for her next novel. I hope it will be one of social protest but done in a style at once more hardhitting than this and more consistent throughout. I am afraid that in a 300-page novel, it is too much to ask readers to thumb through better than 200 of those pages, accepting them as required reading if they are to grasp the theme of the book.

Incidentally, Miss Grau did a fair job of interpreting her text. Ecclesiastes 12:8-9, which she presents at the beginning of this book without any word of setting or explanation.

Send Program Notice To Wheat Growers

Notices have been sent to wheat growers of Tuscola County, transmitting 1965 wheat program information as applicable to the individual farm, Mike Singer, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committee, reports.

The notices list the 1965 farm wheat allotment, the farm's normal yield, the allocation for marketing certificates, the rate of the payment available for wheat diversion and the conserving base established for the farm.

The chairman urges farm operators to study the notice information carefully so that farming plans for the next growing season may be completed while there is still opportunity to file applications under the 1965 voluntary wheat program. The sign-up started Aug. 24 and will extend through Oct. 2.

Operation of the 1965 program generally will be about the same as for 1964, Singer pointed out, but some provisions have been modified. The program is again voluntary and is more flexible offering farmers a number of attractive choices.

Program benefits include price-support loans averaging $1.25 per bushel nationally on the marketing farm's wheat production, domestic marketing certificates worth 75 cents a bushel on as much as 45 per cent of the farm allotment's normal yield and export marketing certificates worth 30 cents a bushel on as much as 35 per cent of the allotment's normal production. Wheat diversion payments will be based on one-half the county price-support loan rate and the normal yield for the farm.

New program provisions for 1965 include the opportunity for growers taking part in both programs to substitute wheat for feed grains or feed grains for wheat and the establishment of an oats-rye base for a farm if this is requested. Storage under bond of wheat produced in excess of the farm allotment may be arranged at the time of the sign-up. Growers who wish further information about these or other provisions of the 1965 program may obtain details at the ASCS county office in Caro.

Nation's Bird in Trouble

More than a match for most wild foes, the majestic bald eagle appears headed on a one-way flight to oblivion throughout much of the United States because of people, progress, and pesticides. Its numbers have nosedived and today only 550 pairs of breeding birds remain in this country, not including Hawaii and Alaska. Michigan is one of the bald eagle's last strongholds, but here as elsewhere the forces of "civilization" are seriously working against our great national emblem. Studies are not conclusive, but there are indications that DDT poisoning is blasting the eagle's reproduction. There is also evidence that the birds pick up lethal doses of pesticides in the food they eat. Large numbers of bald eagles are illegally shot each year. Highways and resort developments have ousted these birds from their favorite haunts. Questions are cropping up over the possible effect pollution may have on the bald eagle.—Mich. # A DECADE OF PROGRESS FOR WALBRO IN CASS CITY

Walbro was created because W. E. Walpole saw a market for carburetors not being filled as he worked as treasurer in the Marvel-Schebler Carburetor factory in Flint.

Because he felt that a progressive company could fill a need, he decided in 1951 to open a new carburetor plant.

With money of his own and with funds invested by friends, Walbro started as a part-time business in an abandoned quonset hut in Fenton.

Machinery was purchased from Marvel-Schebler when they decided to move their operation to Illinois . . . it was cheaper to sell than ship.

In August Walpole severed his connection with Marvel-Schebler and became the full-time president of the fledgling corporation.

Not Carburetors

Until recent years, Walbro in Cass City has been regarded as a producer of carburetors, for small engines. Today it is much more diversified and in its earliest years in Fenton survived by producing various parts as a subcontractor for larger plants.

The company's ultimate goal when formed was to produce carburetors, but the Korean war made parts difficult, if not impossible, for a new plant.

Looking to the future, the company experimented with two new products . . . the Micro-

Liner, a device for testing front wheels of cars, and the Hydraulock, to be used for keeping cars from rolling down hill when parked.

After six months of experimentation the products came to a dead end because of the high cost of altering them to fit the cars on the road.

Meanwhile, a contact was made with Reo to build carburetors for their trucks in Lansing. Everything looked favorable until the final moments when the order was canceled . . . even though it had been given the green light by Reo engineering.

Almost Fatal

It was an almost fatal blow for struggling Walbro, but when Walpole mortgaged his home, the company continued to function.

The turning point in Walbro's brief trouble-filled history came shortly after the Reo disaster. Walpole, William Eberline and William Hoesy Sr. put the model of the current carburetor in their pocket and marched out to sell Clinton Machine Company.

After several weeks of waiting, when the fate of Walbro hung in the balance, an order from Clinton for 50 samples was received.

With everyone on the machine and production line, including the president, the samples were submitted, an order received and Walbro was in business. Walbro still produces for Clinton today.

Early in the summer of 1954, production of carburetors became so great that a new plant . . . and more capital . . . were needed to keep Walbro afloat.

After long deliberation and negotiation the papers were signed by Walbro and the Cass City Development Corporation.

Walbro estimated that there would be at least 20 persons on the payroll when production was under full swing.

The following January Walpole announced in a talk with the Rotary Club that 84 persons were hired.

More workers meant more room would be needed and within the next two years, five additions were made to the original plant. Still more room was needed and another building was erected and a third building rented.

But still the company grew and its addition of other subsidiaries necessitated further expansion.

During this growth, the firm had the complete cooperation and support of the community and its leaders. Any opposition from village "old timers" melted as they saw that Walbro meant not only to work here, but also to serve.

CASS CITY CHRONICLE

VOLUME 58, NUMBER 21

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1964

Walbro Recipe: Needs Plus Remark

Take a village with a need for industry, add an industry with a need for a location, stir in a chance remark at a critical moment and you have the recipe which brought Walbro to Cass City.

In 1949 a group of Cass City businessmen formed the Industrial Development Committee and put out a pamphlet listing the industrial advantages.

From that point on, nothing much happened. Then, the group was jolted into action by the news that Cass City's leading employer, the Nestles Milk Company, was going to close its plant and move.

Anrod Screen Cylinder was considering locating in the village, but without the milk plant the industrial picture looked black.

Dissolving itself into the Cass City Development Corporation, the group set out to bring new industry into the village. Immediately a fund-raising project got under way to purchase land.

About 90 miles away, a small plant housing the Walbro Corporation was bulging at the seams. A larger plant was imperative.

Now the scene was set. The only problem was that neither was aware of the other's need.

Here's where the chance remark came in. One of Walbro's vendors, the owner of a tool and die shop near Flint, had a friend who lived in Cass City.

The vendor learned that Walbro was looking for a new home and he mentioned this to his Cass City associate. This set off one of the best whispering campaigns ever to hit Cass City.

The information was passed on to Development Corporation officials and that same night an appointment was made with Walbro for the following morning.

Competition for the Walbro plant immediately got under way between the village and another village on the western side of the state. But Cass City offered the most and in the end the plum was theirs.

On April 19, 1954, the papers were signed between Walbro Corporation and the Development Corporation and four acres of ground were laid off for the erection of a new factory.

Editorial

There are many features of the Walbro Corporation-Cass City story. Most of them are well known to persons interested in the community.

Certainly most of the facts that have been publicized make interesting reading and are important. How the coming of Anrod and Walbro to the Cass City community sparked a turn in the village's image to industry; the planning of the Industrial Development Committee; the cooperation and investment by citizens of the community . . . all were unusual at the time and all were held up to other communities as an example of excellent community-industrial relations.

Any businessman can tell you what the coming of industry has done to make the cash registers ring. The employment offered by local industry has been a boon to many area families and has boosted the wage standard of all workers in the area, wherever they may be employed.

Important as these advances are they do not reveal the one facet that has made the company so important and such an integral part of Cass City.

The facet is the guiding principle of the company, as expressed by its president in various stockholders' reports:

"Walbro aims to Serve, and by serving well expects to prosper. Walbro is striving to provide the type of activity that will bless all . . . the customer, our employees, the communities in which we operate and our stockholders. If we do this well, I am sure a share of it will accrue to Walbro Corporation."

It is this spirit that has moved Walbro to establish a scholarship, donate generously to hospitals, insist that top personnel actively support the community and to "lend a hand" whenever and wherever it has been possible for them to do so.

Under this philosophy the company and the community have jointly prospered.

Nice guys don't always finish last.

New Divisions Mark Growth of Company

Just over ten years ago, Walbro Corporation was a nearly nonexistent manufacturer and assembler of carburetors, working out of a quonset hut in Fenton.

It is not entirely improbable that Walbro would still be working the quonset hut trade or would have died the slow death so common to small manufacturers if it were not for its willingness to change . . . to try something new.

One of its most successful ventures into the unknown was its purchase of the Autopulse division in October, 1957.

Autopulse can best be described as an electric fuel pump which can be used in conjunction with or to replace conventional fuel pumps. It can be used to replace any conventional fuel pump and it is used extensively on industrial and agricultural machinery as an original part.

Walbro operated Autopulse at its Ludington base for a year and then moved it to Cass City in September, 1958. Current employment is between 25 to 30 persons.

Arjay Next

For further diversification, Walbro next took over Arjay, a plastic injection molding concern located in Vassar in May, 1959, on a management contract.

Two years later, in May of 1961, Walbro purchased the firm outright and is still operating it at its Vassar location.

Arjay manufactures automobile and small engine parts and such items as lenses for safety lights and taillights which takes us to Walbro's next step into the unknown.

Dupree Products

Since Walbro had a subsidiary which manufactured the plastic lenses of safety lights and reflectors, it was only natural that the firm purchase a division which could assemble the lenses and other Walbro-made parts into the finished products.

Dupree Products was purchased in Toledo, Ohio, in 1961 and moved immediately to Cass City where it manufactures various kinds of truck and car blinker lights, driveway markers and other safety lights.

Key Personnel

Located throughout this issue are individual pictures of some of the men who guide Walbro and who will be at the helm as the company moves into its second decade of progress in Cass City.

More pictures and stories of Walbro's history and personnel are in section three of this week's issue.

The Cass City State Bank

(Reading time - 1 1/3 minutes)

Greetings to all of the officers and personnel of

WALBRO CORPORATION

Reflection upon the ten years which have passed since your company moved to Cass City brings us face to face with some rather startling truths.

Prior to 1954 this community was principally dependent upon agriculture, and the town itself functioned almost entirely as a supply and distribution center for the various needs of the farming community, as well as a market place for what was produced.

The year 1954 marked the advent of industry into our economy, with WALBRO CORPORATION being the first to locate on Garfield Avenue in the present industrial section of which the whole community is so proud.

The changes brought about thereby have made Cass City as much an industrial town today as it is an agricultural center, and have involved a decided population growth in the area, exerting the pressures of growth in all areas of community life - the schools, churches, and service establishments of all kinds, as well as all other business and commercial enterprises.

For the opportunities this has created, and the benefits which have resulted, the whole area is the gainer. To stress the economic side of the picture is probably the most common approach, but on this occasion, when we are saluting WALBRO CORPORATION for the part they have taken in our community these past ten years, it occurs to us that the human side of the picture may be far more important in the long run.

We have gained good friends and neighbors in this process, and it is to all of them that our greetings are extended.

To Our Cass City Friends,

This week marks the Tenth Anniversary of Walbro Corporation's start in Cass City - ten fruitful years made possible by the early and continuing help and vision of this community of interested citizens and employees.

When Walbro moved to Cass City in late August, 1954, it was just emerging with a product line of carburetors for small gasoline engines. As the saying goes, "We were as poor as church mice." But local citizens, through the untiring efforts of members of the Cass City Development Corporation, provided a new factory building. Walbro Stock was purchased by many townspeople, and the company received help in countless other ways. Detroit Edison also played an important part in this development.

Carburetor production rose very rapidly and additional facilities were needed, causing the expansion of the original building several times. In the period from 1954 through 1963, Walbro produced over 10,000,000 carburetors. These carburetors can be found on engines throughout the world.

Due to the highly seasonal nature of the carburetor business, in late 1957 Walbro acquired the assets of the Autopulse Corporation of Ludington, Michigan, a manufacturer of electric fuel pumps. The operation was moved to Cass City a year later, thus providing additional expansion and steadier employment in the community. To further diversify, Arjay Manufacturing Company of Vassar, Michigan, (plastic injection molding) was acquired in early 1961 and later the same year Dupree Products Corporation (reflectors and lights) was also purchased.

One word about Walbro's employees. It is my strong belief that people make any organization, and we feel that here at Walbro we have the finest group of people to be found. I can say without reservation that they are the best group with which I have ever had the pleasure to work. Walbro pledges itself to further the well-being of all its employees.

We, at Walbro, are grateful for progress and for the wonderful cooperation and help we have received from the people of Cass City over this ten-year span. We pledge our continued efforts toward the growth of our community, assisting wherever possible in civic, cultural and educational programs. We feel strongly that industry can be of inestimable value in keeping the community moving forward. May the next ten years bring as much good and progress to this community and its fine people as we have witnessed in the past ten.

Sincerely,

W. E. Walpole

Master Plan Helps

One of the reasons that Walbro and Cass City can commemorate a decade of progress this week is the farsightedness of many men in the community.

Today Cass City has a master plan functioning and helping the community . . . but long before this plan Cass City was in the process of providing for orderly growth.

Cass City was one of the first, if not the first, village in the Thumb to become zoned. The first zoning ordinance in Cass City was passed about 25 years ago.

Zoning was brought up to date in 1959 when Villan and Le-man, professional planners, capped several months of study by presenting a master plan which was adopted.

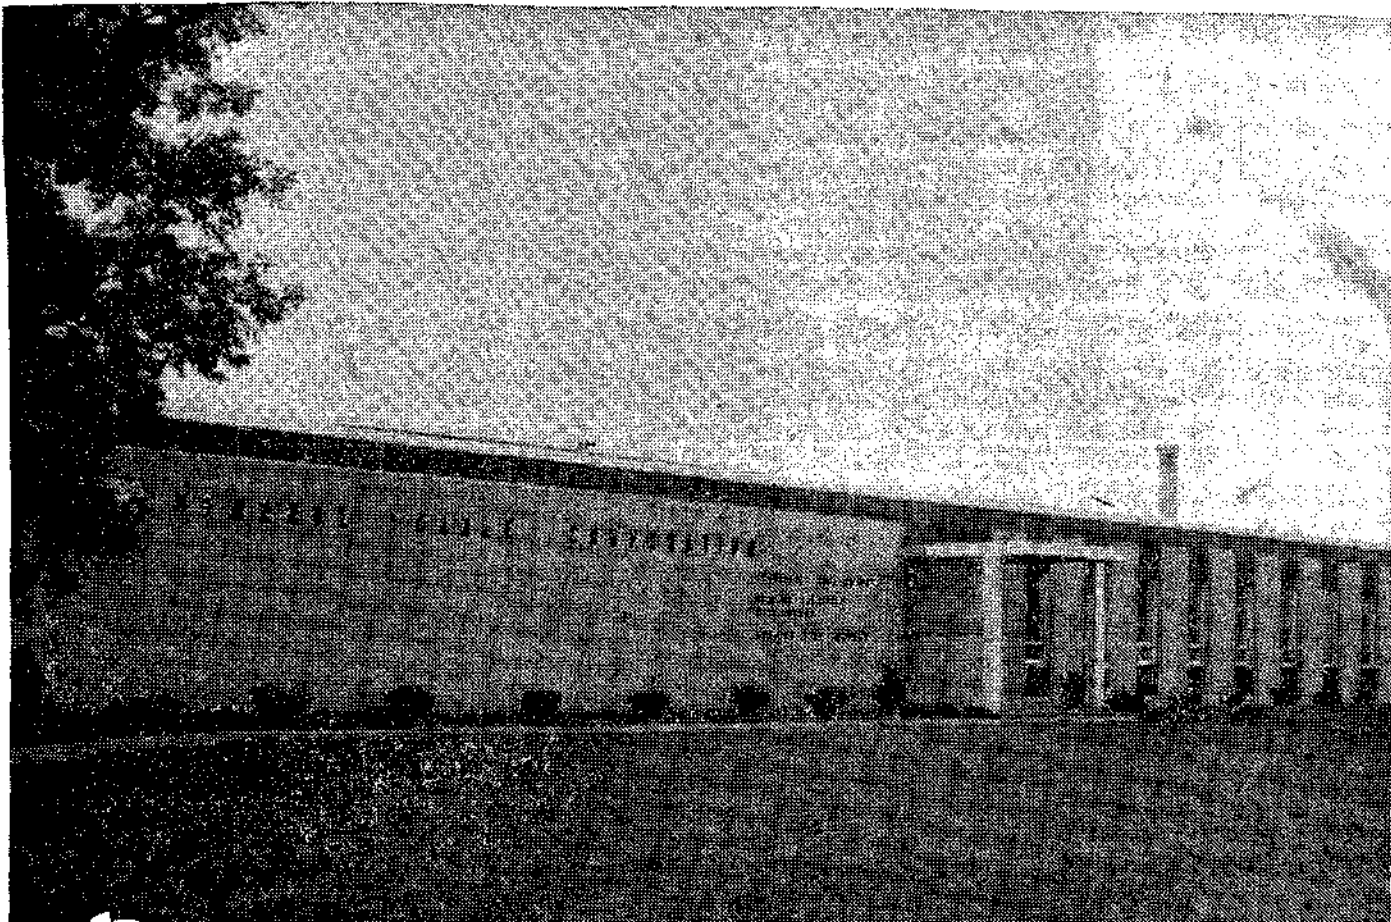

The plan was the first in the Thumb and was so highly regarded that Detroit Edison purchased a page advertisement in Business Week lauding the community for its efforts.

A reprint of the advertisement appeared in the Chronicle and can be found framed in many business places today.

Today's Capacity Over Expectations

Two highpoints in the history of Walbro were the occasions when the company's first 500 carburetors were finished and when production capacity reached the staggering 1,500 per day mark.

The first event was celebrated with chocolate malts at a Fenton drive-in. The second occasion was a jubilant party held jointly by the office and plant personnel.

Pres. W. E. Walpole asked Cornelius Coykendall, then chief inspector, "Do you think we'll ever hit 1,750?"

Today's capacity? Close to 6,000 carburetors per day.

Things at Walbro Weren't Always So Smooth, Fast and Uncomplicated

Walbro purrs along today with the efficiency that comes to established industry. Workers do their jobs and go home and at the end of the week pick up their checks.

Smooth, fast and uncomplicated. There was a time, however, when Walbro was making its first movements of life that things were not so smooth, fast and uncomplicated.

Ask Howard Bacon. Howard, Walbro's first man to work in Cass City, recalls with a shudder the time he and W. E. Walpole, president of the firm, worked from 7:00 a.m. one morning until 3:00 a.m. the next morning, drilling the idle hole by-pass in the carburetors.

The scene was the Fenton plant and the carburetors had to be shipped the next day if Walbro was to get paid by Clinton in time to keep production rolling.

The two men spent the night on the machines because there was no one else to do the job.

Easing Howard's memories of the ordeal is the vision of the drive-in celebration when the first 500 carburetors were done.

Now he looks through his office door into the shop capable of turning out a peak of 10,000 carburetors a day.

"Office"

As Walbro's first man in Cass City, Bacon has other memories. Shortly after he arrived, President Walpole joined him in the village.

Walpole set up his "office" in the southwest corner of the newly-built plant. Furniture consisted of a table, a stool and an old automobile seat.

For sheer inconvenience, the one and only telephone was located some 30 feet away... on the floor... near the door of what is now the general office.

Machine Mixup

Following setting up of the "office" came the setting of the machinery, trucked from Fenton. Three of the employees worked like beavers to get the machines installed before the next shipment of machinery arrived.

It was not without a certain amount of pride that they showed the completed installation to President Walpole and it is with understandable dismay that he viewed the project.

The whole installation had been put in backwards!

The machines were carefully lined up so that the operators had to stand in their own light, backs to the windows. The machine which should have been nearest to receiving was farthest away from it.

There was no alternative but to dismantle the entire installation and reverse it.

Heater Jinxed

The Cass City plant was finally occupied in early winter and immediately the old installation voodoo was back on the job, jinxing the heating system.

Once installed, the heating system worked spasmodically and the colder the weather the least likely it was to work. Until it was straightened out, it was not unusual to see Walbro employees working in overcoats.

Problems have come and gone for Walbro in its ten years in Cass City and each time the firm has adjusted until now it rolls along smooth, fast and uncomplicated...

Our COMMUNITY has benefitted immeasurably, not only economically but civically through the efforts of its employees and officials. It is true that employment of local persons has helped the community economy but hidden beneath the surface are the many civic-centered projects which the firm and its employees founded and participated in.

RECOGNIZING Walbro's importance to the community and the surrounding area, it gives us great pleasure to extend our congratulations to the firm on its 10th anniversary in Cass City.

IT IS IN this same spirit that we offer our best wishes for success in their second decade of progress.

CASS CITY CHRONICLE

VOLUME 58, NUMBER 21

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1964

What is Walbro? Well...

What is Walbro? Well, it's various things: It's machines. It's metal. It's problems. It has been trial and tribulation. It's work and it's business. Mostly, though, it's people.

Walbro's entire history has been marked by the self-sacrifice, ingenuity and determination of its officials and employees. Just as certainly as there might not be a Walbro Corporation if it were not for Bill Eberline, there cannot be a history of the firm without an account of his ingenuity. When Walbro began in Fenton the company needed an engineer. Eberline and President Walpole had both worked for the same firm earlier and on an off-the-cuff visit by Eberline to the Fenton plant, Walpole hired him.

It was one of the most important decisions Walpole was to make during the trying beginning.

Eberline is a large, easy-going individual, almost the opposite of what one would expect of a dynamic engineering profession.

His ability to make do with what he has and to work effectively under stress were essential in pulling Walbro from the brink of disaster more than once in the firm's beginnings.

Take, for instance, the time the company needed a testing apparatus for testing the finished carburetors of their first order for fuel leakage.

Test apparatus costs money and since Walbro was a little less than a success at this point, there were no funds for the machinery.

The carburetors must be leak-proof, not only at sea level but also at higher altitudes and under varying pressures.

Eberline devised his own test equipment. Outside the company's quonset hut location stood a flagpole which had held a wind sock. He hooked a gasoline drum to the halyards and ran a long rubber tube to the carburetor on test at the base of the pole.

By hoisting the can higher and higher, the pressure of the fuel at the carburetor increased.

Another time, Clinton Machine Company, for whom Walbro was building carburetors, needed to know exactly how their engines would perform with Walbro carburetors under all conditions -- idling, running easily and working very hard.

The ideal laboratory tester is a dynamometer... another costly apparatus.

Again ingenuity found the solution. In the collection of machines Walbro had purchased at its beginning, Eberline found a pump for generating air pressure.

He found that if he closed the outlet of this pump with an adjustable valve and drove the pump with a Clinton engine, he could increase and reduce the load on the engine at will.

A simplified dynamometer. Since he could make the engine work so hard that it would stall, he could also make it work almost that hard to create the desired lugging results.

There were other people who were important to the beginning of Walbro.

Ora Rounds

Take Ora Rounds, for instance. Now retired, Rounds joined the firm at its Fenton location. He was there during the period when every employee did a little bit of everything.

He remembers when production was handled by 16 girls and the entire inspection department was one man... W. E. Walpole.

There were lighter moments even in times of difficulty, such as the time a heavy rain made a wading pool of Plant No. 2, a tarp draped over some sticks and tacked to the outside of the back wall of the quonset.

Rounds chuckles as he recalls the jig that Lee Hartel did to keep his feet dry and how Hartel finally gave up and worked barefoot in ankle-deep water.

Concluded on page two.

WHAT'S WALBRO

Hartel and Brown

Hartel was the first Cass City person to go to Fenton to work for Walbro. In succession, his jobs were degreasing, assembly and engine test.

About a week after he joined the staff, Dale Brown, another Cass City man, was hired. Hometown friends, they decided to room together but Fenton offered little encouragement. There were no rooms to be had.

Just by luck and probably with a little finagling on their part, they found a house trailer which could be rented . . . several miles east of Fenton on the shore of a lake . . . available for immediate occupancy. Not all things connected with Walbro were trial and tribulation.

More local persons joined the Walbro team when it came to Cass City. Persons like Mrs. Irene Wright, Mrs. Mary Merchant, J. D. Tuckey, John McCormick, Ann Milligan and Mrs. Joan Nickens.

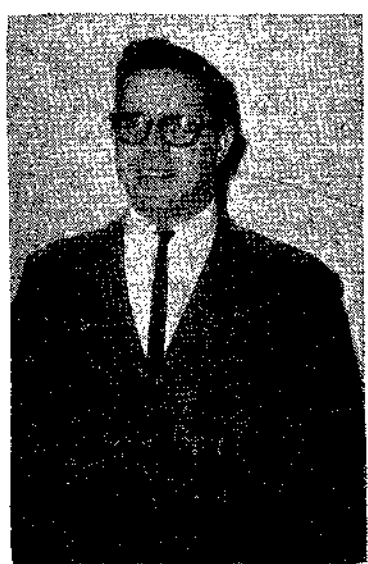

First hired were Mrs. James Young, Mrs. Chester Muntz and Mrs. Elaine Crane.

ORIGINAL BUILDING — Walbro began its production in Cass City in this building built especially for the fledgling factory. Within two years, however, it proved inadequate and additions were built. Now the firm is housed in five locations throughout the village.

GROWING PAINS — From the original building grew this larger building. The first addition, on the left, was completed in early 1956. Just one year later, the dark portion to the right was added. Three other additions, not visible, were added to the rear of the factory in the same period.

SECOND PLANT—Serving now as the home of the Sales and Engineering Department, this plant originally housed the Autopulse division. Completed late in 1958, it was Walbro's second building in a growing complex of departmental homes.

Die Cast Machine Unique

Way in the back of Sales and Engineering, at Walbro, in the very last room stands a huge, impressive, mysterious pile of machinery. To the right stands another huge pile of machinery, not as impressive, but just as mysterious.

When finally assembled, the two piles of machinery will become a $20,000 zinc die casting machine which arrived one week ago today from Liverpool, England.

Unique in that it is run solely by air pressure rather than air and hydraulic pressure, the caster was purchased in an attempt to "hold the line, cost-wise on one of our major purchased items," according to Lambert Althaver, vice-president.

"We spend more money on die castings than on any other single product," he explained. "We're going to try to gain back some of the increased cost by doing the casting ourselves."

Faster and safer because it is run by air pressure, the machine is capable of turning out 1,000 castings an hour and is fully automatic. It is safer than the hydraulic caster because hydraulics have a tendency to burst their hoses, spraying oil over the hot surfaces of the melting pots, causing fires.

The two-cycle air generator is capable of exerting a 2,000-pound squeeze force.

The machine, in two crates, arrived in Port Huron aboard the Manchester Commerce and was trucked from there by Maier's Freight.

Only two states, California and Pennsylvania, have laws concerning what can go inside stuffed toys sold in those states.

The first type-revolving press was constructed by Hoe and Company and was installed in the office of the Philadelphia Public Ledger in 1846.

In September the Zemke Real Estate firm will be starting their 48th year of continuous Real Estate Brokerage Business. We hope that we will be available to do business with you for another 48 years.

We have had all types of real estate experience and training: training through the knowledge of books, real estate law course from the University of Michigan, the knowledge handed down from father to son . . . but the best knowledge of all starts from the bottom rung of a ladder and taking step by step up that ladder to accomplish the goal that you have set your sights on, not only for yourself but for your sons that will follow in your profession.

In the length of time that we have been in business, we have never once been brought in front of The Michigan Corporations and Securities for any infractions of real estate law and rule.

We sincerely wish to thank you, the people of Cass City and the Thumb area, for the fine cooperation we have received.

Obviously, It Was A Trick On Me

By Dave Kraft

I walked out of the office the other day and opened the door of my car. I swung behind the wheel with my usual agility and found myself in the midst of a pile of leaves.

Obviously, someone was playing a trick on me. Good joke, but they went to a lot of trouble. Where in the world do you get a car full of dead leaves in the summer? Probably picked them just for the occasion.

I sat there for a moment, picking dead leaves out of my hair, trying to figure what kind of a character would do such a thing, when down through my open window floated... a leaf?

But this is summer. Surely the leaves can't be falling already. I jumped out of my car and looked up at the outstretched branches overhead.

Klunk! I was hit a staggering blow in the forehead by a falling leaf. What? Oh, alright, Kiljoy. Plink! I was kissed lightly on the forehead by a falling leaf.

"Good Heavens!" I thought to myself. If they're falling here, they're falling at home. I jumped back into my pile of leaves and drove home.

They weren't falling, but they were doing the next worst thing. They were turning color. And you know when the leaves turn color, can winter be far behind?

We both know that I had no alternative, don't we? I did the only thing I could do... I got out the green paint and started painting.

It didn't work. They fell off anyway and the paint killed the leaves that weren't turning.

It's not so much that I don't want to see winter come... it's just that I hate a yard full of naked trees.

Still no word on our still. I'm becoming quite concerned. If I don't hear something pretty soon, I'll do some investigating. I'm liable to get out of the mood if it doesn't come pretty quick.

Mrs. William Donnelly called the other day to tell me that she had found a bottle cap and that a friend of her's had torn down a barn near Pontiac and found a mash press. She also commented that she has an extra lot in case I don't find someplace.

George Elliott, Cass City's blueberry king, said someone asked him if I couldn't use blueberry mash in the still. I don't know. I'm sure Mrs. Steve Karpovich could make wine out of it, but whether or not I could make hooch out of it is another question.

Mrs. Brooks Fleming, of New Gordon Hotel fame, tells this: Seems Larry Fleming is visiting his parents along with his family and Larry and his four-year-old were sitting in the dining room of the hotel one morning, having breakfast.

The boy looked around at the other customers and remarked, "Boy, Dad, they sure have a lot of company here, don't they?"

We heard of one businessman in a nearby town who is fighting fire with fire in the NFO meat holding action.

After Tuesday's sale, an NFO member stopped in at his place of business and asked for a hamburger and the businessman replied, "Sorry, no hamburgers."

Seems he's got a holding action on the sale of hamburgers to NFO members.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Sez:

Dear Mister Editor:

The fellers at the country store Saturday night was discussing things pro and con. According to Ed Doolittle, them words stands for Progress and Congress.

They wasn't much time spent on the Progress item on account of we ain't had too much of it lately. But Clem Webster reported we was asking a little headway here and there. He said he had saw in the papers where 50 college students had got in one bed and 50 had got in one telephone booth. Clem allowed as how this was up about 10 percent over fellers put out when all them college boys and girls got together last Spring in Florida. Ed allowed as how this was a very fine improvement and it was voted by the fellers to put this item over on the Progress side of the ledger.

And Clem also announced he was reading in the papers where a doctor in Atlanta give his patient a prescription and wrote at the bottom: "If this works, let me know. I'm having the same trouble myself." It was agreed if doctors would consult with their patients more and with each other less they wouldn't be so many tombstones in the graveyard. This was put over on the Progress side.

Zeke Grubb renovated the U. S. Department of Agriculture has decided to add white and pink dogwood trees to the White House grounds. This was considered an improvement over golf balls and sand traps and the fellers run this in on the Progress side.

The discussion on the Congress lasted till the feller that runs the store had to close up and chase us off. Ed announced he had wrote to his Congressman and advised that the folks back home was hoping the next time the Congress cut taxes and raised their wages, they would just keep the tax cut for themselves and give the hike in pay to the taxpayers.

Bug Hookum reported he had saw in the papers where Senator Nelson of Wisconsin had found where one company doing business with them Space folks had made $955,000 on a $14,293 investment. According to Senator Nelson, this was a 6,000 percent profit. Bug said he didn't know the difference between a stock certificate and a warrant for grand larceny. In this case, claimed Bug, they probable looked about alike. Anyhow, he announced, he had wrote this company to see if he could buy a share of stock.

Josh Clodhopper give out the most important news of the session. Josh reported the Department has announced the Government printing office had a new 154-page book listing the 216 give-away programs being run by the Congress for $10 billion a year. The piece said to send 40 cent to Superintendent of Documents. If you're interested, Mister Editor, the Zip is 20402.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim
