

No Water Extension Without Annexation

There will be no extension of the Cass City water service to residents outside the village unless they are willing to be annexed and share the tax burden.

This was the consensus of the village council members at their September meeting Tuesday night in the municipal building.

The reason given by the council for this position was: why should the village bear the cost of expensive construction to provide services to non-taxpayers.

The problem came up a month ago when several residents on the north side requested that the council extend water service out their way.

Trustees Jerome Root Jr. and Barney Freiburger were assigned the task of studying the problem to determine what could be done.

Root told the council that his study showed that service to the area specified in the request would cost the village close to $3,000.

He said that a possible routing for extension pipe would involve laying out a four-block loop of piping just to serve one home.

"If the people want service in this area, let them sign a petition to be annexed to the village," Root said.

"They moved out there in the first place so they wouldn't have to pay taxes for services. I feel sorry for them, but I don't feel it's up to us to provide our water service to them," he said.

Trustee Jim Seals said that such annexation "would be a good thing."

"If they want the privilege (of water service), they should pay for it along with everybody else," Seals said.

Trustee Dr. D. E. Rawson commented that "if it wasn't convenient, then I see no reason to extend it. It is a service."

Although the council did not say so, its decision is not expected to affect water service to a new high school if it is put up on a site known as the "Donahue property," located just on the village line.

Schools'

Merger Vote Friday

Qualified school voters in Cass City and in Deford will decide Friday whether to make the Deford public school an elementary arm of education in the Cass City school system.

Basically voters will answer two questions when they ballot: Should the Deford school, with its 230 pupils from kindergarten to eighth grade, be annexed to Cass City Schools?

And should the outstanding debts of the two school systems be merged, and taxes levied accordingly throughout the enlarged school district?

There will be no annexation of the school system if voters of either district turn down the idea of merging the debt, William Scott, superintendent of the intermediate school district, said.

Cass City voters who are qualified can cast their ballots between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m. on October 2 in the home economic room of the high school.

In Deford, voters will poll in the Novesta Township Hall, again between the hours of 7 a.m. and 8 p.m.

This is the second time in two and a half years that the school voters in the two districts have voted on this issue.

In April, 1961, Cass City supported annexation while Deford voters turned it down by a 93 to 61 vote.

Annexation by Cass City was brought forward again this fall.

Gagetown Wooden Water Mains Must Go, Say Voters

Property owners in Gagetown Monday approved borrowing $53,000 to help pay for the replacement of the village's ancient wooden water mains.

In a special election in which some 60 per cent of the eligible voters in the village went to the polls, voters gave their solid support to the proposition for improving the water system.

Of the 124 votes cast, 111 property owners favored replacing the seven blocks of old water mains.

Only 13 voters cast their ballots against borrowing the $53,000 needed by the village to pay, in part, for the improvements.

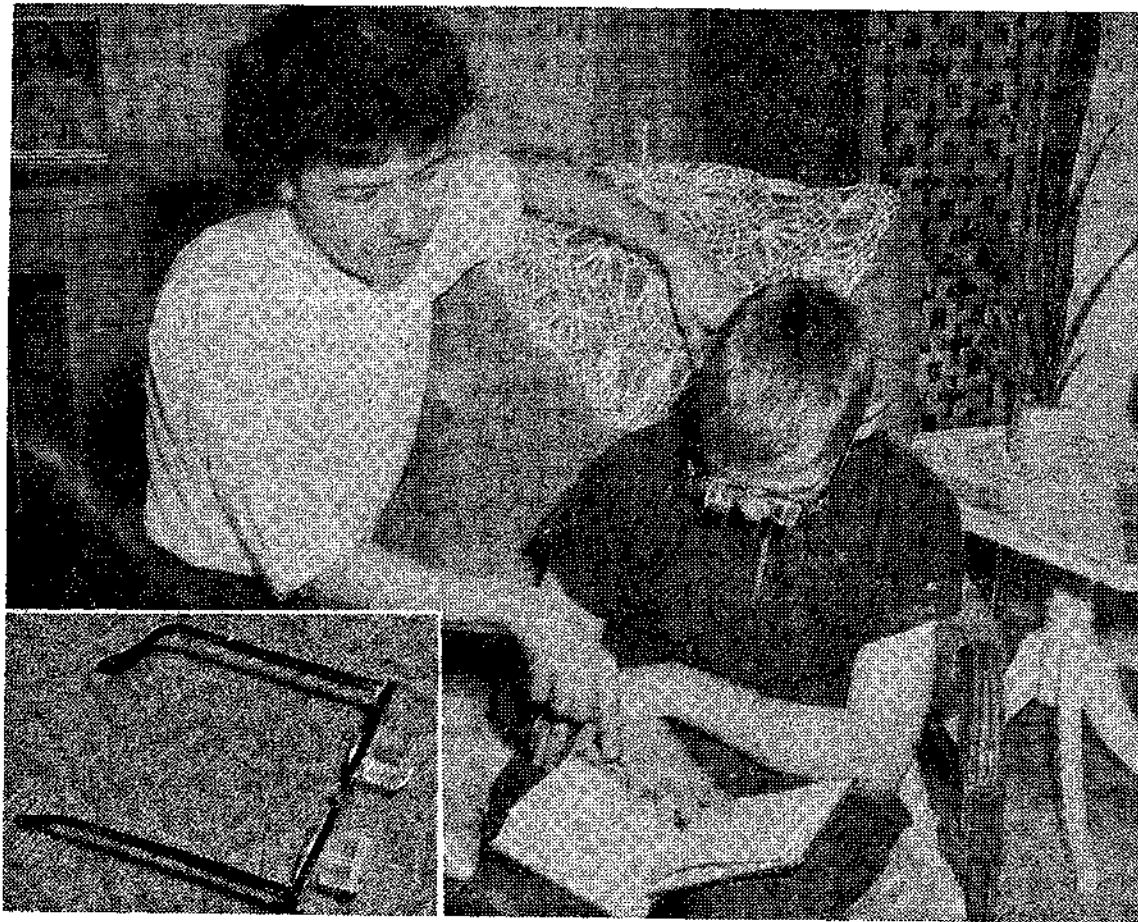

The village will seek to get the remaining $14,000 needed to make the planned improvements to the water system from the federal government under its accelerated public works program.

According to the proposition which was voted on in Monday's election, the village will borrow the $53,000 through general obligation bonds. The money would be paid back over the years by returns from water bills.

In addition to replacing the old, wooden water mains, the special plans drawn up for the village call for installing needed hydrants, pumps and other operating equipment. The whole package will last the village, at the least, 40 years.

Federal Funds For Fire Hall?

The special committee appointed last winter to look for a new fire hall is investigating the possibility of getting federal funds to build a new one for the Elkland fire department.

Al Avery, chairman of the six man committee, said his group is checking over the regulations of the federal accelerated public works program to see if this project could qualify for federal financial assistance.

If so, the government would foot half the total bill.

Avery said that the committee took a look at the H. O. Paul building, which is adjacent to the Chronicle, to see if it could be remodeled into a suitable hall to house fire trucks.

Remodeling appeared too expensive to members of the committee.

The committee was appointed to find a new hall because the township fire department must buy a new pumper and there is not room enough for another truck in the present fire hall.

The Elkland Township Fire Department, which serves the surrounding countryside for a radius of six to eight miles with its three trucks, must have another pumper if fire insurance rates are not to go up, Avery said.

The chairman said he is planning to call a meeting of the committee in the near future to review progress and discuss the next steps.

In addition to Avery, others serving on the committee are Clifford Croft, Albert Gallagher, Clayton Root, Jerome Root Jr. and J. D. Turner.

NEW EYES—Mrs. Evans Quigg of Ubyly watches as her son, Jim, tries out his new "telescopic" specs through which he can now read regular books for the first time in his life, as well as giving him distant vision. A close up of the special glasses, which cost $475, is shown in the inset.

New Lens Means New Life for Jim

Young James Quigg has a new nickname this year. His pals in Argyle school call him "the Jeweler." But Jim sure doesn't mind.

His buddies have given him the nickname because Jim is sporting a new pair of glasses this year, a pair so built that the lenses look like the eye piece through which a jeweler squints to find out the value of a diamond.

The nickname's all right by Jim. In fact, he couldn't care less.

Because, with his new glasses, Jim is able to see things more than a few inches away from his face for the first time in his 12 years of life.

He is now able to lift his one good eye up off the ground and see the distant horizon.

What does this sudden new vision mean for this blond, good-looking seventh-grader?

Why, now he can read regular books. He can see what the teacher is writing on the blackboard. He can watch birds in flight. He can even sneak a few peeks at the pretty girls in his class when no one is looking, like fellows his age do.

But it means much more than this, too.

The fourth and youngest son born to Mr. and Mrs. Evans Quigg, who live on M-19 just outside Argyle, Jim was a premature baby. He was born with bad vision.

"It was mostly because he was premature," his mother said.

"But now they've found out that perhaps his eyes were hurt because they gave him too much oxygen," Mrs. Quigg said. "They found this out too late, some two or three years after he was born."

The next step on the road to an improved system will be taken at the meeting Monday, Oct. 5, of the Gagetown village council, Mrs. Vernon Beachy, village clerk, said.

Detroit Edison to Trim Local Trees

Harry Richards, Detroit Edison Caro District manager, announced this week that the regular tree service program provided by the company will get under way in this area early in October.

Tree experts will visit area homes to obtain permission to trim or remove trees to lessen the possibility of electric service interruption by branches tangling with lines.

Richards pointed out that there are tree branches which are too close to the electric lines leading into homes or too close to the electric lines which pass by homes.

He stated that, in a wind or ice storm, those branches very often break or bend down.

"This means broken electric lines and an anxious period for customers during which they have no electricity," Richards said.

"The same distress results when too-close branches do not actually break the wires, but bend or rub across them to cause a short circuit," he said.

Centennial Budget Set at $13,260

Band Director To Turn Cook

Mamma Mia, watch out. Ronald Walker, director of the Cass City High School Band, will step out of character on October 27th.

He has promised the Band Boosters that he will lay aside his baton for that night and pick up, in its place, a whopping big cooking spoon.

With it he will blend yards of pasta, gallons of tomato sauce and other sundry items into a big bowl of spaghetti to be served to the public at a dinner sponsored by the Boosters at the high school.

The dinner was scheduled by the Boosters at their Tuesday night meeting as a fund raising project to help the organization continue its support of the band.

However, Lynn Spencer, Booster president, said that they forgot to ask Walker if he knows how to cook spaghetti!

Anyway, two women, Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Spencer, have been named to support the cook and head up the planning for the dinner.

Other fund raising projects discussed at the meeting included the operation of Booster concessions at the stadium, and a rummage sale and bake sale later in the year.

The Boosters also decided that they will operate a stand at the Cass City Centennial whenever and wherever it is held, Spencer said.

The president said that the money raised by the Boosters this year will be used to take the place of the support usually received from the taxpayers via

From the Editor's Corner

By this time practically all the electors in Cass City and Deford are aware of the details of the proposed annexation of Deford Community School to Cass City Schools.

Most residents will recall that the issue was brought before the electorate several years ago and did not pass.

I can't help but think that a lack of basic understanding of the issues involved was responsible. Prior to this vote there has been a long period of study and explanation so that everyone can vote intelligently.

Probably the best criterion of the merits of the proposal is that it has the unqualified approval of the school boards of both districts.

This paper urges that you support the annexation and make your voice count by making sure that you cast a ballot Monday.

Our friend, Bob Benkelman, of WKYO Radio in Caro, writes that the principal reason that the Tuscola County Medical Society's decision not to have a county-wide polio immunization program was the low incidence of cases in the county. The last two cases in the county came in November, 1958.

For this reason the Society felt that individual families are securing the necessary immunization for themselves, Benkelman writes.

As true as all of these facts undoubtedly are, I personally would have liked to see a county-wide program using the oral vaccine. If such a program stopped one case from occurring, it would have been well worthwhile and an unqualified success.

The strike was called after the company and the union failed to reach an agreement over wage and fringe benefits for the coming three years.

At the last meeting before the strike in August, the union asked for a 60-cent an hour increase in wages, and an 18-cent an hour hike in fringe benefits.

Claiming that this total 68-cent package would cost the company $1,414 a year for every employee, the company stood by its final offer of a 25-cent an hour raise spread over the next three years.

In the company's proposal, fringe benefits were to remain as they were.

James Shaw, division manager with headquarters in Sandusky, said that the company is using its supervisory employees to provide service calls and maintain equipment.

Cass City's centennial next year will be big, spectacular and expensive, Cass City Community Centennial Corp. (CCCCC) members learned Tuesday night as they approved a centennial budget of $13,260.

First step by the newly-formed corporation, in the meeting held at Hills and Dales General Hospital cafeteria, was to hire John B. Rogers Co., Fostoria, Ohio, to stage the entire celebration.

Although the firm's fee of $5,650 is the largest single item in the budget, CCCCC officials contended that a professional production firm would insure the success of the event and eliminate the major "headaches" of organizing such a celebration.

Projected Outline

Rogers Co. field man Wally Lafferty offered CCCCC officials a projected outline of possible net revenues of $22,100, based on a drawing area of 6,000 persons.

The CCCCC budget was based on a 60 per cent achievement of the possible revenues. Projected expenses, including the firm's fee, were $13,250.

Lafferty explained that with a 100 per cent achievement, the centennial could realize $8,850. With 60 per cent success, about $10,000 would be realized.

"Break Even"

Mrs. James Bauer, who resigned recently as centennial chairman because of ill health, contended that "the idea is not to make money but to break even."

Ken Eisinger backed Mrs. Bauer with "Even if we break even, Cass City will be way ahead because of the quality of the program."

Centennial cochairman James Ware clinched the argument for hiring Rogers Co. by stating that "Cass City has done things in the past and we have a reputation to uphold. If we go with Rogers, we should do more than break even."

Spectacular

Lafferty's proposal, based on a week-long celebration July 17-24 featured a nightly spectacular on a 250-foot stage with a cast of over 250 persons. The spectacular would deal with Cass City's historical development.

He also offered detailed information on 115 day by day pre-celebration and other sustaining events.

No Injuries in Two Accidents

Two traffic accidents neither causing personal injury - occurred on Cass City area highways and byways over the past week.

One accident occurred late Saturday night on M-81 in front of Sherman's Restaurant at 6862 Cass City Road in a two car collision between Boyd Tait, 37, of Gifford Road, Caro, and Clifford H. Jackson, 53, of Ubyly.

Jackson, with his wife, Thelma, as a passenger, pulled out from the restaurant into the line of traffic heading east on M-81.

This caused Tait, who was heading east, to swerve to the right to avoid them. However, Tait's car struck Jackson's in the rear fender, and then rolled on to hit a tree.

Patrolman William McKinley of Cass City investigated.

On Thursday, Sept. 24, Patrolman McKinley also investigated a two car collision which occurred on page six.

Deadline Near For Registration

Monday, Oct. 5, will be the last day on which persons may register to vote in the coming presidential election.

In Elkland Township, any voter who has not voted in the past four years, or who is not now carried on the clerk's poll rolls, must register on or before Monday to be eligible to vote, R. M. Hunter, Township Clerk, said.

Persons may register at the clerk's office at 6730 Third Street, Cass City.

Before Monday, voters may meet with Hunter by appointment to register.

On Monday, Hunter will be at his office to take registrations from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m. in accordance with the law.

Voters are cautioned that they must register with the township clerk, and not the village clerk, to be eligible to vote in this coming November's election.

Size-Tempo Differ Coffee's the Same

By Stanley Putnam

They say that some four million human beings "live" in and around the Motor City. Up here, in the environs of the Pacesetter of the Thumb, the current population stands at around 5,500 souls.

So, what's the difference between Detroit and Cass City. Size and tempo.

In Detroit, traffic roars around the clock over the expressways. In Cass City, country quiet or lonesome winds take over the streets shortly after the working day ends.

(Week ends, with the town full of happy high school youngsters, are excluded).

Now the Detroit Free Press is also bigger than the Cass City Chronicle. Bigger by some. Over 500,000 copies of the Free Press roar off the presses daily in six editions.

In Cass City, on the other hand, the weekly Chronicle recounts the past week's events with around 3,100 papers put out in one edition.

The difference between the two. Again, size and tempo.

And that's about all the difference there is for a newspaperman between the two sheets.

Because both papers deal in the same commodity - people, their lives, their doings, their deeds, their thoughts, their hopes, their fears.

And, of course, their disagreements and arguments.

It doesn't matter whether the paper is telling a story about John Doe of Cass City and his passion for politics or Jane Doe of Detroit and her rapture over the Beatles.

Or whether it is a report on a hundred thousand dollar tax bill, or one of many millions.

It doesn't matter whether it's Free Press or Chronicle. A story has to be accurate, as close to the truth as is known at the time, and something that people want to read.

So it has to be about people or, occasionally, about their pets.

Now the Free Press is a people's paper, bar none. And the Chronicle's pages are crammed with people.

So, the difference between the two papers - outside of the fact that the Free Press carries the comics - is in the tempo in which the paper is put to bed and the number of people who put it there.

CC's Crouse Named To Study Committee

Donald Crouse, superintendent of Cass City Schools, has been appointed to a special committee to investigate vocational training and higher educational needs in this area.

Crouse is one of six superintendents to be named to this committee for Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac Counties.

The committee was set up at a meeting of the Tri-County School Masters, Presidents and County Superintendents association last Thursday in Martin's Restaurant in Cass City.

The six superintendents represent the three in charge of schools in the three county seats, and one superintendent from a centrally located community within each county.

Other superintendents named to the committee are William Pitcher, Bad Axe; James Sutherland, Caro; Ray Kuhler, Sandusky; Asa Fleck, Deckerville, and Robert Duhan, Uby.

This committee will lay the ground work for a study into further needs in vocational training programs in the tri-county area.

The committee will also plan for a study to be made of possible provisions for higher education within the three-county area.

Others fined, and the amounts, were Gerald Bennett, 19, $50; Jerome Gillan, 17, Paul Hartman, 17, and Robert McCoom, 17, $25 each. All pleaded guilty to the charge of possession by a minor.

Probation Set For Check Passer

A Caro woman was sentenced to two years probation by the Tuscola County Circuit Court on September 23 for failing to pay back money she had gotten by passing bad checks last year.

Several of the bad checks passed by the woman, Marjorie Surayne, 38, were cashed in Cass City in July, 1963.

Circuit Court Judge Timothy C. Quinn also ordered her to pay back a total of $725 she had received by cashing checks against bank accounts she did not have.

She is to return the money to rightful owners at $30 a month, Judge Quinn specified.

A year ago in September, the woman was given a one year suspended sentence and charged with restoring the money. Having failed to pay it back, the court set the probation sentence.

BULEN TALKS Cars

Ever notice how the kids seem to grow up fast, seemingly overnight? I suddenly realized this just today when I began shaking my finger in my son's face only his face wasn't there any more and I found myself pointing somewhere in the vicinity of his navel.

You burp them, wean them, ship them off to school and the next thing you know they're graduating...I guess that's growing up.

Just like businesses, they grow up too. When transportation became of age, BULEN'S was right there to look after the needs of the car owner. They paid plenty of attention and built their reputation on giving dependable, top service.

A youngster in school, who feels topnotch if he's treated properly, can perform better. I guess that's why a complete examination is given the child every so often. The same reason your car is examined carefully at BULEN'S before the keys are handed over to you.

Sometimes it seems that parents require more of their children - but they don't. At least not all at once, and not more than they can handle - it just appears that way. Besides 'requiring more' is the story of growing up. Those who used to be novice mechanics are the experts now down at BULEN'S so I no longer point my finger and try to tell them what they should do - they're big enough to be on their own.

THANKS for your TREMENDOUS ENTHUSIASM FOR THE 1965 CHEVROLETS AND OLDSMOBILES. We were sure they would be a HIT, but, it's nice to have your confirmation of our opinion. Now, all we need is to get the strike over.

Mayville Man Sentenced to Jackson Prison

A 22-year-old Mayville man was sentenced September 23 to Jackson State Prison for a term of three to 10 years for indecent liberties with an 11-year-old girl.

James Fox, of Leix Road, Mayville, had pleaded guilty to the charge at his arraignment on August 3 before Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Timothy C. Quinn.

The delay between his plea and his sentence was caused when authorities turned Fox over to the Caro State Hospital for a mental examination.

GAS STRIKE

Concluded from page one. The only effect the strike has had on the company's service to its customers is that ordinary service calls may not be answered as promptly as before.

"We don't always get there as fast as we would like," Shaw said.

"But, if it is a real emergency, we naturally get there as fast as we can."

Installation of new systems also has not been impaired by the strike.

"We contracted with a crew to put in a new gas system in Cass City just last week," the division director said.

"We pride ourselves in our service."

Cass City is on the company's northern boundary of operations which runs as far south as Mount Clemens and from Lake Huron in the east to Romeo in the west.

Attends Atlantic City Convention

Three District 29 members of the United Steelworkers of America from the area attended the International convention in Atlantic City, N. J., as elected delegates from their respective plants, with their staff representative, Ernest Pierce of Bay City.

The three delegates attending the convention from Sept. 21-25 were Marie Hammett, president Local Union 6222, and Harold Siebel, workers at General Cable Corp., Cass City, and Clayton Maurer, Local Union 6311 of Carment Co., Bad Axe.

International President David J. McDonald presided over the five-day convention held at Convention Hall.

President Lyndon B. Johnson addressed the steel workers Tuesday, Sept. 22, after which they endorsed him as their candidate for the upcoming presidential election.

Five Area Grads at School of Commerce

Two members of the 1963 graduating class of Cass City High School have enrolled for the fall term at the Northeastern School of Commerce in Bay City.

Gary W. Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Kelley of 4385 Leach Street, has signed up for a course in business administration while Miss Marguerite Sue Hahn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hahn, of 5911 North Cemetery Road, is enrolled in a secretarial course.

Three other graduates of area high schools are also attending the commerce school.

Miss Kathy Ann McPhail, daughter of Mrs. Dan McPhail, of 7815 West Sebawaing Road, Owendale, a 1962 graduate of Owendale High School, is studying clerk-typing.

Miss Carolyn Haney, daughter of Mrs. Lena Haney, of 5902 Main Street, Deford, and Miss Janet Zuraw, daughter of Mrs. Walter Zuraw, of 4779 State Street, Gagetown, are both taking an executive secretarial program.

Both graduated from high school in 1964; Miss Zuraw from Owendale-Gagetown and Miss Haney from Kingston High School.

Auxiliary Changes

Meeting Time

Henceforth, members of the Hills and Dales Hospital's Auxiliary will hold their monthly meeting on Monday afternoons at 2 p.m. instead of in the evening.

The meeting time was altered at the September meeting held Monday in the hospital's meeting room.

The new time was selected because it would be more convenient for members.

The Auxiliary also decided to discontinue to hold its fruit cake sale, an annual project of the auxiliary for the past several years.

Although profitable, the cake sales were given up because they had become too repetitious.

At the meeting, over which Mrs. Willis Campbell, Auxiliary president, presided, it was reported that the Auxiliary's bridge marathon was well organized and proving a popular and valuable project.

Cass City Band at Band Day

It's just too bad that the wind wasn't right Saturday afternoon, say along around 2:45 p.m., or maybe 3.

Cass City just might have enjoyed a free band concert. And not only from Cass City High School's Red Hawk music makers, either.

Granted, Ann Arbor is a healthy haul from Cass City, but if you take a Cass City tuba player, together with three drummers and an assortment of un-teen trumpeters, clarinetists, glockenspielers...

And then add all these to 13,000 other tuba, coronet, saxophone, piccolo, French horn and bassoon players - all blowing away together on a good, old rousing Sousa march - you've got the makings of a big enough noise that it just might have made the 119-mile trip from Ann Arbor, wind favoring.

But even if the strains of "The Thunderer" didn't make the trip here from Ann Arbor, a contingent of 35 Red Hawk bandmen made the trip there Saturday.

To take part in the biggest massing of high school bands - or probably any other kind of band you've got - in the world.

It was all part of the 16th annual Michigan High School Band festival sponsored by the University of Michigan, with 163 bands joining in the fun this year.

While the Wolverines relaxed in their locker room - waiting for the second half to continue to chew up Air Force Academy to a 24 to 7 victory - the playing field was engulfed in bandmen.

There were probably enough bands there to march every scout troop in the nation twice around the moon and back.

From sideline to sideline, from goal post to goal post, dressed in all colors of the rainbow and then some, the 13,000 music makers pounded out a program of marches and college songs to football fans in all corners of the stadium - and probably to some non-fans in Ypsilanti.

They needed two directors and an hour and a half of morning rehearsal to do it.

Now, if you happened to be sitting about on the 50 yard line, and had looked off to left of center (or maybe right, depending on your seat), down two flutes and over one cymbal smasher from that bass drummer in blue, you might have seen the white and maroon of old Cass City High in its spanking new uniforms.

"The band was fine," Ronald Walker, director, said of the Red Hawks' share in the afternoon's performance.

During pre-game, there was an even prettier massing of all the drum majorettes of all the bands, including Cass City High's three.

In a routine appropriately called the "glamour strut" the ladies of the bands put on a stunning performance of baton twirling.

It was a long, noisy day, topped off during half time by all the bandmen setting aside their instruments and just using their lungs in a stirring locomotive cheer - "Rah! Rah! Michigan!"

Did anybody in town hear it?

Typing will begin on Tuesday, Oct. 6, in room 33. Both classes will begin at 7 p.m. and continue for two hours at each session.

Richard Carroll will serve as the instructor of both classes. There is a $5 fee for each course plus the cost of books.

curated at the intersection of Pine and West Streets when a driver panicked and pressed down on the gas and not the brake.

James Merchant, 19, was driving south on West Street when he was struck by a car heading east on Pine street driven by Larry Moore, 17.

Moore told police that, although he had looked both ways, he had failed to see the other car until it was in front of him.

He said that he panicked and struck the gas pedal instead of the brake. Both cars were damaged.

GLASSES

But last year things started to go wrong. The sight-saving books Jim needed as his courses in arithmetic, English, spelling and geography grew more difficult, became harder to find.

Jim's one good eye began to suffer from strain.

"We had to do something," his mother said.

Four years before she had read a story in a Thumb newspaper about a boy like her son who had gotten a special pair of glasses from a New York doctor and could see with almost normal vision.

So, in early August Jim's concerned mother took him to New York. In two days Jim had the special glasses and new sight.

The only thing "normal" about the glasses is the frame. The lens to the right eye comes in three parts, sort of a tri-focal. With the glasses, Jim can look down and see the ground so he can walk.

By looking up through the inch-long telescopic lens he can see the changing leaves of autumn across a wide cornfield. By putting a cap on this distant-vision lens, he can read books printed with standard type. The left lens is weighted for balance.

Without these glasses, Jim's future as a normal child would have grown dark when he graduated from Argyle in 1966. He would have had to go to a special school and probably lived his life badly handicapped.

Now, when the times comes, he will be able to tuck his lunch under his arm, grab his books, and run to catch the school bus for Ubyly High with all his friends.

His mother now plans to have him take piano lessons to go with his enjoyment of music and his good singing voice.

Someday he may be able to drive a car.

Where young Jim goes from here, he doesn't know. Really seeing the world for the first time is still too new.

All he knows is, "I'm sure not going to get married. That's for the dogs."

Nope, for now it's enough to concentrate on being a regular guy like all his pals.

And worry about their son has been lifted from the shoulders of his mother and father. Mr. Quigg works for Active Industries in Elkton. His pretty mother does beauty work in her home.

Their only worry now is about the glasses. They think they may get them insured. They cost $475.

"Jim could play ball now, but we'd worry about the glasses," his mother said. Well, that's so much better than long nights of worry about the eyes.

Hitch-hikers are not only a nuisance—they're a menace.

Hawk Losing Streak Puts Caro Game in Jeopardy

Caro has not defeated Cass City in 13 years, but the long victory string will be in danger Friday when the Hawks face their top rivals on the road.

It will take maximum effort by the Hawks to get by the Tigers again this year, Coach Oarrie Lemanski reported this week.

Although the Tigers were pummeled by Bad Axe, 38-6, last week the game was much closer than the final score indicated. Only the Hatchets' great speed enabled them to pull off the victory.

While the Hawks have had the Indian sign on the Tigers over the past decade, the reverse has been true in games with the Marlette Red Raiders. In the last three years, the Hawks have lost three games by a total of just 10 points.

This year's game was more of the same. The Red Raiders won by the margin of an extra point, 20-19.

The Hawks opened the scoring when they cashed in on a break. Marlette fumbled on a punt attempt and the Hawks took over on the 15. A pass picked up nine yards from where Bob Rabideau went over on a dive play. Ed Retherford booted the extra point.

Marlette bounced back in the second period to tie the score. A long sustained drive was capped when Plummer, Red Raider quarterback, sneaked the final three yards to score. Plummer kicked the point.

In the third quarter the Red Raiders went into the lead for the first time in the game. They started another drive which carried them to the 39 from where Larkins went 39 yards on a sweep to score. Plummer converted the extra point.

Cass City came charging back with a pair of touchdowns in the same period to go back in front.

The first pass-off drive started on the Marlette 40. Carl Weipert capped it with an 18-yard dash on a reverse to the end zone. The vital try for the extra point was missed.

The next touchdown series started on the Marlette 27. After moving the ball to the 21, Retherford stepped back to pass and when he found his receivers covered, scampered the distance to score.

In the dying seconds of the third period came the break that Lemanski called the turning point of the game. The Hawks were in possession and moving the ball at about the 33 or 34 yard line when a hand-off went awry and the Raiders recovered the fumble.

Marlette took advantage of its opportunity and moved in for what proved to be the winning touchdown in the final period. Plummer got credit for the score when he dived over from the half-yard line.

Lemanski said that the offense looked improved, but that its performance was a little erratic. He again singled out Jim Knoblet for an outstanding defensive job.

The statistics:

	CC	M
First downs	4	6
Yards rushing	170	218
Yards passing	21	7
Passes completed	2-5	1-4
Fumbles lost	2	1
Yards penalized	55	50

PROFESSIONAL WOMEN—Among the 95 women attending the fall district meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club, hosted by the Cass City unit, were these state, district and local officials. BPW Members Hear Of Red POW Camp

Mrs. Lottie Konwalski told 95 members of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of her experiences as a Russian prisoner of War in World War II at the fall meeting of 15 clubs in district five.

Mrs. Konwalski was the guest speaker at the all-day gathering which was held Sunday in the Cass City High School with the Cass City Club serving as hostess for the occasion.

A coffee hour started the meeting at 10:30 a.m. Opening devotions were led by Lorraine O'Dell.

Fannie Yoeman of Clare, director of district five, presided over the business portion of the meeting in which committee reports were read.

Patricia Wagner, president of the Cass City Club, welcomed the guests at dinner which was served at 1 p.m. Betty Jo Agar served as toastmistress during dinner. She also sang a vocal solo, accompanied by Roger Parrish.

A panel discussion followed dinner, led by Marguerite Holcomb, second state vice-president.

Panel members were Eula Funk, membership expansion; Helen Sims, civic participation; Theresa Staal, personal development, and Mary Jane Wagenschutz, world affairs.

ANNEXATION

by the Deford school board after a bill known as the "K-12" bill became a state law in August.

This law says that all school districts must provide education for students from kindergarten through the 12th, or senior high school, grade.

Deford, with its six-classroom school, has room for pupils only through the eighth grade. Some 75 per cent of Deford graduates then go on to Cass City High School, while others attend Kingston.

Rather than split their school district between Cass City and Kingston, Deford moved to have the whole system brought into the Cass City schools.

Superintendent Scott believes that, because of the "K-12" law, voters Friday will approve annexation.

Deford will do so to keep its system intact. Cass City voters are expected to support it to keep a stable student body which will mean better education.

BAND BOOSTERS

the school budget.

While the Boosters are a few dollars away from having their half of the $4,600 needed to pay for the new band uniforms, the school's obligation to pay the other half will fall in January, Spencer said.

Therefore, the usual band support from the school budget will be missing next year as it has already been obligated, he explained.

The next meeting of the Boosters will be held after the public spaghetti dinner at the high school on Oct. 27.

Meanwhile, back to the band. Director Walker says that musical training is available for fifth graders in the school band which is being organized at the present time.

The school has made special arrangements with the Educational Department of a reliable music firm which will allow parents to rent instruments for three months. At the end of this time, the child can return the instrument or keep it, with the rent paid going as part of the purchase price.

COUNCIL

Tentative plans for the new high school, and architects cost studies, include the construction of water facilities to the school. The burden of construction, therefore, will not fall on the village.

Attorney Named

Clinton House was named as the Cass City attorney by the council.

Council President Lee Rabideau said that he had arranged for outgoing village attorney M. C. Ransford to continue to sign legal papers pertaining to the new water system.

"This will save us the trouble of having to transfer all the paper work," he said.

The council agreed to advertise for bids for a new heating plant for the municipal building whose present plant is inadequate.

In accord with a comment by Trustee Lambert Althaver that, "in fairness to some of our taxpayers who sell oil, we should advertise both for oil and for gas," the council agreed to do so.

However, several trustees said the blue prints of the proposed heating system show that future heating will have to be by gas.

Trustee Rawson called for enlarging the village office to make room for the files. Root was appointed to look into the construction of a small addition.

Walkie-talkie

The council gave its go ahead to Police Chief Carl Palmateer to set up a deal for a 30-day trial of a walkie-talkie radio for use by the village police.

Chief Palmateer gave the council a price list of several types of walkie-talkies. All cost "more than I had expected," the Chief said.

Due to the recent success in cutting down the squealing of tires by hot-rodgers in Cass City by use of a police radio borrowed from Caro, the Council approved a trial with a transistor-type selling for $918.

The council president said that he had sold the village's old truck for $175 in a dicker which netted the village $25 more than was first hoped for.

In a lengthy discussion, council members expressed their dissatisfaction with the pace at which the John Carlo Company, Inc., of Warren, has been cleaning up the streets along which the company laid the pipes of the new water line.

President Rabideau said that he, Public Works Superintendent William Schram, and a Carlo man will inspect the streets and draw up a list spelling out exactly what remains for the company to do.

Trustee Rawson charged that the council should have invested $22,000 in highway funds which it has had on hand for the year.

"If this money had been invested it could have been drawing interest all the time. It would have earned $1,000 interest which could have been put in the highway fund."

President Rabideau said that it was normal for the council to put this money in savings or time certificates at this time of year.

William Ruhl of 6676 Seed Street presented a petition he and his wife circulated along the street. The petition calls for the village to provide the street with curbs and gutters.

The petition was signed by 17 of the 21 households on the street.

The Council President told Ruhl that all such curb and gutter requests were being turned over to the planning commission which has been charged with drawing up a long range street program.

CENTENNIAL

Revenues

Major revenues would come from the spectacular, centennial book advertising and the sale of centennial promotional items.

Rogers Co.'s services include a three-day consultant conference in January or February to see how the program is progressing and then later in the year, a resident director will spend five to six weeks setting up the program.

Step-by-step information on the setting up of committees and their operation is also part of the service.

CCCCC to Elect

Lafferty, in commenting on the newly-formed CCCCC, suggested that Mrs. Bauer be named president and that centennial cochairmen Ware and Clint House be named executive vice-presidents.

House, also CCCCC attorney, is to file the corporation papers sometime this week and the corporation will hold its election of officers shortly thereafter.

It is expected that work will also begin then on the setting up of centennial committees.

Following the centennial, the CCCCC will be dissolved and any remaining assets will be given to civic and charity projects.

SCHOOL SITE

for the architects, Gordon H. Stow wrote:

"While I feel confident that a suitable structure could be erected on either site, I believe I would have to prefer the 'North Donahue site.'"

"Not being quite as restricted in width, it seems to me to offer a more attractive architectural setting."

"Also, if access to the Youngs site is limited to Main Street and access to the 'North Donahue Site' is from Seeger, I believe there are fewer traffic problems from Seeger."

"This is not part of the state trunk line system and, from casual observation, does not appear to carry the traffic Main does."

"Also, while commercial development appears to be moving east along Main, I have not observed any indication that it is moving north along Seeger. Once we get north of Church street, the character of the street is essentially residential."

Donald Crouse, superintendent of schools, said that the architects' study showed the cost of the two sites to be comparable.

One of the reasons for this is that the committee made an arrangement with Dr. Donahue which eliminates the need of costly storm sewers.

Dr. Donahue has told the committee that the property is tiled and that there is an eight inch tile leading down the ravine southeast to the present school property.

Dr. Donahue also said that should this eight inch storm sewer be inadequate to service the proposed school, the right to spill storm water down the surface of the ravine would be granted or he will install a regular storm sewer.

The school superintendent estimated that, if and when school district voters approve a bond issue for the proposed new high school, it would be about two years after that before the school would be ready for student use.

Serving on the site selection committee are Horace Bulen, president; Willis Campbell, Robert Stickle, Don Reid, William Leverich, Geraldine Priesskorn, James Bauer, Lee Rabideau, Mrs. Marie Murray and Superintendent Crouse.

NEWSPAPERS

At the Free Press it's a daily scramble to get the story, get it written, get it right and get it in the paper somewhere. A bee-hive of confusion to an unknowing observer, and sometimes to the employees.

At the Chronicle, this newspapering tension of deadline and press time starts mounting up Monday, reaching its acid-stomach peak Wednesday.

Melva hurries through the last stack of proofs, looking for errors. Betty's fingers fly over the keys as she sets the type of the last story. Dorothy, Dave, Eldie and Jim hurry to get the last pages "locked", and in the press.

There doesn't seem to be enough time to do all that has to be done. And then, it's press time and "let them roll."

Another difference at the Chronicle is that everybody knows everybody else on the staff. Why shouldn't they? There are 10 of them to the Free Press' hundreds.

Why, down at the Free Press a reporter can go out on an assignment with a photographer he has never seen and will never see again for seven months.

It takes years just to be sure which is the financial editor and which the business editor.

As for the distant sports desk, it's just a bunch of strange faces when you go to find out for some caller who won the double header in San Francisco. As for the boss-man, What's he look like?

But that's about all the difference. As one car is much like another to a garage mechanic, one paper is much like another to those in the trade.

Coffee is consumed by the gallon.

The office is a confusion of old papers, boxes of type, stacks of mail, discarded stories, old copy. There is a constant hum of activity: the clack of typewriters, the ringing of phones, movement of people back and forth.

Someone is always calling a news story, a question, a complaint.

Everyone has a fancy title. But it doesn't mean much. Everyone is supposed to know everything anyway.

Copy-readers shake their heads and sigh over the sloppy errors of writers who spell Ypsilanti as Ypsilenti.

Editors run around, scratching their heads, nervous, anxious that everything "is right."

The moment the paper is delayed, people ask, "where is it?" Presses break down.

Then everyone gathers at the press, waiting. As the first papers come off the press they are grabbed up, opened and scanned.

"It looks good." "Yeah," "What's wrong with the picture on page five?" "Perhaps we could have..." So go the comments.

There is one other difference, however. In the Chronicle's operation, it's hard to tell where management leaves off and labor begins.

Because of this, it doesn't seem likely this paper will ever have a strike, leaving the people of Cass City without their paper to tell them about themselves and what they are doing and thinking.

Many try, but quantity will never make up for quality.

Hope is useless unless it is backed by plenty of hustle.

Be sure you're right — then turn and take another look.

Advertise it in the Chronicle.

Pvt. L. E. Thomas Completes Course

Pvt. Lyle E. Thomas, whose wife Janet lives on Route 1, Deford, completed a 10-week supply course under the Reserve Enrollment Program at the Army Ordnance Center and School, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., Sept. 25.

Thomas was trained to use automatic data processing equipment, infrared inspection equipment and ultrasonic cleaning devices.

The 23-year-old soldier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orvie W. Thomas of Clearwater, Fla., is scheduled to complete his military obligation with the 621st Ordnance Company, an Army National Guard unit in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Three Attend Zonta District Conference

Three Cass City women last week attended the 17th annual Zonta International Conference of District Five in Windsor, Ont.

They were Mrs. Helen Baker, Mrs. Esther McCullough and Mrs. Edith Little. The conference ran from Sept. 25 to Sept. 27.

The conference was held in the Prince Edward Hotel in Windsor with the Windsor, Chatham and Sarnia clubs, all of Ontario, serving as hostesses.

Attending the conference were 347 delegates from 49 clubs in the district which is made up of Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee and Ontario.

The 1965 fall conference will be held in Akron, Ohio.

Sometimes one man jumps at a conclusion and wins—while another hesitates and loses.

Tuscola's 4-H'ers Contribute to Fund

The 1,200 4-H club members in Tuscola county are contributing to a memorial fund established in memory of Miss Marie Wolfe who died last Friday in Lansing.

Miss Wolfe served as Assistant State 4-H Club Leader in Michigan. Her last special project was working on career selection for rural youth. She was no stranger to the 4-H'ers in Tuscola county as she had worked on several special projects in the county.

4-H Clubs should forward their checks to Ed Schrader, County Extension Agent in 4-H club work.

Tuscola 4-H Clubs Observe 4-H Week

Tuscola county 4-H clubs join with more than 100,000 other clubs in the United States to observe National 4-H Club Week, Sept. 26 - Oct. 3, according to Ed Schrader, county 4-H extension agent.

Some 74,500 Michigan 4-H club members are taking part in the week-long observance along with nearly 14,000 local volunteer leaders.

Theme of this year's week is "4-H: Learning for Living." Special recognition is being given to the more than 20 million persons who have been 4-H club members since the 4-H program began more than 50 years ago. Michigan alone has had over one million 4-H alumni.

Free Press Strike Better End Soon

By Dave Kraft

Boy, I sure hope that Free Press-News strike is settled soon. Ever since we got Stan in from the Free Press, I've lived in fear. It's reached a point where I go off in good conscience because Stan's constantly turning in copy . . . good copy. Worst of all, he turns it in on Thursdays and Fridays, traditionally my days for doing almost nothing.

I'm developing a strange gnawing sensation in my stomach which only milk and baby food can placate.

I stopped in at the Pinney Bank Friday and Bob Keating had the audacity to comment that he "hoped the Free Press strike never ends."

Grant Gaspie at the Post Office continues to refer to Stan as my "replacement." He really knows how to hurt a guy, that Gaspie does.

I've tried to compensate by selling more ads, but I can't get any cooperation with these Cass City Merchants. It's almost as if there were a conspiracy . . .

I console myself with the thought that it's something akin to hero worship . . . you know, big city reporter . . . excitement . . . romance . . . drama . . . stuff like that. I figure that as soon as the "new" wears off, people will start to treat him with the same disrespect with which they used to treat me.

Until then, I'll just continue to drink my milk. That strike can't last forever . . . can it?

Speaking of drinking things. I'm afraid our Moonshine, Inc. just isn't going to turn out. I just can't get any cooperation.

I think I'll declare bankruptcy. No? How do you dissolve an "Inc."? Use "Inc." remover?

I not only intend to dissolve the organization, I refuse to account for the $2.76 my stockholders raised for the initial purchase of the plans for the still.

I spent it, and that's all you need to know. If Bobby Baker won't talk, why should I?

Hey, how about those new cars? American Motors has a Tarpon, Ford has a Mustang, Chrysler has a Baracuda and Chevrolet has a Corsa. What's a Corsa?

First I figured they were trying to copy the Mustang and Corsa was really a corruption of Horsa. What I finally decided it was, was a corruption of Corsette and they called it that because it has lots of "snap."

Don't get me wrong, I'm not making fun of it. If I had a couple extra bucks lying around, I'd get one.

The fellow who works and smiles overtime finds happiness.

Man's mission on earth is to make a living—and it's surprising how few experts there are.

People who talk too much seem to think their train of thought has the right of way.

Michigan Mirror

End of "War Baby" Influx Not End of School Problems

By Elmer E. White
The Costly Quarter

More than one-quarter of Michigan's 8 million population are children of elementary and high school age this fall, according to Superintendent of Public Instruction Lynn M. Bartlett.

With about 2,275,000 students enrolled in Michigan's public and private schools at the start of this school year, Bartlett notes that the state's education problems will not decline with the end of the "War Baby" influx.

"The social crises of the past year have presented grave and challenging problems to our schools," he said. "The coming year promises even more."

Changing social patterns, the national struggle over civil rights, and rapid shifts in job opportunities all affect the school situation.

This year's public school enrollment of 1,915,000 was an increase of 60,000 or 3.7 per cent over the fall, 1963, roster, Bartlett noted, and going into the higher education level an even greater hike was seen.

Public colleges and universities alone saw registrations soar to near 125,000. This was 9.5 per cent higher than enrollments last year. Private colleges took in about 6.7 per cent more students, with total enrollments of about 44,500.

The end result of this and future years' increases in student numbers lies largely in the taxpayer's pocketbook.

Michigan elementary and secondary public schools this year are employing 2,700 more teachers than last year at salaries averaging $200 more than in 1963.

Taxpayers also are paying for 3,200 more classrooms, largely through bond issues which are up 20.9 per cent from the 1962-63 school year.

State aid for education is up almost $80 million this year, but Bartlett notes that the share of school costs paid from local taxes is on the rise. Last year local districts paid 55.4 per cent of their costs as compared with 43.5 per cent in 1960-61.

Die Is Cast

Wisdom of the choice for the No. 2 spot on the Republican state ticket will not be known until after Nov. 3 but there was serious thought given to his alternatives.

State Sen. William G. Milliken of Traverse City won the nod over House Speaker Allison Green of Kingston in a decision which was largely a choice between intra-party philosophy.

Milliken, majority floor leader the past term in the Senate, is closer to Romney's moderate political views. Green, a very powerful man in the House for several terms, leans more to the conservative side but doesn't quite qualify in the "Old Guard" group.

Officially, Romney made no personal choice known at the GOP state convention contest between the two men. Unofficially, however, his aides made it apparent he preferred Milliken.

Leakage of his preference occurred only after the September primary when Romney felt his strong showing indicated he did not need the balance of philosophy which Green would have provided to the ticket.

Even many high-ranking Democrats give Romney the upper hand in the coming election, barring a full-strength landslide victory for President Johnson. On this basis, Milliken at 42 continues to head up the political ladder in Michigan.

Green, on the other hand, is given little chance to defeat the very popular James M. Hare in the Secretary of State race. After 14 years of hard, conscientious service in the House, Green's immediate future is in doubt, but a Republican victory could help him to an appointive job.

Promotion Pays

Expanded promotion apparently has done its job for the tourist industry in Michigan.

State Tourist Council Director William T. McGraw predicts that this year's travelers to Michigan will leave $800 million in the state. Last year the estimated 11 million tourists spent $727 million here.

McGraw credited favorable weather most of the summer, the busiest season, with a good part of the increase in tourist activity, but he said more extensive local and regional promotion also accounted for some of it.

Of the amount spent by tourists this year, McGraw said the best estimate available was that the state itself would collect more than $56 million in taxes.

This includes sales taxes, state gas tax, use tax on lodging, liquor and cigarette taxes and hunting and fishing license fees.

The contribution of tourists to Michigan's economy, both public and private has been increasing steadily over the years. On the basis of an average 10 to 15 per cent increase annually, McGraw and other experts in the field are predicting tourism will be a $1 billion a year business by 1969.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Sez:

Dear Mister Editor:

The fellers at the country store Saturday night was giving out with their usual grass roots wisdom. They used to call it barnyard philosophy. till they got to building tractor sheds, silos and milking pens and done away with the barn.

Bug Hookum reported he had saw in the papers where a new regular session of the United Nations would get under way next month and they had 72 items on the agenda for discussion. Bug said the items wasn't listed but he was of the opinion Uncle Sam would get blamed for all 72 of them. For instant, he noted, the delegation from Mexico was already saying they was "puzzled" over our foreign aid policy, claiming we was giving more money to our enemies than our friends.

Zeke Grubb reckoned them Mexicans has been listening to our State Department trying to explain the matter. Zeke reported that's how he got "puzzled" over it. From the best he could make out, claimed Zeke, foreign aid, like raising Congressmen's pay, was now a permanent department of our Government.

Clem Webster, agreed with Zeke, said all money projects in Government was now permanent and untending. He said he could recollect back in 1952 when they put on a Federal luxury tax for the duration of the Korean War. As far as the tax is concerned, noted Clem, the war was still going on. If Noah's Ark had been a Government project, allowed Clem, they would still be adding rooms to it.

The feller that runs the country store took time off from filling out his Government forms to give us a few figgers. He said our Congressmen was like a Board of Directors running a big company, and in the last 10 years, from 1954 to 1964, they had raised their pay 140 per cent, from $12,500 to $30,000. And while all this was going on, he said, the company debt had grewed 15 per cent or $41 billion. He was of the opinion they wasn't no other organization on earth that would raise the pay of the Directors 140 per cent for letting the company get $41 billion deeper in the red.

Ed Doolittle, that claims his great-grandfather and Abe Lincoln was double first cousins, was blaming it on the Democrats. Ed announced that if the Democrats won in November he was going to volunteer for a moon shot on account of him not caring much whether he gets back here or not. Clem, that is voting for Johnson, said we'd just have to try and get along without Ed, that he was agin progress here on earth and would be agin it on the moon.

Personal, Mister Editor, after listening to the fellers I'd have to say the country was about half way between boom and doom.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

BOOK REVIEW

Novel Fails and
So Do Apaches

By the Rev. R. J. Searls

A TIME IN THE SUN by Jane Barry—For her fourth book, Jane Barry chose to write a novel described on the dust jacket of the book as, "An epic novel of the Apaches and the struggle for Arizona." She failed. Let me hasten to acknowledge that it was a vast effort. But the plot is too involved, her descriptions too abundant, her characters too well endowed with the knowledge of just what to do. I found it a tedious book to read and wished that it isn't true that a good reviewer shouldn't take his review from the publisher's summary of the plot. I read every bit of it and can bear witness that this book, in spite of tremendous research, just is not worth taking the time to read -- much less the time to write this review.

One thing she learned in researching for this book was that most authors writing of the frontier days overlook the fact that the Sioux, Blackfeet and Apaches were not the only Indians in America's frontier days. She did have a plot, which you could find if you looked for it, but it was hardly worth the effort involved. This is it: Anna Stillman was on her way to Tucson to marry Lt. Linus Degman, son of the commandant of the US fort there. She was captured by an Apache raiding party. Col. Degman and Linus recognize quickly that to attempt to rescue Anna by force would endanger the girl's life. They sent Shafter, an ex-confederate and frontiersman extraordinary, to attempt to rescue her. At this point in the account, we are introduced to two amazing Indians. Victorio is chief of the Mimbrenos tribe, and Joaquin, a half-breed who is an Apache by choice -- choice of the white men of the day whose comprehension of the issues can be summarized with the phrase: "The only good Indian is a dead Indian."

Victorio is willing to release Anna's traveling companion, a Mexican girl, but will not release Anna. Shafter kidnaps the kidnapped girl, who rejects the white man and his ways and is allowed to return to her Indian friends -- after much agonizing about her grieving white Lieutenant for whom she had made the trip west. We are allowed quick glimpses at her and see a woman happy to be a squaw.

There are many characters who appear in the tale but briefly. The Army sends a commander to the area whose enlightened way of handling Indian affairs shows the way to the new America.

In many ways Shafter is the main character in the book and we can understand lengthy portions of the book only as he makes sense out of what is happening.

The book closes with Shafter declaring to one of his buddies his determination to go to Mexico and together they ride off into the sunset, thereby paving the way for the book to become a motion picture. Come to think of it, that might explain the extra length (384 pages) of the book. If there is a movie made from this book, let me know when it is scheduled locally so I can arrange to be elsewhere.

A TIME IN THE SUN by Jane Barry, Doubleday and Company, Garden City, N.Y., 1962. Available from the Cass City and Elkland Township Library.

Observation proves a friend in need is a friend indeed — until his need is liquidated.

Experience may be a great teacher, but no one ever lives long enough to graduate.
