

From the Editor's Corner

In Imlay City teachers are refusing to work after 4 p.m. unless they are paid for each duty performed because they were not granted a $500 pay boost this year and charges and countercharges between the school board and the teachers are hurled daily. In Hamtramck teachers staged a sit down strike; in Bay City initial demands by the teachers' union are for salaries ranging from $6,000 to $15,000 for teachers with a master's degree.

In Cass City the board and teachers are in the midst of negotiations that hopefully will terminate in new contracts this spring.

Nothing has been more striking than the change in teacher-administration relations since tenure and collective bargaining have taken the State by storm.

While no one can accurately predict where the current trend is leading, one thing certain is that teaching costs are going to increase.

I asked Superintendent Donald Crouse when information about the negotiations would be released to the taxpayers.

It seems to me that he is taking a fair position in a situation where he must walk a tight rope between what is fair to the instructors and also fair to the persons paying the bill.

If we should reach an impasse (which I don't think for a moment we will), he said, I think that the people should be advised of all of the facts so that they can decide the case for themselves. Of course the full details of the contracts when signed will be a matter of public record, he explained.

..... We don't know what the odds would be against this but we know they are astronomical. Two persons were selected from Elkhart township to serve on the February term jury panel and the two, Vic Guernsey and Mrs. Myrtle Ludlow, are next door neighbors.

Should be a good chance for a car pool when they report for duty at the courthouse in Caro.

Thieves Strike White Creek Again

A burglar who apparently thinks he's got a good thing going returned to the scene of his crime early last week when he broke into the White Creek Club Monday night, Jan. 10, just five days after robbing the club of $40 in change.

More thorough on his last call but less successful, the culprit broke in through a basement window, the same route he used in the first break-in.

Club president Bill Zemke reported that the thief broke open the juke box, pool table and took change from the cash register. The exact amount taken was not disclosed but Zemke stated it was less than on the first try. No damage was reported in the first attempt.

Zemke stated that nothing but the change was taken.

Jury in Caro Finds Fostoria Man Guilty

A Fostoria man was found guilty of gross indecency Wednesday, Jan. 12, by a five-woman, seven-man jury during a Circuit Court session in Caro.

Found guilty was William E. Strohmaier who was charged with gross indecency with a 10-year-old Fostoria boy last summer. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Feb. 15 and Strohmaier was continued on $1,000 bond.

Members of the jury included Clarence Cole, Mrs. Germaine Moury, Ralph Rossman, Mrs. Leota Colling, Clifford Moore, Helen Chomos, Andrew Larsen, D. Perry Lomason, Ellory Drake, Mrs. Ruth Sahr, Beatrice Topham and Robert Aldrich.

Walter K. Trumbell, Florida, wanted in Manatee County, Fla., on a breaking and entering charge, waived extradition to Florida during the Jan. 12 session.

Tuesday, Jan. 18, Howard W. Endert, Caro, was placed on three years probation and ordered to pay restitution of $123.81 and costs of $100 for writing checks with insufficient funds last September. Endert is also to spend six weeks in the county jail.

In other court news, Richard Kern, Caro, was appointed by the court to defend Junior L. Blackmer, Cass City, charged with taking indecent liberties with a five-year-old girl in Novesta township on December 24. The appointment was made during a court session on Jan. 14.

Unarmed Theft Nets Trio $2.00

Warrants have been issued for three Caro youths who allegedly took part in a strong-arm robbery Sunday night in which a Caro man was roughed up and robbed of $2.00.

The warrants, charging unarmed robbery, were issued Tuesday for Ronald L. Adair, Ronald E. Jones, and Gary E. Davis, all 17, and all of Caro. All three were to have been arraigned in Justice Court in Caro late Thursday afternoon.

According to sheriff's deputies, the trio had been driving around drinking beer and picked up Glenn O'Connor who was hitch-hiking home. They took O'Connor to Green's Gravel Pit, off East Dayton Road, and after roughing him up, relieved him of his wallet containing $2.00.

O'Connor remembered seeing one of the boys working at a Caro service station. Police checked his story and arrested the trio Monday.

Vandals Sought

The deputies are searching for cars matching the description given by Mrs. Creason and neighbors.

25 Years at Cass City Schools

A HIGHLIGHT of the party honoring Jerome Root Sr. Wednesday, Jan. 12, was the presentation of a certificate for 25 years of service by Supt. Donald Crouse, left, and a broom and dust pan with $25 in it . . . a dollar for each year of service, presented by Mrs. Paul Murray.

"I Like Them All", Asserts Jerome Root at Farewell Fete

The job has changed, but the kids are the same, Jerome Root Sr., 66, said this week as he discussed his 25 years as custodian at Cass City Schools while attending a party in his honor at the Willis Campbell elementary school Wednesday, Jan. 12.

In all my years at the school, I never saw a teacher I didn't like and the kids were always friendly. . . I got along with them all.

His cordial relations were apparent as teacher after teacher interrupted the interview to say hello or offer congratulations. . . nearly 100 teachers, bus drivers and co-workers were on hand to honor the retiring school veteran.

It was obvious that Mr. Root meant it when he said, "I enjoyed every minute of my work here and wish I didn't have to retire."

But the years have taken their toll and Mr. Root is no longer able to swing a broom like he did when he was one of two men taking care of the current high school building.

A heart condition causes him considerable pain in the arm. . . it's hurting right now, he said, but I wouldn't have missed this affair no matter how much I was bothered.

While the people are the same, the duties of a custodian have changed considerably in the 25 years that Root has seen students come and go.

Theo Hendrick got me my job here, Root recalled. I was paid $1075 a year and worked six days a week from 12:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. and lots of time after that when there were special events at the school.

There was a lot more manual labor when I started, too, but then I was a lot younger, Root said with a smile.

Now they have scrubbers to do the work. . . we had to do it by hand. We had an old scrubber that took three men to carry up stairs to work.

Cass City Native Root is a native of the Cass City area and still lives on the farm on Doerr Road where he was born and reared. He married the former Margaret Taylor. The couple had seven children, five of which are living.

There are three boys and all are making their home in Cass City. Jerome Jr. is a building contractor. Richard works at the post office and Donald is employed at a local elevator.

The two daughters both live in Cleveland, O. They are now Mrs. Elaine Mohner and Mrs. Doris Barto.

Two Cass City minor youths were arrested by state police officers for illegal possession of beer. Arraigned Jan. 15, each paid a fine of $25 and costs of $4.30.

On Jan. 1, Officer Robert Pawlowski charged four Bad Axe youths with illegal possession. Paying a fine and costs of $29.30 were Bruce Hogan Wagner, Richard Charles Schelke, Lonnie Ray Briggs and Frank James Kladzky.

Charles William Wright, 42, of Cass City paid a fine and costs of $9.30 for driving 65 miles per hour at night.

Victrola Plays A $$ Tune

Think there is much demand for a 1952 Chevrolet or an old-fashioned Victrola these days?

If you said "yes" you're on the right track. Tim Knight called to say that he had 10 calls and sold his Chevy at once after advertising it in the Chronicle.

Mrs. Bruce Kritzman of Decker said she wasn't sure if there would be any kind of market for her Victrola . . . but she advertised just to see. She immediately received a call from a local resident two days after the ad appeared and sold the unit for $20.

The Victrola will end up with a collector in Grand Rapids who keeps guns and musical instruments, according to the purchaser.

Why Quit? Syl Bukowski of Uby explains why he quit dairying: "First, it was a lot of hard work to keep a big dairy herd. In the last 15 years I had to keep adding a few more cows each year to keep up with expenses. Finally it got so big that I couldn't handle it. I either had to go smaller or get out. Prices kept going up and the price for what we sell goes down. Finally, I just came to the end of it," he concluded bitterly.

He also struck out at increasing health restrictions which, "also in-crease in prices or income. These extras mean more man-hours of work and a man can endure only his capacity."

Donald Miljure, Cass City, in the dairy business for the past 27 years, echoed Bukowski's complaint with "It got so the dairy business just didn't have enough in it for the work I had to do. I got to where I wanted to build my social security and I couldn't do it with the cows."

"My set-up was with my father-in-law," tells Lester O'Dell, Decker, who ended a four and a half-year partnership with Elmer Fuester.

"And when I broke my leg, I decided then to get out and go into the carpenter business."

Harold Francis, Deford, quit farming when illness made it impossible to hold down "two jobs. I decided to quit farming and keep my job at General Cable." He had been a farmer all his life.

Sales Successful? Miljure was the only dissenter as to the success of the auction in disposing of his dairy herd. "I didn't figure the cows went for what they should have. Feed sold good and equipment did well."

Harold Francis had trouble with the big question mark in any auction, bad weather. Other than that, the sale was good. Others interviewed were satisfied with the sales.

Harold Francis had trouble with the big question mark in any auction, bad weather. Other than that, the sale was good. Others interviewed were satisfied with the sales.

Return to Farming? Three of the farmers were completely disenchanted with the farm and answered the question of returning to farming with an emphatic "no" or "definitely not." One stated he would get some "feeders to raise, but no more cows."

Francis, who is not completely out of farming, was "undecided." Bukowski summed up the general feeling, however, with "No, I've had my share. If I can find some other way to make a living with less work, then I'll do it."

Auction Easy? One point all agreed on was that getting ready for an auction is a lot of work, particularly a dairy auction.

Those in dairying complained of the mountains of detailed paper work for calf vaccinations, TB and Bangs tests, DHIA tests and a myriad of other tests for each animal. "It took quite a little while to get ready," explains Bukowski. "You've got to kinda plan ahead. Some people have a sale on the spur of the moment. I planned and decided when it would be best to have a sale."

Just when the rural rush to the factory will end is open for speculation. Its chief result is already apparent, the bigger farm, so necessary to supply the demand, but making the small farm an expensive hobby.

If the cause of the rush, low prices, doesn't disappear, what then? Bukowski forecasts a gloomy outlook. "I hope that the farm prices come in balance with farm costs fast or the farm economy of this country will fall and that means depression."

Supervisors Set Budget

Unless spending soars in 1966, Tuscola County will end the year with an estimated surplus of $32,546, County Clerk Archie Hicks reported after the Board of Supervisors set the county budget Friday, Jan. 14, during their week-long January session.

The figure will be about half the balance on hand when the county ended the year for 1965. Balance on hand, as of December 31, was $63,221.

Anticipated cash receipts for the year, according to Hicks, were set at $773,221 and anticipated expenses came to $740,675. The budget was $56,521 over last year's anticipated receipts of $716,700.

Only two department budget requests were given cutbacks, Hicks reported. Social Welfare was reduced from $156,000 to $130,000 and the Veterans' Council was cut back to $7,000 from $9,000.

The hearing on the budget has been set for Monday, Feb. 7.

A request from the Salary Committee for a $20,000 budget for the retirement plan study was nixed by a five to 17 vote. Hicks reported that the Board in general felt that the general budget couldn't handle the $20,000 request.

The turnout was the newest development in the county's search for a retirement plan for its employees. Various plans for county employees are under consideration.

Probate Court Report

It cost the county $7,733.79 to operate the Probate Court offices in 1965, according to a report filed by Probate Court Judge Bates Willis with the Tuscola County Supervisors last week during their week-long January session.

Receipts for the year totaled $15,077.62 while disbursements came to $22,811.41.

Under receipts, the chief items were: care of wards, $3962; certified copies, $5,181.35, and filing fees, $798.

Disbursements were heaviest in the salary departments and printing category. Salaries totaled $18,704.44 and included those of probate judge, probate register and court stenographer. Printing and binding expenses came to $1,546.95.

During the year, the department had 247 wills left with them for safekeeping, handled 145 traffic violations and appointed 78 administrators. Seventy-eight wills were admitted to probate and guardianship was appointed for 41 minors and 40 mentally incompetent persons.

Forty-eight adoptions were started during the year and 32 were confirmed. Seventy juvenile petitions were filed and 53 inheritance tax determinations were handled.

Total inheritance tax handled by the department was $64,595.12 and total inventories filed in 1965 came to $1,874,900.56.

The court calendar for the February term of Tuscola County Circuit Court is highlighted by 17 criminal cases, the most cases for any term here in recent years.

For instance, Ed said, he had just said when it was 50 million to publish in the Congressional Record the speeches from our elected representatives in the last session of the Congress. Zeke was of the opinion all we was getting in return was more and more of them and the Gault.

First Victory For Junior High

One of Cass City's Junior High basketball teams has notched its first victory of the year for the school in a game played at Grand Rapids.

The seventh grade won by a lopsided 47-12 margin and the eighth grade came in check at they have of year by winning as they dropped a one-point 20-20 decision.

The seventh had little trouble against the Little Redskins as they turned out to be a total quarter time and won easily. Rob Alex, under last 10 points, Ralph (Red) Ford, 10, and Dan Gahler, near Scott (Lumber) and John Zander, and Henry Jones did a good job on defense and rebounding.

In the loss to the Saturday eighth graders, Coach John Gieseler said that the team played its best defense of the year. The game was close all the way, John Stewels while Dave Gahler netted 12 for Saturday. Friday afternoon the Junior High will host the Lakers at 7 o'clock.

BOOK REVIEW

"Sarkhan" Full Of Factual Fiction

By the Rev. R. J. Searls

This is the second novel on which these two men have collaborated. Unfortunately it is also the final joint effort. Lederer is credited with sole authorship of three books, one of which, A Nation of Sheep, was reviewed in this column. He also wrote The Ugly American and Sarkhan (being reviewed right now) in partnership with Eugene Burdick. Burdick has co-written not only the books mentioned, but shared the writing chores with two other authors and written four novels by himself. Eugene Burdick died in July of the year just passed and in addition to writing books, Burdick also was the author of many articles and short stories. He will also be missed at the University of California (Berkeley) where he was associate professor of political science.

Sarkhan is so competently written that the reader has to be on guard constantly, or he will confuse fact and fiction. This, along with the geographical setting, makes for exciting reading in each of its 390 pages. One thing fascinated me increasingly as I found myself involved in the theme, I kept missing something—the preparation with which a good novelist begins early in the plot, for the final pages of the book, the climax. Even as you realize that you have nearly completed the story, you read on to the end only to discover that it is so different an end that you find your mind and your imagination going on to one of several more likely conclusions. In this feature the book reflects the Oriental world.

Two men have primary roles in this story: one of them, Edward Coldstream, is a very successful businessman in the Far East nation of (fictional) Sarkhan after a fine career as an Army (U.S.) officer. To protect his interests, he becomes deeply involved in the internal affairs of Sarkhan. In this involvement, he is joined by his good friend, Thaddeus McCauley, professor of Sarkhanese studies at Cornell.

We are introduced to some of the principal leaders early in the book. A fish-gutted named Tuc, recently returned from Hanoi, well-trained, is the local chief of espionage and terror on behalf of those who plan to seize the government. General Hahn is one of the plotters in whom the U.S. has complete faith. Our ambassador in Haidjo, the capital of Sarkhan, is new and nervous; unfortunately taking his advice from persons many, many miles away. In him we see the necessity of training, more adequately, all U.S. representatives abroad.

In America, the president's committee meets and deliberates, taking absolutely no action. Coldstream and McCauley watch all of this reach the boiling point. Personally, they recover the king-elder Prince Lin, with whom they are eyewitnesses to a mock battle, during which photographers take many pictures. (Did you ever hear that pictures don't lie? After reading this account of a mock battle, you won't ever trust photos again.) The two friends return the prince to Haidjo, where a jolt-council of war has been meeting to try to decide the future of Sarkhan, now that word has been reported of Lin's death.

Immediately, Lin takes charge, slowly but positively bringing order out of chaos. Each person in on the attempted murder of the prince immediately produces an excuse, running for cover. A huge mob has been forming outside the U.S. Embassy where all this has been taking place, manipulated there by the revolutionaries, shouting that they want to see their prince.

The rest I must leave to you to discover and interpret yourself. Be sure to read this exciting novel. Sarkhan by William J. Lederer and Eugene Burdick, 307 pp., McGraw-Hill Book Company, New York, 1965. Available from the Cass City Library.

Seek Answer to Area Pheasant Loss

Wildlife research men of the Conservation Department plan to launch a special study next week in an effort to determine if pesticides have played a role in the pheasant decline that has taken place in southern Michigan's "Thumb".

Within the next few weeks, they hope to shoot 36 birds in six townships where pheasant numbers have shown a decided drop during recent years. Sites for collecting these birds are located in Huron, Tuscola, and Bay counties.

Body tissues from the birds will be tested by a gas chromatograph at the Department's Rose Lake wildlife research center near East Lansing to find if there are pesticide residues in the pheasant and, if so, at what levels.

To provide a control factor in this winter's research project, the Department also plans to take some pheasants from Ottawa county where the birds' populations recently have held their own or even increased.

By putting body tissues from these birds through the same tests used on those from the Thumb, the Department will be able to compare results from an area where pheasant numbers remain good with a region where they are slumping. Underscoring this will be an attempt to learn whether there is any connection between pesticides and pheasant populations.

If the tests indicate a relationship, Department researchers plan to move to other studies to better pinpoint effects of pesticides on pheasants and other wildlife.

Name Officers at Presbyterian Church

The annual meeting of the Fraser Presbyterian Church was held last week and two elders and two trustees named under the rotation system used by Presbyterians. Named elders were Harold Ballagh and George Fisher. The new trustees are Clayton Root and Calvin MacRae.

About 25 persons attended the meeting and the financial statement revealed that the church had met its financial quota for the year.

In other business of the church, Fisher was re-elected Sunday School Superintendent.

SHABBONA

Mary Sue Burns and Vicky Chapin of the Evergreen Guys 'n Gals 4-H Club participated in the "Modern Miss Knits" program that was held Monday evening in the Kingston High School gymnasium. The program was presented by Mrs. Ruth Rohn of the Berat Yarn Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Clair Auslander and Dale were Sunday dinner and supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burns and family.

The MYF of the Shabbona Methodist Church attended the Youth for Christ Rally in Caro Saturday evening.

Mrs. Clair Auslander attended the Detroit Edison workshop which was held in Detroit Monday.

The regular Family Night of the Shabbona Methodist Church will be held Friday evening, January 21. Mr. and Mrs. Ross Beach, who plan to leave in February as missionaries to Korea, will present the program. Visitors are welcome.

River Plunge Injures Girl

A 17-year-old Cass City girl suffered head injuries Tuesday noon when the car she was driving left west River Road, plunged down a 10-foot embankment and came to rest on the ice covered Cass River.

Judy A. Spencer suffered the injuries when her head went through the window on the driver's side. Laura Spencer, 15, complained to investigating officers of back injuries. Henry Gere, 16, and Raymond Spencer, 12, were uninjured.

The driver was ticketed for traveling too fast for conditions. She was involved in an accident two weeks ago in which the car she was driving flipped over. By an ironic coincidence, her father was involved in an accident a year ago at almost the same spot as Tuesday's crash.

Tracks showed that the driver, traveling east on River Road, lost control of the car on a curve, swerved to the right, shot back across the road and over the embankment. After dropping straight down for about 10 feet, the car traveled down an incline, and out onto the ice-covered river.

In other accident news, Dennis Rieck, 19, Kingston, lost control of his car while trying to pass a truck on Van Buren Road Monday morning and wound up in a farm yard.

Rieck, who was accompanied by Charlotte Rieck, 20, told Tuscola county deputies that the truck swerved to his side of the road and when Rieck pulled to the side of the road to avoid a collision, the car went into a ditch. The car hit a driveway culvert and came to rest in the farm yard. No injuries were reported.

No injuries were reported for Donald S. Landram, 24, Kingston, nor his passenger, Jennette Randall, 19, when Landram's car struck a deer Monday night near Kingston.

AAUW Seeking College Women For Scholarships The Cass City branch of the American Association of University Women is taking part in a search for eligible women who might qualify for the Association's College Faculty Program, according to Mrs. B. F. Benkelman, local chairman of this program.

With the growth of colleges and universities and the serious shortage of faculty personnel for them, AAUW has inaugurated this scholarship program to give able women holding at least a bachelor's degree the opportunity to study for a graduate degree with the aim of becoming a college teacher or administrator.

Branch President Mrs. Richard Dews pointed out that this program is especially pertinent to the tri-county area with the proposed plans for a community college bringing the need for college teachers close to home.

Interested women may receive further information by contacting either Mrs. Benkelman or Mrs. Dews. The deadline for filing applications for the current awards is February 1.

KOMMENTS BY KRAFT

That's A Lot For An Ocelot....

By Dave Kraft

I passed Mrs. Charles Auten on the street the other day and at first glance I thought she was wearing a cat on her shoulder. Second glance confirmed it.

Siamese cat. If it had been a Monday morning, I'd have thought nothing of it. I see a lot of funny animals on Monday mornings and some of them are Siamese cats.

Lois was striding along like somebody with someplace to go and one might have thought she didn't know the cat was there. I would imagine, however, if you have a cat on your shoulder, you know it's there.

I certainly hope this isn't going to be a trend. All manner of terrible things could happen.

Suppose you got up late for work some morning, dressed in a hurry and while bleary-eyed, tried to kiss your wife goodbye at the door and got the cat by mistake. Probably tear you to pieces.

I've never kissed a cat before, but I don't imagine they use mouth wash either.

Or, for instance, suppose you're some young fellow out on his first date with this girl and you try to get romantic only to find her defended by an enraged house cat. It would confirm your bachelorhood in a matter of seconds.

I used to have a cat that would ride on my shoulder while I rode my bike. Gave it up one day when a low hanging clothesline swept her off. I still carry the scars.

I always wanted an Ocelot. It's a beautiful member of the cat family, that's about twice as big as the average house cat.

I always wanted one, that is, until I read a story in a recent True Magazine by Daniel Mannix who does a terrific job relating his experiences with various animals and insects (He used to keep bats in his refrigerator and once he came through customs with an angry tarantula in his pocket.)

Seems the Ocelot has a rather nasty habit of marking everything with his scent so visiting Ocelots know it's his domain. I mean everything. The walls, your favorite chair, the new rug and like that.

The only other thing that's held me back from buying an Ocelot is the price. Starts at $200. That's a lot for an Ocelot.

Helped Barry Miller put some hay in Sunday. Bucking bales used to be one of my favorite summer chores as a boy. About half-way through the job I decided I'm not the boy I used to be.

When I got up Monday and couldn't move, I knew it.

I got one of Cliff Ferguson's pick-ups again. Gave me a different one this time. One with a heater and radio. Won't let me use the old red job anymore after I made fun of it.

Barry lives on Crawford Road. I think it is, and as we made our last trip I saw something that sent a chill up my back.

A pack of dogs. About six of them. Four nondescript dogs and two German Shepherds. All of them were big.

We came over a little hill and they were loping along the road about a quarter of a mile ahead of us. As we got closer, they scattered and took to the fields. The two shepherds had their winter coats on and looked too much like a couple of wolves to suit me.

One dog will rarely cause any trouble unless he's mean or hungry. Two dogs may wreck a little havoc but a pack of six I wouldn't trust any farther than a Viet Cong with a machine gun.

These same dogs at home may be docile, loving pets when at home but in a pack they get frenzied, ruthless and blood thirsty. They run deer, kill livestock and have been known to attack man.

I am usually very fond of dogs but if I saw a pack like that on my land I'd do my best to break them up or destroy them.

First Quarter Nap Snaps Hawks Win String, 70-66

After clawing their way to three straight victories, the Cass City Red Hawks let up for a moment and were defeated by Sandusky, 70-66, Friday at the Cass City High School gym. Cass City's victories were highlighted by aggressive rebounding on both offense and defense.

Against the Redskins, a full quarter expired before Cass City seemingly realized that Sandusky wasn't impressed by the Hawks' recent successes.

And by then it was too late. The Redskins charged into a 17-point lead at the end of the first quarter and Cass City was forced to play catch up the rest of the way. ... and they just weren't up to the task.

The biggest reason why they never did catch the visitors was a little, lightning quick guard named Robbie Elsholz.

Time after time he brought the ball down, eluded his man and either scored or set up a Sandusky basket.

Even with all of these heroics by Elsholz, the Hawks almost pulled it out of the fire with a last gasp rally.

In the second period they gained back seven of the points they lost in the opening stanza to trail by 10 at the intermission, 36-26.

The third period was a stand-off. Cass City creeping to within six points of Sandusky only to have the Redskins spurt to bring the margin up to 10 or 12 points. When the quarter ended, each team netted 18 points.

The Hawks were helped in the last quarter when two of the best visiting rebounders, Ed Kosanke and Charles Cork, left the game with five fouls, but were unable to overcome the 10-point deficit.

The rebounding statistics tell the story. Cass City garnered 11 offensive and 17 defensive rebounds while Sandusky gobbled up 13 of offensive and 38 defensive rebounds.

In addition to effectively controlling the boards, the visitors hit 56 per cent of their shots. Cass

City netted 40 per cent.

YELLOW JAUNDICE

Q. Are people who have yellow jaundice rejected as blood donors because their blood is impure?

A. Not necessarily. However, they usually are rejected as a precautionary measure. Jaundice (yellowing of the skin) can be due to various causes, ranging from virus infection (which could be transmitted to another person via blood transfusion) to simple obstruction of the bile passage in the liver. Even so, it is best to avoid even the slightest risk of mishap that may result from transfusing with the blood of a person having a history of jaundice of any type.

CANCER NOT TRANSMITTED BY CONTACT

Q. If a man has cancer and his wife becomes pregnant, can the disease be transmitted to the wife or the unborn child?

A. No.

Q. Can a person get mange from a dog?

A. Authorities state that in rare instances humans can contract a scabies-like infection by contact with domestic animals suffering from "sarcoptoid mange" or "scab."

Politicos Refuse Unpopular Tax Revision in Election Year

Pass the Buck
Official record has now been set down: There will be no attempt at fiscal reform in this election-year legislative session.

This comes somewhat as a surprise only in that it implies Gov. George Romney has, in part, given in to what he refused to admit last week: The fact that lawmakers have no inclination to make themselves unpopular unless absolutely necessary.

Last year, memory recalls easily, the Governor pushed hard to convince the Democratic majority that action should be taken on fiscal reform despite the strong surplus in the treasury.

Main argument voiced against it, at least openly, was that the Governor's proposals, as the Democrats saw them, were not equitable. It was only in private conversations that many legislators would admit they didn't plan to vote for any tax revision plan.

Now Romney has come to the position where lawmakers have maintained since the Swainson administration days when revenue income started the upturn.

"We still need tax reform as we have in former years," said Romney. "The only difference is that we do not need additional revenue at this time."

Even with the rising cost of government expected to boost the spending budget well over the $900 million mark in the coming fiscal year, only a sharp split in the economy could keep Michigan from maintaining a sizeable surplus.

The bipartisan announcement of a no-tax session this year probably put many lawmakers at ease. Another gubernatorial push similar to last year's could have put incumbent Republicans in a tight spot in an election year when all strength is needed.

What's Coming?

What can you look for in the new legislative session? One package certain to get heavy emphasis from several corners is a group of traffic safety proposals.

Why? Partly because the estimated cost of traffic accidents among Michigan's 4 million motorists has now reached the $400 million mark annually, and partly because in each of the past two years more than 2,000 people have been killed on state highways.

If these statistics are a little difficult to fathom, look at it this way: Autos damaged in 1965 accidents would more than cover bumper to bumper, all four lanes of I-96 from Detroit to Muskegon and all four lanes of U.S. 127 and 27 from Jackson north to the Mackinac Bridge.

State Police, the State Safety Commission, Michigan State University's Traffic Safety Center, the Secretary of State and Governor will all be pushing hard for several facets of traffic safety legislation introduced in past years but not passed.

An increase in the present fee for the driver's license likely will be part of the package, as will centralization of the licensing procedure under a state agency.

Strengthening the present driver education program in the schools is being pushed. Specialists also feel it would be wise to require driver training for all new license applicants, not just those 18 and under as at present.

A 17-year-old minimum age and a requirement that new drivers use their license for 90 days only in the presence of another licensed driver also will be proposed.

One very interesting part of the traffic safety program has been tried once or twice and can be expected again this year.

That is the stipulation that motorists 65 years and older have a physical examination every time their license must be renewed. Some traffic safety experts say this arbitrary age is just a beginning that actually a physical should be required of every driver.

It is interesting to note that Pennsylvania did just this a few years back. Some 8 million motorists were licensed in that state when the law requiring physicals of every driver was enacted.

Closest statistics available show about one million of these motorists either sent their licenses in to the state or allowed them to expire rather than undergo the physical.

Cost of Knowledge

Hue and cry over the fall, 1965 raise in student fees at the University of Michigan might be seen in better perspective if parents with high school children checked the college information directories.

The books show the Ann Arbor institution now ranks high among the 10 state colleges and universities at $348 for the school year in tuition and fees for Michigan residents. This does not include housing, books and other extras.

Lowest of the Michigan schools is Ferris at $275. Michigan State and Wayne State charge $324 and $312, respectively, and the others charge $300.

But even at these rates, the various Michigan institutions compare very favorably on the basic cost factor with other colleges and universities across the country with similar academic standings.

File Now for Two Farm Programs

Farmers may file applications for participation in the 1966 wheat and feed grain programs beginning Jan. 24, according to George Schlan, County ASCS Office Mgr.

Notices of basic program information have been mailed to operators of all established county wheat and feed grain farms.

The sign-up for both programs is being held at the same time and will end April 15.

The 1966 programs are voluntary and similar to those of 1965.

Participation is necessary for price support loans on wheat and feed grains.

Cropland Program

Eligibility requirements for participation in the 1966 Cropland Adjustment Program have been outlined by Mike Singer, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

Observing that the program was designed to help farmers divert cropland from surplus production to conservation uses under long-term agreements - five to 10 years - the chairman said that participants would receive adjustment payments calculated to replace income from the crops which would otherwise be produced on the land.

Most farms are eligible to take part in the CAP.

The local ASC committee chairman said that full information is available at the Tuscola - ASCS County Office, located at 852 South Hooper Street, Caro, Michigan. Hours are from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p. m., Monday through Friday.

Presbyterians Name Church Officers

Members of the First Presbyterian Church heard reports for the past year and elected members to fill vacancies on the church boards at the annual congregational meeting in the church dining room Sunday afternoon.

Elected to three-year terms as ruling elders were George Cole, Edward Golding Sr. and Clinton Law. Three members elected to the board of deacons were Mrs.
George Cook, Gaylord Lapeer and William Schram.

Officers elected for one-year terms included: Mrs. Meredith
Auten, local mission treasurer;
Orion Cardew, general mission treasurer; Agnes Milligan, recording treasurer; Barbara Starmann, youth treasurer; Joan Cole, assistant youth treasurer; Mrs. Alfred Goodall Jr., Clarence Coupar and Harry Little, members of nominating committee; James Bauer, Richard Wallace, Curtis Hunt and Frederick Auten, members of budget committee; David MacRae, mimeographer, and Miles Profit,
assistant mimeographer.

Mrs. Lorn Hillaker, treasurer of the memorial fund, reported purchase of new robes for the junior and senior choirs and the gift of a letter in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Milligan. Miss Agnes Milligan, treasurer of the church and manse improvement fund, reported redecorating of the church basement in 1965.

At a meeting of the church corporation prior to the congregation meeting, C. M. Wallace was elected resident agent and four trustees were elected: Robert Fischer, Chester Muntz, Harold

Perry and Mrs. Donald Reid.

It was announced that a coffee hour at noon next Sunday would honor the Gerald Stroupe family, who are leaving soon to move to Farmington, where Mr. Stroupe will be an administrative officer of the Plymouth plant of Evans Products Company.

The officers elected Sunday will be formally installed at the 11
a. m. service Jan. 30, reports Dr.
Marion Hosteller, pastor.

Bean Growers Set

Meeting at Reese

The Michigan Bean Growers Marketing Cooperative is holding a meeting of members and friends Tuesday, January 25, in the Gul-livar Room at the Reese Elementary School at 1:30 p. m., according to Paul Nagy, association vice-president and director from Tuscola County.

Nagy stated that although the meeting is for Tuscola County members and members from the east side of Saginaw County, all bean growers are invited to attend.

Discussion at the meeting will center around the price situation on the 1965 crop, current status of the association, and plans for an expanded membership campaign.

Nagy stated that many bean growers felt that a strong grower bargaining association was not needed in a short crop year. However, Nagy pointed out, the highest posted board price so far on 1965 Navy beans was $8.90 per cwt.

A strong grower marketing association could legally have set a floor price for this short crop at parity level or around $9.50 per cwt. Controlled sale of beans to elevators could have maintained a uniform high price to growers without putting any burden on elevators, processors, or consumers, Nagy added.

He urges all bean growers to attend this meeting.

Methodists Slate

moral values.

The second part of the evening will be spent in discussing a statement on race relations issued by Bishop Dwight Loder which was sent to all Michigan Methodist churches.

All members and friends are cordially invited to attend.
