Of Son's Death

A rumor that was widespread enough to merit investigation by at least one daily paper was squelched Tuesday when Mrs. Mary Pasieczny reported that her son did not die in Viet Nam. I talked to Kazimier at Fort

Bragg, N.C., and he was very much alive and curious as to how such a story started. His commanding officer would like to know, also, Mrs. Pasieczny said. Kazimier is doing weil in the service. He took his basic at Fort Knox, Ky., and followed it with an advanced training course at Fort Leonard Wood. He recently graduated from a paratroop school at Fort Benning, Ga., and is now serving at Fort Bragg, N.C.

According to his mother, Pasieczny expects to remain at Fort Bragg until June when he is scheduled for overseas combat

Gagetown Still Without Candidates For Three Posts

The Village of Gagetown is having trouble finding someone to fill the posts of clerk and treasurer now filled by Mrs. Dorothy Beachy.

When I first started the job paid $250 a year. The pay is now $600 yearly and we still can't find anyone to take it, says the retiring Mrs. Beachy. There is just too much work for the money allowed today, she said.

Besides the clerk and treasurer jobs, the village is also without a candidate for assessor.

Other offices are unopposed. Elery Sontag is a candidate for village president. Incumbent Roy La-Fave did not choose to run. Trustees seeking election are:

SAFE CRACKERS—Clark Erla, Erla Food Center and Meat Packing Co. employee, holds the door of one of two safes broken open Saturday morning by thieves who used high speed drills and pry bars to

Safecrackers Steal Cash, Merchandise at Erla's Store

Cass City and Bad Axe State Police continue to check out leads but as of Tuesday had been unable to come up with the identity of thieves who broke into Erla's Feod Center and Meat Packing Company early Saturday morning and made off with almost $500 in cash.

The culprits smashed open two safes and wreaked other damage which Erla officials stated would cost about $2,000 to replace.

The break-in, the fourth in the store's history, was discovered at 6:30 Saturday morning by Richard Eria, co-owner of the firm, when he came to work. He notified police immediately after finding the store's outside office door open.

Entry into the plant was made through a boiler room door which the thieves pried open and tore

Fowlerville Fire System Shares Cost, Pleases All

The fire department in the village of Fowlerville has originated a system for serving its area that has won acceptance from everyone it serves, reports Dick Rudnicki, publisher of the Fowlerville Review and also a member of the fire department.

The department is run by a board that includes a representative of each of the five townships served. . . . in practice this has been the supervisor, although it does not have to be, Rudnicki said.

Each of the townships pays a small yearly fee plus a share of the annual depreciation. At the end of the year the fire board meets. The total costs of the department are computed and the total number of fire runs compiled. The fire runs are divided into find out the cost per run. Using this figure each township is then charged for the actual number of fire runs that they had during the year, Rudnicki explained. And this factor is what is making the program work. Every area served knows that it is paying only for the actual protection received, Rudnicki concluded. Local System

The Elkland Township Fire Department operates under a system where surrounding townships pay a fee based on sections and the village pays for all of the costs connected with the housing of the equipment. Elkland Township (including the village) pays for any new equipment needed. The department is manned by village volunteers. Based on the number of fires last year, fees charged under a new system this year would be enough to pay all of the current operating expenses of the department but would have no affect on the money spent by the village for (Chronicle photo) housing the equipment.

off its hinges. They made their way into the store interior through a window into the sausage department of the packing plant. Using high speed drills and pry-bars, the thieves broke into two safes, file cabinets and desk drawers. The thieves even core open towel racks in their search for the store's funds. Contents of the desk and file cabinet were strewn over the office floor. A restroom exterior wall, facing into the office, was chopped open, presumably because the burglars thought a safe was concealed behind the wall.

The store reported to village police that $462 in cash was taken, along with 15 cartons of cigarettes, six pairs of gloves and a man's green insulated jacket. Erla stated that the thieves "had to know the layout of the building because of the way they came through the plant." He stated that he assumed there were at least three persons involved because three bottles of orange juice nad been opened and partially drunk. State Police, however, in a report filed on the break-in, stated a neighbor saw two men park a car on Brooker Street, about a block from Erlas at about 1:00 a.m. and walk toward the store. The descriptions of the men are being checked out.

From the Lditor's Corner

In area high school sports nothing has caused as much comment this year than the stalling game Cass City played recently against Frankenmuth.

Several area daily papers commented on the game in which Cass City failed to score a field goal and last week, Pete Waldmeir, Detroit News columnist, devoted about half a column to it.

Some of the articles have been critical, Waldmeir's was not because he interviewed Coach John Oswald and learned that he was playing to win, not just keep the score down. Other games of a like ilk drew his condemnation.

Most of the fans are against this type game, but the persons who should know, the coaches, seem to have placed their stamp of approval on it.

Since Cass City tried the stall. several other teams have gone to control ball offenses, including Bad Axe and Sandusky, when they play the high flying Eagles.

The Haires attended the Michigan State Press Association banquet Saturday night and sat with State Treasurer Allison Green from Kingston.

Green now rents an apartment just outside of Lansing, although he still owns his farm in Tuscela County. I asked him how he liked to be without the powerful job as Speaker of the House, stepping over to the highly important, but less politically influential post, of treasurer. After 16 years in the House J capitol. Stranger things have happened. While Green's heart is in politics. . .the two children still at home have their hearts in Kingston. They attend a brand new suburban school just outside of Lansing which has all the educational advantages of a new modern large facility.

Despite this, the children would rather be in tiny Kingston with their friends.

Perhaps if you interviewed the you would find that they would rather dad were still a farmer-teacher than a politician, Green concluded.

Many farmers are getting out of the dairy business because a herd of cows demand twice daily sevenday-a-week attention. Without help, it's a job that keeps the farmer tied at home almost constantly.

If new research now underway at Michigan State University is successful, dairy farming promises to get worse, not better. Instead of the traditional twice a day milking, the University is experimenting with four times a day milking . . . experts think that the yield will increase about 35 per cent under this type program and are studying the effects on the cows.

Nothing is planned to determine the effect on the farmer.

Villagers in Minor Accidents

A hill that obscured their vision and slippery road conditions contributed to an accident involving cars driven by a Cass City man and a Caro driver, Sunday, Jan. 30, in Kingston.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Gary D. Jones, 26, Cass City, and Joseph B. Seiland. 16. Caro, collided at the intersection of State and River streets in Kingston.

Kingston Main Street Widening Due This Year

Bids for a widening project on M-46 in the village of Kingston will be taken in April, the Department of State Highways reports.

Bid taking on the $164,000 project, scheduled orginally for August, 1966, was postponed until September when federal funds available for construction of this type were exhausted.

Traffic on M-46 both east and west Kingston will be detoured through the 1966 construction season because of other projects.

To avoid prolonging the detour into 1967 because of the widening project in Kingston, State Highway engineers have decided to advance the project so that it can be completed this year, and to forego federal participation in the cost, State Highway Director Howard E. Hill said.

Seek Way to Protect Rights Of State's Criminal Victims

Crime Pays

A "unique" idea in government activity was suggested last year by Attorney General Frank J. Kelley. At least it sounded unique Kelley proposed Michigan should consider some method of helping persons who were the victims of violent crimes. He first proposed it at a conference on crime attended by law enforcement officials from throughout the state.

Since that time, the Legislature has reconvened and two bills have been introduced along this line.

One proposal would provide financial help to those victims of violent crimes who need it. It would require convicted criminals to contribute to a fund for this

A similar measure would allow local units to set up funds to compensate citizens injured while trying to prevent a crime or capture a criminal.

The notion behind both proposals is the question of the government's liability for failure to completely protect its citizens from criminals.

Unique as it sounded, it turned out Kelley's idea was not quite original. A survey by a national magazine shows Great Britain has had such a compensation program in effect for some time, having already paid some $31,000 to victims of robbery, rape or assault.

Here in the U.S., California has recently enacted a financial aid program for crime victims. And Michigan Rep. Thomas G. Ford of Grand Rapids reports that a similar plan is seriously being considered in New York state.

Ford is the author of one of the plans now being considered here. His view is "No crime victim would be made rich by this plan, but it would assure that he wouldn't be left destitute either.'

Carryover Helps

One valuable effect can be noted in the Constitutional provision for the carry-over of legislation from the first to the second year of the legislative biennium.

This is the first year the proposal has been effective. It means, simply, that any legislation introduced last year which was not disposed of can be considered this

In effect, if wisely used, it can speed up much of this year's session work.

Since every year much legislation introduced has been proposed before, the carry-over provision introduced last year is already in printed form and can get committee consideration to reach the floor early in the session.

Prior to effectiveness of this provision, much early-session time was spent without result. Bills took time to get in printed form, which is required for full legislative consideration. Often a month or more of the session was spent doing little, or nothing, of value.

Surely, committee sessions must still be held early in the session on new proposals, but with the carry-over legislators should be able to get into the floor discussion stage much earlier. The work load of actual session time can be spread out better, rather than having one or two weeks of day and night meetings immediately preceding the adjournment time. One such early move has already occurred. A proposal to retive importance of this bill in the current session, but the idea has been widely discussed lately and there are differences of opinion on how toll reduction should be done.

Left to consider late in the session, the Bridge bill could easily get lost in the shuffle again. Getting to the floor early in the session gives it a much better chance for full debate and well-considered

Happy Times Twelve million people, more than the state's current population, are expected to come into Michigan this year to visit, travel, fish, hunt, and participate in the myriad other recreational activities which make Michigan the "Water, Winter Wonderland."

Residents throughout the state have already planned nearly 150 special activities for these visitors, ranging from ski jumping contests to county fairs, golf shows, harvest festivals and art exhibits.

For the walker, there's the Labor Day trek across the Mackinac Bridge. For the bicycle rider, there's a big race in the Tawas area. For the canoe paddler, there's a contest on the Pere Marquette River from Ludington. The antique buff can find shows to arouse his interest at several places. There is a motorcycle hill climb, more than one baseball tournament, several boat races, and, of course, uncounted garden and home shows. Once again, in 1966, Michigan is ready to entertain the interests of every traveling individual

With the $5 bounty off its head, the red fox of Michigan has regained its rightful status as a Grade-A game animal which is worth going after for the pure pleasure of sport. And no matter how Br'er Reynard is hunted these winter days, its pursuers get their share of outdoor kicks pitting themselves against this handsome wise guy of the wild. Shown above are the ways in which sportsmen make fox hunting the exciting, fun-filled action it is.

Suggest Day Care Center for Retarded

A day care center for the severely retarded may open in the county as early as April 1, according to Arnold Krumnauer of Vassar, who is chairman of a special organizational committee.

According to Krumnauer, the Department of Mental Health has notified area legislators that the program for Tuscola County has been approved and that as soon as final organizational details can be worked out, the program will be started.

The program, which is financed 100 per cent by state mental health will serve mentally handichildren who are too severely retarded to qualify for special education programs.

Tuscola county's day care center, which will operate 12 months a year, will be one of several which have been opened under the auspices of the Department of Mental Health throughout the

The program has developed as a result of meetings held at the courthouse in which the problem was discussed with interested Persons meeting the qualifications may address their application to Rudy Petzold, care of The Advertiser, Caro, Michigan.

The program will be operated in the training center at the Carpenter School, which has been the site for Tuscola County Retarded Children's Association programs the past few years. The Retarded Association will act as the contract agency providing facilities.

Up to a dozen children will be served by the first unit of the day care center. As the need increases, a second room may be opened in another area of the county.

A second meeting of interested persons, at which time a board of directors will be elected and final organization will take place, will be neid at 8 p.m. Feb. 10 at the supervisors' room of the courthouse.

Members of the interim organizational committee include Arnold Krumnauer, Vassar farmer and intermediate board of education member; Charles Ramsey, director of special education; Howard Clement, Koylton township supervisor; Vernon Henrichs, Retarded Children's Association official, and Rudy Petzold, Caro newspaper

Hawks Split Pair Of Cage Contests

Sparked by a rugged defense, over the ball without shooting 27 Cass City whipped North Branch for the second time this year Tuesday night at Cass City High School. The score was 72-58.

The game pushed forward another candidate for a starting position on the team as Alian Zawilinski turned in what Coach John Oswald called a fine defensive and good floor game in his first start of the season.

The Hawks went into the front early in the game and led throughout the contest. At the end of the first period the score was 18-13. By halftime the margin was 39-27.

Cass City had three players in scored za points, Jun wahers, 17, and Dave Asher, II. As a team tney out-rebounded the visitors 61-

Cass City dropped its second game of the year to Caro Friday and Coach John Oswald said that he thought the team's derensive effort sagged against the Tigers. We haven't played as well in the last two games as we did in the previous three, Oswald continued, and that's one reason why we dropped the decision against Caro.

The Tigers defeated the Hawks on their spacious floor, 84-63. The story of the game is wrapped up in two vital statistics only 60 shots as compared to 86 for Caro and hit only 17 times from the field for a miserable 28 per cent average. Caro hit 36 field goals for 42 per cent. Both clubs hit 70 per cent of their free throws. If the Hawks are not better than this Friday night when league leading Frankenmuth comes to town, it promises to be a long night for Cass City fans. Caro led all the way against the

Hawks and outscored Cass City in every quarter. The tight Caro de-Jense caused Cass City to turn

Bright Spot

The only bright spot of the night for Cass City was posted in the preliminary game. The Cass City JV team shot down the Caro JV's 64-49. John Maharg scored 29 and cathered in 15 rebounds. Ron Weippert netted 15 points and snared 19 rebounds.

Deford Brownies Make Bird Feeders

The Deford Brownie troop 88 made bird feeders and placed them in trees around the Deford Town Hall. Each Brownie donated materials and feed for the feeders. This completes the second part of their "Promise in Action". Each girl was to carry this Promise to her home by saving the family Christmas tree and placing it in the yard with feed tied on it for the birds.

The Brownies have started their next project, which is learning to knit, and are working on pot holders, according to Mrs. Harold Deering, assistant leader.

It Was So Cold My Beard Tingled

By Dave Kraft

Men! Ever shave in your sweat

Until last Friday morning, 1 could have answered that question with a simple "no," but now that you've asked, let me tell you

Last Thursday night, just before going to bed, I noticed that the mercury was falling and the house was taking on a decidedly cold texture. I threw a couple of pieces of wood into the fireplace (which is there mostly for appearance) and headed for the basement to check the oil gauge.

The gauge registered just under a quarter of a tank. That oughta last until morning and then I'll order some more, says I to myself. At exactly 4:15 the next morning, I discovered that (A) the gauge lied and (B) it wasn't enough to last until in the morning.

Did you ever wake up and you're awake right now? I think what woke me up was my breath condensing on my beard. . .you know the tinkling sound it makes.

I jumped out of bed and ran downstairs to the thermostat. Giving the dial a twist, I stood there in knocking knees and shaking hands waiting for the reassuring click of the furnace starting. There was no click.

I ran back upstairs and shook my wife. "The fire's gone out!" I chattered, "Mmmff," she mmmffed through her sleepiness. "What?" "Mmmff." "That's what I thought you said."

The trouble with my wife is that she never panics at the right time. I finally made her realize the gravity of our situation and, slapping each other on the arms to keep warm, we ran through the house scrounging up extra blankets and heavy coats.

Piling these on top of the children and on our bed, we settled into almost-warmth of our covers. But sleep wasn't to be mine. I kept waking up.

I kept waking up just to see if I could wake up. You see, I have this intense fear of freezing to death in my bed. . .had it ever since I was a kid. What bothers me most is how would they ever get my suit on if I were frozen? Who wants to be buried in his pajamas?

Getting up time came and the alarm went off but in the cold it sounded more like a death rattle. I thrust my arm out from under the covers and, placing my thumb against the face of the clock and my forefinger against the shut-off knob, strangled it into stillness.

I lay there, thinking: "You know what it's going to be like out there, don't you?" "Yeah." "It's a lot nicer right here." "But what about my job and breakfast and the kids (not necessarily in that order)?" "Like I said, it's a lot nicer here."

Steeling myself, I leapt. . .lept . . .leaped. . .jumped out of bed into my clothes and made a mad dash for downstairs. I grabbed my jacket, flipped on the oven for heat and went into the basement to cut some wood for the fireplace.

I found later that I got a lot warmer chopping wood for the fireplace than I did from the fire in the fireplace.

After calling for some fuel oil I charged back upstairs to the bathroom to shave. When I turned on the hot water and ice cubes came out, I decided to leave my sweat shirt on. Besides, shaving around this beard is no job for a set of shaky hands.

About the only good thing to come out of the whole miserable experience was the fact that my wife had to snuggle up to me to keep warm. With this thought in mind, I just may turn the fire off every night.

Got a letter from Sp-4 John Herhalt (He writes his "J's" just like John Hancock signed the Declaration of Independence) somewhere in Germany. It was dated Jan. 23 and I got it Jan. 25. How do you explain that?

John writes: Dear Dave--Please find 10 cents as part of my humble contribution enclosed, along with a package of C-ration coffee, plastic spoon and an envelope filled with sincere hope that visions of a coffee "wormer" in Konrads comes true. (We got one, John.)

"I find your story incredible and unbelievably true and as in the past, true of the Dave Kraft Drive of the Month tradition. (He's been reading too many of these col-

SUGAR SUBSTITUTES

Q. I recently read that scientists have found sugar substitutes harmful. Is this true?

A. The only recent comment with which we are familiar pertaining to sugar substitutes originated from the Sugar Research Foundation. The Foundation referred to an experimental study which showed that cyclamates (sugar substitutes) had an adverse effect on the growth of rats. The animals were apparently fed huge quantities of the artificial sweetener. Adverse effects can be induced in animals and humans by excess dosages of almost any substance-ordinary table salt, for example. The Food and Drug Administration, the Food Protection Committee of the National Academy of Science-National Research Council, and the American Medical Association have stated that, cyclamates as now used are safe.

TICKLE

Q. Are young babies ticklish? A. Probably not. Psychologists say that the first clear evidence of a response to tickle is seen in children of about 3½ years. Ticklishness is common in children from 4 years on.

Certified Seed Growers Slate Annual Meet at A-F School

cola County Association of Certified Seed Growers will be held Thursday, Feb. 10, in the Akron-Fairgrove School beginning at 1:30 p.m., according to Harold Metcalf of Fairgrove, association president.

The board of directors has arranged for a program which should be of interest to all certified seed growers. One of the topics to be discussed will be the production of several hundred acres of a two-rowed variety of malting barley called "Betzes". Present to discuss this will be representatives of the Michigan State University Farm Crops Department and the Rickel Malting Company of Detroit.

Herb Pettigrove, secretary of the Michigan Crop Improvement Association for a number of years, will be retiring July 1 of this year. He will meet with the group this year to bring it up to date on any problems or questions that have to do with the certified seed production in Tuscola County.

The production of certified seeds represents a sizeable industry in Tuscola County agriculture. The following are some figures that may be of interest to county certified seed growers. Acres and variety of certified field crops grown in Tuscola County in 1955 by regular standard growers: Sanilac beans, 950 acres: Seaway beans, 69 acres: Gratiot beans, 1,851 acres; Genesee wheat, 702 acres; Avon wheat, 110 acres; Garry oats, 176 acres; Au Sable oats, 250 acres; Rodney oats, 56 acres; Coachman oats, 117 acres; Larker barley, 91 acres: Moore barley, 18 acres; potatoes, 117 acres, and corn, 556 acres. In 1965 Tuscola County farmers grew a total of 5,063 acres of certified seeds. This does not include total of 3,013 acres. The total acreage of 8,076 devoted to the production of certified seed in Tuscola County is on the increase.

Why do people with hard-to-heat rooms turn to electric heat?

It's pure and simple

Electric heat is the clean, modern heat—no flame, no fumes. It's a snap to install-costs less, too-because it's more compact and needs no flue. And only electric heat is 100% efficient; the heat is created right where it's used. It's also economical. You can buy an attractive, low-operating-cost unit for as little as $35-$40 (plus thermostat and installation). And we're talking about a unit that can turn a 12' x 20' polar region into a tropical delight. Just dial the warmth you want, and you get it. Give us a call. We'll send an Edison Heating Specialist to discuss equipment, installation, and operating cost with you. No obligation, of course.

Letter to Editor

Mr. John Haire Cass City Chronicle

Cass City, Michigan Dear John:

I am very glad to hear, by way of the Editor's Corner, that you enjoyed the motion picture, "Cheyenne Autumn" on our giant screen at the Cass. I, like you, was a little disappointed that our favorite star, James Stewart, didn't have a longer role in this terrific outdoor adventure. Stewart's part may not have been long, but it was one of the many highlights of the movie. In our advertising on radio, and 6 newspapers, we at no time stressed that James Stewart was the main star, but we did say that there were 10 of hollywood's biggest stars in the picture. On our marquee, we have room for only a couple of stars' names that are in a picture and, since James Stewart and Carroll Baker are favorites in our area, we used their names. "Cheyenne Autumn" is a wonderful picture that was enjoyed by many many Thumb families. We try to only bring to our big screen, the motion pictures that everyone wants to see.

In closing, I'll use my favorite saying-- "See you at the movies." Sincerely:

Plymouth Belvedere is roomier, longer, wider, heavier-bigger than its chief competition.

Plymouth sales have more than doubled in the last 3 years.

The all-new, mid-size Belvedere is only one beautiful reason why our hot sales pace continues (see below). Another is Chrysler Corporation's standard of engineering excellence-something so obvious you feel it your first test drive. Your Plymouth Dealer can give you many more reasons for going Plymouth.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

I wasn't paying no attention last Wednesday to the weather but it woulan't suprise me none if the Groundhog went back in his hole whether he saw his shadow or not. He probable stuck his head out and took a quick look around at some of the goings on and decided to hibernate fer the duration. If a newspaper blowed over his hole and he took a look at some of the items I've been reading, he probable packed up Mama Groundhog and all the littleuns and headed fer the South Seas,

I brung this item up at the country store Saturday night and Clem Webster said he had quit worrying about the Groundnog and had started worrying about wimmen. He reported his old lady announced her Ladies Aid Society had elected a "statistician" at their last meeting. He said fer the life of him he couldn't figger what they wanted with one of them things. He said the only two places he ever knowed they had these varmets was on the payroll of insurance companies and the Guvernment. Leastwise, he allowed, them two was ferever giving out figgers on how many people was gitting killed, ways they was libe! to git killed, while the Guvernment was using the same figgers to show how many millions was libel to need public aid.

Zeke Grubb broke in to say these figgerheads was marvels. He pointed out they could tell long you was going to live, how much a baby owed in taxes afore it was borned, and how much taxes it was libel to pay afore it died.

None of the feliers, Mister Editor, could figger out what a "statistician" would do at a Ladies Aid Society meeting. Ed Dooittie final figgered it out that she would control the static at the discussion about money and projects. If they was anything, allowed Ed, that keeps wimmen raising static it was money, how to git it, and how to spend it.

Bug Hookum was of the opinion they probable added a "statistician" so's everbody would have a title. He claimed wimmen would work a heap harder if they had a title to go with the job. He reported since his old lady was made secretary of her club she ain't been home more'n one day

Personal, Mister Editor, they ain't no different from the menfolks in this matter. I was reading in the papers where the city manager of some place reported they had been a improvement in the morale of his sanitation department on account of a new listing on the payroll. Everbody, he said, knowed that "maintenance and custodial personnel" gits a heap more work done than plain jani-
