Area Jobs Plentiful As Schools, Cities Drain Local Labor Pool

A labor pinch that is causing headaches for both Cass City industry and business, and seems to be a trend for the state, received national coverage last week when President Lyndon Johnson singled out the Great Lakes region as an area of labor shortage. To see just how scarce labor is on the local scene, a check of Cass City's industry and major businesses was taken and both factions agreed on one point. . . there is definitely a labor problem. Although the problem is annoying, it has so far not been critical. Its effects on the industrial scene have manifested themselves in a loosening of hiring standards and a widening of the hiring area. In the business stream, store owners complain not so much of a shortage of employable persons as of persons who will work full time.

Scapegoat for the problem in most instances was the auto industry which, while doing so much for the state's economy, is continually draining off the cream of the area's labor force with top wages and countless benefits.

Even that new labor raw material, the graduating student, isn't unaware of the money to be made in the auto industry, as a check on last year's graduating class showed.

Industrial Picture

Largest local employers are General Cable and Walbro with Cable well in the lead with a total employment of just over 600 persons (In January 1963, Cable's total employment was 250 persons with "300 expected by the end of the year.")

At Cable, Personnel Director Al Torpie painted a bleak labor picture by reporting that there is a "shortage of people we want. We expect it to become acute in the next few weeks with the farmers returning to the farms, . .as you know, we woo the farmers in the winter.'

Biggest Problem "Our biggest problem is the competition from the auto industry. The people are all going to Saginaw, Flint and Pontiac," ье remarked.

More forceful in his condemnation of the auto industries' labor thefts was Bassett Manufacturing's Ed Golding.

"The biggest problem is the pirating of employees by Pontiac Motors and the Flint plants. We get somebody trained and phhtt! he's off to the city." Bassett employ's about 15 persons. Back at Walbre, Harold Izzard.

personnel director, reported that with a total employment of 161 persons, not including its subsidiaries, Walbro was experiencing no shortage of help "because we're near the end of our season. In at the time of the January survey the middle of the winter we did was 30 persons, have some trouble."

Lower standards To compensate for this "trouble," Waibro, as did virtually every industrial employer, large and small, lowered its standarus, "We had to lower our standards to some extent and were torced to take what we could find. lzzard. At one of the smaller industries, the official admitted that his firm "had to put up with a little more absenteeism than normally. Three years ago we'd have let them go, but now we think twice."

At Evans Products in Gagetown, K. R. Nye painted a glowing picture by stating that "Since January, we've had all the help we need." The firm employs about 220 persons. In 1963, employment

we're getting a little fussier." 1 wilight Zone In the twilight zone between the industrial labor situation and the business firm needs sits Erla

Meat Packing, which, according to Richard Erla, is experiencing a. "shortage of qualified men. We've instituted a training program." Erla's problem, however, is not because of the theft of help. ("Help leaving is hot a problem with us") but is one of expansion. Erla explained that the problem is "expansion on the wholesale end."

He attributed this to the state's the right type of help. Every busicompulsory meat inspection program under which the state pays

"This gives us a chance to increase kill and production and to sell anywhere in the state." Business Reports

Getting deeper into the business clime, a check at Bryant's Gamble Store revealed that "help is real hard to come by.'

"There are plenty of part-time workers. ....those who are looking for something to do. . .not out to make a living. They want something to pass the time away."

The firm hires mostly women and owner Lloyd Bryant remarked that "with men you run into something different. They're the breadwinner and most are out to get all they can get."

Backing Bryant was Bill Kritz-Guidance Counsellor George Elman at Kritzman's, Inc. "Yes, there is a shortage of help and of liott gave figures on Cass City

Financed by Federal Aid

Summer School To Stress Reading

Pending approval from state and Federal agencies, Cass City Public Schools will offer a free developmental reading program this summer to eligible kindergarten through sixth grade students, Board of Education members were informed Monday night by Supt. Donald Crouse.

The summer school will be paid for by Federal funds under the Elementary Secondary Education Act. Cass City is entitled to $18,-113.84 under the act.

The figure is based on the number of economically deprived children in the district as determined by Aid to Dependent Children records.

Crouse was quick to point out, however, that the ADC records have little to do with the selection of the estimated 100 children who will take part in the program. The ADC records are merely a basis for allotting the monies, he stated.

The program will be similar to a summer program offered the past two summers. Besides developmental reading, the half-day sessions will probably offer some physical education and some arts and crafts. Cass City nas "76 students who are eligible on paper," according to 1960 ADC records and the figure is expected to go to about 100. Students for the program will be selected on teacher recommendation and through testing.

tracts were discussed in a long executive session following the relatively short regular session,

Nine teachers were put on teacher tenure and 12 were given second year probationary contracts. Probationary contracts are given for the first two years and on the third year, teachers are either placed on tenure or given a third year probationary contract. Placed on tenure were: Martha Butcher, Leola Retherford, Barbara Stickle, Geraldine Tibbits, Ruth Esau, Virginia Crawford, Ed Doerr. Robert Hirn, John Oswald, and Margo Izzard.

Given second year probationary contracts were: Nancy Hutchinson, Kay McCollum, Barbara Tuckey, Ron Bass, John Bifoss, Shirley Bifoss, Charmaine Fahrner, Linda Isbister, William Lemcke, John Madsen and Larry Todd.

Negotiations Continue Negotiations between the administration and the Teachers' Club on future contract policies are continuing but because it is time to start hiring new teachers, a starting salary of $5,300 was adopted. Crouse explained after the executive session the figure will be used to "employ teachers for the coming year." The board also gave the negotia-

Parking Switch Due

Main Street Meters Mulled

Parking meters, discussed off and on for 10 years, are again receiving the attention of village officials and businessmen. They were the topic of discussion Tuesday noon when the Rotary Club met at the New Gordon Hotel. Spurred by the switch to parallel parking on Main Street, many plans have been advanced for better parking in the community. This week a representative of the State Highway Department visited the community and reported that Main street parking lines would be repainted within two or three weeks if the weather remains mild, two-hour parking signs posted and the switch to parallel parking completed. An open discussion was led by Keith McConkey among businessmen present.

The problem as outlined by Rotarians boiled down to how to furnish off-street parking and how to pay for it.

Village President Lambert Alt-

This year's annual meeting of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, April 12, at Cass City High School promises to be of more than usual interest for members and guests attending. Chamber President James Ware announced this week that Max S. Smith, director of the office of community college cooperation, will be the principal speaker. Smith is directing the citizens* advisory committee in its efforts to provide a community college for the three-county area of Sanilac, Huron and Tuscola. The topic of his address will be "Meeting High School and Post-High School Education Needs in the Thumb Area of Michigan." As the title suggests, Smith will be talking about the need for a community college and is also expected to tell of the progress towards a school for the area.

Foreign Trade Of Farm Concern

"Little or nothing I grow ever goes overseas. So why should I be concerned with foreign agricultural trade?"

This is a myth that many Michigan farmers believe. They may hear that one out of every five acres of cropland in the U.S. is devoted to raising crops that go into foreign trade. But few, ever think that it could be anything from their farm.

Alfred Ballweg, Tuscola county agricultural agent, says farmers who raise pea beans, soybeans, wheat or corn, and who feed beef cattle may be involved in foreign agriculture shipments more than they know.

For many years much dried whole and skimmed milk has found its way to foreign ports. With Michigan a major dairy state, the agricultural agent says these markets could mean much to keep Michigan's dairy prices above those of some nearby states. But Ballweg says pea bean growers actually have the most at stake at keeping foreign trade going. In the 1964-65 marketing year, Michigan navy beans made up 48 per cent of the total IU. S. bean exports which went to 35 different countries

Lorn Smith, living west of Sandusky, burned down this old barn on his farm and replaced it with a small but effecient shed (right) he uses to house calves and machinery. The cost was less than $3,000.

Michigan State University agricultural engineers say many old, unused baros and sheds on some Michigan farms are both and "eyesore" and a fire and safety hazard.

They also say most farmers would find it more economical to make a "planned burning of old buildings rather than trying to remodel them.

The "planned burning" should be done when there is no wind, a low grass fire hazard, and someone is around to keep the fire from spreading. The local fire department should be alerted and may want to stand by.

Smith, a part-time farmer, who feeds out dairy calves for beef production, hooked a tractor into a couple of corners of the old dilapidated barn to break it down for better burning. He said some other old structures on the farm would also probably be replaced after they were burned or torn down.

Q. Do children actually experience pain when teething?

A. They may experience considerable discomfort, if not actual pain. The crupting tooth causes in-flammation of the overlying tissue, Instinctively the child seems to bite upon the irritated gum for relief. While the biting seems to help, it also increases the inflammation, and what was bad becomes worse. Teething may or may not be a medical problem (some doctors are not convinced that it is) but lots of parents with frazzled nerves have wished for a miracle drug to sooth the gums of a fretful, teething child,

SCARED TO DEATH?

Q. Is it possible to die of fright? A. Apparently so. An English doctor recently told of seeing a patient who was convinced that death was imminent. He was admitted to the hospital where oxygen and other supportive treatment measures were administered. The man died within the hour. An after-death examination revealed no abnormalities whatsoever. Attending doctors concluded that the man died of fright.

Answers appearing in these columns are of necessity brief and general and do not necessarily re-flect the opinion of all physicians. Rememberthe diagnosis and treatment of disease is the function of the patient's personal physician.

I was walking down the street the other day, whisting "That's The Day the Teddy Bears Have Their Picnic," when this joke suddenly popped into my mind. It comes from an old English movie. Old, like maybe 10 years old.

Seems there were these three brothers, "Foot," "Foot-Foot" and "Foot-Foot-Foot." Now these three were very close. They lived in the same house, worked at the same place and always did everything together.

One day, without any warning, "Foot" died. A few days later, as "Foot-Foot" and "Foot-Foot-Fuot" were leaving the funeral services, "Foot-Foot" was so overcome with emotion that he very nearly stepped off the curb into the path of a car.

He was pulled to safety by his brother who admonished, "For goodness sake, be careful. We've already got one Foot in the grave.

Boy, that group at General Cable is a testy lot. Ever since I mentioned that they need some magazines in their reading room they've been less than amiable.

When I walk into the reading room. . . . waiting room, the officials on the other side of the glass partition glower at me and cause me to be afraid to go into the main office.

Not only that, they've laid a trap for me. As I mentioned, every time I come in. the girl at the ticket window tells me to have a seat. Lately, every time I come in; there is only one seat available . . . under the display case of General Cable products. The chair itself is an ingeniously clever little item that is higher in the front than it is in the back. When you sit in it, it throws you back and you klunk your head on the display case.

Not only is this embarrassing, but the stars in your eyes make it difficult to read the latest issue of "Iron Age."

Now that I've completely alienated the General Cable hierarchy I can get to the crux of this item which is to personally thank Bill

Mercy no! :::::

If I may add a more serious note, this morning two early elementary youngsters, one in a red slicker and the other in a blue outfit, ran out in front of a car while crossing the street at the Chronicle intersection.

Only quick action by a pedestrian and safe driving by the driver prevented a serious accident. A clear-cut case of a lack of strong safety education by their parents. Could probably use a morning safety patrol here.

Michigan Mirror Select University Board Candidates With Great Care

Open Letter

An open letter to the State Democratic and Republican Party leaders:

Many months of deliberation and consultation have been spent picking the men to head your respective tickets in the fall election. Now is the time to give full consideration to another set of candidates for posts lower on the ballot but tremendously important to ali the people of Michigan. These are the nominees for the State Board of Education and the governing boards of the "Big Three" universities, Michigan, Wayne State and Michigan State. Many millions of dollars go through these four boards in the administration of education, which could well be considered one of Michigan's biggest businesses.

The State Board of Education alone sets policies and programs, and considers conditions and criteria involving nearly $600 million a year. This includes state and federal funds involving the education process from kindergarten through college.

The sheer volume of business administered by each of these boards demands competent, proven people. To have otherwise is to risk great loss in education and waste millions in tax money. No attempt is intended to point

the finger at present board members

It should be automatic that nomination to these boards is an honor and a privilege. It also carries terrific responsibility,

There have been instances, fortunately not very recently, when these nominations were the last to be made. The candidacy went to party workers who had been diligent for years and were due their 'reward."

This is fine, even today, if the deserving individual is competent. experienced and proven in something more involved than door-todoor canvassing, telephone solicitation, or giving teas. And if he understands his responsibilities and wants to serve the people of Michigan on a basis of principle rather than personal or party gain. Public Safeguard Scandal, or even the slightest hint of it, seems to have a strange attraction for state legislators. As watchdogs of the public interest, their tongues hang low at the thought of headlines awaiting the here who exposes the wrong-doing. In recent years, it seems the State Highway Department has come in for, perhaps, more than its share of scandal rumors.

Latest in the series was to be related by State Sen. S. Don Potter, Lansing Republican, serving his first term after a good many years observing the Capitol scene. Strong language was used before the scandal was to be disclosed. Soft language was used when Potter disclosed his "inside man," a highway department employe, had changed his mind about testifying voluntarily. One of the previous scandal searches into the highway unit ended the same way. Another took a completely different turn, which might well serve as a good example for future headline hunters: to save their breath. Within the past decade a Senator, no longer in office, proclaimed loud and long that he knew of irregularities, some perhaps involving fraud or other criminal offenses, going on in the department. A full Senate committee investigation ensued. Many months and a thick committee report later, this Senator changed his tune considerably.

Essence of the report was that with the millions of dollars and thousands of people involved, there were bound to be rumors of improprieties and irregularities. When all was said and done, however, the department was given a hearty pat on the back for the job it was doing.

Accident Claims

Even before all the money was collected to build Michigan's new Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund, the applications for collections were pouring in to the Secretary of State's office. Secretary of State James M.

Hare reported some 300 claims had been filed by motorists wronged by uninsured drivers. This was before the Feb. 28 deadline for auto registrations, when insured drivers paid $1 into the fund and uninsured motorists contributed $35.

By that time details for administering the new law had been worked out. It operates similarly to the procedure of collecting from an insurance company.

Motorists involved in an accident with an uninsured driver must give ail pertinent data about the crash to the state: people involved, police agency to whom it was reported, an accident scene diagram, etc

A claims adjuster takes over to negotiate a settlement, depending on the individual circumstances of each incident. If a settlement is impossible through negotiation, the case will be taken to court to determine damages.

Hare noted the fund operation was working even better than was anticipated in the early weeks. Only time will tell whether the $35 and $1 fees are sufficient to seitle claims against uninsured motorists or whether compulsory auto insurance legislation will be, the next step.

Corn growers will be interested in "Hybrids Compared, 1966" according to Alfred Ballweg, county extension agricultural agent. The Tuscola county agent says the Michigan State University extension publication compares the hybrid corn trials conducted throughout Michigan for the past three years with different varieties.

The free publication also gives farmers some suggestions on how to choose a corn hybrid and information regarding the rate of planting, maturity and best production methods to get high yields. Copies of the publication may be

Lester Atlas is the first characterization you encounter in the novel when the plot begins with Paperman and Atlas flying down of Norman Paperman, we can do to look over the hotel. Atlas is the sort of loud-mouthed, crude American portrayed so effectively in The Ugly American. About 90 per cent sound, he is a genius at smelling out the places where money can be made. While letting Paperman assume that Atlas might bank-roll the purchase of the hotel, > to arrange for the necessary cash from sources on the Island, letting the news spread without making any effort to stop it that the two men are in the hotel in partnership. This false belief haunts Paperman throughout the book. The principal portions of the novel have to do with just the opening days of Paperman's ownership of Gull Reef. One of the almost permanent residents of the hotel turns out to be a retired actress of an earlier day, Iris Tramm, with whom Paperman has a love affair of a few days standing before discovering that the Governor maintains the lady. Her advice to Paperman is excellent, as is her advice to his wife, who had undertaken to decorate the hotel. Henny, Norman's shrewd understanding wife, becomes the one normal person at the hotel. Their daughter Hazel, described > as their "radio actively sexy daughter serves to lighten up the book when it threatens to bog down. Many more characters are employed in the book but I will mention only Hippolyte, the unkempt handy man whose men complete the remodeling started by another island character.

Just one episode describes the type of problem faced by Norman. The lack of rain forces him to hire the garbage boat to bring several loads of that precious commodity -- amidst much maneuvering which involves a bit of dextrous acting by a Senator. In the end, Norman decides that his work in the hotel business doesn't fit him, and with his wife and daughter, he flies back again to New York. In presenting to us this key character, Norman Paperman, Wouk seems to go out of his way to stress Paperman's Jewish background, but actually ignores any meaningful conclusion about the way modern day Juda ism affects the modern Jew's life.

ing pages of the narrative, the story is well-told and entertaining. I suggest reading this during the next snow storm we experience. It is suspense without having crime in the plot. And that is paying the plot a high compliment!
