Clinton House of Cass City has been appointed to the newly created post of assistant prosecutor, it was announced this week by county authorities.

Appointment to the $3,600-a-year position was effective Monday. The job means just what it says, reported House. I will help take some of the work load from Prosecutor James Epskamp.

School Dance Big Boost for Charity Here

The Cass City Student Council sponsored charity ball, held Thursday, Dec. 29, netted about $60, small household appliances, toys and clothes, according to President Linda Calka.

The affair, which was scheduled for Wednesday, Dec. 28, was postponed till the following night due to the snowstorm.

Miss Anne Bulen sold the most tickets to the party and Jean Doerr won the album, donated by Frank's Music Store.

Diane Freiburger and Mary Sue Burns presented a duet and were accompanied by Tim Knight. The band for the evening, The Souz, donated their services.

Double Duty for Used Yule Cards

For the fifth year in a row the Cass City Junior Legion Auxiliary will distribute used Christmas cards to veterans in hospitals.

The practice started five years ago when some 800 cards were given away to brighten the life of a veteran. Since that time, the number of cards distributed increased by leaps and bounds.

The next year 3,900 cards were given and in 1965, 8,300 were handed out. Last year's total exceeded all previous distributions.

Persons with cards to donate can call Miss Linda Calka.

In Gagetown, Cass City

Little Interest in Village Offices

Village elections in Gagetown and Cass City promise to be tame affairs as there will be no competition for offices this spring, it was revealed by the respective village clerks of the two communities.

Because petitions were received for only the number of vacancies in both villages there will be no primary election. Barring a last minute slip campaign in the regular election the candidates will ride into office unopposed.

As expected, incumbents in Cass City are candidates to succeed themselves for all offices with the exception of the trustee post now filled by Barney Freiburger, who did not seek re-election.

The candidate that is seeking the open office is J. Bernard Ross. Other trustee candidates are Dr. William S. Selby, J. Glen McCullough and Mrs. Gladys Albee. Assessor Mac O'Dell, already the township assessor, will seek the village job also. Mrs. Celia House will seek re-election to the clerk-treasurer's posts.

Area Escapes New Year's With 3 Minor Crashes

Wayne Dick Seeley, 17, of Cass City was treated at Hills and Dales Hospital Sunday for injuries received in an accident on Garfield Road.

Thomas E. Dewey, 16, the driver of the car, was attempting to turn into the General Cable parking lot and lost control of his car and hit a cement abutment, according to the report filed by Patrolman Jim Jezewski of the Cass City Police Department, who investigated.

Another passenger in the vehicle, Rinerd Alfred Schember, 22, was uninjured.

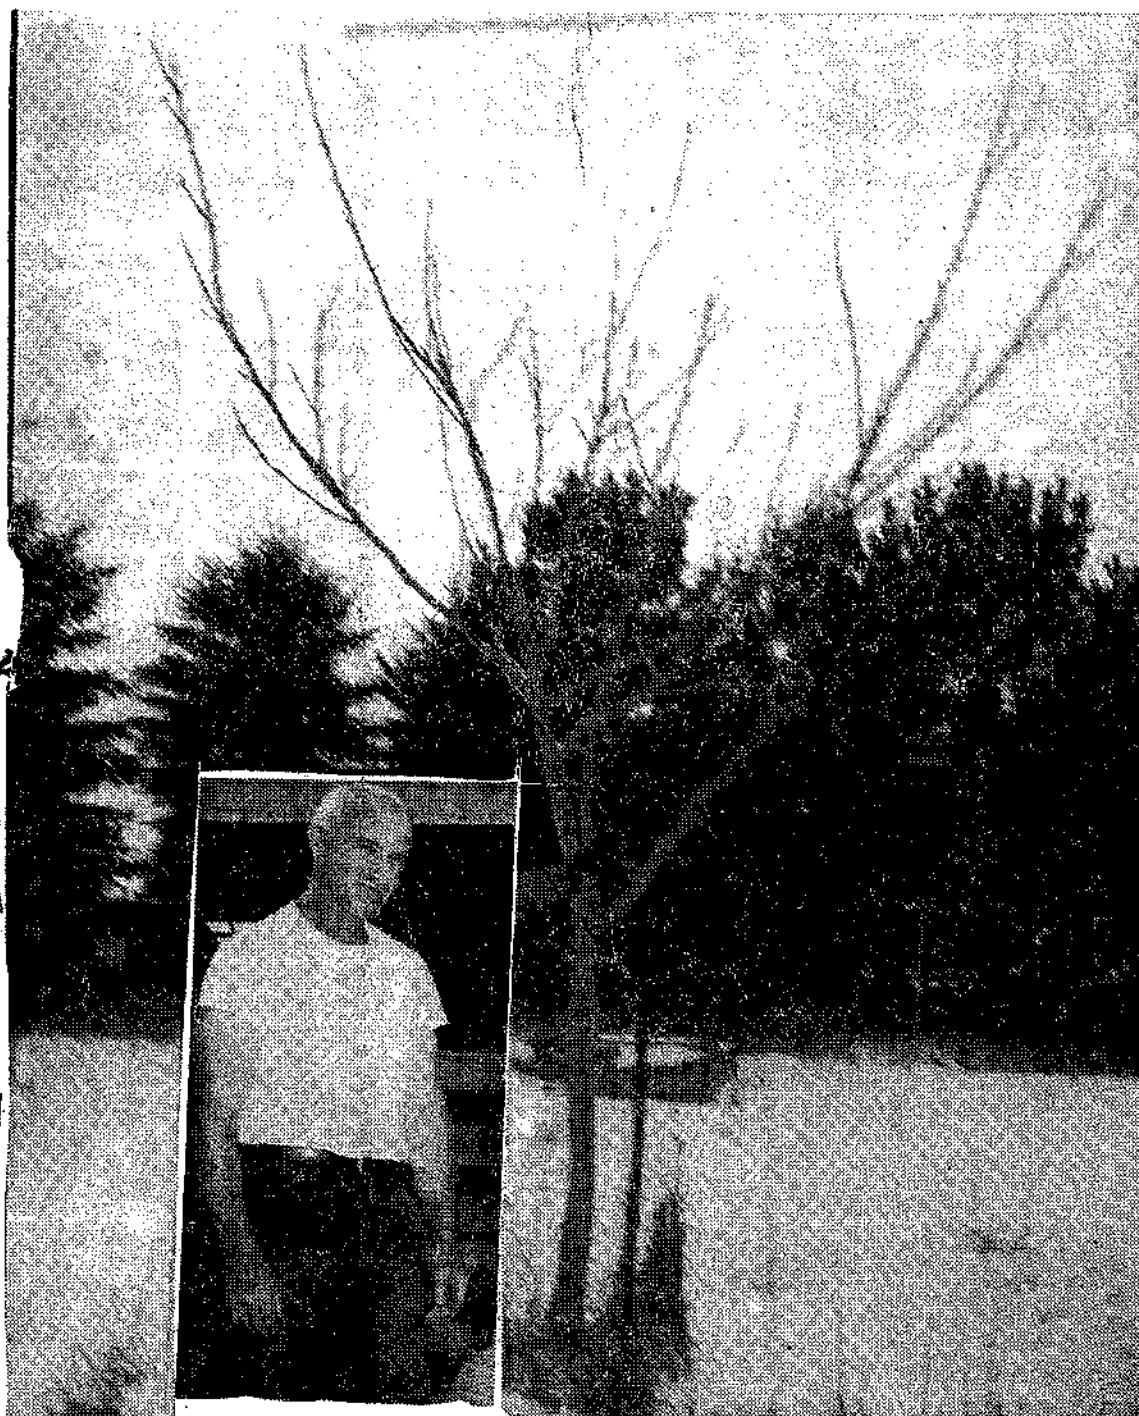

The front of the vehicle was damaged in the accident. Seeley sustained slight lacerations of the face and forehead and received first aid treatment in the emergency room at the hospital.

One minor accident involving persons from the Cass City area was reported to the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department during the week.

Trucks driven by Joseph James Dann Jr., 35, of Caro and James Carl Skirlo, 39, of Unionville collided Friday at the corner of Phelps Street and Center Street in Unionville.

Dann was traveling north on

THIS TREE PRODUCED its first walnut after 11 years this season. A single nut was gathered . . . but in future years up to 200 nuts are expected to be produced.

Framed in the background are Evergreen trees planted 25 years ago. Inset is Walt Goodall, who has Cass City's only English walnut trees. (Chronicle photo)

Walnuts...A Nutty Problem If All You Want Is Money

One of the least promising businesses in the Cass City area has to be growing of English walnuts. It should rank near the top of ventures most likely not to succeed . . . if all you are looking for is a money return on your investment.

What other farm product takes over 10 years to produce a crop, requires a good deal of work in the early years and when the harvest comes will likely bring only a couple of dollars on the commercial market?

With an outlook like this it's sure that no one would be growing walnuts here. Right? . . . Wrong.

You'll find about nine trees at the Walter Goodall farm, north-east of Cass City, ranging from about two to 20 years old.

Many of the trees aren't producing yet and the top yield from any one was 200 walnuts which would probably sell for about $2. One tree on the farm is 11 years old and the first harvest was realized this fall . . . a single walnut.

Despite these gloomy statistics, Goodall is planning to expand his plantation and next spring several more trees will be planted.

"You have to love it to do it, of course," Goodall said. "It's just a hobby with us. We eat all we grow . . . In fact, we buy a few nuts to supplement our home-grown nuts every year."

Advantages
Growing English walnuts requires a good deal of time in the early years. We plant the nuts and then after giving them normal care for two years, it is necessary to replant them where they will stay.

Stoutenburg Takes Key Post in Iosco County

A former Cass City resident, Max Stoutenburg, 31, has been appointed director of the Iosco County Medical Care Facility, at Tawas City, replacing Douglas Webb, who resigned.

Stoutenburg resigned from a post as purchasing agent at Marquette Community Hospital to take the new position. A native of Cass City he worked at the Tuscola County Nursing Home and at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

He served two years as a medical corpsman in the army at Fort Carson, Colorado.

He graduated from Cass City High School in 1955. His wife is the former Pat Harbec of Cass City.

You don't dare wait over two years because a lot of the growth in the early years is below the ground. The trees have a strong root system.

After the first four years, the trees don't require much attention, Goodall continued.

While growing English walnuts is a long process, it's a lot easier than Black walnuts, Goodall believes.

When these nuts are ripe in the fall they just drop from their shucks . . . not so with the Black walnut, it's a man-sized job to pull them out, Goodall said.

And when you go to eat them, English walnuts are easy to get at . . . but the Black variety makes you work for all you get . . . the meat has to be dug from the shell.

Canadian Strain

The ease of eating is one of the advantages of the couple of Canadian strain trees that are producing on the Goodall farm. These trees produce a smaller nut than those normally seen in the neighborhood grocery and the shells are much harder.

But after you crack them open, the meat comes out whole or in halves most of the time.

The trees from Canada were the first planted at the farm, but in recent years Goodall has switched to stock secured from a friend who has a plantation near North Branch. He hopes to upgrade his crop with these trees . . . but it'll be 10 years before he knows how successful he is.

No Living
As you might expect, Goodall does not depend on walnut trees for a living. It's a labor of love . . . much the same as his apple tree and dwarf pear tree . . . or his 50 Evergreen trees planted when he was married in 1940.

In fact, most anything connected with nature or the land is of top interest on the Goodall farm. There are several bird feeders scattered around the place and a little corn for the pheasants, plus a patch of sunflowers that were left for more feed for the pheasants. Goodall doesn't hunt.

A few chickens are around . . . just for eating. . . and a flock of sheep produces extra revenue for the family.

Goodall keeps about 100 breeding ewes and has a show flock that includes Cheviots, Corriedales and Romneys. And after a quarter of a century, Goodall obviously finds immense personal satisfaction in every detail of his myriad pet farm projects.

He recently purchased some land and is now starting an Angus beef cattle herd. Primary reason for this move is for one of his sons, Wilbert, who will finish a two-year hitch in the Army in June and return to the farm.

Another member of the family has also stuck to the farm. Mrs. Charles (Lois) Darr lives just down the road from her parents. The other two children have moved from the area. A son, Larry, lives in Flint and a daughter, Mrs. Howard (Wilma) Schmalz, lives at Otisville.

In addition to all of these activities, Walt Goodall works steadily at the Caro State Hospital where he is a veteran of seven years.

He plans to remain at the hospital until eligible to retire. And when the time comes it's probably a safe bet that he'll begin doing full time what he does part time now . . . taking care of his hobbies that don't make very much money but do yield for him a bonanza of personal satisfaction.

Fire Dolls Found In Area

There have been at least a dozen of the controversial dolls, made in Poland and highly inflammable, turned in to the Tuscola County Sheriff's office since the discovery was announced by news media.

The doll has a face made of nitro-cellulose, a cheap and easily ignited plastic. Its hair is especially inflammable.

One person who brought the remains of a doll to the office, Sheriff Hugh Marr said, reported that it burst into flames when he held a cigarette lighter some three feet from its head.

However, he continued, it is doubtful that most of the dolls will ignite this easily under normal conditions . . . but they are dangerous.

None of the questionable dolls have been discovered sold by Cass City stores.

Because of the health hazard the Food and Drug Administration has announced that it has asked for recall of the dolls from all retail stores under the Child Protection Act prohibiting interstate commerce of toys with hazardous substances.

Against Southeastern Gas

File Suit in '64 Home Blast

Mrs. Helen G. Little Tuesday filed a $29,000 damage suit in Tuscola County Circuit Court against Southeastern Michigan Gas Company for personal injury and property damage.

The suit stems from an explosion that occurred Jan. 14, 1964, at a home she owned at the corner of Garfield and Vulcan.

A blast that rocked the neighborhood caved in the house and ignited a fire that engulfed the basement of the home. A story about the blast reported that it "blew windows and doors from their hinges. A five-foot square, four-inch thick concrete slab on the front porch was broken and moved several inches."

Mrs. Little is asking $15,000 for her injuries; $12,000 for the house and $2,500 for the house contents.

Mrs. Little, who was phoning from a ground floor room, was thrown from the couch by the blast. Also injured in the blast was Don Finkbeiner, who was attempting to fix an oil furnace in the basement. The explosion was believed to have occurred when he turned the furnace switch on.

Following an investigation of the blast by his company, Jim Shaw, Southeastern district supervisor, stated positively that the explosion was not caused by natural gas. According to his statement printed in the Chronicle the week following the blast, that a leak in the gas line discovered by James Ware some 150 feet from the ruined home was not caused by natural gas.

It was reported that "instructors found no gas in the some 11 feet below the. It was also explained that pound pressure in the pipe was not sufficient to force the gas down to the sewer."

"Shaw also explained that natural gas, with a specific gravity of 0.61 is lighter than air and has a natural tendency to travel up."

Representing Mrs. Little will be Clinton House.

From the Editor's Corner

By this time most of the New Year's resolutions have been smashed beyond recognition. Nine out of 10 are out searching for a discarded package of cigarettes from which they had "taken their last drag" and the thousands who quit drinking Sunday morning are planning the next party. It's the start of a normal year.

The new year is traditionally the time for predictions. Let's gaze into the crystal ball.

On the school front we see another adjustment in salaries to school teachers and another drawn out period of negotiations. For the basketball team, it'll be their best season in six years but there will be no Thumb B championship ring here, nor will the Hawks win the district title for the first time in seven years.

We predict another year of strong employment locally with jobs for all who want them . . . but perhaps not as acute a shortage of help as was prevalent last year.

Look for one new major building to go under construction in the health field, but for a slackening of new home construction due more to the lack of builders than to the lack of available money.

It will be another year of good business, marked by ever-increasing competitive pressures.

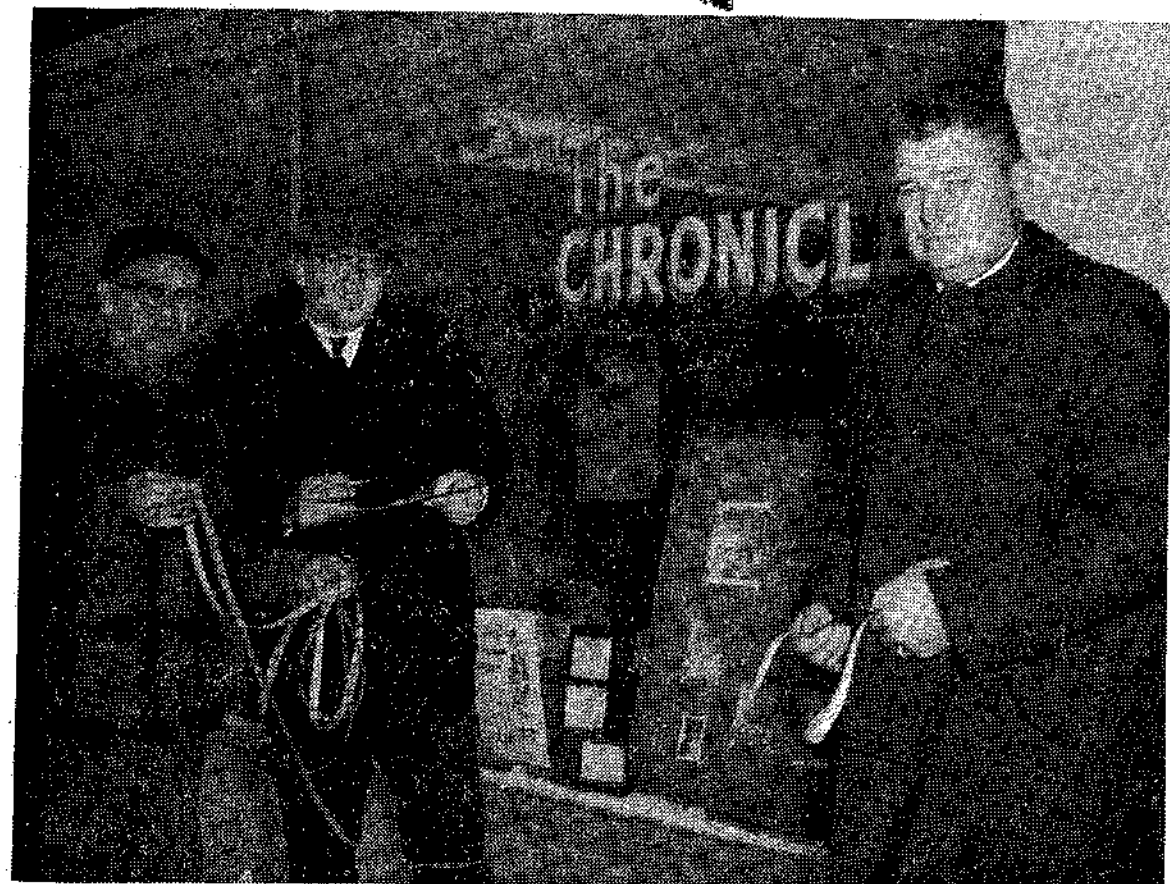

And a really way-out prediction . . . After nearly 15 years, we think that this will be the year that President Lambert Althaus and the village council come with a new dump site.

It will also be a year of sharp increased taxes in the village and one where the problems of the village fathers will be multiplied.

Father time has a way of sneaking up on you. While rummaging through old issues to check my memory concerning basketball teams, I ran across a picture of

TAKING A NEW look at the business property valuation in Cass City are three men charged with the responsibility. From

Taxes Could Be Lower

Revalue Business Buildings

A general revaluation of property on Main Street is underway in Cass City, Elkland Supervisor Ed Golding reported this week.

With the help of Dave Barnes, property appraiser for the State Tax Commission, and Clayton Hunter of Dayton township, director of tax equalization committee, all property will be examined to bring assessments in line with today's market values.

For many merchants this may mean a decrease in taxes. "We have known for some time, Golding said, that some of the property was assessed too high for today's market, but were unable to make any changes until we were able to examine all the business property."

Last week the three tax men were in the community measuring selected sites to form a basis for the new valuations.

Ask Help

While the three men were concerned with Main Street property last week, Golding said that he will send a letter to all property owners in Elkland township asking their assistance in valuing their property.

Under the new tax law, the letter reads, all property must be assessed at 50 per cent of true cash value (state equalized valuation) and you (the property owner) are in a better position to make an appraisal of true cash value of your property than anyone else.

The letter asks for estimates on both real and personal property.

Whatever adjustments are made by the three tax men on Main Street or from information received from the letters will go into effect on this year's taxes, Golding explained.

Presently taxes in Elkland township are computed at the rate of 40 per cent of actual cash value and then adjusted with a factor to bring it to the state's equalized valuation. The change to 50 per cent of resale value will eliminate the factor, but the increased valuation will not change the amount collected in taxes.

Cass City Different

However, the change to the state's equalized valuation would result in a very heavy tax increase for local residents if the mill-rate were not lowered.

In a preliminary discussion by the village council it was indicated that the mill rate will be decreased next year, but not enough to cover the increase in valuation.

ORDINARILY SMOKING is permitted in the lobby of the new Tuscola County Jail. But Sheriff Hugh Marr quickly posted this sign in front of the display of some of the highly inflammable dolls that have been turned in by county residents.

SPORTS FANS!

H. M. Bulen

Did you know that of all the major sports in the world, basketball is the only one that's completely American in origin. Among the others, baseball and football evolved from games originally played in other countries and all the rest—boxing, horse racing, automobile racing, hockey,unting, fishing, skiing, swimming, bowling, track, tennis and golf—were already in existence somewhere before they came to America.

Here's a hockey record that's almost unbelievable—in fact, veteran hockey experts still find it hard to accept—but it happened. Did you know that a National Hockey League player once scored three goals within 21 seconds? The man who achieved this feat was Bill Mosienko of the Chicago Black Hawks. In a 1952 game, Mosienko netted three goals in 21 seconds against New York to set a big league hockey record that could stand for all-time.

Here's a real oddity in basketball. The recommended length for a basketball floor is 94 feet. Yet, perhaps the most famous basketball floor of them all is the one at Madison Square Garden in New York—is shorter than the recommended regulation length. It's only 88 feet!

A check of both local hospitals early Wednesday morning revealed that there has been no baby born in either hospital in 1967 so there is no winner in the annual baby contest sponsored by the Chronicle and area merchants.

We'll keep checking and by next week should have the picture of the winner. . . . however, there were no imminent prospects Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Monteil

Miss Carol English became the bride of Richard Monteil Friday, Dec. 23, in a ceremony at the Calvary Baptist Church, Jersey Shore, Pa. Rev. C. J. Keenan performed the wedding.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard English of Salladasburg, Pa., and was Christian Education Director at the Cass City Baptist Church for two years. She is presently teaching second grade in a Salladasburg school. The groom is the son of Mrs. Venetta Monteil of Deford and the late Kenneth Monteil.

The bride wore a gown of peau de soie and Chantilly lace fashioned with a sash and neckline and a fitted bodice. The skirt ended in a chapel-length train. A crown of seed pearls held her elbow-length veil and she carried a cascade arrangement of white roses and pompons.

Maid of honor, Miss Susan English of Salladasburg, wore a gown with a fitted bodice of burgundy velvet and skirt of pink crepe. She wore a pink crown headdress and carried deep pink and white pompons. She is the bride's sister.

Ronald Monteil of Deford was best man for his brother.

A reception was held in the church social hall following the ceremony. Another reception was held Dec. 29 at the Novesta Town Hall at Deford, given by the groom's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Monteil are making their home in Salladasburg.

THE COHO STORY

The map above shows the highlights of the Coho Salmon program in Michigan. The program got under way in the fall of 1964 when one million eggs were received from Oregon, and received added impetus in 1965 when 2 million eggs were delivered from Washington and Oregon and fifty thousand eggs arrived from Alaska. These were reared to fingerling size at the Olen, Platte River and Thompson Hatcheries. From that time until the present, the Coho story has been one success after another. The map shows gives a partial picture of some of those successes.

Ignore MSU Request; Doctor Shortage Grows More Critical

Michigan is sadly lacking in doctors for its citizens. There is no hope of meeting the need unless immediate steps are taken to expand medical education facilities. To make matters worse, an important recommendation by a blue-ribbon committee to the State Board of Education was recently ignored in a four to four vote on establishing a four-year medical school at Michigan State University.

The tie had the effect of refusing the special committee's recommendation that MSU's present two-year human biology program be expanded to a full medical training course.

Part of the Board's hesitation to approve the new medical school request from MSU was credited to the need for an overall higher education plan in Michigan. Another factor was a proposal for an osteopathic college which is in the works.

A master plan for education might not be ready for another year and there is no firm indication when, or if, the osteopathic college will get beyond the planning stage.

Many believe the MSU request for expansion to a four-year medical school should be considered on its own merit in light of the recognized dire need for doctors in Michigan.

Board members themselves appointed the special committee to deal with the expansion of medical education in Michigan as a broad concept and the MSU plan as a specific request but in context with the state's total needs.

In essence the committee recommended immediate steps be taken to expand and improve the two existing medical schools and approve without delay MSU's request to offer an MD degree program.

Delay in approval is difficult to understand. After the first of the year, two new members will take their seats on the Board of Education, a result of the recent election. Perhaps the issue will be reconsidered then.

Members of the Board which failed to approve the plan indicated that more study was necessary to fit this recommendation into an overall program. It is very hard to see how much more study will be needed before the overwhelming facts stimulate a decision in some direction to provide doctors for the people in Michigan. The question has been examined and re-examined.

Delay in providing action can only hurt everyone involved: the potential students and the profession itself. Most importantly, the people of this state.

New Problem
Spending cutbacks ordered by the federal government have many Michigan governmental units worrying, stewing and screaming.

Potential unemployment caused by cuts in the various programs might threaten the continued prosperity of Michigan's economy. Cities are screaming because of announced decreases in spending for local urban renewal and poverty relief programs.

State highway officials throughout Michigan breathe heavily because of the shorter supply of federal funds to complete road construction plans.

Many programs, in other states as well as Michigan, are heavily

The free courses are offered as a public service and will be conducted by Mrs. James Champion, R.N.

2 Retailers Present Unusual Ad Series

Two Cass City businesses this week launched year-long advertising campaigns built around different themes.

Wood Drugs Store will present a series featuring baby photos. They will appear under the heading Baby Babble by Rex Smith. They are designed to give the reader a chuckle and have been well received when published in other parts of the country.

The Cass City Ben Franklin Store will present a "key value" series in which certain items are selected and offered each week at specially reduced prices. "It's a sale every week," reports owner Gerald Priesskorn.

John Maharg has continued to show improvement and some of the reserves have advanced to the point where they will probably make us much stronger in reserve strength. It's important to have that seventh and eighth reliable man on your squad, he said.

Oswald said that the team needs to improve its offensive rebounding, but that overall he was satisfied with the progress of the club. "This has been a hustling team," he said.

The Hawks will be entering the major portion of their season with brighter prospects than any in several years. Although the record is only a modest two won and two lost, a quirk in the schedule pitted Cass City against three of the top teams in the league in the first four games.

After an opening victory against a comparatively weak Sandusky team, the Hawks dropped tilts to the Lakers and Caro and then finished the year on a joyous note with the Franklinton win.

It is significant that only in the Laker game were the Hawks decisively beaten. Against undefeated Caro it was anybody's game until late in the final quarter.

Although the Hawks trail Caro by two games in the Thumb B League standings, it is too early to count them out of the race. With this year's balanced strength in the league, it is highly doubtful if any team will go through the season without at least two losses.

Although the Cass City Red Hawks haven't played any games since Dec. 16 when they posted a rousing victory over Franklinton, the local cagers have been far from idle.

When the Hawks take the hardwoods against the Red Raiders at Marlette Friday they are more apt to be a little tired from playing, rather than rusty from the lack of practice over the holidays.

Since their last game the Hawks have participated in nine scrimmages against other high school teams including a team as far away as Elsworth in the upper Lower Peninsula. Other scrimmages have been against Ubly, Farwell, Deckerville and Essexville Garber. Some of the schools were played two or three times.

Phil Gray has been the hot shooter in these practice games. He'll need to retain his touch when we play Marlette, Coach John Oswald reported. The Raiders gained new respect around the league when they upset the Lakers in the final game before Christmas. They also showed well in a holiday tournament, Oswald said.

Evergreen 4-H Club Elects Officers

The Evergreen Guys n' Gals 4-H Club met at the Evergreen Township Unit School Wednesday, 1 Dec. 22. Ruby Burk, president, opened the meeting and pledges were read by Terry Hendrick and Diane Burk. Treasurer's report was read by Susan Hoppe. Mrs. Edw. Hoff, chairman, was assisted by Sherry Turner as she distributed honor certificates and pins.

Ruby Burk and Ellen Morgan conducted the election of officers. Elected were: Mrs. Emerson Kennedy, chairman; Mrs. Edw. Hoff, assistant chairman; Cheryl Dorland, president; Carolyn Jones, vice-president; Sally Groombridge, secretary; Raymond Hendrick, treasurer; and Ellen Morgan, reporter.

The group decided to send a $10 Christmas gift to the Retarded Children's School at Watertown. In January, the group will collect used toys and greeting cards for the school.

Dale Turner explained sending subscriptions to "4-H News", a monthly 4-H magazine. The magazine finances most trips and other awards given to outstanding 4-H'ers in Sanilac county. Anyone wishing further information may contact Dale Turner, Decker.

Mrs. Kennedy recently announced that the first 4-H work meeting will be held Tuesday, Jan. 16, at the Evergreen Township Unit School. All 4-H'ers should have their materials and be prepared to work.

Gagetown Youth Fined in Caro

Douglas P. Gidding, 17, of Gagetown was arrested Tuesday, December 27, for having motor vehicle's license. He was fined $100, plus costs of $6 or spend 30 days in jail, by Justice Frank Polka in Caro.

Every year an estimated 500 million people suffer from disabling diseases associated with unsafe water supplies, according to

John Maharg has continued to show improvement and some of the reserves have advanced to the point where they will probably make us much stronger in reserve strength. It's important to have that seventh and eighth reliable man on your squad, he said.

Oswald said that the team needs to improve its offensive rebounding, but that overall he was satisfied with the progress of the club. "This has been a hustling team," he said.

The Hawks will be entering the major portion of their season with brighter prospects than any in several years. Although the record is only a modest two won and two lost, a quirk in the schedule pitted Cass City against three of the top teams in the league in the first four games.

After an opening victory against a comparatively weak Sandusky team, the Hawks dropped tilts to the Lakers and Caro and then finished the year on a joyous note with the Franklinton win.

It is significant that only in the Laker game were the Hawks decisively beaten. Against undefeated Caro it was anybody's game until late in the final quarter.

Although the Hawks trail Caro by two games in the Thumb B League standings, it is too early to count them out of the race. With this year's balanced strength in the league, it is highly doubtful if any team will go through the season without at least two losses.

Although the Cass City Red Hawks haven't played any games since Dec. 16 when they posted a rousing victory over Franklinton, the local cagers have been far from idle.

When the Hawks take the hardwoods against the Red Raiders at Marlette Friday they are more apt to be a little tired from playing, rather than rusty from the lack of practice over the holidays.

Since their last game the Hawks have participated in nine scrimmages against other high school teams including a team as far away as Elsworth in the upper Lower Peninsula. Other scrimmages have been against Ubly, Farwell, Deckerville and Essexville Garber. Some of the schools were played two or three times.

Phil Gray has been the hot shooter in these practice games. He'll need to retain his touch when we play Marlette, Coach John Oswald reported. The Raiders gained new respect around the league when they upset the Lakers in the final game before Christmas. They also showed well in a holiday tournament, Oswald said.

Farm Bulletin Tells Of Rent Agreements

Both the landlord and the tenant must have an understanding of, and respect for, each other's problems and viewpoints for a successful farm rental agreement. Alfred Ballweg, County Extension Agricultural Agent, says a new Michigan Extension Service bulletin (E-378) has many examples of types of farm leases and rental agreements which would be useful to both landlords and tenants.

The publication was prepared by Prof. E. B. Hill, retired Department of Agricultural Economics farm management specialist at Michigan State University. Professor Hill says: "Success in renting farms depends on having a satisfactory lease agreement on a productive farm with a business large enough that under efficient management, will provide a satisfactory return for both parties."

The County Extension Agent says many difficulties in landlord-tenant relationships result from a lack of understanding and communication. These can be partially eliminated by a written lease agreement that is kept current and by regular visits to the farm to make settlements and discuss current and proposed farm operations.

The county agent believes both tenants and landlords would find many valuable suggestions in this bulletin "Farm Rental Agreements" which is available without charge at the county extension office.

The Want Ads are newsy too.

Hostetter's Hodgepodge

Could You Lease Land in Cass City?

By Marion Hostetter

This month's Farm Journal reports that Jim Kimball of the Minneapolis Tribune unleashed a tremendous reader response by his suggestion that "a farmer with a marsh, a stream, a woods, or even a patch of brush might rent this waste corner of ground on a ten-year lease basis to a city family that's looking for a place to get away from it all."

Many farmers had suitable spots and were willing to lease; city people were eager to find such places. "Only 8 per cent of the population are on farms," Kimball wrote, "but the other 92 per cent are struggling to get there." The problem: how to get the 8 per cent and the 92 per cent together?

I asked B. A. Calka whether anything like this had happened here. Not exactly, as far as he knew. Groups of hunters, of course, have been leasing hunting land north for years. There is a farmer near Kingston who finds city hunters willing to pay a daily fee for hunting on his land. Some people have stocked trout ponds and allow public fishing, with the stipulation that you keep all you catch and pay for them at the rate of 10 cents an inch.

Half a dozen families from Detroit may go together to buy a small marginal farm in Tuscola county for about $5,000 in order to have a place to come on week ends to get away from the hot streets and overcrowded city parks. It not only gives their children a place in which to run; it satisfies man's basic urge to own a piece of the good earth.

Supposing I could find a willing farmer and an interested city family, what would be necessary to make a deal? Well, they would need to have a lease, and this would cost from $5 to $35 if you had a lawyer draw it up. Possibly they could find a standard form of lease at a bank or in a public library and do it themselves.

Pitfalls to guard against: The wrong kind of family could be quite a nuisance by throwing bottles around, hacking the bark off trees, or disturbing the peace at all hours of the day or night. If they decided to park a trailer on their acre, taxes would go up, and the owner of the land would be legally responsible to pay the bill. For this reason, the lease should include a provision that any special tax assessments on the acre are to be paid by the tenant.

Farm Journal writer Richard Davids thinks the idea is worth exploring. Can it be made workable? Do our readers have any comments or suggestions? Has anybody a plot that would be suitable, and how much would he be willing to lease it for? Or would he consider selling it? How much would a city family be willing to pay, and what sort of place would they like to find? If any interesting information comes in, we'll put it into the column. I might even lease an acre myself!

David Hostetter is teaching math in Africa as a Peace Corps Volunteer. Some of the boys in his school are looking for pen pals in this country, preferably of junior high or senior high age. Anyone who would like to correspond with an African boy may send his name, address, and age to me. Or you may send the information directly to David Hostetter, St. Paul's Secondary School, Denu (Volta Region), Ghana. You may as well tell about yourself in your first letter. Airmail postage is 25 cents per half ounce, or 11 cents for an "air letter" available at the Post Office. Airmail reaches Ghana in a week; surface mail may take two months.

Before coming to Cass City, Mrs. James McMahon, known to a host of friends as "Tillie," lived in the very same house in Wiloughby, Lincolnshire, England, in which John Smith was born... the Captain John Smith who became the first governor of the Commonwealth of Virginia. In this country, where the usable life of a house is often considered to be fifty years, we find it difficult to believe that people are still living in the house in which John Smith was born in 1580. But the English have great respect for old historic structures, and they must have kept it in good repair. In 1960 a committee from Virginia erected a plaque in St. Helen's Church, Wiloughby, in which John Smith was baptized.

There is the legend that Captain Smith was about to be executed by the Indians when his friend Pocahontas, little daughter of Chief Powhatan, threw herself across his neck, saying, "If you kill him, you'll have to kill me first."

And if my memory serves me right when some of the English adventurers felt it was beneath their dignity to engage in manual labor, it was John Smith who said, "He who will not work shall not eat."

Smith's own motto was "Vincere est vivere." That is Latin for "To conquer is to live," which means "Unless you're getting ahead, you aren't living." Our country was settled by men of his mold, who looked upon every obstacle as an opportunity in disguise. They would find it almost impossible to accept modern ways of thinking, when many Americans have surrendered any hope of conquering anything, in exchange for security and the prospect of a guaranteed annual income.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Ed Doolittle told the fellers at the country store Saturday night he aimed to start the New Year off right and the proper way to do it was to git some facts in this country straightened out.

Zeke Grubb's preacher come in about this time and, as a general rule, when the good Parson gits to a meeting everybody sets quiet and gives him the floor. But on this occasion he took a chair in the back and bollerred "Amen, Brother Doolittle, Amen!"

So Ed perceeded to git the country straightened out.

First off, Ed reported, he had saw where factories all over the country had departments standing on account of the labor shortage. He claimed the Great Society had sewed this bug of gitting everybody college educated and now nobody was landing a job if he didn't have "technical training." He said he didn't ave nothing agin education but they was plenty of people that never finished the fifth grade that could sweep the floor or push a handcart or drive a nail or a truck. He said he had saw this piece in the papers where we now got 30 million people in this country over 25 year old that ain't had one year in high school.

What was all these people doing, ask Ed? He said they was the new "lecture class" that has been created in this country. They wasn't the rich folks no more, he claimed, on account of the rich folks has to keep jumping to pay the taxes. It was the pore "non-worker" with his guaranteed income that was draining the labor force of America.

The good Parson butted in to agree with Ed, said he had saw where we spent $6 billion on welfare in 1965 and it was going to $7 billion for the year just ended. 'They was a heap of good, healthy labor, allowed the Parson, running loose amongst the idle gitting them billions.

Farthermore, said the Parson, he had saw where the last Congress spent $240 billion which was more than the Congress spent that financed World War II. He told the fellers he was starting out 1967 by praying ever morning for the new Congress to tighten up a bit on the spending.

Bug Hookum said he didn't mean no disrespect to the Parson but he was of the opinion it would take more than prayers to make them Congressmen see the error of their ways, that it was going to have to be done at the ballot box.

Ed said he was agreed with Bug, but he was mighty glad to have the Parson's prayers helping out in the situation, said it might stop little items like the $400,000 they spent fer fire hydrant sprinklers fer city kids to play in.

Your truly,

Uncle Tim

BOOK REVIEW

A Fictionalized Study Of A Modern Rabbi

By Rev. R. J. Searls

verts to the faith of her husband without telling him until the thing is done.

His first job as a rabbi is in the period before his marriage, where he learns what 'circuit riding' means. Then he takes his wife with him where he serves a race-conscious Georgia town followed by a suburb outside San Francisco, in a college community in Pennsylvania and in New England town west of Boston.

I suspect that you will find that special sections of the book will especially prove interesting to you. I found my 'support' of the Rabbi especially strong when he found himself embroiled in a racial incident. I found myself matching experiences when I was building a church and he was building a new temple.

If your interests include the study of behavior, especially when that behavior is critical, you will like this book.

"The Rabbi," by Noah Gordon, McGraw-Hill, New York, 1965. Available from the Cass City and Elkland Township Library.

Glue a piece of cork on the top of your recipe file box. With a knife cut a slit across the cork at a slight angle and insert recipe cards as you use them. Cards will stand at a readable angle.
