

Golding Tells Status Of New Fire Hall

Elkland township is inching along in its quest to provide new housing for the Elkland Township Fire Department, according to a talk by Supervisor Ed Golding Tuesday at the New Gordon Hotel.

Golding told the Rotary Club that the biggest stumbling block in the drive for a new building is the desire of the board to provide the housing without going to the people for a bond issue and resultant increase in taxes.

The board has some $25,000 available for a new building now and is examining several sites. The quest is now over a year old. At the last election the people were asked if the township should take over the housing of the fire department from the village and a substantial majority of the taxpayers were in favor of the move.

Golding said that it was almost imperative that the fire department be built within the village limits. According to my information, he explained, if the department were outside the village, it would raise insurance rates in the village $6 per thousand.

Golding said that each year the township is adding to the fire hall fund with money that is not needed for general operating.

We have been spending $10,000 to $12,000 a year for township roads under the matching fund program and it is the board's feeling that we could stop this for a few years and use the money for the new fire hall.

There will be no Title I money available for a summer reading program this year, but a summer course in reading and modern math will be offered with the parents and the school sharing the cost.

Last summer two programs were offered during the summer. Under Title I children were enrolled and the cost paid by the Federal government. Children unable to qualify for the summer program and interested in summer help were taught in the special reading course offered for several years for the school.

The board was not ready to set any cost figures on the program for this summer, but went on record as favoring its adoption.

The reason why Title I money is not available for a summer program is that Cass City's share is being spent throughout the school year for teachers' aids and supplies.

Another source of Federal funds is not available to Cass City. An application for business machines and typewriters under the Vocational Education Act has been disapproved.

The request was denied because Cass City cannot guarantee 100 per cent utilization of the equipment. For example, Supt. Don Crouse said, if we were to get money for typewriters we would have to offer advanced typing for seven hours daily. The small school is virtually eliminated, he reported.

There are many persons in the community living on retirement or other fixed incomes and a tax at this time would be a hardship, Golding continued.

Another drain on the taxpayer that is on the horizon is the new community college and the requested 1.5 mills increase in taxes for the county.

We have two or three years remaining before a review of the fire department for insurance purposes will be made and any change in the insurance structure can be made, Golding said. At the present time we enjoy the lowest possible rate.

We had an architect familiar with fire hall construction propose a building that would have been a credit to Cass City, he said, but the estimated price was $75,000 and that was more than the board felt could be spent.

One of the things that has been holding up action, Golding concluded, is that the opinion of the best direction to travel in the quest for the facility is divided among members of the board.

One other facet is uncertain, also, he concluded, and that is whether or not the township can buy a building and pay for it on the time payment plan with the title of the building remaining in the hands of the previous owner until the mortgage is paid.

Golding did not say when he felt that a ruling from the attorney general on this proposition would be received.

PICK YOUR YEAR and you'll find the license plate for it in the collection of William Martus, left. Helping him display some of the plates is Charles Auten.

All the Licenses in Martus Collection

When William Martus plunks down the $13.25 for his new auto license, he's really getting a bargain. Not only is he paying the rent on his share of Michigan's ever-improving highway system (and buying a dollar's worth of insurance against any damage that may be inflicted by an uninsured motorist) . . . he is adding another item to his remarkable collection of Michigan license plates.

Martus has a genuine plate for each year from 1910 to the present, and he has made replicas of two earlier kinds of tags. Prior to 1909, motor car owners were issued an aluminum disc with the inscription "Registered Motor Vehicle No. 199, Michigan Motor Vehicle Law," to be tacked to the dashboard or some other part of the gasoline buggy. By 1909 it was required that each car should display the license number assigned to it; as an example of this Bill has tacked four metal numbers to a board.

The foundation of the collection is a 1916 plate from Bill's father's first Chevrolet. Other early plates he scrounged from friends and neighbors around his home on Milligan Road, northwest of Cass City.

Apparently by 1916 cars had become so numerous that the longer numbers on the license plates were confusing the police, so letters began to be used in combination with numbers. The Martus number that year was 42M, and it seems that that was the only year when the letter was placed at the end of the number. Single letters were used as prefixes in some years, but not in others, until the first double letters were prefixed in 1940. This has been standard practice ever since.

The 1910 through '13 plates were of two colors of baked enamel on a flat sheet of metal, and they had the Great Seal of the State of Michigan enameled in the upper left corner. The first embossed plates appeared in 1914, and from then through 1919 a Great Seal made of metal was riveted in the upper left corner of the enameled plates.

By 1926 speeding must have become such a problem that extra large numbers were used in order to help the cops nab the fleeing playboys; that year's plate was 154 inches long . . . the largest in the collection.

In order to conserve metal for military use during World War II, small tabs were issued in 1943 instead of full-sized plates. Tabs were again issued in lieu of passenger plates in '60 and '61, and in '63 and '64. Bill saved the tabs, but also filled in those years in his collection with "farm" and "truck" licenses.

Beginning with 1954, publicity-conscious officials began to coax tourists from other states to visit Michigan's many scenic attractions by using the slogan "Water Wonderland." At the suggestion of winter sports enthusiasts, the scope of the slogan has been widened; since 1965 it has been "Water-Winter Wonderland."

Martus' collection is on display in the parts department of Auten Motor Sales, where Bill is parts manager. Formerly service manager for 23 years, he has been with the same firm for more than 43 years . . . since October 10, 1923.

School Custodians In Delta Course

Four custodians at the school have been granted permission to attend a stationary fireman's course at Delta College. The school will pay tuition ($15 each) and transportation for one car.

The 13-week course is held two hours on Thursday evening and covers operation of the boiler and other safety factors.

Attending are: Veron Gingrich, Basil Quick, John Clayton Moore and Ross Miller.

In other minor business, a modern math program for parents has been set by Grade Principal Mrs. Marie Murray for Feb. 20, and a contract for Mrs. Joyce Cameron to teach at Evergreen was approved.

Trustee Donald Reid was appointed to represent the school at the intermediate district budget meeting when the date is set.

Mrs. Stilson Heads Scout Cookie Sale

The annual sale of Girl Scout cookies will be coordinated in Cass City by Mrs. Gerald Stilson. Mrs. Stilson has been appointed as Cookie Chairman for Tuscola county by Mrs. Arthur J. Barry of Midland, who is president of Midland Bay Girl Scout Council.

The area cookie chairmen were to meet with Mrs. Barry Feb. 3 at the Ramada Inn, Saginaw. They gained instructions and materials for this sale, which is Feb. 17 to March 26.

From the Editor's Corner

Those of you who are regular readers of Dr. Marion Hostetler's column will recall that he wondered last week how M Street received its name.

With the help of Mrs. Jake Tekeili, I have the answer for him. Jake Tekeili was the subdivider of the area. When he established the one-block street he was asked to name it.

Tekeili's middle name was Mark. But since the street was so short he felt that a full name was too long so he decided to use just the initial and presto . . . M Street.

One of these weeks the Chronicle will run a feature story about women and how they feel about telling their ages. The staff has interviewed 10 women by phone and the answers make interesting reading.

The Chronicle was alerted to this situation after printing the age of a lady subscriber who was involved in a minor traffic mishap. She said that she did not see what significance the age of the driver had to do with the story.

At the time I couldn't think of a sound reason for printing the age with the exception of the feeble, it's the way that newspapers have written these stories for decades.

But the survey revealed one reason. A lady interviewed said that she couldn't see why they should be listed unless there were two persons with the same name.

How does the reporter know when a driver has a namesake? There is no way to be sure, of course. With this established, the question becomes one of degree.

I now feel that in a minor, no injury accident, the chance for mistaken identity is not serious enough to warrant printing of ages. But if an injury occurs I feel that it is more important to positively pinpoint the participants than it is to leave out the age.

So in the future, any noninjury accident will not have ages printed and any injury accident will have the ages recorded.

When Alfred Goodall called Wednesday morning to say a train was derailed, a mile west and a mile north of Cass City, the Chronicle decided to go out and investigate.

Mrs. Joan Asher was dispatched to the scene for a quick interview and picture. Strictly routine.

Except for one complicating detail . . . the train was a mile down the track from the road. A reporter covering the reporter would have made a better story.

Mrs. Asher lugged the distance carrying a camera and returned an hour later. . . . blue with cold. She said that she waded through three-foot deep snowdrifts in the subzero weather to get to the train.

The picture of the derailed train appears in this issue. I think a better story would have been a picture of Mrs. Asher as she took the shot of the train.

Physical Education at New School Discussed

When the new high school building is opened, what will the school do about a physical education program?

That's the question that the Cass City School Board and Supt. Donald Crouse were kicking around Monday night at the regular meeting of the board at the school.

The discussion was the only major topic in a humdrum meeting with little of interest on the agenda.

President Horace Bolen said that he felt that today's youth was not getting enough physical education and were in much worse condition than previous generations.

Mrs. Geraldine Priesskorn said that she would like to see a program start in the lower elementary grades and be continued through high school.

Supt. Crouse said that the problem is bigger than just space. To run a physical education program the way I feel would be most beneficial costs plenty of money, he said.

I don't feel a course with just plain calisthenics is of much value, he continued. A good program should stress carry-over activities such as golf, tennis, archery, fly casting and other similar sports.

To establish this type program is expensive.

Several of the board members felt that a program featuring intramural sports would be effective. The discussion then shifted to what other schools were providing in physical education.

Mrs. Priesskorn was appointed to check schools in Bay City and Saginaw to see what could be offered.

At Cass City Schools today no organized physical education is offered for either boys or girls after the ninth grade. Space problems make the curtailed program mandatory.

After the new high school is functioning there will be room to maneuver and the board is thinking about the program in terms of the space available in the new building.

Wistfully mentioned was an indoor swimming pool . . . but there is almost no chance that one will be erected in Cass City in the near future. All agreed that it would be fine to have but an off-the-cuff cost figure tossed at the board when the high school was proposed was $250,000.

New Classrooms

It is likely that the junior high will be the first students to occupy any portion of the new school. Crouse said that he is counting on having "A" section complete by the start of school next year and will use it to house junior high until the move of the high school can be made.

Originally, the schedule called for complete occupancy of the new building at the start of school next fall.

Now the target date for the transfer will be the start of the following semester.

Furniture

There will be a blend of the new and the old in the new school. Furniture such as that presently used in the library will be transferred if not needed in the present building.

Older furniture will be discarded. Some of the furniture here is 40 years or more old and that will not be used.

A committee will be appointed to decide what furniture to keep and what to discard. Bids from three concerns will be taken when the type and amount of new furniture needed is decided.

In discussing the new building, Crouse reported that work is progressing sporadically, but that when the roof is completed should move onto a steady basis.

Ten Injured in Area 2-Car Crash

Ten persons were injured in a two-car crash Sunday at the corner of Bay City-Forestville Road and Koepgen Road, in Elwood township.

According to the Tuscola County Sheriff's report, Charles William Cotterman, 49, of Midland was blinded by swirling snow and was driving on the left side of the center line and crashed into a car driven by E. Dean Muterspaugh of Rosebush.

Muterspaugh reported that he was driving on his side of the road and all of a sudden there was a car in front of him with its lights on.

Treated at Hills and Dales General Hospital for injuries were: Cotterman, his wife, Daisy M. Cotterman, 44, and three children who suffered facial lacerations: Rosa, 11, Josie, 6, Sandra Cotterman, 12, and Lennie Letts of Midland.

Besides Muterspaugh, passengers in his vehicle who were injured were: Evelyn Muterspaugh, 48, Grace Maurer, 20, of Bad Axe, and Marsha Muterspaugh, 17, of Rosebush.

No injuries and minor property damage were reported in an accident in Gagetown Saturday. Gary Raymond Louis, 24, of Gagetown swerved into a snowbank to avoid hitting a car driven by Clarence William David, 65, of Gagetown.

Louis was driving on Bay City-Forestville Road, about a quarter of a mile west of Dodge Road, when David drove onto the highway from his driveway.

Cars driven by Harold A. Langlois, 41, of Gagetown and James Leonard Hawley, 16, of rural Cass City, collided Friday evening on Colwood road, about three-quarters of a mile south of Elwood road.

According to the report of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, Hawley was backing out of a drive to go north on Colwood road and failed to see the car driven by Langlois approaching. Hawley was ticketed for failure to yield right of way.

Village Accidents

Three accidents occurred in Cass

City during the week. Jim Jezewski, patrolman, investigated a collision Saturday between cars belonging to Allen John, Merchant of Cass City and Ruth Ann Miller of Mio. Both drivers were unable to stop at the intersection of Pine and Leach Streets, due to icy streets. There were no injuries and the Miller car was damaged on the left side.

Another accident due to slippery streets happened Sunday, reported Patrolman Jezewski.

Donald August Freiburger of Snover damaged the left side of a car driven by Glenn Miracle of Cass City.

Freiburger applied the brakes at Church street. His car failed to stop and he ran into the Miracle car which was attempting to make a left turn.

John Michael Bastian of Bad Axe was issued a ticket by Patrolman Jezewski for improper passing.

Bastian stated he thought the car driven by Donald Elton Willis of Cass City was about to make a right turn, from M St. onto Sherman. Instead Willis made a left turn. The Bastian car was across the center line passing and hit the Willis car when it turned, causing extensive damage to the car. There were no injuries and the Willis car was removed by a wrecker.

School Hires Lawyer to Look Over Contracts

The school board has hired the Thomas law firm of Flint to advise it on contract interpretation in negotiations with the MEA teachers' union.

One of his first duties will be to interpret the 1967-68 contract with the teachers. He will also be available for legal service and could have negotiation guidelines to submit.

The firm was retained at a flat $150 yearly retainer and the tacit promise that when and if any bond business is conducted by the school it will be awarded to him.

Quinn talked to teachers from the Peck School along with Principal Richard Spalding Jan. 18, outlining his program. A trip to Sandusky and a meeting with school principals Andrew Atkins of the High School and Larry Wilson of the Intermediate School followed Jan. 19. Meetings at Carsonville, Deckerville and Crosswell were scheduled.

Some suggestions included an educational materials center to serve the three counties where teachers could go for equipment and materials that are out of the reach of individual schools, audio visual centers with a common pool of films, tapes and the equipment to reproduce them.

Tuscola county superintendents, James Sutherland of Caro, Don Crouse of Cass City, Bruce Dunn of Reese, Gordon Helmbold of Millington, Jerry Thienes of Mayville and Assistant Superintendent Roger Troupe of Vassar and Prin-

Voters of the Owendale-Gagetown School District Monday approved by a substantial margin a $425,000 bond issue for the construction of grade rooms in Owendale and in Gagetown.

The vote in the special election was 236 in favor and 157 against. According to school authorities, seven classrooms will be added at Gagetown and five at Owendale. School authorities are contacting architects to have detailed plans drawn for the projects.

Members of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce are voting to determine six new members of the board of directors in a letter ballot mailed to members last week.

PACE Meetings Held in Sanilac

The Thumb area's supplementary study program for education, called PACE, moved into high gear this month with Program Director George Quinn beginning a series of visits to Sanilac county high schools to talk with teachers and meeting with Tuscola county superintendents. PACE is the name given to the federally financed program of the Education Department that is seeking ways to supplement educational programs in Sanilac, Tuscola and Huron counties with new ideas.

Quinn talked to teachers from the Peck School along with Principal Richard Spalding Jan. 18, outlining his program. A trip to Sandusky and a meeting with school principals Andrew Atkins of the High School and Larry Wilson of the Intermediate School followed Jan. 19. SHORTY LUETTKE AND LOUIS SALAS
Cass City

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

You probably will quit running my little piece in your paper when I tell you what I did yesterday. I set down and wrote a letter to my Congressman and told him I didn't ever aim to vote for him if he didn't vote to cut off all foreign aid to ever country in the world.

On account of the weather being half bad lately and me being all the way lazy, I been spending my time all week reading and studying the matter.

What brung up my verdict was hearing one of them Washington column writers that was just back from Paris telling folks on television that General DeGaulle was whispering to his close friends that we stole Louisiana from France in 1803 and actual Louisiana still belonged to France. This fellow on television reported DeGaulle was saying we didn't give but $15 million for that territory and furthermore the French authorities that sold it didn't have no legal right to make the deal.

That's the kind of feller running France, a country we bailed out of two world wars and rebuilt after the last war.

This put me to studying some newspaper chippings I was saving in a box under the bed and one of these pieces, that was put out by a U. S. Senator, reported the United States had spent $880 billion on foreign aid since the end of World War II and we ain't got a friend in the world except South Korea and Formosa, two small countries that was depending on us to keep 'em from getting invaded.

I don't recollect from my history book in the sixth grade how much we paid Russia for Alaska and when we bought it, but I'm looking any day now for them Russians to claim the price was too low and the sale wasn't official.

According to the papers, we have give France more of that $880 billion than any other country and I was reading a piece yesterday where France was making us pay $3 million to French civilian workers for losing their jobs when NATO moves out of France after that country ordered us to get out of the country.

And most of them countries in South America and Africa that was getting millions from American tax payers, was carrying it to the bank with one hand and burning up our embassy flag with the other.

With all the money we was squandering away here at home and the cost of the War in Vietnam, we can't keep on sending billions to them foreign countries without taxes eating us up in the end. I was talking to my old lady, that ain't agreed with me political more'n a half dozen times in 40 year, but she was agreed on this one and our Congressman has done lost two votes if he don't see the light.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Eighth Grade Posts Best Game Of Year-Loses

Cass City's eighth grade team played what Coach John Bifoss termed its best over-all game of the season, but still bowed to Caro Friday, 34-26.

Bifoss said the boys moved the ball well on offense and took good shots while keeping the young Tigers from easy buckets.

Balanced scoring was the feature of the Cass City attack. Rob Alexander netted seven points, Ralph Retherford and John Zawilinski, six points each, and Scott Guernsey, 5. Leading all scorers was Caro's Holik with 14 points.

Washable suede for the home seamstress now comes to market. The maker says the suede, available in white and 14 other color choices, can be washed in any soft detergent, as fine lingerie is, or can be spot-cleaned with a special cleaner. The suede sews with normal thread and needle.

Victory Eludes Cass City in Close Games

Like the song says, "With a little bit, just a little bit, just a little bit of bloom'ing luck", and Cass City could have had a pair of victories over the two top teams in the Thumb B Conference instead of a pair of losses.

Tuesday, Jan. 31, the team lost an overtime heartbreaker to the Lakers and Friday fell to a last half rally of State-ranked Caro, 63-52.

The final score of the Caro game was deceptive. With a minute and five seconds to go there was just five points difference between the two teams.

The Hawks played an aggressive brand of defensive ball in the first quarter and jumped into a 12-3 lead at the end of the first quarter. Jim Walters carried the scoring load in the period.

Both teams scored fairly well in the second quarter as the Tigers posted a 15-14 advantage and were behind 26-23 at the intermission.

A strong third quarter enabled the Tigers to surge ahead and they retained a slender lead until the final moments of play when they pulled ahead for their final margin.

In the final analysis, the game was decided by the rugged Caro rebounding. Paced by Rich Campbell and Glen Fillion, Caro dominated the boards. They picked off 11 offensive and 23 defensive rebounds while Cass City's total was 7 offensive and 17 defensive rebounds.

Neither team scored well from the free throw line. Caro hit 52 per cent and Cass City, 50 per cent. Caro shot well from the field, converting 48 per cent of its tries while Cass City shot an average 31 per cent from the field.

Rick Kaufman continued to show improvement in the game. He came off the bench to hit four of eight tries from the field and one of six free throws. In addition, he picked off six rebounds, second only to Walters, who had seven.

Scoring for Cass City was evenly divided. John Maharg and Walters each netted 12 points. Dave Asher had 10 and Kaufman, nine. Caro's Campbell had 24 points and A. Wasik netted 19.

Maharg led the team in total play, according to the rating system used by Coach John Oswald.

A NEW BIBLE FOR EVERY FAMILY attending the Presbyterian Church in Cass City Sunday has been promised by Dr. Marion Hostetter, pastor. The new translation has many advantages, says Hostetter. Examining the books with the pastor are Henry Volschow, Cass City's German exchange student, and Shirley McIntosh of MSU.

New Translation Bibles To Be Given Free at Local Church

Copies of a new translation of the New Testament, "Good News for Modern Man," recently published by the American Bible Society, will be given to all families who attend the 11 a. m. service at the Presbyterian Church next Sunday, the first Sunday in Lent. A great many different translations of the New Testament have been published in the past 20 years, and a few of them have become best sellers. But why so many, when all of them are actually the same Bible?

One reason for retranslating the Bible from time to time is that the English language is a living, changing tongue, so that a word may not mean the same this year that it meant even 10 years ago. Any middle-aged person will remember, for example, that it was once a compliment to say someone was "a square fellow." Then the meaning of the word changed in such a way that it was anything but complimentary to call someone "a square."

The following words from the King James Version (KJV) published in 1611 would be quite obscure to many modern readers: "Forasmuch as we have heard, that certain which went out from us have troubled you with words, subverting your souls." This becomes clearer in the Revised Standard Version (RSV) published in 1952: "Since we have heard that some persons from us have troubled you with words, unsettling your minds." It is further simplified in "Good News for Modern Man," published in 1966 and known as Today's English Version (TEV): "We have heard that some of our group went out and troubled and upset you by what they said."

Since TEV was prepared for people who speak English as an acquired language, it is also very understandable for those who speak English as their mother tongue. In this version "gospel" is translated "good news," and "the voice of one crying in the wilderness" becomes "Someone is shouting in the desert." To an American, "wilderness" usually suggests a forest; John really preached in desert country.

Some may object that the finer shades of meaning are lost by the simplification, as when, instead of "God was in Christ reconciling the world to himself" we find "God was making friends of all men through Christ." But anyone interested in the finer shades of meaning can always consult other available versions.

A second reason for making new translations is that the discovery of older Greek and Hebrew manuscripts now enables Bible students to prepare ever more authentic texts. Because of the deterioration of ancient writing materials, no original manuscript of any book of the Bible is known to be in existence today. During the centuries when the manuscript copies of the Bible were being recopied by hand, some copyists' errors found their way into the Greek and Hebrew texts, and it was from these medieval manuscripts that the King James Version was translated. Since that time hundreds of older manuscripts have been located (the most widely publicized in recent years being the Dead Sea Scrolls), and by studying these an international committee of New Testament scholars, sponsored by several members of the United Bible Societies, finally published in 1966 an authoritative text of the Greek New Testament.

It was from this Greek text that TEV was translated by Dr. Robert G. Bratcher, who attempted to use common, simple English words, just as the authors of the New Testament used the common form of the Greek language of their time. Illustrations by the Swiss artist Annie Valotton are scattered throughout the book.

In order to keep from confusing people I have used the Revised Standard Version in church almost exclusively for the past fifteen years," said Dr. Hostetter, "even though J. B. Phillips' 'New Testament in Modern English' and 'The New English Bible-New Testament' have been interesting and helpful. But I was so excited about the simplified language of Today's English Version that I suggested our church should buy a supply of these books and give them to every family who came to church on the first Sunday in Lent, whether they usually attend the Presbyterian Church or not.

Eagle Bird Award For Second Effort

By Dan Marlowe

I'm thinking of creating an award to be known as The Order of the Eagle Bird for exceptional achievement under adverse conditions.

I'm an admirer of what the football pros call "second effort", the extra burst of cantankerous energy that the man stopped at the line of scrimmage contributes to smashing his way out of the pileup, plowing ahead again, and bursting into the open. I've encountered second effort in places other than the football field occasionally, and it has always seemed a pity to me that it never received suitable recognition.

I've thought of having a medal designed and struck, or a lapel button, to be presented to such individuals. I had been postponing the initiation of the program until the accumulation of my first million freed me from petty distractions, but since that day seems unaccountably delayed, I hereby promise to license anyone who will take over and carry on in good faith. (Madison Avenue, nyet. Kindly do not apply).

It needn't be an elaborate award. For myself, I always intended to have a bronze struck of an eagle, and my medal wearers would be known as Eagle Birds. The design would not be of a chicken-hawk eagle, but of an eagle-looking eagle, one whose basilisk stare directed outward from a lapel would cause the beholder to take an involuntary backward step.

Why an eagle? Because of a mental association going back to the late 1890's and my days of roustabouting around the race-tracks of the country (the scars from that period have mostly faded now). In those bad old days, fixed races took place occasionally, never as often as fiction would indicate, but often enough to make it a factor among the impediments of selecting a winner. Since there were a few honest men around in those days, too, it was rarely possible to fix every horse in a race, and indeed this millennium was infrequently pursued. In a six horse race, for instance, it would usually be sufficient to fix four or five of the horses' trainers and/or jockeys, designating in advance the one among them selected to be the winner.

In some manner, the unfixed horse or horses in such races came to be known as "eagle birds", and twice in my life I have waited at racetrack finish lines and watched just such an eagle bird, assiduously conveyed by a platoon of fixed horses, boxed-in, buffeted about, carried wide, and otherwise harassed, still break free and come on to win, proving that Robbie Burns knew what he was talking about.

I believe we've all seen men who give battle to foul circumstance and emerge triumphant. Never enough of them, but a few. Because they refuse to bow to expedience, such men are invariably castigated as unrealistic stargazers and dynamiters of the status quo. I suggest that an award for them is long past due, whether mine or another, and until a better proposal comes along, I'll continue to push for The Order of the Eagle Bird, for those all-too-few superior types who didn't know it couldn't be done, and did it.

Ever go to an accident with my wife?

There's only one thing worse than going to an accident with my wife. That's being in one.

Despite the things I report here, my wife is positively normal in every way. Let her come upon an accident and she pulls a Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde routine.

One minute she's a housewife and mother and the next she's Florence Nightingale running up and down the trenches giving aid and comfort to the wounded.

I always, on the way to an accident, brief her. "Don't touch anybody... just be an observer... that's the business I'm in... observing... we can get sued."

She always agrees but no sooner does the car screech to a halt than she's out there giving salt tablets and aspirins to the wounded and spectators.

I suppose there's nothing wrong with this, except the fact that my wife has a certain ability to turn a small incident into a disaster. I can think of three minor accidents which ended up with someone going to the hospital with severe injuries because my wife gave them assistance... and two of them weren't involved in the accidents.

Let me give you an example. You're in an accident. Smash the car up so bad that they have to look at the registration to tell what kind it is. You're mildly mangled, too.

Two Receive Caps In Nursing School

The first step towards a nursing career was achieved by two area residents when Mrs. Elva Pine and Miss Linda Hahn were members of a class of 22 who received their caps in Bay City Feb. 2.

They will continue their training in Arts and Science of Nursing at Mercy Hospital, Bay City.

Miss Hahn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hahn of Cass City and Mrs. Pine's daughter Kelly and son Michael attend Cass City School.

Cass City-Kingston ABA Schedules Meet in Deford

The Cass City-Kingston ABA annual meeting will be held in the Deford School Saturday, Feb. 18. The meeting will begin with dinner at 12:30, served by the Good Neighbor Clubs of Deford.

Miss Elaine Ellis, Extension 4-H Youth Agent, who was an IFYE Exchange Student to Peru, will tell of her experiences and will also show colored slides.

Included on the program will be the election of officers.

When you come to, you're in the hospital and the doctors are frantically working on you. They fail. And you have to spend the rest of your life with your left hand on backwaters.

Keeping this in mind, the next time you have an accident and out of the crowd charges an angel of mercy with the torch of healing spewing fire on the onlookers, get well in a hurry. That's my wife.

was one of her instructors in college, as "an inspirational person who integrates design into his total living." For example, he and his family designed and built their own home, plus all the furniture, dishes, utensils and artifacts in it. Mrs. Wallace recalls that he taught his children at an early age the importance of functional design which was also aesthetically pleasing by supplying them with the raw materials for an automobile, which they subsequently designed and built for themselves.

His views on industrial design have received national and international coverage and in 1962 he was awarded the "Master Design Award" by Product Engineering magazine.

Tickets for the 8 p.m. lecture will be available at the Cass City Cultural Center the night of the performance.

BPW Members Hear Club History

The monthly dinner meeting of the Cass City BPW was held Feb. 1 at the New Gordon Hotel with 20 members and one guest, Miss Ruth Miller, present.

President Verna Mae MacRae presided at the business meeting. Chairman of the theatre program, Betty Jo Agar, reported the club has reservations for "Hello Dolly" at the Fischer for April 12. A bake-less bake sale will be held in March, with proceeds to be given to the Cultural Center.

The program was presented by Thelma Pratt, club historian. Many events and programs of the club and its members were recalled from its charter night to the present date. Jean Dergis and Sherry Seeley assisted with the program. Geraldine Fischer, sunshine chairman, presented lucky packages to Irene Stafford and Ruth Miller.

Hostetter's Hodgepodge

Making A Dollar Do Double Duty

By Marion Hostetter

From a source usually considered reliable, Ella Price heard that there was to be a service of prayer for Christian unity at St. Pancratius Church on January 25. Always in favor of fostering good will, she showed up at the church on that date, to find that the only event in progress was a bingo party to raise money for buying a new vacuum cleaner for the church hall. Still trying to be ecumenical, she donated a dollar and played the game, but she came away without winning any prize.

A day or two later Ella found a dollar bill on top of a snow-bank . . . clearly a heaven-sent recompense for her large-heartedness. In an effort to keep everything on an even keel, Ella contributed that dollar to the Presbyterian Church. Now there's an example of what I call real grass roots ecumenism!

Some of our local factories have installed computers for such purposes as controlling production and figuring payrolls. Here's a story about a machine that made a mistake . . . and a man who can't like it.

It seems this irate employee went to the paymaster and carefully counted out the money in his pay envelope. "It's one dollar short. What's the meaning of this?"

The paymaster checked the record sheet and, trying hard to conceal a smile, replied, "Last week we overpaid you a dollar. You didn't complain about that mistake, did you?"

"An occasional mistake, I can overlook," answered the angry man, "but two in a row."

Two in a row are more noticeable than one, and when you find twelve in a row, you really have something.

One night the females in the family decided that they had been doing more than their share of the dish-washing, so they proposed that we flip a coin to see who should do the dishes that evening.

Recognizing that Don and I had nothing to lose, since it really was our turn (and since this would give us a fifty-fifty chance of another reprieve), I readily agreed to the proposal. Heads, the men should wash and dry; tails, the women should do it.

Well, it came up tails, to the sound of much feminine moaning. We agreed to try it again . . . and again. And, believe it or not, twelve times in a row it came up tails. The thirteenth time, of course, had to bring bad luck.

While the girls were doing the dishes, Don and I figured the odds on such a happening. It's been a long time since I studied "chance and chance," and he hasn't come to that branch of mathematics yet, but if our calculations are correct the chance of flipping twelve tails in a row is 1 in 4096.

I did a double take when I read this want ad in a local paper: "Bring your bean knives in now for hammering or rebuilding. Will not be unable to do them all later."

One of my nephews recently graduated from Ohio State University, and is now working in an office in Columbus while awaiting his call to active army duty. He and some other fellows from his office had been parking in the lot of a Holiday Inn as an economy measure. One day they found that the air had been let out of one tire on each car. They are now parking in an adjoining lot for 60 cents a day . . . and wondering whether the air was let but by an enraged inn owner or an enterprising parking lot proprietor.

When an exchange student from Sweden visited a school in this country that trains highway patrolmen, he was schooled to see that trainees in marksmanship classes were awarded ten points for shooting the dummy through the heart and only two for shooting it in the leg.

This column is something like the weather . . . everybody talks about it and nobody does anything about it. I haven't had a single offer since I volunteered to buy an acre of land on which to pitch my tent. The nearest I came to a nibble was from a man I found flat on his back in the hospital; he couldn't get away from me.

So I was glad to read that somebody is finally taking a little action. Just a few days after I wrote about radar speed traps the village council talked about buying one of them.

Tell of Eye Bank at Altar Society Meet

Thirty-two members were present at the St. Pancratius Altar Society meeting Monday, Feb. 6, at the church social hall. Guests included Mrs. Joe Mosack, Mrs. Allen McDonald, Val Furness, Mrs. Evans Parrott and Mrs. William Laverich.

President Mrs. George Murray reported on the Saginaw Diocesan Council Executive Board meeting. Mrs. Ed Scollon, chairman of the Nursery School committee, had her recommendations presented before the club.

Mrs. J. D. Tuckey read from the book of Ruth and Mrs. Ronald Pre Fontaine read of the life and works of St. Luke.

Mrs. Thomas Herron explained the theme for the program, Eyes of the Past, as she introduced the past presidents, honoring them with corsages. A review of the past history of St. Pancratius Church was also given.

Mrs. Murray turned to the second part of the theme, Eyes of the Future. A program was presented by Fred Johnson of Lathrup Village on Michigan Eye Collection. The Eye Bank is a joint project between individual Lions Clubs of Michigan and the University Hospital. Cass City Lions Club members Ron Keegan and Evans Parrott were present.

The refreshment committee included Mrs. Ron Keegan, Mrs. Thomas Jackson, Mrs. William Johnston and Mrs. Arthur Decker.

Delta College competes in the Michigan Junior and Community College Athletic Conference in five sports: basketball, tennis, golf, cross country, track.

Moody Bible Course Set at Local Church

An adult education program for local citizens has been established by the First Baptist Church of Cass City.

Meeting every Wednesday at 6:35 p. m. at the church, the group studies courses of Moody Correspondence School of Chicago. The course is entitled "Beginning with Genesis" and the first session will be held Feb. 22.

The group enrolled under this program is part of some 1,000 groups throughout the U. S. in similar extension programs of the Moody school. These classes are open to persons interested in understanding the Bible and related subjects.

Program leader Rev. Richard Canfield explains that class members meet regularly for study and discussion of each lesson. After class, the student completes an exam, which is corrected and graded by the Chicago school. Everyone who successfully completes the course is awarded a certificate of completion by Moody Bible Institute.

Moody Correspondence School operates as part of Moody Bible Institute, one of the nation's oldest and largest Bible institutes.

Persons interested in the course should contact Pastor Canfield, 872-3155.

CORRECTION

The Chronicle received a telephone call and a letter from persons regarding an error in last week's Chronicle concerning the selling of rides to children on a Ski-doo by Dick Hendrick. He actually gave free rides with no charge.

The Chronicle was misinformed and was in error. The Chronicle regrets the mistake and is grateful that Dick was very gracious in calling our attention to it.

By the time you are old you don't care what the morrow brings, provided you are rich, carefree, and free of pain.

The Delta College dormitories presently under construction are expected to be completed in January 1968. They will house 160 students. Cost for room and board is $440 per 15-week semester.

Selective Service

Classify 8 as 1-A

Local Board No. 83, Tuscola county, has received its February draft quota of eight registrants who formerly were classified 1-Y and are now classified 1-A.

The Board has 28 of these men. The oldest men will be taken first and most of these will not have to take another pre-induction physical.

State Selective Service Director Arthur Holmes states that special calls will be issued from the 1-Y registrants from February through September. The men classified as 1-Y are registrants who failed to pass the Selective Service mental examination. New mental standards effective Dec. 1, 1966, provide for the acceptability of registrants who are otherwise physically and morally qualified.

Present Dialogue At WSCS Meeting

The Rev. James Braid and Fr. Arnold Messing enacted a dialogue between a Christian and a Muslim missionary for the regular meeting of the WSCS Monday evening at the Methodist church, to point up the more frequent possibility of talks between the average Christian and the average Muslim in our "neighborhood-size world".

This followed a short history of the Muslims given by program chairman, Mrs. Evans Parrott, who tried to show some reasons why this religion is gaining converts in the eastern countries.

Devotions were led by Mrs. William Leverich, replacing co-chairman Mrs. J. D. Alexander, who is in the hospital. The program was concluded with the reading of a translation of an ecumenical Lord's Prayer which has been approved by the Catholic, Protestant and Orthodox churches of France.

Dinner was served by Group I with Mrs. E. C. Fritz as chairman.

Diversity Does Not Mean Division

Never before have farmers had so many solid reasons for joining FARM BUREAU and never before have so many taken advantage of that fact!

Although there are more than 300 important farm "crops" — a majority of all commercial farmers now belong to Farm Bureau. They have learned that diversity does not mean division, and that uniformity is not necessary for unity.

Farm Bureau membership in 49 states and Puerto Rico has reached an all-time membership high with 1,703,908 family members — a gain of 26,000 over last year.

Michigan farmers are joining Farm Bureau in increasing numbers, as farmers everywhere join together to improve their incomes and farming future.

JOIN FARM BUREAU — the only farm organization that is truly nation-wide.

IT SEEMS TO ME A Lot of People Helped Me Out...

By Rev. R. J. Searls

Near the end of last month, I had an experience that reaffirmed my faith in rural Michigan. My wife and I were just about 5 miles from Caro, when all sorts of things began to happen, and we just managed to get off the road and into the driveway of a friendly looking home. The people who lived there were just as friendly as the house looked. Turned out that they were related to the Seelyes of Cass City.

It seemed to take forever to get a wrecker, and it's owner wasn't very excited by the prospect of taking our car to Cass City. Finally, we called Mr. Bolen who not only had his wrecker on the scene in prompt order, but had another car all warmed up (it was that very cold morning, with temperatures below zero) so we could continue to Ford Hospital where I had a hard to get annual check-up scheduled.

We arrived during the dinner hour. We explained to the doctor's secretary all that had happened, thinking he might yet consent to see me. He sent word from the doctor's dining room that he would see me immediately on his return to his office and suggested that we get something to eat. There a friendly waitress remembered me from earlier days. Back upstairs we waited only a few minutes before we were in the doctor's examination room. At least some of his warm spirit was prompted by the earlier experiences of the day passed on through his secretary. I have never had a more thorough examination; and never have had any doctor sit down and answer all of our questions, as he did, inspired (we felt) by the impressive picture of Cass City's terrific help to us on a cold, cold day. Or, so it seems to me!

ATTENTION all you program chairmen! A colored motion picture usable for 16 or 35mm, has been made available for your use by the nearest office of Social Security. Or they will send a SS representative to come to your organization to both show this program and to answer any questions that may arise. The Rev. Melvin Vender is the source of this information and can help you to get it for your group.

LAUGH! A young lady who lived with her aunt was entrusted with the aunt's wages, the aunt being confined at home by illness on payday. On her way home, the young lady was held up and robbed of the entire contents of her purse — including the Aunt's pay envelope. Recovering from the shock, she rushed up screaming to a nearby police officer and shouted, "Quick! A man held me up and stole my aunt's pay!"

"All right, all right," comforted the officer, "Cut out the pig latin and tell me what this is all about!"

Although it may take 40 years, Fiji Islanders have hopes that a recent tree-planting project will someday net an income of $9 million. This is one way of guaranteeing their independence from Missionary control.

Two golf enthusiasts, vacationing in Mexico, decided to play the local golf course. They engaged two native caddies and teed off. One golfer was a hot-shot off the tee. 300-yard drives were his specialty. You know the type. He was good and he knew it.

On the sixth fairway, a 425-yarder over a hill, he asked both caddies to stand atop the hill to observe where his drive was going. Then he drove the ball mightily, giving it all he had. It was a solid hit but it sliced suddenly, hitting one of the caddies in the breadbasket, folding him in two quickly as he toppled over.

The other caddy rushed over to him, straightened him out (and then shouted back to the oncoming golfer: "Senor! You have just made a hole in Juan!")

(Juan is pronounced as Huan.)

Rites Saturday for Felix Lemanski, 87

Funeral services for Felix Lemanski, 87, of Deford were held Saturday morning at St. Michael's church, Wilmot. Rev. Raymond Pillarski officiated. Burial was in the church cemetery. Rosary was recited at Harman Funeral Home, Kingston.

Mr. Lemanski died Thursday at Hills and Dales Hospital after a brief illness.

He was born November 15, 1879, in Poland and married Miss Stella Petrowski Feb. 17, 1908.

He lived in Michigan since 1907, was a resident of the Tyre and Uby area until 1936, when he moved to Deford.

Survivors are his wife; three sons, Frank of Detroit, Alex of Kingston and Chester of Deford; two daughters, Mrs. Anne Rutka of Detroit and Mrs. Phyllis Salowitz of Detroit. Ten grandchildren, three great-grandchildren and one brother, William Lemanski of Port Huron, also survive.

Agent's Corner

Mrs. Ann Ross

Two big D's in the textiles and clothing field are looming up larger than ever this year — "durable press" and "disposables."

Both, according to Mrs. Ann Ross, Thumb area extension home economist, come under the heading of the "easy care" trend.

Here's what's foreseen in the durable press arena:

Twice as many durable press items on the market as last year. Doubled again in 1970.

Durable press, now found in slacks, shirts, dresses and skirts, is going into lingerie.

Fabrics for durable-press garments are now usually 50 to 65 percent polyester fiber blended with cotton. However, durable-press all-cotton shirts for men and boys are now widely available.

Men's suits made from all-cotton seersucker are foreseen in durable-press — probably this year.

News for home seamstresses — service places where you can give a durable-press finish to fabrics you sew.

News for men — men's hats that are permanently shaped and soil resistant are due to be introduced this fall.

Here's what's coming in disposables:

Disposables — those garments made with nonwoven and knitted paper fabrics or of nonwoven cotton, rayon, nylon and olefin — are due in shifts and swimming trunks for summer wear.

More dresses, aprons and baby dresses are due for fall.

Anticipated just around the corner are more hospital items (patient's gowns are here now). Research is now underway on disposable sheets and garments for hospitals where manufacturers expect their biggest market.

Men's underwear, football jerseys, graduation gowns and beach ponchos are coming.

Disposables will make big inroads for travel use. They're considered reasonably cheap and durable (for short-term use) and reasonably resistant to water and fire.

Put delicate curtains and lingerie in a pillow case before assigning them to the washing machine.
