

$150,000 SuitJury Hearing Unusual Case

An unusual case opened in Tuscola County Circuit Court Tuesday before visiting Judge John Tietler of Bay City.

James D. Whitman of Bay City is asking for $150,000 damages for injuries suffered in an accident near Cass City and Colwood Roads in 1962.

The defendants in the case are the Tuscola County Highway Department, Dallas F. Starr and James F. Hagens.

The opening testimony in the case was heard by the jury Tuesday and the case could take the remainder of the week, according to court authorities.

Whitman was a passenger in a car driven by Hagens and owned by Starr.

According to the testimony, the three men were going hunting and drove on the shoulder of the road, preparing to park.

When they left the road the car hit an angle iron, obscured by weeds, that served as a guard rail. The iron went through the car and hit Whitman in the leg. It broke both bones in the leg.

The injury required surgery and hospitalization and now one leg is shorter than the other.

A 14-member jury is listening to the testimony and two jurors will be dismissed when the case is concluded and goes to the jury.

From the Editor's Corner

Cliff Ferguson has the worst memory of any person I know. The other day he called his old friend, Grant Ball, who is vacationing in Florida.

They talked for quite awhile and other friends also said hello while Grant was on the line. It turned out to be a comparatively lengthy call.

I monitored the call and that's the reason why I know that Ferguson's memory is lousy.

He can't even remember his own phone number.

When the operator asked whom to charge the call to he gave Ball's number instead of his own.

If the second section of today's paper looks a little different to you it's because it's printed by the new process I was talking about several months ago.

The first section is printed the way we've done it here for 50 years and we printed the eight pages in about a quarter of the time that it took us to publish the six pages under the new method.

Next week we hope to publish the entire paper with the new method and after we've mastered some of the details of the new operation, we'll run a few pictures to try to show you how it's done.

Of course, anyone wanting to see for himself is welcome to come in and tour the plant. The door is also always open for groups, but I suggest you call for an appointment so that a time can be arranged when the majority of the equipment is in operation.

Probably by the time you read this the answer will be known, but I predict that the Lakers will defeat Inlay City Wednesday night. I also predict that the victory will be the only one for the team at Flint.

Before you start betting the family farm, I should point out that I'm still paying off bets on Caro in the just completed district tourney at Caro.

Feel Rooked? It's Complaint Time For Taxpayers

Boards of review for area townships have announced annual public meeting dates when taxpayers can take their questions or complaints about property taxes and have them checked by the board.

Elmwood township and the village of Gagetown are holding a joint meeting this year March 13 and 14 at the Elmwood town hall. In the village of Cass City, March 14 and 15 are set for review dates and the meetings will be held at the municipal building.

Greenleaf township, Elkland township and Novesta township have also scheduled meets for March 13 and 14 at town halls in each area. Evergreen township has set March 14 as a review date. Most have scheduled 9:00 a. m. till 12:00 noon and 1:00 till 4:00 p. m. for taxpayers.

50c Liner Sells 2 Cows for Kitchin

"It did the job for me," reported William Kitchin of rural Cass City while in the Chronicle office to pay for a liner ad he phoned in.

Kitchin advertised two fresh Holstein cows, ran the low cost, 50-cent ad one week, in the Feb. 23 issue, and promptly sold them both.

DISPLAYING THE EGGS that have found ready acceptance from area persons is Mrs. Lee Galloway of Decker. She starts with the two shells she is holding and turns them into gaily colored Easter creations. (Chronicle photo)

Mrs. Galloway Hatches Small Business with Creative Eggs

Take a dash of ingenuity, mix it with a pinch of artistic creativity and stir it with a lot of hard work and presto! Before you know it a hobby has turned into a small business.

At least it has for Mrs. Lee Galloway, Decker, who does a booming business selling hand-made Easter eggs each spring.

Mrs. Galloway has built a justifiable local reputation for her skill in transforming some wet sugar, Royal frosting and food paint into works of art.

And like the man who built the better mousetrap, more and more persons are beating a path to her door. When they get there they plunk down 50 cents, 75 cents or a dollar for one of the three sizes of eggs Mrs. Galloway creates and come away with a bargain.

Figured on time and material basis, Mrs. Galloway can't be getting rich on her small business. She estimates that it takes about a half hour to completely finish one of the eggs, although the actual process stretches over a week or two.

One thing sure, Mrs. Galloway explained, is that you can't rush the work. I start at least a week ahead of the time I want to finish the egg.

The first step is to take the forms, which are two matching halves of Easter egg shaped plastic, and fill them with damp white granulated sugar.

After two hours, Mrs. Galloway removes the shells and the outer edges of the sugar has hardened. Then I carefully remove the sugar that has not hardened and I have two shells of sugar, shaped like an egg, she said.

It's important, she emphasized, to give the shells plenty of time to harden. I leave them at least a week, she explained.

After the shells are ready, the hard part of the operation starts. The top half of the shell is painted blue . . . but not too far down or the scene on the inside is hard to see, Mrs. Galloway explained.

And it is the scene that is inside that makes the eggs unusual. With a flair not bestowed on many, Mrs. Galloway uses ordinary frosting and turns them into tiny Easter bunnies, Easter lilies and various other designs . . . all complete to the tiniest detail. Since most of the creations are around two inches or smaller, it appears to the novice that each design would take many hours to create.

But it doesn't for Mrs. Galloway. You can make two complete eggs in an hour very easily, she claims, and that also includes the outside decoration of the eggs, cementing the two halves together and placing of a plastic window in one end of the egg so that the scene on the inside can be viewed.

It's likely that the Decker housewife can create an egg faster than the ordinary person because she has had a great deal more practice than the average amateur.

When members of St. Agatha Church parish in Gagetown greeted their new pastor at a reception held at the church Sunday, March 5, they found that Fr. Joseph P. Friske (rhymes with risky) is a priest with an international education.

Although his home was in Saginaw, his schooling covers well-known institutions in Europe and in the United States.

He attended high school in Munich, Germany. After graduation he attended Sacred Heart Seminary in Detroit for two years and Catholic University in Washington, D. C., for three years.

He continued his education at the University of Innsbruck, Austria, for 2½ years and at St. John's Seminary, Plymouth, for two years.

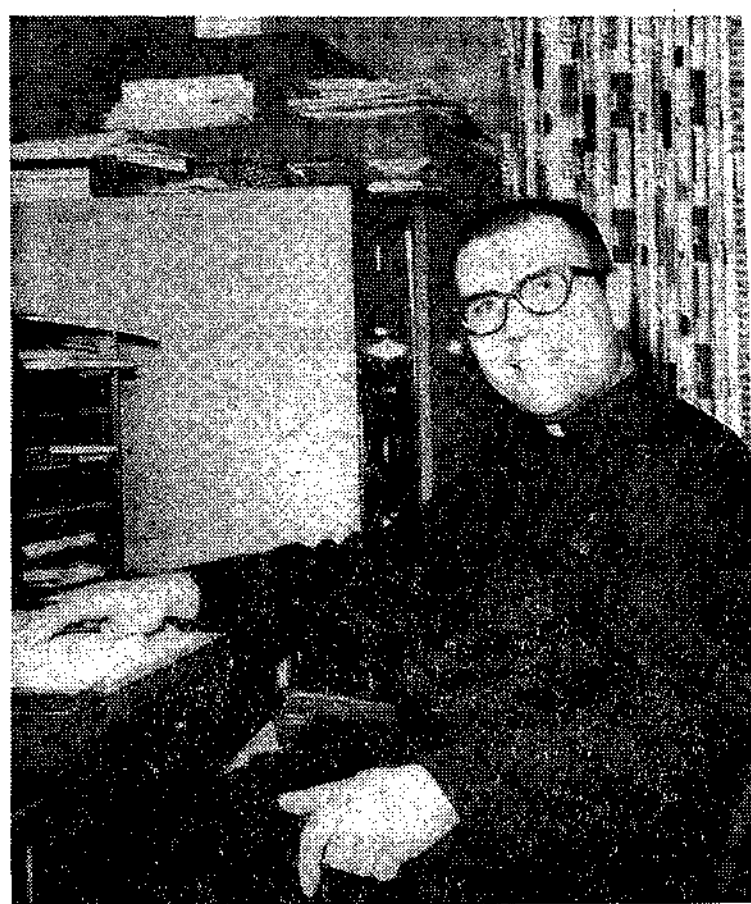

Fr. Friske also studied languages in Paris.

He was installed at St. Agatha Wednesday, March 1, in a special evening service conducted by Fr. Robert Navarre, dean of the Thumb Deanery, from Bad Axe.

St. Agatha is his first parish. Prior to his appointment, he was assistant pastor at St. Bridget Church, Midland, for a year and a half.

The new priest said that he was happy to be at Gagetown and that he has no definite plans for his first parish.

Right now, he concluded, I just want to get unpacked and settled.

Several Injured In Accidents In Local Area

Three persons were injured in accidents investigated during the week by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

Garnet Gilmore, 44, of Kingston and Clarence Raymond Bukowski, 49, of Uby were treated for injuries at Marlette General Hospital following an automobile accident at the corner of M-46 and Ross street in Koylton township.

According to the police report, Bukowski was traveling east on M-46 and a car driven by Gilmore was going north on Ross street. The two cars collided at the intersection.

Gilmore was taken to the hospital by ambulance. Both cars were badly damaged.

Alan Secord, 16, a passenger in a car driven by Arvilla Marie Brown, Saginaw, was injured in an accident Sunday on Cemetery Road, about a half mile south of Bay City-Forestville Road. He was treated at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Mrs. Brown, who was shaken up in the crash, said that they slid on the snow into the ditch and did not know how the accident happened.

No one was injured in a two-car crash Sunday on Walsh Road, about 100 yards south of Huron Line Road in Elmwood township.

Cars driven by James Roman Burzynski, 26, and Jacob Schwartz, 55, collided when they were unable to pass because of the build up of snow on the road. Both drivers reported that there was room for just one car to pass.

Two property damage accidents were reported by the Cass City Police Department during the week.

Avoiding injury in a crash at the corner of Main and West streets Friday were Daniel Lee Nicholas of Cass City and Robert Eugene MacGuire of Shiawassee.

According to the report, Nicholas said that his vision was obscured by the four passengers in his car and he failed to see the truck behind him, driven by MacGuire, as he attempted a right turn from the center lane.

The right-front fender of the Nicholas car was damaged.

Police Chief Carl Palmateer investigated an accident at the corner of Main and Weaver streets Monday. Cars driven by Grant David Trisch of Mayville and Wayne Rabideau of Cass City collided.

Blank Ballot in GagetownVillages will Vote Monday

There will be no competition on the ballot for various offices in either the Cass City or Gagetown village election, but there could well be lots of excitement in Gagetown as voters in both communities head for the polls Monday.

Gagetown is one of many Thumb communities which nominated a slate using petitions listing the candidates as non-partisan. Under present election laws, the candidates must be listed under a party name, so the voters there will be handed blank ballots.

Every candidate will be elected by a write-in vote. Mrs. Leota Ashmore, village clerk, says that she has been advised that it would probably be illegal to even announce the candidates that were approved every way but legally with the petitions.

Cass City Election

There will be a full slate of candidates for offices on the ballot in Cass City, all running without competition, barring a write-in campaign that occasionally springs up just prior to the election.

Regardless of the vote, there will be one new person on the village council. Resigning is Bernard Freiburger.

Two other incumbent trustees will seek re-election, Mrs. Gladys Albee and J. Glenn McCullough. They are running on the Republican ticket. Another incumbent trustee, Dr. William Selby, is a candidate to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of James Baker. He was appointed to the post late last year and will serve for one year, if elected.

Barring a last-minute reversal, there will be a new trustee after Monday's election is certified. He will be J. Bernard Ross.

Ross, Cass City businessman who operates the Federated Store in Cass City, has a long record of community activities.

He has been especially active in the Chamber of Commerce and was one of the men who promoted the organization in its early formative days.

Ross is also the only Democrat on the village ballot.

2 Boys Win Top Scholastic Honors

By Arthur Holmberg

The Class of 1967 of Cass City High School has the distinction of having an unusually large number of its members graduating with high academic standing. No fewer than 17, or almost 20 per cent of the class, have maintained a grade point of 3.0 or better.

Another exceptional facet of the class is that the top students are boys. More frequently the coveted scholastic honors are earned by girls.

Edward Ackerman, 1967 Valedictorian, has achieved a perfect academic record, reaching the end of his high school career with a 4.00 grade point average. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Ackerman, of Kennebec Drive, Cass City, he was elected to membership in both the Junior and Senior National Honor Society. He was the president of his class in the tenth grade and has served on the Student Council. During all his high school years, the honor student has been employed during most of his out-of-school time. Although this has necessarily limited his extracurricular activities, he has participated frequently in the affairs of his class and the school-at-large while carrying a rigorous academic schedule.

Ackerman will attend Central Michigan University in the fall. He has as yet made no firm decision as to his major field of study or his vocational goal. He is hoping that his early college experiences will help him make these decisions.

Salutatorians honors for 1967 were earned by Tim Knight, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Knight, of Leach street, Cass City. He has recorded a grade point average of 3.76 and was named to both divisions of the Honor Society. He has been exceptionally active in music, having been a member of the band throughout both junior and senior high school. Solo and Ensemble festivals have found him a frequent entry and numerous honors have come his way for his musical ability. In the absence of the regular director, he has often led the school bands. His musical talents include the piano and organ and he has often served as accompanist and organist. Active in forensics, Knight has taken a notable part in debate and public speaking. He is capping his high school activities by serving as president of his class during his senior year.

He will study at Michigan State University. At college, he says that music will become an avocation. He plans to make social studies his major field. The exact manner in which he will use these studies he has not yet decided.

Award Contract for Akron Road Work

Frank Strausberg and Son of Saginaw were the low bidders for three miles of bituminous base and surface on Akron Road, from Coling Road to Colwood Road, five miles north of Caro.

Besides the trustees, village voters will name a president, clerk, treasurer and assessor.

Lambert E. Althaver, current president, is seeking re-election and is expected to have little trouble. Mrs. Celia L. House is running for clerk-treasurer.

In previous years, the clerk-treasurer also handled the village's secretarial duties as a full time position.

But now the duties are separated. The secretarial work, nearly a full time position, is handled by Mrs. J. D. Marshall. Mrs. House will be only the clerk-treasurer.

The reason for the switch is that Mrs. House wanted to resign all connections with the village, but her replacement lives outside of the village limits and cannot be elected to the dual positions.

The salary for clerk and treasurer is a nominal $550.

J. Bernard Ross

Another office that will be filled that has just much of its significance will be assessor. Mac Bryan O'Dell is seeking re-election to the position.

O'Dell is also Elkland township assessor. Under the new law, the village and the township must be appraised at the same rate and the value as established by the township is the one that takes precedence.

Essentially, the village assessor has no authority, other than being a position to defend property assessments in the village to the township.

The village council is considering ways to cope with the new regulations and a different arrangement is highly probable in the near future.

SPORTS FANS!

BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

by H. M. Buleh

Here's a basketball puzzler for you . . . Suppose a team gets many fouls called on it, with one player after another fouling out and soon they have no substitutes to replace the disqualified players—and they have only four players left . . . They can't put the required five players on the floor . . . What happens then? . . . Does the game stop? . . . The official rules say a team must keep on playing even if it has only four or fewer players remaining.

Do you know which was the first U. S. city to become a member of the National Hockey League? . . . It was Boston, in 1924 . . . Previous to that, all league teams were in Canada.

Here's quite an oddity about Hank Aaron, the slugging outfielder of the Braves . . . Aaron has won the home run championship of the National League three different seasons—in 1957, 1963 and 1966—and in each of these three seasons, he won the homer title by hitting exactly the same number of home runs, 44 . . . And what makes that even more of an oddity is this . . . Do you know what Aaron's uniform number is? . . . That's right, 44!

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Graham of rural Caro and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Keinath of Vassar have been delegated to participate in the Washington Legislative tour, sponsored annually by Michigan Farm Bureau Women.

After arriving in the nation's capital, the Michigan farmers will be divided into two groups with separate itineraries - the Legislative leaders and those participating in the Heritage tour.

Graham, president of Tuscola County Farm Bureau, has been selected to serve on a 30-member team. They are to contact their Senators and Congressmen and discuss Farm Bureau policies.

As spokesmen for Michigan agriculture, they will meet Congressmen in separate sessions by party and also in their offices by individuals from their districts.

The group will receive briefings on current key issues, one before leaving and another in Washington to bring them to date on such questions as foreign trade, farm labor, domestic farm programs and others.

This tour will also be highlighted by a luncheon and press conference at the National Press Club. There news media from the press, radio and television will be present to discuss matters of interest to agriculture.

The Heritage tour section, in which Mrs. Graham and the Keinaths will take part, will bring added understanding of government through planned trips to Washington's historical sites.

CASS CITY CHRONICLE

VOLUME 60, NUMBER 47

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1967

Hostettler's Hodgepodge

Oh Well, Cass City Is Still the Center

By Marion Hostettler

Once upon a time Cass City was the county seat of Tuscola county, almost. This nugget of (almost) information I gleaned from a well-worn "History of Tuscola and Bay Counties, Michigan" which was published in 1883 and is now owned by Evelyn Wells.

Tuscola county was designated as such by the legislature on April 1, 1840, but (as an April Fool's joke?) it was attached to Saginaw county for judicial and representative purposes for the next ten years. When the county was organized in 1850, the county seat was set at Vassar until the year 1860, at which time the supervisors were permanently to locate the county seat.

Vassar, Centerville (now Caro) and Wahjamega were leading contenders for the honor, but at a meeting on June 20, 1860, the supervisors voted 12 to 8 to locate the county seat permanently on the southwest quarter of section 34 in Elkland township. That would have been just south of Cass City if Cass City had been in existence at that time. At the same session a protest was placed on record to the effect that "the question could only be legally settled by a two-thirds vote of the board, to be sanctioned by a vote of the electors of the county."

In spite of the protest, the majority resolved in October, 1860, "That the county clerk, county register, sheriff, judge of probate and county treasurer, are hereby ordered and required to remove to said county seat," and "a resolution was also adopted appropriating $150 to be expended in procuring buildings."

On March 27, 1861, a committee reported that they had hired a building for one year for $150, "and that on their way to notify the clerk, an injunction had been served on them, strictly commanding them not to carry out the instructions of the board in regard to notifying the clerk."

By June, 1861, the (almost) county seat had acquired the name of "Moonshine." Because of sectional rivalries, this kind of jockeying continued until 1866, when common sense finally prevailed in a popular election, and the county seat was moved to Centerville, which, as I said, is now known as Caro. Oh, well, even if Moonshine didn't quite get to be the county seat, at least Cass City is the center of the universe. And I'd like to see anybody try to prove it isn't!

As I've said before, it's possible to be misunderstood without saying a word. And here's another swinging example told by Betty Day, Covina, California, and relayed through her mother, Mrs. Edward Pinney . . . a true story of a happening on a California throughway.

A woman driver who had her children in the back seat of the car suddenly pulled to the edge of the throughway, jumped out of the car, and began to wiggle in a series of wild gyrations. The man in the car behind assumed she was having some kind of seizure and stopped to see if he could be of help. Then a patrolman came along and saw the squirming woman and the man, who by now was holding the neck of her dress as if he were trying to choke her. The officer squealed to a halt to find out what was going on.

What was going on? The woman's little boy had accidentally dropped his pet lizard down her neck.

A committee in the Thumb area studying the training of the mentally retarded has suggested that mentally and physically handicapped persons may be able to live useful lives by working together in industry. I suppose they mean that the person who is mentally alert but physically weak could direct the actions of the person who is mentally slow but physically normal.

That reminds me of the story about the policeman who saw a car moving rather erratically along the highway between Bad Axe and Cass City. He ordered the driver to stop, and found that the car was being driven by an elderly couple. The man had the driver's license, but he had lost his sight. The woman could see, but she didn't know how to drive. So she was telling her husband when to turn right or left in order to correct his course. As I said, the car was being driven by a couple, and since the State of Michigan has no provision for dual drivers licenses, the old people had to be told that they had to stop driving.

RICK KAUFMAN is surrounded by Caro Tigers, but he pulled down this rebound anyway. However, the Hawks were unable to cope with the superior Caro shooting and bowed in the opening round of the tourney at Caro.

Hawks Lose to Caro In District Tourney Play

Cass City was quickly bounced from the tournament trail Wednesday, Mar. 1, as League Champion Caro defeated the Hawks for the third time during the season, 60-48, in the opening round of the Class B District at Caro.

The Tigers went on to soundly defeat Bad Axe, but lost in the finals to the Lakers who were scheduled Wednesday at Flint. The Tigers went into the lead early and were ahead all the way. Cass City rallied in the last period after trailing by as much as 16 points to make the game exciting for a brief moment for Hawk fans.

Featuring balanced scoring, play, the Thumb B Conference entry should rate at least an even chance to win.

But husky Rich Campbell gobled up a rebound and started a fast break that netted a quick basket for the winners and the Tigers quickly pulled out of danger.

After the key bucket, Caro quickly spurred back into a commanding lead and had the game well under control when the final whistle blew.

Actually, the game was poorly played by both teams. Cass City hit just 30 per cent of its tries from the field. Caro notched a respectable 46 per cent.

While Cass City's defense functioned fairly well, the offense was about as poor as it has been for many weeks.

The Hawks were able to convert just three field goals in both the first and third quarters and the two dismal periods were too much for Cass City to overcome in the second and fourth quarters when the offense functioned normally.

In most of Cass City's winning efforts this season, both Jim Walters and Dave Asher have scored well. Against the Tigers, Asher was held to 12 points and Walters, 10. John Maharg, who came on with a rush in the later stages of the season and helped carry the scoring load, was held to eight points.

Caro's scoring was also well divided. Dan Bassford scored 15 to lead all scorers and Charles Smith followed with 13. Al Wasik and Campbell were also in double figures.

On To Flint

The Lakers by virtue of their victory over the Tigers were to have played Inlay City in Flint. On the basis of the season's

IFYE Programs Under Way for 1968

"Learning a way of life by living it" in another country is an exciting experience. Michigan young people will have this opportunity again in 1968 through IFYE - the International Farm Youth Exchange.

Michigan delegates are selected a year in advance, points out George R. Pattullo, Extension 4-H Youth Agent for Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties. Applications are now being accepted and state-level interviews are held in May, the agent reports.

The program is founded on the principle that understanding among people promotes mutual respect and furthers progress towards world peace.

Individuals who are interested in other people, enjoy new experiences, and are willing to accept the responsibility of this opportunity, are encouraged to apply. Delegates must be high school graduates, between 20 and 30 years of age, single and willing to learn a language if necessary.

Program information and application forms are available through the county office of your Cooperative Extension Service, located at the Courthouse in Caro.

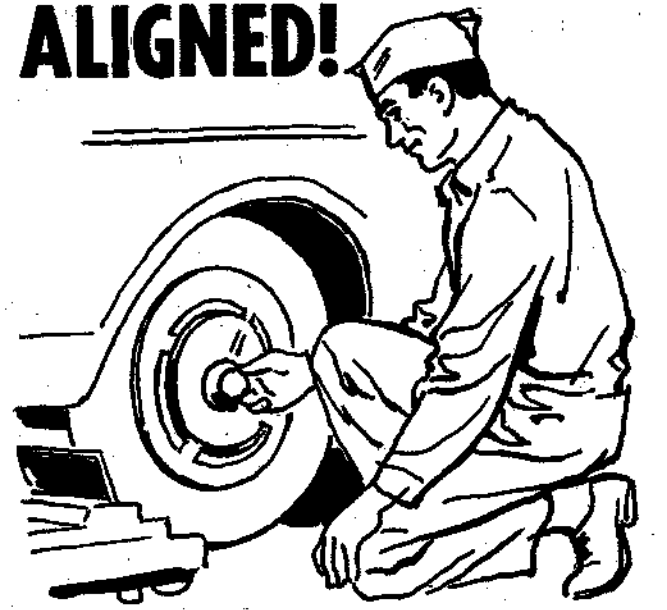

The International programs division of the National 4-H Club Foundation, Washington, D. C., assists in program coordination between Michigan State University and countries involved.

Medicare Tip

People approaching age 65 should sign up for Medicare two or three months before their birthdays if they want prompt coverage under optional medical insurance. Social Security officials note that those who wait until their birthdays to apply are eligible immediately for hospital benefits; but that medical insurance coverage does not begin until the following month.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I see by the papers where Congressman Harold Collier of Illinois was a little disturbed about that $172.4 billion budget President Johnson was asking the Congress to pass. On account of this was going to be about $8 billion more than we took in, Congressman Collier was wondering if they wasn't a few items that we could do without.

For instant, Congressman Collier reported he had discovered we got a Government setup called the U. S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency that employed 187 people. When it was set up in 1962 they was averaging $8,100 a year. After four year they was now averaging $17,000 a year. In the first place, he wanted to know how come their pay had increased double in four year. And in the second place, he said he was curious to know what they was doing. We was increasing our arms ever day and wasn't gitting no disarmament no place in the world.

I brung these figgers up at the country store Saturday night and Ed Doltittle said he knowed the answer right off. They wasn't doing nothing, said Ed, and the "do nothing" pay in Government was one of the best paying jobs they got.

Ed could be wrong, Mister Editor, but he claims he ain't never been wrong but onct in his life and that was one time when he thought he was wrong. It's pritty hard to pick a argument with a feller that's got them kind of credentials.

Most of the fellers was agreed we got a heap of items where the budget could be cut down. Zeke Grubb reported he was reading this piece in the papers where the Government built a $225,000 apartment setup for the Indians of Wind River in Wyoming and when they got it finished they wasn't no Indians that would live in it. They claimed Indians liked to live apart from other Indian families. But Zeke was of the opinion this would come under the segregation laws and them Indians was going to have to move into this building or lose their Federal aid.

It was general agreed at the session that them Congressmen had ought to plug some of the spending leaks afore they raised taxes. Bug Hookum was observed that it was hard to believe this was the same country our fourfathers founded as a protest agin taxation.

But you'll have to fergive the

Yours truly

Cass CityTell Farm Rates For Custom Work

More Michigan farmers are using custom workers to get some of their farm work done during the busy seasons. The Michigan State University agricultural economists have compiled some average rates for custom work as charged in the 1966 crop year.

Alfred Ballweg, county extension agricultural agent, thinks these rates might be useful for farmers in arriving at a decision on whether to hire work done by custom workers or buy additional equipment and have it done on their own.

Here are some of the average per acre rates charged in 1966 in Michigan:

Plowing: 3-, 4- or 5-bottom plow, $5 to $6.40. Disking: $2. Drilling: $1.34 to $1.60. Cultivating: $1.20.

Drilling small grains and beans: with fertilizer - $2.30; without fertilizer - $1.80; band seeding - $2.15.

Corn planting: with fertilizer and chemicals, 4-row, $2.60; 6-row, $2.95; without fertilizer, 2-row, $2.10; 4-row, $2.05; 6-row, $2.40.

Haying: mowing $1.90; mowing and conditioning, $4; side delivery raking, $1.50.

Chopping hay and silage: Chopping and blowing with men, tractors and wagons, $13 an acre.

Fiscal Reform Plan Spurs Talk of State Spending Cut

Almost unheard in the news reports from Lansing are the voices calling for a "Gov. Ronald Reagan" type of approach to Michigan's impending financial difficulties.

There are a few legislators who are either strongly opposed to a state income tax, or proponents of cutting state spending, or both.

Sen. Harry DeMaso, R-Battle Creek, "used to be among these when he was a member of the House of Representatives. Now he is heading the move to get Gov. George Romney's income tax program through the Senate."

Essential argument of those who say spending can and should be cut is that many programs have become too big and must be cut down to size or eliminated now, if ever.

DeMaso was most poetic about the need for economy in government; he contended that the barrel into which public funds were being poured had holes in it. Until the leaks were plugged there was no sense pouring greater amounts into the barrel, he contended.

This remains the contention of those calling for financial responsibility rather than fiscal reform and an income tax in 1967. This year, however, DeMaso is not among them and their voice is not quite as loud as it was when a Democratic governor was the one proposing an income levy.

Another group has taken up the chant. However, this group does support the Governor's basic idea for fiscal reform.

It is using the spending cut idea as a hatchet over the heads of other lawmakers, threatening it will fall if they fail to accomplish fiscal reform.

Rep. George F. Montgomery, D-Detroit, has already prepared a number of resolutions which would affect some so-called economies in government if reform fails.

Montgomery would propose to maintain state employee pay scales at present levels and eliminate millions of dollars from the budget by cutting grants to schools and local government units.

Unfortunately, Montgomery has chosen his targets for cut with specific design in mind.

A strong advocate of tax reform, Montgomery hopes publicity given his ideas for economy will bring forth a rash of public support for the income tax program.

He contends his economy ideas will be necessary unless increased public understanding, acceptance and support of reform provides "the encouragement necessary to assure favorable legislative action."

With this amount of state money invested in the new portion of the court system, proponents contend increased fees are necessary throughout the judicial process.

150 YEARS OLD

The University of Michigan is having its day this year, and understandably.

Now in its 150th year, the gigantic institution at Ann Arbor is the oldest higher education unit in the state. It was established in Detroit originally, by Michigan's Territorial Legislature in 1817.

In honor of the occasion, the present legislature has already held a session honoring the University. The Highway Department has placed a picture of U-M's Burton Carillon Tower on the front cover of its 1967 state road map, and the Secretary of State's office designated the maize and blue for this year's license plates.

Big, beautiful, nationally renowned and still growing, the University will mark just one sad point during its sesquicentennial year. President Harlan Hatcher has announced his intention to retire. Even this loss is being viewed optimistically, as a new president can mean a start of renewed growth and vigor for the institution.

Holiness Assn. to Meet in Owendale

The Huron-Tuscola Holiness Association will meet Thursday, March 9, at the Owendale EUB Church. The Rev. J. D. Montel is host pastor.

The speaker for the morning service, at 10:30 a. m., is the Rev. G. Allen Stebbins of Battle Creek.

At 1:00 o'clock, a prayer service is scheduled and the council will also meet.

The Rev. Bawalda of Hastings is the featured speaker at the 2:00 p. m. service.

Montgomery would propose to maintain state employee pay scales at present levels and eliminate millions of dollars from the budget by cutting grants to schools and local government units.

Agent's Corner

Mrs. Ann Ross

In a way, grandmother put out a more sanitary wash in her day than her daughter does today, says Mrs. Ann Ross, Thumb extension home economist.

Sounds incredible with all of the automated equipment available to today's homemaker and the amount of laundry aids on the grocer's shelves.

Grandmother knew the value of hot water. In fact, most clothes in that day and age went through an actual boiling procedure. Today's homemaker, on the average, is running her clothes through water ranging from 120 degrees to 130 degrees F.

This is not hot enough to destroy bacteria present on clothing that's been worn or household textiles that have been used. Mrs. Ross points out that the United States Department of Agriculture researchers, in testing used items, have shown there are as many as 5 million bacteria per square inch on the underarm part of a T-shirt and 53 million bacteria and 900 thousand fungi per square inch on a wash cloth.

For clothes that can take it, Mrs. Ross says the wash water should be at least 140 degrees F. in order to destroy as many bacteria as possible. To be assured of this temperature, water heaters should be set at 160 degrees F. as there is a temperature drop between heater and washer of 10 degrees to 20 degrees depending on the length of pipe run.

When fabrics require a cooler temperature, the use of disinfectants in the wash water is important. Effective types of disinfectants include chlorine (hypochlorite), phenolic, pine oil and quaternary, all available locally.

Be sure to read the label on the disinfectant and follow directions, measuring carefully, to obtain full benefit from the product. And know your fabric and fabric finish. Some will not withstand chlorine products, for example.

With more families making use of community-type laundering facilities, Mrs. Ross feels that it is especially important to make use of disinfectants as the homemaker has no control over water temperature there. Also, during the season of colds and other winter time diseases the use of disinfectants is an added protection to the family.

One For The Road

Inexplicably, They Overlooked One ...

By Dan Marlowe

My friends all wonder why it is that on Sundays and holidays, playtime for them, usually seem to be busier at the typewriter than on weekdays.

I've tried explaining to them that on any day on which no mail arrives to distract me I seem to accomplish twice as much, but I don't make much headway in convincing them.

I learned to use holidays to make up for weekday slippage when I first tackled the writing game. This was undoubtedly a carryover from my businessman days, when I used holidays to catch up on the paper work of an insurance agency I operated part-time in addition to holding down a full-time job. Looking back, somebody--or something--owes me a lot of holidays. I have a built-in accrual factor extending over 25 years.

Recently, however, I learned how I can catch up on my holidays, and in a hurry. All I have to do is move to the Virgin Islands, 2 U. S. possessions purchased from Denmark in 1916. The U. S. mainland is underprivileged indeed in comparison to the holidays available to the citizenry of this U. S. enclave, and holiday-deficient individuals like myself would do well to be aware of its possibilities.

In addition to the standard U. S. legal holidays, for instance, such as New Year's Day, Washington's Birthday (now slipping from the lists in many sections of the country), Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day, and Christmas, the Virgin Islands has added its own quota of holidays to what it obviously considered to be a niggardly array.

These consist of January 30th (Franklin Delano Roosevelt's Birthday, and no, I'm not putting you on); February 12th (Lincoln's Birthday); March 23rd (Holy Thursday); March 24th (Good Friday); March 27th (Easter Monday); June 22nd (Organic Act Day, and perhaps we'd better not inquire too closely into the origins of that one); July 25th (Supplication Day); October 25th (Local Thanksgiving Day, in addition to the regular U. S. Thanksgiving); November 1st (Liberty Day); November 11th (Veterans

It isn't always easy to make a "hit" with young people, but conservation and natural beauty have succeeded.

Michigan youth representing ten youth-serving agencies are now making final plans for a statewide conference at Michigan State University on Saturday, March 11, according to George R. Pattullo, Extension 4-H Youth Agent for Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties.

The idea for a Michigan Youth Conference for Natural Beauty and Conservation originated with the National Conference held in 1966.

Four hundred young people will attend.

Why are they attending? They're eager to know more about conservation practices and find ways of improving and maintaining natural beauty. The conference will emphasize group action and methods of working together in local communities. Cooperative "back-home" activities are the objective.

Youth agencies, in addition to 4-H Youth Programs, who are planning this conference include the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Future Farmers of America, Camp Fire Girls, Future Homemakers of America, YWCA, Boy's Clubs, Red Cross Youth and the YMCA.

Your county office of the Cooperative Extension Service can provide additional information on this conference. It is located at the Courthouse in Caro.

Mrs. Heberly Dies After Long Illness

Mrs. Rosa Heberly, 83, of rural Owendale died Saturday at Hills and Dales Hospital after a long illness.

She was born Dec. 16, 1883, in Huron county, and married Levi Heberly April 11, 1906.

Mrs. Heberly was a member of the Owendale Methodist Church and the Women's Society of Christian Service.

Survivors include her husband; two daughters, Irene Heberly of Owendale and Mrs. Robert Brookins of Saginaw; three grandchildren; two sisters, Ella Hackett of Bad Axe and Mrs. Eva Morehead of Detroit.

Services were held Tuesday at the Owendale Methodist Church. The Rev. Basil Curtis officiated. Burial was in Williamston cemetery, Grant township.

The encouraging thing about the future is that it can only come one day at a time.

Men and women reportedly are about equal in hearing ability. The girls are far ahead, however, in not listening.

Thought for Lent Can You Forgive?

By Rev. David Altman

EDITOR'S NOTE: This week's meditation introduces the Rev. David Altman. He has been able to start youth projects that have caught the imagination of the youth of the community and is currently the pastor of the No-vesta Church of Christ.

ly Christians clothed and fed the young, wandering slave. For the first time in his young life Onesimus listened attentively to the masterful sermons of the apostle Paul. Through these great messages Onesimus accepted Christ as his Savior and began another phase of life: Christianity. Paul and Onesimus talked for hours and hours about Onesimus' past life as a slave. They also talked about Philemon and his great integrity as a wealthy Christian. No matter where Onesimus was in the Roman empire, Philemon had the right to execute him as a runaway slave. But, with prayer and much meditation, Onesimus decided that the only thing for him to do was to return home and face the consequences of a runaway slave. Paul, too, spent much time in prayer over this grave matter. Paul and Philemon had been close friends and knew each other well. As a result of this incident Paul penned one of the world's great letters. Paul reached into the heart of Philemon and drew out his deepest passion for his fellow man. He asked this great man of God to forgive this young, unprofitable slave; and, even beyond this, asked him to accept him as a brother in Christ.

The breeze came softly into the face of the young man. Rome nearly lay before the eager eyes of Onesimus as he got his first look at the picturesque city of four million people. Behind this young man lay a past life of slavery; now, freedom was before him. No one would recognize that he was the runaway slave of the wealthy Christian named Philemon. The beautiful Mediterranean Sea that was undulating along the shores of Italy was a far cry from Philemon's mansion in Asia Minor that housed the congregation that the missionary, Paul, began a few years earlier.

The money that this deeply tanned slave stole from his master, Philemon, was just about gone. The trip was long and expensive, and Rome was an expensive place to dwell if one had no friends. Onesimus had run away from slavery; he had freedom, and a new life, but, little money.

As the days went by Onesimus grew to a point of utter poverty. He had no place to turn, no friends to talk to, and no food to eat. What could a runaway slave do but starve and die in the most luxurious city on earth. One cannot live on the freedom that one ran away to gain. As Onesimus wandered aimlessly through the streets of the imperial city he heard that a prisoner of the Emperor had been preaching the strange teachings of one called Christ. Could there be any Christians in this pagan city? Since this prisoner was a Roman citizen he had much freedom in being a prisoner of the Emperor. He had a lavish apartment that was close to the Emperor. Onesimus quickly made his way to the area and asked to see this advocate of Christianity. With utter shock, Onesimus discovered it was the same missionary that began the congregation that met in Philemon's mansion. It was the apostle Paul!

It was not long until the friend-

No doubt, Philemon recalled these great words of Christ as he read the letter: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." Christ held no malice for those who killed him. Today, we Christians must not only recall Christ's forgiving heart; but, we must apply His attitude to our every day lives. Can you forgive one who does you wrong? Read the book of Philemon before Resurrection Sunday.
