You never know when a statement may come back to haunt

About eight years or so ago a visiting speaker spoke about merchandising to members of the Cass City Rotary.

At the time he predicted that nerchants would be using color in the paper. I said it would never happen in Cass City as the price would be too great for local merchants.

Last week after the color ads appeared in the Chronicle, Cliff Ryan promptly reminded me of the incident with a chuckle, Petitions for Bill Leverich, plant manager at General Cable, are now being circulated as he seeks a post on the proposed Community College.

It's easy to see how concerned industry is in training men in the area. The first announced candidate from Cass City, you may recall, is W. E. Walpole, president of Walbro Waipoie, Salar Corporation.

In other years there have been parades and posters and much publicity calling attention to clean-up, fix-up, paint-up week in the village.

While much of the hoopla

has been abandoned this year, residents should not feel that the need is less.

Besides giving the village a much needed face lifting, clean-up week lets villagers remove accumulations of trash at bargain rates.

May 18, and the village will by the senior class due to lack haul it away free.

Community College See Keen Fight For Board Posts

Although only four petitions have been returned to Morgan superintendent of Huron Intermediate School District, look for a last minute rush of candidates who will file to beat Saturday's p. m.

The candidates are seeking positions on the board of trustees of the proposed tri-county community college.

Two four-year term candidates and two six-year term candidates have already filed petitions.

Thomas B. Poole of Deckerville and George R. Frye of Vassar are six-year term candidates, while Donald G. Chamberlain of Sandusky and Maynard Q. Kent of Kinde seek four-year terms. No two-year term petitions had been received Tuesday afternoon.

These petitions are just a trickle that may become a flood before the deadline. According to officials at the intermediate district offices, many petitions have been requested. Fourteen different petitions are being circulated in Huron county, although only one has been returned. Both Sanitac and Tuscola have six petitions circulating.

Three of the Tuscola county petitions are from Cass City. Supporters of W. E. Walpole, William Leverich and Richard Drews are now collecting signatures here. Petitions must have not less than 50 or more than 200 valid signatures. Two candidates will be named for each of the twoyear and four-year terms and three for the six-year term. In an effort to inform all the voters a special eight-page insert is slated to go in every paper in the tri-county area to explain the college and the three propositions that will face the electors.

Susan Kercher to Study in England

Miss Susan Wallace Kercher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald F. Kercher of 8 Nathan Hale St., New London, Conn., has been selected to study at Bulmershe College, Reading, England, for the 1967-68 fall semester.

Board Discusses Budget

The Tuscola County Board of Supervisors held its regular meeting Monday and handled mostly routine matters.

Up Pay for Teacher Subs

School pay for substitute teachers was boosted Monday by the school board in its regular session.

Substitutes are now paid at the rate of $20 daily for substitute teaching. Under the new plan, long-term substitutes will receive more money.

The pay will remain the same for the first 10 days. After 10 days on the same assignment the rate is $25 a day for non-degree teachers and $30 for degree teachers.

The raise was made retroactive to include the substitute teaching of Mrs. Jerry Miller, substituting for Miss Warner.

BUY FURNITURE

After several months of looking around, the board accepted a recommendation of Supt. Donald Crouse and accepted a bid of $2,697 for basic furniture for the library.

The bid was from Remington-Rand and was the highest of three bids received. A bid was received from Michigan School Service for $2,443 and from McFadden's for $2,213.

However, the Remington-Rand furniture matches furniture bought under the basic contract. The bid from Michigan School Service for furniture is a different color and' an attempted color match would add seven per cent to the cost, making the difference in bids

The third bid was not considered because the board felt

OTHER BUSINESS

The board will pick up the tab for a teachers' luncheon the day before school is dismissed. It will be the second time the board has authorized the expenditure. Last year the cost was about $100.

An appeal hearing for two parcels of land will be held in Lansing. The first included 40 acres owned by Richard Colling transferred to the Unionville district and land owned by Vincent Sattleberg which the owner desired to be moved from Owengage district to the Cass City district.

The original petitions date back to 1965 and 1966, respectively.

After the regular meeting, an executive session in which the board discusses matters in secret was held. No formal action was taken.

Here's a tough one, . . Has a major league team ever changed managers during a season, and then, gone on to win the pennant?. . . It's happened twice, and both times to the Cubs. . . In 1932, Charlie Grimm replaced Rogers Hornsby in mid-season, and won the flag .And, in 1938, Gabby Hartnett took over from Grimm during the season, and led the Cubs to the pennant.

Of all the golf courses in America, which one has been the site of the most U.S. Open and PGA tournaments? . . . Answer is the Oakmont Club of Oakmont, Pa., near Pittsburgh.

We take night baseball for granted now, but do you know when the very first big league night game was played?...It was just 32 years ago this season, in 1935, at Crosley Field, Cincinnati. . Then, surprisingly, it was three more years till another park put in lights. . . The second big league field to be equipped for night baseball was old Ebbets Field. Brooklyn, in 1938.

tinued to grow; and the babies question: Where in Cass City, born in 1966 are more likely are you going to get gas at to get a college education. The typical American is a young adult. The median age last year was just under 28; while five years ago it was just over 29! We are continuing also to achieve something that no other society in history has managed. Our affluent families are becoming more numerous than families which authorities describe as poor. In short, the poor are getting comparatively fewer; the affluent are getting company. This one can be vouched for by any mother with teenagers in the family! A million more teenagers were getting their between-meal snacks.

More than a million youngsters entered college last year. Two out of five were co-eds. Most of them were finding it more costly than ever. (Amen!) About 1.8 million couples married last year, a new and chal-lenging record. At the other end of the scale, about 1.4 million Americans turned 65 last year, and the 65-and-over group now numbers approximately 18 million.

For these interesting facts, am indebted to the Institute of Life Insurance.

Have you really comprehended the extent to which women are working away from home? Over 26 million -- more than 1/3 of all women over 14 years of age -- work for pay (1) away from home, (2) or in a family business, (3) or on a family farm.

A clerk in the lost-and-found department of the Pennsylvania Railroad found these items on the shelves: twenty umbrellas, 17 attache cases, four earrings, all different, three fair-sized footlockers, and would you believe a pair of crutches? The man who described the U.S. to be a nation of losers, apparently knew what he was talking about!

Dear Sir:

In a recent issue of your newspaper was an article which said a milk price drop had been prevented by the recent milk dumping action.

Milk prices in Michigan are determined by the responsible marketing activities of the Michigan Milk Producers Association, whose 8,500 members not only produce most of the milk sold in state markets, but do the bargaining and maintain the milk processing facilities that provide our dairy farmers with prices that are the envy of many other areas. No price decline was in the

Thus, no price decline was even a remote possibility. Marketing facts like these are well known by responsible MMPA members who are acquainted with milk marketing. Sincerely, Another remarkable item, which to some might seem a sign of success, and to others a sign of failure, is that J. Paul Getty has had eight wives.

> In the book he mentions Travis Leach as an example of how not to get rich. Leach sold some land he owned in Detroit and bought a farm halfway between Cass City and Caro. Leach was the surveyor who laid out the streets of Cass City . . . on condition that he be permitted to make the main streets wide enough that you could turn a horse and buggy around in the middle of the block. So not only the folks who live on Leach Street, but all of us, can be grateful to Travis Leach for the wide

> All this came to mind when I saw some advice J. Paul Getty had given to automobile owners, reported in the May 5 issue of "Time." "No costconscious motorist," said he, "can ever afford to be without a chauffeur -- even if he secretly plays the part himself. . . .

The same Chauffeur-like gentleness that spares backseat passengers any sudden jolts also gives maximum miles gallon," and parking "with a suitable air of reverence avoids costly damage to tire walls."

So, fellows, if the cop runs you in for squealing your tires, he is merely trying to get you started on your way to being a billionaire.

Junior colleges, often known as community colleges, seem to be the coming thing on the American educational horizon. In recent years they have been established at the rate of about 35 per year. The more than 800 now in operation enroll close to 1.5 million students. By 1970, according to present growth rates, there may be as many as 1,000 such institutions. These colleges are proving to be so popular that some knowedgeable people predict the day will come when nearly every county in the country will have its own community college.

received an unsigned letter commenting on the 1mpression of Cass City that a newcomer receives, based on the quality of service and the warmth of welcome he observes in our various places of business. Along with some less favorable comments, which I won't mention here, was a compliment for the exceptionally good service at Martin's Restaurant. "The people there are not afraid to go out of their way to make you feel welcome," wrote our anonymous correspondent, and with that we can heartily agree.

I'd like to pass along some comments from an editorial in a trade journal that B. J. Wallace handed me:

If you judge the importance of a problem by the amount of time spent on its solution, then management's Number One problem is "Making Itself Understood," or Communication.

The typical executive is said to spend 90 per cent of his working hours communicating. In an average hour he writes for 5 minutes, reads for 9 minutes, talks for 18 minutes, and listens for 21 minutes. The ability to communicate is not something we are born with. We have to learn it. . . often the hard way.

The other man's point of view is difficult to grasp. . . regardless of our good intentions. . . it's a wonder sometimes that any progress is made

Probably the first step toward improving communications is the most important... it's following the Golden Rule.

Letter to Editor

Cass City, Michigan munity. May 4, 1967

To the Editor: On June 12 we will vote on our proposed tri-county com- flected the change in philosophy munity college. Having had experience as a faculty member two years of a regular college of two community colleges in Michigan, I am a firm believer in the functions and philosophy of this type of school, and while the advantages to the community are many, I would like to point out the worth of a community college to the student. First, he can get in. Community colleges maintain an "open door policy," and no one is rejected because of a previously low academic record. I have seen many "late bloomers" enter with poor high school records and, through careful counseling and the individualized help available in the community college's small classes, go on to be Dean's List students at four-year schools. Once enrolled, the student has a choice of two programs, a terminal course in the vocational-technical branch, or a transfer program which equals the first two years of a liberal arts program. The terminal courses enable the student to get specialized training which will lead to a well-paying job without further schooling. The transfer student is able to transfer both credits and grades earned to any four-year school. While the education at a community college is low-cost, it is not low-quality. All faculty members in the transfer program must have at least a master's degree in their field, and they are all full-time teachers, rather than spending much of their time in research or writing, as is the case in many universities. Faculty members in the terminal programs are experts in their fields, and the students benefit from their practical, not just theoretical, knowledge in their area.

The student in the community college remains a productive, consuming member of his area. Many students work full or parttime, and they are able to schedule classes to accommodate their working hours. Money they would spend on food, lodging, clothing, recreation, and other

Fair Trial Available Under Present Pre-trial System

Is it much ado about nothing--or very little? This is the question in minds of many newsmen in discussions regarding pre-trial information. The State Bar of Michigan arranged a May 2 meeting of lawyers, police and court offictals, and representatives of newspapers, radio and TV to discuss this topic. Earlier Attorney General Frank J. Kelley called a small group of media representatives for a similar discussion. The only thing certain is that there will be more meetings between bar, police and media groups before the subject is considered closed.

There is no problem. This is the opinion of many newsmen and some from other fields, The Attorney General stated on several occasions that his office has no record of complaints in an unwarranted verdict.

U. S. Court of Appeals Judge George Edwards says that he has yet to see a trial which could not be fair if basic procedures now in effect are followed by courts. Judge Edwards warns that proposals by the American Bar Association which limit information which could be released are vague. He urges lawyers "not to throw the baby out with the bath watstating that there really isn't much of a pre-trial information problem. He warns further that efforts recommended by the ABA constitute a dangerous form of threat to freedom of speech.

Some attorneys argue that pre-trial news does deprive defendents of a fair trial. No one could or would name a specific case where this was true when challenged to do so at the May 2 meeting.

Newspaper reactions vary. At other times and places various newsmen have expressed themselves strongly. One editor said he is sick of discussing this topic in generalities and resents the implication that media have been doing something wrong. Another argues that the courts are the key. If judges will use machinery now available to them, a fair trial can be guaranteed to any defendent. Still another points out that the discussion shows a lack of confidence in jurors. There is no reason to assume, he states, that a juror has to be ignorant of a case in order for him to make a fair judgment at a "Proposed orders which would restrict the release of information by law enforcement officers are an unwarranted judicial invasion of the executive branch of government," stated Norman C. Rumple, man. aging editor of the Midland Daily News and president of the Michigan Press Association. In addressing the State Bar meeting, Mr. Rumple questioned the basic concept that there is evidence to show that pre-trial publicity in the presence of sound judicial operation has limited a fair trial. He reported that The American Newspaper Publishers Association has a grant of $150,-000 for an independent study to determine whether there is basis for claims that crime news reporting prevents fair trials. Mr. Rumple suggested that results of this study would better define the need for more discussion.

"Goals of the press and the bar should be the same," Mr. Rumple stated: "protect the public, acquit the innocent and convict the guilty."

NEWSPAPERS IN MICHIGAN

Want to guess how many newspapers there are in the state? Here's the answer. There are 55 daily newspapers and about 300 weeklies.

Their combined circulation, according to figures at the beginning of 1967, is 3,680,594. This is an increase of three percent over the previous year. Circulation ranges from the Detroit News with a Sunday circulation of nearly one million to the Fair Haven Journal with a circulation of 387. In between are some of the finest nights, starting June 8.

There has been little variation in the number of newspapers in Michigan over the last 25 years. As economic changes have brought about new communities, local newspapers have been quick to spring into existence. At the same time, those communities which grew smaller found that the newspaper which served them either merged with one nearby. Circulation grew rather steadily over the past quarter century, a remarkable trend when it is realized that the Detroit Times and Grand Rapids Herald, both large dailies at the time they suspended publication, left a large total which had to be offset by smaller increases in many newspapers Criticizing teenagers because they "aren't what they used to be back in the good old days" is of little value in helping them face adulthood in society today, according to Ann Ross, Thumb Area Extension home economist.

One generation never quite understands the next generation. It's natural to think about one's own youthful experiences. in trying to cope with problems of teenagers today. But this is not totally fair to judge toyouth in yesterday's Youth of today are exposed to many differences from their parent's day. They are dating earlier, have more money to spend and have greater freedom in the use of the car, and have more education. In father's day only 200,000 youth went to college; today there are nearly 4 million enrolled.

There are more people, more technology, more mobility, more urbanization, more economic and educational activity than ever before. This is good reason for adults to search within themselves for a deep Understandings from one generation to another is not new problem. Mrs. Ross cites this passage credited to Plato who wrote and taught in the 5th and 4th Century, BC.

"Our youth now love luxury. They have bad manners, contempt for authority, disrespect for older people. Children nowadays are tyrants. They no longer rise when their elders enter the room. They contradict their parents, chatter before company, gobble their food and tyrannize their teachers."

Bean Profits Seen Down this Year

The Economic Research Service of the United States Department of Agriculture has announced that their survey of growers planting intentions shows that bean growers in Michigan plan to plant about six per cent fewer beans than last year, says Quentin Osdistrict extension trander, marketing agent.

Ostrander warns bean grow-ers that this reduction in acreage will probably have no effect in raising prices on the 1967 navy bean crop. Ostrander quotes the USDA. "Supply prospects for the 1967/68 season" to support his warning: "Current stocks of dry beans are much larger than the light supplies of a year earlier, and materially above the 1961-65 average. With supplies ample and prices likely to average low, movement during the remainder of the current season is expected to be considerably larger than that of last season. Commercial sales to both domestic and foreign outlets likely will continue above year earlier levels, and important quantities probably will be moved through various governmental distribution programs. Despite prospects for much greater use, a big carryover at the end of this season appears likely. Ending stocks of both white and colored beans average." A yield of 13,2 cwt, per acre on the predicted 1967 navy bean acreage plus the probable carryover of old crop beans will result in a supply of over 7.5 million cwt, this fall. The 1960-64 average yield for Michigan beans is 13.2 cwt. per acre.

are expected to be up sharply

from both a year earlier and

This supply outlook, says the marketing agent, means that prices to growers for the 1967 crop will probably be near the support price level the same as prices for the 1966 crop. Ostrander reminds growers that with average yields this price level is below costs of production and harvesting and these costs will be higher in 1967 than they were in 1966. One solution to this costprice squeeze the marketing suggests growers seriously consider is to join together in one association as bean growers. An association of growers with control of 75% or more of the navy bean crop could set minimum prices and orderly movement to market and thereby enable growers to obtain a fair return on their investment and labor.

One For The Road

Another Illusion Has Been Shattered

By Dan Marlowe

The snap-crackle-pop you just heard was the sound of another of my illusions being shattered.

The scientists are at it again. It wasn't bad enough when they recently disavowed my boyhood-indoctrinated belief that the moon was made of green cheese by stating firmly that its surface actually consists of volcanic ash the consistency of wet sand.

No, that wasn't enough for them; now they're compounding the felony by insisting that pigs aren't really such big eaters after all.

Now I ask you: what cardinal principle is more rigidly implanted in the growing American boy than that he shouldn't eat like a pig? And now the scientists say that the pig is no hog. Is nothing sacred? What cherished illusion will be next

They quote figures to support their claim, naturally, but view them with suspicion. Cherished beliefs die hard. The pig, the scientists declare, eats only about 4% of his weight daily on the average, a 200 pounder consuming approximately 8 pounds of food per day. While this is more than a horse, which eats 2% of his weight daily, or sheep and cows which average 3%, it's hardly enough to point the finger of scorn at the maligned pig, the Dear Mister Editor:

The scientists believe that the pig may have attained his undeserved reputation as a hog by reason of his table manners --or the lack of them--but what's a slurp or two among friends? No, if the scientists can be believed, the pig is due an apology from all of us. From now on, just tell your kids not to eat like a pelican.
