Community College-Vocational Schools Hinge on Vote

Conflicting reports about the proposed Tri-county Community College and vocational schools make the results of the important Monday election an unknown factor to authorities who are waiting anxiously for the decision of area electors.

The college proposal started well over a year ago when a study committee decided that the college was feasible. Several months of study by a citizens' advisory group followed under the direction of Michigan State University authorities.

The final plan of the group was presented to the State Board of Education and the plans accepted.

Following the acceptance, Monday's date for the election was set by the board.

Each of three proposals must pass to make the college a reality.

The community college must be authorized and a two-mill tax levy authorized. In addition, three trustees for six years; two trustees for four years; and two trustees for two years must be elected.

If the college proposals all pass it will be the successful candidates who will administer the college and the vocational schools that will be established in the three-county area.

An outstanding group of men from over the entire area are running for each of the offices.

SIX-YEAR TERM

FOUR-YEAR TERM

Seeking a four-year term are: Donald G. Chamberlain, Maynard Q. Kent, Arnold K. Suedmeyer, William J. Snodden, Gayle Bryce Laeder, Burton L. Castle, Robert Wencil Neumann, William R. Leverich, Bernard Rock and Frank E. Dodge.

TWO-YEAR TERM

POLL PLACES

Voters will vote at the usual polling places in their school district. The vote will be held in conjunction with regular school votes for board members and whatever other special elections are necessary.

A good voter turn out is expected in the Cass City district but reports indicate very little excitement in many of the various other districts.

A heavy vote is also expected in Huron county where the most interest in the new school has been shown.

CASS CITY CHRONICLE

VOLUME 61, NUMBER 8 — CASS CITY, MICHIGAN THURSDAY, JUNE 8, 1967 — SIXTEEN PAGES

From the Editor's Corner

At a meet the candidate night in Bad Axe Tuesday night several of the candidates for the Community College Board said that the important thing was to get out and vote. . . .that any of the 26 persons running for the board would well be able to administer the facility well.

This is undoubtedly so. Dan Marlowe puts it well in his column when he says there is "an embarrassment of riches in the lineup".

After working with several of the candidates and listening to the others my choice for the three six-year posts are George R. Frye, Vassar industrialist, and Dr. B. E. Rynearson of Huron county. We feel the third post is a toss up between Cass City's Richard W. Drews and Thomas B. Poole of Sandusky.

Poole is very knowledgeable about the community college and has been active in its formation since the beginning. Drews has proven his ability and interest in civic affairs through his work with Rotary and the Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. William Snodden of Sandusky, an official at Yale Rubber, is our top choice for the four-year term. We have no recommendation for the second spot. William R. Leverich, bossman at General Cable, is eminently qualified. We give him a qualified endorsement because as a man on the way up, he is subject to transfer and just could be called away when we need him most.

It is unfortunate that Dr. Edward C. Scollon is not running for a four-year term. He is edged in this paper's opinion by two other candidates for the short, two-year term.

We place Walter E. Walpole, Walbro president, at the top of our list. His company's record of civic concern, and his personal interest in a better community are points of record familiar to every Cass Cityan.

We never heard him talk about the community college, but his past actions speak louder than words.

Our other nominee is H. Dale Cubitt, a lawyer from Bad Axe. He also has worked for the college starting with the citizens' advisory committee. He's a lifelong resident of the Thumb and returned "home" because of his interest here. He could add a lot to any school board.

If the vocational aspect of the proposed Community College didn't immediately strike a responsive chord, consider this: every board candidate with an industrial management background was emphatic in his endorsement of this phase of the program as a solution in one of the areas where the Thumb is being held back. Industry has to be able to find trained men, they said in essence, or they will not consider establishing in any area.

I wonder how many of you have noticed the new walkway to the parking lot that is adjacent to the alley at North Seeger and Main Street?

I'll confess that I didn't until M. B. Auten, who had it built, showed it to me last week.

The access point is just east of Ryland and Guc's building and west of Konrad's Bakery.

Between the two buildings, Auten has built a cement walkway and lighted it and plans to have signs placed showing the entrance and exit.

Speaker Says College Vital For Industry

"If we want to attract new industry to Michigan, we must improve not only our research and technical training facilities but also our vocational education programs throughout the state," Leroy G. Augenstein, member of the State Board of Education, said before a 'meet-the-candidates' meeting in Bad Axe Tuesday, June 6. "Thus, I urge voters in the Thumb area to approve the plans for a community college and also to work hard with their home school boards and administrators to develop their vocational programs in the local schools."

"Not only must we provide a sound training base for our students in High School but also many of our adults need vocational updating either through the local schools or a community college," Augenstein continued. "For example, right now teachers must be retrained every three to five years if they are to keep up; doctors must be retrained every 10 years; and engineers every 15 years."

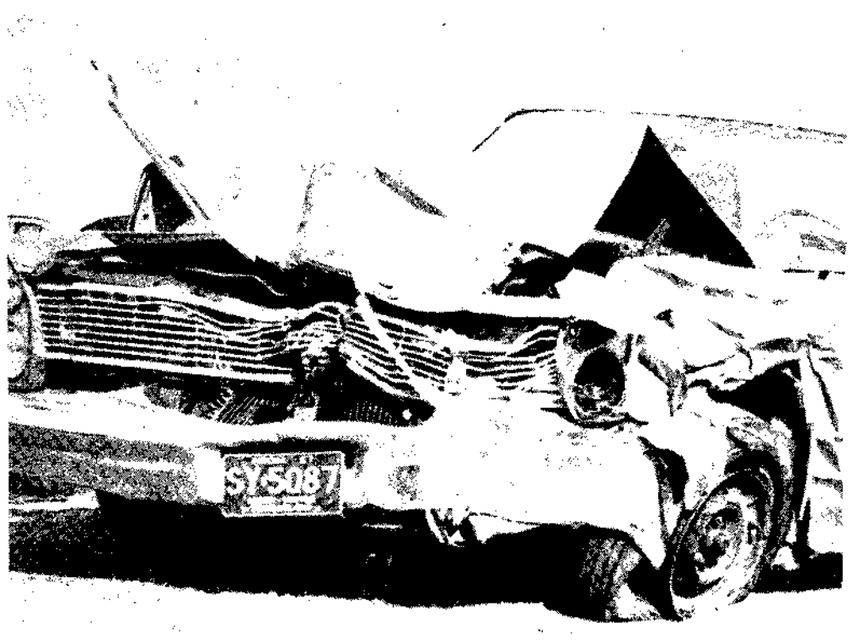
THE DRIVER OF THIS car, Arnold Herman Kriewall of Bay City, evidently was thrown through the right window and died from injuries suffered in a two-car crash Friday.



THREE MEMBERS OF THE Gerald Bock family escaped from this car with comparatively minor injuries and are at home after short periods of hospitalization.

One Killed and Several Injured in Area Accidents

Three members of the Gerald Bock family are recovering from serious injuries received in a two-car crash Friday that fatally injured Arnold Herman Kriewall, 55, of Bay City.

Released Monday from Hills and Dales General Hospital were Mrs. Gerald Bock, Diane Bock and David Bock.

Mrs. Bock suffered severe contusions, a brain concussion and scalp lacerations.

David received a severe cut around the eye and lacerations of the face. He told his mother that he crawled from the wrecked car to where she was lying.

Mr. Kriewall died at 4 a. m. Saturday at the hospital.

According to investigating authorities, Kriewall was driving west on Bay City-Forestville Road and Mrs. Bock was headed south on M-53 when the mishap occurred.

Kriewall was evidently thrown from the car and the van he was driving tipped over from the force of the crash.

First on the scene following the crash were a brother and his wife of the Bocks who were coming from Bad Axe.

DULAC ACCIDENT

Still in serious condition at Hills and Dales General Hospital, following an accident Sunday is Mrs. Ann Dulac, 39, of Kingston.

Mrs. Dulac lost control of her car on Kingston Road, about a quarter mile south of Legg Road.

The vehicle ran off the road and overturned, according to Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies.

The wreck completely demolished a 1967 model automobile. The sheriff's department is still investigating.

MINOR INJURIES

Glenn C. Folkert, 67, of Bay City, a former resident and businessman in Cass City, received minor injuries when the vehicle he was driving hit the rear of a car driven by Richard Shelagowski, 18, of Kawkawlin. The Shelagowski car had stopped for the Huron Road at Cottage Grove Road intersection.

Folkert was thrown from the car but escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Three Seek 2 Board Posts

For the first time in several years, there will be competition for a seat on the Cass City School Board.

Three candidates have filed for the two open four-year posts. Two are seeking re-election.

Dean of the candidates is Don Reed who has been helping direct the activities at Cass City for eight years.

Reid operates a 160-acre dairy farm. A member of the Cass City Presbyterian Church, he has four children.

While on the board he has worked with various school problems. He was a member of the board when additional taxes for operating were turned down three times before it was accepted by the voters. He has been active in promoting and helping plan the new high school. Currently he is involved with teacher negotiations under the comparatively new union bargaining system now prevalent in all schools.

Mrs. Geraldine Prieskorn is also seeking re-election.

Mrs. Prieskorn has served one term, four years, on the board. During this time she has studied and been active in areas that affect curriculum improvement.

She is currently a member of the teacher-board bargaining committee. Born in Cass City, she moved to Bay City, returning to the village with her husband. She is a graduate of Northwestern University. She is a member of the Presbyterian church.

PreFontaine is a former teacher at the junior high and senior high levels and currently serves as school psychologist for the mentally handicapped program for the Tuscola Intermediate School District.

He has a master's degree in school administration from Western Michigan and a Master's in guidance from Michigan State.

PreFontaine lives in Cass City and has four children, three boys and a girl. He is a member of the St. Pancratius Church. He is an usher and secretary of the church men's club.

PreFontaine is state co-program director for the Michigan Association of Educator-Psychologists, secretary-treasurer of the Tuscola Council for Exceptional Children and a member of the Tuscola and Michigan Associations for Retarded Children.

A Good Turn Pays Dividend

For the last several years Bernard Freiburger has taken it on himself to mow the grass that is in the "no man's land" next to the parking lot between Oak and Seeger and facing on Pine Street.

While cutting the other day he turned up a dollar bill. The mower had chewed it up fairly well, but two-thirds was still good and the bill cashable.

Probation for County Youth

A Fostoria man was sentenced and a Mayville man pleaded guilty to breaking and entering in criminal cases heard Monday before Judge James Churchill in Tuscola County Circuit Court in Caro.

Robert James Garner was sentenced to probation for two years with the first three months to be spent in the Tuscola County Jail for breaking and entering the J. McMullen Gas Station in Watertown township.

He was also fined $150, ordered to pay costs of $150 and make restitution of $10, all at the rate of $15 per month.

Lionel Gotwalt Jr. of Mayville pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the Mayville Food Locker at Mayville when arraigned Monday.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered and sentence will be passed July 10.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By H. M. Bulen

In past columns, we've talked about men playing sports despite such handicaps as the loss of an arm or leg, but we never mentioned blindness. . . Has any blind person ever played a competitive sport? Perhaps the most courageous example was a boy named Bob Allman who learned to wrestle and became a star member of the University of Pennsylvania team. . .He not only wrestled effectively, but won several college wrestling championships! . . .He's probably the only blind man in history who has won sports championships competing against opponents who could see.

****

Ever wonder which team in big league baseball history was able to make the most double plays in one season. . .It was the 1949 Athletics who made 217. . .Their regular infielders who helped set the all-time double-play record were Ferris Fain at first; Nellie Fox at second; Eddie Joost at short and Hank Majeski at third.

****

Here's quite an oddity from baseball. . .There once was an outfielder named Johnny Cooney. . .Perhaps you remember him. . .He played in the majors from 1921 to 1944 and was recently a coach with the White Sox. . .Well, here's the oddity. . .In his more than 20 years in the big leagues, he hit only two home runs--and the two of them came on successive days!. . .The first one of his career came September 24, 1939 and the second one came the next day!. . .He never hit any the 18 years previous to that, or in the five years after. . .That seems unbelievable, but it's true.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry B. Wetzel

Miss Sherrie Louise Comment and Jerry Bert Wetzel were united in marriage in a nuptial High Mass at St. Agatha Catholic Church, Gagetown, at 12:30 p. m. Saturday, May 13. Rev. Joseph Friske officiated at the double-ring ceremony. A floral arrangement of white and pink carnations and palms adorned the altar.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Comment of Gagetown and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Wetzel of Grand Rapids.

The bride wore a floor-length Empire gown of white crepe, fashioned with bell sleeves. Lace appliques adorned the bodice and the A-line skirt. The skirt was highlighted by a chapel train attached at the waist. Petals of Alencon lace outlined the seed pearls which secured the elbow-length silk illusion bouffant veil. She carried a cascade of lilies of the valley centered with two white baby orchids. The bride was escorted to the altar by her father.

Mrs. John Arvoy, sister of the bride, of Owosso was matron of honor. She wore a floor-length Empire gown of hot pink crepe styled with a round neckline and bell sleeves. The Empire band was accented with a bow and she carried a cascade of light pink gladioli. A light pink gladiolus with a wreath of greens accented her headpiece.

Bridesmaids were Miss Sandi Cloyd of Southfield and Miss Sharon Chisholm and Miss Mary Lorencz, both of Owendale. They wore gowns similar to the matron of honor's, in light pink crepe, and carried cascades of deep pink gladioli. Their headpieces were of deep pink gladioli with wreaths of greens.

Best man was Dick Powell of Livonia. Also attending the groom were Tom Campbell of Pontiac, John Arvoy of Owosso, Johnny Comment of Gagetown, Dave Vickerman of Lincoln Park and Glenn Joy of Ann Arbor.

The bride's mother wore a blue coat-dress ensemble with blue accessories and the groom's mother wore a light pink ensemble with darker pink accessories. Both had corsages of white orchids.

A buffet dinner was held immediately following the ceremony and about 175 guests attended the reception held at Sherwood Forest Country Club.

When the newlyweds left for their wedding trip to Washington, D. C., Mrs. Wetzel was wearing a yellow print suit.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Wetzel are graduates of Ferris State College, Big Rapids. They will make their home at 647 Fountain St., Grand Rapids.

Letters to Editor

Dear Mr. Editor,

I have been reading of the discussion of the proposed Community College with great interest. I feel that a community college would be very beneficial to the young men and women of the Thumb. The education received there would certainly help to insure future economic prosperity in the Thumb.

The community college would help make further education available to every high school graduate with interest and ability. A college degree is a necessity for a great number of occupations where job opportunities are the greatest. This will be increasingly true in the future. Furthermore, college is not only book learning. College years provide a time for students to grow and mature in the many aspects of life.

For those students who do not have the ability and/or interest to go to college, the vocational training to be offered could make the difference between unemployment and job security. Our society requires young people searching for jobs to have greater skills than ever before. Opportunities to acquire the skills can not be economically provided in every high school, but these specialized skills could be taught because of the community college.

Are YOU going to let two mills stop YOU from voting YES to a greater opportunity for the youth and a brighter economic future for the Thumb?

Bob Milligan

Dear Mr. Editor,

On the front page of last week's Chronicle quote "In keeping with the spirit of Memorial Day there were plenty of flags flying" unquote.

True many flags were flying on Memorial Day (Tues.). And there were speeches given of how proud and grateful we all are to our veterans who are now at rest in Elkland cemetery. But have you ever gone by Elkland cemetery the day after Memorial Day? Not one American flag remains on a grave unless it is put there by a member of that veteran's family the next day. Cass City's Elkland cemetery is the only cemetery I have ever seen that removes the American flag from every flag holder or grave. Is Cass City so destitute that they can't spend 15¢ or 25¢ a year for around 300 flags so that they could stay on the graves of those they say we are so proud and grateful to? Or is Cass City just interested in making it look good for Memorial Day the one day outside public can see.

A Veteran's daughter,
J. Behr

"With today's rapid changes throughout our technology, we will soon need to upgrade the training of all types of workers, not just a few professional people. Those communities which develop proper training programs will have a trained pool of technical people which will attract and hold industries," Augenstein predicted. "Those who don't will lose out," he added. "Thus, education is one of the best investments a community can make on the basis of dollars returned per dollar invested."

"However, the training needs will differ tremendously from community to community," Augenstein went on to explain. "Some areas may need to emphasize training in welding, others the repair of electronic equipment, and still others the ability to program electronic computers, Clearly, some of these things can best be done by the local district, whereas others can only be funded and developed by a broader-based program such as the Community College.

"Obviously, the development of these educational programs on a statewide basis is going to take very careful cooperation between the State Board of Education and the local school districts. However, since the needs will differ tremendously from community to community, the authority and much of the effort must come from the local school districts and the local school personnel.

"Thus, someone like myself can only offer encouragement and perhaps suggestions, but you people must do the hard work of developing the facilities and programs which your area needs. The first step must be a favorable vote on June 12 to establish the Community College in Huron, Sanilac, and Tuscola counties," Dr. Augenstein concluded.

Library Fines To Be Increased

The monthly meeting of the Cass City and Elkland township public library board was held at the library May 31.

The librarian reported circulation for the month of May totalled 1,118 and that 36 new books had been added.

The library board adopted policies regarding penal fines and book circulation. Starting June 15, fines on overdue books will be two cents a day instead of one cent. Hostetler's Hodgepodge

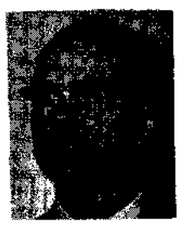
All Is Well With Jim Ross' Well



By Marion Hostetler

A little more than a year ago I told you about the community development project Jim Ross was sponsoring as a Peace Corps Volunteer in a village, and I suggested that the people of Cass City might like to contribute the cost of renting equipment to drill a well. Several people were willing to contribute, but we learned that the program of the Peace Corps was based on self-help rather than international aid, so we didn't send any money to Jim.

Several months later, through the efforts of the villagers, and with the help of the Bolivian government, a well was completed. The next night somebody stole the pipe from the well and dropped the hand pump to the bottom of the hole. After much effort, the well was again put into working order, and as far as I know it is still usable.

The next chapter in the story is reconstructed from letters Jim has written to his parents, Lester and Helen Ross, and from colored slides he has sent to this country to be developed. The people have constructed two latrines, the first in the history of the village. And somehow Jim has secured a dynamo and an electric pump, and has laid a pipe line from a pump to the center of the village.

If he gets into Peru, Jim might run into Jack Champlin, a Peace Corps volunteer from the state of Washington, the son of a friend of mine. In a recent letter Jack told about teaching in a youth camp which was "run pretty much like any 4-H camp in the U. S. might be, with an emphasis on agriculture and animal husbandry for the guys, and homemaking for the girls, although there was an overlap both ways."

"I taught carpentry classes for both girls and boys," Jack wrote, "with the help of a Peruvian assistant. After all I said and demonstrated, it was really wild to watch some kid put a board on two chairs, then stand on the board with a foot on either side of the line and cut away. You figure that at age 15 his reasoning power will tell him of the impending downfall; but no, he cuts on in oblivion until there is a tremendous resounding crash and clatter and he lies there in a heap--with a stupid grin on his face. Of course this brings great glee to all the other kids. The kid who laughs the hardest turns around the next day and does identically the same thing."

Helpful Hint Department: If you are bothered by snoring, or, which is more likely, by the snoring of someone near and dear to you, here's a suggestion from Britain's "Family Doctor" magazine.

"Hold something firmly between your teeth (or gums if you have no teeth) for ten minutes after going to bed but before settling to sleep." A wooden tongue depressor is suitable for holding between the teeth. (A wooden depressor, not a depressor for a wooden tongue.) This exercise strengthens muscles that keep the mouth closed, thus tending to prevent snoring. In other words, to stop snoring, keep a stiff upper lip.

I'm not going to give anybody a helpful hint about which farm family I know that has planted seedless watermelons this year. If you want to sample them, you'll have to look them up yourself.

Unsolved puzzle: Where do you get the seeds for seedless watermelons?

Did you ever notice that the seeds in plain old seedy watermelons all point outward toward the rind?

This column is quite confused at best, but last week it was even worse than usual . . . . because the order of the paragraphs was mixed up when the paper was being put together. The first sentence of the column as written began, "Last Thursday. . . ."

Reminds me of the story about a man who was wearing a lapel button with the letters "BAIK."

When asked what it meant, he replied, "Boy, am I confused."

"But confused doesn't start with K."

"That just shows how confused I am!"

Agent's Corner

Mrs. Ann Ross

Spring clean-up time might also be the time that you're "taken for a cleaning". The "fix-it" man may appear at your door with promises to repair most anything, says Mrs. Ann Ross, Thumb extension home economist.

Law officials report that every year Thumb families turn in complaints about pseudo gardeners, high pressure salesmen and peddlers who claim to be experts in furnace cleaning, roofing, tree trimming, lawn fertilizing and you name it.

Here's their approach. They move into an area in teams, establish themselves in an apartment and then set to work. They do one good job in a neighborhood in order to get good referrals.

But the next job may end up with the home owner discovering that their "quality paint job" washed off with the next good rain. Or their "expert roofer" leaves them a staggering bill and a leaking roof to boot. Or their "aluminum siding" begins to rust.

To combat the door-knocking "fix-it" team, the National Better Business Bureau recommends dealing only with firms whose dependability and reliability can be affirmed by inquiry. Then be sure the man who comes to your door represents the company he claims he does.

Don't sign papers before you understand the terms and conditions of the sale or job. Be sure the name and address of the firm is printed on the contract. Any verbal promises should also be stated in the contract. Then be sure to keep a copy.

Only when you're satisfied that a job is done, should you sign a completion certificate. Compare price quotations with those of other firms. Then pay your bill by check or money order made out to the firm--not to the salesman. And do not pay cash.

One last caution: Don't be lead to believe that because a loan is insured by a government agency, the agency guarantees material and workmanship. It's not necessarily so.

Mrs. John Jaus Succumbs Friday

Mrs. Maude Jaus, widow of John Jaus, died Friday, June 2, in her home.

Daughter of the late Jacob and Saloma Kramp, she was born Feb. 16, 1888 in Sanilac county.

She and Mr. Jaus were married July 1, 1911, in Detroit. They made their home on a farm in Elkland township and lived on the farm until they retired in 1945 to Cass City.

Mr. Jaus died June 20, 1962.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Pearl Harriman of Detroit, and a brother, Frank Kramp of Orwell, Ohio, nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held at Little's Funeral Home Monday.

Rev. Ira Wood, pastor of Salem EUB Church, officiated and was assisted by Rev. David Altman, pastor of the Novesta Church of Christ.

Burial was in Elkland cemetery.

One For The Road

Too Many Good College Candidates

By Dan Marlowe

On Monday, June 12th, the registered voters of the tri-county area will go to the polls to vote their acceptance or rejection of the tri-county community college and vocational high schools proposal on the ballot.

For those in favor of the proposal, there are three things to be done upon stepping into the voting booth, as follows:

1. Vote "yes" on the proposal itself.

2. Vote "yes" on the authorization of millage.

3. Select 7 trustees to run the program from among the 26 candidates on the ballot.

It's in connection with the third point that the voter would do well to prepare himself in advance, for without a bit of homework he's all too likely to end up in the voting booth staring blankly at a list of names which don't mean too much to him.

I don't know all the candidates personally. I may know only half of them, which is probably par for the course for the average voter. It's a pleasure for me to report to you, though, that even among those I know--let alone those I don't--that the area may actually have an embarrassment of riches in the lineup, inasmuch as the voter will be faced not so much with an array of clear-cut choices as the necessity for eliminating qualified candidates in favor of those even better qualified.

This column is necessarily being written some days in advance of the Meet-The-Community - College - Candidates get-together in Bad Axe on June 6th at which the interested voter had an opportunity to study for himself the qualifications of the candidates. I may change my own mind after attending this meeting, but for whatever it's worth, here's a listing (arranged alphabetically) of candidates I personally feel to be among the better qualified. They are multi-talented individuals who will do an excellent job if selected for the unpaid positions on the Board of Trustees.

BOOK REVIEW

It's Different Than Most We Read

By Rev. R. J. Searls

This book is different than most we read. The Man Who Was Magic, by Paul Gallico, has on the front cover these words that set the stage, "A Fable of Innocence." In listing the other books from his pen, the reader is surprised to discover that this writer has written in excess of 30 novels! In it, with many others, we find several that have been seen on the New York stage. Allow me to name some of his works; you see if they are familiar books to you: "Lou Gehrig --- Pride of the Yankees", "Thomasina", "Love of Seven Dolls," just to name a few.

And this book carries near the front, something I have campaigned for, a list of the cast of characters. I think that you will be happy, as I am, to know that at last some publishers of novels are aware of the reader's need to have such a list to which they can refer when the book is picked up again after several days of ignoring it.

We are introduced to the main character in this book immediately, Adam and his dog ("Mopsy"), who engage the draw bridge attendant in conversation. We discover Adam is dressed in deerskin, which even then was out-of-date. He treats Mopsy like you would treat a kinsman, claiming that she was able to talk understandably. Whether this claim was true or not is a question that is left for the reader to decide for himself.

Mageia is the central center of the magicians. That very night finds the eliminations going on, which might allow the new and different acts to join the magician's fellowship.

Adam causes much consternation among the established magicians, by not having a regular assistant and by doing new tricks, none of them could do. The town is divided into two 'parties' of magicians, and Adam caused much speculation among the magicians as to how he did his magic. The Great Robert (See? I told you that 'great' belongs to 'Robert!') is the leader of many of the town's citizens--all of whom are magicians. His daughter, Jane, becomes (disobediently) Adam's assistant and becomes the object of much skulduggery by her own brother (Peter) and others, mostly from professional jealousy.

Malvolio The Mighty is the leader of the other portion of citizens. At his orders, Mopsy, the pup, if kidnapped just before the finals, and gets free just in time to warn Adam.

In the end of this fable, the bad guys are exposed for what they are, and Adam goes off in the sunset, with his going, to the tune of guitars and banjos, etc., etc.

Ordinarily, I detest fables, but I thoroughly enjoyed this one. There is a moral book with the moral being. I think, that the good guys always win, and the bad guys always lose, or that real love is always the victor.

This is an entertaining book, perfect for reading in a summer's evening.

"The Man Who Was Magic," by Paul Gallico, Doubleday & Company, Inc., Garden City, N. Y. 203 pp. Available from the Elkland Township and Cass City Library.

Wheat Support Loan Rates Set

Basic rates for 1967-crop wheat county price support loans in Michigan were announced today by Frank Light, Chairman of the Michigan ASC State Committee. Rates in Michigan's principal wheat counties, Mr. Light stated, vary from $1.17 to $1.30 per bushel, and reflect the national average farm loan rate of $1.25 per bushel previously announced by the Secretary of Agriculture. This national average loan rate is the same as for the 1966 crop.

Frank Light noted that the market price for 1966-crop wheat has been well above the loan rate for the entire marketing year. Continuing his comment on the Price Support Program, he added that there is no change in the premium and discount schedules from the 1966 crop.

Bean Queen Candidates Urged to Apply Now

Farm Bureau, Grange, farmers' club groups and others have been asked to encourage qualified candidates to get their nominations in for the Tuscola County Bean Queen Contest which will be held in conjunction with the 1967 Tuscola County Fair during the week of July 30 to August 5, advises Fred Black of Akron, County Bean Queen Committee chairman.

Applications for use by interested candidates are available through your local Farm Bureau, Grange or farmers' club groups; they are also available through the county Farm Bureau office and the Cooperative Extension office in Caro.

At a meeting of the Tuscola County Bean Queen Committee, it was decided that July 15 should be the deadline date for entering the contest. Contestants will be called together Monday, July 24, for a meeting with the judges and a lunch is furnished through the courtesy of the Tuscola County Farm Bureau, Monday evening, July 31, the opening day of the Tuscola County Fair, the bean queen contest will be a part of the evening program on that date.

Interested ladies are asked to contact their local groups to enter the contest. Contestants must be unmarried and a farmer's daughter who has or is now growing beans. Age limitation is 17 to 25 years, inclusive. County bean queens of previous years are not eligible.

Tuscola county elevators have cooperated in providing funds to help finance the contest, as well as to provide cash awards for all of the Bean Queen participants, said Mr. Black.

Other members of the County Bean Queen Committee in addition to Black are Fred Bach of Akron; Roy Hickey of Fairgrove; Elmer Kurpsel of Millington, and John Graham of Caro.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

I see where one of them Congressmen says, on account of all the new benefits and programs fer the people, our Guverment was necessary passing through the "red tape age." He was claiming things would git better.

Personal, I think they was going through the metal age - gold in their teeth, silver in their hair, and lead in their pants. Farthermore, I don't think our Guvernment has ever got the lead out of their pants or ever will. I heard Ed Doolittle tell the storekeeper onct that the reason Rip Van Winkle slept 20 year was because he applied fer a civil service job and slept while they was gitting the red tape unwound.

The older I git, Mister Editor, the harder it is fer me to understand this country our forefathers founded. Part of it was traveling like a rabbit with a dog on his tail and part of it was dragging along like a smail out fer a Sunday afternoon stroll. You go to the grocery store to git a little to cook fer dinner and everthing is readymade, mass-produced, capsuled, precooked, prefabricated and quick froze and it takes six weeks to git your Social Security checks coming. You go to the tax office and they meet you at the door and you go to your doctor's office and you have to set so long that if you ain't already got a disease, you catch one.

And I been gitting a little upset over all this crime that was sweeping the country. I can recollect when it was safe fer folks to go anywhere at any time of the day or night. Now, special in the big cities, it ain't safe to stick your nose out the door if you ain't toting a double-barrel shotgun. And I was reading where this hold-up man was robbing a store run by a woman and her little boy started crying. The hold-up man stopped long enough to spank the boy and tell him to keep quiet. In other words, crime has got to the place where the victims has got to mind their manners.

I was reading a piece in the papers the other day that put me to thinking about this crime business. The feller that was writing the piece claimed the courts of America was to blame fer the crime wave. He give fer a example the case where a thief stole some cigarettes from a Army PX store and the Federal Judge give him six months in prison. He allowed as how, if they was any justice to such things, Bobby Baker should have got 104 year and 4 days in jail.

But I reckon, Mister Editor, this was just one of my blue days when I can't git no glimpse of the silver lining. Like the farmer that said they was days when he wished he lived so fur back in the sticks that instead of hearing his neighbor call his hogs, he would have to catch it on the third echo.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Tips for Setting Hay Conditioners

Many farmers making hay today have hay conditioning equipment which crushes, cracks, or splits the stem to make the forage dry quicker so it can be removed from the field before the next rain. Alfred Ballweg, county extension agricultural agent, advises farmers to look for stems that have not been crushed as one way to test whether or not the hay conditioner is set to the right pressure.

If the farmer finds crushed leaves and plant tips, then the conditioner is set too tight and this tends to cause leaves to shatter and be lost before they are baled or taken to the barn. He reminds that some bruising is inevitable but it should be kept to a minimum.

Another check farmers should make is for inverted stems. Hay should come off the conditioning-mower, strike the deflector shield and then fall to the ground with many of the stems on top.

The county agent says fluffiness of the swath is another important factor. A swath which returns to the ground after passing through conditioning rows in a wet, heavy, soggy mass will not dry rapidly. The swath should be left as fluffy as possible to permit the free movement of air through the hay, the agent reminded.

Improper adjustment of the equipment can defeat the purpose of hay conditioning. Getting high quality hay adds to the nutrition available to livestock and enables the farmer to get the hay under cover before bad weather, the agent concluded.

Tom Ellis Takes Basic Training

Army Private Thomas L. Ellis is assigned to Company D, 15th Battalion, 4th Brigade, at Fort Knox in the United States Army Training Center, Armor (USATCA).

He will spend the next two months learning the fundamental skills of the soldier in today's, modern, action Army--firing live ammunition under simulated combat situations, learning protective measures and first aid for chemical, biological and radiological attacks, as well as being schooled in the use of modern arms.

Following completion of his basic training, Pvt. Ellis, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Ellis, of Cass City, will receive at least an additional eight weeks of either advanced instruction or on-the-job training to qualify him in a specialized military skill.

Michigan Mirror

Lawless Drivers Costly, Hazardous

Michigan motorists will be hit again this year, physically in the pocketbook, or both, because it seems impossible to get lawless drivers off the highways.

A study recently completed by Michigan Insurance Information Service shows that 65% of those involved in accidents had poor driving records. This complements studies already done by American Automobile Assn. Both organizations feel that basic re-evaluations of Michigan's point system must be forthcoming or people will continue to pay the price in lives, injuries, property and insurance premiums.

37.8% had been subject to driver improvement action. Most of them repeatedly, yet were still driving and causing accidents.

26.8% had serious records, but fewer points than required for corrective action.

20% had minor records, and 15.4% had no records at all.

Also discovered were 162 drivers whose records were not available because they were driving without licenses. Another 29 cases showed no police report of the accident.

AAA studies show similar findings. An analysis of 20% of Michigan's 2,290 traffic deaths in 1966 spotlighted two chronic highway offenders: the drinking driver and the repeating violator.

Drunk drivers are involved in 44% of fatal accidents. Any driver with more than 12 points in any two-year period runs the risk of a fatal accident eight times that of the average driver.

Flagrant violation of highway laws and ensuing accidents have caused annual death rates to climb by 900 per year since 1959. Accidents increased from 178,000 to more than 300,000. Personal injuries jumped from 58,000 to 155,000. Claims paid by insurance companies have gone from $117 million to more than $220 million.

This increase in cost is reflected in amount of premiums paid by policyholders, almost double that of 1959.

Secretary of State James Hare points out that the present point system works in about 95% of the cases. But the remaining 100,000 to 200,000 drivers seem impossible to rehabilitate, Hare maintains.

He notes that these offenders go unpunished primarily because law enforcement agencies are "understaffed and undermanned," causing a "lower priority on these kinds of violations."

Hare feels that improvements in the point system have been made through the years, but that more are needed.

Any major changes, such as re-examinations at the nine point level, would be extremely expensive and add further burden to law enforcement personnel, he says.

Hare feels a "tightening up" of the present system seems to be in order. Much depends on new legislation. But he reports that some of the bills introduced this year under the direction of his department "are either dead or stymied by lack of appropriations."

Traffic safety studies all point to the same general recommendations:

Earlier and stronger steps must be taken to get the irresponsible motorist off the highways and keep him off. Operating a vehicle without a valid license must carry stiffer penalties.

Drunk drivers, especially repeaters, should lose their licenses with no provision for restricted driving.

Law enforcement agencies must have additional men to adequately police highways and arrest those who disregard traffic tickets.

Additional legislation must be passed to eliminate loopholes in the present point system.

Courts must be as concerned about the future safety of other motorists as they are about the man pleading his case at the moment.

People must be made aware of the growing need before any real improvements are made in highway safety. They must demand action and they must be willing to pay the price.

Enforcing meaningful legislation is costly. Increasing the Michigan State Police force by 400 by 1970 (recommended by AAA) carries a price tag of $5 million per year. City police and county sheriffs also need more manpower. These measures are also expensive.

Michigan people will pay either in a better legal system or in lives, injuries and dollars.

Unless the rising toll of highway accidents is turned, Michigan may soon record the highest traffic fatality count of any state.
