

Little Change in Attitudes After 8 Months of Meters

Nothing caused more of a stir in Cass City's placid business scene than the installation of parking meters last October. They were cursed and discussed, hailed and hated almost from the moment they were first authorized in a controversial special meeting of the village council.

Now, nine months later... who was right? The considerable portion of the community who said that the meters would kill business and keep the shopper away or the other residents who felt that meters for money, for more off-street parking, would be the salvation of the village?

To find out, the Chronicle this week surveyed the persons who made the original decision, some of the members of the council, the shoppers and businessmen who were for and against the meters when they were installed.

Considered strictly as a profit-making gimmick, meters are the greatest thing since slot machines for separating the area motorist from his small change and building the parking coffers of the village. The original 125 meters cost $8,887.50. As only 112 of the meters were installed, credit was given the village for some of the meters and poles and some were kept by the village for spare parts.

The village sends an average of $261 a month—50 per cent of monthly revenues—to the Chicago company. The only extra expenditure since payments began was the result of vandalism which put 66 meters out of commission in late April. It cost the village $80 in parts and an uncalculated amount in revenue before the meters worked again. Police Chief Carl Palmateer did the replacement and repair work at no cost to the village.

Since their installation the meters along Main, Leach and Seeger have meant an average of $523 a month to the village.

Village President Lambert Althaver says his early expectations and those of the village council for meter revenues lag behind the actual figures as they near $5,000.

While paying for themselves on a 50 per cent of monthly revenue basis, 1967 meter returns will meet the cost of three village parking lot rentals, one lot improvement and one lot surfacing—eliminating the use of village tax revenues in this area.

But even as the figures point to the meter system as a profit-making venture for the village, citizens are questioning its virtues. The one word which sums up the feelings of the seven shoppers who disliked the meters is inconvenient. And the reasons as to why they were "inconvenienced," "aggravated" and "annoyed" were as varied as the shoppers themselves.

The Chronicle interviewed 10 area residents; five lived within the village and five in the country. All use the downtown shopping area, the parking meters and the village parking lots. Seven were against the meters; three were in favor of them.

The Chronicle also talked to four Cass City businessmen. Three were on the village council at the time of meter installation. One was a protesting grocer. Today, President Althaver praises the meter program as he did before. Bernard Freiburger voted for the meters because, "there was no other answer." Scotty McCullough was against them then; he is now. Grocer Arlan Hartwick is still protesting.

Mrs. John Gruber had the same complaint as three other Cass City traders when she referred to a lack of parking space.

"I can never find a meter and space," said one lady, "so I just park near the bank and make quick shopping trips."

"By the time I finally find a place I'm two blocks from where I want to do my shopping. I find the meters a nuisance," said another shopper.

Two of the shoppers voiced their opinions against the meters by saying the system hurts the merchants.

"Shoppers don't like to keep putting money in the meter and still worry about tickets," commented one of those interviewed. "It will drive people from shopping in Cass City. It has happened in other communities and will happen here."

Arlan Hartwick blamed monthly drops in business on the inconvenience caused shoppers by the meters. "Records showed a gain in business for every month—until the meters were installed," said Hartwick.

"Since then each month has shown a lower revenue than the same month a year ago," Scotty McCullough of Mac and Scotty said he was against the meters but now that they are in, they're in and he declined to say more on the subject.

"From what I hear," said one shopper who doesn't drive, "no one likes the meters."

President Althaver says he has heard little complaining about the meters and received even fewer official complaints. "There is always a place to park because the meters cause turnover. The shopper doesn't have to put up with the business owner's car or those of his employees," said the village president referring to the meters restricting all day parking on Main Street.

Three of the shoppers find the parking meters to their liking and couldn't say enough about the "nice big parking spaces" and the abundance of them.

"Where else can a nicker go so far? I like the parking meters very much. It's worth two cents to find a parking space right where it's needed," said one "for" shopper.

Other shoppers who see no disadvantage to the parking meter system attribute the parking space and the convenience of parking to the free parking lots provided for the shopper by the village.

Although Alan Milligan felt the original parking system was better, he finds the lots to be handy. In fact, he suggested that the village could use another on the south side of Main Street.

Mrs. Gruber also felt the village could use more lots but added, "they aren't convenient for grocery carrying."

Grocer Hartwick referred to the village's plans to improve the lot near his business and expressed hope that it would curb his falling revenue.

Freiburger, also a grocer, was a member of the council when it was voted to install the meters.

"People don't stay too long in one spot because of the meters. They're good for quick business. Those shoppers against the meters can use the other facilities. And as someone has to pay for parking improvements, we benefit from the meters in the long-run."

Whether the motorists were for or against the installation of meters and regardless of their feelings towards them, it's agreed they're here to stay.

And whenever something is here to stay, improvements are not far behind. In this case improvements take the form of more meters on Oak Street, one-half block north and south of Main. These will be added within 12 to 18 months, said Althaver—as soon as curbs and gutters are added.

The only other improvement in the works is the blacktopping of the Jackson parking lot north of Main and west of Seeger.

Although the meter revenues cover only their own cost, lot rentals and surfacing costs now, they will in due time pay for all parking improvements, alley work and what is left over will go into street work.

As Freiburger said, someone has to pay for the improvements. And as the meter revenues exceed all early expectations, they seem to be doing a pretty good job of it.

CASS CITY CHRONICLE

VOLUME 61, NUMBER 13

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN - THURSDAY, JULY 13, 1967

FOURTEEN PAGES

From the Editor's Corner

I'm sure that Cass City's new high school will be a functional, adequate building for the needs of the school district for many years to come, but when compared to some of the newer structures in the city it is already outdated!

A story in this week's paper that is syndicated by the Michigan Press Association tells of changes in buildings that allow a new concept in teaching. Like anything new, they will be looked at with skepticism until after a gradual evolution when the changes that prove best will become commonplace.

We just hated to print Dan Marlowe's column this week. Here's why: You'll notice that paragraphs at the end of my columns every week which are known as column closers (or fillers) in the trade. On page three, section two, this week there are several... earth-shaking bits of philosophy like "The one thing most needed today is faith in the future."

On this page alone there are four of these little paragraphs so you can see that the paper eats up fillers like a Coho salmon devours a school of Alewives... we're always running out.

Now, back to Marlowe's column. This week his entire column is just one big mass of column closers... 16 of them and all interesting, witty and wonderful for those hard-to-fill spaces that jump up on nearly every page.

Here's a thought that appealed to me when I read it because it concerns my business. Oddly enough, it is harder to get a successful advertiser to STOP advertising than it is to get a non-advertiser to start.

This is true of every large retailer and corporation and is also so true of at least a half dozen businessmen in Cass City.

Cass City has a few businesses that use one of the many bank charge card systems that are sweeping the State and the nation. But we have to take a back seat to Pigeon which has adopted a card system under the auspices of their bank. According to a page advertisement, 40 of the town's businesses have adopted a charge plate plan for customer convenience.

It's possible, if you were on "the inside" things wouldn't be as rosy, but as a disinterested observer it always appears that the community has unusually good cooperation in whatever community endeavors it undertakes.

As the old cliché puts it... they hang together so they won't hang separately.

McCombs Hurt In Auto Crash

Mr. and Mrs. Frank McComb sustained cuts and bruises which required a visit to a physician's office Friday afternoon near Rose City. They were enroute to their cabin near Mio. McComb attempted to pass a pick-up as the driver attempted a left turn and collided with the McComb car. The car was badly damaged. Riding in the rear seat of the McComb car were their sons Tim and Tom and Steve Selby all of whom escaped injury.

Study Starts Here Seek Answers for Pheasant Decline

The mystery of the disappearing pheasant in the Thumb will be a special investigation project of Keith L. Heezen, game biologist of the Michigan Department of Conservation, and he issued a plea this week

3 Fire Victims Much Improved; Kenneth Critical

Three of the four children who survived the flash fire at the Ernest Spencer home Sunday, July 2, are seemingly out of danger while the fourth is still listed as critical by hospital authorities.

Ernest Spencer Jr. is listed in good condition at Caro Community Hospital.

Kenneth Spencer, 11, is listed as still critical by authorities at Children's Receiving Hospital in Detroit. His two brothers, Robert, 10, and Daniel, 7, were reported much improved Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Ernest Spencer, in Hills and Dale's hospital for treatment for shock, was released this week.

The blaze killed four children of the Spencers and two children of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jackson.

Tell First 10 to Pay Village Taxes

Mrs. Barbara Marshall this week announced the first 10 persons to pay village taxes. First on the list was James Seales.

Others in the top 10 are: Harold Murphy, Floyd Ottoway, Herman Doerr, Eliza Hegler, George Somers, Roger Wright, Robert Hutchinson, Richard Hampshire and Dale Damm. Village taxes are due Friday, July 14, the treasurer reminds residents.

Five Boys Attend Conservation Camp

Attending are Louie Langenburg, Joe Hillaker, Bill Pearce, George Martin and Dennis Clara. The boys were selected by members of the Cass City

Sidewalk Sales

The first town-wide sale of the year in Cass City will be held Friday and Saturday, July 21-22. It was announced this week by authorities of the Retail Division of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce.

The sale is the annual Sidewalk Sale where merchants place seasonal items on the walk so customers can browse for bargains.

To make it easier for mom, the Chamber has arranged for free movies for all children 12 and under Friday and Saturday afternoon.

Dick Hendrick, Cass Theatre owner, emphasized that the two features presented will be different from the regular show held each week end.

for the help of area residents.

There have been many reasons advanced for the dearth of birds, Heezen said, but the truth is that no one knows for sure... with this research project we hope to find out.

If residents who find dead pheasants in the field would call me at the Conservation headquarters in Caro (673-3435) or at my home in Gagetown (665-2214) when they find a dead bird, I will be able to come and pick it up for autopsy, he explained.

We will also be able to examine the habitat where the bird was killed and interview the persons who found it.

In this way, Heezen said, we may come up with some answers and be able to determine a way to bring the birds back. Assisting Heezen on the project will be conservation officials from Rose Lake Wildlife Experimental Station.

The study will include all of the Thumb, covering Huron, Sanilac, Tuscola and parts of Saginaw and Bay counties.

In County

Finally! Lady Dogs Awarded Equal Status

Look for a marked decrease in the number of "male" dogs running around Tuscola county in 1968.

It's not that mother nature is having a change of heart, but rather that the county will make the same license charge for male dogs as it does for females, following the adoption of a resolution Monday by the Tuscola County Board of Supervisors. The females have been awarded equal status.

The previous law read that male dogs licenses cost $1 and female licenses were $2 with the fee doubling after Mar. 1 each year.

The new law places all dogs on an equal footing. The fee will be $2 until Mar. 1 when it doubles. The change is effective in 1968.

If you examine our records now you'd be astonished at the number of male dogs and the few females that are registered in Tuscola county, one observer concluded dryly.

POTHOLDERS ARE EVERYONE'S favorite in the summer recreation program and some mother will be glad to have these works of art in her kitchen. Mrs. Barbara Tuckey, program director for three summers, gives some pointers on potholder making to Peggy Schwartz and Mark Drews.

Recreational Program Boosted by Big Mistake

"It was all a big mistake." That's how Mrs. Barbara Tuckey said she became summer recreation director at Cass City three years ago.

Mrs. Tuckey, in her third year with the summer program, has an interesting tale to tell about how the job came hers. Her background is rather important to the story.

Originally from Illinois, Barbara worked one summer in a Chicago YMCA camp program dealing with emotionally deprived children from every income bracket.

"Rich and poor," said Mrs. Tuckey, "they all had a need to be wanted, appreciated and loved."

A special program, students from surrounding universities were doing their master's thesis on the camp's work. Before her marriage to Robert Tuckey, Barbara taught third grade at Selma Elementary in the Warren Consolidated school system.

When she and her husband moved to Cass City one of their neighbors was Margo Isard. This is where the story all begins.

One evening Dr. D. E. Rawson, a member of the park committee of the village council, knocked at the Tuckey door—thinking it was the Isard's. He asked Barbara if she was a teacher and she answered yes.

Still thinking he was at the Isard's, Dr. Rawson continued to talk with Mrs. Tuckey about her background in hopes he could interest her in taking over the summer program. By the time the two found out that "it was all a big mistake," Dr. Rawson had become impressed with Barbara's qual-

The doctor went on his way to the Isard's but returned to the Tuckey's when he learned Margo would be taking summer university work.

"My husband was a little against my working at first," said Mrs. Tuckey, "but things worked out and he finally gave his consent."

Since taking over the summer program, enrollment has increased from 30 to 40 and from 40 to nearly 60 signed for this year's program.

Roch Rocked By Rock in Power Mower

Everyone knows the danger of the whirling blades of a power lawn mower.

Not many are aware of another hazard that the power cutters bring, but George Roch of Cass City can testify that it exists, following an episode that happened while he was jauntily seated on his power mower, keeping his lawn in shape.

While mowing, the blade of his machine hit a rock. If it hadn't been for a few obstructions, the stone might still be flying.

It cracked through a side window of a parked car and burst through the window of the other side, leaving two shattered panes that hardly slowed it down at all.

From the car it went unerringly to a basement window, smashed through and broke several bottles on its way to the far wall which it dented before settling gently to a sofa where Roch found it.

The bike parades, picnics, Indian dances and pet shows are festivities held every summer.

"The big difference this year is the addition of more art projects—more complicated art projects. There is also more swimming," said Mrs. Tuckey.

Their new art project is the kiln, a copper enameling and tooling set. The children also work with liquid plastic, plaster of Paris and clay molding.

"Pot holders are everyone's favorite. We have to do them almost everyday," remarked the summer director.

The program began this year on June 19 and will run until July 28.

Activities start at 9 a. m. and keep everyone busy until 11:30. A lot of the children come year after year and some are asking now what is planned for next summer. Although the children are encouraged to stay the entire two and one-half hours, they are free to come and go anytime.

There is no charge for the program except when special project work is being done and special materials, such as with the kiln, are needed. However, there is always something to do everyday that doesn't cost the children to participate in.

The program, opened to those in first through sixth grades, is run as part of the Cass City Park and Recreation summer program which includes the pool program and is under the over-all direction of John Bifoss.

Summer helpers include Sherry Law Dillon, who will teach second grade this fall at Campbell Elementary, and Linda McConkey, an elementary education major at Michigan concluded on page 4

Mundane Session

School Board Elects Officers

In just a little over an hour Monday night the Cass City School board disposed of all the routine business of the district that accumulated since the previous regular meeting a month earlier.

The brief regular session was followed by a lengthy executive session from which the press and the public is barred. No official action was taken.

Tops on the regular agenda was the reorganization of the board. Re-elected to offices they have held for several years were Horace Bolen, president; William Ruhl, treasurer, and Elwyn Helwig, secretary.

Other than the election, the remainder of the agenda included only mundane matters.

The board established a policy of accepting tuition students from neighboring high school districts. Under the State Aid formula in operation the past few years, these students are not charged tuition and the school is reimbursed from State Aid. The pupils are required to furnish (or pay) for transportation and no bus is allowed to leave its regular route for a tuition student. The policy was established after a request was received from Richard J. Patnaude to attend the Cass City High School from the Owen-Gage district.

The Cass City State Bank, the Pinney State Bank and the Citizens Commercial and Savings Bank of Flint were named depository agents for school monies for 1967-68.

APPOINTMENT COMMITTEE

Trustees Kenneth Maharg and Donald Koepfgen were appointed to open bids for fuel oil, gasoline and insurance for presentation at the next board meeting.

The schools will make two reservations to attend the joint Michigan Association of board and administrators meeting at Detroit Sept. 19-21.

During the summer months the board will meet at 8 p. m., an hour earlier than the normal 7 p. m. starting hour.

Building Stymied

Owengage Needs Disposal System

The need for a sewage treatment plant at an estimated cost of $55,000 has halted plans for an addition to buildings in the Owengage School District.

The State Water Resources Commission inspected the schools and refused to okay the proposed septic tank and drain tile system for the buildings. They demanded a treatment plant before the site would be approved.

The architect added specifications for the sewage plant in the drawings and bids were let.

When bids were opened they were higher than anticipated and more than the bond issue authorized by district taxpayers.

CHANGE PARTITIONS

A change in partitions from wood with a stained finish to steel with a vinyl covering at the new school was okayed.

Supt. Crouse believes that the district gains two ways from the change. The first is that the steel doors are better and the second is that the district receives a $162 credit for not having to have them stained, he said.

Teacher Shortage Curtails School Program

It is likely that plans for improving the curriculum at Cass City this year may be partially stymied due to the lack of available teachers.

One of the improvements called for adding a special education teacher for a program in Cass City to replace the cooperative program that was used last year with Kingston. However, Supt. Don Crouse reported, "we have not received one application from a special education teacher so we will have to abandon the idea."

A second addition to the staff was to have been a junior high guidance instructor. Chances are dim that a teacher will be found for this work, Crouse reported.

Another opening on the staff is in the high school English department. Janice Irish is not returning.

Possibly the most critical openings that remain are in the first grade. The school is short two of the three teachers needed.

There is a critical shortage of elementary teachers all across the state, Crouse said.

The Water Resources Commission will not change its plans for the sewage disposal and as a result construction plans have halted.

The school board has instructed Supt. Allen Fennell to search for ways to move ahead with construction plans.

The district had authorized $425,000 for classrooms at Owendale and Gagetown in a February vote.

The plans called for seven classrooms at Gagetown and five at Owendale. Besides the increased cost generated by the sewage plant, the district faces an increasing cost spiral that is boosting building costs sharply.

Former Resident Killed Tell Details of Recent Fatal Crash

The double-fatal accident June 16 in which Mr. and Mrs. James Schmeck of Nottingham, Pa., were killed and their three children injured was reported to the Chronicle this week. Schmeck was a former Cass City resident, nephew of Alfred Beutler with whom he lived while in this area. He attended Cass City Schools.

According to the police report, the Schmeck vehicle was pulling a camping trailer. The accident occurred when a car driven by Robert Comer of Nottingham apparently crossed the dividing strip and struck the Schmeck car. Both cars and the trailer were demolished.

Mrs. Schmeck was pronounced dead at the scene and Mr. Schmeck succumbed at Community Memorial Hospital three hours later.

The Schmecks' three children sustained injuries. Karen, 16, was treated for lacerations of the right knee; Curtis, 14, suffered abrasions and lacerations of the face, and Katrina, 6, was transferred to a Delaware hospital with lacerations of the forehead and possible brain damage.

Comer, 26, received a fractured ankle and facial cuts and a passenger in his car was treated for a fractured pelvis and lacerations of the face.

Schmeck, 40, was born in Michigan, the son of the late Robert and Jennie Beutler Schmeck. His mother was killed when he was six years old and the Alfred Beutlers raised him. He was a veteran of World War II, having served with the US Navy for three years, and was a member of the Oxford Presbyterian Church and a former Scoutmaster.

Surviving him, besides his children, are two sisters, Mrs. Ray Roy of Rhodes, Mich., and Mrs. Martin Jacques of Oscoda.

His wife Janet, 34, was a native of Pennsylvania.

SPORTS FANS!

By H. M. Bulen

One of the most fabulous baseball teams of all-time was the 1928 Philadelphia A's. SEVEN players on that team became members of the Hall of Fame! They were Ty Cobb, Mickey Cochrane, Eddie Collins, Jimmy Foxx, Lefty Grove, Al Simmons and Tris Speaker. And, strangely enough, this team did not win the pennant!

Did you ever realize how few stars in baseball history had the combination of being left hand throwers and right hand batters. To prove how surprisingly rare this combination is, look at this. Of all the men in baseball's Hall of Fame, only TWO threw lefty and batted righty, Carl Hubbell and Eppa Rixey. Sandy Koufax who is not in the Hall of Fame yet, but will be someday, is one more man who is a lefty thrower and righty batter. But, isn't it odd that there haven't been more?

Do you know what was the longest baseball game in innings ever played in big league history? It was a game between the Dodgers and Braves in 1920 that went 26 innings, ending in a 1-1 tie when it was called because of darkness. Oddly enough, the starting pitchers for each team, Leon Cadore of the Dodgers and Joe Oeschger of the Braves, both went all the way!

Pirates Regular Season Champs

The championship of the play-offs of the Cass City Little League was to have been decided Wednesday night when the Pirates faced the undefeated Giants at Cass City Recreational Park.

The Giants moved into the play-off finals by posting two victories while the Pirates had little trouble disposing of the Yankees to enter the title game.

Last week the Giants edged the Orioles, 10-7, behind the hurling of Joe Zawilinski. Craig Helwig and Jerry Toner connected for round trippers in the Giant win.

Monday night the same trio were instrumental in notching the Giants' second play-off win. This time Jerry Toner went the distance for a 13-4 decision. Both Toner and Helwig again hit home runs. Zawilinski was outstanding at third base.

PIRATES-YANKEES

The Pirates scored 6 runs in the first inning to race to an 18-5 decision over the Yankees. Mark McClorey went the distance for the winners while Rick Damm started for the Yankees and was relieved by Tim Williams in the second. Scott Hartel took over in the fifth and pitched the rest of the way.

McClorey allowed six hits and smashed out a three-run homer. Kip Hopper also clouted a ball off the glove of the left fielder that tipped over the fence for a round tripper.

Other leading hitters for the Pirates were Gene Hopper, 3 for 3; Gary Zellar, 3 for 4, and Mike Fredericks, 2 for 3. Kim Glaspie lashed a pair of hits in 4 tries and Scott Hartel picked up 2 safeties.

New School Architecture Seen in Latest Buildings

Changes in education prompt changes in school architecture. Accompanying new math, instructional television and teaching machines are new concepts in school design, flexibility and function.

Sliding classroom walls provide enclosures for small groups or individual instruction. They open to accommodate larger audiences.

School libraries are equipped with tape recorders and teaching machines. They serve as general instructional and material centers.

Even school grounds, once divided neatly into shrubbed approaches to building and playground areas, give way to landscaped outdoor classrooms. Ponds aid in the study of wild life. A wide variety of trees and plants are used by botany enthusiasts.

Pie-shaped classrooms, leading to a central core which houses an electronic learning center and TV facilities, are examples of today's school construction. Such classrooms are found in the circular Douglas MacArthur Elementary School in Southfield. With the exception of kindergartens and first-grade rooms, all classrooms are open at the center tip to provide free access to the learning center.

Jackson's Parkside High School features a combination of a dozen buildings connected by corridors. Each building holds classrooms and equipment for specific subject area study. The school can be expanded by adding new wings, yet the architectural image is not impaired.

Eastern High School in Detroit uses the same pattern but for a different purpose. Called the house-type plan, each building is a school in itself and accommodates 800 students. Youths in the inner-city can enjoy the familiarity and friendliness of a smaller school, while the concentrated population of the area is served on a single school site and shares common facilities.

Disadvantaged youngsters in Grand Rapids begin their school experiences when four or five in a building separate from the regular school. While exposed to the broadening experiences of school learning, they are sheltered from the initial bewilderment of regular classrooms.

A new, multi-story junior high school in Mt. Pleasant has installed v-shaped projecting window bays which give students a panoramic view but cut down blackboard glare and interference with artificial lighting caused by conventional flat windows.

Tree groves, pond and bog areas are part of the "outdoor classroom" landscaping of schools in Coldwater and Ann Arbor. In addition to science ventures, the areas are used by art classes for sketching, applications of mathematics for measurements and surveying, astronomy and for creative approaches to teaching many other subjects.

HARDWARE TRENDS

The old corner hardware is quickly disappearing from the American scene. In its place, according to a recent study by the Hardware Retailer magazine and the National Retail Hardware Association, is emerging a larger structure with better lighting, better parking and professional management.

The advent of discount stores brought new competition to the hardware retailers. They are warned that this most severe competitor must be faced with new methods of merchandising and management if hardware are to survive.

Two types of retailing seem to be developing from the hardware industry; the well-kept, well-designed store which offers customer service and convenience and the "junk" merchandising store. The latter heaps goods in baskets and on counters and operates on the "low-margin," discount-selling psychology.

Too many hardware stores will try to operate on the "middle-ground," MRHA maintains, and there's no middle-ground left. A store must either be neat and attractive or a cut-rate, low-price operation.

While some hardware owners are reluctant to change, many operators are improving their stores and modes of operations.

New lines, mass displays, better in-training of personnel, larger stores, sharper merchandising and advertising attempt to bring a new image to the hardware.

Many of the 1,250 hardware stores in Michigan purchase merchandise from "buying groups" in order to keep prices competitive. Membership in a group usually allows owners to retain independent control of stores but benefit from mass buying. Six major groups operate in the state and help supply some 30,000 items to the average store.

Gross sales for hardware retailers in Michigan average $150,000 to $200,000 annually.

Overall, hardware retailing has become big business and hardware associations are trying to "professionalize" it. Hardware magazines, wholesalers and dealer associations constantly offer tips on streamlining operations and promote

Report One Minor Crash This Week

Just one minor accident involving area motorists was reported this week by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department. Cars driven by Jerome Arthur Rocheleau, 37, of Cagetown collided with a car driven by Bonnie J. Reese, of Fairgrove.

The accident occurred on Bay City-Forrestville Road, near Rodgers Road in Akron township.

Rocheleau was attempting to pass when Miss Reese started a left turn. Rocheleau blew his horn and the Reese vehicle swerved back but still collided. Miss Reese told police that her turn signals did not work. She was ticketed for driving without a license.

ideas for professional management. Clinics and trade meetings point out advantages of adopting the "new look in retailing."

Harold Schumacher, manager-treasurer of the MRHA, stresses that today's hardware dealer must constantly analyze his competition, his own operation and his customers in order to effectively evaluate future plans.

"Every year there is less hope for the hardware store which refuses to change with the times," Schumacher said.

Nearly 61 per cent of all traffic deaths studied by Automobile Club of Michigan during the height of Michigan's tourist season last year occurred south of the dotted line. That was 264 out of 435 fatalities—in counties that as a whole are not regarded as part of Michigan's main tourist area. Note also the heavy concentration of fatalities running from the metropolitan Detroit area through Saginaw County.

Minors in Hot Race for Title

One of the hottest races in years has developed in the Cass City Minor League with season rapidly approaching its climax, a glance at the standings indicates.

Two Cases in Justice Court

Alta Ellen Iseler, 49, of Port Hope was ticketed by Police Chief Carl Palmateer for speeding 40 mph in a 25 mph zone on Main St. and paid a fine of $15 and costs of $6.

Charles O'Dell, 28, of Cass City, ticketed by state police for driving 90 mph at night, paid a fine of $35 and costs of $6.

Monday only a half game separated the three top teams. Leading the league by a half game are the Dodgers with a 5-2 record with two games left.

Hot on their heels are the Angels and the White Sox with 4-2 records and three games left.

The season very likely could end in a tie and if it does, Dick Drews, league director, said, a play-off will be held to determine the championship.

The complete standings:

Dodgers	5	2
Angels	4	2
White Sox	4	2
Indians	2	4
Braves	0	5

SUMMER PROGRAM

State. Both Sherry and Linda were with the program last summer. Linda Freiburger is a new assistant this summer and an art major at Central Michigan University.

Common sense is a great help in solving life's problems.

THIS YEAR'S ADDITION TO the summer recreation art program is the kiln, a copper enameling and tooling set. Busy working with copper tooling material and a tree pattern is Kim Thorton.

5 Criminal Cases Heard in Court

Five criminal cases highlighted the work load in Tuscola County Circuit Court Monday before Judge James Churchill.

Mark Evans of Millington, placed on probation Jan. 16 for breaking and entering a store in Millington, was jailed for probation violation and his probation terminated when he ignored a curfew. He will be sentenced July 17.

Ruben A. Tigner of Bay City pleaded guilty to unlawfully driving away an automobile owned by Katherine Heinzman. The plea was accepted and a pre-sentence investigation ordered. Sentence will be passed. Aug. 14.

Wayn Van Sumeren, Bay City, pleaded innocent when charged with assisting in the theft of the Heinzman vehicle. He was released on $300 bond and the date for his trial will be set.

Donald Wilton of Vassar-charged with breaking and entering and larceny from the Rainbow Laundromat in Vassar, pleaded innocent on both counts.

Bond was set at $10,000 and Wilton is now awaiting trial in the county jail.

A charge against Jasper Baker for forgery of checks in Tuscola county was dismissed. Baker is now serving a sentence at Jackson Prison and the court decided not to hold a trial for his latest offense.

DOMESTIC CASE

One domestic case involving area persons was held. A divorce was granted Barry Miller from Kathleen E. Miller. A property settlement was approved and the maiden name of Poppe restored. No alimony was granted.

Appoint Ramsey Center Head

Mr. Charles Ramsey, Chairman of the Advisory Committee for the Tuscola County Family Counseling Center, announced today the appointment of a new director for the Center. Richard D. Gritter, presently Casework Supervisor at the agency, has been named to succeed Edward A. King, who is returning to full time duty as director of Catholic Family Service of Bad Axe.

Ramsey pointed out that this development is in line with original plans for the agency. He emphasized that the move is seen as a step in the direction of making the Tuscola county agency a purely local operation. The Counseling Center, operating under a grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity, offers help to families and individuals who have encountered varied kinds of problems. Services of the agency have already been widely used throughout the county.

Gritter, a native of Grand Rapids, has been serving as Casework Supervisor at the Center since June, 1966. He is a graduate of Calvin College and holds a Master's Degree in Social Work from the University of Michigan.

CASS CITY CHRONICLE

VOLUME 61, NUMBER 13

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN - THURSDAY, JULY 13, 1967

Agent's Corner

By Mrs. Ann Ross Home Extension Agent

There's an old saying that goes "it's fun while it lasts -- but you pay for it later." "Go now-pay later" vacation travel posters can have you running for your suitcase, but slow down to some serious pencil-and-paper figuring of costs before you sign on the dotted line, suggests Mrs. Ann Ross, Thumb extension home economist. Just how much money and what interest rate will you be paying for that trip on the magic carpet of credit? Take a close look if your vacation plans and budget won't jibe. For instance, a 10-day trip to some far off isle may sound great at only $21 per month for 24 months. But the facts of financial life are that you're committing some of next year's income already plus paying as high as 25 to 35% interest on your travel loan.

Why so high? Charges must be high on vacation loans, Mrs. Ross points out, because there is no product to repossess in case of default. Borrowing a lump sum from a finance company for vacation loans usually involves paying 23% interest -- perhaps more.

How about traveling using your own credit cards? Again, it's a case of knowing how much income you're staking on repayments in the future. And along with this you're putting your credit rating on the line; perhaps even your privilege to hold certain credit cards.

A wise rule of credit use to keep in mind, when the gleam of far-off places comes into your eye, is that the extra cost of credit for non-durable goods (food, clothing, vacations) is seldom offset by the extra advantages of immediate use.

Milk Production Key to Profits

Dairymen are looking for labor saving ways to expand in the dairy business and make it a profitable operation. Alfred Ballweg, county extension agricultural agent, says one of the most important factors in determining whether investment in a new dairy system can be recovered is the level of milk sales per cow.

The county agent said an analysis by C. Ray Hoglund, Michigan State agricultural economist, shows that an investment in a completely new 80-cow cold covered housing system will be about $80,000 or $1,000 per cow. This is for the housing operation alone and does not include the cost of the animal.

If the average milk sales are 11,000 pounds annually per cow, it would be impossible to recover the investment. With 12,000 pound sales per animal, investments could be recovered in 22 years. But with milk sales of 14,000 pounds per cow, it would take only eight years to recover the $80,000 investment.

THE KIDS have taken to the slide and teeter-totter placed on a site on Third street in Cass City recently. The new neighborhood playground was first considered a year ago and the site was secured by Councilman Dr. D. E. Rawson after the village council decided to establish the playground and check the amount of usage it receives. Two children from the immediate area were using the equipment one day last week. On the slide is Joanne Freiburger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alger Freiburger. On the teeter-totter is Lisa Ware, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Ware.

Catholics Have Most Beautiful Buildings

By Marion Hostetter

Mrs. Archie Stirton has a neatly framed motto hanging on the wall of her home which she thinks was compiled by Marshall Field, the late Chicago merchant and philanthropist:

TWELVE THINGS TO REMEMBER

The value of time
The success of perseverance
The pleasure of working
The dignity of simplicity
The worth of character
The power of kindness
The influence of example
The obligation of duty

A new Cass City combo who call themselves "The Unknown" made their debut last week, playing on Wednesday for a tennis court dance sponsored by the recreation department and on Saturday night at the CAN-Teen. Rick Eria and Greg Eschelman play guitars and sing a little. Gary Eisinger handles a bass guitar, Bob Ross, the tambourines, and Jeff Profit, the drums. They have been working together for a month and a half, and are producing a new sound in the world of pop music.

Speaking of debuts, a local man whose wife had been out of town for some time decided that he would launder the linen in preparation for her return, even though he was a total stranger to this type of work. In order to do a job that she could really be proud of, he bought a bottle of chlorine bleach and took it along with the sheets and pillow cases to a local automatic laundry. He stuffed the linen into the machine, dumped in several gurgles of bleach, closed the little door, and deposited enough imitation silver to set the machine whirling on its merry round.

When he took out the sheets and started to fold them up, he found holes scattered through them, big enough to stick your fist through. The proper procedure, as his good wife explained to him later, is to add the bleach after the water is in the tub, not before.

"Oh, well," he says, "at least I have some of the whitest rags in town."

"It's no use to argue about taste," as the Romans used to say, so I hope you won't argue with my choice if I nominate St. Pancratius Church as the most beautiful public building in Cass City. If you haven't ever been inside, you are welcome, I'm sure, to wander in and look around any day. The colored glass at the west end is gorgeous. After you have taken a look, if you have another nomination for the most beautiful public building in town, please let me know.

My nomination for the most beautiful public building in Tuscola county is the Catholic Church in Caro. I think its shape is more interesting and its windows even more striking than those of St. Pancratius. The windows are made of thick chunks of colored glass held together by cement. The first impression one receives is of light and color, but after gazing at them for a while one can see symbols and pictures in the windows.

Natural illumination from an unusual skylight falls on the front wall of the church, where Christ is represented by a XP (Chi Rho, the first two letters of the Greek word for Christ). Abstract designs represent the twelve apostles, with a white one for Peter and a black one for Judas.

Hutchinsons Hold Annual Reunion

The Hutchinson Reunion was held at the Caro Fairgrounds Sunday, July 9, with 54 members present.

The following officers were re-elected for the coming year: president, Chester Hutchinson; vice-president, Arden Compton; secretary, Mrs. Harland Lounsbury, and treasurer, Mrs. Ernest Hutchinson.

The oldest member present was Mrs. Charlotte Bishop and the youngest was the year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Haverhals of Grandville, Mich.

Mrs. Arthur Little was the installing officer and was assisted by Mrs. James Stapleton, sergeant-at-arms, and Mrs. Doris Klinkman, chaplain. Mrs. Albert Keller Jr. is the new president.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

We was gitting up a fund at the country store to send Ed Doolittle to Washington. You might want to stop the presses for this announcement.

What brung this matter up was the storekeeper saying Saturday night us fellers has been lambasting things in Washington fer 30 year or more and ain't none of us even been there. He allowed as how it was time, afore all of us got too old to navigate, to git together and name a delegate, start a fund fer expenses, and git a first hand report on the nation's capital from the hayseed's point of view.

Zeke Grubb said he didn't special like that "hayseed" talk, said he would prefer to call it a report as saw from the grassroots point of view. But, anyhow, he said, he was willing to act as treasurer fer the project.

Bug Hookum was of the opinion we ought to git Zeke bonded fer the job but he was willing to make an exception in this case provided Zeke's preacher helped count the money.

And this brung up the question of picking the delegate. It was decided right off it had ought to be either Ed or Clem Webster on account of they was the two that did most of the political talking.

Josh Clodhopper figgered if we wanted to git both sides of this hayseed or grassroots report we had ought to send Ed and Clem both, but put 'em on separate trains. He was of the opinion if we sent Ed, that carries Abe Lincoln's picture in the back of his watch, we wouldn't git nothing but the Republican verdict. And if we sent Clem, said Josh, he would come home so swelled up with the Great Society he couldn't git through a barn door.

The storekeeper, that knows a heap about money matters, said we couldn't raise enough funds to send both and it was decided fer Ed and Clem to draw straws. Ed drew the long straw and was named the official delegate.

A collection was took up immediate and we got $2.78. At that rate it would be 1972 afore Ed made the trip, but Ed liked the idea, said we might have a Republican in the White House by that time.

But we aim to ask fer a contribution from our Congressman, the Welfare Department, the Office of Economic Opportunity, the U. S. Department of Agriculture and maybe from Adam Clayton Powell. Clem said Adam was good at throwing the money around and might send us two bucks. Ed allowed as how, if we could git a dollar apiece from all the hand-out agencies we got in Washington he could probable stay there a month. If you was in favor of this trip, Mister Editor, send your $1 to Zeke. Maybe it would be safer to send it to Zeke's preacher.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Final Rites Held For C. Demo

Clifford Demo, 66, died Friday, July 7, in Tuscola County Medical Facility, Caro, where he had been a patient three months.

The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Demo, he was born June 4, 1901, in Huron county. He married Margaret Kretz July 30, 1924, in Saginaw.

Surviving are his widow; four daughters, Mrs. Elmer Faust of Caro and Mrs. Harry Fitzmaurice, Mrs. John Maksimowicz and Mrs. Dale VanWormer, all of Saginaw; a son, William of Saginaw; 19 grandchildren; three brothers, Clayton and Lyle Demo, both of Sebawaing, and Merlin Demo of El Paso, Texas.

Services were held Monday in St. Pancratius Catholic Church, conducted by Rev. Arnold Messing. Burial was in St. Andrews cemetery, Saginaw.

Lepto Often Strikes Herds in Summer

Area farmers are advised by the Thumb Veterinary Medical Association, according to Alfred Ballweg, county extension agricultural agent, that summer is the season when Leptospirosis (Lepto) most commonly invades dairy, beef and swine herds. This disease is caused by a type of bacteria that initially produces active signs of infection and sickness in an animal, then localizes in the kidney tissues, presuming the animal survives the illness. Since the organism is passed out readily in the urine, the infected beast is then a carrier or shedder of the disease, sometimes for as long as one year after the original active infection occurs. The Association points out that the large numbers of wild deer and rodents (raccoons, skunks, foxes, rats, mice) in the thumb area represent a threat of infection where their urine may contaminate streams, ponds, fields and feed supplies. Leptospirosis may also occur in humans and pets when drinking water or swimming areas become contaminated.

A rather common sign of Leptospirosis infection in cattle and swine is abortion in the latter stages of pregnancy. The disease is often more subtle, however, and may cause less dramatic problems such as decreased reproductive efficiency, lowered milk production, and an atypical mastitis. Diagnosis and treatment by a veterinarian is therefore vital since these symptoms may also be caused by several other diseases.

The Association suggests that the best control of Leptospirosis can be accomplished by fencing off streams and surface water that may be contaminated by wild animals, and by annual vaccination of all breeding stock.

Those blind to their faults will soon be put on the spot.

Know today what you plan to do tomorrow - it's only the finished product that counts.

Michigan Mirror

Check Your License- It May Have Expired

Income in Michigan rose at a less-than-average rate in 1966 according to the Office of Economic Expansion. Personal incomes in the state averaged a 7.7% increase over 1965 as compared to a national average of 8.2%.

A lag in manufacturing, led by a cutback in automobile manufacturing, was felt to be the major deterrent in holding personal income to slower gains.

In total personal income per capita, however, Michigan ranks 14th among the 50 states with an average of $3,219 per person annually. Highest in the nation is the District of Columbia with per capita income of $3,969; lowest is Mississippi with annual income of $1,751 per capita.

Incomes of state and local government employees showed the greatest increase in Michigan, rising 13% over 1965. People employed in transportation, communication and public utilities enjoyed the next greatest rise, 12%; earnings of federal civilian employees increased 9%, the same rate for construction workers. Lowest rise was federal military, whose pay increased 4%.

PRISONER JOBS

A rehabilitation program for a select group of inmates at Michigan prisons may prove to be the transitional step needed to bridge prison and private life.

Under this program, selected inmates work daytime jobs in the "outside world" and spend nights at the prison. Gus Harrison, director of the Department of Corrections, pointed out that inmates eligible for the "Work Pass Program" must meet three requisites: less than one year remaining before parole; good security risk; no history of mental disorder, assaultiveness or sexually deviated conduct.

Inmates are placed in jobs located within the communities where they will be later paroled. Care is taken not to assign them to jobs which could be filled from the local labor force.

Success of the program merits it being continued and probably expanded, urges Harrison. A total of 156 men participated in the first full year of testing. Only 11 were removed because of unsatisfactory work performance or violation of program rules.

Employers expressed general satisfaction with the inmate-workers. Performance ratings on 48 inmates showed "good" to "outstanding" from 75% of the employers. Two-thirds of the employers polled stated they would recommend inmates who had worked for them.

Individual earnings averaged $85 per week. Of the total earned, 30% is sent to families and 50% is placed in a savings account for the inmate upon parole. The remainder goes for work-related expenses such as clothing and transportation. The state assesses $5 per week to help meet program administration costs.

Most inmates credit the program with helping to support dependents and establishing a savings program. In several instances, the plan made possible the removal of dependents from public assistance rolls.

Expansion of the program would involve cooperation of county sheriffs. Inmates could be placed in jobs farther from the correctional institutions if they spent non-working hours in county jails rather than in prison. Harrison reports that many sheriffs have shown an interest in the program and such an extension is likely.

SURE THING

An almost sure bet can be made that, in a group of 20 people, at least one has an expired driver's license; as many as five or six would not be beyond probability.

The Secretary of State's office has done preliminary studies on the problem and estimates as many as one-third of Michigan's drivers miss renewing their licenses before expiration.

Under Michigan law, drivers' licenses expire on birthdates every three years. No notification of expiration is used.

Recently a group of legislators met with Secretary of State staff to discuss ways of eliminating the problem. During the discussion, one lawmaker reportedly discovered his driver's license had expired.

****

Penalties for failing to renew on time vary with the court and circumstances involved. Usually the remiss driver is stopped for another, more serious, violation. If a ticket is issued, the court may assess fines for the moving violation but not for license expiration. The time lapse between expiration and apprehension is usually considered another factor. Driving on an expired license is contrary to Michigan statute and does carry a penalty if the court wishes to exercise its authority.

Want to bet your license has expired? Take a look.

AAUW to Hold 2nd Book Sale

A popular feature of last year's "Sidewalk Sale Days" will be repeated July 21 and 22 when the Cass City branch of the American Association of University Women presents its second used book sale. The sale, which will be held in front of the former Asher's Men's store, will feature thousands of books priced from a nickel to 50 cents. The profits from last year's sale enabled the Cass City branch to rank among the top contributors in the state to the AAUW Fellowships Fund. This year's profits have not yet been designated for a specific purpose.

While many persons in the community have already contributed books, Mrs. Robert Stickle, who is chairman of the sale, announces that contributions are still welcome. Magazines and children's books are also needed.

Drench Sheep Now Says Ag. Agent

Damage from internal sheep parasites can be prevented by drenching all sheep and lambs during late June or early July. Alfred Ballweg, county extension agricultural agent, says ewes and lambs have been on pasture long enough to have become infected, if species of worms are in the soil and grass.

While small numbers of parasites will reduce gains and delay marketing, heavy infection can cause death losses, the county agent warned.

He advises a combination drench of phenothiazine and lead arsenate is very effective and most commonly used at this time of year. Other preparations containing diphenanthrene 70 and phenothiazine are also available from veterinarians and are effective. Both of these drenches contain material aimed at controlling tapeworms, often a problem at this season of the year.

Sheep owners should check the drenching gun carefully to make sure it delivers the correct dosage and that the end of the nozzle has no sharp edges that would injure the animal's throat or mouth.

The agricultural authority suggests herd owners keep phenothiazine and salt mixture before the flock at all times. The use of this mixture helps to keep parasites numbers from building up following drenching.

Extension Bulletin 479, "Controlling Internal Parasites of Sheep," is available at the county cooperative extension office or may be obtained by writing the Bulletin Office, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Michigan, 48823.

The age we live in is one in which the improbable and the incredible become reality.

IT SEEMS TO ME

"Kid" Brother on Bay City's WOX

By Rev. R. J. Searls

I have had recently quite a few questions regarding the whereabouts of my "kid" brother. To bring you up to date: he still lives in Hong Kong, and is heard via WOX in Bay City, 1250 on your radio dial, the local outlet for Mutual News. Some weeks, when news from Hong Kong is tense, we hear him every day, and some weeks not at all. He writes for a few daily papers such as the London Observer, the Wall Street Journal, etc. He flew to this country in April, but did not have sufficient time to stop over at Cass City. You may recall that he flew over for my parents' Golden anniversary celebration a few years back, and the children and I flew down to D. C. for it. A bachelor, he is two years my junior, and has made his home in Hong Kong for nearly two decades.

I have tended to ignore what may easily be the most important Protestant move toward Church Unity in our day: COCU, or "Consultation on Church Union." I have done so because the steps being taken right now between the EUB and Methodist churches to merge into the United Methodist Church seem to be much more advanced.

Meeting in Cambridge, Mass., the assorted delegates of COCU approved 10 guidelines on structure. These guidelines envision a united church whose structures: would be functionally determined; remain flexible as change demands; provide for ministry of different forms by lay and clerical; be racially inclusive; be concerned for both church and world; provide corporate as well as individual witness; maintain relations with other church bodies; provide mutual support of the whole by the parts; assure policy decisions by democratically selected representatives; provide for the exercise of freedom and order.

Reading these 'guidelines' many times leads me to the conclusion that they cover (and cover well) most crucial matters not hitherto dealt with. Or so "It Seems To Me."

Did you ever hear a high school student who wanted to take a course in "Scouse?" Scouse-speaking people can now read the Bible in their own language, thanks to an Anglican vicar in England. It seems that "Scouse" is a colloquial word for the dialect spoken by residents of Liverpool and Merseyside. A typical passage quotes Jesus as saying: "Forgive yer enemies. Yer'll punish more dat way den if yer clocked 'em. So feed him if 'e wants scoff; give him a bevvy if he's thirsty." Which is, in the Queen's English: "Forgive your enemies. You will punish more that way than if you struck them. So feed him if he needs food; give him drink if he is thirsty."

Adam Clayton Powell (according to David Poling) frequently "forgets" to quote other sources by name. Most preachers quote sources from books, magazines, etc., in their own sermons. If you are a good listener you will probably realize that three or four times in any sermon, your minister will say such things as this: "Dr. Blank says in his book entitled 'How Blue Is The Sky,' (Quote) . . . or like this: 'You are all familiar with the current divisions within the Christian Church which often describe God as dead. This week Dr. White said . . .'"

Dr. Poling was reviewing the Congressman's new book, "Keep The Faith, Baby" when he found 19 examples between Mr. Powell's words and long-published works of Dr. George A. Buttrick and the late Harold Luccock. (At least he chose good authorities!) I recall one of Harris Franklin Rall's accounts of questioning a preacher about a strange gesture he used at the start and finish of his sermon. At the start he had made his gesture by cupping his hands and throwing them over his right shoulder; and at the conclusion he cupped his hands once more, this time throwing them down, past his left leg. "O those," the preacher said, "those are the quote marks."

And the following was overheard recently: Two businessmen were talking. Said one: "We're a non-profit organization. We didn't mean to be, but we are."

Overheard also, was this car salesman's "pitch": "Driving this car is virtually effortless, leaving your entire mind free to figure out how you will meet the payments."

College Week For Homemakers

A noted illustrator of Michigan history will bring the state's past to life for homemakers who attend College Week For Women July 25-28.

An annual event at Michigan State University, College Week features Robert Thom, noted illustrator from Birmingham. He'll use reproductions of his own illustrations to show aspects of the state's history, according to Mrs. Ann Ross, Extension home economist in Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties.

Thom's presentation will round out the theme, "Michigan Yesterday and Today."

In addition, women from all parts of Michigan will present a historical pageant Thursday, July 27, for which they wrote the script and located authentic costumes.

College Week For Women is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service. It is open to any woman in Michigan. It means a four-day "college experience" packed with new knowledge and understanding. Information on programs and classes offered during the week is available through the Cooperative Extension Service offices in Caro, Sandusky and Bad Axe.
