Schroeter and Jardot join extension staff

Two new extension agents have assumed duties in the Huron-Sanilac-Tuscola area this week. They are Bernard Jardot, extension 4-H youth agent, and Miss Judith Schroeter, home economist.

Jardot comes to the area from Columbia City, Ind., where he worked 10 years in agricultural sales management. Previously he spent six and a half years

School, and a daughter, Judy, in the sixth grade. The new agent will make his home in Caro.

Miss Judith Schroeter began duties as Cooperative Extension Service home economist in Tuscola, Sanilac and Huron counties August 1.

According to Alfred Ballweg, county Extension Agricultural Agent, Miss Schroeter's office will be based in the Courthouse in Caro, but will develop programs and teach also in Sanilac and Huron counties.

She will share responsibilities for the Extension family living education program in the three counties with Mrs. Margaret Ann Ross, Extension Home Economist, based in Bad Axe.

The home economists prepare programs for adults and young people in clothing and textiles, food and nutrition, family life, housing and home management. They provide information through presentations at meetings and special classes, printed materials and radio, television and newspapers.

Miss Schroeter, who is a 1966 home economics graduate of the University of Nebraska, grew up on a farm near Madison, Neb. She was a 4-H participant for several years and worked for the Nebraska 4-H office while attending the University.

During the past year she taught home economics at a Wilbur, Neb., high school.

From the Editor's Corner

How many still consider the Salvation Army as a group of religious fanatics whose primary purpose is standing on street corners around Christmas ringing a bell or singing for donations?

It's natural if you've never been truly exposed to what they do. It's what I thought in pre-service days.

I was set straight while a patient at an army hospital where scads of veterans wounded in overseas action were shipped.

To a man they were high on the work of the Corps, saying that the units were always where the going was toughest and they were needed most.

And while I never heard the Red Cross criticized directly, there were many who felt that the good the Red Cross did was blown out of proportion with publicity, while the work of the Salvation Army tended to go unrecognized, except with the people that were helped.

Our memory of all this was sparked by one of the stories about Detroit's riots. It said that one building spared in the 12th Street hotbed of revolt was the Salvation Army headquarters, even though buildings on both sides were burned and looted.

Evidently, the Army is still fighting its war wherever the going is toughest. . . . still doing its job without fuss or fanfare.

* The race riots have hurt business in Michigan's north country, we learned on a two-day jaunt last week end.

Since the riots started, according to one motel operator, business has been slow, and their reason for this is that many people are just afraid to leave their property unprotected, he said.

* A sequel to the recent story about the shady billing by a California concern when they issued a "bill" on an IBM card to area merchants that looked like a statement for "yellow pages" advertising has occurred.

Vic Guernsey at Walbro reports that his company has received three of them.

Evidently, they think industries are bigger pigeons than businessmen. . . the bill to Walbro was for $72 and the one to businessmen $62.

* Jim Milligan tipped the Chronicle to the hail damage near Colwood. When he called he said that he had driven by and the hail was still piled up and that it would make a tremendous picture.

When I got back to the office I rushed out camera in hand only to find that the hail had disappeared. It seems impossible that fields could have been so completely shredded without leaving any trace so soon after the event, but I was unable to find a single hail stone an hour after the office received the call.

HEY, THAT'S MINE exclaimed this tiny tot after a L-O-N-G, L O N G day at the Tuscola County Fair in Caro. Amy and Jennifer Wood, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wood of Gagetown, stoke up on pop after finding a convenient seat to rest from the rigors of the midway and the exhibits.

Corn outlook bright

Wheat crop below average

Ask area farmers about this year's wheat crop and you'll get a varied report. . . some telling of bumper 70-bushel wheat, but more reporting yields in the 25- and 30-bushel range.

Frank Schott, manager at Frutchey Bean Co., Cass City, estimates that the average yield is about 35 to 40 bushels per acre.

According to estimates State-wide there was about 37 per cent more acres of wheat planted this year than in 1966. But current crop estimates are for only 20 per cent more wheat.

The reason for the wide range of crop yields was the wet spring. Farmers who were able to get on their fields with nitrogen and also to spray for weeds came up with good yields. Those who couldn't are getting subpar results, Schott reported.

Tuesday there were about 10,000 bushels of wheat left to be harvested.

More disheartening than the lower-than-average yield reports for wheat is the current price. Wheat Tuesday was selling for $1.31 per bushel, down 43 cents from last year's $1.74 per bushel.

OTHER CROPS

While there will be lots of wheat on the market, the supply of oats will probably not be enough to supply area feed requirements.

Oat acreage has been drastically reduced this year. Barley appears to be a good crop and is just now starting to come to area elevators. The price of $1.09 is about the same as it was last year.

CORN CROP

Mention corn and area farmers smile. A bumper yield appears to be in sight. Ample rain, and the early hot spell in June has helped shove corn a week or two ahead of normal growth expectancy.

DISASTER AREA

Discount all evaluations when talking about the farms east of Cass City and in much of the Kingston area, Schott says.

3 hurt in mishap

Three persons suffered minor injuries in a car-combine accident Thursday at 11:45 p.m. on Elkton road, eight miles south of Elkton.

Most seriously injured was Wayne J. Cummins, 12, of Gagetown who was a passenger on a combine driven by his father, Harold C. Cummins, 38. The youth received lacerations when the combine was struck from behind by a car driven by Harold L. Polega, 19, Bad Axe.

Polega told State Police who investigated that he intended to pass the combine but was unable to do so because of traffic approaching from the opposite direction.

Both Polega and the elder Cummins were shaken up in the crash.

The car was described as a total wreck.

Another Gagetown man escaped serious injury when his milk truck overturned Saturday on Dutcher Road and Remington Road.

The driver was Victor Rocheleau, 48, who said that he thought he saw a car approaching on Remington Road and applied his brakes. When he did, the load shifted and the truck tipped over.

Stamp company promotes Hubbard

Orville F. Hubbard of Deford has recently been promoted by the Gold Bond Stamp Company, authorities announced this week.

Hubbard was made special representative for the international region including Michigan, Hawaii, Japan, France, England, Ireland, Scotland, Spain and Canada.

Appliances, TV hit

Lightning damage heavy in storm

A severe electrical storm Monday resulted in a rash of burned out televisions and appliances and started a minor house fire at the Louie Pierce home on Seventh street.

The fire started when lightning hit the gas meter and started burning. Besides the meter, the house siding was slightly damaged. Total loss was estimated at $200.

Local appliance dealers report a rash of calls for appliance repairs and estimates of loss for insurance.

Lightning also struck the Hunt Construction Co. building on West street where an electric meter burned.

A high line was down due to the storm on the north side of West Main, near the village limits.

MORE SERIOUS

A more serious fire was reported Friday at an empty State owned house on Kellitz Road, southwest of Cass City.

The building was completely leveled. The fire was kept from spreading by the Elkland Township Fire Department.

Fire Chief Nelson Willy said that the fire's cause was undetermined, but that the State Fire Marshal was expected to examine the ruins.

Another fire quelled by the firefighters was reported at 2 p.m. at the Arthur Little farm on Little Road, southwest of Cass City, Saturday.

A grass fire started and burned around the barn and

Peters recovering from auto crash

Michael Peters, who suffered head injuries and fractures of both arms and legs in a June accident, is convalescing at his home at Austin Center. In the accident report in the June 29 issue of the Chronicle, it was stated that Linda Sue Groth, 18, was a passenger in the Peters' car. She was riding with Richard Roberts of Wayne, driver of the other vehicle.

Name area honor students at CMU

Several persons from the area were among 948 students at Central Michigan University to earn listing on the scholastic honors list for the 1967 spring semester.

They were: Ian Howell Stirton, Larry Kenneth Seale and Richard Leon Turner, all of Cass City; Lynn Marie Billicki, Deford; Richard Alvin Hall, Gagetown; and Judy Ann Traxler, Kingston.

shed on the farm. There was slight damage to the shed. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Huron fair set for week's run

Ready for record crowds with a record number of outstanding attractions is the 1967 edition of the Huron County Fair at Bad Axe which opens Sunday for its annual week-long run.

As usual, the fair will open with an all denominational religious service at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Monday will be set up day and visitors will be admitted free. The midway opens at 6 p.m. and the fair moves into high gear. A horse pulling contest is slated at 7:30 p.m.

There will be four big days of harness racing at 2 p.m. Tuesday through Friday as well as a pony pull and tractor pull for the entertainment of fans.

The always popular 4-H and FFA exhibits and livestock, as well as the open class competition, will be much in evidence throughout the week with judging slated Tuesday and Wednesday.

Helping put zest in the shows will be high school bands from the area. Bad Axe will perform Tuesday evening, Harbor Beach plays Wednesday and the Laker band will be at the fair Thursday.

Authorities announced that the ticket office is open now and that season tickets for admittance, grandstand and parking may be purchased from 10 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. daily.

A complete schedule is listed elsewhere in this week's paper.

Littles enjoy second floor "yard"

A Cass City couple have found an interesting solution to a problem which has intrigued mankind from the ancient days of the hanging gardens of Babylon right up to Habitat 67--how to lift the beauty and serenity of nature above ground level. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Little have a second-story garden where roses are now in bloom and early tomatoes are already ripening.

It began a couple of years ago when Littles needed more floor space for their expanding mortuary business and decided to utilize the first floor rooms which had been serving as their personal kitchen, living room, and a.c.n. In order to make this possible, Harry Little built a compact kitchen, a dining room, and a large well-lighted living room on the second floor at the rear of their home. He did most of the work himself one winter during a period of about six months.

Then when spring came, Harry and Edith looked out the window of their new living room, across the flat roof of the garage . . . and wished that it could be a patio. The wish was father to the deed, and before long they had covered the garage roof with artificial lawn, manufactured from a grasslike material imported from Africa . . . which never needs to be watered, fertilized, or mowed!

Little built a woven wood fence around the 25 by 40 foot area for safety and privacy. As a protection from too much sunshine, he built a Fiberglas shelter in one corner of the patio and added two umbrellas to the other patio furniture.

Potted junipers and yew keep the place always green, along with the rosebushes and tomato plants in five gallon containers. The overhanging branches of a large maple make visitors feel as if they were in Swiss Family Robinson's treehouse. Flies and mosquitoes seem never to have discovered the rooftop hideaway.

Recorded music comes from a hidden speaker, which can be connected with telephone and doorbell whenever it is necessary to be in touch with the outside world.

The first gala social event planned for the rooftop patio was a shower for a bride-to-be who lived nearby. Unfortunately a shower of rain drove the bridal shower into the living room. Since then, better weather has prevailed for the many occasions on which the Littles have entertained in their garden in the clouds.

HARRY LITTLE takes a little sun and relaxation on the patio that he designed to bring nature to the second-floor level.

SPORTS FANS

By H. M. Bulen

Did you know a big league baseball player once caught his own home run? . . . How is this possible? . . . It happened to Dixie Walker one day in 1946 at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn. . . . Dixie hit a homer with the ball sticking in the right field screen high above the field. . . . At the end of the inning, Walker trotted out to play his position in right field, and as he neared the fence the ball suddenly started to drop out of the screen. . . . Walker ran over, made the catch, and became the only man in history who ever caught his own home run!

Do you know where the Davis Cup of tennis got its name? . . . The Cup was donated to international tennis competition by one of America's top players in the early 1900s, Dwight Davis. . . . This same man later entered government and became our Secretary of War.

Did you ever realize that the distance just once around the bases in baseball is LONGER than the distance from one end of a football field to the other. . . . In baseball, it's 90 feet between each base; and so if a player started at home plate and traveled around the bases once and back to home, he would have gone 360 feet or 120 yards— or, 20 yards more than if he had gone from one goal line to the other in football.

Little Leaguers win 2 from Carsonville

Cass City's Little League All-stars won both games of a double header with Carsonville All-stars Saturday night at Cass City Recreation Park.

Helwig

hurls win for Erla's

Elwyn Helwig racked up a one-hit victory over Uby Recreation in the Uby Softball League Friday as his teammates rapped out seven hits in a 6-1 victory.

The Foodmen salted away the victory in the second inning when they scored three runs on two hits and an error.

That was more than enough for Helwig, but his teammates added another run in the third and two more in the fifth. One of the fifth inning runs came on a circuit swat by hard hitting Wally Hempton. Hempton was the only player to get more than one hit as he started the second inning rally with a single.

The losers' only run and only hit came in the sixth and only one of Helwig's fast balls and sent it flying for a home run. Both of Cass City's pitchers, Helwig and Al Bosch, have been pitching well in recent outings. It will be on the pitching that the club's chances will hinge when the players take to the tournament trail in a few weeks with an eye on a state title.

Last year Erla's went to the finals in the regionals before bowing.

Cass City won the first game 10-5 behind the hurling of Jeff Profit and chalked up the nightcap win behind the slants of Mark McClorey, 13-10.

In the opener, Cass City rapped out eight hits with Mike Fredericks the only player getting more than one safety. Rumps and Carter slammed circuit clouts for the visitors. Cass City boys playing the first game were Kip Hopper, Mike Fredericks, Kim Glaspie, Tim Knoblet, Scott Hartel, Jeff Profit, Gene Hopper, David Doerr and David Hillaker.

In the second game the hitting attack was led by Jim Kilbourn, Chester Sieradzki, Tom Mellendorf and Randy Kelly. Mc Clorey helped his own cause with a home run.

Carsonville's sluggers countered with home runs by Day, Rumps and Reid.

Playing in the second game for Cass City were Kenny Hall, Jerry Toner, Johnny Hacker, Mark Mc Clorey, Chester Sieradzki, Jimmy Kilbourn, Tom Mellendorf, Craig Helwig, Randy Kelly and Billy Chippel. Coaches for Cass City were Whitey Hopper, Grant Glaspie and Dean Hoag.

Teen director speaks at meet of retired teachers

CHARLES AUTEN of Auten Motor Sales, Cass City, has been awarded the distinguished achievement and gold truck awards from Ford. The presentation was made at an annual Ford dealer awards banquet held recently in Lansing.

Area students register at CMU

Among the 2,500 prospective Central Michigan University freshmen participating in pre-registration and orientation recently on the CMU campus at Mt. Pleasant were: Gail B. Hoffman, Donald R. Joos, James M. Walters, all of Cass City, and Robert R. Russell of Gagetown.

Pre-registration periods are scheduled throughout the summer for students who have been accepted for admission to Central. About 300 are being accommodated during each period. Those not able to register this summer will do so Sept. 14-15. Classes will start Sept. 18.

The Tuscola County Retired Teachers' Association met Thursday, July 27, at the home of Mrs. Roy Chisholm. Fifteen members were present from Caro, Cass City, Fairgrove, Reese and Vassar.

Ray Clendenan, executive director of Thumb Teen Ranch Inc., described the work and purpose of that organization. The ranch is located in the Kingston, Clifford and Marlette area. Its purpose is to rehabilitate boys, ages 10 to 16, from the Thumb area.

Clendenan said that the Ranch was organized to aid boys who have been brought to probate court so that they could be helped by a home environment with 10 boys plus have parents in each home. The boys receive formal education through local public schools.

Vocational and occupational experiences are offered on an individual basis. Local high school students and retired teachers offer special tutoring. Participation in community youth activities is encouraged and local churches offer spiritual training and worship.

A film of some of the activities of the ranch was shown. Clendenan brought with him examples of weapons boys make out of simple things found in any home or store.

The program was completed by a humorous article read by Mrs. Minnie Hemmingway. It was reported that the bill before the legislature to increase teachers' pensions was not passed and there would be no increase in pensions this year.

A collection for the Thumb Teen Ranch was taken and it was decided to visit the Ranch at the October meeting.

The meeting closed with refreshments served by the hostesses.

Born in China, in 1914, John Hersey lived there until 1925. He attended both Yale and Clare College, Cambridge University, graduating from Yale in 1936. He was private secretary to Sinclair Lewis. Gaining more experience, he worked as a journalist and war correspondent. A Bell For Adano, his first novel, won the Pulitzer Prize in 1945, writing (the next year) Hiroshima, an account of the first atomic bomb. I still reread my copy of this tale, and considered it the finest of the output of the entire literary world.

Since 1947 he has devoted his time mainly to fiction publishing The Wall (1950), The Marmot Drive (1953), A Single Pebble (1956), The War Lover (1959), The Child Buyer (1960), White Lotus (1965) and, Too Far To Walk (1966). He is now Master of Pierson College at Yale. He has been (we learn by the brief biography appearing on the flap of Under The Eye Of The Storm) a sailing enthusiast for many years.

This is an exciting story, excitingly told. Dr. Tom Medlar, a liver specialist, has turned to sailing as an escape, especially from the practice of his specialty. Tom comes through to the reader as devoted to details, both in his practice of medicine and in his sail boat.

Four people are to share in a pleasant outing, that nearly becomes a tragedy because of Hurricane Esme. First of all were Tom and his wife, Audrey, Flicker Hamden and his wife, Dot. Flicker, the reader notes, is the perennial life of the party. He wears well because he changes the topic of conversation when it reaches the too-serious side. But when their boat is forced to fight for its very existence, Flicker doesn't know how to act. Most of the story is of how Tom handles the Harmony. And, while this reviewer hastens to admit his lack of familiarity with sailboats, it is difficult to read of the fight for their

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Bug Hookum announced at the country store Saturday night he might be going off to college next year. He brung a clipping from some magazine telling about a feller 70-odd year old gitting his college diploma last month, and the piece said the University of Kentucky was now offering free tuition to all students over 65 year old.

Ed Doolittle said he was strong agin this idea. He allowed as how going to college after you was too old to work was like lighting the lantern after you had fell off the foot-log. You could look back and see where you fell from, but it wasn't going to help yore broke leg none.

Zeke Grubb was agreed with Ed, said it was a shame to turn the colleges into old folks homes when they was turning down young students on account of not having room fer 'em. They was some things, said Zeke, that run pritty good backwards, but time ain't one of them.

Clem Webster of the Great Society wasn't agreed exact with Ed and Zeke. He said they was plenty of useful work fer old folks and the Government had now took note of this fact. Fer instant, he reported, he had saw where they had a Federal foster grandparents program that was working real good, special in the big cities. Retired people was paid $1.50 a hour to visit orphans and take 'em to the zoo and fer walks in the parks and such things. He said he had saw a Government report where they now got 2,500 foster grandparents in 27 states and the program was growing.

And Josh Clodhopper was of the opinion they might be a great future fer old folks in the U. S. postal system. He said the more ZIP they git the more problems they got. Fer instant, he said he had saw in the papers where the Postmaster General reported money was now running so short they might have to stop all deliveries and let the folks come to the post office fer their mail. Josh claimed this was a good chancet fer old folks. They could just leave the mail sacks at the office and old fellers like Ed and Zeke could git a job dumping it out on the floor and piling it up according to the map, East and West like the newspaper ZIP and a feller living West of town could look through the West pile.

Ed claimed this was Great Society junk, but he agreed the day might come when old folks would have to git a job to pay some of the taxes fer our big give-away program. Fer instant, he had saw a piece in the papers where Poland owed us $30 million and we had agreed to knock off $10 million if they would teach English in their schools. He figured, afore the deal was closed, if them folks in Poland would learn to say "thank you" in English we might mark the whole bill paid.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Pair united in double ring ceremony

Before an altar of lighted candelabra and white gladioluses, Sally Wetzel and Wilbert Goodall of Cass City were united in marriage at the First Methodist Church in Ithaca Saturday, July 1, at 3 p.m. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Robert Sorensen.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.D. Wetzel of Ithaca. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Goodall of Cass City. Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Nancy Bowen of Ithaca. Leroy Lake of Ithaca sang "Because," "The Lord's Prayer" and "Walk Hand in Hand".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a floor length gown of peau de soie satin with an Empire waistline. Alencon type lace bordered the short sleeves and skirt edge. The rounded scoop neckline was accented by lace and embroidered with sequins. A cathedral length train fell from the shoulder and was also bordered with Alencon lace.

Clusters of rose petals edged with seed pearls and crystals held her fingertip veil of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and white carnations with streamers of white velvet rope with a rose attached to the end of each streamer.

Judy Wetzel was her sister's maid of honor. Her straight floor length gown featured an Empire waist of pastel pink crepe with ivory shade making up the skirt. Antique ivory lace adorned the waistline and also the border of the skirt. At the waistband was a pink band with tailored bow and streamers. The headpieces were pastel pink tailored bows. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Linda Harwood of Ionia, sister of the bride, Becky Curtis of Charlotte, friend of the couple, and Mrs. Christine Yarnell of Bay City, cousin of the bride.

Their dresses were identical to the maid of honor. Each attendant carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and white carnations. Between each bridesmaid was a seven foot chain of smoltit adorned with pink carnations.

Syndee Wetzel, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Her dress was floor length pink organza over silk.

Attending the groom as best man was Ivan Paladi, friend of the groom. Groomsman were Sam and Dan Wetzel of Ithaca, cousins of the bride, and Larry Goodall, brother of the groom.

Ushers were Larry Wetzel of Ithaca, brother of the bride, Quentin Harwood of Ionia, brother-in-law of the bride, Chuck Darr and Howard Schmaltz, brothers-in-law of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Wetzel chose a turquoise crepe sheath with a matching lace coat with white accessories. Mrs. Goodall chose a pink silk sheath with white accessories. Each wore a corsage of pink roses and white carnations.

Pat Honzlovic of Owosso attended the guest book.

After the ceremony, a reception for 200 guests was held in the church parlor.

The five tiered bride's cake was decorated with pink roses. White satin streamers attached to a miniature bride and groom flowed to heart shaped cakes on each side of the wedding cake, circled at the base with ferns and roses. Serving the bride's cake was Mrs. Mabel Roberts, aunt of the bride, with Linda Holden assisting. Groom's cake was served by Lois Darr, sister of the groom. Serving the punch was Connie Wetzel, sister-in-law of the bride. Mrs. Clifford Wetzel, aunt of the bride, poured.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Goodall

Assisting with the gifts were Sheryl Wetzel, niece of the bride, Beth Hubbard, Barb Osborn, and Carol Goodall, sister-in-law of the groom. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Dale Wetzel, aunt and uncle of the bride. Honored guests were Mrs. Christina Goodall, grandmother of the groom, and Miss Mina Helman of Pleasant Hill, Ohio, great-aunt of the bride.

A buffet style dinner followed rehearsal at the bride's parents home June 30. Other pre-nuptial events included a personal shower given by Terri Biggers of Oscoda and Mrs. Sue O'Neill of Frankfort. The bridesmaids were hostesses to a miscellaneous shower June 10 at the home of Mrs. Clifford Wetzel.

For her wedding trip, the new Mrs. Goodall made an aqua cream puff dress with matching accessories and wore a corsage from her bridal bouquet.

Wilbert was a Sgt. with the Army and just returned from a two-year duty in Germany. He is now farming.

One For The Road

They won't jump for cigarette filter

By Dan Marlowe

The Case of the Strickman Filter:

The majority of you have seen on television or heard on radio or read in the papers something about the new cigarette filter which its inventor turned over to Columbia University and which Columbia will license to all cigarette companies seeking to use it. Since the filter demonstrably cuts resinous tars 87% and nicotine 67% while the taste of the cigarette remains unaffected, in the interest of public health alone it would seem that the cigarette companies would be jostling each other to get in line to take advantage of this wondrous product.

It says here it won't work that way.

It says here that Columbia University is in for the biggest shock in its corporate existence when it attempts to interest the cigarette companies in its health-aiding product.

I worked for better than 10 years on the periphery of the tobacco industry, and I believe I know the thinking of the gentlemen at the top. They are not--repeat NOT--interested in seeking out an item, however beneficial to health, equally available to all of them. Selling cigarettes means advertising cigarettes, and the best minds in the industry are seeking differences, not samenesses; differences which can be exploited and publicized.

No, indeed; Columbia University is in for the all-time classic don't - call - us-we'll-call-you runaround in its history.

This minute the cigarette companies are cranking up the golden gears to pour tons of cash into the making of a better filter (even though they don't yet know the components of the Columbia entry). On past advertising performance, if not production performance, each will come up with a better filter, and the advertising war will roll merrily along. Short of direct government intervention on the grounds of public health, anyone who imagines the cigarette companies are going to get together on a single product for which none can claim superiority is the ultimate dreamer.

A minor digression which may not prove my point: in the summer of 1936, at a university not too many miles from here, a graduate student had the assignment from a major manufacturer of razor blades to find a process for making the blade look more like a substance the company wished to publicize. Not, be it noted, to make the blade like the substance, which would have made it comparatively indestructible, as an English firm did 30 years later, but to make it look like the substance.

Planned obsolescence is the Main Street of American business and brand-name advertising is its constant prop. Do we need to be fooled by it all of the time?

CASS CITY CHRONICLE

VOLUME 61, NUMBER 16

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN - THURSDAY, AUGUST 3, 1967

Predict bean shortage as weather reduces yield; better prices forecast

July 1 crop estimates by the U.S. Department of Agriculture forecast the smallest crop of beans in Michigan since 1957, says Quentin Ostrander, District Extension Marketing Agent, with the Cooperative Extension Service of MSU. The Government estimate is for a production of 4,598,000 cwt. for the 1967 Michigan crop. This is 3,516,000 cwt. below last year's crop.

Normally, says Ostrander,

Navy beans make up about 90% of Michigan's bean crop. This means an estimated crop of 4,138,000 cwt. of navy beans. This size crop, the agent adds, is about 2.5 million bags less than the 1960-64 average market needs.

Poor planting conditions in many of the major bean counties are blamed for the low estimate. Growers in some areas were unable to plant beans because of wet fields. Other fields had to be replanted and will need a later than normal fall to mature.

Early frost could result in a crop below the present estimate or a late fall combined with good growing conditions from now on could give a crop higher than present estimates.

Supply of most other dry bean varieties could also be short. The Government estimate for the entire U.S. dry bean crop is 14,468,000 cwt. This is 5.8 million below last year. If the current estimate holds true, says Ostrander, excess Navy beans from the large 1966 crop still will not give enough supply for normal market needs for the 1967-68 marketing season.

The agent gives the following breakdown on disposition of the 7,985,000 cwt. U.S. supply of navy beans available for sale for the 1966-67 marketing season:

Inspection for Sales, Sept. 1, 1966-June 30, 1967, 5,474,531 cwt., Seed, 300,000 cwt., Delivered to U.S. Govt. under Price Support, 1,600,000 cwt. Total disposition through June 30, 7,374,531 cwt. This would leave approximately 610,000 cwt. of beans to meet demands for July and August.

A check of shipments for the three-month period of June - August over the three-year period 1963-65 shows an average of 1.5 million bags used for these three months or an average of 500,000 bags per month.

This means that buyers will have to buy beans from the Commodity Credit Corporation in order to meet normal demands. The Government has also used part of the beans taken over under the price support program for distribution through the surplus foods program and for other program shipments to under-developed foreign countries.

What this all boils down to, says the marketing agent, is that if 1967 production is anywhere near the July 1 estimate, there will not be enough navy beans available to meet normal market demands. Growers might well be very cautious in making sales commitments at harvest time or before a more accurate estimate of the supply is available.

If the supply is short, growers can help to maintain a stable higher than average price by following an orderly marketing program under some type of group action system.

Epilepsy isn't getting her down

By Marion Hostettler

Last Wednesday Mrs. Alfred J. Knapp introduced me to Dorothy McKim, a former resident of Cass City who has lived in Ann Arbor for a number of years and is now a resident of Cottage 4 at Caro State Hospital.

Miss McKim did secretarial work in the offices of the University of Michigan until her epilepsy became severe enough that hospitalization was advisable. She hopes soon to bring her electric typewriter and desk, and a bookcase full of books, to the cottage. She may be able to help Governor Romney keep Michigan's budget out of the red by doing some typing for the institution.

"I typed manuscripts for four books while I was in Ann Arbor," Miss McKim told me, "and now maybe I'll start to write a book of my own. At least I have a title for a book: 'A Good Joke on Miss Dawhee.' A youngster who couldn't say Dorothy very well used to call me Miss Dawhee. As I look back over the experiences of my life, I can remember many funny things that happened. Sometimes the joke was on me, but I never let it get me down."

At the risk of being maudlin, I'd like to say that anybody who can accept epilepsy as "a good joke" has a better-than-average outlook on life.

In this age of science and scientism our minds are most comfortable when thinking in terms of cause and effect. We say, "There's a reason for everything," and we feel slightly frustrated if the reason eludes us.

The part of life we can't explain we speak of as "the absurd." There are plenty of absurdities in life...things that don't make sense to us. They may make sense to a higher Power who knows more than we do, or possibly they don't make sense at all...they are just absurd.

I often regret the absurd things other people do, and I am filled with remorse about the absurd things I do...but I might be wiser and happier if, like Miss Dorothy, I could look at the whole thing as a big joke.

The illogical absurdity of childhood is often delightful. After Susan had been sent to bed, she kept pestering her mother for a drink of water, a cracker, and everything else she could think of. Finally she crept downstairs and said, "I can't think of anything. Tell me some things I can choose from."

The ways of parents often seem absurd to children. A local mother asked her boy, when he had been naughty one day, "Walter, don't you think you deserve a whipping?" "Yes," was the cool reply, "but I don't think it would do any good."

I've heard it said that there's no danger of having a riot in a mental hospital, because the patients are all so wrapped up in themselves that they will never cooperate.

Bud Clara says the opposite is true in a hospital for epileptics. Many of the patients there are unhappy about themselves and their condition, and they will gang up on a new attendant to see how much they can get away with. The usual pattern is that they will be friendly and cooperative the first week a new man is on duty, but the second week, look out!

There was considerable apprehension among the staff at Caro State Hospital when it looked as if the governor's austerity program might force a reduction in employed personnel. Two attendants in a cottage full of resentful men can stand together, but a single attendant in the same situation might be in real danger.

Ladders nearly as dangerous as driving car

Auto accidents and fatalities get the "big play", but ladder accidents and deaths are second only to those on the highway. Nearly 20,000 deaths a year occur from falls from ladders, according to Alfred Ballweg, county Extension agricultural agent.

Farmers make great use of ladders and care should be taken to buy a good ladder and maintain it well. "A ladder bargain may save money, but cause accidents", the agent pointed out. The ladder should be of the right material for the right job. For example, metal ladders are fine for lightness in carrying but are not recommended for electrical work. Wooden ladders do not "ground" the worker doing electrical service.

A great many accidents result from the user trying to reach too far rather than moving the ladder nearer to the job.

When a ladder becomes unsafe the best thing to do is to break it up and discard it and not leave it around for somebody to use as an "extra ladder".

As Richard Pfister, MSU Extension farm safety specialist, says: "A ladder can last a lifetime, if you are careless enough."

There are many ways to get the measure of a man, but easy credit is one of the world's best intelligence tests.

Those people who enjoy the most popularity have learned early in life to cultivate a spirit of fairness to others.

Zelkowski-Curtis exchange vows in Caro

Miss Mary Jean Zelkowski of Cass City and Richard Lee Curtis of Caro exchanged nuptial vows in St. Paul Lutheran Church, Caro, June 24.

In a candlelight evening service, the Rev. Richard Eyer of Cass City performed the 7:30 ceremony for the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Zell of Cass City and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Loyal Curtis of Caro.

Charles Iseler of Cass City was soloist. He sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Wedding Prayer". Mrs. Fred Iseler was organist.

The church was decorated with baskets of white gladioli and white satin bows marked the pews.

The bride chose a gown with an imported Chantilly lace bodice with Sabrina neckline trimmed with seed pearls and sequins. It was fashioned with lace fingertip sleeves, lace front panel and back tiers of lace edged in sequins which extended into a chapel train. Her forward headpiece of illusion leaves and pearls held the bouffant veil. She carried a cascade arrangement of white carnations and stephanotis with satin and ivory streamers.

Wearing crepe chiffon over taffeta gowns were Judy Parker of Avoca, maid of honor and cousin of the bride, and Mrs. David Uhl of Saginaw and Mrs. Mike Mullen of Cass City, sister of the groom.

Their floor length gowns were styled with Empire waistline and elbow length sleeves edged with Venice lace and wattleau double panel backs. Both bridesmaids' frocks were maize and the maid of honor's was Nile green. Their cascade bouquets of carnations with satin and ivory streamers matched their gowns. Completing their ensembles were forward headpieces of lilies of the valley which held a bouffant veil.

Wallace Curtis of Cass City, brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were David Uhl of Saginaw, uncle of the bride, and Mike Mullen of Cass City. The groomsmen also seated guests.

Mrs. Zell chose a blue crepe dress with lace bodice with which she had white accessories. Mrs. Curtis wore a light blue sleeveless sheath dress with white accessories. Both mothers' corsages were pink sweetheart roses and carnations.

The reception, attended by 450 guests, was held at the Dom Polski Hall, Caro. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Harold Shreve and family of Priest River, Idaho, aunt of the bride. Others came from Detroit, Benton Harbor and Pontiac.

Their wedding trip was to Montreal, Canada.

The newlyweds are making their home in Flint where he is employed.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lee Curtis

Agent's Corner
Avoid food poisoning
By Mrs. Ann Ross
Extension Agent.

Much fussing and fixing over picnic foods may be a mistake when it comes to serving a safe and sanitary meal hours later and miles from home.

Mrs. Ann Ross, Thumb Extension Home Economist, says the foods that take the most preparation and handling are the ones most likely to cause food poisoning. Why? Because contamination of food is most likely to happen when it's out in the open, being handled by humans, and allowed to stand for some time at temperatures of 40 degrees to 140 degrees.

Staphylococcus, the micro-organism that is one of our worst picnic "intruders", is a bacteria that is carried by human beings. If you've coughed or sneezed, you can be almost sure it's on your hands or already in the uncovered food nearby. Anyone with boils or pimples is a good source of "staph" bacteria, too.

Extreme care in keeping your hands clean as you prepare foods is most important. But in preparing foods for picnics, plan foods that require little handling, such as hard cooked eggs in the shell rather than deviled eggs or cold fried chicken pieces rather than cut up stewed chicken in sandwiches or a casserole.

Pack foods cold and keep them cold. It also good advice for picnickers. An insulated bag or chest is better than a thermal picnic basket -- at least for the food. If the distance to the picnic area is far, freezing foods that can stand it -- such as sandwiches or meat -- might be a good precaution. They'll be thawed, ready to eat by the time you arrive.

Likewise, pack hot foods hot and keep them hot.

Foods that are more susceptible to contamination with "staph", unfortunately, are foods we like the best, too. But unless you have facilities for keeping them it's best to cross them off your picnic list.

Toss your budget away just once--it's surprising what happens when ends don't meet.

$1 million surplus sold by state at auction yearly

STATE SALVAGE

A million dollars or more of state salvage and surplus items are sold each year by the Purchasing Division, Michigan Department of Administration.

According to director Philip H. Anderson, everything from asparagus to mattress hair has been sold to private consumers through the state's method of auction -- bid selling. Sales of unwanted state merchandise are handled by Douglas Dodge, Jr.

In 1966, Dodge sold about $1.2 million worth of salvage and surplus equipment including 1,500 vehicles and about 5,000 used tires.

Every agency in the state must follow an outlined procedure when disposing of unwanted or worn-out items.

Items are listed on regulation forms and submitted to Dodge. A compiled list is then circulated to all state agencies and institutions. Items on the list needed by other agencies are simply transferred.

Merchandise not spoken for is then listed for public disposal.

It is Dodge's responsibility to find buyers for the merchandise and get the best price. Some items merit personal trackdown of potential customers.

For example, Dodge recently "acquired" 100 acres of asparagus. Inmates at Southern Michigan Prison grow the vegetable for their own canteen factory. But the cannery is going out of business so the job of selling asparagus became Dodge's.

A call to the Department of Agriculture gave Dodge a list of commercial canneries. The product was quickly sold.

"That was an easy one," he said. A tougher problem currently facing him is disposition of "approach ramps" used when autos were driven aboard the Straits of Mackinac ferryboats.

Invitations to bid are mailed to possible buyers on most items. Vehicles are sold at auction only to licensed dealers. Bids may be submitted either on specific items or on a collective basis.

If the item's value is so small it is not considered worthy of listing, an authorization for agency disposal may be issued.

The agency itself will then solicit third bids and sell to the highest bidder.

If the item cannot be sold, it is destroyed and then sold for scrap.

Very few items are unsaleable, Dodge maintains. Most scrap is obtained from highway department cleanup crews or from waste of institutional "factories" which manufacture metal products.

Many unusual items are among the hundreds of thousands sold each year. Anything of value is listed for disposal.

Bones and animal grease, by-products of state slaughtering, are sold to commercial processors. A team of horses, pastured at a state hospital, was recently sold. Airplanes from the Conservation and Highway Departments are put up for bids.

Fire towers, snow-mobles, telephone lines, office machines and furniture, outdoor motors and boats, chainaws, farm equipment, marine equipment, industrial machines and tools, chemicals, and even small auto parts are included in the "Availability Circular of Surplus and Salvage Property" published by the department.

There is no set date for auctions and specific items are obtainable only on an "available now" basis. However, the department tries to notify people looking for specific items when these items are available for bids.

All items are sold on a "where is, as is" basis. Inquiries should be sent to the Purchasing Division, Department of Administration, Surplus and Salvage, Lewis Cass Building, Lansing 48013.

Hold final services for Mrs. H. Cooley

Funeral services were held Saturday for Mrs. H. Cooley, 70, of Owadale. Services were held at the Owadale Methodist Church and the Rev. Bevel Curtis, pastor, officiated.

Mrs. Cooley died Thursday, July 27, in Hills and Dale Hospital following a brief illness. She was born April 3, 1897, in Brookfield township, the daughter of the late Fred and Sarah Carson. She married Arthur Cooley June 7, 1916, at Gagetown. Her husband died in 1952.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Roy Greenfield of Millington and Mrs. Jack Angel of Willis, Calif.; three sons, Arthur Jr. of Gagetown, Fred of Owadale and T. Sgt. John B. Cooley with the Air Force at Sioux City, Iowa.

A sister, Mrs. Elsie Stricker of Unionville, and 11 grandchildren are also among the survivors.

Burial was in the Grant cemetery.

Heady individuals are prone to head-on collisions.

Turning over a new leaf is no problem--it's the writing on it that really counts.

Reduce your speed on the highways, and you'll find that safety is no accident.
