Township marking time on fire hall

If the area would be satisfied with an available building, the Eklund Township Fire Department could have both a new engine and a new fire hall before the end of the year, Eklund Supervisor Ed Goding said this week.

From the Editor's Corner

Tuscola county is hard up for highway funds. Money problems have curtailed both new construction and maintenance of county roads.

Regardless of the lack of money, there is one neglected area that should be taken care of no matter what other areas are shortchanged.

Yellow no passing lines should immediately be painted wherever they are needed for highway safety.

Cass City Road from Colwood Road to the junction of M-81 is full of hills which are blind to approaching traffic. North Cemetery Road has several spots that could be potential death traps.

As far as I know, Cemetery Road has never been marked. Cass City Road had yellow lines at one time but today they are all but invisible and useless for safety purposes.

The relatively small cost of painting these and other similar road areas in the county should be high on the list of things that must be done and done soon before a tragedy occurs.

Is it me... or is it just some of Marlowe's fantasy?

I'll confess that after I read his column this week I couldn't quite get the drift of what he was saying.

Perhaps I missed an item in the news on which his column is hinged.

I get the Mafia drift of his dialogue, but this stuff about the Congressional Record and questioning of our integrity leaves me in left field.

Speaking of contributing writers to the paper, last week's feature about the Harry Littles was the sole work of Dr. Marston Hostetler.

We've had it on file for several weeks, so if you read the story closely and started wondering about the "early tomatoes already ripening" - relax... it's an odds on bet that they have already grazed one or more tossed salads.

I think you'll agree that the Little story was well done. It's highly unusual to find a person who can produce professional copy without any formal training in the field. We suspect that two reasons Hostetler's good at writing is that he likes it and it keeps him in touch with different segments of his congregation.

We won't swear these are his only reasons, but we can say with assurance that he doesn't do it for the money.

Mayville man 10th county traffic fatality

Tuscola county recorded its 10th traffic fatality of the year Tuesday when Willis Gordon, 18, of Mayville, died in St. Luke's Hospital, a result of injuries received that morning in a two car crash one-half mile north of M-46 on M-24.

According to sheriff's deputies, Gordon and Alvin Louks, 19, Mayville, were headed south as their vehicle crossed the center line and collided with a car driven north by Duane Burgett, 23, Pontiac. The driver of the car owned by Louks is unknown.

Burgett, Louks and Gordon were taken to the Saginaw hospital by ambulance. Burgett and Louks are reported to be in serious condition.

One injury was reported following a Thursday evening accident involving cars driven by George Steve Frank, 33, Cass City, and Verna Viola Proffitt, 31, of Utica. Robert C. Proffitt, owner and passenger of the Proffitt car, was treated for cuts and bruises.

Both cars approached the Hurds Corner and Akron Road. Concluded on page four.

On Community College School board's decision Monday

Intermediate Boards of Education of Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties will meet Monday, Aug. 14, to decide whether or not to revive the proposal to establish a community college for the Thumb Area.

The three county boards will meet in Caro at 8 p. m. to act on property transfers between school districts.

Morgan Ballagay, Huron intermediate superintendent, said the boards will also make a decision on whether to breathe new life into the college proposal or to let it drop.

FREE FISH from the National Fish and Wildlife Service were picked up by Don Koepfgen, right, of Cass City for his farm pond. He was one of eight farmers to accept delivery Wednesday at the corner of M-46 and M-24.

WHEN THE FISH were added to this pond another recreational activity was started to add to swimming and ice skating already enjoyed.

Many in county now Farm pond serves dual purpose on Koepfgen farm

The casual motorist could drive right by, never see and never realize that there are well over 100 productive fishing spots in Tuscola county today.

For, these hot spots for anglers aren't advertised or open to the public. They are the many farm ponds built by farmers in cooperation with the Tuscola Soil Conservation District.

Authorities for the district say that two-thirds of the over 100 ponds now in use have been built within the past two years. And this growth pattern is expected to continue.

The sudden stimulus has come for two reasons. One is that the government pays for half the cost of construction to a limit of $700 for a $1,400 pond.

The second is that more farmers are realizing the recreation and farm uses of a pond.

One of the newer ponds and a good example of this dual purpose is the pond built by Donald Koepfgen, a mile west and a mile south of Cass City.

The land where the pond is located has been used for many years for pasture for some 20 head of cattle.

Water for the livestock came from the Cass River. But before the cattle could drink from the river, it was necessary to erect a fence every spring.

In the pasture land there was a dip which was green, no matter how dry the weather... a possible farm pond site.

Drillings were taken in the area and enough springs were found to make the pond feasible. Last fall the area was dug and the pond created. The cattle drink out of the miniature stream created by the overflow of water from the pond.

It solved the problem of watering the cattle without fencing each year.

Near Gagetown Abandon plan for game area

Because of a drastically cut budget, plans for a 1,600-acre Gagetown State Game Area have been abandoned, Dee L. Weaver, land appraiser for the Michigan Department of Conservation, said this week.

We had 500 acres in the area under option from 12 owners, Weaver said, but were forced to let them expire this week because we don't have the available money.

The area was to have been located two miles northeast of Gagetown. It would have included 750 acres of cropland and cleared pasture, 720 acres of timber and brush land, 90 acres of marsh and 40 acres of water.

When the legislature sliced funds for the Conservation department, the department was forced to cut $1.3 million from operation to stay out of the red.

One of the areas cut was the land acquisition program. In addition to the loss of the game land in the area, Michigan will lose three-quarters of a $1 million Federal appropriation that is available if the State puts up 25 cents for every dollar of Federal money available.

In the Gagetown game area the amount of Federal funds available amounted to $250,000. It was especially difficult for me, Weaver said, after optioning all of the necessary land I had to go back and tell the people that I couldn't buy the property.

The Federal money (Pittman-Robertson funds) has been used as a source of land acquisition money since the program's inception in 1938 and had purchased 158,441 acres at a cost of $5,700,325 until this year.

The department said that the soil of the brush, timber and marsh area is shallow muck, having very little agricultural potential. To drain these soils adequately for farming would seriously injure the present lake.

The chief swamp tree species are soft maple, elm, ash, tamarack and willow. The individual trees are small and of pure quality.

Department officials said that good farm land within the proposed game area boundaries had not been optioned and was not going to be purchased.

Weaver said that he is in hopes that much of the land that was under option will be available in another year when the money situation may be brighter.

Of course, he concluded, there is no guarantee that the owners will want to sell in another year or no guarantee that we will be able to buy.

Japanese Americans funds still frozen

By Rev. R. J. Searls

One of the most brutal acts that our government ever took was the virtual imprisonment of Japanese-American people at the beginning of World War II. Over 100,000 American citizens of Japanese ancestry were forced to leave their homes, jobs, and possessions, and placed in relocation camps (detention camps). Never in history has a large group of citizens been incarcerated because of their skin color. Other enemy aliens were not moved, for who could recognize German Americans? In addition the government confiscated Japanese-American savings deposits. Twenty-five years later, these persons who were deprived of their rights, are still fighting to recover their seized funds. These Americans (editorializes The Christian Century) have for 25 years been deprived by their own government of the earning power of their savings and throughout the duration of their claim for repayment have watched the value of the dollar shrink. If the government owes them this amount of money, then it also owes them a reasonable interest on this money for a period of 25 years. The relocation of Japanese-Americans in 1942 stained American history indelibly; the government should do everything within its power to lighten that blot on our national character. Or, so it seems to me!

It should be noted here, that the famous 100th Battalion (made up entirely by Japanese-American citizens) was the most decorated battalion in the war, while the parents of these fighting men were isolated in defention camps.

I lived in Seattle during that period. I shall never forget chancing by one of the buses hired to move these citizens out of their homes. (We never saw any notice detailing the time when these relocation buses would leave a given neighborhood) I knew no-one on that particular bus, but I found myself weeping in company with many white persons. My family drove over to the relocation camp at Puyallup, Washington. I had a close friend from college days in that camp and it hurt me to see how much life there was based on the assumption that the people whose nation had put them there were treated like convicted criminals. My friend was a talented artist. His family was in the import-export business; while my father was in charge of the liquidation of such businesses for the United States. Shozo Kaneko never once held his treatment against us, but I never felt quite the same in his company. I cannot understand how he could feel the same toward me.

I ran across the following in some old notes of mine, and thought you might appreciate it. "Current Political Philosophies In A Nutshell."
Socialism -- You have two cows; you give one to your neighbor.

Communism -- You have two cows; you give both to the government and the government gives you the milk.
Fascism -- You keep the cows, give the milk to the government and the government sells it back to you.
Nazism -- The government shoots you and takes the cows.
New Dealism -- The government shoots one cow, milks the other one and pours the milk down the sewer.
Capitalism -- You sell one and buy a bull.

Keep cool in your arguments by sticking to the cold facts.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By H. M. Balen

Did you ever realize all the injuries and the illnesses that Doug Sanders has overcome to remain one of the top golfers of the last 11 years? ... During this time, Sanders has been afflicted with a heart murmur, an enlarged heart, a neck injury, torn ankle ligaments, a hip injury, broken fingers, a foot laceration, a hand infection and severe burns while he has been on tour. ... Despite all this, Doug has won over $375,000 and is considered one of the 10 best golfers today. ... The PGA calls Sanders probably the most injury-prone athlete in history.

Ever wonder where the word "scuba" comes from when you speak of scuba divers? ... Scuba comes from taking the first letter of Self-Contained Underwater Breathing Apparatus.

Perhaps the most important yardstick in measuring a pitcher's greatness is not how many games he won, but how many shutouts he pitched. ... Did you know that only one pitcher in the entire history of major league baseball pitched more than 100 shutouts? ... Do you know who holds this record? ... It's Walter Johnson. ... He twirled 113 shutouts in his big league career.

Flyers become 12th Erla victims

Erla's have drawn the Kentucky Colonel nine from the Port Huron fastball league in the district tournaments at Memorial Major Field in Port Huron.

For the first time, the Foodmen will be competing in Class B. The first game is slated at 6 p. m. Friday.

Since there are just the two teams in Class B the same teams will meet again at 7 p. m. Saturday in the double elimination tournament. If a third game is necessary it will be played Sunday.

Last year Erla's copped the district title in Class C at Port Huron.

Erla's carried their winning ways to Uby Tuesday as they drubbed Port Austin's 754th Radar Squadron for the second time of the season. This time the margin was 11 to 0.

Elwyn Helwig pitched the leaders in the Uby Recreational League to a shutout victory by striking out nine and allowing only one hit.

Scoring came in the first, third and fourth innings as all Erla batters, with the exception of J. D. Alexander and Dan Erla, crossed the plate.

Two runs came in the first when Dean Hoag walked, Jerry Hillaker singled and Helwig was safe on a fielder's choice. Hoag and Hillaker scored following a wild pitch to Walt Hempton and an error by the first baseman.

In the fourth, Hempton led

Cass City took the lead in the fourth on a two-run homer by Randy Kelly. The All-Stars kept the lead until the sixth inning when Carsonville scored two to tie it up at 3 all.

In the top of the seventh, Carsonville went ahead by a score of 5-3.

Pinch hitter Tim Knoblet led off the bottom of the seventh with a double. Jerry Toner, another pinch hitter, walked and Kip Hopper singled to load the bases with no outs.

Kenny Hall singled driving in Knoblet and Scott Hartel walked to force in Toner to tie the ballgame.

Hopper came home with the winning run following an error when the short stop dropped a pop fly off the bat of Tom Mellendorf.

Bob Novcovnty went six innings for the losers before being relieved in the top of the seventh. Neil Maker was the only Carsonville player with more than one hit.

Kip Hopper led the All-Stars in hits as he went three for three at the plate.

Jim Kilbourn collected two for three.

Kilbourn and Hopper were the only Cass City boys with more than one hit.

Players in the second game were:

Ken Hall, Jeff Profit, Tom Mellendorf, Randy Kelly, Bob Ross, Jim Kilbourn, John Hacker, David Hillaker and Kip Hopper. Tim Knoblet, Scott Hartel and Jerry Toner were pinch hitters.

Hostetler's Hodgepodge

All the universe can be compared

By Marion Hostetler

I wonder whether Jamey Seals still likes to ask, "What is the difference between a fisherman and a schoolboy?"

"The schoolboy baits his hook and the fisherman hates his hook." Or was it the other way around?

Any two things in the universe can be compared, either as to something they have in common, or something they both lack.

"Why is an elephant like a tube of toothpaste?"

"Because neither one can ride a bicycle." ****

"Why am I like Ella Croft?"

"Because the first pay each of us received we earned by picking raspberries."

When she was a girl, Ella's summers were largely devoted to picking raspberries, just as a daily duty, and without any expectation of being paid. But one magic afternoon she happened to be lugging home a bucket of berries just as her father was finishing his work in the fields.

"Here, I'll carry your pail," he said, "and you ride home on the horse." Then, wonder of wonders, he gave her a dollar bill for her summer's work, and he took her to town to spend it. Ella was feeling so optimistic that she squandered a fourth of her money on a purse. And she remembers buying a pair of stockings priced at fifteen cents.

I think I must have been about twelve when a pal of mine told me about a farmer who was hiring boys to pick raspberries. He paid us a nickel for picking a box of black ones, and a dime for a box of red ones. He didn't have many red berry bushes, so we seldom worked at the higher pay scale, but it was an incentive that kept us picking even when the black ones weren't accumulating very fast.

Thoughts can pass from one mind to another in many ways, and some of the ways seem rather mysterious.

Athletes tell me that when they are playing a game or running a race, they are scarcely conscious of the shouts of the crowd; yet somehow it does help to have a cheering section pulling for you.

I know a group of people who started to pray for their minister during the worship service. They didn't tell him they were going to do this, but they thought it improved his preaching.

One day when I was visiting at Frank Reid's house I heard a true story about thought transference involving two Cass City girls who now live in Flint.

Area pupils at Northwood school

Two students from Cass City attended one of the six week-long orientation sessions conducted by Northwood Institute on its Midland campus for students who will begin their college career with the fall term Sept. 11.

They are: Brenda Seeley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Seeley, 6404 Third St., and Linda Anthes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Anthes, 6228 N. Dodge. Both plan to major in secretarial science.

1st reunion held at Wadsworth school

The first reunion of the Wadsworth rural school, which functioned from 1891 to 1965, was held Sunday, Aug. 6, at the schoolhouse located three miles north of Ubyly and 1 1/2 miles west in Bingham township, Huron county.

Around 160 persons enjoyed a cooperative dinner and program. Ninety-one former pupils and five former teachers were among those present.

The planning committee consisted of Mrs. Leona Tuttle of Caseville, Mrs. Arno Sternberg of Bad Axe and Mrs. Hattie Graham of Ubyly.

Mrs. Howard Nugent of Ubyly, a former pupil and former teacher, presided when a program was presented, including a history of the school by Mrs. Nugent. Rev. M. R. Vender presented an original poem, "The Wadsworth School Reunion Muse".

Those from Cass City who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Vender and Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Knight. Mr. Vender and Mrs. Knight are former pupils.

SP-4 W. Johnson in Coral Sands II Exercise at Hawaii

Army Specialist Four William A. Johnson, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melton H. Johnson, Shabbona Road, Deford, is participating in "Exercise Coral Sands II," a joint-service amphibious assault on the island of Molokai, Hawaii, Aug. 1-10.

Stationed at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, he is one of more than 6,000 soldiers and sailors participating in the mock operation.

A member of the Army Landing Force, he will land on the "enemy-held" beach to seize and destroy several enemy missile bases. After proceeding through the rugged interior of the island, he and his unit will conduct counterinsurgency operations against the guerrillas and accomplish a tactical withdrawal from the island.

Agent's Corner

Prejudice or fact starts with family

By Mrs. Ann Ross

Extension Agent.

It has been said that prejudice is "being down on what you're not up on." Another definition is "thinking ill of others without sufficient warrant".

A definition of prejudice should include both positive and negative attitudes, according to Ann Ross, Thumb Extension home economist. The New English Dictionary defines prejudice as "a feeling, favorable or unfavorable, toward a person or thing, prior to, or not based on, actual experience."

It is true, however, that ethnic prejudice is mostly negative and such prejudice is often taught or caught within the family circle.

If attitudes toward others are formed during the early years, it could be that persons have prejudices of which they may not be fully aware.

One good way to assess attitudes is to try to determine if the attitude is based upon prejudice or fact. Parents who take a few minutes to list their feelings toward ethnic groups, toward different religions, even toward individuals, may be surprised to find that some of their attitudes have no factual basis at all.

One reason for hidden prejudices is that the human mind has a common trick called over categorization or generalization. The mind rushes to conclusions about all of a group because one of a group may have certain characteristics.

It is important to be sure that the things we talk about around the family table are based upon all the facts. It is important also to separate carefully the facts from opinions so that family members know the difference between the two.

Prejudgments become prejudices if they are fixed and not reversible when new knowledge is introduced. If a person can correct his erroneous judgments in the light of new facts, he may not be prejudiced at all.

Parents can help their children in life adjustment by encouraging them to be open to new evidence.

Dreaming of lost opportunities leaves none for the future.

Happiness is acquired, not by what the world gives, but by what it cannot take away.

Smith-Haskin Vows Exchanged

In the chapel of the First Methodist Church of Ann Arbor, Miss Jeanne Haskin and Jack L. Smith of Grand Rapids exchanged marriage vows in a double-ring ceremony, July 22.

The Dr. Hoover Rupert officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Haskin of Vassar and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy S. Smith of Grayling.

The bride chose an organza and eyelet A-line street-length dress. She wore a yellow tea rose corsage.

Miss Helen Shoemaker of Ann Arbor was maid of honor and wore a blue paisley dress with a corsage of yellow roses.

John Wilson of Flint, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man.

David Welch of Grand Rapids, brother-in-law of the groom, was usher.

The couple greeted relatives and friends at a reception in the church parlors. They are making their home in Sand Lake, Michigan.

The groom is a former Cass City resident.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Zeke Grubb's preacher come by the country store Saturday night to get a few groceries and he told the fellers he had saw in some magazine where the price of food would go up 50 per cent in the next five year.

Afore Clem Webster could git started on one of his Great Society spend-more and live-better sermons, the Good Parson added it was folks with fixed income that was getting hit by this creeping price disease. Fer instant, he said, he was in one of them fixed income groups like retired folks. If he could git on welfare or social security, where they was increasing the payments pritty steady, he said things would be good, but he didn't see no chancet of the collection plate in his church gitting 50 per cent fuller in the next five year.

This talk about the collection plate got some of the fellers mighty uneasy and Clem took this item off the agenda right fast by saying it was the little woman in the kitchen that could make or break a feller. He allowed as how, if a wife stayed at home, cooked, looked after the younguns, made a good garden and canned plenty of fruit and vegetables, a feller could make it fine.

The Good Parson didn't say nothing and I figured he didn't think much of Clem's idea. He just gathered up his groceries and said goodbye.

After he was gone, Zeke allowed as how the Good Parson was gitting a heap of fringe benefits he fergot to mention. Fer instant, said Zeke, they got a heap of gardens amongst the congregation and they was always sharing with the preacher. And he reported the wimmen in the congregation sold vannerl flavoring fer 10 mile around to raise money to put a air conditioner at the preacher's house so they could hold their summer suppers in the cool, and the preacher got to use it the rest of the time. Farthermore, claimed Zeke, when they have them suppers they bring their own food and they have enough left over to last the preacher three or four days.

I figured, Mister Editor, this was Zeke's way of saying he don't aim to increase his quota fer the collection plate.

The feller that runs the store butted in to say if some of his customers didn't git to paying their bills better he was going up 50 per cent without waiting fer the five-year plan. He claimed he had one customer that would rather lie on credit than tell the truth fer cash.

Things was gitting in such a bad fix at the store, Mister Editor, that if you hear the fellers having a good word fer somebody you better look in the paper and see if he ain't died during the week.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

He's the man for the job...

By Dan Marlowe

Scene: A second floor office in the Langley Building in Fairfax, Virginia, home of the CIA.

Young man in Italian silk suit sitting across a desk from an older man in an Italian silk suit: "Did you see the attack on us in the Congressional Record this morning? Not the one about our failures. I mean the one questioning our integrity."

Older man: "I saw it." Young man (angrily): "How can they say such things about us when they know we're pulling their chestnuts out of the fire all over the world?"

Older man (soothingly): "You'll get used to it. Now let's get on with the personnel assessments for the Limpopo job. Do you have the results back yet from Wilkins' lie detector test?"

Young man: "Yes." Picks up a sheet of paper from the desk. "He lied consistently--or attempted to, I should say--all the way through it."

Older man: "I see. What does the staff psychiatrist say?"

Young man: "That he's emotionally unstable, short-tempered, acts out his fantasies aggressively--the usual behavioral pattern for the type." Older man: "Hm... Scans a document. "Asked to leave four prep schools. . . he has no church affiliation?" Young man: "None at present." Permits himself a small smile. "His previous one terminated abruptly after a bit of gossip involving a deacon's wife."

Older man (frowning): "Pointless, wouldn't you say?"

Young man (struggling): "His aggression, no doubt."

Older man (examining another sheet of paper): "What about his credit rating?"

Younger man: "Null and void. It seems also that he turns spectacularly nasty when dunned for past due bills."

Older man: "Character references?"

Young man: "The usual in these cases. Each of the referrals was so delighted at the thought of ridding himself of the gentleman's surly presence that he indulged in hyperbolic prose attempting to bring it about."

Older man: "Then in view of the job requirements--"

Young man: "There's no question that Wilkins is the man for the operation."

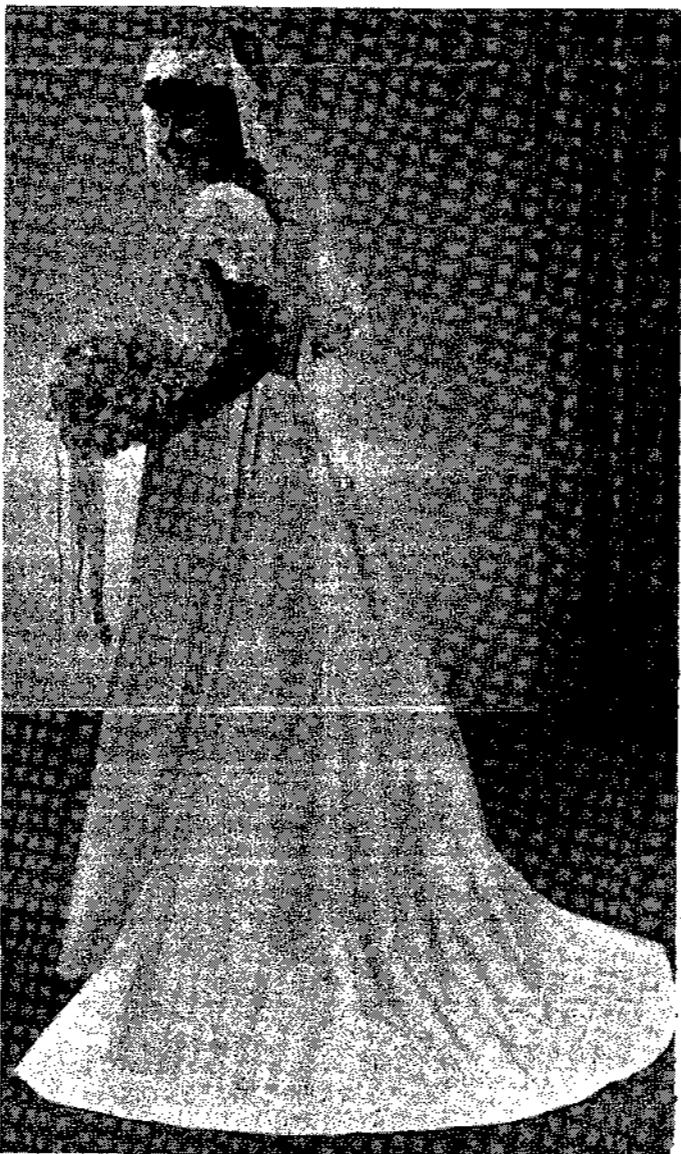

Older man: "I quite agree. Why don't you put the machinery in gear?"

Young man: "Yes, sir." Rises and starts to leave the office, muttering under his breath.

Older man: "What was that?"

Young man: "I said the nerve of those senators questioning our integrity like that!"

Mrs. Mark E. McClenathan

Marsha Ann LaFave, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Muri LaFave of Owendale, and Mark E. McClenathan of Grand Rapids were married Saturday, Aug. 5, in Gagetown.

St. Agatha Church, decorated with altar bouquets of white gladioli and roses with ferns banking the altar, was the setting for the noon ceremony. Fr. Joseph Friske officiated at the double-ring rites. The bride's rings were a diamond and platinum engagement ring with matching wedding band, belonging to the groom's grandmother. The groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Harold E.

McClenathan of Williamston, Mich.

Miss Audrey Jean Bauman of Elkton was soloist and Mrs. Raymond Toohy of Caro, organist.

The bride wore a white linen A-line gown with fitted bodice falling to back gathered fullness at the natural waistline. Tiny self buttons extended from the dropped back neckline into the chapel length train. A shoulder mantilla of Venice lace matched the gown's tiered lace sleeves and she carried a colonial bouquet of yellow roses and valley lilies.

Lynette LaFave of Owendale, the bride's sister, was honor maid and Mrs. Marshall Raymond of Caro was matron of honor. The three bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Parnacott of Detroit, Terri Whitten of Royal Oak and Mary Jo Dahlstrom of Fremont.

The attendants wore yellow linen A-line gowns with dropped shoulder line and capped sleeves with back fullness. The Empire waistline was adorned with an embroidered motif. They carried baskets of ivy and grapes in variegated shades of green.

The groom's father was best man. Groomsmen were Terry Johnson of Chicago, Charles A. Kitchen of Williamston, John M. Stickney of Grand Rapids and Dennis P. LaFave of Owendale, brother of the bride.

A reception was held at the Pigeon VFW Hall following the ceremony. Around 400 guests attended.

The couple are both English teachers in Grand Rapids, he at South High School and she at West Catholic High School. The newlyweds are on a two-week trip to Expo 67 and the Eastern coast. They will make their home at 2429 Gaynor NW, Walker, Mich.

The new Mrs. McClenathan is a CMU graduate and her husband graduated from MSU.

Civil rights problems' cure depends on action, not laws

Core of the civil rights problem is that the American public does not yet accept concepts of equality of opportunity on a personal commitment basis. The problem will not be solved until civil rights laws are translated into results, and it must happen at the community level. Those are the beliefs of Burton I. Gordin, Executive Director of the Michigan Civil Rights Commission.

This office works with some of the situations blamed for recent race riots: charges of discrimination in employment, real estate transactions and others. It was created partly to reduce this sort of unfairness and, no doubt, in hopes of reducing pressures between the races.

Most difficulty arises with local government officials, states Gordin. This takes the form of resistance, resentment, challenge and absence of co-operation. Officials expect the office to be satisfied when they simply state that there is no discrimination in face of charges to the contrary. The state office must conduct its own investigation, which irritates some local officials.

There is a growing acceptance among police and housing officials for the position of the state civil rights office, especially since many of their investigations have shown that the police departments are operating fairly and without bias.

A relatively new twist in civil rights movements, agrees Gordin, is the idea that there are more pressing issues than integration. More and more Negro leaders, even if they do so reluctantly, adopt the idea that needed improvements cannot wait for integration. Integrated education, for example, is not dropped as a necessary goal. But better education is vitally necessary right now in minority group areas. Immediacy takes precedence.

A similar feeling exists regarding housing. Negro leaders are firm in the conviction that a Negro should be able to move into any neighborhood he can afford. But they see an immediate, severe need for any kind of better housing.

Improvement now is the policy. It is desperately needed, and integration must wait until later.

The Negro tends to feel, according to Director Gordin, that

"A short term pessimist; a long term optimist," is the way Gordin describes himself. The top official in a civil rights organization has one of the toughest jobs in government, Gordin believes, it ranks with mayor, police chief and school superintendent.

One measure of success, according to Gordin, is where the criticism comes from. If complaints are voiced by both the minority groups and the "establishment," chances are that the human rights office is probably doing its job.

"Success strangles us," says Gordin. "The more we do, the more there is demand for our services."

The state civil rights office has more complaints about job discrimination than anything else. These account for about 60% of their cases. Office records indicate that about 30% of the complaints have some basis in fact. Most of these are resolved in private conciliation. About 70% of the complaints are dropped.

Unfair claims regarding housing make up the next largest segment of the office workload. Of these, 47% are dropped and 53% are settled satisfactorily.

Agriculture is fair's backbone

By Alfred P. Ballweg

Once again the Tuscola County Fair has come and gone. I have often wondered what it is that keeps people's interest in a County Fair? When you can keep their interest for 86 years there surely must be some sound reasons for this.

County fairs have always been a show window of the agricultural growth of an area. County fairs have through the years been a center for developing that spirit of competition between livestock and crops producers that could not be equaled in any other way. This has encouraged farmers to test their skills at producing a product that will be just a little better before the eyes of a judge than his farmer friend who could be from any other area of the county.

More and more our youth (4-H and FFA) exhibits have become a large part of the Fair. County fairs have and still do serve as a large educational medium for both the consumer and producer of food. It helps to point out that food is not produced at the corner grocery store but directly or indirectly comes from the greatest of all our resources, the soil.

We owe a vote of thanks to many people who make a good Fair possible. Many of them including Fair board members give freely of their time and hard work with little or no compensation.

So what keeps a Fair going? It is people with an interest and a goal to enter into that spirit of competition and a lot of hard work.

On Thursday, August 10, there will be a meeting in the Kingston Township Hall at Kingston at 8:00 p. m. to discuss township zoning. This meeting was arranged through the cooperation of Howard Clement, Koylton township supervisor. Two zoning specialists from Michigan State Uni-

58 at annual Crawford reunion

The annual Clayton Crawford family reunion was held Sunday, Aug. 6, with 58 members present.

Addie Ulbrich of Caro was the oldest member present and Lesa Mayros, the youngest. Two deaths and two births during the year were reported.

Officers were re-elected. Lewis Crawford of Caro is president; William Crawford of Berkley, vice-president, and Mrs. Marion McClorey of Cass City, secretary-treasurer.

The reunion will be held next year at the same place the first Sunday in August.

versity will meet with us to discuss all phases of township zoning, including many benefits to the people who have their homes and make a living in the township. It is also expected that there will be representatives present from Kingston township.

Quite often the question is raised as to why zone? Regardless of where you live, you naturally cherish the value of your property. You would like your home, your farm, your place of business, your summer cottage, your undeveloped land -- whatever property you own -- to be as desirable and worth at least as much tomorrow as it is today. You may even hope it will gradually increase in value as time goes on.

Another question often asked is "what are the benefits of zoning?"

1. A good zoning ordinance helps preserve and maintain what is good and desirable in each community. Communities erode like unprotected lands unless guarded by guidelines to direct the flow of human activity into and over them.

2. It helps safeguard and protect against undesirable and hurtful conditions. One bad use can hurt an entire neighborhood, and no neighborhood is immune to injury unless properly zoned.

3. It replaces chance, uncertainty and the unknown with surety, purpose and direction. Without restraints anything can happen -- overnight.

4. It promotes orderly growth. Unless given intelligent direction, unguided growth can lead to chaos, waste and distress in the use of property.

5. It provides stability. Everyone prefers his home, business, farm, industrial plant, summer cottage in a stable community.

6. It provides a means to fit "objectionable" property uses into their proper place -- the noisemaker, dust-maker, odor-maker, eyesores and other problematic property use.

7. It helps hold down unnecessary taxes and special assessments for doctoring up scattered, out-of-place, and other illogical developments. It facilitates the use of public funds for positive, constructive programs designed to serve the entire community or area.

In the protective service it provides, zoning has often been compared to insurance. But, in a way, it is even superior because it protects in advance of injury. Insurance pays only after damage and distress occurs. Zoning, you recall, is not retroactive.
