Abandoned baby is healthy

Sheriff Hugh Marr said that he is confident that someone will furnish his department a tip that will uncover the persons who abandoned a day-old baby boy at a Caro Laundry Tuesday.

The boy, weighing just over 7 pounds, is doing well at Caro Community Hospital.

According to Marr, an unidentified caller tipped the hospital that the boy was at the laundry and sheriff's deputies hurried over to rescue him before he became ill.

Unless the person responsible came from a nearby large city, I'm sure that someone will blow the whistle on him, Marr said, and even if they did come from out-of-the-area the chances are good that we'll catch them, he concluded.

After 22 years

Freiburger Grocery to close

After 22 years Freiburger Grocery will be going out of business, according to an announcement made this week by Bernard Freiburger, owner.

The business was first operated as a partnership with the present owner and his brother, Alger, sharing the responsibility. When the two men started together the store was a combination grocery and creamery. Changing conditions brought the end of the creamery in 1955.

For a brief period, in 1957, Alger ran the store while Bernard was on a leave of absence. When Bernard returned he purchased his brother's interest and since that time has run the store himself.

In his going out of business announcement this week, Freiburger said that he was not certain of future plans, other than repaying his store for future business possibilities.

Blue ribbons galore

Area continues domination at Michigan State Fair

Area farmers can point with pride to the Cass City area as the spot in Michigan that produces more champions in farm competition at the Michigan State Fair than any other area.

Year after year, Cass City brings home the most blue ribbons in competition with the best that Michigan has to offer in sheep and swine competition.

Among the most coveted awards at the fair are the Michigan Premier Breeders banners, awarded on the basis of the over-all rating of the animals entered in the show. This year Cass City area representatives came home with four of them.

Tom Russell copped a banner for his Oxford sheep, the third year in succession he won this award. Walt Goodall, who has never before won a premier award, hit the jackpot this year when he won two premier Michigan breeder banners for his Corriedale and Romney sheep. Kenneth Jickling of Kingston won the banner in the Yorkshire hog competition, his third in a row and his fourth in the last five years.

Walt Goodall won so many ribbons that he had trouble remembering them all last week. He had the grand champion ewe and reserve champion ram in the Romney sheep breed and reserve champion ram in Cheviot competition.

A count of his ribbons revealed that he walked off with: firsts, 10; seconds, nine; thirds, five; fourth, seven; fifth, one; sixth, two, and seventh, two. There are 15 or more animals in nearly every class.

TOM RUSSELL

In 4-H competition Tom Russell walked off with just about every top prize available. He had the first ram lamb, yearling ram, aged ram, yearling ewe and ewe lamb. He also had both the grand and reserve champion ram and ewe.

He did almost as well in the open class competition.

The results were: 2nd ram lamb, yearling ram, aged ram; 1st pair of ram lambs; 3rd pair of yearling rams, Reserve champion ram and ewe.

He also had 2nd ewe lamb and yearling ewe; 1st pair of ewe lambs; 1st pair of yearling ewes; 3rd flock; 3rd get-of-sire, and 1st Oxford special (pen of 4 lambs).

GEORGE RUSSELL

In Shropshire competition, George Russell also did well. His winnings included:

In 4-H: 1st aged ram; 2nd ram lamb; 3rd ewe lamb, and 3rd yearling ewe.

In open class: 5th aged ram; 7th ram lamb; 4th pair of ram lambs; 8th pair of yearling ewes, and 8th flock.

DEAN HUTCHINSON

Dean Hutchinson also showed Shropshire sheep and his winnings were highlighted by a champion ewe. Other placings were: 3rd aged ram; 5th ram lamb; first yearling ewe; 3rd get-of-sire, and third flock.

Plan adult courses

Special classes for adults and college credit courses from Central Michigan University will be available to local residents, according to announcements from 3 area schools.

At Cass City, Dick Carroll announced that classes in book-keeping, beginning typing and first year shorthand will be offered this fall if enough interest is shown.

Each class will be for two hours a week for ten weeks, Carroll continued. A minimum of 10 persons is needed to form a class. The cost of classes will be determined later, together with the night classes will be held.

The teacher suggests that persons interested in any of the courses call 872-2655 and leave their name and tell what class or classes are desired.

When enough interest is shown an organization meeting will be held with the time and date to be announced in the paper.

AT CARO

At Caro Community Schools registration for adult classes is slated Thursday, Oct. 5, from 7 to 9 p. m. and from 9 to 11 a. m. Oct. 7. Course fees are $7.50.

Among the classes planned, Joseph D. Klobucher, adult education director announced are: typing I and II, shorthand I and II, business machines, public speaking, drama, parliamentary procedures, welding, jewelry, textiles, bridge, men's physical recreation, women's physical recreation, modern math, consumer math, sewing and driver education for adults over 18.

Caro also requires 10 students to form a class.

Magazine racketeers in area again

The magazine racketeers are at it again in Cass City with a new variation on an old theme.

The sharpsters are catching the unwary with a phone solicitation that starts with a quiz contest.

If you answer the question right you get a free gift (nearly everyone knows the answer). As soon as you've "won", Roy Anthes reports, a salesman calls at your door to tell you about your gift and to collect the "postage money" due.

They talked with me on the phone and then came to the house when I was not at home and got my wife to sign a check for $4.90 and another paper for the "postal fee".

A later examination showed that the paper for postage turned out to be five-year subscriptions for five magazines and the $4.90 was the first payment with 29 more payments due.

Investigation has shown that the contract is legal and, of course, the mails were not used to defraud, Anthes said. Anthes said that he stopped payment on the checks and wrote the magazines concerned that he was not interested in receiving them.

4 injured in accidents

Gagetown tot recovering

Three-year-old James Nelson Giddings of Gagetown, who was run over by a car driven by Douglas Patrick Giddings, 18, of Vassar, was listed as in good condition at St. Luke's Hospital Wednesday morning.

He was one of four persons who suffered injuries in accidents during the week. The youngster was playing in the yard of the Russell Giddings Jr. home on Jacob road near Cass City Road Saturday when the accident occurred.

Douglas Giddings was starting to back from the driveway and hit the tot who was evidently playing in back of the vehicle.

The child was rushed to Caro Community Hospital and later transferred to Saginaw for treatment.

SMITH RECOVERING

Thomas R. Smith, 17, who suffered a brain concussion, severe injury to both knees and a possible fracture to both knees is recovering nicely, Dr. H. T. Donahue reported Wednesday. Smith was injured in an accident Friday at Elmwood and Jacob Roads. According to the police report, Smith failed to see a car driven by Mark G. Griglok, 19, of Caseville, approaching on Elmwood Road. He went through a stop sign and hit the Griglok car while driving his motorcycle.

He was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital and was still a patient Wednesday.

TWO INJURED

Treated at Caro Community Hospital for injuries received in an accident Tuesday were Leonard Milford Meeker Jr. of Kingston and Tom Smith of Clio.

Both men received superficial injuries and were treated and released, although the report by the Tuscola County Sheriff's office indicated that Smith was thrown through the windshield and the car rolled over twice.

The car was a total wreck. Another accident reported to the sheriff's department involved August Edward Schenk Jr., 29, of Cass City. He lost control of his car on Bay City-Forrestville Road in Columbia township and skidded into a utility pole.

The car was badly damaged.

Experts play different game

Jaunty Jack Ross a champ Shuffleboard player at 70

Shuffleboard is a tense, exciting game and there is as much pressure in a championship shuffleboard contest as there is in a hot baseball pennant race, a sudden death golf match or the final two minutes of a tied football game.

It takes plenty of desire and steady nerves to win, so for folks who know him, it's not surprising that jaunty Jack Ross, 70, of Owendale is a champion.

Ross has practiced and studied shuffleboard with the same determination that he used to bag 22 bucks deer hunting and the wide patience that he needed to raise top caliber fox hounds.

For this he designed a miniature board with magnetized buttons on which he shows potential arbitrators the fine points of the game.

Ross, who is now semi-retired on his farm, three-quarters of a mile south of Owendale, spends his winters in Florida.

He and his wife, the former Jessie Reece, have three married daughters, eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

He first became exposed to the game in Florida in 1954 and quickly became one of the top notchers of the game in the Sunshine State.

Shuffleboard played like most of us play it and played like a champion plays it is as different as a plow horse and a champion Thoroughbred.

Let Ross describe the recent State tourney held at Traverse City where 150 players, including several professionals, vied for the title.

"I left home at 5 a. m., Ross said, and arrived 15 minutes before the first match at 9:30 a. m. We played until 8 p. m. that night. The next day I started again at 9:30 and played to noon, took an hour off and then lost a three-hour match to the State champion, a professional who is slated for the shuffleboard hall of fame, Ross said.

Many facets of the game aren't apparent to the casual viewer. The importance of the color of the discs is one. It's all because of the drift. The "Buttons" (the Ross name for discs) all react differently on different courts and the drift is important when you are trying for spot control necessary to hit an opponent's disc that is almost hidden by a second disc.

To determine before the match just how the "buttons" will react on any court on any given day, two practice games with each color are played. After the practice comes the lag for colors.

Here the players shoot four discs, three for practice and the fourth to determine choice of colors. The champs all know what discs are best by the time the game is about to start.

Shuffleboard played by experts is a game of hide and seek. The idea is to have the board clear of all discs when you take the last shot, both yours and your opponents' . . . a good player will score practically every time under these conditions, Ross said.

If an expert gets behind, he tries to reduce the opponent's score by shoving his disc into the 10-off section of the board. Some experts make a general rule of trying to whittle away at the opponents in this manner and they are known in the trade as "kitchen" players.

As you might expect, when you play the game the way Ross does, the type of stick is important. Ross buys the best and then converts them by adding refinements that help give him a better feel of the disc when he plays.

NOT CASUAL

There is nothing casual about a championship shuffleboard tourney. There are two referees at each board (one on each end), a division referee that supervises about three sets of board referees and a tourney manager that is the final arbitrator.

Finding referees that know anything about the game is very difficult, so Ross, with characteristic energy, started a school for referees.

POSING WITH SOME of the trophies he has won in various tournaments is Jack Ross of Owendale. The stick he is holding is one that he made himself and one that helps him to the top in championship competition.

EDITOR'S CORNER concluded from page 1 are experimenting with a new gadget for measuring speed called Vascor.

The name stands for visual average speed computer and recorder and is supposed to check speeds of vehicles in front or behind, approaching from the opposite direction, crossing at right angles and during the day or night in any kind of weather.

Like radar, it should make it easier for the police to check traffic speeders.

Now all of this sounds extra fine on paper, but we'd be willing to take a small wager that before it is in use too many months, someone will figure out a way to "beat" the machine much in the same way as the straps hanging from the back of cars is used to "beat" radar and avoid a justifiable ticket for speeding.

Around The Farm Highlights of crop soil field day

By Alfred P. Ballweg

On Thursday of last week, August 31, some 400 people, a number of them from Tuscola county, attended the Crops and Soils Field Day at Michigan State University.

Research pays big dividends for each dollar spent and this is especially true in the field of agriculture. Farming is a business that depends to a large extent on weather, crop varieties, soils, fertilizer, farm machinery and a lot of good common sense. Research can prove very costly and farmers generally cannot afford the risks and cost of doing this on their own farm. Therefore, your Agricultural Experiment Station can best do this job which benefits not only farmers but consumers share in the benefits too because it helps to provide an ample amount of good food at a price less than many other countries in the world.

Here are a few of the highlights of research under way and discussed at Crops and Soils Field Day:

Atrazine affects plant growth primarily by interfering with the vital photosynthetic processes. This implies that in order for a weed to be controlled, it must have germinated. Atrazine enters plants through both the leaves and underground parts of the plant. When applied before planting or at normal pre-emergence, Atrazine must be moved into the soil or have moisture near the soil surface to enable it to be absorbed by the plant roots or emerging shoot in sufficient quantity to kill the plant at or soon after emergence.

The addition of a non-phyto-toxic oil to the Atrazine water suspension has proven to be of significant value and will perhaps become a standard practice when Atrazine is applied to corn after weeds emerge. The oil added would be mainly for the purpose of improving the consistency and effectiveness of grass control with Atrazine post-emergence.

BRONZING

Bronzing is the reddish-brown discoloration of bean leaves for which no definite cause has heretofore been recognized. It is now believed that air-pollution may be responsible. Certain gases - ozone, sulfur dioxide, unsaturated hydrocarbons - in conjunction with each other and/or ultraviolet light, in proper concentrations, can simulate the bronzing effects.

Three years' yield results show that it appears possible to cut alfalfa in an occasional year during the "no cut" period of September 15-30 especially with the more winterhardy and wilt resistant varieties particularly if well fertilized, especially with potassium. Corn protein is deficient in lysine and tryptophan, two essential amino acids needed for growth.

In 1963, Drs. O. E. Nelson and E. T. Mertz of Purdue University discovered that corn containing the mutant gene had twice as much lysine and 50% more tryptophan than normal corn.

Swine feeding trials with swine at Purdue have shown that high lysine corn can be fed without protein (soybean oil meal) supplements. This saving in protein supplements has been calculated as $2.00 per head or a saving of $140 million annually in the swine feeding industry.

POP-UP FERTILIZER

The idea involved in term "pop-up" fertilizer is as old as is the much idea of fertilizing corn. The fertilizer fell directly down the spout with the seed. Injury resulted if more than 75 pounds of 2-12-6 was applied with the seed.

Pop-up fertilizer, as the term is now used, simply means the use of a very small amount (small enough that injury is not likely) of starter fertilizer directly with corn seed. Unless the phosphorus test of the soil is already very high, stimulation to early growth will result.

Where soybeans are grown in a cash crop rotation, the highest yields are produced with the use of some extra fertilizer nitrogen. Research shows that the use of 40 to 50 pounds of nitrogen increase soybean yields 3 to 7 bushels per acre. The increase is seldom large but it is consistent from one year to the next. Where it is not practical to use this quantity of nitrogen as a part of the banded planting time fertilizer it is practical to work it into the soil before planting or to sidedress it after the rows can be seen. The several nitrogen carriers have the same effect upon soybean yields. The high rate of nitrogen (200# per acre) used in this experiment has not caused any lodging problem as of August 31.

Speak softly and thoroughly investigate. This is today's substitute for the big stick.

The only things new under the sun are the modern methods used to distort the truth.

SPORTS FANS!

I
KNOW

By H. M. Buleen

Here's a football oddity. . . There are 5-yard penalties in football and there are 15-yard penalties -- but, oddly enough, there are no 10-yard penalties. . . And, nobody has ever come up with a good reason why there aren't any 10-yard penalties in football.

The man who won the famous Indianapolis 500-mile auto race this year is known as A. J. Foyt -- but hardly anyone knows what his full name is. . . The "A" and the "J" in Foyt's name stand for Anthony John.

Here's a golf question for you. . . Each year, the Professional Golfers' Association picks the outstanding pro golfer of that year. . . Can you guess which golfer has won the best player award the most times? . . . Answer is Ben Hogan who was selected PGA player-of-the-year four times, in 1948, 1950, 1951 and 1953. . . The only other golfers who have won the award more than once are Arnold Palmer, who won in 1960 and 1962, and Julius Boros, who won in 1952 and 1963.

With a price rise of an expected two hundred dollars we think the '67s represent very good value. There are still a few left for the smart buyer. In Cass City the Smog problem doesn't warrant a $50.00 eliminator, but, you'll have one on the '68s.

Many problems facing light, inexperienced Hawk squad

GOING OVER PLANS in early season practice with co-captain John Maharg, center, are new Assistant Coach Richard Scoville, left, and Coach John Bifoss.

WANT TO LEARN the fine points of shuffleboard? Take a trip to Owendale and talk with Jack Ross. The shuffleboard champion teaches the rules and the game on this miniature board that he invented.

After a solid week of twice daily drills, the Cass City Red Hawks switched this week to once a day workouts as 26 grid hopefuls reported for the opening day of practice at Cass City Recreational Park.

Included in the group were five boys who played a lot of football for Cass City last year. John Maharg, quarterback, and Ron Weppert, tackle, were regulars on offense last year. Bill Klinkman, Paul LeValley and Gary Vollmer played a lot of defense for last year's squad.

In addition, several lettermen are back with high hopes of moving into starting positions. They include Jim Kloc, Joe Kloc, Rick Lorentzen, Dave Sherrard and Miles Profit.

Despite these boys, it could be hard for Cass City to match last year's 5-4 record. Only two regulars from the offense are back. Sure to be missed are Rick VanVleet and Karl Weppert, both all conference honorable mention; Jim Walters, all conference second team, co-captain and the team's most valuable player; Al Zawilinski, co-captain, and Dave Asher, offense end and defensive back.

As usual with Hawk teams, there will be a noticeable lack of size. Among the lettermen back from last year, only one, Weppert, tips the scales at more than 175 pounds. Weppert is a hefty 215 pounds.

One bright spot for followers of the Thumb B Conference, Coach John Bifoss Sr. believes, will be better balance in the league this year.

Last year's powers, Frankemuth and the Lakers, will be tough again, but will be harder pressed by the other teams in the league that were patsies for Frankemuth, the champions, and the Lakers who finished second.

Vassar, Bad Axe and Caro should be much improved, Bifoss said, and ready to present a real challenge for the title.

In addition to the letter winners, the squad lists 10 juniors, six seniors and one sophomore.

The seniors are: Dave Hennessey, Terry Hill, Jack Hillaker, Dick McRae, Jack Selby and Dennis Stine.

Juniors on the squad are: Tom Fulcher, John Golding, Tom Guinther, Neil MacCallum, Mick Miracle, Tim Rabideau, Fred Ryan, Mark Strace, Wade Strace and Don Wernette. The sophomore is Bruce LeValley.

Cass City will have one non-conference warm-up game at Oscoda Sept. 15 before plunging into the conference schedule at Bad Axe Sept. 22.

IT WAS A happy birthday Sunday for Edward Hartwick of rural Cass City. Now 90, the lifelong resident of the area is in very good health. He has a touch of arthritis, but he doesn't consider it serious.

He married the former Ruth Jackson of Cass City, Sept. 16, 1908. The couple has nine living children, 26 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren.

An estimated 65 members of the family attended the celebration.

HELP YOU SAVE

If you work for yourself as a sole proprietor or partnership, this includes farmers as well as professional persons such as physicians, veterinarians, dentists, accountants and similar professions, the new federal law could help you save thousands of dollars in income taxes as long as you are not affiliated with a corporation or work for another person on hourly wages. Let me explain this fascinating tax-saving idea with you. It will take only five minutes—but that five minutes can save you a great deal of money in taxes.

DAVID L. BURK

Pvt. David L. Burk, who was hospitalized at Fort Knox, Ky., from Aug. 15-29 with a possibility of a medical discharge, was re-instated and upon completion of basic training left Fort Knox Sept. 2 for Fort Huachuca, Arizona, where he will receive a 10 weeks' course in radio code training. His address is Pfc. David L. Burk, RA 16938089, Co. A-1-1 (C.S.T.) Class No. 10, Fort Huachuca, Arizona 85613.

A brother, Pfc. Alvin R. Burk II, arrived Aug. 18 at Cam Rahn Bay, Vietnam. Pfc. Burk is a full-fledged paratrooper but as a part of orientation is now a rigger, engaged in packing chutes and cargo. His address is Pfc. Alvin R. Burk II, RA 16931406, 109th Q.M. Co., (A.D.) APO San Francisco, Calif. 96377.

Ingredients for such a set-up? A card table if you don't have a small size desk. Invest now in the best study lamp you can get. This does not mean the "goose-neck" or high intensity lamps so often seen. Their fault is too intense a contrast between light and dark areas causing eye fatigue. Choose an upright study lamp with wide shade, inverted diffusion bowl and three-way switch. Don't spare the wattage of that bulb. You want adequate light to spread throughout the study area.

Select a straight, comfortable chair -- one that can take squirming without squeaking. Concoct a brick and board shelf or arrange a couple of sturdy boxes for books, magazines or cherished possessions. Use a colorful can or box for waste-paper. If there's wall space, add a bulletin board.

And, for fun, give your child some "Quiet please" signs to place at strategic spots if the family forgets sometimes he's in his office studying. P.S. This goes for all daughters too.

A jelly roll means vacation

By Marion Hostetler

Remember the old story about the lunatic who pounded his head with a hammer "because it feels so good when I stop"? The same thing could be said about vacations. After sleeping in motels, dormitories, a log cabin, and a tent, there's nothing like falling into bed in your own home.

One interesting thing about a vacation is that we like a change of food, as well as a change of scenery. I couldn't tell you how long it's been since we served a jelly roll in our house. But every summer when we are foraging in a strange grocery store, it seems that somebody picks up a jelly roll. And the funny thing about it is that I can remember doing the same thing when I was a young boy vacationing with my parents and sister. So, whatever it means to you . . . to me, jelly roll means vacation.

We saw at least a dozen different ways of presenting movies at Expo 67. There was the usual single screen. There were three screens side by side, and in another place, three screens, one above the other. There were five screens arranged in the form of a "red cross," and six screens in the form of a rectangle. In one building there was a screen on one wall and another on the floor. The audience stood in balconies. The wall screen would show some boys climbing the scaffolding of a skyscraper under construction, and the screen below would show traffic moving along the streets, as if seen from the top of the skyscraper.

A Canadian pavilion contained five screens back to back in the form of a pentagon, forming the hub of a wheel. The audience sat in chairs on a movable circular platform surrounding the screens. They would view the picture on one screen, then the platform would carry them to the next screen, where they would see its movie, and so on around the circle.

In the Telephone pavilion the audience stood in the center of a large round room, with a screen completely surrounding them. The entire horizon would be visible on the screen at once, so you had to keep moving your head to see as much of it as possible. The French pavilion had a "total immersion" movie (which we didn't see) in which the audience sat in a sphere and the picture was thrown above, below, and all around them.

The Czechoslovakia pavilion was one of the most imaginative and most popular. In one little theater "commercials" about the industries of the country were thrown on the surfaces of large cubes and whirling spheres. In another place the screen was composed of a hundred boxes, each possibly fifteen inches square. A separate picture would be projected on each box. At first there were geometric designs that didn't seem to make any sense, but gradually a meaningful pattern began to emerge. The separate boxes moved slightly in and out, up and down, while the picture was being shown, producing a very lively effect.

Another new type of movie which we didn't see was a film in which one or more of the actors appeared in person in front of the screen.

Frank Meiser heard about this system for sorting blueberries. Spread a towel on a table and scatter the berries over it. Then rub the palm of your hand over the berries from left to right several times. The big berries will roll across to the right side of the towel, and the little berries and the leaves will be left behind.

James and Cecil Colbert, who recently visited friends in Cass City, report that youngsters in Denver are coasting down the hills on a chrome-plated contraption that appears to be a descendant of a skateboard. Let's watch and see how long it takes this craze to reach Cass City. One of our local merchandisers tells me that clothing fads come to our town about a year after they hit Detroit.

Possibly the most exciting event of our vacation happened the first day after we were back in town. Betsy's gold-colored Christmas cat gave birth to four kittens. Anybody wanna kitty?

Unique training program

attacks hard core poverty

Michigan's "hard core" unemployed in the Upper Peninsula were picked for a unique retraining - educational pilot program. Although job retraining has been conducted at many locations for quite some time, the UP project combined basic education and prevocational training with the teaching of only job skills.

A federal program passed in 1964 provides funds for attacking hard core poverty. The Michigan Department of Social Services and Northern Michigan University, at Marquette, pooled their talents to provide a more flexible program, based on individual needs, than is normally found in retraining.

The 201 enrollees were first given thorough medical-dental examinations and underwent extensive counseling. Factors which become apparent - and which could affect the trainees' success in completing courses - included organic problems, drinking habits, marital difficulties, low reading and mathematical competencies.

Trainees, housed in special quarters at Northern, received specific help on these individual problems. During this period social services staff visited homes, explained the program and asked for cooperation and support from families.

Once a vacancy developed in the job training classes, a trainee was "promoted" from basic education to job skills. No class schedule was set; trainees graduated from classes as employment was found or when they entered a more highly-skilled course.

Programs planned for 10 week intervals actually averaged 11 1/2 weeks. Maximums and minimums ran from one year to one day. Some men spent the entire periods in the basic education program and increased general education levels. Others spent less time in classroom, but acquired skills in welding, woodworking, auto mechanics, and other fields.

At the end of the year's program, 94 of the 201 originally enrolled planned to continue their education or vocational training, 52 had or were promised employment, 27 were unemployed, 14 were in work - experience projects, eight were under medical care, six were in jail, unknown or dead.

Estimated trainee cost was

COLOR IT BLUE

Motorists traveling north on U.S. 27 near Mt. Pleasant or Clare and those northbound on U.S. 23, between Ann Arbor and Flint, will note blue markings for exit ramps.

Both projects are part of a "color-coding" experiment by the Michigan State Highway Department.

Previous tests in Minnesota and Florida prompted Michigan to add a third color code to the existing yellow and white-on-green interstate signs on its freeways.

High-speed freeway travel requires "glance" notification of interchange areas to permit advance positioning for exit maneuvers. The need is greater when exit ramps are approached from left lanes and look identical to the thru-way.

Erratic driving maneuvers were observed at such interchanges with drivers switching lanes two and three times before deciding whether to exit or continue on the freeway. The erection of blue signs and edgemarkings at Mt. Pleasant and Clare reduced erratic maneuvers 38%. Data from 30,000 driver interviews is now being processed. The highway department has received many letters from motorists expressing favorable reaction to the coding system.

Results on U.S. 27 showed enough merit to justify a similar experiment on an extended length of freeway. In 1965 color coding was established on U.S. 23.

National adoption of the system could result if tests continue to show favorable results. The U.S. Bureau of Public Roads contributes 75% of test funds and watches the experiment closely.

Although there is considerable red tape involved, the Michigan system stands a good chance of becoming a standard for all interstate highways. Research data should be processed by next July.

Dear Mister Editor:

I see by the papers where Congressman Robert Michel of Illinois was mighty upset about some of them meetings Agriculture Secretary Freeman was holding around the country.

For instant, he says they held one in Kansas and they was wild applause for everything Secretary Freeman said and when somebody got up to complain about some items in the farm program they was booed down.

I ain't never understood the farm program under the Republicans or the Democrats and I don't aim to git political over matters I don't understand. But it seems to me, Mister Editor, if the Secretary of Agriculture has to git the deck stacked for applause at these meetings with the farmers, they was some weak spots in it.

This same piece I was reading in the papers said Congressman Michel was aiming to look into some other meetings Freeman was holding in the farm belt and see how many Federal farm employees was being flew there at a cost of $3,827 to the taxpayers. Furthermore, Congressman Michel found out most of the applause for the farm program was coming from Incidental, speaking of Washington, I see where a column writer named Ashley Cooper on a Charleston, S. C., paper has compiled a list of some of the lapel buttons they was now wearing in the nation's capital. I copied 'em down for you, Mister Editor, so's you'd have a better idea of how the thinking was going these days amongst the citizens at our seat of Government:

"I am a human being - Don't fold, spindle or mutilate."
"I am anonymous, help me!"
"Stamp out reality."
"Fight poverty - give me $10."

It Seems To Me

Consider a patient's right to die

By Rev. R. J. Searls

On Easter morning last, 250 Americans, mostly Quakers, crossed the Peace Bridge from Buffalo, N. Y., to Fort Erie, Ontario, on an errand of mercy to civilian victims of the Vietnamese war. At the Canadian end of the bridge the interfaith group delivered $5,000 to the Canadian Friends Service Committee's medical aid program. Since the United States treasury department now refused to grant licenses for the transfer of such monies, the project was illegal. Aware of this fact, the group had delivered an open letter to Secretary of State Dean Rusk in which it stated: "We intend, this Easter morning, to challenge one of man's laws because it conflicts with the law of God! A U. S. official warned the group that their action violated U. S. laws."

The event was 'covered' by all the news media, throughout Canada, but not in our country. $1 million an hour this country spends on the Vietnam war, while more than $300,000 is the cost required to kill each Vietnamese enemy.

Where the charge grossly violates the First Amendment to the Constitution is that it prohibits the free exercise of religion! I cannot help wondering out loud whether our You'll buy a new furnace maybe once in your life. Here's how to do it right.

First, call Edison. We'll give you the names of electric heat contractors near you. Each has been Edison-approved as capable and reliable. (And, right now, each will give you a $150 trade-in on your old furnace if you convert to electric heat.)

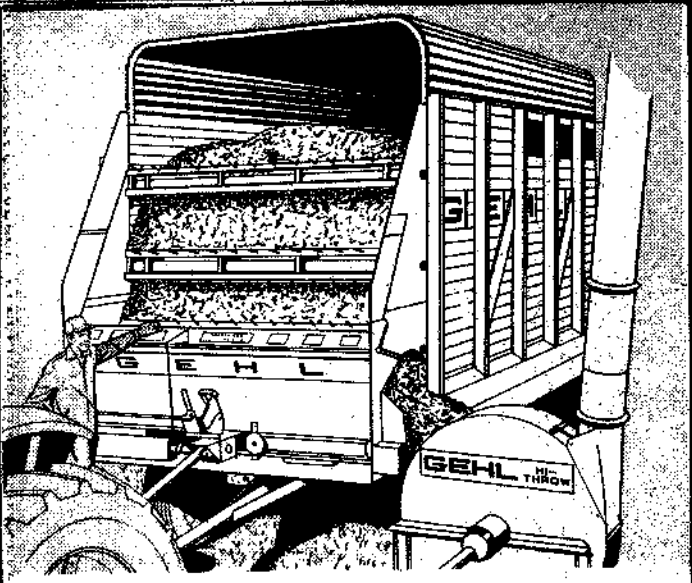

Next, the contractor will check your home, review your needs, and recommend the type of heat best for you. He will estimate both installation and operating cost and give them to you in writing. All without obligation. We'll check the quotes if you like.

Then, after your new electric heat system is installed, Edison and your contractor will make any adjustments necessary to the system if operating cost exceeds the original estimate during the first three years of use. At the end of this time, if operating cost still exceeds the estimate, and you aren't satisfied, Edison will remove the system and refund your original price.

That's our new Three-Step Protection Plan. Remember the first step. Call Edison.

One For The Road

Here's an idea for a party

By Dan Marlowe

Are you looking for a fresh idea for your next little party for 120 people?

John Chapman, clubhouse manager of the Harbor Beach Resort Association, recently stage-managed a Fiji Island fiesta, which association members claim was the most successful "something different" party in years.

Time and effort went into making the party a success. The interior of the clubhouse was decorated with a profusion of real and artificial flowers, while outside the clubhouse entrance there was a grass hut surrounded by flaring Hawaiian torches and woven grass mats. The waitresses were in sarongs and performed "native" dances whose authenticity no one questioned too closely. Female members and guests came attired in muumukus and other exotic regalia, while among the men cutaways and stovepipe hats were in evidence.

This was only the final stage of the party, the initial preparations for which had begun 36 hours before. The piece de resistance of the Fiji Island repast was to be "long pig" (not to be confused with the type of meal occasioned by the disappearance of missionaries in the old days). A porker weighing 130 dressed-out pounds was prepared, but even prior to that there was the readying of a fire-pit near the grass hut. The pit was dug 6 feet long, 4 feet wide, and 4 1/2 feet deep, and was lined along its bottom with cinder block. A full 3 cords of wood were burned in the pit for 9 hours to produce an 18 inch bed of glowing coals which were then covered with 3 inches of sand. The pig was wrapped in 3 layers of burlap (the inner layer saturated with barbecue sauce), placed on the coals, and covered with another layer of sand. The pig stayed in the pit for 15 hours, barbecuing slowly, and when removed at last it was cut in two and browned lightly in the clubhouse kitchen.

Reassembled on a huge platter with an apple in its mouth, it was served with pheasant from the freezer, fresh corn, fruit salad, coconuts, and pineapple, and Fiji Islanders should only have had it as good. When everything was ready, the carrying was done by Manager Chapman and by Robert Semple, president of the association, and members and guests sat down to do such justice to the meal that only scraps were left.

Chapman, who begins a new three year contract as clubhouse manager next year, is looking forward to doing it again. "Perhaps with beef next time," he says. "And I'd make the pit larger, with a deeper bed of coals. Not that it didn't cook perfectly this time, but a larger pit would be quicker and less wearing on my nerves while I waited to see if it was going to turn out all right."

So when you plan your fiesta, friends, be sure and dig your pit deep enough. And don't worry about failure--after all, your guests will have immediate recourse available to them.

As one panting teenager who helped in the digging remarked: "If this pig doesn't cook properly, the next thing into the pit will be John Chapman."
