

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By H. M. Bulen

Here's quite an oddity about the man who tied for the league championship in touchdowns scored in the National Football League last season...

Of all the pro football teams, which one do you think has finished in first place the most different years?...

Did you know that, oddly enough, the length of timeouts in pro football are different from those in college and high school ball...

'68 prices are up $150.00 or so. Add this to the "over allowance" you'll get now on a '67, and it makes quite a sum.

There are still '67s left, carrying the same Warranty etc. as the '68s will. It might be the right move for you if you need or want a new car.

THE 1967 HAWKS - It will be with these boys that the fate of the Cass City High School grid fortunes will rest. The squad is light and inexperienced, but willing, Coach John Bifoss says.

Second row: Bifoss, Jim Kloc, Rick Lorentzen, Paul LeValley, Dave Sherrard, Bruce LeValley, Tim Rabideau, and Manager Per Petersen.

Third row: Assistant Coach Richard Scoville, Co-captain John Maharg, Dave Hennessey, Jack Selby, Co-captain Ron Weippert, Tom Guinther and Jack Hillaker.

Hawks ready to lift lid on 1967 grid season

The bright spot about this year's Hawk grid squad appears to be that the boys want to play football, Coach John Bifoss said this week as his charges went through final drills in preparation for the season's opener at Oscoda Friday.

Technically, the offense and defense showed some promise, but over-all we need a lot of polish and work to become a good football team, the coach continued.

The Hawks have yet to defeat Oscoda in the current series and Bifoss would especially like a victory this year. For Friday's game may well be the last scheduled with the Owls from the north because of the travel distance involved.

One factor in Cass City's favor is that Oscoda lost heavily by graduation last year. They aren't expected to be as big or quick as they were last year where they showed a strong outside running attack.

THE STARTERS

Bifoss said this week that he plans to use a good many players in the opener Friday. Only eight players are possible starters on both offense and defense. Dave Sherrard is playing offensive guard and defensive end. Ron Weippert is a fixture going both ways at tackle. John Maharg will be the quarterback and may play defensive safety. Bill Klinkman is a starting halfback and will play middle guard on defense. Mick Miracle is working out at offensive halfback and as a linebacker.

The schedule:

- Sept. 15 Oscoda there
- 22 Bad Axe there
- 29 Sandusky here
- Oct. 6 Vassar there
- 13 Marlette here
- 20 Caro here
- 27 Lakers here
- Nov. 3 Frankenthuth there
- 10 North Branch there

Fred Ryan and Neil MacCallum also are seeking spots on both units.

The remainder of the starting team will be picked from these boys on the basis of practice this week, with most of the candidates almost sure to see some action Friday.

On the offensive team at ends Jack Hillaker, Jack Selby and Fred Ryan are battling for the starting nod. With Weippert at tackle will be either Paul LeValley or Neil MacCallum.

Challenging Sherrard and Tom Fulcher at guard is Joe Kloc.

The center spot will belong to Rick Lorentzen if he shows the expected improvement this week.

Flanking Maharg in the backfield will be either Dick McRae or Dennis Stine at fullback, with the halfback posts shared by Klinkman, Miracle and Gary Vollmer.

DEFENSIVE TEAM

Challenging Sherrard at the defensive end posts will be Jim Kloc and Paul LeValley. Bruce LeValley will join Weippert at defensive tackle while Tim Rabideau and Neil MacCallum will be waiting in the wings if one of the starters falters.

Tom Fulcher is expected to team with Miracle at the important linebacker slot while Dick McRae and Fred Ryan are fighting for defensive halfback slots. If Maharg doesn't play halfback he may play safety along with either Vollmer or Dennis Stine.

Mozdens celebrate 25th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Mozden of Deford were honored at a reception given by their children in Dom Polski hall at Caro Sept. 3 from 1 to 7 p. m. About 150 guests attended to celebrate the Mozdens' 25th wedding anniversary.

The four-tier wedding cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Joseph Kurkowski of Detroit, niece of Mrs. Mozden.

The wedding cake was cut by their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Alvin Mozden.

Mrs. Mozden is the former Jennie Polther and has lived in the Deford vicinity most of the time. Mr. Mozden is a native of Donora, Pa. He is a World War II veteran, having served four and a half years in the U. S. Army.

The couple have seven children: ENS Alvin Mozden, stationed at the naval training center at Balnbridge, Maryland; Pvt. Ronald Mozden, with the U. S. Army Reserves at Fort Sill, Okla.; Margaret, Gerald, Edward, Mark and Julie, all at home.

Ronald Mozden was unable to attend the reception.

Seed important for wheat crop

Good quality seed of the right variety, high in germination test and treated against disease, is the key to a good wheat crop.

Alfred Ballweg, agricultural agent in Tuscola county, says extra bushels at harvest next summer can result from extra time and money spent at planting time.

Michigan grows soft winter wheat -- except in parts of the Upper Peninsula. This wheat goes into pastry flour used in crackers, cookies, cakes and products such as breakfast foods.

About 85 per cent of Michigan's nearly 1,000,000 acres of wheat is soft white wheat. Genesee and Avon are the recommended white varieties. Both yield high and are suited to Michigan conditions. In over-state trials at six locations, Genesee averaged 54.6 bushels an acre and Avon 52.6 bushels.

Monon is the red wheat most highly recommended by Michigan State University test results. The over-state yield average has been 51.3 bushels.

Here are seed qualities the agricultural agent thinks farmers should get:

- (1) 90 per cent germination;
- (2) free from weed seeds, especially cockle, chess and wild onion;
- (3) free from other crop seeds like rye or barley and (4) pure as to variety.

"Certified seed is the only seed which consistently meets these standards", the agent advises, adding that he can provide a list of sources.

Seed should be treated with a fungicide to control seedling diseases and bunt (stinking smut). This is essential in Michigan because of the weather conditions.

An Extension bulletin (518) "Controlling Seed-borne Diseases" covers this subject and is available from the county Extension office.

Special care should be taken to prevent any of this treated seed, which must be colored, from getting into grain being sold. State and federal laws are strict and left-over seed should be destroyed.

Hostetler's Hodgepodge

Fertilizers-a game of numbers

By Marion Hostetler

I noticed the following on a card tacked up beside the cash register in a shop:

SEVEN DEADLY SINS
E. Stanley Jones

Politics without principle.
Wealth without work.
Pleasure without conscience.
Knowledge without character.
Business without morality.
Science without humanity.
Worship without sacrifice.

Dr. Jones could have preached a sermon on each of those subjects, and perhaps he did, but if they were printed, I never saw them.

I learned something about fertilizers this summer. I suppose most of you already know about this, but I'll tell you my experience.

In the past I have usually scattered a few handfuls of lawn fertilizer on our little vegetable garden, supposing that what would make grass grow would also be good for tomatoes. Then I came across an article about the difference between lawn fertilizer and garden fertilizer. The first of the three numbers on the fertilizer bag indicates the percent of nitrogen; the second number, the percent of phosphate, and the third, the percent of potash.

Nitrogen is what makes leaves flourish, so for a lawn we want a large number in the first place, such as 20-10-4.

Phosphate encourages the growth of flowers and fruit, so for a flower or vegetable garden we look for a large number in the second place, such as 5-10-5 or 5-20-20. But this kind of fertilizer shouldn't be used on lawns, because the flowers that bloom in lawns are weeds! (Someone defined a weed as a plant that is growing in the wrong place.) They tell me that a high phosphate fertilizer used over a period of years can turn a lawn into a weed patch.

If the first two numbers are the same (10-10-5), you can use the fertilizer on either lawns or gardens.

Not to make a long story any longer, this year I put some 5-20-20 on our tomatoes and peppers, and although they are late in ripening, we have an abundance of fruits on both kinds of plants.

Last summer I had a visit with a man whose business is roofing. He said there are four or five different types of roofing, and that the type to be used depends on the slope of the roof.

I asked him why they put gravel on top of some flat roofs, and he said there are several good reasons. The asphalt used on such roofs has a low melting point, so it would tend to flow in summer if the gravel didn't hold it in place. Also the weight of the gravel helps to hold down the edges of the felt that is laid before the asphalt is poured. The gravel helps to protect the asphalt from the elements, too. In California we saw white or colored crushed stone used in this way, and it helped brighten the color scheme of the house.

Agent's Corner

Make books easy to find at home

By Mrs. Ann Ross Extension Agent.

How accessible are books at your house? With Johnny back in school, can he readily get his hands on reference material -- the encyclopedias, the dictionary, the atlas and perhaps some science facts.

Unless you've planned a handy storage place where these books are always kept, Johnny might find it easier to skip his homework than to try to track down hard-to-find reference material.

Mrs. Ann Ross, Thumb extension home economist, suggests if he's the only one using the materials, then set up a book storage unit in his room or near the area where he studies. However, if there are others in the family who need access to the same study materials, then it's best to have a central book storage unit handy for the entire family.

In planning bookshelves, count on a depth of 10 inches to take care of the average run of books found in the home. However, the special books, such as encyclopedias and the atlas, usually are larger books and measuring for both depth and height before you build is important.

How much bookshelf space you need in your home, of course, depends on the number of books you have to store. In about one foot of shelf space, you can fit in nine books.

As far as height is concerned, adjustable shelves are best for economical use of space. With books coming in every imaginable size, it's difficult to standardize shelf height to suit them all. However, allowing from one to three inches between the books and the next shelf above makes removal of the books easier.

Make books accessible -- so they will be read.

It's accomplishments that really count in the battle of life.

It's not what you do, but how, that makes your life a success.

Early harvest of corn silage best

Early harvest of corn silage may make the beef feeder more money than any other recommended practice, according to Alfred Ballweg, county extension agricultural agent in Tuscola county.

The results of recent Michigan State University research showed the cattle feeder could lose in many ways by delaying from mid-September until mid-October or even mid-November his corn silage making.

Dry matter yield of mid-October silage compared with mid-September was 15 per cent less and delaying harvest into November cut as much as 21 per cent off the value of the feed.

In addition, the agent points out, farmers lost as much as 10 to 20 per cent of the valuable crop in the field by extremely late harvest. And the dry, fluffy silage did not pack in the silo, and it took more space for storage of even less feed value.

Get ready with equipment and other work and the minute the corn is ready for silage, go after it.

Steers really need no additional grain if the corn silage is of high quality, he concluded.

Around The Farm Anybody for 200 bushel corn crop? By Don Keblor

So you would like to produce 130 to 150 bushels of shelled corn per acre! How would you like to try for 200 as Michigan State University researchers are doing? They have not reached this goal but hope to this year after trying the past two years unsuccessfully.

What ammo are they using? On a high fertility soil they have supplied around 250 pounds of nitrogen plus 200 pounds each of phosphorus and potassium per acre. Planting rates vary from 25,000 to 32,000 plants per acre. With these high populations they know water is an extremely necessary ingredient so they are irrigating.

Those of you who attended this year's crop and soils field day at MSU saw this corn experiment and could not help noticing the index-finger diameter stalks producing at least two well-filled ears of corn. Economics computes the cost of irrigation to be an extra 5 to 7 dollars per acre more. If I compute the extra seed, plant food and irrigation costs correctly, add another 40 to 45 dollars per acre for those 200 bushels over 100 bushels per acre yield goals.

Another point to look at is the greater quantity of refuse being plowed under from a 200 bushel corn crop and its effects on improving soil organic matter, texture and tilth.

* We have heard for more years than we can remember that we should not cut alfalfa during the month of September. Cutting before and after this month will not injure the crop appreciably. New research is beginning to show that alfalfa can be cut in September with no significant damage to the crop.

However, this is not true and damage can occur unless the following factors are present: (1) Must have a complete stand of healthy vigorously growing alfalfa, (2) Must have a high soil fertility level, (3) Must grow an adapted winter hardy alfalfa, (4) Must topdress immediately after cutting, (5) On sandy textured soil higher rates of potassium will be necessary.

* Last week I visited one of our dairy operators with an MSU dairy specialist and veterinarian. The purpose was to try to determine the reason why he was losing cows unnaturally. Observation of the herd indicated that the cattle were over-fed and had extra fat on their bodies.

Overfatness in dairy cattle can be risky and problems can develop. According to what I heard, if an over-fat animal goes off feed, demands more body energy, milks fat from their bodies, gets sick, etc., there is a drain on the stored fat. When stored fat is removed from the body there is produced byproducts, one of which is ketone. Excess ketone causes ketosis and is usually referred to as a disease.

Ketosis is not a specific disease but a metabolic disorder. It is an imbalance between the nutritive intake and nutritive requirements of the animal. The lack of balance is indicated by several associated disturbances - low blood levels, depletion of stored liver sugar, movement of stored body fats and increased ketone production in the blood and urine. Some instances of ketosis may be attributed to a feed ration imbalance of too much low energy feed like legume silage. If this be the case, reduction of this feed and increase in higher energy feeds and/or corn silage may prevent accumulation of ketones. Also don't allow those cows to get fat.

* I heard over our local radio station something worth repeating. With raising costs, the cost of food is requiring a lower percentage of a consumer's earning dollar. Or we are buying more food for less work than ever before. It amounts to about 18% of our wage now. I also heard that food processing, handling, packaging, etc. amounts to 66 percent of food costs. All but 1 or 2 percent of this cost is for packaging and processing. Think about this when you buy your next frozen dinner and don't blame the farmer on the high cost.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:
The feller that runs the country store was in bad trouble. Some salesman come along last week and give him a cardboard sign that says "THINK BIG." He nailed it up on the wall behind the cash register and when the fellers come in Saturday night fer their weekly session they immediate give him a vote of "no confidence," like some of them foreign rulers git when they was thrown out of office.
First off, Zeke Grubb said we was living in times when most of the room in the newspapers was took up with the little things in life. Fer instant, he reported he had saw this little item on the front page of a newspaper saying miniskirts in London has got so short they was calling 'em minibelts. He claimed it would be mighty hard to think big on such a small subject.
Ed Doolittle was not 100 per cent agreed with the fellers in this matter. He allowed as how you had to think big when you got to reading about the national debt and was talking to the loan man at the bank about your taxes. In fact, said Ed, you had to think big anytime you saw anything in the papers from Washington. He reported he had saw a item from Washington last week where the Pentagon boys had spent $215,000 fer monkeys last year to carry out some sort of experiment. Ed said the Congressman that discovered this item announced he was happy to find out they wasn't using them monkeys to run the Pentagon computers.

Josh Clodhopper, that as a general rule don't think big or little most of the time, butted in to say he was going to quit raising wheat from now on and start raising monkeys. He was wondering if the U. S. Department of Agriculture had any quota on monkeys. Ed was of the opinion they wasn't no quota at the present time, but if a few farmers started raising monkeys they would shore put 'em on the quota list immediate.
I think, Mister Editor, Bug Hookum had the best idea of any of the fellers. He said we was living in a age when it was better not to think small or big or in any shape or form. How was a feller going to think, ask Bug, when he saw in the papers where we was gitting square bathtubs in these fancy houses, when we was gitting electric hairbrushes and working on a electric toothpick?
Personal, I'm mostly agreed with Bug in this matter. If you think big you got to think of Vietnam, rising prices, bigger taxes. Everthing big is bad and everthing little ain't worth thinking about. My old lady, fer instant, will go to a sale and buy anything she thinks the store is losing money on, whether she needs it or not. That comes from thinking too much. When you write yore editorials, Mister Editor, don't git no headache thinking 'em up.
Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Fatal crashes diminish in State; increase in U.S.

Unless Labor Day drastically altered the picture, Michigan motorists have an impressive traffic record for 1967.
Michigan traffic deaths on holidays, week ends and during the week have dropped sharply from last year's levels while they remained unchanged nationwide says the Automobile Club of Michigan.
In its continuing study of traffic mishaps, AAA reported that during the first six months of this year, including the July 4 holiday, highway fatalities were down more than 17 per cent. Injuries dropped an estimated 10 per cent. Traffic volume remained at 1966 levels.

What accounted for the improvement? Auto Club General Manager Fred Rehm attributes a major share of decrease to better driving habits of the state's 4 1/2 million motorists. "Michigan motorists are getting the message... the vast majority of good drivers appear to be using that extra bit of carefulness and alertness to safety that is all they need to get them home safely. And more of the bad ones who've shown by their past records they are unfit to drive seem to be off the roads... on holidays at least," Rehm said.
Michigan's July 4th death rate was down 18 per cent from last year. Among the seven largest states, in terms of vehicle registration, Michigan listed 30 deaths, up 7 per cent over last year. This in comparison to Texas which recorded 71 deaths, up 73 per cent from 1966.

CRIME INCREASES
Annual report of crime in the United States, released by the FBI, shows another significant increase in crimes of all types. Currently the increase in crime outstrips population growth by almost seven-to-one.
In Michigan, a total of 182,045 crimes were committed in 1966. Burglary accounted for 78,353; larceny for 47,552; auto theft, 29,277; robbery, 13,061; aggravated assault, 11,411 and forcible rape, 1,998. Murder and non-negligent manslaughter totaled 393.
Michigan's Highland Park led the nation in total crimes committed in cities from 25,000 to 50,000 population. A total of 2,848 crimes were reported there in 1966. Lowest in the nation in that population category was South Euclid, Ohio, with only 67 crimes.

ELDERLY HOUSING

Senior citizen housing in Michigan is on an upswing, reports the Michigan Commission on Aging. In 1964 only 22 communities had completed or were developing low-rent housing projects designed for the elderly. These totaled 163 completed units in five communities.
By June of this year, 62 Michigan communities were involved in building and planning 7,898 units. Eighteen communities now have 1,152 units in operation.

A growing problem has been the shortage of trained personnel to manage housing projects. This is partially solved by new training programs instituted at Wayne State University and U-M.

There is still much to be done if Michigan is to reach its goal of 100,000 units for elderly housing by 1974, the commission noted.

Drive carefully—lost time can be made up sometimes, but death is always permanent.

The theory that might make right has never settled one single problem permanently.

FEMALE RESTRICTIONS

The 10-hour day, 54-hour week limitations for women employees will be lifted Nov. 2. The 1909 statute which set the labor ceilings for females was repealed this year when the legislature decided the law had become outmoded by other statutes, particularly by the Federal Equal Opportunity Law. Scheduling of hours should become easier for employers with women on the payroll, but other statutes still protect fe-

One For The Road

An area resident in the Olympics?

By Dan Marlowe

The Harbor Beach and Bad Axe Rotary clubs held their annual intercity fellowship dinner meeting at the Verona Country Club a few days ago, and the occasion was enlivened by the appearance of two former "local boys" who returned from Cleveland and Detroit to furnish the evening's program after an afternoon of golf.

The Detroit, Judge James H. Lincoln of the Juvenile Division of the Probate Court of Wayne County, presented—not introduced, as Jim Lincoln hastened to point out, since he needed no introduction to most of those present—the Cleveland, Andrew W. Kanaby, brakeman on the U. S. sled which won the two-man world championship bobsled title in 1967, and a member of the U. S. Olympic bobsled team in 1968.

Andy Kanaby and Jim Lincoln grew up on adjoining farms in Harbor Beach, and from that common experience each went on to success in his chosen field. Jim Lincoln's reminiscences on the subject of the jungle of Detroit politics are worth a column in themselves, but this item will deal with Jim's lifetime friend, Andy Kanaby.

Andy is both a remarkable individual and a remarkable athlete. He survived two hard-bitten years behind the Japanese lines in World War II as a counter-intelligence agent, specializing in the department of dirty tricks, bridge-blowing, road demolition, etc. He went on from his early local hunting and fishing activities to become an exceptionally able woodsman, to the point where he is now a licensed big game guide and his idea of a vacation is to be dropped by plane into a remote area of northern Canada or Alaska and go it alone for a few weeks with no companions and no equipment except what he is able to pack in on his back.

For the Rotarians, Andy showed and narrated a fifty minute color movie he took himself combining some of his moose hunting and salmon fishing experiences in the north with some of his bobsledding activities. While bobsledding through wicked curves at 100 mph might ordinarily be considered the more dangerous sport by his audience, the sight of movie shots of a metal but in the wilderness punctured through and through by the claws of an irate bear gave second thoughts on the matter.

Like Jack Benny, Andy admits to being 39, and it is obvious that he must be a man of great determination to be able to accomplish these things at his age, actually just past the half century mark. As Jim Lincoln correctly pointed out, in a lifetime of winning, Andy learned that the will to win isn't worth much unless accompanied by the will to prepare to win.

Andy Kanaby is a winner who knows how to prepare.

Watch for him as he prepares to represent Huron county and the U. S. in the '68 winter Olympics.

It will bear a Cass City postmark and the town name is also prominently displayed on the outside of the bulletin.

Mrs. Richard W. Drews of Cass City, editor of the paper, is a member of the Michigan state board of the directors for AAUW, and in addition to the Michigan News Bulletin, will be handling all publicity on the state level as well as directing the newsletter editors and publicity chairmen of the 62 branches in Michigan.

Letter to Editor

Sept. 9, 1967

Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Michigan

Dear Mr. Editor:

Your edition of Aug. 31, 1967 had a picture of a temporary school classroom. It was stated that it might be delayed a week while construction is completed.

I believe I know what caused the delay; if you will note the clock in the picture is running backwards, therefore, the workmen felt they had plenty of time left.

As I remember my school-days I know I would never want to attend a classroom in which the clock was running in that direction, so I hope this has been corrected by now.

Just trying to be helpful.
Ed Connell

Your Inkster Corr. Editor's note: The film was reversed when developed, making the whole picture backwards. We wondered if any sharp-eyed readers would notice.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin J. Hoppe

Miss Alice Luna became the bride of Melvin J. Hoppe Saturday, Aug. 19, in St. Pancratius Church. Fr. Arnold Messing celebrated the afternoon nuptial mass for the daughter of Mrs. Guadalupe Duran of Unionville and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hoppe of Cass City.

Brother Joseph, order of Franciscan Brothers, was organist and sang the mass. The side altars held baskets of white gladioli.

The bride approached the altar with her brother, Danny Luna. She wore a chantilly lace gown over taffeta styled with a fitted bodice, sabrina neckline and long sleeves. Her full skirt was tiers of lace trimmed with sequins and fell to a cathedral train. Her bouffant veil was held secure with a crystal crown and she carried an arrangement of white carnations centered with a white orchid corsage.

Rosalinda Hernandez of Unionville, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Joanne Hoppe of Cass City, Eva Arrebalo of Unionville, Shirley Hollister and Mrs. Ruth Ann Donnelly of Caro.

They wore floor-length lace cage dresses with nylon sheer overskirts styled with scooped necklines and short sleeves. Matching hats with veils completed their ensembles and they carried bouquets of yellow mums.

Donald Hoppe of Cass City, brother of the groom, was best man and groomsmen were Richard Doot of Troy, Mitch Donnelly of Caro, Kenneth Poyit of Clawson and Stanley Hoppe of Decker.

A reception was held in the evening for 250 guests at the VFW Hall in Caro.

Following a wedding trip through northern Michigan and Canada, the couple will live in Troy, Mich. The groom is employed at Gemco-Electric, Clawson.
