Budget confirms

School to end year in red

Cass City Schools will be in the red at the end of the year, according to the budget submitted Monday night at the annual meeting at the school. Few persons attended to hear that the school, as previously announced, will end the 1967-68 school year with expenditures exceeding revenues by some $20,000.

The budget reflects the continuing march of spiraling costs at the school.

Total costs for operating last year were $694,553.32 and pro-posed expenses for the 1967-68 year will probably be $845,789, a boost of over $150,000.

Dems slate fall rally at Vassar

R. L. Hill, Democratic county chairman, announced this week that a fall rally has been scheduled at the Vassar Community Building on the Cork Pine Fairgrounds Saturday, Sept. 30, at 8 p. m.

Billie Farnum, deputy national chairman in charge of party organization, will be the guest of honor, and an eighth district meeting will be held.

Following the meeting a dance will start at 9 p. m. Food and refreshments will be served and tickets will be available at the door.

New plant's open house set at Gagetown

Bill Stein, plant manager of the new American Cyanamid Company at Gagetown, an-nounced this week that the new plant would be holding an open house Friday at Gagetown. Highlight of the day, Stein reports, will be a free beef bar-b-que from 11 to 2 p. m. In addition, he said, coffee and tours will be held all day and door prizes will be given. We'll have a gift for the wife, too, the manager said. The Gagetown plant is the first opening in Michigan by

Much of the increase will be for instruction, including administration. The increase followed another sharp jump in the preceding year.

1967-68 proposed. . .$590,-859.00.

Administration costs rose with the cost of teaching salaries. Two years ago the total costs were $29,572.27. Last year the figure went to $33,-759,94 and the budget calls for $41,430 this year. While the school will be in the red at the end of the current year, Supt. Donald Crouse said that it would not be necessary to ask for more money for operation this year.

We expect to be able to make up this deficit from anticipated increases in tax revenues in future years, he said.

ANNUAL MEETING

Interest in the annual meeting was about on a par with previous years. Besides members of the school board and other members of the school faculty, just eight persons attended.

A complete financial state-ment for 1966-67 appears in next issue of the Chronicle.

Loot vacant home of Cass City resident

Mrs. Iva Pearce, Cass City, reported to State Police at Bad Axe that a vacant house she owns on McTaggart Road, seven miles southeast of Bad Axe, was entered by thieves who stole several antique articles.

Missing are two loveseat chairs valued at $200, three table oil lamps and a robe. The home has been vacant for three years and entry was made by breaking a window.

THE BRIDGE COLLAPSED and the truck went down, but the

No interest; cancel adult school classes

There will be no adult classes at Cass City Schools this year due to the lack of interest shown by area residents, Dick Carroll, teacher, announced this week.

We had seven or eight sign for a couple of different courses, he explained, but it takes 10 to get started. It is possible, Carroll con-tinued, that adult courses could be offered in the courses if be offered in the spring if interest perks up.

The nearest adult training program for area residents now is Caro where Joseph D. Klobucher, adult education director, announced that the courses there will include 18 different classes including seven classes not previously offered.

Included are many business courses and several athletic courses.

Registration will be Oct. 5 from 7 to 9 p. m. and Oct. 7 from 9 to 11 a. m. Brochures describing the courses are available at the Caro school.

Wilson mute on barn arson charge

Five arraignments and one sentencing highlighted Tuscola County Circuit Court cases before Judge James Churchill Tuesday.

Bruce Wilson, Farmington, one of four boys and young men accused of being involved in a series of barn burnings in Tuscola county appeared before the court charged with arson for the burning of a barn July 22 in Elmwood township belonging to Thomas Smith. Wilson stood mute when arraigned and a plea of innocent

Yes, the department will authorize drainage work on a participation basis and no, there is no assurance that work will be done in the next planning period which lasts for five years and starts in 1972, and yes, a 48-foot wide strip of asphalt will be placed as a maintenance measure next year. The answers which have been issued by department authorities with monotonous regularity for several years now as the village makes repeated requests for assistance on the road, poses nothing but a giant headache for Cass City. The drainage of Main street under consideration runs west from West street for 2,500 feet and could only be installed under highway department specifications with the village paying 60 per cent of the cost and the highway department 40 per cent.

At one time this cost was figured to be about $25,000 .now it is estimated at $31,000 to the village. When the road is resurfaced next year, the 22-feet that the highway department will not pay for on each side of the roadway will cost the village an estimated $4,000. Upson reiterated what other officials had said previously... M-81 does not have enough traffic to warrant any road work. He said that the standard calls for some 9,000 cars daily proofreaders like Melva and

OTHER BUSINESS

The council was notified that Mrs. Barbara Marshall, clerktreasurer, will be leaving the community and the search is on for a replacement.

A discussion about extending Ale street (running to park) to make an outlet to the Orr's Woods property was held.

Good spellers have always been a major mystery to me. My wife and Mrs. Melva Guinther, who work in the office, seem to spell by using a method that smacks of alchemy, witch-craft and some unexplainable sixth sense. It's uncanny.

Often they will spell a word right even when they have never seen it and it's not a part of their everyday vocabulary. I was reminded of this the other day when I looked up the word proceed....just to be sure it had one "e".

I was almost positive because numerous times in the past I had checked precede and found that in this word one "e" is correct.

Just why two words that are pronounced identically except for the "pre" and "pro" should be spelled differently defies rational explanation. . . . and keeps editors dependent on Dorothy, the unsung heroes of newspaper, large or everv small.

Pay final respects to Dr. McCoy

Funeral services were held Wednesday for Dr. Ira C. Mc-Coy, 78, of Port Austin, prom-inent Thumb physician who died early Monday at Harbor Beach Community Hospital.

Dr. McCoy practiced in Cass City for some 20 years before moving to Bad Axe in 1934 where he was a chief of staff of the former Bad Axe General Hospital. He was a member of the staff at Harbor Beach Community Hospital and Hills and Dales General Hospital in Cass City. He practiced in Bad Axe until two years ago when he moved his practice to Port Austin, He had lived in Port Austin since 1947.

YOU CAN'T SEE THIS from the road and when it comes to view your first impression is that someone is building a road starting and ending in the middle of nowhere. Actually, it's the new ditch that will be used for the sanitary landfill dump south of Cass City. The refuse will be piled into the hole and then the dirt on the side pushed over it in accordance with State Health Department regulations.

A comprehensive plan for operating the new Cass City landfill dump was presented to the council Tuesday night at its regular session at the municibuilding by George Dillman and Bernard Ross who had obviously spent a lot of time working with the problem before making recommendations.

In the report one fact stands out sharply. The dump was costly to build and will be costly to operate. The cost is especially big when compared to the money needed to run the previous dump.

The two men said that it would cost an estimated $3,800 annually to maintain the dump, figuring the cost of the trench that is expected to last two years and cost $1,280 to dig; the prorated costs of a used bulldozer for around $10,000; $1,650 for men to cover the debris daily, and $500 for maintaining the road to the site. village.

These costs do not reflect the capital investment that the village has in the new facility. use the facility. Village President Lambert Althaver estimated that the village will have in excess of $25,000 spent for the dump and that this cost should be considered when computing a charge for use of persons outside the village. A realistic figure of costs including capital was set at about $5,000 yearly.

CHARGE TO USERS

A lengthy discussion of the amount to charge persons outside the village brought no solutions. It was thought that Elkland township would be asked for a flat annual fee based on the operating cost and the number of dwellings in the township

There are still several items to be done to complete the new dump. The gate to the road must be erected, an entrance from the south blocked and turn around at the dumping location completed.

Formal approval from the State Health Department is still pending and must be secured before the facility can operate.

note he bums a copy of the Wall Street Journal off'n somebody there. You can always tell when he has been to the bank on account of he brings a few $10 words to the session at the store. Saturday night, fer instant, he reported we was approaching a stage of "hospitalitis" Ever time Ed goes by the fellers he had saw this piece in the hospital by 1970 and $70 by 1975. Ed said he had a heap of respect fer doctors and the medic perfession but they was gitting to be victims of our new Great Society thinking. He claimed the more it cost the faster doctors was sending folks to the hospital. He said in the old days, if a feller was sick, the doctor would come by the house onct a day, give him some pills and a heap of good advice and the feller would be up and back at work in a week. But now, allowed Ed, if a feller had roomatism in his big toe the doctor would put him in the hospital and keep him in what they call "intensive care" fer a week.

Zeke was agreed with Ed, said the more it cost at the hospital the more they was gitting overflowed. He perdicted the time was coming when the only feller past 50 year old in a community that still had his appendicks, gall bladder and tonsils would be the doctor. And another thing, said Zeke, we was starting to suffer from what Ed and the Wall Street Journal would call "postalitis."

He had took note where it was going to cost 5 cents to mail a post card. He reported this piece in the papers said the Post Office Department was now running $1.2 billion in the red and letters was going to cost 6 cent and air mail 10 cent. He was of the opinion we might have to call off the war agin poverty fer about two year to bail the Post Office out from closing down complete. Personal, Mister Editor, I figger Ed and Zeke was just trying to make big talk lamenting and complaining about these matters. Both of them was covered with Medicare and "hospitalitis" is the least of thein worries. Farthermore, ain't neither one of them mailed a post card in 10 year. They want today at yesterday's prices. In a manner of speaking, what they would like to do is to steal home with their foot on third base.

Sept. 30 to Oct. 7 is national 4-H Club week when authorities call attention to the various aims and projects of the clubs. In Tuscola county, interest is high in horse clubs. . . with seven different clubs now active.

Cass City horse lovers are banded together in the 4-H Wranglers Club under the direction of Alfred Seeley, Lloyd Bryant and Charles Peasley.

The club offers an opportunity to learn about horses and how to show them. Horses take a lot of time and the big event of the year is the Tuscola County Fair when members have an opportunity to show what they learned during the year and win a possible chance to show at the 4-H State Show. Youngsters can join the local club by contacting any of the three leaders.

Zonta's 10th anniversary attracts 135

An estimated 135 persons attended the 10th anniversary dinner of the Zonta Club of Cass City Sunday afternoon at Sherwood Forest Country Club in Gagetown.

Guests from Cass City and widely scattered Michigan communities were present to hear Mrs. Ann Pellegreno tell of her flight around the world, tracing the same route that Amelia Earhart used 30 years ago and flying a 30-year-old plane identical to Miss Earhart's.

Mrs. Pellegreno illustrated her talk with slides of the flight.

Past President Helen Baker presented a very interesting talk on the history of the club and its achievements, both civic and international during the first 10 years, and stressed that the club is looking ahead, not backwards. The tables were decorated with autumn floral arrangements. The speakers' table was decorated with a beautiful arrangement of yellow roses, the club flower, in memory of the first president, Mrs. Elizabeth Walpole. Representatives from Zonta clubs of Milford, Grand Rapids, Alpena, Saginaw, Bay City, Big Rapids, Port Huron and Ann Arbor attended.

Mrs. Lucile Bauer was chairman and Mrs. Marie Krueger, cochairman, of the banquet. A hospitality hour preceded the banquet and a Zonta member from Cass City was hostess at each table during the dinner. Souvenir programs featuring an original painting by Mrs. Bauer were given to guests.

Hawks bow; face Sandusky Friday

is whether or not the Hawks can reverse the trend apparent in the first two games this year and bounce back with a victory in their home opener. The Hawks will be pitted against Sandusky, one of the weaker teams in the Thumb B Conference, and should be in the game all the way.

Coach John Bifoss is hoping to have both Ron Weippert and Tom Fulcher back in action Friday. Both boys were injured for the game with the Hatchets and both are regulars on offense and defense.

But even with everyone healthy, it is doubtful if Cass City would have been a match for Bad Axe last Friday. The 🖡 Hatchets jumped off into an . early lead and won about as they pleased, 42-6.

Although Cass City picked up only six points, Bifoss said that he thought the offense was starting to come around. But our defense let us down, he continued. They were not nearly as tough as they were in the opener against Oscoda.

It didn't take the visitors long to start the scoring. Don Schelke went 12 yards on a quarterback keep play and the parade was on.

Bill Sweeney broke off tackle and dashed 72 yards to pay dirt. Don Wernette blocked the try for point.

Schelke capped a drive by going two yards on a quarterback option.

The Hatchets opened the second quarter by scoring via the

The question facing the Cass airways. Schelke tossed to Dave City Red Hawks Friday night Connors in a play that covered just four yards for the score.

The Bad Axe defense accounted for the fifth touchdown of the first half a few moments later. Gary Shedd intercepted a. Hawk pass and scampered 20 yards for six more points, Cass City made its only marker following the cheap Hatchet touchdown.

Veteran guarterback John Maharg tossed to Paul LeValley in a play that covered 23 vards. The Bad Axe offense let up a little in the next two periods. They scored once in each of the final two frames. In the third period, Bill Sweeney went 23 yards off tackle for a score and Schelke passed to Dave Connors in another four-yard pass play to end the less steel visible everywhere. As for the new Detroit Edison plant itself, $20,000,000 isn't much if said quickly.

Where the figure becomes impressive is during the tour of the plant where dozens of items of equipment are in evidence and it is realized that many such items represent individual expenditures of $50,000 to $150,-000, with some of the larger running considerably items higher. Despite the patiently detailed explanations by the Edison operating engineers who accompanied the guests, the tour is apt to be a bit confusing to the non-technically minded. What shouldn't be confusing at all is the realization of the extent to which Detroit Edison has gone in making its sizable wager upon the economic future of the Thumb.

Weight watchers! calories still make difference

By Mrs. Ann Ross

Weight watchers are watching experimental results of eating the usual three meals a day versus increasing the number of meals. They have hopes that someone will uncover more information leading to "how to stay slim" without strenuous dicting.

Mrs. Ann Ross, Thumb extension home economist, reports findings from one of the recent research projects which shows that the number of times per day you eat makes no difference in your weight providing the total number of calories throughout the day does not increase.

In an effort to see what happens to weight gains when you get off the three-meals-a-day routine, U. S. Department of Agriculture nutritionists ran a study of different meal patterns. For 20 days, 15 girls were grouped into three different controlled eating routines. One group had two light meals plus a heavy meal each day. Another group had three equal meals per day. The third group divided their eating pattern into six meals each day.

Everything was rigidly controlled -- no snacking between meals -- with the total day's food exactly the same for the three-meal or the six-meal system.

Results for the girls? No difference as far as routine of eating was concerned in regard to weight. As long as they were all consuming the same total amount of food (calories) during the day, there was no one day's meal pattern that made a difference in weight gain.

Benefits of waterfront improvement are numerous. Restoration of natural beauty, water conservation, increased property values and expansion of community park and recreation facilities can result. And such community effort brings a feeling of community accomplishment and pride. The idea has already caught

Ever since I took up residency in Tuscola county people have told me that there are no termites here. In this same period of time I have inspected wood damaged by insects identified as either powder post beetles, shot hole borers or the large carpenter ants. But never did I find termites.

Last week a resident of Caro made a call to my house and handed me a small glass jar and asked, "what are these?"

Inside the jar was what appeared to be pieces of packed wood powder and small white ants about three-sixteenths of an inch long.

It has been a long time since I was shown what a termite looks like by my father but once you see them you never forget. Upon identifying these insects as termites I asked the person where he discovered them and found out they were in the main beam holding up his house. In our further conversation it came out that he had never had any idea of their presence until this beam started to crack open just recently. This is the usual characteristic of termites. One very seldom sees them until the wood they inhabit fractures or breaks open. One does not see holes on the outside of the wood material infested with termites. Neither does he see debris from their feeding around the wood and this lack of visual evidence makes them hard to discover.

I can remember visiting a house with my father where the piano had fallen into the basement. The termites had weakened the floor joist, sub-floor and finished floor beyond its supporting capacity.

Why don't termites go m and out of wood like other wood infesting insects? Termites cannot stand light or hot conditions tolerated by other members of the ant family. They live in the dark and have their nests containing the queen in the ground and they move from the nest to their food supply entirely concealed inside wood or clay tunnels between wood materials. If the wood they inhabit breaks open and exposes them to light, they leave guards migrate to other areas of the wood and/or seal up the break. African termites in some regions build their nests on top of the ground and these nests are covered with mud which bakes almost as hard as concrete. If breaks occur they patch it up.

at the break and the rest either

How does one look for termite infestation? I would begin by looking for a small mud tunnel coming from the soil outside the house and proceeding up the outside foundation wall to the sill plate. I would look at the base of any wood posts supporting a beam in the house. I would even drill a few small holes at least half way through this post and tap the post with a hammer, Hollow wood will drill easy and sound hollow to tapping. I would examine sill plates that are in contact with the ground or on cracked foundations. I would be real suspicious of any beam end which extends to the outside of the house.

If I found termite damage or termites I then would start probing in all directions away from the area and all wood in contact to the infested area to learn the extent of infestation. If I found termites I would locate a reliable exterminator and let him go to work with high pressure equipment to impregnate the wood with a preservative insecticide.

The best preventative measures when building wood houses are to place a layer of sill seal and a continuous sheet of metal flacking under the sill plate; use steel or impregnated beams and posts. Rest the posts on a concrete pad. Pm glad tain in a war torn Germany, An Operational Necessity by Gwyn Griffen is yet another following the conclusion of the novel of World War II, part war. The book's suspense builds of the vast stream that seems up toward the end of the tale. to tell of another aspect of the I found that without any familiarity with the German lan-War. While the reader finds the opening pages of the book just guage, the story was sometimes a little tedious, this is because slow-moving.

The "author brings to life the crew members of the German submarine, the sailors of the torpedoed French ship, and the representatives of avenging Allied justice: Gaston, the lone survivor of the doomed freighter: Kielbasa and Kummerol. the German officers who fired on the survivors and then tried desperately to get to neutral territory and safety; Captain Kaye, the American-British barrister (lawyer) who defended the two Germans at their trial."

This novel is more than a novel. It is also a serious attempt at analyzing the moral responsibility of a ship's officers toward both their own crews and men, and toward the officers and men of any enemy ship they encounter during the war. In a brief (but all too vivid a scene,) we attempt to live like the poor men of the freighter, trying to get together with our fellow crew-mates, who then realize that the German skipper is systematically firing on all the survivors he can find still alive in the water. Later, so skillful is Gwyn Griffen, the author, we discover that we become sympathetic with the German skipper as we begin to understand his problems; not the least of which is being a welltrained and experienced commander, saddled with a crew which is almost totally inexperienced and youthful. In the final pages of the book, we are led with the two condemned men to the execution place. Here they are fed for the last time as the executions are postponed for two hours, because some officers who wish to witness the execution are delayed because their luncheons take over-long.

If you enjoy reading novels about the war, as I do, you will enjoy this one, at the same time judging the actions for yourself. I found this novel seriously asking, in the hell of war, just how one does tell right from wrong?

Gwyn Griffen has written a total, to date, of seven novels, "The Last Lamp Burning" the most recent with the exception of "An Operational Necessity." I hope for selfish reasons that many, many more find their way from his pen and mind, to my desk. Opera

Well, to start the week off with a bang, the sophomores chose their class rings Monday. Well, they tried to choose them anyway. They had a choice of two rings, a round one which was made especially for Cass City since we have a new high school, and a standard ring which is similar to rings of former years. As it turned out the class was undecided and couldn't break a tie vote. It was decided that they would vote by a secret ballot Friday in their English classes. The "conservative" per cent of the class won out - the standard rings were chosen. Also on Monday the seniors met to choose their caps and gowns for graduation. They de-" cided to get navy blue gowns. The girls' will be navy blue with a white collar, and the guys' will be navy blue without a collar.
