March vote to decide fate of Owen-gage school

An estimated 125 members of the Owendale-Gagetown School District attended a meeting of the boards of the Huron and Tuscola county Intermediate School District Monday at Owendale to discuss the proposed dissolution of the district.

Minor damage in 2 area accidents

Two property damage accidents were investigated during the week by the Cass City Police Department.

Thursday cars driven by Ernest Junior Detgen of Bad Axe and Mrs. John Haire, 44, of Cass City collided at the corner of Oak and Main Streets.

Police reported that Mrs. Haire was attempting a left turn from the right lane and turned while the Detgen car was attempting to pass.

Damage to the Haire vehicle was estimated at $350.

There were no injuries.

Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock cars driven by Robert Michael Donahue of Cass City and Malcolm John Leitch of Uby collided.

The Leitch vehicle backed into the Donahue car while attempting to leave a service station at the corner of Main and West streets.

The left door of the Donahue car was damaged.

Holcomb suffers 2nd serious injury in fall

Gordon Holcomb of Deford is recovering at Hurley Hospital in Flint from serious injuries suffered in an accident at his farm home last Wednesday.

Holcomb was climbing in the hay mow in his barn when a couple of bales of hay gave way and he fell through a chute to the cement floor.

He suffered a broken collarbone, three broken ribs and numerous cuts and bruises.

The accident occurred just a little over a year after Holcomb was seriously injured in a fall from a corn crib at the farm on Christmas Day 1967.

Holcomb was in very critical condition for a week and spent some four months recovering from the fall.

Members of the family say that he was expected to be released from Hurley Hospital Wednesday.

The announced purpose of the meeting was to vote to transfer land to Cass City and Sebawaing districts.

One authority said that he felt that discussion indicated that some of the electorate was ill informed about the project as outlined by the Owen-gage Board, despite several public meetings and letters to each property owner in the district.

Officially, the board voted to transfer $4 1/2 million to Cass City district. A motion to transfer property to the Sebawaing-Unionville district was tabled because of a legal technicality.

The transfer to Cass City will become effective only if the voters okay the break-up of the district in a special election Mar. 10.

Because the transfer to Sebawaing would include less than 10 per cent of the district any action by the board would be immediately effective.

For this reason the board tabled action pending the outcome of the vote with the intention of voting the transfers if the entire proposal is approved.

Several of the persons attending the session were against a break-up of the district.

They maintained that a questionnaire submitted by the Owen-gage board which showed voters favoring a district split was inaccurate.

These persons base their claim on the way the questionnaire was worded, saying that it didn't offer a choice of not going to any other district.

William Scott, superintendent of schools, says that basically the problem is not enough children in the district. The $12 million valuation is as big as Millington, he said.

The voters will have to decide, he said, whether they want to continue this essentially high cost of education.

There was little controversy over the new school boundaries as outlined. One property owner objected to transferring into Cass City district.

However, if he were not placed in Cass City district, authorities said it would create a "property island" not adjacent to any other district. For this reason his property was left in land slated for the Cass City district.

This particular owner does not live in the district and will not have a vote Mar. 10.

Sheriff reports record case load in '68

The case load at the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department increased again in 1968, according to Sheriff Hugh Marr's report to the Tuscola County Board of Supervisors.

One of the grimmest statistics was the fatal traffic accident record. A total of 38 persons died on county roads in 1968, double the state average and an all-time record for the county.

Although accidents increased, fewer tickets were issued. The sheriff pointed to a lack of manpower for patrol as the reason for the decline.

The department was also hampered during the year by the increase in the work load in other departments.

The number of arrests jumped eight per cent, the report said, and the jail population was at an all-time peak. A total of 729 prisoners were received, an increase of 179 over 1967.

A record number of licenses were issued by the drivers' license bureau. A total of 15,229 licenses were issued, up 1,447 from the previous year.

The sheriff points with pride to the report on criminal in-

Mike Corl, 10, conscious for 1st time Friday

Although still in intensive care at St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw, Mike Corl, 10, is now showing steady improvement, his parents reported Tuesday.

Mike was injured Jan. 4 and it was not until last Friday that he recognized his parents who kept a constant vigil at the hospital bed.

Since Friday there has been steady improvement. Tuesday he said no, the first word he had spoken in 16 days.

One of the most critical days for the youngster was the sixth day after the accident when a blood clot developed and emergency surgery was required.

Bone was removed from the skull to relieve built-up pressure.

Mrs. Corl reports that a skin graft will be required on the boy's broken left leg which is otherwise healing well.

How long a road is ahead for complete recovery is still unknown. It depends upon how Mike responds to treatment.

In any case, the outlook is much brighter than it was a week ago.

Miracle recovery recalled

Tom Sinclair: few jobs for injured

It's been over 12 years now since Tom Sinclair, 35, was shot and critically injured in a hunting accident near Newberry but the effects still linger on.

And Sinclair is speaking of more than the bullet that brutally ripped through his body at the hip on that bleak November day in 1956.

True, he still suffers from accident-related kidney trouble, but physically he has improved greatly . . . financially it has been another story.

And it's not only the cost of hospitalization that proved to be a disaster.

That Sinclair recovered at all following the deer camp shooting was considered a minor miracle. But minor miracles take time and money.

After the shooting, he was rushed to the hospital in Newberry for two weeks, the start of a long, slow, agonizing period of recovery.

"I can't tell you much about the first two months I spent at University Hospital at Ann Arbor," Sinclair said. "I was under heavy sedation all the time."

During the year at Ann Arbor, he had so many operations that they blend together. Must have been 12 to 15, the first time, he recalled.

Then after I'd been home for awhile I went back for another couple of months for more surgery.

But it turned out well when you consider that at first I wasn't expected to live and later was told that I'd never walk again, he smiled.

But the smile turns to a frown when Sinclair recalls the economic effects of the mishap.

Sinclair isn't thinking totally about the hospital costs when he says this. "The truth is that people take advantage of you when you are down," he explained.

When I finally was able to go to work again, I found nearly all of the doors closed to me because of my accident. I finally went to work for $25 a week.

He also tried to prepare himself for new work by attending business college for a couple of years. . . but it was still hard to find a job. Because of the insurance, firms just don't want to take a chance, Sinclair explained.

FRIENDS HELP

Sinclair estimated the cost of hospitalization at over $20,000. Insurance covered about $8,000 of the costs and another $12,000 more was paid by the county.

Even with this cost paid I don't know how we'd have gotten by if it hadn't been for all our friends and neighbors who held benefits for me to help pay some of the out-of-pocket costs connected with the accident. We'll always be grateful for this, Sinclair said. Someday, he continued, I'd like to be able to pay the county back for its help.

Although the road is still far from smooth today, things are looking up for Tom. Physically you see no traces of his accident although he is probably a little thinner than he would like to be.

He has a steady job in a

FROM THE Editor's Corner

Some things don't change much.

The other day a story hit me, rummaging through the 1951 files for information ---- the year that I arrived at the Chronicle.

The first story covered was the annual village caucus. Among the various items of business was the appointment of a committee, headed by C. R. Hunt, for the improvement and surfacing of Main Street.

Change the committee members and the story could well be printed about a council meeting held last month or next month or probably next year.

For Main street still is in need of drainage, curb and gutter and hard surfacing now, much the same as it was 18 years ago.

And chances for Main street improvements today fail to look very much better than they did then.

They rate as poor to none at all, despite constant agitation to the State Highway Commission by village authorities at periodic intervals over the years.

Since most readers know the position the Chronicle takes about open meetings of persons handling our money, it is not surprising that several pointed out to me the stories that recently broke in the dailies explaining the open meeting laws that went into effect Jan. 1.

This interest is appreciated, but the law as stated will not keep elected officials from clouding decisions behind closed doors.

We all tend to think that the scandal that recently broke in suburban Detroit, where insiders bilked the taxpayers out of thousands of dollars, couldn't happen here.

But the big city has no monopoly on the misuse of funds. It's happened in Sandusky and Vassar in recent years.

The best safeguard is a concerned citizenry.

All public meetings will be as open as you insist they be . . . and no law in Lansing will change it.

I've got a friendly bet with a local businessman concerning the upcoming request for more school operating funds.

He says it won't pass, I say that it will. I'm basing my opinion on the premise that the school needs the money and, more important, that this need will be shown to the taxpayers.

As hard as it is to come up with more money from tight budgets, taxpayers do it . . . but only after they are convinced that there is no other alternative.

Just saying it doesn't make it so, but the school board and school authorities seem determined to get the facts before you before the vote.

As we see them now, the facts indicate that without the additional four mills the school operation cannot survive without curriculum cuts.

Meanwhile, resolve to find out for yourself just what the financial situation is at the school today and base your vote on what you discover.

CHIEF CARL PALMATEER shows samples of pills taken from the office of Dr. K. Ivan MacRae.

Follow leads in narcotics theft from doctor's office

Cass City Police Chief Carl Palmateer is investigating leads in the theft Friday of a large quantity of narcotics from the office of Dr. K. Ivan MacRae in Cass City.

Stolen were drugs described as depressants. Palmateer explained that when combined with alcoholic beverages the drugs are potent and dangerous.

A few of these pills combined with alcohol could be fatal, he said.

Taken from the office were 11,000 phenobarbital pills, 2, 000 meprobamate, 1,000 hyphen-la and 600 sodium pentobarbital pills.

Overlooked in the theft were more potent drugs and $10 in cash, Palmateer said.

The thief gained entry by breaking the window of the door.

ARRESTED SATURDAY

Dave Hampel, 28, of Mayville, an advertising salesman in Cass City, Caro and Sandusky, waived examination in district court on charges of unlawfully driving away an automobile from the parking lot at the Holiday Inn in Midland Saturday.

Midland City Police said that the car was owned by Emerson John Heath, St. Clair Shores. He had stopped to register at the hotel and when he returned his car had disappeared.

Heath's 12-year-old son was sleeping in the car when it was taken and was still asleep when the car was located at an exit of I-75, just a short distance from the Inn, police said.

Hampel was found along I-75 a few minutes later. He was released after posting $750 bond for his appearance in circuit court.

No date for the arraignment has been set.

Snowmobilers gird for action program

What to do about snowmobiles in Cass City will be the principal topic at a special meeting of dealers and owners Jan. 23 at 8 p.m., at the Cass City Gun Club, according to an announcement this week by interested persons.

Sponsors of the event are trying to get as many owners as possible at the meeting to discuss a program for the use of the snowmobiles.

Interested persons were galvanized into action by a report that new regulations will be adopted by the Cass City Village Council concerning snowmobile control.

Several complaints have been registered over the use of the machines at Cass City Recreational park and on village streets.

At the Gun Club meeting the owners and dealers hope to develop a program to turn over to the council that includes suggestions for the use and regulations of the popular machines.

However, it could be just possible that the meeting will be held too late. The Gun Club confab is slated on the same evening that the council meets.

Village President Lambert Althaver confirmed that a discussion of snowmobiles is on the agenda for the regular meeting.

In addition to compiling snowmobile regulations, the group at the Gun Club hopes to start initial plans for a snowmobile trail on Gun Club property, spokesmen said.

Willy completes advanced water treatment course

Nelson Willy, superintendent of the Cass City disposal plant, recently completed an advanced laboratory course in coliformetry and bacteriological analyses at Gull Lake.

Willy was awarded a $96 grant from the Water and Wastewater Equipment Manufacturers Association to attend the course.

Locally, Willy said, the information obtained in the busy day-long session will be very valuable when new equipment is added at the plant.

The course included lectures by visiting experts and field demonstrations, Willy explained.

THE ECONOMIC EFFECTS of a tragic mishap 12 years ago still linger for Tom Sinclair, now of Vassar.

One For The Road

This taut tale is haunting

By Dan Marlowe

A book comes along occasionally which lingers in the mind long after reading it. Two months ago I read Geoffrey Household's new novel, DANCE OF THE DWARFS, published by Atlantic-Little, Brown. Household is one of that small group of Englishmen who specialize in the adventure novel (as opposed to the suspense novel or the spy novel while still retaining the best elements of each). Alastair McLean, Hammond Innes, and Eric Ambler and other practitioners in the field whose names come immediately to mind.

Household's ROGUE MALE and WATCHERS IN THE SHADOWS compare favorably with the best output of his contemporaries, but his latest release rises above the genre of the adventure story which he has mastered. DANCE OF THE DWARFS is an adventure story, but it is also much more. It is at one and the same time a love story, a morality tale, and a depiction of the inner resources of the human spirit.

The setting, while exotic, is deceptively simple. The background against which the action takes place is the llano, the junction of the grassy plains of Colombia and the jungles of the upper Amazon. A young English agronomist comes to the place to manage an experimental agricultural station. The economy of the area is so bleak that the few people with whom he comes in contact are primitives in the truest sense of the word. Although they will not speak of it openly, their lives are governed by superstition, evil spirits, fear, and the sinister dancing dwarfs of the title which are said to haunt the locale.

The young Englishman's first experimental planting is burned out by the most severe local drought in a generation, and he has time on his hands. He employs it by attempting to run down the origins of some of the superstitions of the natives. His explorations lead him into the jungle, revolver in belt and rifle in hand, and his repeated trips into that fearsome prehistoric maze form the backbone of the story.

He speedily loses the sangfroid and the rationale of the educated, civilized world. In some of the finest wordage ever devoted to words craft, he becomes both hunter and hunted. He explores the nature of fear, not only his own response to it but the deep well-springs that modern man has covered over with the veneer of civilization.

This taut tale is told in prose admirably suited to it. There isn't a wasted word. Tersely articulate, it moves the reader smoothly into a world he doesn't know but which he recognizes instinctively as a world from which he came.

Read Geoffrey Household's DANCE OF THE DWARFS. Haunt is a strong word, but this is a story that will haunt you.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By H. M. Bulen

What was the most dramatic basketball game ever played? A group of sportswriters voted and have selected the game that decided the 1957 NCAA championship, when North Carolina beat Kansas 54-53 in triple overtime. . . . Kansas, led by Wilt Chamberlain, was heavily favored. . . . But, North Carolina came from behind, sent the game into the third overtime, and scored two points in the last seconds to win. . . . That's been voted by these experts the greatest basketball game in history.

Can you imagine one man leading a major league in batting NINE straight years! . . . Did you know one player did just that. . . . Ty Cobb led the American League in batting EVERY year from 1907 through 1915. . . . To realize how unusual that is, consider the fact that today it's rare when a player leads the league even two straight years.

Did you know there was once a boy who was a big star in the big leagues while he was still in high school! . . . It happened to the all-time great pitcher, Bob Feller. . . . He joined Cleveland in the summer of 1936 between his junior and senior years in high school and became one of the top stars in the American League that summer by striking out 17 men in one game.

Religious ratings of our presidents

By Rev. R. J. Searls

Who can really judge how religious have been the presidents of these United States? Abraham Lincoln is classified as one of the "most religious," although he was not a church member. He did worship in various churches, however. Seven other presidents also were unaffiliated with any church. Others belonged to a wide span of denominations; 6 Episcopalians, 6 Presbyterians, 4 Unitarians; 2 Dutch Reformed, 2 Disciples of Christ, 2 Baptists, 1 Congregationalist, 1 Quaker (2 including Nixon) and 1 Roman Catholic.

Lyndon Johnson, although a member of the Disciples of Christ Church, worships in different churches. Perhaps because his wife is Episcopalian, he frequently attends Episcopal services. And, because his daughter Luci is a Roman Catholic, probably accounts for the fact that he also attends worship in Catholic churches.

President Nixon, a non-pacifist Quaker, attends Methodist and Congregational churches in Washington and is known to be a close friend of Billy Graham, who all but endorsed him during the campaign.

The presidents rated "most religious" (by Edmund Fuller and David E. Green in their book, "God in the White House") are: John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, John Quincy Adams, Lincoln, Andrew Johnson, Rutherford B. Hayes, James A. Garfield, Benjamin Harrison, William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson.

"Moderately religious presidents," they claim, were George Washington, James Madison, James Monroe, Andrew Jackson, Martin Van Buren, John Tyler, James K. Polk, Franklin Pierce, James Buchanan, Grover Cleveland, Calvin Coolidge, Herbert Hoover, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry S. Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson.

The first major test of the right of a civilian to claim selective conscientious status has resulted from the refusal of a young New Yorker to be inducted into the armed services. To be defended by the American Civil Liberties Union is Andrew H. Steart Jr., a graduate of Yale University and a Presbyterian. He believes that he cannot in good conscience support the use of United States military force in Vietnam, and cannot serve in the Army in any capacity which assists this endeavor. This is just one of many court actions where we see the whole draft machinery challenged to a degree never witnessed legally before.

On the lighter side: The harassed mother of seven was asked by a friend, "with three boys and four girls . . . If you were to have another child, what would you want the next one to be?"

"A grandchild!" was the prompt reply.

Definition: ADOLESCENT: "A youngster old enough to dress himself if he could just remember where he dropped his clothes."

You may be muttering: "I wonder why those kooky Searls have not taken down their outdoor Christmas scene?"

The answer to the question is quite simple, actually, and goes like this: "Whenever the remaining snow disappears to the point that the figures can be taken inside and the electrical wiring can be dismantled safely!"

A quick ride through the village demonstrates that quite a few others' displays were caught outside when the snow started and they have not had a thaw large enough to take the figures carefully inside.

Lutherans to provide shelter in crisis time

Members of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church voted recently to offer church facilities to persons who have been stricken by weather, fire, tornadoes and similar tragedies.

The church's rest rooms, kitchen facilities and shelter will be offered to persons forced from their homes.

The action was voted following the recent ice storm when homes were left without heat, water and electricity.

Persons needing assistance are asked to call Church President Milton Hofmeister or Pastor Richard Eyer.

In times of wide-spread crisis the announcement will be carried over Caro and Bad Axe radio, the pastor said.

Agent's Corner

If you intend to lose those extra pounds you added with holiday feasting, now is the time to activate your New Year's resolution to include fewer calories but more nutrients in your meals.

Begin by eliminating candies, jams, jellies, rich desserts and pastries. Concentrate on plain, wholesome foods. Eliminate the frills both in main meals and in-between snacks. They're usually loaded with calories and contain few vitamins and minerals.

Emphasize plain roasted, broiled or simmered meats instead of those fried and smothered in gravy. Vegetables may have been served with rich cream sauces or in fancy casseroles over the holidays. Try heating and serving them with just a touch of butter for flavor, or experiment with herb seasonings.

Tossed salads take on a new flavor with a dash of lemon juice instead of calorie-laden salad dressings.

For a quick energy pickup in the middle of the afternoon, try a small glass of whole or skim milk instead of the usual coffee with cream and sugar or soft drink. In fact, a half-cup of skim milk has even fewer calories - and many more nutrients than a cup of coffee with two teaspoons of sugar and a tablespoon of cream, or a small bottle of pop.

However, if you must munch at coffee break, why not reach for cheese, sliced apples, orange sections or half of a banana instead of sweet rolls or donuts?

News From District Court

Edward John Billicki, Deford, paid a total of $25 fine, costs and judgement after he was ticketed by Sandusky State Police Jan. 10 for driving with obstructed vision.

Glen Ray Phelps of Saginaw was ticketed by Bad Axe State Police for disregarding a stop sign in Elkland township. He paid a total of $25 for the infraction.

Hazel Irene Wilson, Caro, ticketed for driving with an expired license, paid a $15 fine, costs and judgement. She was ticketed just outside the village limits by Bad Axe State Police.

Lorenz Charles Bauer of rural Cass City was ticketed for exceeding the nighttime speed limit by 10 miles per hour, by Bad Axe State Police. He paid a total of $20.

Fred Lynn Henderson, Kings-ton, was ticketed by Sandusky State Police in Novesta township, for failure to yield right-of-way, causing a property damage accident.

Magistrate John Bowles said that the total fine and costs was $30. Normally, tickets issued in a property damage accident cost $50, Bowles explained, but because vision at the corner was obstructed by snow the fine was reduced.

Gary William Mollendorf paid $20 fine and costs after he was ticketed by Cass City Police for failure to stop in an assured clear distance ahead.

Too close for comfort

Here's a photograph taken from a kayak. You don't bring a ship this close to an iceberg! For underwater the tentacles of this cruel, cold monster may reach out a mile or more.

Life for some folks is a succession of narrow escapes. But these are adventures we can do without. They don't prove us bold sailors. They simply prove us poor navigators.

Frightened men sometimes turn to religion as a refuge when dangers—moral, spiritual and physical—loom too close for comfort. God does not fail us in crisis.

But the every-day function of faith is to pilot men on a true course through the sea of life. The Church cannot sweep away icebergs. It warns us of their whereabouts and helps us give them a wide berth.

Pastor's survey explores reaction to churches

BY PASTOR RICHARD EYER

There are at least a dozen churches within a three mile radius of Cass City. The last census describes Cass City as a town of 2100 people. Divide 2100 people among a dozen churches and you have what some call "a religious town." Because of the great number of churches in the area it has caused a question to rise as to how much of an influence all this religion has on day to day issues of life. The following article is an attempt to evaluate attitudes toward this question, in the Cass City area.

The first question asked of a dozen or so people interviewed was, "What Is The Church?"

Behind the Counter

Diabetes

More than 1.5 million people in the U.S. most of them women — have diabetes and don't know it. And there are about 2.5 million known diabetics in this country, with a disease for which there is no known cure, but which can be controlled to some extent.

An analysis of U.S. Public Health service records, suggests that the type of person most likely to be diabetic is an elderly woman with a weight problem. Nearly six out of 10 known diabetics are women, and on the average, they have more severe cases than men.

Diabetes becomes more common with age, with a peak in the 65-to-74 age group. In most cases, diabetics aren't diagnosed until a person is 45 years or older.

There's a definite relationship between diabetes and obesity. One recent screening showed diabetes occurring seven times more often among overweight people, than among normals.

The most frequently reported symptoms of diabetes are extreme fatigue, leg pain and eye trouble. Other symptoms are sudden weakness, frequent urination, thirst, loss of weight and abnormal appetite.

Diabetes can be detected with a relatively simple, quick and painless test. If caught early, the disease can be controlled with drugs and diet, preventing further complications.

AN EVALUATION

Questions and answers mean nothing unless they are interpreted. The following is an interpretation! It should be said first of all that the sample interviewed was not random. People who were known to be outspoken, or people who had "dropped out" of their church, or people from as many different denominations as possible were selected. This is no criticism of those interviewed. It is simply a way to find people willing to share their views.

In answer to the first question (see question), it seemed that those who defined the Church did so in terms of it being something outside themselves. Most thought of it as something imposed or handed down from a small ruling body, whereas most of those interviewed were members of that church. Only one or two thought of the Church as themselves. In order to legitimately criticize the Church, it seems to me that you have to begin with a definition of the Church which includes the one criticizing it. Likewise when asked about the influence or degree of involvement of the Church, many thought "The Church" was NOT influential and therefore either withdrew from it or attacked it. One person felt that "all the churches should unite into one," but had mentioned earlier that he had withdrawn from his. Unity is not served by withdrawal, it seems to me.

The second question asked was, "What Responsibility Does The Church Have To The Community And World Around It?" In answer some said, "It should be involved in social action," a positive emphasis. Someone else said, "It should keep the Negroes in their place," a negative emphasis. In either case, involvement! Another person felt the Church could hardly avoid involvement in such touchy issues because it is the nature of Christians to become involved in the needs of others. In regard to the often-heard phrase, "separation of Church and State," one party said, "the Church should not control the State, but neither should it separate itself from the problems of the State and civil affairs."

The third question was asked in two parts: One, "What Don't You Like About The Churches?" Two, "What Do You Like?" In answer to the former, the lid blew off! Here opinions varied from personal attacks on a congregation to broad statements against organized Christianity. "The churches in Cass City are unorganized and weak," "There's too much bickering in the churches," "One person felt the minister of their church was afraid to say what he might meet disapproval from the ruling body. Another felt that their church made no impact at all; "if it burned down it would make no difference to the community," because it wasn't having any influence now. Others said, "it's too ritualistic," "resists innovation," "not flexible." Someone said that the church is "too materialistic," "seems like the only time everyone turns out is when there's a new building to be built."

In answer to, "What Do You Like About The Churches?" ... (not many comments made!) One person said that the church's influence was being felt by virtue of recent discussions on social issues in Bible Classes. Another felt that the ministers in town are friendly and "ecumenical" in their sick calls. Other than this the "Do Likes" were relatively few, which only goes to show that human nature does find it easier to say what it DOESN'T like than what it DOES!

There were some good criticisms made that the churches ought to take heart. The charge that the churches are materialistic was novel, but true. Members of churches reading this may recall the times when during some kind of building program, everyone was involved, but soon after drifted away. It makes one examine his goals in such undertakings. When the subject of Church and Social Problems was brought up there was sometimes a blank stare, which one person described in this way: "most people don't see any connection between race relations (for example) and religion." How sad! How true!

There are times when every institution comes under attack. The "institutional church" is under attack now. This is nothing new, but it is a fact! It might be good for every member of every church in town to discuss the three questions mentioned earlier in this article in a Bible Class, Ladies Group or Church Council. Instead of answering what you DON'T like about the article, try to answer what you DO think is legitimate criticism.

Rep. Spencer pushes for Monday holidays

State Representative Roy L. Spencer (R-78th district) is trying again to give Michigan residents more long holiday weekends to enjoy. Spencer has introduced a bill (HB 2019) in the State House matching new federal legislation which will place four additional holidays on Monday starting in 1971. Spencer originally championed the idea here two years ago, before Congress took up the fight.

The holidays affected would be Washington's Birthday (third Monday in February), Memorial Day (last Monday in May), Columbus Day (second Monday in October), Veterans Day (fourth Monday in October), Labor Day will remain the first Monday in September, providing at least five long holiday week ends each year. The observance of other holidays would remain on the present dates.

SHERIFF'S REPORT

Investigation activities. The report claims a better than average solution rate on calls received this year.

A bright spot in the law enforcement picture, according to the report, is that the crimes against persons that were of a violent nature remained low. Crimes against property remained at a high level.

There were no homicides in 1968, but rape cases jumped from two to four. Assault cases dropped from 53 to 41, but sex offenses went from two to seven in 1968.

Marr says crimes caused by drinking remain a major problem for the department.

Look at big picture Gilhart urges Rotary

Jim Gilhart of Caro, an enforcement officer for the Department of Natural Resources in Tuscola County, urged Cass City Rotarians to look at the big picture in conservation.

Speaking Tuesday noon at the New Gordon Hotel, Gilhart said that if as much interest could be generated in air pollution and water pollution as there is in the antlerless deer season, many conservation problems would be solved.

Given clean water and air, he said, the department could manage the game for the greatest productivity for everyone.

That doesn't mean, he stressed, that we would be back to the "good old days". Everytime a new housing development is erected, new highways constructed and land diverted from its natural state more and more hunting land is devoured. More and more people have to share the remains as our population grows, he explained.

To outline the big picture, Gilhart pointed out that already some of the water we have must be reused to meet the demands.

Without proper sewage treatment, he said, you are in effect drinking septic tank waste. He also charged industry with not facing up to its problems. The answer is money, he said, and the government must take the lead.

But even greater is the need of an aroused public that cares more about anti-pollution than it does about seeing that a law is passed that allows a $5 bounty on foxes, Gilhart believes.

Bean growers slate meet

A meeting of the Tuscola County Bean Growers Association will be held Tuesday, January 28, at 1:30 p.m. at the new Akron-Fairgrove school, located 1 mile north of Fairgrove, according to Paul Findlay, president of the association.

Navy and colored beans are grown in a rather limited area, part of which includes Tuscola County. There are differences of opinion among bean growers but one thing they all agree on is the need for a strong market and a price that will give the producer a fair profit.

If this is to be accomplished, bean growers need to know what programs can do this job for them and what you as an individual bean grower can or must do to make these programs work.

"If It Fitz..."

Don't avoid the snake house

BY JIM FITZGERALD

This week's column may sound silly at first, about snakes and stuff, but I hope you serious-minded readers will wade through the nonsense because I may close with a moral.

(If I don't, I'll just come back and erase that first paragraph. I do that frequently. Being a columnist is really not tough once you learn how to cheat.)

Anyway: My wife is scared nutty of snakes. Not the ordinary fright common to many of us, it doesn't have to be a live snake. When she reads Life magazine, she has one of the kids inspect each page before she will look at it. "That stupid magazine is always printing pictures of cobras," Pat explains. When a snake shows up on our TV screen, she gets in the car and drives 15 miles outside of town. That kind of fright.

When we were first married, I tried to drag my wife into the snake house at the zoo. "Just look at a snake; maybe touch it. You'll see it is harmless and then you won't be scared anymore," I explained wisely.

"You make me look at a snake and I will kill you," she said. "And I will never talk to you again, either."

Well, her threat was only half-bad and I had to think about it awhile. I finally chose life and said to heck with her, I give up, let her hate snakes. There aren't many in our neighborhood anyway.

But there was one thing I forgot. Children follow their parents' example. I could stand one irrational fear in the house, but now I have a couple of daughters who also hate snakes. And they'll pass the stupid fear onto my grandchildren. And so on through the centuries. It is easy to see why there are so many nuts in the world. There are not enough people dragged into snake houses.

These snake thoughts occurred to me the other day when my wife mentioned another of her fears. She is afraid of getting mugged in Detroit. This was on the day the newspapers front-paged the slugging of Ray Eppert in an underground garage in downtown Detroit. He used to head Burroughs Corp. and has much money. It is a lot bigger news when a rich man gets robbed. You can read about Joe Slob, who was robbed of his last $5, on page 82. I decided it was time to take the family into downtown Detroit again. Snakes are one thing; people are another. I don't want my kids to avoid Cobo Hall for fear they'll get slugged. Despite what you read in the papers, millions of big city people never get mugged. So we saw the Pistons lose at Cobo and then we got lost in Cobo's underground garage. Honest, I didn't plan it that way, but it turned out fine.

It seems there are 2 garages under Cobo - one for the arena and one for the hall. We parked in the arena garage and then spent 45 minutes looking for our car on 3 levels of the hall garage. The crowd thinned out quickly and our voices were beginning to echo. Mother and daughter Chrissie were obviously nervous. "Don't worry, Mother," said Eddie, the wise-guy son, "I just saw a sign that said no mugging allowed in this area." (He's not afraid of snakes, either).

Unfortunately, many people associate muggings with Negroes. There are several valid sociological and geographical reasons why a high percentage of Detroit muggings are committed by black people. Besides, mugging is a petty crime and most white crooks can't be bothered. They are too busy with big crime which is still segregated.

The important thing is that children learn black is not automatically bad. I want my kids to be cautious of dark alleys. I don't want them to flinch every time a Negro approaches. There was obviously a lesson to be learned that night under Cobo Hall.

My wife taught it, God bless her. She asked a stranger for directions and he guided us to the right garage. The stranger was as kind as he was black. Moral: Don't be afraid of a snake unless you are positive it is poisonous. And don't hate a garter snake simply because it's the same color as the rattler that bit Aunt Minnie.

Next summer I will get the family lost in the zoo. And I'll ask a snake for directions.

The time you save playing it safe is time well invested.

Men who are industrious and sincere will have easy sledding on their way to success.

Hawks fall to Marlette; look for win with Vassar

The best chance that local fans will have this season to see the Cass City Red Hawks win a cage game at home comes Friday when the cagers entertain the Vassar Vulcans.

The Hawks' lone victory of the year came in the opening game of the season against the Vulcans. Since that time, Cass City has had rough sledding and Vassar has been victimized by all of their opponents.

Cass City will be trying to break a six-game losing streak, against the Vulcans. The team's latest loss was at Marlette Friday when the Red Raiders outplayed the Hawks on route to a decisive victory, 68-48.

Marlette used a strong second half to break open a tight game to register the Thumb B Conference victory.

It was nip and tuck for the first two quarters as Marlette went in front by just a bucket, 14-16, at the end of the first period and then duplicated the advantage in the second quarter with a 9-7 edge to go in front 23-19 in the low-scoring first half.

The difference in the game was in the final two quarters. The Hawks continued to creep along at the first half pace while the Raiders started to find the range and posted a creditable second half scoring pace.

The issue was decided by the end of the third quarter as Marlette posted a 20-11 advantage and a 13-point lead.

The Hawks increased the scoring pace in the final period, but so did the Red Raiders as they added to their comfortable margin, 22-16, in the final eight minutes.

A glance at the statistics shows that Coach Jim Wynne's charges deserved to lose. They were out-rebounded 46 to 35. Joe Hillaker nabbed 14 rebounds for the Hawks while sharing scoring honors with Rob Alexander, each with 13 points.

Marlette converted 23 of 67 field goal attempts for 34.5 percent while Cass City hit just 16 of 50 attempts for 32 percent.

Following Friday's game against Vassar, Cass City will hit the road for a non-league tilt against Crosswell-Lexington.

The Pioneers are rated as favorites to top the Hawks.

JUNIOR VARSITY

Coach Dennis Rienstra said that his team showed improvement in a losing effort against the undefeated Marlette JV, 56-48.

He said his charges showed improved team play, hustle and scoring Friday. Scott Guernsey poured in 28 points to lead Cass City. Dan Calster scored nine and Kim Hopper, seven.

Hawk Frosh drop pair to league foes

Cass City's Freshmen cagers lost a pair of games during the week, dropping close contests to Sandusky and Caro. Wednesday, Jan. 15, the Hawks were topped by the Redskins, 50-43. Coach John Bifoss said that the club was unable to score consistently in the middle two periods. Sandusky was rugged on the boards, the key to victory for the winners.

Sandusky led 24-19 at the half and 35-23 at the third quarter mark. The Hawks reduced the deficit in the final period, but the Redskins were in control all the way.

Tim Knoblet scored 14 points and Greg Eshelman, 9, for Cass City. Dave Duetsch netted 22 for Sandusky.

The Hawks fell to a last half rally by the Caro Tigers Monday and dropped a 46-42 decision.

Cass City started fast, posting advantages in both the first and second periods. At the intermission the Hawks were in front 26-19.

Coach Bifoss said that the Hawks missed many easy shots after setting up plays. Craig Guernsey scored 15 to lead Cass City. Jim Wentworth counted 11 and Louis Salas was credited with 10 points. Dan Davidson scored 17 for Caro.

Next game will be Thursday when the Hawks host Marlette.

How to save battered trees

By Alfred P. Ballweg

Care of Damaged Shade Trees

"Care of Damaged Shade Trees" will be a topic of discussion for a long time before the wounds of the recent sleet and wind storms are repaired and healed over. Nature has a way of healing many of its own wounds but there are many things that man can do to smooth out the wounds and keep insects and decay organisms from entering.

In the first place heavy pruning to get the broken and splintered branches away is most important. In some of the larger trees this may require a professional tree repair man or tree doctor. However, there will be many small repair jobs that we can do ourselves with some care and know-how. Some of these minor repairs can easily correct defects that may require major tree surgery if allowed to wait.

Deciduous trees or shade trees may be pruned at any season. Where bleeding occurs it is not seriously harmful to the tree, but it usually causes concern on the part of the tree's owner. Healthy trees usually stop bleeding after leaves develop. If trees continue to bleed, they may be infected with a bacterial disease called "slime flux."

Planes and other needle-leaf evergreens of this class may be pruned in late winter, in spring before or at the time growth begins, or in mid-summer. Evergreens of the arbovitae class may be pruned or sheared at any time. In the North, however, late-summer shearing may stimulate new growth that is susceptible to freeze injury. The basic tools for pruning are - hand clippers, pruning shears and pruning saw.

Tree wounds should be treated. Small cuts usually heal quickly. Large cuts - over one inch in diameter should be treated to prevent entrance of decay or disease while the wound is healing. For best results, treat the wound with asphalt varnish containing an antiseptic. The antiseptic prevents spread of harmful organisms that may contaminate the treating material. Asphalt varnish containing antiseptic is available at some garden supply stores. If you cannot get a dressing containing antiseptic, preferably use ordinary asphalt varnish. But before applying plain asphalt varnish, swab the wound with alcohol or coat it with shellac. Apply dressing as soon as the wound is dry. Most pruning wounds can be painted as soon as they are made. One coat of paint will last 2 or 3 years - long enough for small wounds to heal. Needle-leaf evergreens usually seal small wounds with natural gums and resins. If a resin coating forms over the wound, the wound need not be painted. If no resin forms, treat the wood same as for deciduous trees.

Trees add beauty to our homes, towns and country sides and too often we take them for granted. Let us keep in mind the wounded or injured tree we take care of today may survive for someone to enjoy tomorrow.

Michigan State University's pesticide analytical laboratory studied more than 5,000 animal, mineral and vegetable samples last year in order to determine the level of pesticide residue and what harmful effects this residue might have.

Hugh Brenneman Liver transplant very difficult

There have been several attempts at transplanting livers in humans but few long-term successes have been recorded.

Liver transplantation has not reached the same stages of success as has kidney transplantation. The first problem is, of course, that a person has two kidneys but only one liver. This automatically rules out anybody volunteering to donate a liver. The only source of an organ would be patients who have just expired. This would then be transplanting an organ from an individual who is not related to the recipient. So there is a greater problem in controlling rejection in this unrelated situation.

Better means to control rejection are needed.

A second problem is preservation of the organ. It's only been recently that the doctors have learned how to reliably preserve an organ for a matter of a few hours while it is being transported. In the case of the kidney, the transplant can be carried out in 30 minutes to an hour and there is not so much to worry about in preserving the organ. In the case of the liver, it's a much more complicated procedure and it takes several hours to transplant. The fact that it is now known how to reliably preserve the organ during this period of time has permitted surgeons to go ahead and try to transplant an organ such as the liver.

A third problem is the means of supporting the patient. In the case of the kidney there is an artificial kidney. In the case of the liver there is no artificial liver and the transplanted organ has to function properly because there is no means to support the patient in the post-operative period.

Because of this, the liver transplant can only be done in very selected individuals whose liver function is good enough to withstand an operation. Yet, the patient must be one who without the transplant would die within a few weeks or a few months. This automatically confines the operation to a very select and small group of patients.

The liver is also a difficult organ to transplant because the liver has three veins, one artery and a bile duct - five structures - which have to be anastomosed or joined together in the recipient, whereas in the kidney only three structures must be joined together. And these liver structures are smaller and more pliable than the usual artery in the kidney or the vein in the kidney.

Unfortunately, the liver happens to lie in a difficult place, high up in the right upper quadrant of the abdomen. So it's in a more difficult location than the kidney in which to operate.

The liver is a very complex organ and there hasn't been much of a breakthrough toward making an artificial liver. The liver is a filter in a sense and the body does get rid of some of its waste products through the liver, but it also synthesizes or manufactures many vital substances which the body needs. Many of these substances have not even been identified and it is not known how to synthesize them or manufacture them outside the body. So the liver has a dual problem which is another reason why a successful artificial liver has not been invented.

It's interesting that the Judicial Council of the American Medical Association has developed some ethical guidelines concerning organ transplants.

According to this opinion, "A man in the final analysis, must make a decision whether to permit or to perform a transplantation procedure. The decision must be a reasoned, intellectual decision, not an emotional decision. As medical science advances, and as technological skill increases the ethical question involved may become increasingly complex and difficult."

The Council went on to point out that the physician must take care to protect the rights of the donor and the recipient and provide a prospective donor with the same care usually given others being treated for a similar injury or disease.

In the case of the transplanting of a single organ the Council specified that the death of the donor shall have been determined by at least one physician other than the recipient's physician.

Full discussion of the proposed procedure must be had with the donor and the recipient or their responsible relatives or representatives. The point emphasized is that the advancing of scientific knowledge must always be secondary to the physician's primary concern for the patient and even then only after careful evaluation of other possible therapy and by physicians who possess special medical knowledge working in institutions with superior and adequate facilities to protect the well-being of the parties to the procedure.

RECEIVING CASH and trophies in corn contest Thursday were Allen Merchant, left, and Dave Milligan. Making the presentation was Les Profit.

Local pair area winners in Klein's corn contest

Allen Merchant and David Milligan, two local area farmers, were among 16 winners picking up award checks at the sixth annual Michigan 150 Bushel Corn Contest Banquet held at the Bavarian Inn in Frankenmuth Thursday.

Merchant received $150.00 and a plaque for his yield of 165.19 bushels of dry shelled corn per acre on a 20 acre field, placing him fourth in the contest. To obtain this yield he used 350# of Klein's 7-28-14 Super with 1% zinc for starter, and sidedressed with 150# of actual nitrogen. The weed control was Atrazine and the variety was Pioneer 3956.

Milligan's 16 acre contest field grew 151.8 bushels of dry shelled corn per acre. For his starter he used 550# of Klein's 8-32-15 with 2% manganese and 1% zinc, and sidedressed with 125# of actual nitrogen. Atrazine was the weed control. He grew both Pioneer 3773 and Michigan 402 and was presented a check for $75.00 and a plaque also.

The top producer in the corn growing contest was Mahogany Farms of Williamston, whose 40-acre contest field grew 186.24 bushels of dry shelled corn. Their fertilizer program consisted of plowing down 120 pounds of actual potash and 46 pounds of actual phosphate, using 150# of Klein's 10-40-8 as starter, sidedressing with 200# of Ammonia and using Atrazine for weed control.

The second highest yield in the contest was obtained by Albin Lothschultz of Conklin with 182.33 bushels of dry shelled corn per acre on a 28 acre field.

Clayton Klein, President of Klein Fertilizers, gave the welcoming address, in which he announced that from now on the contest will be called the Michigan 200 Bushel Corn Contest. His company will continue to award $150.00 for 150 bushel yields as they have in the past, but they will also award $1,000.00 in 1969 for the highest yield in the contest if over 200 bushels of dry shelled corn per acre.

Dr. Paul Stangel, agronomist with International Minerals of Skokie, Illinois, was the featured speaker at the Banquet. Dr. Stangel was formerly on the staff at the University of Wisconsin.

The Michigan 200 Bushel Corn Contest is sponsored each year by Klein Fertilizers, Inc. with manufacturing facilities at Cass City, Fowlerville, Shepherd, Perrinton and Marne.

John Haley dies in Caro Facility

John Haley, 95, resident many years of the Thumb, died Friday, Jan. 17, in Tuscola County Medical Facility, Caro. He was a patient there three years.

Son of the late William and Elizabeth Haley, he was born Dec. 11, 1873, in Canada.

He and Miss Elizabeth McComb were married Feb. 26, 1900, at Sandusky. She died Nov. 12, 1958.

Mr. Haley is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Edward Rusch of Cass City, a grandchild and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held in Little's Funeral Home Sunday.

Rev. Richard Spencer, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, officiated. Burial was in Novesta Cemetery.

A recent Michigan State University survey shows that out of 375 Michigan farm machinery dealers, only 26 have programs to rent or lease equipment. Of these, 18 rent farm machinery on a short-term basis, and only eight offer both short and long-term arrangements.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Pretty soon, allowed Ed Doolittle Saturday night during the session at the country store, we'll jest start next year this year and the Government will be withholding our wages two year ahead. Ed told the fellers that he had took note these days everthing is coming sooner but the birthdays of the wimmen-folks.

This was still the first month of the year by the calendar, said Ed, but fer most folks everthing from taxes to draft notices is being figgered fer next year. Things has been gitting faster and faster ever since they come up with the fisacle year where everbody starts next year in July. Ed said a heap of them Government agencies now has set the start of their year back to April and March and we've run so far ahead with the national debt we're spending what the next four generations will make.

What got Ed to thinking about speeding everthing up was this propergander victory the communists won in Vitnam when they announced a Christmas ceasefire in the middle of November. Ed said we and South Vitnam was caught by surprise on account of we hadn't planned to announce our Christmas ceasefire until after Thanksgiving. Ed said it wouldn't surprise him if our side don't announce a spring offensive early in February to beat the communists to the draw.

The fellers was general agreed we might as well call this 1970 and wish everybody merry Christmas. Farthermore, Zeke Grubb said he was in favor of having ceasefires fer all holidays and bunch up all the holidays fer the next five years. By the time we run out of holiday ceasefires, allowed Zeke, maybe we can figger how to do more talking and less fighting. Clem Webster said if it wasn't that Ed allus celebrates Abe Lincoln's birthday two weeks in February, we would announce our Easter ceasefire now and git ready fer Fourth of July.

The trouble with all this, Ed said, is that folks try to rush up what they like and slow down what they don't like. Fer instant, Ed said he knowed a feller that got the first 1969 car that come out last September, but he borried the money so he don't make no payments until this month. Most folks is glad to trade in their old car, but they ain't so glad to pay fer the new one, was Ed's words.

Ed said we got credit in this country that revolves so fast pretty soon we'll meet ourselves coming back from the welfare office. We got credit cards fer everthing but paying off bills of other credit cards. And the bills we slow down with credit cards has a way of catching up with us all at once, said Ed.

Mister Editor, I ain't shore if most of us is two year behind in our paying or two year ahead in our buying, but personal I left the session of the mind that we ought to slow down our wants and let our means gain on us a little.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Mrs. Smith's kindergarten-tenders have just finished reading their book, "Before We Read," and in art they have been busy constructing little snowmen.

Mrs. Bailey's first and second graders, who can boast of a perfect attendance record since the snowstorms, have just learned a poem entitled, "The Ten Little Snowmen."

When Miss Stauffer returned from Florida, she brought back a number of interesting curios to show her students. Among the items were: sand dollars, raw cotton, spanish moss, angel wing shells, starfish, and an air plant.

Her class is now working on their second product map for social studies.

If ever you are walking down the hallways at Evergreen and hear a class that sounds as if it were having fun--it's probably Mrs. Gray's fifth and sixth grades. The students have a PING PONG table in their room!!!

EVERGREEN 4-H NEWS

"Evergreeners" which includes moms and dads, are invited.
According to custom, the girls are to bring the lunches and the guys are to buy them. The fun will begin at 8:00 p.m.

W. Campbell Elementary

Mrs. Tibbits' third graders have learned to do a lot of new things recently, such as how to regroup numbers for addition in arithmetic. As the third graders put it, "Now we're even learning how to carry numbers from one row to the other!"

The class has also learned how to use the apostrophe and have made creative winter scenes with colored chalk.

C. C. H. S.

It was a difficult task for teachers and students to "put in" an entire, five-day week of school last week, after attending only one and a half days out of the three previous weeks!

Early last Monday morning (January 13th) the work really began! With exams scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday of this week and an entire week of school lost, the teachers panicked and gave tons of homework and tests to make up for lost time.

Not only was last week a homework make-up week, but it was also a week for having events that were postponed from the previous week.

TRYING TO BOOST the morale of the Hawks Friday at Marlette was the school Hawk sponsored by the Pep Club. Under all those feathers is Cheryl Kozaan.

Monday the debaters went to Mt. Morris. Cass City's teams arrived late, so the Junior Varsity teams didn't debate. The Varsity teams were defeated by Mt. Morris. Other events which took place a week late were the Cass City-Frankenmuth basketball game and a Freshman basketball game against Sandusky, Wednesday night. Cass City lost both games.

The students in Mr. Crouch's sociology class were divided into study groups before Christmas vacation. Study topics included: alcoholism, smoking, narcotics, drugs, marijuana and heroin. Last week two of the groups presented their reports.

One group, whose topic was narcotics, presented an ethics discussion panel on Tuesday and on Wednesday presented a skit which portrayed the various methods of obtaining and using narcotics. The cast included:
Linda Brown - narrator
Pam Dobbs and Marsha Parrott - drug addicts Martilee Turner - policewoman

Lynn Haire - a pusher
Carla Calka - a nurse.

On Friday a panel discussion on marijuana was held.

Mr. Tom Jones, a graduate of C. C. H. S., attended the Sociology class Thursday and spoke with the class about social work. Mr. Jones works for the Office of Economic Opportunity in Caro.

A student council meeting was held Wednesday. The annual talent show, the student-teacher basketball game, which is to be held February 18th, and Twirp Week were among the topics of discussion. Karen Gaffney and Barb MacRae were appointed chairman and co-chairman, respectively, of the Twirp Week committee, which will also include all class vice-presidents.

It was suggested that the school present an evening talent show to enable the public to see our high school's talent. A committee was appointed to look into the possibilities.

Thursday morning home-rooms were held. In addition to reading the minutes from the council's meeting, each senior homeroom had to elect three representatives to serve on a senior class council. The newly formed council will be similar to the student council, and its officers will be the senior class officers. The purpose of the council is to get more representatives of the class in on some of the decision-making that is usually left to the class officers. Members of the council are: Gerry Miller, Tom Kolb, Joe Mark, Linda Wright,
Kathy Ziemba, Gary Vollmar,
John Golding, Tom Fulcher,
Vivian Englehart, Lori Smith,
Jean Russell, and John Novak.
Officers are: Carla Calka, Ellen Morgan, Sandy Schuette and Lynn Haire.

CLUB NEWS

The Ski Club had a meeting after school last Friday and is planning a trip to Silver Knob on January 26th.

TID BITS

Friday of last week was the deadline for the senior's third payment of $10 toward the trip to New York City. Eighty-two class members plan on attending the trip.

Mr. William Ferguson, band director, cracked a bone in his ankle while roller skating; therefore, the band students had a study hall Wednesday through Friday instead of band.

For the past couple of days,
the members of the journalism class have been interviewing Cass City merchants as a class assignment.

The junior class officers had a meeting Thursday to discuss money raising projects and preliminary plans for the Junior-Senior prom.

I wish to thank Nora Massin-gale and Janet Auvil for being Evergreen School's news reporters. They did a good job!
Next semester two new reporters will be chosen.

Meet Carmen Danyau, C.C.- H.S.'s exchange student from Chile. Carmen came to Cass City last Tuesday Through the Youth For Understanding Program.

From Santiago, Chile, Carmen is 16 years old and will be a junior there next year.
In Chile she attends an all-girl school in which she carries thirteen courses on a rotating schedule. (No study halls!)

Carmen's father is a citrus farmer. He owns 150 acres of citrus and 100 acres of hills, on which he grows grapes for wine. She has one brother and two sisters. Her brother is learning farming in California;
one of her sisters is married, and the other lives at home.

Carmen and her family live in the city of Santiago and visit their ranch on vacations.
Everyone in her family has a horse and each of them is an excellent rider. One of her sisters recently won a national championship in Chile for horsemanship. Carmen has been taking jumping lessons for a year.

Along with horseriding, Carmen enjoys competition in volleyball, the javelin, the discus, the shot put, and hurdle races. She placed second in volleyball competition in Santiago and won a prize for the javelin.

Carmen is classified as a junior in Cass City and is taking English, Home-Economics
III, American History, biology, and speech.

She speaks very good English.
(In Chile everyone is required to learn English beginning in kindergarten.)

Carmen will be in Michigan for six months.
