About 150 property owners quizzed the Owen-Cage School Board Tuesday night and found themselves as divided on the question as the board itself.

The Owen-Cage board will place on the upcoming March 17 ballot the question: "Shall the detachment of the following listed properties, made by the Huron and Tuscola Intermediate Boards of Education meeting jointly Jan. 20, 1969, from Owen-Gagetown Area School District, Huron and Tuscola Counties, Michigan, to the Cass City Public Schools, be approved?" The ballot then commences to list the properties.

If the vote is successful, the properties on the ballot will be transferred June 6, 1969.

A second step would involve transferring parcels of land to Unionville-Sebewaing with the last step an annexation of the balance of the school district to the Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port School District.

If the vote is defeated, the Owendale-Gagetown Area School District would continue over recent hikes in property taxes. "The taxpayers are tired of paying such high taxes," echoed one. He demanded to know why Owen-Gage was spending a higher-per-pupil rate than other area schools.

Allen Fennell reported to the group that if annexed, Owen-Gage would continue to pay its own bonded indebtedness, as would the Cass City District. He said that only when Cass City school paid off the Owen-Gage indebtedness, would the Owen-Gage district have to participate in paying back Cass City's.

The meeting was very orderly and was conducted without interruption. Fennell reported the meeting went quieter than he expected it would. The next meeting is slated for Friday, Feb. 28.

community." "How many of us will be brave and stand up to say," echoed another.

Donna Salcido asked, "Could we have any say at all?" Laurie responded, "They said they wouldn't give us a (school board) seat."

"One of the Lakers said they would resign," said one citizen. "And what'll happen when his term runs out," responded Ed Good, past Gagetown State representative: "The big areas would run it as they always do."

One retiree said, "When you lose your school, people aren't going to give as much for your property." "They just want our valuation," said Good.

"We have a clean record here," said one. "That's because we have good people here," said Good.

Owen-Gage teacher Lawrence Stevens said "We have more students in college and less dropouts than any school in the area (percentage-wise)." He added, "After you have worked for a school 12 years,

WSC hears of South America

Mrs. Joseph Crawford presented the program about South America when the Woman's Study Club met at the home of Mrs. Keith McConkey Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 18.

Only about one-third of South America is in the temperate zone, with some of the greatest rainfall in the world in the jungles of Brazil and the driest areas in the deserts of Bolivia and Chile. Mrs. Crawford said, the Amazon River, the world's largest river, has a volume equal to that of the Mississippi, Missouri and Nile rivers combined. Only the Nile is longer.

The people of South America are generally of European extraction, Indians or Negroes.

Among the products of South America are minerals and nitrates, especially precious stones as diamonds, emeralds and gold.

Venezuela ranks among the first in oil wells while Argentina manufactures leather goods and is noted for its cattle ranches.

Though the lack of good roads has been a handicap in S. A., Mrs. Crawford said, new roads are being built and tourism has brought greater wealth to many areas.

Mrs. Edward Baker gave a short history and description of the S. S. Hope which is just now returning from Ceylon.

The S. S. Hope is a People to People Health Corporation. It is equipped for both hospital and dental care and Drs. and dentists rotate in service.

Mrs. Baker said that the S. S. Hope has produced more good will than anything else. Funds are being raised now for a second S. S. Hope.

Mrs. Fred Maier showed a card she had received from the White House in recognition of a copy of the prayer of St. Francis Assisi to President Nixon wishing him all that was expressed in the prayer.

Mrs. Geo. Murray, first vice-president, presided at the meeting. Mrs. Paul Murray, conservation chairman, reported on new seeds which will be a boon to farmers and conserve food.

Roll call was some fact about a South American country.

Council briefly weighs more Main street parking meters

A parking problem on East Main Street conjured visions of more parking meters in Cass City Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the village council at the Municipal Building.

It was the only spark in an otherwise calm, peaceful, mundane session of the village fathers.

The discussion was ignited when Trustee Ed Golding Jr. said that he had received a complaint from King's Cleaners that cars were parking in front of the establishment for lengthy periods, blocking access for customers.

Saturday, March 1 - Mrs. Mary Nitz will sell farm machinery, household goods and miscellaneous items six miles west, and two miles north of Harbor Beach.

Tuesday, March 4 - Don Stambaugh will sell cattle and farm machinery at the place located three miles west and one and three-quarters miles south of Ubyly.

Saturday, March 8 - Stanley Glaza will sell farm machinery, milking equipment and feed at the farm on Verona Road, located three miles east and one and a quarter miles north of Ubyly.

Wednesday, March 12, Arliss Kraft will hold a farm machinery sale at the place located three miles east of Bay Port on Henne Road.

Saturday, March 15, Julius Houchoff will sell personal property at the place located one mile west and one and a half miles north of Wisner.

Wednesday, March 19, Alex Balzer Sr. will hold an auction at the farm located three miles west of Unionville on M-25 to Ringle Road, then a half mile south.

Saturday, March 22, Ken Kohl will hold a farm machinery sale, located four miles east, two south and 3 1/4 east of Cass City.

Saturday, March 29 - John Labeski will sell cattle, milking equipment, farm machinery and feed at the farm, three miles west and one and one-quarter miles north of Ubyly on Bad Axe Road.

Some of the congestion is caused by Buleen Motors next door, the council felt, and it was decided to speak with the agency's management in an attempt to keep the parking area clear.

President Lambert Althaver said that after a warning was issued perhaps the cars should be marked and ticketed for parking in excess of two hours. Police Chief Carl Palmateer said that he would attempt a campaign, but indicated that marking tires for overtime parking had proved to be an inadequate solution in the past.

Meters for the area were suggested but it was decided that if the north side of the block were metered, the south side would have to be metered also and it was felt that there would not be enough revenue to make them self sustaining in the area.

In other action concerning meters the council authorized five per cent of total collections for counting and wrapping the pennies and nickels from meters.

The chore is handled by the Pinney State Bank which has installed counting machinery for the job. Total revenue handled by the bank is estimated at $6,000 yearly.

The charge was made retroactive to Jan. 1, 1969.

DOG CAMPAIGN

A campaign to pick up dogs will get underway immediately, it was decided. The chore will be handled by Chief Palmateer and the Cass City Police staff.

Dogs caught will be sent to the county dog pound in Caro where they are kept a minimum of five days before being shipped to be used for experimental purposes.

STREET PROGRAM

Art Atwell, a South Oak Street resident, appeared before the council to see if Oak, south of Main, was to be curbed and guttered and eventually paved. If not, he asked for a thin coat of asphalt as a temporary measure.

President Althaver said the program for the spring had not yet been decided. He asked that trustees come to the March meeting prepared to discuss the year's work on local and major streets.

He explained again that Oak, south of Main, had been high on the list of projects in Cass City but that several property owners had objected to signing a petition (including the Chronicle) for various reasons.

STREET LIGHTS

Back in the limelight (again) were street lights for Kennebec Drive.

Trustee Rawson, a resident of the street, said that an informal poll showed that it would probably be possible for owners on the street to raise money in a fund to pay for the cost of ornamental lights, rather than the regular lights used in the remainder of the community.

We need to know just how much is needed, he explained, so we can take the proposition to the owners.

A check will be made with Detroit Edison for definite comparative cost figures.

Pastor competes for Haiti trip

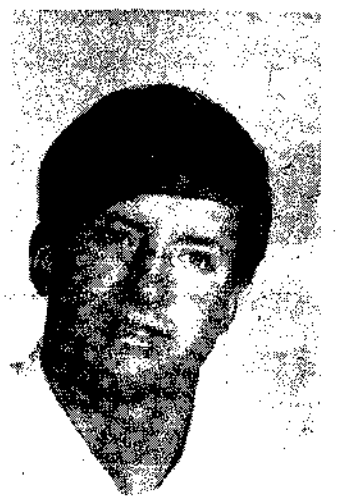

Because the Cass City United Missionary church recorded a huge 30 per cent increase in Sunday School attendance, the local pastor, the Rev. J. E. Kidney, may win a trip to Haiti.

In a contest that starts Mar. 2 and runs through April 6, the church that shows the best total church program: Sunday School, morning worship, Sunday evening and mid-week prayer meeting—will earn for its pastor the free trip.

Because of the booming attendance at the church, the local pastor feels that he has an excellent chance to win. The church is located at 4449 Koepfgen Road, west of Cass City.

Rabbit tracks

BY JOHN HAIRE

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Sin, sex and savagery, you'll find them all in Dan Marlowe's new book, "One Endless Hour," due on the bookstands in March. But it's an interesting yarn in the Marlowe tradition and if you are a who-dun-it fan, Marlowe's the one who-dun-it again for you. Overlook the sex for sales and you've got a tiptop tale.

Let's boast a bit. My block on the south side of the street takes the hero award for high school basketball fans.

At Frankemuth Friday no less than four homes were represented in the stands. Count 'em: Mrs. Juanita Ryland, the Victor Guernseys, the Lee Hartels and the John Haires. Our super hero medal has to go to the Hartels who came to the game without a special interest. No boys playing, no pictures to take, no story to write.

To top off this evening of glory we nominated Vic Guernsey as super fan. . . anytime, anywhere. Who else can bellow go get 'em gang when we are 30 points behind?

How about Louis Pierce? Most of you know that he is now recovering from serious open heart surgery. A couple of weeks ago I saw him on the street smoking.

How about it? I asked. Louis, who just has to be one of the world's greatest fatalists, drawled "the doctor says that I smoke at my own risk."

Monday night everyone at the school was grinning. Cass City's seventh grade basketball team had won its opening tournament game against Marlette with relative ease.

No less than four persons came up to me with variations of "it's great to have a winner, isn't it?"

That shiny new building built by the Cass City Gun Club south of town has turned the 60-member organization into a Tiger. The meat that makes the Tiger roar is the mortgage on that shiny new building.

Each year the club expects to pay $500, plus interest. And the members want to do it without extra assessments. To pay the freight they are staging all kinds of money-raising events.

The biggest and perhaps the best is the adventure film presented by Howard Shelly annually. This year's big event is scheduled Monday, Mar. 17.

Sixty busy members have tickets for sale. Buy one.

If one of the new Michigan official highway maps is your bag, better hurry or you'll come up empty.

My spies at the Michigan State Highway Commission tell me that this year's masterpieces will be totally committed by the middle of March.

The new maps are better than the old ones. For one thing they do have an arm of Lake Charlevoix where the arm is supposed to be. Last year the seven-mile long waterway was totally "overlooked."

You get the map from Michigan Highway Map, Michigan Department of State Highways, Post Office Drawer K, Lansing, Michigan, 48904.

Name chairmen of hospital committees

Four members of Hills and Dales Women's Auxiliary spent 205 hours in the hospital during 1968 making garments and doing all mending of sheets, spreads, etc., Sewing Chairman Mrs. Herbert Ludlow reported at the Auxiliary meeting Monday. The other members are Mrs. N. Hurry, Mrs. R. McCullough and Mrs. C. Wallace.

Mrs. Hurry indicated a need for puppet makers. These toys are distributed to child patients, for whose use the puppet committee has also provided other toys.

Because Auxiliary members distribute and collect for all TV and radio rentals, new rules for both distribution and payment were approved as necessary directives for both patients and Auxiliary workers. Also, the meeting time was changed to two o'clock.

Expert to speak to wives, husbands

Who usually starts the conversation—husband or wife—on such topics as children's problems or money management? Or can you discuss these topics at all?

Dr. Eugene Peisner will teach a discussion class on "Husband-Wife Communications" from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. on Wednesday, March 5, at the Civil Defense Center in Caro.

This class will, hopefully, show ways to improve communication between spouses. Both husbands and wives are invited, but reference material will be provided for husbands if they are unable to come.

The Evergreen 4-Hers are sponsoring a basketball game March 7th at 7:30 p.m. The girls will play their moms and the guys will play their dads. Everyone is invited!

The club is also planning a roller skating party for their April meeting.

Everyone seemed to have a great time at the 4-H box social. It seems the girls slightly outnumbered the guys because the guys ended up buying two or three lunches each!

Tim Dorland, a student at Evergreen, was hit in the eye while playing hockey at home. After several days in the hospital, he has now returned to his home.

Deford

Last week Deford met Evergreen in a game of basketball, in which Evergreen defeated Deford 35-27. Even Deford had to admit that Evergreen students were pretty good!

The third graders had a United States map identification, and the students have been learning to write letters correctly in getting ready to write to United States servicemen overseas.

Last Monday the eighth grade was defeated by Caro in their first game of the tournaments held at Laker High School. Paul Bliss was high point man with 9 points; Kurt Strickland collected 8; Kip Hopper, 7; Bob Ross, 6; and Eugene Salas rounded it out with 4. The final score was 42 to 34.

Wednesday the eighth grade crushed Frankenmuth in their second game of the tournament. Bob Ross topped the scoring with 18 points. Kip Hopper and Kurt Strickland contributed 14 points each, with Paul Bliss, 8, and Eugene Salas, 6. The final score of that game was 67-34.

Saturday night the 8th graders played Marlette in the last tournament game. Cass City won 63-31, also winning the consolation championship. Kip Hopper was high point man with 18. Paul Bliss came up with 16 and Bob Ross, 13.

The seventh grade team ended up with a total of five wins and two losses this year. All seventh grade tournaments are being played at C.C.H.S. on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday nights of this week.

C. C. H. S.

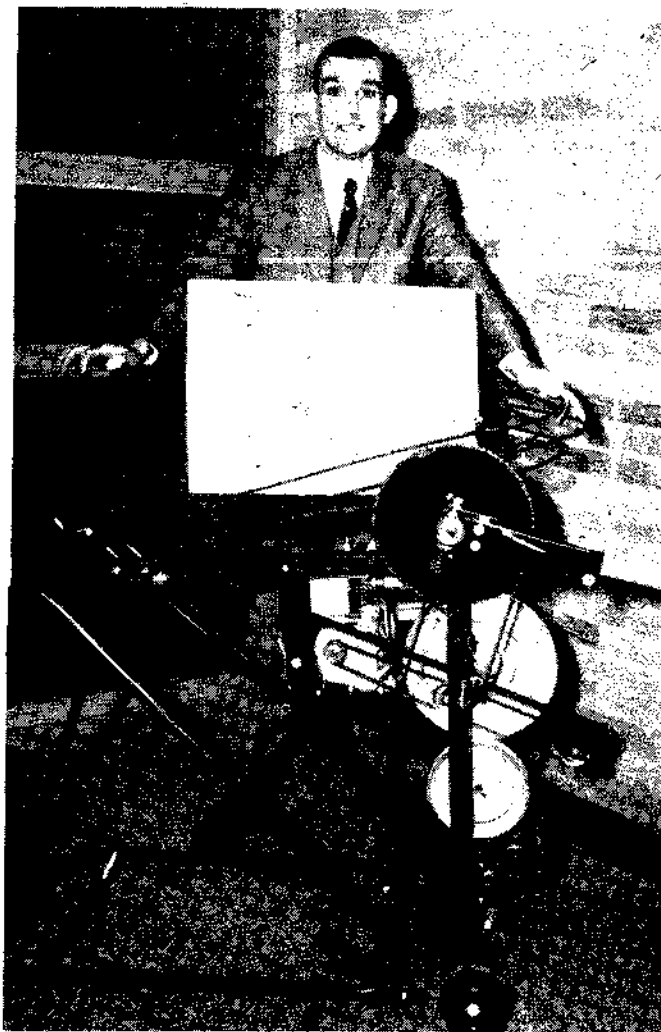

The majority of last week was spent preparing for Sunday's open house. Members of drama club practiced their parts, the band and choir rehearsed, the boys and girls gym classes practiced their routines, and teachers racked their brains for ideas for special displays.

Friday the entire school took a spring cleaning. Windows, sinks, and chalkboards were scrubbed, teachers cleaned off their desks, bulletin boards were decorated and furniture was dusted.

The purpose of the open house was to give parents and friends a chance to see what C.C.H.S. students are doing and to know the school's needs before the new millage election.

The open house began at 2:00 p.m. last Sunday. The members of the Future Teachers Club were on hand to serve as guides; a number of students were present to take part in various presentations, and (of course) all of the teachers were there.

From 2:00 p.m. until 2:30 p.m. the speech department's presentations were held. Those who took part were: Linda Brown, Mona Calka, Rainell Chisholm, Karen Gaffney, Mardi Auten, Jan Glaspie, Pam Dobbs, Carol Clarke, Brad Uhl, Lynnea Rabideau, Lorna Kidney, Bill Spencer and Carla Calka. The presentations varied from serious readings to comical duet and trio recitations.

Demonstrations in the language lab and shop took place simultaneously with the drama presentations.

At 3:30 p.m. the senior band presented a short program which consisted of three numbers: "The Good Daughter Overture," "Overture in B-flat," and "Gallant Men."

The boys' and girls' gym classes presented separate programs during the next hour of the afternoon. Mr. Bifoss's boys demonstrated tumbling and trampoline skills and Mrs. Wynes's girls demonstrated precision calisthenics to music.

The final presentation of the day was given by the choir department. Under the direction of Mr. Roger Parrish, C.C.H.S.'s. A capella choir sang: "Bless This House," "Suddenly There's a Valley," and "It's a Small World." Following these numbers Tom Fulcher sang two favorite selections and he and Mr. Parrish sang "Somewhere" from West Side Story.

The school's efforts weren't in vain -- a lot of people turned out for the open house and enjoyed visiting the school.

CLUB NEWS

The Future Homemakers had a pizza party last Tuesday evening. After eating, Geraldine, one of our South American exchange students, entertained the group by playing her guitar and singing for them.

The Varsity Club had a meeting Wednesday. The members discussed school and player spirit, and the problem of guys wearing some medals they didn't earn. The club now has approximately $700.00 in its treasury.

The Pep Club had a meeting after school Thursday. Mr. Wayne Dillon, a teacher at the Intermediate School, was a guest speaker. The club also sponsored a candy sale during one lunch hour on Wednesday and Friday of last week.

The Ski Club took a trip to Sylvan Knob Saturday.

TID BITS

Two tests were given at C.C.H.S. last week. One was the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, which is for juniors. As its name states it is a competitive test for scholarships on the National level. (It's really a gem!)

The other test was the Kuder Vocational Preference Test. This test was given to freshmen to determine their occupational interests.

The student-teacher basketball game, which was scheduled for February 18, was postponed until further notice.

Hosts wanted for foreign students

Authorities of the Ecumenical Hospitality Council for foreign students announced this week that foreign visitors from the University of Michigan will arrive in the county Mar. 5 and stay until Sunday evening.

The students are slated to arrive at Caro by bus and any persons wishing to entertain one or more should contact Mrs. Donald Reid, chairman; Mrs. Fritz Neitzel or Mrs. J. D. Tuckey, officers.

Cheerful note: Frosh end year with victory

Cass City's Freshmen ended its 1968-69 basketball year on a cheerful note last week with a 64-56 decision over Vassar, the team's third victory in 13 starts.

The Hawks jumped off to an early lead in the opening quarter and made it stand up for the victory. Coach John Bifoss said that the team showed superior rebounding and play making on the way to the victory.

Greg Eshelman whipped in 19 points to lead all scorers. Tim Knoblet garnered 15 and Jim Wentworth, 14.

Over the season three boys led the scoring for Cass City.

Knoblet led the pack with 101 points, just a whisker ahead of Eshelman who netted 100. Both boys averaged eight points a game. Karl Zawilinski scored 92 points for an average of seven points per game.

Wentworth was far and away the best scorer for the Frosh with an average of 15 points per game. But he played in just six Freshmen games as he divided his time with the Frosh and the Junior Varsity squads.

The cost of living could be cut in half if we didn't have to impress the neighbors.

Eye benefits and problems of urban renewal in village

Retailers interested in rejuvenating Cass City's business district may want to take a long look at the Federal Government's urban renewal plan.

According to persons familiar with the plan in Lapeer which is in the closing stages of a $2 1/2 million program, urban renewal has advantages...

As you might suspect the principal advantage is spelled D-O-L-L-A-R-S and the disadvantage is the bundle of red tape that swaths the program.

The dollar advantage is a major one. Briefly, this is how the program works: The Feds put up 75 per cent of the money and the village or city puts up 25 per cent. But it isn't necessary to have the 25 per cent in cash. In Lapeer, for example, some of the city's share were parking lots previously built and built recently enough to be credited as part of the urban renewal program. The city is also building other parking to qualify as its share of the program. Recent sewer construction within the area also qualified for the project.

But when the government pays it also controls. It has taken Lapeer three years to get as far as it has in its program and not one building has been torn down yet. According to Jim Fitzgerald, editor of the Lapeer County Press, processing the paper work is a full time job for the man at city hall.

After the initial application hurdles are over, a team of Federal appraisers come in to see if the community qualifies for the program. Later they return to appraise the buildings and make offers for them to the owners. The owners have the option of selling at the appraisal price, going to court in condemnation proceedings or receiving the appraisal price and buying the new building at its cost price with interest at only 3 per cent.

If the owner decides to move and relocate in another area his moving expenses are paid.

Set meeting for county dairymen

For some time now plans have been under way to hold a Tuscola County dairymen's "banquet and meeting" Monday, March 10, at the 4-H Building, Caro at 12:00 noon, according to Alfred Ballweg, county extension agricultural agent.

The sponsoring committee for this event are the past dairy herd improvement association board members; Michigan Bean Company at Vassar, Reese, Caro and Cass City; C and B Silo Company of Charlotte, Michigan; Wayne Feed Supply Company of Mayville, and the Michigan Glass Lined Storage Company-Harvestore in co-operation with the Tuscola County Cooperative Extension Service.

Banquet tickets were sent to all D. H. I. A. members and wives along with two tickets to be given to a neighbor who is not now on dairy herd testing.

Dairymen are asked to notify the Cooperative Extension Office at Caro by no later than March 3 if they will attend. Facilities at the 4-H Building limit the number that can be accommodated. Since it is a noon meeting few organizations could offer to serve the meal at other larger meeting centers. 4-H Mothers' Club will serve a Swiss steak dinner with dairy product trimmings.

Program speaker will be Albert Hall, County Extension Agricultural Agent, Hillsdale. There will be other program highlights.

Many attend Tuesday's Owen-Gage school meeting at Owendale.

Discuss Owen-Gage split

"You're not about to give it up," said one. "We have pretty good student-teacher relationships," said one. Carol Thies asked "How many students can join band, student council, cheerleaders, plays? They'll go out and find their kicks somewhere else." "You can make it if you want to," concluded another.

At that point, one citizen spoke up saying he attended a big high school at Grand Rapids and that 135 competed for the basketball line-up. "I was 6 foot 2 inches and a healthy boy and I never had a chance," he huffed.

"The bigger it gets, the more unwieldy it becomes," said one about the proposal. "You can control your children better with a smaller school," said one mother.

Dennis Englehart asked if the Owen-Gage school would be adequate as it is and how it would affect their accreditation. "Size makes no difference in accreditation," said Stevens.

"If you vote annexation, you can't change it. It's not a once-in-a-lifetime chance. Why now?" said one. Another added, "Once you vote, it's all over."

The citizens expressed mixed statements on whether or not a new sewage system was needed at the Owen-Gage school.

Laurie said a letter would go out urging a no vote on the proposal. A fund raising collection at the end of the meeting brought $22 to be added to $49 from a previous meet.

"The whole country is basically run by the people," said Laurie. "We're just trying to convince the people we know what we're talking about."

Cass City cited for achievement

Cass City was one of five communities to be cited for "significant accomplishment to community betterment" in the annual Michigan Week Community achievement contest sponsored by the Greater Michigan Foundation.

Cass City was granted the award for the construction of Hills and Dales General Hospital. It was judged most outstanding in region 14 that includes Huron, Lapeer, St. Clair, Sanilac and Tuscola counties.

The state community achievement award was won by Williamston for its "Community Project Facelift."

In other activities concerning Michigan week, pairing for the annual Mayors' exchange day were concluded last week. Cass City was selected to exchange with Decatur.

Last year Cass City did not participate in this phase of the program because the original two communities it was paired with indicated that they would not exchange mayors.

Behind the Counter Caffeine

We often read about how "dangerous" such-and-such a drug is, if it's mis-used. The truth is, there's no drug that is absolutely safe under all conditions and for all people. Mothers know that even aspirin must be kept out of the reach of children who might swallow too many.

This is also true of many things we no longer think of as "drugs"—tobacco and alcohol are good examples. And now coffee and tea have been blamed for physical disorders, when drunk to excess.

For example, Dr. Hobart A. Reimann recently reported the case of a woman who seemed to suffer from a continual cold over a six-month period. She had a low fever and chills, couldn't sleep, and felt irritable. After losing 20 pounds, she was admitted to a hospital—where her symptoms disappeared within a few days.

Her problem, Dr. Reimann said in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, was that she drank up to 18 cups of coffee a day. This represents something like two grams of caffeine—twice as much as would be expected to produce mental confusion, vomiting, diarrhea, shivers and tremors.

Coffee and tea contain chemicals known as xanthine alkaloids and these, taken in too great a volume, can induce symptoms that are mistaken for more common illnesses.

Deny Craig Vulcan street building permit

An application by Harold Craig to build a warehouse and office at the corner of Sixth and Vulcan was turned down last week by the village planning commission.

The proposed site is zoned for single family dwellings and adjoins the area zoned for manufacturing purposes.

The planning commission said in a letter to the council that Villcan-Leman, planning consultants, suggested that the zoning not be changed when the question was referred to them, as low cost single family dwellings were needed in the community.

Craig has the option of appealing the decision to the zoning board of appeals whose jurisdiction in the case is final unless appealed in court.

PROTESTS TAXES

In other business of the supervisors a resolution to the board was read and adopted. It protested the high property taxes in the county and urged the governor and the legislature to study the entire property tax situation in Michigan and to make changes in the law for a more equitable system.

Obstacles are placed in a man's path to test his initiative.

Says foreign trade affects farm

The three commodities that comprise more than half of total U. S. agricultural dollar exports -- wheat, soybeans and feed grains -- are produced heavily in Michigan and the midwestern states, reports Alfred Ballweg, county extension agricultural agent.

Because Michigan farmers depend heavily on foreign markets as outlets for these products, it is important that they understand the current state of the U. S. international trade policy, according to Arthur Mauch, Extension Specialist in Agricultural Economics at Michigan State University.

"Anything that retards the export flow of these products has a direct impact on the profits and losses of the area's farmers and farm-related businesses," Ballweg says. "That's why it's important that local farmers be aware of current trends in our national policies on foreign trade."

The nation's largest farm organization, The American Farm Bureau Federation, has as its national policy on inter-

Meets to discuss furniture selection

BY JUDITH ANN SCHROETER

Furniture selection today is becoming more complex because of changing living and marketing patterns. These complexities create for the consumer a better opportunity to obtain furnishings that will satisfy family needs at a price they can afford to pay.

Margaret Boschetti, M.S.U. Specialist in Home Furnishings, will present a lesson entitled "Selecting Furniture for Today's Family" at 7:00 p.m. on three consecutive days in the Thumb area. She will be in Sandusky March 4 at the Farm Bureau Building; in the Civil Defense Center in Caro on March 5, and on March 6 in the meeting room of the County Building in Bad Axe.

If you are considering a purchase in the future, it would be well worth your while to attend this lesson when it is presented in your county.

Weighing prices in fertilizer

By Don Kehler

Buying fertilizer is really an art when we consider the information needed before the purchases are made. If the price figure was the only necessary measure for buying fertilizer materials all farm operators would have a simple buying procedure.

In practicing the true art of fertilizer buying, we need many answers relative to the individual crop we wish to supply the necessary plant food. We need to also know the complete history of the field we wish to grow that specific crop. What are the recognized soil, weed, drainage, fertilizer, etc. problems and the good points of that field?

After we have these answers, we should ask ourselves -- "What has been the past performance and yields of the specific crop we wish to grow this year? Have the average yields of this crop grown on this field in the past been what could be expected as to the suggested yield goals for the type of soil in this field? Have I been supplying the plant food necessary to give me these possible yield goals for this crop on this soil?"

Maybe my problem is not the improper use of fertilizer, but one due to insect, disease, weed competition or soil physical conditions. However, for this article let's say our correct diagnosis shows the solution to a specific crop's best yield on this field appears to be one of using a balanced fertilizer of sufficient quantity. But how do we know for sure what nutrients and of what quantity of each we should use? This is the easiest question to answer, we take an accurate soil sample and we have it tested in a reputable soil testing laboratory.

After we receive the soil test results and the amounts of each nutrient recommended from this test, for the crop and yield desired, we then are ready to decide on the fertilizer to purchase.

To decide the fertilizer we will purchase and use on this field, for this crop, we must decide what nutrient to apply, how much, when to apply and method of placement. If we decide to plow down part and plant with the remaining, and sidedress we might find the analysis of plowdown to be different than used for planting. In this case we would use two different analyses and sidedress with yet another different analysis.

We do this with each field and each crop to be grown this year. Then we go out and look for the cost saving on the total amounts of each fertilizer material necessary for the entire farm's needs and purchase accordingly.

Doesn't this appear to be a form of prescription farming? You are correct, this is the prescription method for proper fertilizer use.

Try to force constructive ideas on your friends—not your pet peeves and prejudices.

"If It Fitz..."

There's something about a girl

BY JIM FITZGERALD

You'll be reading them later, but I'm typing these words on Valentine's Day. Which should be excuse enough for explaining why I open the car door for my wife.

The modern woman wants equal rights. Someone left the kitchen door open and Mabel ran out and got elected Mayor. She's wearing trousers and smoking cigars and posing for booze ads. She still won't do any heavy lifting, but otherwise Mabel insists she can do George's job and she expects George's salary.

More power to Mabel. I can think of no good reason why she should be discriminated against because of her sex. If she can haul the freight, get out of her way and pay her the going rate when she delivers. If George doesn't like it, maybe he'd like to go home and try needle-point.

"So OK," says George, "but if that's the way she wants it, she can race me for the last seat on the bus and I hope she trips. She can take her hat off in the elevator and she can light her own cigaret. And if she gives me a hard time about it, I may punch her in the nose."

That's what George says. Not me. Maybe it's because I didn't marry a Mabel, but I don't think so. No matter how many corporations Mabel might control, no matter how masculine her achievements, she will always get my respect for simply being female.

Mabel can do something George can't. She can have a baby. Sure, she needs some help from George to get started but then she takes over exclusively for 9 long months. George was in on the deal for the fun and games. Mabel gets the pain and the discomfort and the trips to the doctor.

This has been very much on my mind the past few weeks. The population experts say no couple should bring more than 2 children into this crowded world. Certainly, parents over 40 have no business producing their 4th child. But there we were, my Pat and I, surprised but excited - and increasingly hopeful as she entered her 4th month. It didn't work out.

A miscarriage is no great deal and I am not writing this in search of sympathy. Every time I visited Pat in the hospital I saw dozens of people whose luck is immeasurably worse than ours. I thank God for my good fortune.

And I also thank Him for my wife. She was in the hospital 6 times in 3 weeks. I lost count of the visits to the doctor - gosh, I even lost count of the doctors. She had had pain and constant worry. She lived on the edge of a cliff. And all

I did was stand around and hope she didn't fall off.

When it was finally all over, and Pat returned home from her last stay in the hospital, her 2 youngest children were in school. But they had left their greetings behind. Eddie had hung a big "Welcome Home Mom" sign. Chrissie had baked a 2 layer cake with an appropriate message lettered on the top. Love notes were tucked wherever Mom might find them.

And, I discovered later, an unopened package of maternity clothes had been thoughtfully hidden in the back of a distant closet.

I have always claimed that our children love their mother best because she plays Monopoly and Crazy 8's with them. (I would rather hang by my eyelashes). But the real reason may well be that they appreciate what mothers do for their kids. Twice in 3 years they have watched her suffer through unsuccessful pregnancies and come back home smiling.

In 18 years of column writing I have almost made a profession of razzing my wife. At the same time, I stuck needles in all females. And I will probably be back at it next week. No matter how many kids Mabel might have, she can still be a goofy broad. However, this is my week for being sweet...

So George hadn't better tell me I shouldn't open doors for my wife. I don't do it because she can't open them herself. I do it because she is something special. She is a girl.

The over 90's

Ed Jackson: vestige of a lifetime of farming remains

Ex-farmer Ed Jackson, 90, turned 90 years old Jan. 15 and everything he grows still thrives.

He helped his father grow crops and raise cattle since his boyhood and when he married at 26 he rented acreage and struck out on his own. His hard work and ability paid big dividends because in the 30's and 40's he had built up a 300 acre farm and needed a hired man year round to maintain its high productivity.

One of those hired men was Willis Brown, now an employee of a local elevator. "His crops were as good as any around," he said.

Brown said Jackson had kept several "beautiful teams of horses." Jackson related that one team of horses weighed nearly 2,000 pounds each.

"He was a good fellow to work for," said Brown. "He didn't give you a lot of work and then take off, he was there to help you."

Brown said the only crop failure he ever knew of Jackson having was a crop of 8 or 9 acres of oats that were severely struck by drought. "But," said Brown, "he had enough from the previous year to tide him over." Other than that, he always had good crops, he said.

"I had a milking herd," Jackson said. With purebred Durhams and Holsteins Jackson survived the Depression "with no trouble" and "the war wasn't much either."

Jackson had purchased land from his father, but that was after he rented 120 acres on his own. When he retired, he sold some, gave some to his son, and kept 80 acres "to wean on."

Farming was truly in his blood and he didn't really want to retire. And he didn't.

At 65 years, he tilled 80 acres for several years and had to buy a tractor. He had even moved into the village where he now resides, and had to drive out to the land, which is near his son's farm.

Both Jackson's father, and his son were, and are, farmers, making three generations of farming. His grandson, now in California, is the only child of his son, now farming, and it appears three generations of Jacksons will see an end to the inheritance of the farming occupation.

But Ed Jackson is still a man of the soil and his backyard potato patch is the vestige of a life-long endeavor.

The real monument to his endeavor, though, is a 60 year old Christmas Cactus that's been in the family since its start. Each winter it blossoms into a proliferation of hundreds of red little flowers. Its stems are nearly 1 1/2 inches across at their base and a long armed man couldn't reach halfway around it. Its ancient and battered clay crock is cracked and fragile, and has wires circling its girth to secure it.

The cactus sits on a tiny table in a tiny sun room. In the small room, its massive structure droops towards the window for the massive absorption of sunlight needed to sustain it. If Jackson tended his livestock and crops like he tends his cactus and his home, it's easy to see why he was so successful.

Jackson "batches" it but you'd never know it with his home as neat as it is. Neatness for its own sake, one might add as he enters the home. The house is absolutely immaculate.

Many of the furnishings are beautiful antiques, well kept, each cushion exactly positioned.

His homemaking efforts may be his tribute to his wife, who died in 1959 and whom he mentions often. His guests are shown the picture of their 50th wedding anniversary. As he shows it, he pauses and momentarily gazes at it himself. "I had a wonderful woman," he said.

Another disappointment hit him in 1965 when he was refused a renewal driver's license because of cataracts. He's too skeptical to have them removed.

But it broke his heart not to be able to drive anymore. A spic and span 1947 Pontiac, as reserved as it is still, sits in the garage. And it will stay there, over the objections of his family.

But Ed Jackson is cautious and unassuming, but firm. And what he does, he does well. And that's the way the cactus grows.

ED JACKSON with his 60-year-old Christmas Cactus.

GOVERNOR

The fellow who finds a way to control speed on the nation's highways will make a howling success of a crying need.

Hugh Brenneman

Explains sources of aching back

A good deal is known about the lower back. The commonest cause of low back pain usually relates to simple strains or unusual stresses on the lowermost segment of the spine. All of the stress and weight bearing surfaces direct their elements and their power to the lower joints.

In the lowermost portion of the spine, in fact in between each one of the 32 segments or vertebrae of the back, is a structure called an intervertebral disc. This is a rubber-like washer that is quite flexible. And as long as it is flexible it's quite strong and can absorb various forces and tolerate them well.

Because of the elastic nature of this disc we can move and turn and bend and do all kinds of movements with minimal restriction. As we grow older, however, the water content of these structures drops and they become harder and more brittle. With stresses placed upon them they tend to fragment, and very often a fragment may be extruded backwards into an area of the spinal column called the central canal. All of the nerves that come down from the brain enter this canal in a spinal cord up at the higher level. But in the lumbar region they all become individual roots or individual lines. If something intrudes into this cavity, like a herniated disc, it will strike these very sensitive nerve cables and compress them, causing pain.

A herniated disc can occur anywhere along the canal from one end to the other. The most common places for location are the lower end of the canal and this is usually the area that is responsible for low back pain with radiation down the leg. Any one of the walls of the spinal canal can impinge into the canal, and it is necessary for the doctor to identify portions which project into the canal.

Also changes occur in the shape of this area. As osteophytes or spurs form - these are mushroom-like structures on the vertebral margins that occur when the discs degenerate - they intrude into the canal and reduce the available space where these nerves are situated.

Some people are born with a very narrow canal and a very small spur in this area can produce a very devastating effect, with or without herniation of the disc.

A key question is: Is surgery really necessary?

The neurosurgeon does not consider surgery until treatment with bed rest, physiotherapy and various drugs fail to produce adequate relief so that the patient can function. Then if the patient has been hospitalized, perhaps with traction, and his pain is not relieved, his weakness progresses, he can no longer work and there is a wasting of muscle, the patient will very often insist that doctors stop conservative care, because it hasn't helped.

Sixty to eighty percent of patients are helped very effectively by conservative care. It's the remaining 20% who become surgical candidates.

X-rays are taken not only to help make a diagnosis, but mostly to exclude other diagnoses. The patient with some malignant disease of the bone will have just as much of a backache as anybody else, and that, in many instances, can be diagnosed by plain film X-rays.

When the neurological surgeon and his consultants have decided that surgery is needed, a myelogram is made. This study is performed by inserting a needle into the spinal canal. This is called a lumbar puncture, and through that needle a positive contrast material is injected into the spinal canal so that the doctors can see the space which previously was invisible.

Having introduced this contrast material into the spinal canal in adequate amounts, the patient is then put under a fluoroscope. An image intensifier and a television setup is sometimes used. The contrast material is passed from one end of the canal to the other, so that the doctors investigate the entire canal, to point out to the neurological surgeon what exists at each level.

If the myelogram is performed properly with skill and with gentleness the neurological surgeon can proceed with his surgery because doctors have excluded the fact that there are other similar deformities elsewhere. The surgeon knows in advance almost exactly what he is going to encounter. The surgeon then correlates that with the patient's clinical condition and plans his operation accordingly.

In a large majority of patients, a carefully performed myelogram done skillfully can be done without pain and the material that is injected into the spinal canal can be removed.

In any aging individual there is very little disc left to herniate so the herniated disc seldom recurs and is rarely a problem in the older age groups. In the younger age group this is a problem and the recurrence rate of a simple herniated disc is at least three to five percent.

Says conventionality inhibits joy of life

By Richard Haines

A European traveler counted the number of times Europeans touched or made physical contact while talking; the average was about 100 times in an hour. This compared with the Midwest of three times in an hour. So what? So, writes Bernard Gunther in "Sensory Relaxation," when young monkeys deprived of touch and closeness suffer from a lack of relatedness, even their physical growth is stunted.

So what? Man isn't a monkey. That's true. But student suicides have taken a sharp climb, divorces continue their increase, and crime, crime, crime.

In the midst of this kind of anxiety, any theory is worth listening to.

Gunther says we have become de-sensitized. He says our behavior always has a pre-set format, is always predictable: Continue your role, "grow up, act like ladies and gentlemen. Try harder. Make effort. Pay-a-tension."

Instead of joy and spontaneity, we play it safe: Fixed behavior. Act the way you SHOULD.

People who "sparkle," when really they're discouraged and unsatisfied, pursue a role that's unreal. This sets in course a pattern for others to be unreal.

Then, REAL feelings are expressed only in crisis situations. Often times the only time when people level with you is when they get mad or provoked. It's then one finds out what another is really thinking.

America's dual personality. Smiling. Deliberative. Control. Controlling. Feelings diminish. People become separate, apart, out of touch.

Gunther says social and formal education stress cognitive and motor functions of the organisms without regard to sensory development. We teach children, he says, non/sense.

He contends this lack of sensitivity creates de-sensitization: an imbalance of being; a loss of feeling, senseless; inhibition-alienation-depression-anxiety-deadness.

Americans, he says, over-emphasize words. These are often HARD words, words and behavior that are up tight, cold, separate, resulting in giving yourself and other people a HARD time.

This sensory limitation, he says, leads to automatic behavior. Sex is the only chance we really have to touch each other.

Any wonder Americans make sex sacred? That we make such a fetish of it? Gunther himself asks: "Is it any wonder that we are tense, anxious, alienated; out of touch with our total body; that we are dis/integrated, dis/organized? That we need to re/balance, to re/integrate, to re/organize. Ill at ease: Dis/ease.

WOMEN SUFFER WITH BLADDER IRRITATION

Common Kidney or Bladder Irritations affect twice as many women as men, often causing tenderness and nervousness from frequent, burning, itching urination. Secondly, you may lose sleep and have headaches. Backaches and feel older, tired, depressed. In such cases, CYSTEX usually brings relaxing comfort by curbing germs in acid urine, and easing pain. Contamination of food by salmonella poses a significant health problem. It is one of four common bacteria which are found throughout the environment and which often causes infections in man.

Because of mass food processing and packaging techniques, all consumers, in a sense, are served from great communal kitchens. When one of these "kitchens" (factories) becomes contaminated, thousands of families can be affected. Improper care of foods at home can cause contamination, also.

When taken into the body, salmonella organisms multiply in the gastro-intestinal tract and result in nausea, cramps, etc. Susceptibility to salmonellosis depends upon the age and physical conditions of the individual. Infants and elderly tend to be more severely affected.

Salmonella have been found in a variety of foods. Food animals harbor the organism: raw poultry, meats, eggs and dairy products are among the foods most frequently carrying salmonella.

Salmonella multiplies between 40 degrees and 140 degrees. It is destroyed by heating to about 165 degrees. Hot food or cold food doesn't support the growth of salmonella.

Pasteurization kills the organism in milk. Thorough cooking of suspected foods will destroy "sam".

Homemakers are advised to prevent salmonella food poisoning by washing raw foods carefully; refrigerating left overs promptly and reheating thoroughly before re-serving; by keeping the cooks hands clean; and by carefully following directions on the packages of pre-prepared foods.

Bethel group plans activities

The regular meeting of Bethel 77 Cass City was held Thursday, Feb. 20, at the new Masonic Temple in Cass City. Miss Sandra Hawley was initiated into the Order.

A special election was held for the station of Marshall. Miss Cheryl Curry of Caro was named and installed into office by Honored Queen Fronda Mellendorf.

Plans were made for a permanent fun night each month. The first will be a bowling party in Cass City March 8. This will be followed by roller skating, sleigh or hayride and swimming party with overnight stay at the "Y". Girls may bring visitors to these fun nights.

Cass City Bethel 77 were guests of Marlette Bethel 56 Saturday, Feb. 22.

The Honored Queen's project is a traveling basket. The basket will be in Uby next. School of instruction will be March 6 at 7 p.m.

Success and happiness is in meeting conditions, not in evading them.

Cass City bows to Thumb B loop champion Eagles, 54-79

Frankenmuth rolled over Cass City Friday with relative ease as the league leading Eagles used superior rebounding, better shooting and all around offensive play to pound out a 79-54 decision on their home court.

The Eagles clinched the Thumb B league crown with the victory. The game was decided early. Frankenmuth gunned its

The Eagles used 15 players in the game and 14 of them scored. Coach Jim Wynes also cleared his bench after the game was out of sight and 11 Hawks registered points.

Just trying to excuse yourself

February 20, 1969

Mr. John Haire
Editor, Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Mich.

Dear Mr. Haire:

It certainly seems as though you are trying to excuse yourself from the objections you received concerning your headline of two weeks ago ("Grid Coach Bifoss Fired By Board") with a rather weak argument. I did, at no time, profess to be an expert on the subject of journalism. My letter merely expressed my opinion of your headline as a reader, which I should think would be your greatest concern.

I was also rather upset when I read your reply to see your implication that our journalism teacher, Mrs. Wallace, was the actual source of my opinion. I happen to think that I form my own opinions. Mrs. Wallace did, on the request of several students who had been shocked by the headline, read the article. Also, when we asked her what she thought of it, she agreed that in her opinion it was an example of yellow journalism. But she did not announce to us that it was yellow journalism without giving us a chance to form our own opinions about it.

A definition of yellow journalism was available in both our journalism and American History text books, and if Mrs. Wallace isn't trained enough for you, I sincerely hope that those two text books are professional enough.

I hope you realize that my only objection is to the headline of the article, not to the article itself.

Sincerely,
Marsha Searls

I can only reiterate, Marsha, that you submit it to Michigan State, University of Michigan and Central Michigan University or any other schools of your choice. . . including the headline, Editor.

School board, paper are wrong

Dear Editor:

When reading your paper the last while there has been things I can't agree with.

I for one don't agree with the school board at all for firing coach Bifoss. Maybe he didn't win the games, but can we really say it's all the coaches fault. I think we as parents and adults should look at the way the game is played and not just winning.

We should be proud of the way our coaches conduct themselves at their games. They don't have technicals called on them, because they are there to teach sportsmanship and citizenship as well as winning the game.

I hope when my children are old enough to be in sports and other things in school, there will be a good Christian coach or teacher there to give them a helping hand.

Another injustice is to our servicemen. They serve thirteen months in Vietnam, are wounded and some don't come home at all. And all they get in their home town paper is the fourth and fifth page. I think they should make the front page. We should let them know that we appreciate what they are doing.

It won't take 2 years to kill all the deer

Cass City, Mich.
Feb. 24, 1969

Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Michigan

Dear Mr. Haire,

A good example of what will happen to our deer herd is what happened to the Elk in northern Michigan. They are all gone, and the Conservation Dept. doesn't know what happened to them, because they only issued a FEW permits. I wonder if they ever ask the local people what happened to them?

What does the Conservation Dept. expect you to tell your son, when he is hunting on your own farm, that you pay taxes on. That he must not shoot DOES or FAWNS, because we have to save them for the so called SPORTSMAN, who buy two or more licenses so their chances for getting a permit is better, but then this means a lot more money for the Conservation Dept., and this is what they are most interested in.

It took only two years to kill all the ELK; I bet it won't take that long in this more populated farm land area to kill ALL the DEER.

I would like to see NO HUNTING signs on every acre of private land in the Thumb area; this would hurt their license sales more than NO DEER.

Please return band uniforms

February 24, 1969

The Editor
Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Michigan 48726

Dear Sir:

The Cass City High School Band would like to enlist your aid in helping to get back $1,000 worth of uniforms. It seems that over the past four or five years since the new uniforms were purchased, parts that go to make up about ten uniforms have not been returned to the high school band room.

We feel that perhaps people have pieces of these uniforms hanging in closets around the community and have intended to bring them back but have forgotten about them.

The Senior Band now desperately needs 35 new uniforms and the return of the pieces for the ten missing uniforms could be very helpful to the High School's and Band Boosters' budgets.

I wish to emphasize that it was extremely difficult over the past four or five years to keep track of the uniforms with so many different band directors and, for a brief period of time, no band director at all. It would be very easy to lose track of pieces of uniforms.

Thank you for helping to bring the case of the lost uniforms to the attention of Cass City.

Sincerely,
Victor M. Guernsey

Very opposed to antlerless deer

Cass City, Mich.
Feb. 20, 1969

Dear Editor,

Had I been informed that the picture taken of my car and me would be used in connection with a proposed antlerless season, no consent would have been given. I am very opposed to hunting antlerless deer in ANY AREA. "There are enough bucks if you are a good hunter; anyone can shoot a doe."

Car kill is really very small in this area. Maybe it's like Bill Parrott stated last week. "Are we supposed to sacrifice every thing because a guy doesn't know how to drive." (Really, Bill, I did try to miss it.)

Sincerely,
Harold Copeland

You were right --and wrong

Feb. 21, 1969

Dear Mr. Haire:

After reading your articles about coach Bifoss, we have had long discussions about them. We naturally, had mixed feelings. In some cases you were right, but we feel in others you were wrong.

We feel that you didn't have to say some of the things you did. You put your thoughts in the headline and didn't explain yourself as well the first time as you did the second. We feel you could have had a better headline and more for him than against him. Your headlines were misleading. Frequently they indicate only the worst. We feel you failed to reveal the entire story.

Coach Bifoss in our estimation did a good job and from our point of view it's more the boys fault than coach Bifoss. If you got one of the best coaches in here, they couldn't do any better with the material than coach Bifoss did.

We may have won alot more games if the players would not have been smoking and drinking. We have the guys but not the spirit.

To us coach Bifoss is an example of what a real coach is. He's fair, honest, and above all practices the things that he teaches.

Seek way to cut number in House of Representatives

"SLICE HOUSE"

A proposed constitutional amendment to reduce the size of the Michigan House of Representatives and revamp the state's legislative reapportionment machinery has been submitted to state lawmakers. Understandably, it faces an uphill struggle.

Key provisions include restructuring the controversial state apportionment commission and designating the State Court of Appeals as an arbiter of hassles which are sure to develop.

The measure was sponsored by 16 Republicans and three Democrats. It takes a two-thirds vote of both chambers to get the proposal on the general election ballot.

Under the amendment, House membership would be limited to four times the number of Congressmen from Michigan. This would put the House total at 76 instead of the present 110 as Michigan has 19 U. S. Representatives.

Senate membership would be continued at 38, though any increase in congressional representation would boost the number of senatorial districts.

The apportionment commission, the unit which must realign the Legislature after every federal census, would be appointed by the Governor and Secretary of State rather than the political parties. The partisan breakdown, though, would continue at four Democrats and four Republicans.

Michigan's 1963 constitution created the first commission. Its initial effort at reapportioning the Legislature resulted in a deadlock, and the State Supreme Court ended up doing the job.

The proposed amendment, sponsored chiefly by Senate Majority Leader Emil Lockwood, would provide that the Court of Appeals would reapportion the Legislature if the commission failed to do so.

And if the Appellate Court could not agree on proposals within 60 calendar days, then the Supreme Court would again inherit the task.

If the constitutional revision were approved by the people, the first reapportionment under it would take place in 1974, based on the 1970 census.

Lawmaker districts would be as "equal in population as practicable," with "due consideration" to county lines, community interest and compactness of territory.

Senators would still be elected for four years and Representatives for two years. A stormy battle over the amendment is certain in the House, where members frown on efforts to cut their numbers.

NEW HOME - MAYBE

Gov. William G. Milliken might become the first Michigan chief executive to live in an official state-supplied mansion.

Lansing trucking executive Howard Sober has offered his palatial residence overlooking the Grand River to the state free of charge, and the Senate and House indicate they'll gladly accept the gift.

The home itself is valued between $200,000 and $400,000. It features motorized drapes, servants' quarters, a four-car garage and hideaway bar. There are 13 rooms and five bathrooms.

A special committee of former governors will raise funds to furnish the structure.

It was also announced that plans are under way to construct a Governor's mansion in the Capitol Complex in downtown Lansing. But legislative leaders say ground breaking ceremonies are still seven to 10 years away. The price tag could go as high as $1 million.

Since statehood 132 years ago, Michigan has been without an official residence for the Governor. Milliken has been living in a $180 per month two-bedroom apartment in Lansing.

One For The Road

Wants stronger voice for general aviation

By Dan Marlowe

General aviation is the generic term for all flying other than that done by commercial airlines.

Private flying is an important fringe benefit to any community possessing an airfield, and it is rapidly becoming more so.

Robert Parke, editor of FLYING, points out in a recent issue that despite the growth of general aviation in recent years, most of the stories about aviation in the mass media reflect only the position of the airlines. Additionally, most of the proposed rules changes made to the Federal Aviation Authority favor the common carriers at the expense of general aviation.

Kent Boyd, an advertising man from Kansas City, and a pilot with multi-engine and instrument ratings, has put together a few figures which demonstrate that general aviation need not continue to be an orphan in the eyes of the FAA if it will only make itself heard.

Excerpts from Boyd's presentation which should help to convince any community that general aviation means dollars in its pocket:

There are over 125,000 registered, licensed, active aircraft in the U.S., and they are increasing at the rate of 10,000 a year. There are, by contrast, less than 2300 airlines in operation. To fly the general aviation fleet, there are more than 680,000 licensed pilots, one for every 300 persons in the U. S. This number, too, is increasing at a rate in excess of 50,000 a year.

In this group there are approximately 125,000 pilots who have instrument ratings. They outnumber the airline IFR pilots by seven to one. At over half the 1100 airports in the country equipped for instrument approaches, general aviation pilots made more IFR landings than all the airlines combined. And this kind of professionalism is growing at an unprecedented rate.

The growth curve of general aviation total flying hours projected through the end of 1968 showed more than 35,000,000 hours, or four times the number of hours flown by all airlines combined. It means that each day general aviation flew 10,000,000 miles, half of which was in business aircraft for business purposes.

The FAA itself estimates that the total number of persons served by general aviation considerably exceeds that of the combined U. S. airlines. Most media reporters don't know it, with the result that general aviation has few voices to speak for it where it counts.

Communities should stop down-rating the facilities and the potential of the private airfields in their midst and on their borders.

It is definitely the wave of the future.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Bug Hookum, that never could retire because he ain't never done nothing to quit doing, come up with a new worry during the session at the country store Saturday night. You recollect, Mister Editor, that Bug was upset a while back when he figured the Equal Employment Opportunities Act said he would have to work as hard as other men and women.

Well, sir, Bug allowed that what he had feared had come to pass. Now that he has lived long enough to take his ease, along comes word that doing nothing is a hazard to a feller's health. Actual, Bug said, he never had took to that saying about a feller can rust out but he can't wear out. Bug said he once saw a spooked horse run until he fell dead in his tracks, but he allowed he is yet to see man or beast rest to death.

What had got Bug riled was this doctor's report he had saw. The doctor said it's a mistake a lot of times to tell a patient to git plenty of rest. That's the advice the patient wants to hear and he will rest so much he can't git wound up agin. The doctor allowed that a feller that gits 10 hours of sleep a day is more likely to have a heart attack than one that don't git but six. The problem, reported Bug, was all the stopping and starting.

Actual, said Bug, people is like cars, according to this doctor. The feller that gits too much rest runs his battery down gitting cranked up agin, while the high strung folks keep their motors going at a fast idle all the time and they're ready fer quick starts.

Josh Clodhopper told Bug to calm his fears. Josh said he was taking the report fer information, but he wasn't putting no stock in it. Too many of them doctors is jest practicing, was Josh's words, and too many of their cures is worst than the disease. Fer instance, Josh said, doctors can't never decide from one case to the next whether to cover a burn, leave it open to the air, keep it dry or wet, so they jest practice on ever patient.

Ed Doolittle was full agreed with Josh that Bug ought to rest easy about that report. There comes a time when a feller has to take a chance, allowed Ed, and the ways things is going jest about everthing a feller wants to eat or do will rot his teeth, make him fat, clog up his arteries or is agin his law.

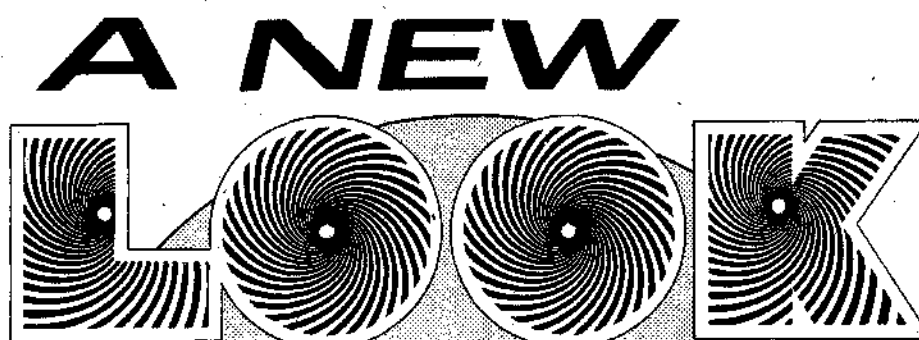

Mister Editor, Bug looked like he was mighty relieved. He thanked the fellers fer easing his mind about gitting too much rest. He said he weren't putting no more thought on the matter. Personal, I think Bug is living proof that a feller can rest a long and full life. Farthermore, he proves if you don't never crank up you ain't likely to run your battery down on stops and starts.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

People who need glasses are apt to find the world pretty fuzzy without them. What appears as only a blur without their "specs" swings into sharp focus, once they've put them on.

If only there were glasses we could don quickly when we need to put ourselves, our problems, our successes and our failures into proper perspective! But that kind of lense has yet to be devised.

We all have moments when we seem to be groping and nothing comes clear. We wonder where we are going and, perhaps, why. We have such moments whether or not we go to church on Sundays—for the Church will not give us spectacles, rose-colored or otherwise, with which to view the world. But... the Church does teach us of God's world, it does teach us the meaning of Faith, it does show us life in its proper light.

Try going to church. If you do, you may find your "inner vision" getting a great deal sharper.
