

Survey indicates job outlook bright in area

A report from area industrial managers shows that the demand for production workers is being met without difficulty, but that openings for skilled tradesmen go sometimes unfilled.

Employers interviewed were managers of light industrial concerns in the Cass City area. The most common job classification reported was production worker, most of which were reported to be residing within a 25 mile radius of their place of employment.

Semi-skilled workers, mostly machine operators, received on-the-job training by the concern involved. A sudden demand for high skilled labor, they said, would create a manpower crisis.

The over-all job outlook, as seen by industrial employers, is that a slight turnover rate affords fairly good job opportunities with on-the-job training for advancement. A steady job market with minor increases is expected in the total number of job opportunities by industrial concerns.

In an industry-by-industry run-down, plant managers reported:

Kenneth Nye, personnel manager of Evans Products at Gagetown, reports a total employment of 150 hourly and salary employees. The summer months, Nye said, will boost that figure from 180 to 200.

Nye described their need for welders as critical. He said the company practically hires incoming welders on the spot.

The largest portion of their employee ranks are production workers.

Nye said college students provide the bulk of extra summer help that is needed. He said the company prefers the student to the "floating unemployed" because they "want to earn all the money they can for college." He said summer-time help was usually adequate.

He said that though the Michigan Employment Security Commission was very cooperative, their efforts "seldom get anyone who would come out here and work."

"They seldom have anyone we could place," he said. He said the company virtually never calls private job agencies or the Office of Economic Opportunity for referrals.

He said their competition for manpower stemmed from Caro and Elkhart plants and especially heavy industrial concerns in the Tri-City area.

Scott Kelley, manager of Cole Carbide in Cass City, reports 20 employees at present with a projected addition of 5 new hourly employees within the next year.

Kelley anticipated little problem in acquiring the new tradesmen "saying the company's own on-the-job training buffed up company employees to adequately handle the skill required in their advancement."

He reports prospective employees "usually come through the door," and that he hasn't had to advertise in 9 months. "We stick to local help," he said.

Kelley said he was investigating Delta College's programs for possible knowledge enrichment of employees to further enhance supervision skills.

"Surface grinderhands" is his most common job classification for which he has on-the-job training. "We start from scratch," he said.

Anthony Burian, plant manager at the Uby Bay View plant of Hamel Manufacturing, employs 140 employees, a seasonal low from their normal number of 200 total employees.

Seat belt manufacturers, the company's production schedule is seasonally down at the present time because of model changeovers. Burian said the company would have no layoffs this summer.

Burian said a common source of full time help was from area farms and also young people. Female production workers provide the bulk of their labor supply.

Burian anticipated little problem in filling manpower requirements for the plant in the coming year.

Olan Ramseyer, plant manager of the Nestle's plant at Uby, reported 76 employees presently.

Condensing milk from area dairy herds since the turn of the century, the plant employs a few machine operators but most are production workers from the Uby area.

Ramseyer said his manpower requirements were largely met by college boys during the summer months.

Rod Krueger of Anrod Screen Cylinder said, "We're getting all the help we need and require." The 30 employees presently employed produce industrial screen products.

Krueger hinted a possibility of a future expansion, but said if implemented it would require a nominal number of additional employees.

Prospective employees must pass a simple pegboard dexterity test to test the ability for assembling and handling materials. He said roughly half of his new employees come "through the door."

Krueger said the only time when jobs go begging is usually just before Christmas. After that, he said "they clock in here pretty heavy."

Richard Hodges at General Cable in Cass City reports 500 total employees with about 450 production workers, largely female.

Hodges describes the labor market as "very tight for our needs." We prefer, he said, employees who would like to bank their future with General Cable.

He said they have worked with Delta College in the past in enriching technical skills for company employees. The company produces electrical wiring products. He said a new need for skilled tradesmen would "definitely produce problems."

Hodges said the company advertises job opportunities in area radio and newspapers. Managerial and clerical prospective employees are subject to tests administered outside of the area.

Meet set to review fire, police calls

A problem in communication between the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department and Cass City Police and Fire Department officials will be hashed out in a round table discussion with the interested parties and the village council, it was decided Tuesday.

Cass City is hooked by direct line to the sheriff's department for both fire and police calls. When the calls come in the sheriff either sets off the fire alarm or handles the police call, usually by notifying the Cass City Police Department.

Chief Palmateer told the council that he was handling the calls locally during the day because of the time lag between the time the calls came to the sheriff and they were relayed to him.

He said it took 20 minutes to a couple of hours before he was notified. The problem is being experienced in other county communities, Palmateer says.

But with the fire calls not going to the sheriff during the day, the fire whistle could not be sounded automatically when the calls came through. Phones in 15 firemen's homes do automatically ring, however, whenever a fire call is placed.

The danger of the situation was apparent recently when a fire call was received during the day and only a couple of firemen were home to answer the phone and the blowing of the whistle was delayed.

The council wants no lag in either the police calls or the fire calls and the meeting set tentatively for next Tuesday night is designed to get some answers.

40 fight grass fire near landfill

A widespread grass fire swept an estimated 80-rod path east to the Cass River from the Elkhart Township Sanitary Land Fill Saturday.

About 40 fire fighters and volunteers, including about ten teenagers, fought the flames with water, brooms, and shovels. The Elkhart Township Fire Department was called at 4 p.m.

Department officials expressed appreciation to the volunteer teenagers who helped fight the widespread blaze.

No sooner had the department finished with the dump fire when a call was received for a grass fire at the Earl Griggs property 4 miles south of Cass.

Correction

In the story concerning the junkyard on M-53 in the April 24 issue of the Chronicle a reference was made to the business owned by Merl and Marv Winter.

The Chronicle reported that Edwin Comber said that the road was being turned into a rural slum.

Comber says that he was quoted out of context. In the next sentence the property of the Winters was mentioned.

The Chronicle did not mean to infer that the Winters who operate a trucking and used parts business on M-53 were the cause.

The paper regrets any inconvenience or embarrassment caused the Winters by the story.

Village receives 2 grants for park improvement

The Cass City Village received $2,000 in cash and a pledge of some $1,200 more for improvements at the Cass City Recreational Park at the regular session of the council Tuesday night at the Municipal Building.

The $2,000 was two-thirds of a previous Rotary Club commitment of $3,000 for use in park expansion.

The pledge of $1,200 was made by Tom Proctor as president of the Cass City Community Chest and is earmarked for the purchase of a pool water heater. Money is available because of increased donations in the Chest drive this year, especially in industry payroll deductions, Proctor explained.

The heater the Chest would purchase will be big enough to handle a larger pool if and when Cass City decides that it is needed, Proctor pointed out to the council as he presented specifications.

The village's share of the project would be to house the unit. The council made no definite agreement, but acceptance of the proposal is regarded as a virtual certainty.

The village will also have more money to operate the park program this summer. . . a total of $1,400 from various townships and agencies. Evergreen and Greenleaf townships contributed $100 each this year, the first time they had been asked to help.

Novesta increased its share to $200 and Elkhart upped its contribution to $500. The United Fund pays $500.

Dr. D. E. Rawson, of the park committee, said that work on the new Little League diamonds at the north side of the park would start as soon as the ground dries enough so that machinery can move in.

He said that it was possible that rough practice diamonds might be hacked out in the south park property.

Workers for the summer programs have been contacted and are about set, Rawson continued, but did not name them at the meeting.

Teachers set bargaining deadline

School to seek operating funds in June 9 election

The Cass City Board of Education voted Thursday in a special meeting to submit a second request for funds in the regular school election June 9.

The board held in abeyance the exact proposition to be presented but went on record as requesting a total of four mills for one year.

The previous vote, defeated by a substantial majority, was for four mills for three years.

Board members said that they heard several persons say that the increased levy, for three years might not be necessary if the State payment to schools is increased.

Therefore the decision was reached to request more operating millage for one year.

The millage will probably be broken down to give residents a choice of paying for all or parts of the program or accepting cuts in the curriculum that will be outlined well in advance of the vote.

Paradoxically, while the school is in dire operating financial condition, there is $52,000 left in the building fund earmarked for the completion of school construction.

It is unlawful for the school to use this money for operation. At the meeting Thursday, the board okayed plans for grading, draining and resurfacing the parking lot at the school. Estimated cost is some $28,000.

Superintendent Donald Crouse also presented results of special millage elections held since 1961.

In the three previous elections, there has been little change in the number voting for more operating millage.

When millage propositions were defeated it was a larger no vote that decided the issue.

In 1961 there were 732 votes cast for a two-mill proposition and it lost 317-413.

A 1962 three-mill measure lost 368-650 and a 1963 vote for 1 1/2 mills won 365-202. In the last election it was 398 yes to 674 no.

TEACHER DEADLINE

Members of the bargaining unit for the Cass City Educational Association issued a statement Saturday urging an early settlement of the contract between the teachers and the school district.

James MacTavish, chief negotiator, and Mrs. Betty Murphy, president, said that they felt it was in the best interest of the teachers, the school and the students to settle as soon as possible.

The union issued a deadline of June 12 for negotiations before a summer recess will be called. If settlement is not reached at this time the union team will not negotiate until Aug. 18.

MacTavish said that summer employment and other commitments by members of the team make it impossible to meet after June 12.

It appears doubtful that a master contract will be reached by the pre-recess deadline. The union has yet to submit a wage proposal for consideration.

Al Luce, school negotiator, says that he will be glad to bargain "within the framework of money that is available" to the school.

He is waiting for an offer from the school union and refuses to make an initial offer.

All union negotiations start, he says, when labor presents its demands for consideration of management.

A snag to an early settlement could be the uncertain school financial picture. While Luce is on record as bargaining within the framework of money available, the amount available today is highly uncertain.

Schools do not know how much is coming through State Aid and in Cass City the results of the final plea for funds will be unknown until June 9, three days before the deadline imposed by the union.

The next meeting of the bargaining teams has been scheduled for May 13. The last time the negotiators met the teams has decided to bargain on un-economic points in the contract.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

There will be another try for additional school operating funds June 9.

In the face of a nearly two to one defeat it is fair to ask why the board is submitting another proposition to the electorate.

It's a matter of communication.

Did the voters tell the school that it must cut curriculum and if so in what areas? Was it because the vote in Reese and Marlette was for one year that it passed while Cass City's 3-year levy request thudded to the ground?

These are hard rock questions and the answers are with the voters.

And since the question can be submitted to the voters June 9 in conjunction with the regular board election at little added expense, the proposition will be presented then.

There is general agreement among school board members that the next election will spell out in detail what is needed and what will happen if curriculum cuts are needed.

There is no lessening in the need. The four mills is still required to carry out the school's present program.

But on the ballot in June voters are apt to see more than one proposition. Instead of seeking a four-mill levy you may be asked to decide on two propositions totaling four mills of tax money.

For instance one proposition may ask for 1 1/2 mills and the second for 2 1/2 mills. Each proposition will spell out in detail what the funds will pay for.

These curriculum items have not been decided.

But (for instance) one levy could be used for paying for band or shop or art or vocal music. Another could be used to keep the grades from operating half days.

Whatever the final decision, it will be spelled out in detail so that the electorate knows what it is buying and what it is paying for.

And the decision will be final. The board has also gone on record that this is the last millage proposition that will face the voters for next year's school funds . . . win or lose.

There is always the danger in presenting the proposition with all alternatives spelled out that citizens will feel that they are being placed under duress.

That's probably the principal reason why alternatives were not spelled out before the first election.

But now with nowhere to go without more money, the board will present the grim (for education boosters) total picture.

They want no surprises or recriminations if the wishes of the majority are for less school for less money.

There shouldn't be any.

Council okays Hunt's road job offer

C. R. Hunt offered the village a road construction deal that the majority of the village council felt was just too good to pass up Tuesday night and as a result Doerr road from Garfield to Elmwood road will be completely rebuilt and blacktopped this spring.

The village will only be paying for a small portion of the total job. . . from Garfield to the south village limits.

Hunt guaranteed the council that the work would not cost over $3,500 and agreed to finance the project, due to the village's tight financial condition, for three years.

He pointed out that working in conjunction with the township-county road project the work would be much cheaper now than at any other time.

Discussion about the road tied in with the industrial expansion in the area and it was disclosed that interest had been shown in property owned by the Cass City Development Corporation by Industy.

Even with the advantages the money was spent reluctantly by trustees. All were aware of the many serious road conditions that prevail throughout the village and the need for money in these areas.

Trustee Ed Golding Jr. was the only trustee who felt that the other commitments were more important than the bargain offer and the council authorized the expenditure at the conclusion of the meeting long after Hunt left.

Other street and road work caused waves at the meeting, but results were nebulous.

The curb and gutter project that the council is most interested in is Oak from Garfield to Main. The village lacks about 25 feet of having the required 80 per cent of the property owned in the area under petition. Property owners in the block from Main to Pine have not signed.

A storm sewer drain starting from Church Street to the Donahue subdivision was investigated and proved too expensive for consideration at this time.

According to the village's consulting engineers a 36-inch drain tile is needed. Cost of the pipe alone was estimated at $16,000.

Eight residents from East Church Street attended the meeting to protest the dust on the road. Spokesman Basil Bligham asked for relief. The council promised to brine the road as soon as possible and to investigate the feasibility of oil-ing the road.

Rod Krueger appeared before the council to discuss sewer and water connections for a proposed addition to Anrod Screen Cylinder Co.

He was told that the cost for the work is estimated at $2970 and would have to be paid by the company.

CHANGE ZONING

With a petition in hand from all local property owners, the council agreed to change the zoning on Vulcan Street to industrial so that Harold Craig could tear down an old building and erect a new storage building.

Change will not be effective until after a hearing is held. Although it appears that Cass

City workers were not responsible for the large grass fire that started at the Sanitary Landfill last week, President Lambert Althaver said, the blaze illustrates a problem at the landfill.

General Cable Corporation takes about 25 truckloads of waste to the landfill every week, Althaver explained. It is separated to be burnable. Mostly cardboard and old pallets. He emphasized that it was hauled away because the village had asked the company not to burn at the plant site.

It is too bulky not to burn, Althaver continued, and I have no suggestions at this time, but felt the council should be aware of the situation.

In other business, it was disclosed that Cass City will not participate in Mayor's exchange and Ed Golding Jr. and Bernard Ross were named to a committee to help the township officials with the Memorial Day program.

Sanilac Co. slates free hearing tests

"Hearing is a priceless gift-guard it with a hearing test," says Roy Dennis, acting Director of the Sanilac County Health Department.

Dennis today announced that any adult resident of Sanilac county area, 18 years of age or older, may obtain a free hearing test.

This free test takes only two minutes. A professional hearing therapist advises persons who fail the test.

Hearing tests will be given in the sound-treated mobile testing unit at various locations including Snover Fire Hall, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday, May 6.

Who was the biggest long shot ever to win a Kentucky Derby? Answer is Donerail who won the 1913 Derby... The odds on Donerail were 92 to 1.

Did you know that only once in the 93-year history of the Kentucky Derby has a female horse been able to win... Who was the only female to win the Derby? It was Regret, in 1915.

Here's an oddity about the Triple Crown of horseracing... As you know, to win the Triple Crown a horse must win the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont... Oddly enough, in the eight years from 1941 through 1948, four different horses were able to win the Triple Crown -- but in the 20 years since then, no horse has been able to do it... The four who did it between 1941 and 1948 were Whirlaway in 1941... Count Fleet in 1943... Assault in 1946... And, Citation in 1948.

Final rites held for Mrs. Alvin Smith

Mrs. Alvin C. Smith, 63, succumbed Saturday, April 26, in her rural Caro home following an illness of two months.

MRS. ALVIN C. SMITH

News From District Court

Florence Etta Connolly of Cass City paid $20 fines and costs for following too close with an auto on M-46 on Jan. 20. She was ticketed by Trooper Roubal Carey of the Sandusky State Police Post.

Lyle Clarence Schember of Cass City paid $15 fines and costs for not having regular plates on his auto while in Caro Jan. 24.

He was ticketed by Deputy Richard R. Hunt of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

This is a partial Justice Court report of the week's traffic ticket fines. The remaining of this weeks will be included with the rest next week.

The Want Ads are newsy too.

Funeral services were held Monday, April 28, at the Colwood United Brethren Church, of which she was an active member. Burial was in Almer Cemetery.

Born in Tuscola county Nov. 7, 1905, she was a long-time rural school teacher in the county. Following graduation from Tuscola County Normal in 1928, she taught at the Thane School in Ellington township for two years.

In 1931 she received a life certificate from Central Michigan College after which she taught Hillside school in Elmwood township.

She and Mr. Smith were married Nov. 29, 1933, and the couple made their home in the area.

In 1952 she returned to the teaching profession and earned a B.S. degree from CMU, Mt. Pleasant, in 1963.

Survivors, besides her husband, include two daughters, Mrs. Kendall (Kathryn) Hobart of Erie, Penn., and Mrs. Walter (Marilyn) Dickerson of Albuquerque, New Mexico, and four grandsons. Others include a sister, Mrs. Elton Smith of De Witt, Mich., and her father, Isaac Thane of De Witt.

JOB OUTLOOK

training on the job and their main skilled classification is wire machine operator. Most employees, he said, start out as material handlers or assemblers.

Walbro's manager, Lambert Althaver, reports 200 employees presently and is optimistic for an improved year over 1968 in terms of an increased production schedule.

He said a new model of carburetor within the existing line accounts for the possible increase.

Althaver expressed concern over the "national trend and economy" and reviewed the "number of pressures to slow down."

"We can't help feel it here," he said, mentioning the "high cost of money to carry on normal business is bound to be felt."

He added however, that the increased production schedule was on the basis of a "fairly conservative point of view in what our growth is going to be."

The spokesman for Active Industries at Elkton reported a seasonal low of about 550 employees which will increase to about 600 this summer, a normal summer high.

He reported the company nearly consistently had openings for production workers.

He said most of the new help for summer came from area high school grads and college students and returning veterans.

Electricians was one job classification in critical demand at the plant, he said.

The company advertises its job openings in area radio and newspapers and checks with the Michigan Employment Security Commission for available help.

The company provides on-the-job training for production operators and other job classifications.

Bank and the project by the Caro Lions Club.

Also, I commiserate with you in lamenting the slowness on the part of people to accept new ideas, and in the change of attitudes required to effect desirable progress. Hence the gap between needs and responses. Such has been true in every field of human and social endeavor: Medical science, politics, religion and in other fields. Racial prejudice and injustice and war and such have also been with us for a long time - far too long and need to be uprooted for peaceful progress.

We need voices and media to propound, to protest and to point the way - and "to sin by silence," said Ella Wheeler Wilcox, "When we should speak makes cowards out of men..." and the few who dare must speak and speak again to right the wrongs of many" - and to speed up possible and desirable change.

You may or may not know of another bank, "The Temporal Bone Bank" - interested in securing bequests of inner-ear structures for research study. Bequests are only wanted from persons who have serious hearing impairment, deafness, or any inner-ear trouble such as caused from Meniere's disease (which causes "objective rotary vertigo episodes" - wow do I know.) Stapes surgery is the latest method of controlling or curing the trouble at the same time saving the level of hearing the patient has at time.

I'm sure you will be interested to know (and perhaps surprised) that I have a year ago, bequeathed my temporal bones at death, to the Midwestern Temporal Bone Bank Center of the Medical School of the University of Chicago.

Over a year ago I recommended to our Rotary Club a program with a 28 minute film showing and explaining the T.B. Bank and its work and aims. Also, that we sponsor securing bequests. Somehow it fell by the wayside, for progress and concern are slow as you say with regard to the projected new. It is quite possible that another community organization will sponsor the educational program and follow up with data pertaining to securing bequests. I highly commend it.

Very cordially yours,
Mel Vender

P.S. As if May did not have enough special days, weeks for emphasis, it is also National Temporal Bone Bank Month.

Cass City Chronicle

Cass City, Michigan

Attention: Editor of the article "Petitioners move to block new junkyards."

Dear Editor:

After reading your article on "Petitioners move to block new junkyards", I was very disturbed for two main reasons, namely:

1. Our business was started in 1936, even before M-53 was a main highway, and would be hardly considered a new junkyard by most knowledgeable people. Besides, the "junk business" and "junk piles" to which you so nicely refer, are an operation which we have been phasing out for the past few years, due to the very low margin of profit. If you would of been more thorough in your investigation you would of found that our main source of revenue is from the purchasing and repairing of trucks for re-sale.

You undoubtedly are not familiar, or interested, in the fact that we have to be bonded and also licensed by the State of Michigan, in order to be in business. Wouldn't it be a sign of a good editor to print all the facts, and not just those which please them? The new junkyards you refer to, are they bonded, and licensed by the State of Michigan?

2. If a person was to purchase property, wouldn't it be a fair assumption that he would check into the surrounding area, for zoning, types of business, etc., before such purchase? I believe this would only be an elementary prerequisite.

In conclusion, I feel that your incomplete report, has put a 33 year old business, which is essentially inactive, in a category of new junkyards which probably doesn't even meet with the State of Michigan's approval.

Sincerely,
Marv Winter

Rabbit tracks

BY JOHN HAIRE

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Every trade or profession has its own unique initiation for novices. In printing we used to show the printer's devil "type lice". The trick was to pour water in a corner of a galley, intice the victim to look close to see them floating on top of the water and then slam the water into his face.

The Michigan Senate is a little more refined, Senator Alvin DeGrow, who represents us in Lansing, discovered. DeGrow is the only Freshman in the Senate this year as he was voted in to fill a vacancy.

The other day he submitted his first bill... an innocuous measure sure to please all; offend no one. It provided that township supervisors could file for office and post a $100 deposit that is returned if the candidate finishes first or second in the race instead of being forced to have petitions signed.

"It is the same option that other candidates have. I didn't think much about it but suddenly I realized that the vast majority of my colleagues were voting against this bill. I couldn't understand it... it wasn't costing anybody anything and it was pleasing to the supervisors."

When the roll was over only two had voted for passage, DeGrow continued, and I didn't realize I'd been had until they all broke out laughing.

"Welcome to the club," they said, and then voted to reconsider the bill and passed it without incident.

We welcome to the Chronicle club of correspondents, Mrs. Frank Little who starts writing the Deford news this week.

We've said before and say again how dependent we are on our correspondents and how pleasing it is to have them volunteer to write.

Certainly with the amount of money papers have for paying them the rewards have to be more than financial.

I used to like to go fishing with Harry Little. But this year I think I'll avoid him like the plague. How would you like to listen to a fish story all year and know it's true?

Nobody can top his efforts of last week end. He came home with four steelhead (lake run rainbow trout) weighing about 30 pounds dressed. He caught them on the Little Manistee and early this week they were in a freezer at Fort's Store.

As far as Harry's concerned they could remain there forever. He catches them but never eats them. How could a trout hater be so lucky?

Sentence Sieland 12-30 years

Four criminal cases were heard by Judge James Churchill in Tuscola County Circuit Court in Caro Tuesday.

Joseph Sieland II, of Caro was sentenced for armed robbery for 12 to 30 years in the Jackson prison. He robbed the Willmot grocery store of Mrs. Ada Hirschberger Feb. 16.

Gary Miller of Vassar was sentenced for probation violation for not reporting to his probation officer. His three-year probation for larceny of a pair of shoes from K-Mart at Saginaw June 4, 1968, was continued.

Jeff Rothaus of Millington pleaded guilty to a probation violation and he will be sentenced May 5.

Hurley Israel of Cass City was arraigned for writing "3 or more insufficient funds checks within 10 days." He pleaded innocent and a trial date remains to be set.

Winning $30 for third place was David Pinkoski, guitar player from Gagetown.

Others taking home prize money were: Debbie Turpin, baton twirler from Crosswell, fourth; girls' vocal quartet from Owendale, fifth, and the Condemned, a band from Gagetown, sixth.

Hawks show power with 2 victories

Cass City opened its quest for a Thumb B Conference baseball crown with an easy 8-1 victory over Sandusky last week behind the one-hit pitching of Klm Hopper.

In addition to the Conference win, the Hawks pounded out an 11-7 decision over Mayville with Rob Alexander getting credit for the win.

Hopper allowed only a fourth inning single by Trainer in the Sandusky victory. He whiffed 12 and walked just two. He was helped by Cass City's 13-hit attack and errorless support.

A scoreless deadlock was broken in the fourth when Cass City scored six times to ice the game. John Bifoss singled, Smentek slammed a triple, scoring Bifoss. Tom Kolb walked and Tony Davis squeezed Smentek home and reached first on an error. Eselman walked and Taylor singled, scoring Kolb and Davis.

Alexander and Hopper followed with base knocks to chase home Eselman and Taylor with the fifth and sixth runs in the rally.

Taylor banged out four hits in five tries to lead Hawk sluggers.

Against Mayville, Alexander limited the losers to four hits, but was bothered by wildness, walking seven. He struck out 12 with his humming fast ball. He pitched the first six innings and Hopper mopped up in the seventh.

It was actually a laughing game for Cass City which scored seven times in the second.

The Hawks unleashed extra base hitting power in the victory. Hopper slammed out a home run and a triple and Wencley slammed a double in the ninth-hit attack.

Kolb, with two hits, including a home run, in three tries and four runs batted in, and Hopper, with two hits in four tries and five RBIs, were the top stickers. Bifoss also picked up two hits in three tries.

In the opening game of the season two weeks ago, the Hawks bowed to Sebewaing in a tight, well-played ball game, 4-3.

The line scores: Sand. 000 0100 C C 000 6020 CC 8 runs, 13 hits, 0 errors. Sandusky 1 run, 1 hit, 1 error. May. 103 030 0 C C 074 040 x Mayville 7 runs, 4 hits, 5 errors. CC 11 runs, 9 hits, 2 errors. Seb. 000 040 0 CC 001 200 0

A. Eubank at Hearing Convo

Mr. Erwin, teacher for deaf children, with the Flint Mott Foundation, was the guest speaker at the April 21 meeting of the Thumb Area Hearing Association.

Erwin chose as his subject, Play - for preschool as well as school children.

Mrs. Doris Sheridren of Fairgrove and Andy Eubank of Cass City attended the annual state convention for better hearing at Lansing.

AREA FIRES

Thursday, April 24th, the department responded to a grass fire at the home of Walter Burke at Deford. Officials reported the fire was started without a permit.

Friday, April 25th, a grass fire started by papers from a trash can was ignited at the residence of Edwin Comber. The property, owned by Basil Wotton, is located on Pringle Road.

A car caught fire on Decker-ville Road Saturday at 8 p.m. The car was completely devastated and officials reported the fire started in the engine of the car.

The owner, D. C. Kelley of Deford, said he drove less than 1/2 mile from his home when the engine exploded and flames shot from under the hood. Kelley said the auto, including two new front tires, was demolished, though the engine may be salvageable.

While fighting the car fire, a call was received for a grass fire 6 miles south of Cass City in Novesta Township near the home of A.L. Messing of Deford. Officials reported a permit was not procured for the fire.

Fire, believed caused by bad wiring, resulted in damage to a village pump house at Gagetown Thursday evening, April 24. Gagetown firemen were called at 9 p.m. and confined the blaze to the building. Damage was estimated at $500.

New equipment now operating at Hills and Dales

The latest addition to the equipment in the physical therapy department at Hills and Dales General Hospital, purchased by the hospital auxiliary, is a $674 electrically operated bath lift which arrived and was put to work last week.

Much of the money for the various equipment purchased by the auxiliary is earned in the annual bridge marathon.

This year's marathon is nearly over and Mrs. James Champion, president, urgently requests that games be completed as quickly as possible. Prizes are awarded to the high scoring pair in each group.

Mrs. Horace Bolen and Mrs. James Gross were co-chairmen of the membership tea Friday. Twenty-five members were received and others wishing to pay the $2 dues for active or inactive membership should contact Mrs. George Murray, treasurer.

Pouring at the afternoon tea were: Mrs. E. Eastman, Mrs. C. Haythorn, Mrs. C. Law, Mrs. C. W. Price, Mrs. L. Taylor and Mrs. C. W. Wallace.

Hawks win 1 point in Gavel meet

Tom Guinther placed in the high hurdles in the Cass City Gavel Invitational Saturday to win Cass City its only point in the meet that was won by a comfortable margin by Flint Kearsley. Twenty-three schools participated.

The tough Flint school continued its domination of the meet picking up 72 points and setting two of the three new track records. It was Kearsley's eighth victory in the 11 years the meet has been held and its fourth team victory in a row.

Kearsley finished far in front of second place West Bloomfield which scored 28 points while annexing the trophy for the class B team with the most points.

Frankenmuth won the trophy as the Class C entry with the most points (21). Records set included Kearsley's Bob Bonnell's :52 in the 440-yard dash, erasing the :52.3 set by Gordon Aldrich of Akron-Fairgrove in 1966.

Kearsley set a record in the medley relay. The team's 2:34.25 erased last year's record of 2:34.5 set by Bay City John Glenn.

The other record was set by Mt. Morris which ran the 880-yard relay with a mark of 1:33.5 beating Frankenmuth's 1959 clocking of 1:34.

Cass City Coach Robert Watson was pleased with the performance of Cass City's thin clads in the meet. We didn't win any points to speak of, he said, but several of our boys came up with their best times of the season.

We're getting ready for the Chip relays at Mt. Pleasant this week, Watson predicts that the Hawk entry will win points in the annual event that attracts top teams from mid-Michigan.

Scientist slate Cousins' lecture at Caro Church

"The Achievement of Spiritual Healing" is the subject for a Christian Science lecture to be presented to the public on Thursday, May 8, by First Church of Christ, Scientist, Caro.

Francis William Cousins, C.S.B., of Manchester, England, will be the speaker, beginning at 8 p.m. in the church, corner Lincoln and Pearl Sts. There is no charge for admission, and everyone is welcome.

Mr. Cousins was formerly associated for over 30 years with a company of West African merchants. He resigned from this business in 1951 to devote his full time to the public practice of Christian Science healing.

27 poisonings treated in Cass City in year

In the last year, officials at Hills and Dales General Hospital have treated 27 cases of poisoning, Jon Fahrner, lab technician, told members of the Cass City Rotary Club Tuesday noon.

The situation in Cass City is similar, he explained, to the problem nationally. Of the cases treated in our modern emergency poison control center, 19 were children five years old or younger.

Fahrner said that aspirin was the most frequent cause of poisoning here and nationally.

Across the country, 900,000 persons are poisoned each year and 2 1/2 thousand of them die, Fahrner pointed out. Poison comes from sedatives, sleeping pills, detergents, lyes, insecticides and similar everyday items. The vast majority occur around the home. Detecting the cause of poisoning is difficult, the hospital lab technician pointed out, but a new modern machine acquired several years ago helps.

It can detect the cause of poisoning from within two to 30 minutes, depending on the type of poison involved.

Shirley McIntosh given MSU honors

Shirley McIntosh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Brown, was one of 10 seniors in Business and Distributive Education at Michigan State University honored in ceremonies Wednesday evening, April 23, at the Union Ballroom on the campus.

Letters of recognition for scholastic achievement and participation in school activities were presented by Dr. Peter Haines of the Business Education Department.

Presently Mrs. McIntosh is president of the Delta Delta Sorority at Michigan State University of Pi Omega Pi, the National Education Honorary.

Schneeberger at management school

Returned from an intensive course in appliance retail business management at the Whirlpool Educational Center in Benton Harbor is Clarence Schneeberger, owner of Schneeberger TV Appliance Furniture, Cass City.

"If It Fitz..."

It's hard to be a rotten kid

BY JIM FITZGERALD

It's incredible - but comforting - that Scurvy could still be alive and well in a Detroit burlesque theatre.

It's comforting to be reminded that kids didn't always get their behind-the-barn kicks by smoking pot and printing dirty words in school newspapers. They used to skip school and steal away to the big city to see strippers jiggle while baggy-panted comedians panted.

It's incredible that Scurvy could still be at it. I first saw him in 1942 and he didn't look too young then. But there was an ad in the Free Press, just last week, for the National Theatre, "Detroit's biggest & best burlesque." And it said "hilarious comedy by the one and only, original Scurvy." He must be 90 by now, the world's oldest Dirty Old Man.

Ah, nostalgia... A dozen high school boys would leave home for school but go to the poolroom instead. We'd then break up into groups of 2 or 3 and hitch-hike 60 miles to Detroit where we'd assemble in front of the Avenue Burlesk. There was no question of a kid having his own car, or swiping his Dad's. It was early in World War II and everything was rationed except a father's wrath. But thumbing a ride was easy. When a motorist stopped, I'd tell him we were on our way to Detroit to enlist in the Marines. At the same time, my buddies would sing "Remember Pearl Harbor." I remember one old man who not only gave us a ride but also $1 each with the admonishment to "kill one for me."

The box office sign said minors weren't allowed inside the Avenue. But they had a bicycle rack outside. I was 14 the first time I went and the kids with me called me Pop. To be too young to buy a ticket to the Avenue, you had to be a fetus.

We sat in the front row. The comics were always peering down and saying something hilarious, such as "I see kindergarten got out early today." Boy, we would fall on the floor. The first comic who said this to us became famous on TV about 10 years later. Remember Pinky Lee? He was a lot funnier at the Avenue.

The prat-fallers were fun. So were the hucksters who sold pictures previously available only in France. To fully appreciate the photos, you had to hold them up to a bright light. That meant you had to go home before you learned you'd been gypped. There were dirtier pictures in the National Geographic.

But all of that was incidental. We were at the Avenue to see the girls take it off. Zowie. They'd flick their tassels right in our noses. The drummer would whop his drum, a red-head would shake her shaker, and I was a man of the world. What was there left for me to do, except maybe kiss Betty Grable? And hurry back to school to tell the sissies what they'd missed.

That was yesterday. Kids don't sneak off to burlesque houses today. Why bother? On the TV Academy Award show, Barbra Streisand showed as much skin as any Avenue stripper. Many waitresses dress below the belt only, and not much there. If a movie doesn't have a nude scene, it probably isn't a talkie.

This doesn't mean the kids are worse today. It just means the burlesque business is lousy. The strippers have diversified, with outlets on every corner, and you'd better check out the Avon lady before asking her in to meet Grandmother.

We adults have fashioned a world in which it's darn hard for Junior to feel illicit and illegal. He can't do it behind the barn because it's a glass carport. He can't do it laughing at Scurvy because Mom is home laughing at dirtier jokes on the Johnny Carson show.

That's progress, I guess, just like air conditioning and antiballistic missiles. Only an old fogey would knock it. But please pass me a bright light while I thumb through my old scrapbooks.

AMAZED...

I tell a few war stories—just like the rest. The censorship of good taste and modesty makes my experiences pretty drab. But Jerry thrills to them. He's proud of his Dad's Purple Heart!

My son would be amazed if I were to tell him the stories we never tell, our thoughts as we hit the beach... what it was like in those jungles... what war does to its dead... and its living.

And in other ways Jerry would be amazed; for he doesn't know me as a man who prays often. He can't realize the depth of my faith. He has never met the brave chaplain who brought me in when I was hit.

I'll never tell Jerry all of it. I don't think God wants me to!

I pray that Jerry's may be a different world. I want him to learn day by day, step by step, what his religion will mean to him!

That's why we're a church-going family!

Band Boosters plan banquet

The Band Boosters held a meeting Monday evening in the band room of Cass City High School.

The sixth grade band played a number of selections.

Director William Ferguson gave a report of the candy sale and Mrs. Lenore Field reported results of the bake sale.

It was decided to have an awards banquet May 22 at the school cafeteria. A committee was named and will meet Thursday at the home of Mrs. A. Eubank.

FIRING LINE

A loser in a vicious convention

By Richard Haines

It was a vicious convention. The opposition, the "right wing" sector of the Michigan College Republicans, collided head-on last week end with us "moderates" at the Jack Tar Hotel in Lansing.

The "moderates" were split between straight-arrow John Cameron of Albion College and myself, facing a calm and sincere, but hard-driving Rusty Frank from Eastern Michigan University.

I had been campaigning for state chairman on week ends and evenings for four months. My General Telephone bill, with my nickel per minute rate after 10 p.m. showed nearly 1,000 minutes registered last month.

My swinging campaign suite at the hotel was kept lively with the aid of my twin, Bob, a live band, and two kegs of beer. It was a thriving clog of human existence.

Over 400 delegates attended and it was a political machine vs. political machine convention. The right wingers and the moderates each held over 150 votes.

But the moderates were split between Cameron and me and, by midnight Friday night, I was aware that Frank was the leading candidate, and that Cameron was second.

I didn't have the votes to win the state chairmanship, but I did have enough to decide which of them would win.

I was both "out" and "in" and it was a position of defeat, of frustration, and of power.

Even previous to the convention, Frank and his key campaign manager, Harry Verseyer of the University of Detroit had offered me full time salaried positions as a club organizer for 13 Midwestern States.

The three of us and another campaign manager of Russ's came to know each other well through these discussions. All of them, especially Verseyer were articulate, determined, and hard-driving campaigners. We had held high level talks in Ann Arbor, Grand Rapids, Lansing, and even Cass City. I had received representatives from the (right wing) Washington based national chairman, Gary Fairchild.

No such deals were offered by my own "moderate" camp. For us, there was no need to agree that whoever had the most convention votes would have to receive the solid support of the "moderates," or else the "moderates" couldn't win anything. That was understood.

But when we met in secret session at 2:30 a.m. away from the hotel where the convention was being held, I decided not to yield until we got a more accurate picture of the projected delegation tallies. We would meet again at 7:30 for breakfast.

The "discussion leader" at this secret session was Chuck Tyson, a large-jawed party worker who has his eyes on the chairmanship of the Republican State Central Committee.

Both Tyson and Verseyer keep their respective party leaders in line, to prevent a take-over by the opposing camp, and they are the subject of a lot of hostility for it.

At 4 a.m. (most campaign leaders are gallantly determined and appear to need little sleep) a Verseyer henchman came, saying Harry wanted to talk to me.

Shortly thereafter, Harry came and the extra rooms of my suite were being used and we retreated into a grimy-grey colored fire exit stairway that smelled as bad as it looked.

There, I sat on a lid of a garbage can and a passing thought occurred to me that if this was the deal that I would agree to, it should definitely be named the Garbage Can Agreement.

We reviewed the tallies and excluding my votes, Harry's tally showed them leading Cameron (and this later was confirmed). I had been disenchanted the last past half-year with the old "moderate" team and personally liked both Harry and Russ.

I alluded to Harry I could probably swing Grand Valley's votes to him, since Grand Valley was strongly anti-Cameron anyway, allowing him to win, thereby allowing me no violation of conscience by giving the rest of my votes to Cameron.

According to everybody's tallies, Russ Frank would win anyhow. But Grand Valley, with a very large delegation was the guarantee of Russ's victory.

By 7:30 a.m. I was back with Tyson's group. I had decided by that time that my siding with the "Right" would render me distrustful for many years to come. I agreed to accept Treasurer on the "moderate" ticket, that of Cameron's. I would be giving Russ and Harry the axe.

The deal was then closed and the problem now was to "deliver" the campus delegations in support of my previous candidacy for chairman.

I talked to the delegations and we anticipated no serious problems, at least with my delegations.

When the first ballot was finished, Frank was way ahead. But several delegations had passed and several others were announcing vote changes.

The vote changing was fantastic and indicated considerable arm-twisting and outright coercion.

Nearly twenty minutes had elapsed and voter changes were still being announced. Suddenly the large delegation of Grand Valley's followed my endorsement of Cameron and changed the election to a victory for Cameron. Tom Selles, chairman of the delegation who had committed all he could to my candidacy from the start, had been badly disenchanted with the leadership of the "moderates", yet was unwilling to give the chairmanship to the "Right", when their delegation was pivotal in the outcome.

Cameron's victory was then announced by the convention chairman.

Minutes later, I walked up to Harry. We had come to be good friends before the convention. But instead of his traditionally friendly manner, his was a frustrated cold stare.

"I'm sorry, Harry," I said, my arm on his shoulder. "Don't expect any unity when you come to Detroit," he said. "We're still friends, Harry," I said.

He looked at me and said little, with a look that's difficult to forget.

A tremorous Richard Haines took no more than two steps away, then a tear skipped down his cheek.

The elections of vice-president, and secretary went through similarly ferocious balloting with vote changes.

By the time nominations were being made for treasurer, I knew they were out to get me. The axe has two sides.

The problem was compounded by a fellow who had previously been promised treasurer on Cameron's slate and he could not be persuaded to withdraw for the sake of the moderate cause, and a first ballot badly split the moderates.

Less committed delegates knew a deal had been made and had been alienated by the whole affair. A candidate for credentials for state chairman usually has far more than adequate credentials for treasurer, but some still resented the fact a deal had obviously been made.

Support of the "moderate's machine" quickly derailed the candidacy of my "moderate" colleague; however, the delegates had become alienated against some of the rulings of the convention chairman, who was part of the "moderate" team, as well as by the "deal" affair.

My opponent for treasurer won, 160 to 140.

At the moment, I was physically and psychologically shot.

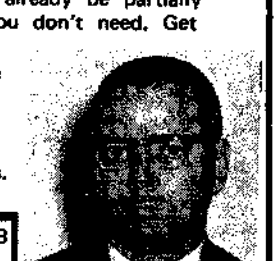

Somehow, a political convention seems a naked spectacle of the human race.

From St. Pancratius Women's Council, Mrs. Clarence Erla, Mrs. Richard Erla, Mrs. George Murray and Mrs. J.D. Tuckey attended the annual Conference of the Saginaw Diocesan Council of Catholic Women, held at Delta College. Miss Doris Gautier, of the Alpena Deanery, was installed as president for a two-year term. The program included panels for discussion of three commissions, Family Life, Community Life and Legislation; a Bible Service, conducted by Rev. A. Lacki, and a musical presentation entitled "New Image," by Fathers L. Lynch and A. Lacki.

The in-coming president of the Women's Council, Mrs. Clarence Erla, has named Mrs. Kenneth Mahary and Mrs. Garfield Turner as co-chairmen of the Mother-Daughter Banquet to be held Wednesday, May 21, in the Social Hall.

At the regular monthly meeting May 5, the new Council officers will be installed by past president, Mrs. George Murray, who is also chairman of the 6:30 p.m. potluck installation dinner, assisted by Miss C. Garety, Mrs. V. Izdorek and Mrs. J. Quinn.

Mrs. Edward Hahn was chairman of the successful rummage sale held in April.

Owendale Lions net $60 in Gagetown

The Owendale Lions Club collected some $60 recently in the annual Tag Sale Day, Ed Good Jr. reported this week.

The money will be used for sight conservation in the Owendale School District, for the Leader Dog School at Rochester, Mich., and the Welcome Home for the Blind.

Club members expressed appreciation to the Gagetown Village Council for allowing the sale in the village.

Alec Kovach is the club president.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Langlois

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Langlois of Gagetown will be honored at an open house Sunday, May 4, celebrating their 45th wedding anniversary. The affair, which is planned by the couple's children, will be at the Unionville School cafeteria from 2-5 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Langlois were married May 7, 1924, at St.

Agatha church, Gagetown, by Father Hennigen.

They have five children, Howard, Harold, Lawrence and Richard, all of Gagetown, and Mrs. Marilyn Balzer of Unionville. They also have 11 grandchildren.

The couple requests that no gifts be given.

Leslie Hinds Wed 50 years

Approximately 45 persons honored Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hinds on their 50th wedding anniversary April 27 at the home of Mr. Hinds' sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Willerton of Argyle.

Present for the occasion were their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cambridge of Moonbeam, Ont., Canada, and their son, Jack Hind of London, Ont., and a granddaughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Denis Richard and Tommy of Pointe Claire, Quebec.

Grandsons John Cambridge of Thessalon, Ont., and Edward Cambridge of Southorpe, England, were unable to attend.

Attending from a distance were Mr. Hinds' brother, Jack Hind of Port Wayne, Ind., and sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. George Guy from Hillman, Mich., also nieces and nephews from Windsor, Ont., Atlanta, Warren, Midland, Hemlock and Argyle. Greetings were also received from Maple Shade, New Jersey, and El Paso, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Hind were married in Hastings, England, April 26, 1919. Mr. Hind worked for Canadian Bell for over 50 years and served in the Canadian Army during World Wars I and II.

AAUW schedules May 10 luncheon

The annual May luncheon meeting of the Cass City Branch of the American Association of University Women will be held in conjunction with the Huron county branch at 12:30 p.m. May 10. The Cass City group will be guests of the Huron County Branch at Sherwood Forest Country Club in Gagetown.

James A. Lefew, assistant professor of speech and director of theater at Delta College, will be the speaker. He addressed the Cass City Branch last year. April 19, 1969, he received the $500 Bergstein Award for his extraordinary rating as a teacher by students and for his work in theater at Delta College.

Guests are invited, and non-members of AAUW should contact Evelyn MacRae (2-3365) or Ann McDaniel (2-3353) before May 4. Reservations for the luncheon are $4.00. The Association will hold its annual book sale during Side-walk Sale Days in Cass City. To donate books, persons may call Mrs. Brewster Shaw or Mrs. C.W. Price.

A group from Cass City AAUW may go to the Art Institute in Ann Arbor this summer. Persons interested should contact Holly Althaver.

Tuesday morning the last-regularly scheduled assembly for this year was held. Mr. Jan Berkshire, comedian and magician, entertained the student body. For a number of his tricks, Mr. Berkshire requested audience participation. Among those who assisted him were: Patti Wood, Cindy Strickland, Al Pugh, Steve Batts, and Gary Vollmar.

In closing Mr. Berkshire performed his famous feat of eating razor blades!

Wednesday the freshmen, sophomores, and juniors all held class meetings to plan their stands for the Twirp Week Carnival, which is scheduled for Friday, May 9.

Thursday Cass City's Junior Varsity baseball team opened their season on the right foot with a 6-3 victory over the Caro J.V. squad.

Cass City's Fred Harbec allowed only four hits while Caro gave up seven. Key hits were Bob Hennessey's two-run double in the second inning and Dan Caister's two-run double in the fifth.

CCHS's journalism class attended the 22nd annual North Central Michigan Interscholastic High School Press Conference last Friday at Central Michigan University.

Guest speakers at the day-long conference, which is sponsored by CMU's department of journalism, were David Miller, news editor of the Bay City Times, and Norris Ingells, photographer-reporter with the Lansing State Journal.

The students were divided into groups to attend work sessions of their choice.

Saturday the State Future Farmers of America Contest was held at Michigan State University in East Lansing. Cass City's FFA chapter sent three judging teams. These were: Livestock Judging: Dave and Dennis Little, Dan Caister, Dairy Judging: Randy Hampshire, Lee Deering, Bob DeLong.

Soil Judging: Dave Milligan, Larry Laming, Dave Deering. Cass City's teams competed with teams from over 100 FFA chapters, throughout the state of Michigan. In each judging division the students were given specimens to evaluate. The evaluations were then judged by professionals in the various divisions.

On April 24th and 25th, Diane Rabideau, Yvonne Erla, Geraldina Toro, Carmen Danjou, and Mrs. Thomas Jackson attended the Future Homemakers of America State Convention at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo.

The convention drew about 1500 delegates, members and advisors from 272 chapters throughout Michigan. The theme of the convention was "FHA—A Voice In the Nation," while emphasis was placed on two main topics—citizenship and manners and morals.

Last Friday was the Thumb B Student Council's Battle of the Bands at C.C.H.S. An estimated 400 turned out for the event, making it a success. First place in the contest was awarded to "The Dead Ends" of Vassar placed second; and "The Brotherhood" of Bad Axe placed third.

In their recent bake sale, the band boosters raised $104.70.

FIVE YEARS AGO

William Kitzman, Cass City businessman, was named the new president of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce.

Herb Ludlow received the "Citizen of the Year" plaque from Mrs. James Bauer, retiring Chamber of Commerce president, at the annual banquet held at the high school.

Harold Kilbourne of Deford is in Hills and Dates General Hospital recovering from an eye wound suffered when he ran into a clothes line while taking a shortcut home.

Joining in the ownership of Croft-Clara Lumber, Inc., are Orville Mallory, Elwyn Helwig and Bill Repshinski. They have purchased the interest of George Clara in the lumber business.

Charles Iseler, Cass City

High School senior, received one of the highest music honors given on a local scale when he was awarded the Harold Ferguson Memorial Award at the Spring Band Concert at the high school.

TEN YEARS AGO

Larry Seale, 12, of Cass City Public School, has been chosen to represent his fellow Cass City safety patrolers at the 25th National AAA Safety Patrol Rally at Washington, D.C.

Officers of the newly organized Tuscola County Minutemen Association are: Don Thompson of Caro, chairman; Albert Schroeder of Akron, vice-chairman; John Fish of Cass City, secretary; Albert Casche of Caro, treasurer; and Willard Rahn of Vassar, program chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Gekater will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house at the Deerfield Township Hall.

The 30th annual meeting of the Tuscola County Federation of Women's Clubs was held at the Cass City Methodist church. Highlight of the meeting was the election of officers. Elected president of the County Federation was Mrs. Sherwood Rice Jr. of Gagetown.

Judith Gremel, valedictorian of the Cass City High School class of 1958, has been notified by the committee on scholarships of Michigan State University that she has been awarded an Honors Scholarship to that school.

Dr. E. P. Lockwood announced that he had moved his office from 408 West Street to the new location, Downing at Main Street, across from Little's Funeral Home.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Staff Sergeant Robert Speirs, 21, a member of the Army Air Corps, is reported missing in action over Germany.

Homor Hiltaker has resigned as sheriff of Tuscola county because of poor health. An asthmatic condition has consistently grown worse and doctors advised a change of climate for the official.

Herman Charter, Elkland township farmer, brought in his 1942 crop of oats to the Farm Produce Co. for which he was paid $227.07. The oats weighed 12,974 pounds and the payment was at the rate of $1.30 a bushel. Frank Reid, elevator manager, reported this the most money ever paid for one load of oats during his association with the company.

Carl Stafford was named assistant superintendent of Nestlé's Milk Products, Inc., plant at Uby.

Cpl. Archie Mark, who has been stationed at Trinidad Island, arrived at Cass City to spend a 20-day furlough.

Eunice Herber, Cass City High School junior, placed first with a baritone solo in the solo event at the Band Festival held at Caro. In the ensemble event, the Cass City cornet trio, composed of Kenneth Price, Dean Robinson and Gale Goodall, placed first.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Wilnot post office will lose its only rural mail delivery route on June 1 when G.R. Hawkins will be retired as a rural carrier, having completed 30 years of service at the Wilnot office. Territory served by the Wilnot rural mail route will be absorbed by carriers out of the Kingston and Deford post offices.

Jay R. Crawford, a Brookfield township farmer, was instantly killed when he was run over by the wheel of a wagon while trying to stop a runaway team.

Deck Foster was found dead in the granary on his farm near Mariette by Mrs. Alvin Westover, a neighbor, who was attracted to the farm when she noticed that the granary had been left open for several hours. Dr. J.C. Webster, coroner, said death was caused by heart disease.

Chester Wilk of Indianfields township is in an Ann Arbor hospital with an amputated leg as the result of an automobile accident which occurred one half mile south and two and a quarter miles west of Wilnot.

Albert Warner of Cass City, a sophomore attending Central State Teacher's College, was one of the cast of characters of a one-act play given by the Masquers, dramatic club.

A new barn is being built on the Frank Eas farm near Deford, the building to be 30 by 40 feet with full basement.

Agent's Corner

By Mrs. Ann Ross

Disciplining your children involves more than immediate action or reaction. It reflects the total parent-child relationship.

Behind the type of discipline you enforce or expect is your own expectations and parental personality. Step back and reflect on what's happening in your home. Ask yourself if there is too much yelling, spanking, or general unhappiness apparent.

When you need to discipline your child for an immediate action, such as refusing to go to bed, think not only of the immediate task of getting him to bed, but also of your end goal, in discipline. Are you seeking a warm relationship with your child though discipline is necessary? Is the relationship a hostile one? Or perhaps vague: What type of person do you want him to grow up to be?

A child tends to reflect the kind of treatment he is given. If it's constantly hostile, he will be hostile. For example, the parent who does a lot of nagging and yelling will probably have a child who is overly vocal, yells at his parents, and grows up to "nag" his children. The end goal of good discipline, in general, is to attempt to help a child gain self-direction and self-control. However, because every child is different, the method should differ for every child. Some children need a great deal of attention and warmth. Others might become overprotected and dependent with the same amount.

Wise discipline involves being consistently aware of a child's needs and wants. Before every disciplinary action, wise parents will try to visualize the type of grown child they would like to see and follow the type of discipline that will most likely help them help the child reach this goal.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Will he get
"A" for effort

By Dan Marlowe

We live in a world of free enterprise. Sometimes the free enterprise ball takes some weird bounces, however.

For instance: the vice president of a New York City metals company was found guilty recently of conspiring to blow up a bridge in the African nation of Zambia. His objective was to cut off supplies from some key copper mines, thus driving up the price of copper all over the world.

The executive and another defendant who earlier pleaded guilty were charged with trying to hire two men in Miami to fly to Zambia and blow up the bridge over which about ten percent of the world's copper must move.

The tactic is admittedly unsavory and it is unlikely that the executive will ever get to bask in the title Chairman of the Board.

The burning question remains whether he will get "A" for effort on his supervisor's rating sheet.

A men's toiletry company sponsored a Bachelor of the Year Award recently. Silver bowls were presented to six lifetime bachelors.

Theatrical producer Mort Gottleib was the most appreciative. "I want to thank all those ladies who helped me achieve this eminent position," he stated firmly.

Comedian Milt Kamen said it best, however. "I feel guilty that I've never been married," he admitted. "It means I've never been divorced, and here I am depriving some fine woman of alimony."

Master of ceremonies Alan King, TV comedian, took a dim view of the proceedings. "Having been married for 22 years, I'd rather be accepting an award than presenting them," Mr. King said tartly.

There is no record of what his wife said when he reached home that night.

College credit may now be received from institutions of higher learning for courses in alchemy (transforming ordinary metals into gold), witchcraft, sorcery, vampirism, and lycanthropy (changing into a wolf).

Scarboro Community College in Toronto is one such institution. The director of continuing education at the college admitted that he didn't anticipate much interest in the course. "But ROSEMARY'S BABY put it over the top," he said. "Right now it's overflow. There are 79 people enrolled, and there is a waiting list for next year."

The college contends that the course is a speculative inquiry into the history of the occult, not a do-it-yourself program for casting spells or creating hexes.

But has anyone checked with the students?

DEMAND AND GET

Teachers in the school of experience never have to worry about getting top pay.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I don't rightly know what to call my little piece this week. I been trying to put a name to what the fellers done at the country store Saturday night, and the best I can come up with is they handled the truth awful careless.

It were Zeke Grubb that got to discussing them predictions about how California was going to fall in the sea, and how folks in Nevada was selling ocean front lots. The fellers started talking about the weather and took off in all directions. Anyhow, Mister Editor, I figger it was a heap better fer them to git that stuff out of their systems.

Fer instant, Josh Clodhopper said all that flooding last month called to mind some unusual weather. When he was a boy, Josh said he recollected the wind blowed so hard it started the river running backwards. Bug Hookum said that was strange, seeing as how he growed up right down the road from Josh and the strongest wind he recollected was when it turned his Ma's iron wash pot insides out.

Everybody wanted to report on unusual wind. Clem Webster told about the time this storm come up and the wind blowed so hard it blowed all the writing off tombstones in the church graveyard. Clem said he recollected that storm special, cause after it passed he went to look about the stock and found a full-grown hen stuck inside a gallon jug. Them fellers that builds boats in bottles ain't got nothing on the wind, was Clem's words.

Turning to other wonders of nature, Zeke allowed he onct knowed a feiler that was so buck tooth he could eat corn on the cob through a screen door. And before the fellers got through swallering that, he said he had saw by the papers where this feller said he fenced in his hogs on account he didn't want them to mix with his neighbor's younguns.

Ed Doolittle put the stopper in the jug, Mister Editor, when he reported he had saw where the Government is paying such high prices on defense contracts that this salesman got investigated cause he told the Defense Department he could get 'em some things retail. Ed said he ain't suprised at nothing that comes out of a Government agency. He said he had saw where the Government is going ahead with questions on this new census form that a Philadelphia lawyer can't figger out, and it's agin the law not to answer 'em.

Personal, Mister Editor, I think the session proved ignorance keeps a feller young. President Hoover said the good Lord don't count the time a man spends fishing. If that works fer talking without saying nothing, the fellers at the store ain't aged a month in the last five year.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Dairy farming: a new ball game

By Alfred P. Ballweg

A few days ago I received a letter from an old friend of mine who has been associated with the dairy industry of Michigan and more particularly with the Michigan Milk Producers Association for many years -- Norm Peterson. Norm is well known to dairymen of Tuscola County.

I quote in part his letter: "As far as changes are concerned, when I came to the Association in 1941 the average production was around 200 pounds per member and the Class I price was $2.08 per cwt. The average production presently in Southern Michigan on the fluid market is between 10 and 11 hundred pounds per day and I am sure it will grow much higher in the next five years. I am rather astounded when the secretary of a local in a neighboring county to you tells me that he now has a base which is equivalent to 30 members in his local back in 1941. In 1961 we had over 12,000 members. As of March 15 we were down to approximately 6400 active shippers on the market as members and we are maintaining our usual percentage of the market taking into consideration McDonald shippers and other co-ops in Michigan."

"With the milk feed ratio the highest in history, there are many young swingers who are realizing they could double their herd and let somebody else raise the crops and make money. Last summer I made a survey of all of those bases in the market that were over 4,000 pounds per day. I shall do the same again this summer to see what has happened. I do not know of any case of the 55 shippers who were over 4,000 pounds that have discontinued shipping. I suspect there are more in that category this year and that they have expanded further.

"I presume another thing that we may be seeing in the future is capital poured into farming by people from the city. We have an example now that has come to my attention this week of Gordie Howe and some people with money who have purchased the 1500 acre Gottfredson Farm at Grass Lake. I am sure that capital is going to be used at a greater extent by farmers in the future than it has in the past. The old days of celebrating the burning of the mortgage is a day of the past. I do not regret these changes that are taking place. I am very pleased that I had the opportunity of living in these changes.

"In 1941 an ex-police commissioner from the City of Detroit who was interested in two farms in Livingston County made a statement before the Detroit Ag. Club that farmers woefully were under-capitalized and that was one of the big problems. I think the other problem, however, that he did not state was the cheap or unpaid family labor. Now family labor is just as expensive in most cases as outside labor and it is an entirely new ball game.

"I have been expounding my reflections on my crystal ball to you and I am sure when it comes to production and production trends you are a much better authority than I am. Anytime you have any suggestions either in this light or in how we might improve the Association, I would be very pleased to hear from you. I am also most pleased to hear from you from the standpoint that I count you as one of my personal friends."

Behind the Counter

Show globes—

Centuries ago, apothecaries prepared their own medicines from available herbs, leaves and roots. From these materials gathered in nearby woods and fields, they prepared extracts and infusions to treat a variety of ailments. Each chemist had his own secret file of "receipts" that would cure stomach aches, skin disorders, and general weariness. If he wasn't afraid of being accused of witchcraft, he might even be able to whip up a love potion or two.

These chemists often placed the bottles of multi-colored liquids on shelves or window-sills, where they didn't take up too much space but were readily available. These bottles gradually became identified with the chemist's shop, just as three golden balls and a striped pole marked the pawn shop and barber shop.

Today, of course, drugs are developed through intensive research and the pharmacist has a difficult enough job keeping track of these without preparing all his own compounds. But you still see ornate bottles of colored water in many drug stores, as a professional symbol. These "show globes" are a reminder of the druggist's heritage and tradition, even in this day of antibiotics, hormones and other "wonder" drugs.

Meanwhile, drug researchers have turned back to the old apothecary recipes, to see if there is an active ingredient that can be extracted from the same roots and herbs the ancient chemists used for so long.
