

FROM THE Editor's Corner

With a couple of thousand bills thrown into the legislative hopper at every session, it's a tribute to the system that only a few poor ones slip through both houses and become law. But occasionally they do. And for rural Michigan Public Act 258 regulating the use of ambulances is a poor law.

It's easy to see how it received approval. On the surface its provisions seem designed to protect lives . . . eliminate hazards. That's the theory. . . but the facts are that in many areas this law removes protection instead of increasing it.

It removes it because the people in the business in low population areas just can't operate under the law's provisions.

Last week Little's Funeral Home announced that when the law goes into effect they go out of business.

Running an ambulance is primarily a service business for Little's and most other rural operators. Even under the previous law there was scarcely enough volume to justify the investment.

Under the new law, the operator is required to have two men on duty around the clock and equipment requirements were beefed up.

The regulations must be impossible to live with. Little's is joined by ambulance operators all over rural Michigan in announcing the discontinuation of service.

Even before the new law, selected funeral homes had decided to get out of the ambulance business. With the new law virtually all are either tossing in the sponge or considering it.

The problem is complicated by collection problems. When an accident victim is bleeding in a ditch or a senior citizen collapses with a heart attack, the ambulance service doesn't stop and ask for a balance sheet.

Consequently, some of the runs are made and never paid for.

Every small businessman and farmer experiences the continual harassment of regulations, red tape and records. It makes for a blasé attitude towards the problems of others.

But, really, ambulance service (or the lack of it) is a problem for all of us.

Picture the recent Elmwood Road accident without an ambulance available and problem snaps into focus.

The protests have been swelling from the grass roots and caught the attention of the lawmakers. A public hearing is slated Tuesday, May 20.

Cass City and the Thumb should convey to the Michigan Department of Health the very real problem that the law will cause and urge that it be amended so that ambulance service is not stripped from the low population areas.

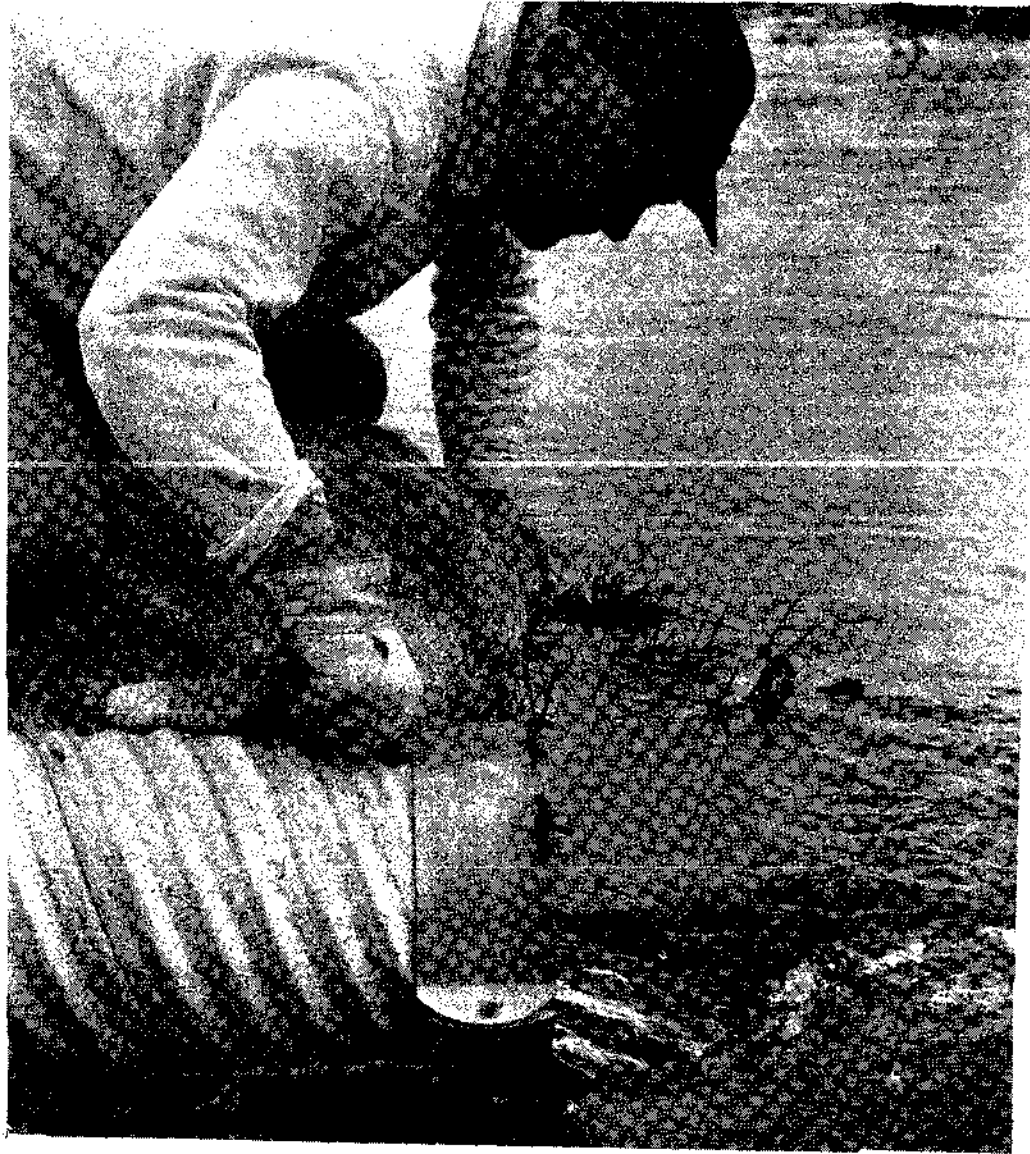

A protest from us with no axe to grind should carry weight and perhaps tilt the scales in favor of a revision of the law to enable a vital service to continue to operate in rural Michigan.

Plan opening

Grant Hutchinson this week announced the grand opening of Rolling Hills Golf Course, under construction for over a year, will be held Memorial Day week end.

The course at the north village limits of the community has nine holes and will be open to the public.

Area residents can play by the day or purchase memberships, Hutchinson said.

KINGSTON DAIRYMAN Walt Zajac appraises the amount of water drainage from field tile that empties into the South Branch of White Creek. Excessive moisture conditions are causing delayed planting of corn and oats for area farmers.

Board okays TV sex education course

If the majority of schools in the Thumb area feel the way the Cass City Board of Education does, there will be nitty-gritty sex education offered via television during the second term next year at the intermediate school.

The board voted to offer a comprehensive sex education program as part of a family living offered by Delta College.

The course is designed for fifth and sixth grade students and can be offered as part of the educational TV programming now subscribed to from Delta. There is no extra expense involved, Mrs. Jackie Freiburger, grade principal, told the board.

There are several hurdles to leap before the program can start. First, enough area schools have to show an interest to make the project worthwhile for Delta. Second, a workshop will be required so that teachers can iron out details of the new program.

Starting sex education before adolescence has proved to make the children less uncomfortable than pupils exposed at an older age, college authorities believe.

It has also improved communication between the parent and child, the educators told the board, via the film presentation.

The first 10 lessons in the course examine family life: brother and sister relations, parents and child, school relations and similar activities.

The next five lessons deal with sex. The first lesson talks about males, the body functions and the physiological changes of boys and puberty.

The second lesson talks about the female and follows the pattern of the lesson about males. Both lessons are illustrated with charts and diagrams of the genital areas. The lesson about the female talks of ovulation and menstruation.

The third lesson talks about sexual intercourse and relates sex biologically, psychologically and spiritually to marriage.

The fourth lesson is devoted to questions and class discussion and the final lesson establishes concepts that sex can and should be controlled.

Teaching the television course will be Dr. William H. Ayres and Mrs. Marilyn McCurdy, experts in the field.

COMPLAINS

Paul O'Harris appeared before the board to complain that teachers were using class time to "brain wash" pupils by telling them what courses will be abandoned if the millage isn't passed in the June 9 election.

Supt. Donald Crouse and the board said that no teacher was speaking about the problem on orders of the administration.

Both Crouse and Intermediate Principal Robert Stickle said that they would have to know the circumstances alluded to before they could make any further comment.

Principal Art Holmberg appeared before the board and asked for guidelines concerning students who may or may not graduate because of marginal grades.

Holmberg wanted to know if these pupils could be allowed to participate in commencement exercises and receive blank diplomas or whether they should be barred from the exercises. The board decided that if students lack a half credit (one semester) they could participate. Mrs. Geraldine Prieskorn felt that they should have all credits to participate in the ceremony.

The problem, as outlined by Crouse, was that students could issue invitations and plan for graduation and then fail a course and be omitted from commencement.

The half credit is designed to help curb this embarrassment for the student.

Five inspectors and two alternates were appointed for the June 9 elections. The inspectors are: Earl Harris, Ann Rogers, Neva Zinnecker, Mary Knight and Janet Bishop. Alternates are Florence Carpenter and Ruth Spencer.

Several supervisors hope to attend the Michigan Outdoor Recreation Institute May 23.

Duane Haggerty of Sanilac County Civil Defense reviewed with the board available federal programs offering financial assistance for county supplements to ambulance operators.

The board will accept bids June 6 for a rescue station wagon for the sheriff's department.

Sheriff Hugh Marr reported the department had a critical transportation shortage and no emergency vehicle. He added that on week ends the rescue wagon would be used to assist in the operation of the county marine patrol.

Supervisor Shuford Kirk said there was an assortment of business-recreation opportunities in the county that could provide year-round recreation for county residents.

The board discussed conversion of county gravel pits into fresh water ponds and small, artificial lakes. No action was taken.

Three of the four are familiar names to district voters. Buleen is the present president of the board and Koepfgen is a seven-year veteran board member.

Mrs. Guernsey was a board candidate at a previous election. It will be Herron's first try for a position on the board.

The candidates are Horace Buleen, Don Koepfgen, Mrs. Alice Guernsey and Tom Herron.

Farmer concern grows as rain delays planting

BY RICHARD HAINES

Three inch rains during the week have seriously impaired corn planting, area dairy and cash crop farmers report.

A rain marker in the Deford area, reported Ronald Hampshire, lacked only one-tenth of showing three inches of precipitation during the previous week.

Farmers with heavier soils in lowlands, and farmers without tile have had their corn, and on occasion, their oats and barley planting delayed for over a week.

Additional rain during this week, or cool days with over-cast clouds will lengthen the period before farmers will be able to get their tractors back on the fields.

Hampshire, of near Deford, plans on planting 40 acres of barley and oats. Because of recent rains and excessive field moisture, he commented last week end that now, "We don't know."

Hampshire also has 90 acres of corn to plant. Some of his corn acreage is tiled; however he said even the tiled areas will require at least a week of dry, sunny, breezy weather prior to any planting.

Robert Gilmore of Deford was prepared to begin corn planting last week but the 85 acres planned for corn will stall it off a week or ten days, he reported.

Situated about a mile north-east of Kingston, the soils of his farm are a heavier clay and will require a longer draining period before the fields can rid themselves of the excessive moisture.

"Good, dry winds will help," he said.

William Parrott, whose dairy farm is situated 6 miles southwest of Cass City and contains lighter, sandier soils, reported, "We normally have it (corn) planted by now."

Socked with nearly three inches of rain in the last week, he said the 40 acres they have planned for corn this year will be delayed past their normal planting time.

"Water," he said, "doesn't usually affect us so much, but this year our corn crop is planned for lower ground than usual." With clear weather, he expects their planting could be up to two weeks behind normal schedule.

Walt Zajac, situated about a mile north of Kingston, is planning on 60 acres of corn on a combination of lower, flat soils combined with sandier, rolling soils.

He has tiling in some areas of his acreage, but he still projects it could take a week before tractors can again get on the fields.

Tiling from his fields have been running heavy with drainage, he said, into the South Branch of the White River (branch number 2).

His oats have been planted and are already up and he said he didn't think the excessive moisture would harm the crop.

Until corn planting time comes, Zajac plans to fix fence and do odd jobs around the farm.

Al Merchant with vast scattered acreage in the west Cass City area reported his plans for 1,000 acres of corn will be delayed at least a week.

Armed with brother partners and several tractors, he hopes that with clear weather they can get the machinery rolling by this upcoming week end.

Mrs. Harold Deering of Deford reported excessive moisture had delayed corn and oats planting on their farm for at least a week.

With a planned acreage of 75 acres of oats, she said planting had been significantly delayed and that the corn lands had been ready, but now they will also have to wait.

For the third year in a row, farmers east of Cass City have been hit hard by excessive rain. Mrs. Harold Copeland reports that it may be two weeks before farmers can return to the fields in their area.

Farmers in the area have been hit so hard by adverse weather in recent years that farms there were declared a disaster area.

County Extension Officer Alfred Ballweg reported conditions in the county have more excessive moisture than he can ever remember. "It will be bad for fellas without tile," he said.

He predicted that some farmers may switch to a shorter season seed corn.

Teachers seek estimated 20% wage hike package

Increasingly demanding space requirements at the courthouse, recreational facilities in the county and several minor agenda items highlighted the regular session of the Tuscola County Board of Supervisors Tuesday at the Courthouse in Caro.

Supervisor Charles F. Woodcock emphasized need for a careful study of all new space requirements and all facilities. Space needs for the new circuit court, he said, were increasing, and also the social services and health departments are in cramped situations.

Woodcock emphasized careful deliberation of the matter, "There's no hurry," he said, "we'll take this in stride."

The supervisors reviewed recreation facilities in the county and Supervisor Floyd Ducker said, "I've always felt Tuscola County was sadly short of recreation."

Several supervisors hope to attend the Michigan Outdoor Recreation Institute May 23.

Duane Haggerty of Sanilac County Civil Defense reviewed with the board available federal programs offering financial assistance for county supplements to ambulance operators.

The board will accept bids June 6 for a rescue station wagon for the sheriff's department.

Sheriff Hugh Marr reported the department had a critical transportation shortage and no emergency vehicle. He added that on week ends the rescue wagon would be used to assist in the operation of the county marine patrol.

The board discussed conversion of county gravel pits into fresh water ponds and small, artificial lakes. No action was taken.

The opening salvo in what promises to be a long battle at the negotiation table was fired Tuesday night when Cass City teachers presented wage demands for 1969-70.

It is estimated that the package with fringes would add about $100,000 to the cost of teachers' salaries.

Total cost to the school for teachers this year, not including some special payments for extra services, was $307,000.

Predictably Jim MacTavish, chief negotiator for the teachers, labeled the requests reasonable and minimal and, predictably, Al Luce and Supt. Donald Crouse, representing the school, labeled the package as completely unrealistic.

As in past years, the primary hassle between school and teachers promises to be in the method and the amount paid for increments for service.

Each year the teachers propose an index system where increments for service are granted on a percentage basis of the salary earned.

This results in much more money at the top of the scale than at the bottom. The school representatives flatly reject this type of payment.

They say that percentages mean nothing . . . it's dollars that count. They want to pay a flat dollar amount for each year of service in 11 steps.

The amount paid the beginning teachers is not as critical a question as the rate of increase, judging by the opening wage discussions.

Teachers are asking for a boost of $500 in base pay to $7,000 yearly for teachers with a bachelor's degree and of $700 yearly to $7,500 for teachers with a master's.

Increases under a 4 per cent index plan would boost top pay for teachers with BA degrees to $10,361.71 from $8,800 and to $11,100.80 from $9,200 for teachers with MA degrees.

In addition to the straight salary demands, the teachers are asking for fringe benefits of $200 yearly and credit for total outside experience.

Supt. Crouse labeled this as a "sleeper clause" that would escalate wage costs greatly when new teachers enter the system. Cass City now allows

Raymond Cummins in 'good condition'

Officials at Hills and Dales Hospital report Raymond Charles Cummins, 21, of Cass City is in "good condition."

He is the sole survivor of the May 4, head-on collision near Cass City in which six deaths resulted.

Officials reported there was no word yet of his being discharged from the hospital.

Charles Blaine Woodruff of Deford reported to county deputy sheriffs he was forced into a ditch on Kirk Road, 6 miles south of Waterman Road, when a car allegedly backed from a driveway into his path.

The mishap occurred Thursday, May 8, and five mailboxes and a post were destroyed in front of the residence of Larry and Norman Streeter on Kirk Road.

The front of Woodruff's 1969 pickup was damaged but Woodruff was not injured, according to deputies.

Sunday, May 11, Frank Martin Schobert of Kingston hit and killed a deer on Sanilac Road, a half mile east of White Creek. The right front of his sedan was damaged, but Schobert was not injured.

The accident occurred at 4:30 a.m.

Adam Deering of Gagetown complained of pain when the left rear of his auto was struck on State Street in the village of Gagetown Monday, May 12.

His car was struck in the rear by Gerald J. Newcombe of Bay City. Newcombe reported to Tuscola Deputy Ron Phillips that he struck Deering when he looked in his rear view mirror.

Deering reported he stopped his auto to converse with an individual on the scene.

Both cars were damaged. Newcombe was uninjured.

Two persons were treated at Hills and Dales Hospital as a result of Cass City accidents during the week.

Bernice Helene Pelton, 50, of Deford was ticketed for failure to yield right of way when she struck Jenny Jane Jackson, 29, at the intersection of West and Church Saturday, May 10.

Patrolman Jim Jezewski reported Mrs. Pelton evidenced visible signs of injury. She was treated at Hills and Dales Hospital. Her passenger, Cora Cliff, 77, of Cass City was uninjured.

Passengers in Mrs. Jackson's auto were daughters Sherry, 21/2, and Donna, 51/2, who were also uninjured.

Dale Alan Fritz, 6, of Cass City was injured when he crossed Maple street and ran into a pickup being driven by Lex Evans Tetreau, 39, of Cass City Friday, May 9.

The boy was taken to Hills and Dales Hospital by Little's ambulance and released Saturday, May 10.

Police Chief Carl Palmateer reported the boy ran into the pickup from behind a parked car.

Father Peter Pijnappels closely examines the tulips beside St. Pancratius Church in Cass City, following last Friday's brief snowfall which reminded some residents of the blizzard of May 9, 1923. Last Friday's snowflakes quickly melted.

Friday's snowfall recaps '23

Blizzard caught area by surprise

He had dreamed of a day of fishing, but as he opened the door, his dreams went up in smoke. White smoke, that is, and it was coming down. Last Friday's brief snowfall reminded folks of the Cass City area of the driving snowstorm of May 9, 1923, 46 years ago last Friday.

The dreamer was George C. Miller of Deford whose father had promised him he could go fishing on May 9, 1923, after they had finished the previous day's "throwing hay down."

But instead, a snow blizzard prevented it and he related how he was angry at his father for delaying for one day the fishing trip to Harbor Beach where they were "catching perch by the ton."

Street pedestrians were interviewed last week end, but only those who have been around a while recalled '23's fierce blizzard. These were folks who also remembered kerosene lamps, hidden gallons of mash in the barn, and $298 Fords.

Miller reported it snowed until late afternoon and by late afternoon of the following day, most of it had melted away.

Homer Muntz of Cass City reported the snowstorm of '23 "gave us a rest for a week." There was still farm work to be done though and they used the time for cleaning calf pens, cleaning the stalls, and giving extra care to the calves.

Muntz related how he shoveled out a small chicken coop that had been literally buried by the snow. He said he uncovered the tiny coop and found the mother hen and her 14 young "just as warm as could be."

Muntz reported 1923's farm crops grew well. "After the snow, we had lovely weather," he said, and his oats and barley did well.

Mrs. Margaret Bateman, who lived in Snover at the time, reported "it was beautiful the previous day. She told how they helped dig out some cars caught in snowbanks."

Mrs. Carl Wright of Cass City reported the heavy snowstorm of 1923 made the soil soggy and that her father had to re-plant oats on their farm.

"No snowball fights, though," she said, "On the farm there wasn't anybody to fight with."

She said her father, who had turned the young cattle out to fresh green pasture in mid-April had to take hay to them because of the heavily blanketed grassland.

She chuckled that her mother, Mrs. Laura Robinson of Uby, predicted late Thursday night it would snow Friday.

Neil MacNiven of near Cass City reported he had to re-plant his oats after the driving snowstorm. "It never hurt the livestock," he said, "but I had to shovel myself out of a snowbank."

Mrs. Orilla McKee of Cass City reported how on her father's farm, they had to "get the young cattle and bring them home." It turned out to be a late spring, she said, and crops were planted later that year.

Frank Reid, 83-year Cass City resident, recalled he went to work that morning at his elevator and "nobody showed up" so he went "to Doc Schenck's and played cards with several others." Business was held up two days, he said.

Cass City barber, Chet Graham, remembered the snowstorm of '23. He said, "Yes, I shoveled it." He reported traffic on Main Street came to a virtual standstill and he was kept busy that day shoveling his walk.

No cobblestone streets for custom chariot bike

BY RICHARD HAINES

Driving the brick streets of Rome in a Roman chariot must have been an exhilarating experience for Julius Caesar.

There aren't too many brick streets left in the Cass City area though; matter of fact there aren't any.

But there's a Roman chariot, of sorts. Irwin Schubel, 22, Ubyl, a Minden City lineman has custom designed and built a re-converted motorbike adding a chariot seat for worthy comrades.

Using a derivative of a Detroit metermaid frame, he custom designed a seat for two passengers to sit in back of the driver.

Chariot passengers, in fact, never had it so good. Specially designed axle springs and super soft cushions are enough to spoil any worthy chariot passenger.

An extended 15-inch all-chrome front end serves no special mechanical purpose - but it certainly adds for slick looks, its owner confides.

A 45-cubic-inch "Harley" pushes the chariot up to countryside speeds of 70-75 and 7-inch wide racing slicks (tires) assure a mov'n machine, the owner confided.

The machine, he says, took about five months to build and complements his personal Model "A" Ford.

Pike season opens May 15

Biologist Tom Nederveld said the above can be taken by hook and line only, with minor exceptions, and by ice-spear in the winter.

The season is open until March 1, 1970.

Letter to Editor

Lice at Owen-Gage problem for parent

Dear Editor,

I wonder if you could answer a few questions for me. Why do we have a County Health Dept.?

Here's one of the reasons I ask. I have 4 daughters, two are in school. Twice this past year my girls brought head lice home from school. Oh yes, one girl is in Owen-Gage and the other in Gage-town.

I've called the Health Dept. in Bad Axe and they say they can do nothing for us except

Retired Walter Burke keeps busy in Deford

Retirement is a busy time for Walter Burke of Royal Oak. Especially busy since he purchased property near Deford. For Burke is a meticulous man. When he owns property he wants it all to be ship-shape...clean and well kept.

When he purchased land on White Creek recently he immediately started his campaign to put it in apple pie order.

One of his first steps this spring was to burn out an old field. He did it with the permission of the fire department late last month. The Chronicle said that he was burning without a permit when reporting a fire call to the property.

Burke promptly showed his permit No. 402914 signed by Ken Copeland to the newspaper.

The burning of the land was just the first step in Burke's campaign to improve his property.

Now well underway is a reforestation project on his farm. Not the usual Christmas tree variety...but trees that may be of value to his heirs but from which Burke can't possibly receive any revenue.

The trees are red and white pine. Already 11 rows 800 feet long have been planted. I did it just to improve the looks of my place, Burke said, not for any money.

Already there is a row boat on White Creek on the property for the 3 grandchildren to use. The Burkes have one daughter, Mrs. Patricia Evans, who lives in Warren.

Immediate future plans call for the planting of Evergreens around the creek for an added scenic touch.

Many people aren't aware of a fantastic baseball record achieved by a man who's been a pitching coach the last few years, John Sain. . . Every-where he goes, the team he works for wins the pennant!

Sain was pitching coach for the Yankees in 1961, 1962 and 1963 and they won the flag each year. . . Then, he went to work for the Twins in 1965 and they won the pennant. . . Then, he joined the Tigers and last season they won the pennant!

Now that Mickey Mantle has retired, here's an oddity about his career. . . Although he batted over .300 in the majority of seasons he played, his lifetime batting average wound up under .300! . . . Mantle's lifetime average finished at .298.

What's the hardest sport to play? . . . Bill Russell, coach of the Boston Celtics, has an interesting reason why he thinks the answer to that question is basketball. . . Russell was quoted as saying that to play basketball you need the speed of a sprinter, the endurance of a mile-runner, the strength of a football player and the coordination of a baseball player.

Final rites today for Mrs. Sandham

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 p.m. at the Trinity United Methodist Church for Mrs. Grace Sandham, 84, a life-long member of the community.

Mrs. Sandham died Tuesday, May 13, at Sparrow General Hospital in Lansing.

She was born in Elkland township, May 5, 1885, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Striffler. She married the late John Sandham in Detroit May 9, 1910. They lived in Argyle before moving to Cass City.

Mr. Sandham died Feb. 17, 1964. The Sandhams were well-known public and business figures in the community.

They were one of several families to make room-size ($5,000 or more) donations to Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Mrs. Sandham was a member of the Cass City (Trinity) United Methodist Church.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Roy (Pauline) Briggs of St. Johns, Mrs. Raymond (Delores) Green of Albion and Mrs. A. E. (Johanna) Valler of Plymouth.

The Rev. Donald Turbin will officiate at the final rites.

Burial will be in Elkland cemetery.

Yours truly,
(Mrs.) Pamela Howe
"A frustrated mother"

I've called the supt. of schools and he says it's up to the Health Dept. I've even offered to go to school one or two days a month to check some of the children's hair but my offer was refused.

A lot of us mothers are getting tired of this dirt. It's expensive to get rid of lice and it's also a very nasty job. Why does this keep going on? Who do we go to for help? Do you have any answers?

It's not that you're not welcome, but...authorities at Hills and Dales General Hospital are still doing everything possible to keep you from becoming a patient.

This continuing campaign serves a dual purpose, Frank Haythorn, administrator, said this week. It helps relieve some of the patient load at the facility and reduces the cost of health care for the patient.

One of the principal tools the hospital uses in treatment without hospitalization is outpatient care.

Haythorn and Mrs. Basil Wotton, of medical records, called attention to this phase of hospital service this week in conjunction with National Hospital Week, May 11-17.

The theme of the observance is "Your hospital, pathway to progress in community health."

Hospitals all over the nation are expanding beyond traditional inpatient services into home care programs, physical and occupational therapy, poison prevention and various types of clinics.

Hills and Dales is moving into these areas.

The advent of Medicare has sent the use of the hospital emergency room soaring. A sharp upsurge has also been experienced in the use of the laboratory for outpatient services.

A glance at the statistics tells the tale.

In 1966 the hospital handled a total of 980 outpatient cases. In 1968 this figure is over four times as great, reaching a total of 3,740.

Business is so brisk that hospital authorities would like to set up a separate department for outpatient, emergency room work.

The big stumbling block is lack of trained people to handle it, Haythorn said.

Coupled with the increase in outpatients is a steadily increasing hospital patient load.

Last year the hospital operated on an average of 82.4 per cent capacity. Normally, when a hospital has an average of 80 per cent of its beds filled it is determined to be at capacity.

To reach the figure of 82.4, Haythorn explained, we operated during the peak periods at 105 per cent of capacity.

That's not good for the patient or the hospital, he said, and we are determined to do something about it.

Regular meeting of the Cass City Village Council was held April 29, 1969, at the Municipal Building. All members were present except Trustee Selby.

The minutes of the April 1 meeting were read and approved.

The financial report for March was presented.

Mr. Basil Bigham spoke for the residents of East Church Street present who requested that consideration be given to the problem of dust control.

They were assured that action would be taken to try to improve the condition.

Mr. Richard Drews and Mr. Rod Krueger, representing the Cass City Rotary Club, presented a check for $2,000 to the Park Committee as partial payment on the Rotary pledge for park improvement funds.

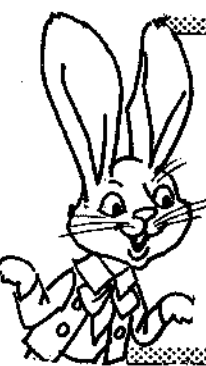

Mr. Dean Toner, representing the Little League, requested help from the Village in preparing diamonds and support in furnishing two umpires. His request was granted.

Mr. Tom Proctor informed the Council that funds are available from the United Fund to purchase a heater for the village pool water. He presented figures on costs of two different units and indicated that either of these units would be transferable to a larger pool in the event that one should be built in the future. The contribution of the United Fund was accepted and action on the purchase of the heater was requested of the Park Committee.

The Street Committee, reporting on the petition concerning curb and gutter on South Oak Street, stated that the petition lacked 1.6 rods of having the requested 80% of the lineal footage. After some discussion, it was decided to continue efforts to obtain the additional signatures needed.

Mr. Curt Hunt appeared and requested that the Council consider blacktopping Doerr Road from Garfield to the Village limits. After considerable discussion concerning overall street priorities, Trustee Dillman moved to grant the request at a cost not to exceed $3,500, payable over three years. Trustee Rawson supported the motion. Yes, 4; No, 1. Motion carried.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

One of the four trophy Steelhead trout that Harry Little caught a couple of weeks ago has found its way into our freezer.

Little gave it to us because I wrote about the catch and explained that he never ate them. . . only caught them.

With results like this how can I help but be ready, willing and able to write stories about cattlemen who hate beef . . . swine men who hate pork. . . poultrymen who hate chicken . . .

Dennis Rlenstra is doing a dedicated job as Junior High track coach. He wants to establish a record system for the age group and generally pattern his work after the varsity program.

It's a task, but evidently Dennis is willing to do it. It is an especially gratifying effort in the face of the very uncertain future of the program at the school.

The biggest bug-a-boo for persons organizing class reunions is finding all the people. From the class of 1944, Mrs. Shirley Suprenant Porter is unable to find Eva Jean Auslander, Dorothy M. Miller, Marylee Dickinson, Mary Ann Molnar, Anna Marie Kessler and Emily Myslakowski. Let her know if you can help.

Boy Scouts are planning a garage sale so that they can get started for the annual Jamboree. Scoutmaster Jim Ware or Vic Guernsey will pick up any items you wish to donate. The Scouts are partially subsidized for the Jamboree trip and earn part of the money themselves. This is one way. Call if you can help.

The Chronicle received a suggestion saying that the school should forget the new football coach, save his salary, and keep the junior high sports program intact.

It's a good illustration of the misconceptions that surround school salaries and affairs. Football coaches are also teachers. As a football coach under last year's salary schedule, Coach John Biffoss received an additional $625. The remainder of his salary was paid for teaching, not coaching, and it will be a similar percentage again next year. The new football coach is also a biology teacher.

Gold Star mothers honored at meet

Twenty-eight attended the monthly meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary Monday evening.

With Mrs. Philip McComb presiding over the business meeting, plans were made to participate in the Memorial Day parade and for the poppy sales May 22, 23 and 24.

Mrs. McComb appointed Mrs. Garrison Stine, Mrs. William Anker and Mrs. Wilbur Morrison to the nominating committee.

Gold Star mothers were honored and each was presented with a gift.

Mrs. Henry Cherry and Mrs. Arthur Little were in charge of the program for the evening. Mrs. Cherry presented a memorial service for 19 members who have died since organization of the unit. Mrs. Esther McCullough showed pictures of Europe taken on her trip last July.

The door prize for the evening went to Mrs. William Anker.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Cass Bartnik and her committee.

Mrs. Anderson dies in Detroit

Mrs. Clara Anderson of Birmingham died Monday morning, May 14, in a hospital, Detroit. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seeley.

The Want Ads are newsworthy too.

In accordance with Council's previous request the Village engineering firm was consulted the continuance of Ale Street through the village park and the Donahue property to the new high school. Recommendations from the Village engineers indicated that at least a 36" storm drain be constructed over this route. The Village portion of this storm drain would cost approximately $15,760. Contact has been made with the Cass City Schools and they have indicated no intention to build the road itself in the near future.

A petition for change in zoning classification was presented by Mr. Harold Craig signed by all but three of the property owners within 500 feet of the property to be changed.

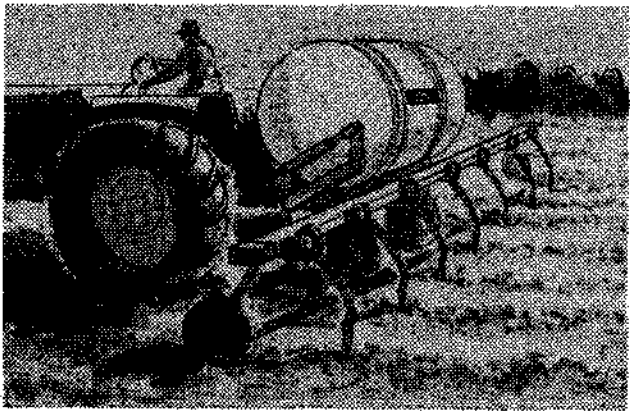

The following resolution was adopted by roll call vote with all Trustees voting yes:

Students tell what's wrong at Gagetown

13-year-old Gagetown youth Dan Wood thinks someone should start a group of volunteers for cleaning litter from village sidewalks. 14-year-old Debbie Bugbee thinks a high solid-wall fence should be placed around the village dump to prevent the traversing of dogs and cats in the area. A future mayor talking, perhaps.

Those are some of the thoughts of Owen-Gage junior high students who participated in an essay contest on how to improve their towns.

The Gagetown Woman's Study Club announced the Owen-Gage junior high winners of their cash prizes Monday for the best essays.

Dennis O'Connell of St. Agatha placed first and won a $10 cash prize which was presented by Gagetown Village President Elery Sontag. Second and third prizes were won by Cindy Lorenz with $5 and Larry Ziehm with $3. Rochelle Rocheleau received honorable mention.

The presentations were made in the gym of the Gagetown school and Mrs. Stanley Muntz of Gagetown Woman's Study Club President, introduced the judges including Mrs. William Crouch of the Caro radio station, Mrs. Allison Brown, English instructor of Cass City and, Mrs. Duncan Crawford, retired teacher of Owendale and Unionville.

Originator of the essay project was Mrs. James England, outgoing president of the Study Club. She was pleased, she said, with the outstanding cooperation of Superintendent Fennell and junior high teacher Miss Irene Hall.

O'Connell's essay emphasized individual participation, saying, "What our town needs is people who care and have a responsibility for it. If the people appreciated the town they lived in it would be an altogether different community because the people have to have something to be proud of. I feel we can help by making people understand that this is their town also through meetings and discussions sponsored by our mayor and council."

Cindy Lorenz wrote, "Flowers and shrubs should be planted in the park to make it more inviting. The trees should be trimmed in the park to make it more inviting. The trees should be trimmed in the park because they interfere with some activities which are played there."

Larry Ziehm wrote, "The park could also be improved by adding some picnic tables and having the lawn cut more frequently. I also believe the trees should be trimmed and a water fountain installed."

Essayist Rochelle Rocheleau called for a Gagetown "New Deal" "with each and every able citizen taking part, we can feel as if we have made it truly 'our' town."

"The New Deal", she wrote, "would be an association of citizens grouped according to age and ability. This association could carry out projects suggested by its members. Each group of young Junior Citizens would be required to have a supervisor."

Free pick-up highlight of clean-up week

Clean-up comes a little later this year, but it's as important as always, Village President Lambert Althaver said as he announced the annual community-wide event.

Of particular interest to village residents is the free service offered by the village. Free pick-up in front of homes by village crews will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, May 27-28.

Clean-up week is simply a time to take stock and then act to make the village a nicer place to live and work in, authorities said. The free service is designed to help.

Don't worry about the things you can't change or influence. Don't carry a grudge—you only hurt yourself by carrying an unnecessary load.

Hawks blow one to Caro Tigers

What looked like an easy victory for the Cass City Red Hawks against the Caro Tigers turned into a disaster as the Hawks blew a six-run lead and lost in the final inning, 7-6. Cass City scored six times in the initial inning and then rolled over and played dead for the rest of the game.

Taylor singled, Alexander and Hopper walked and Kolb singled to drive home the first run. Smentek then cracked a double to score two more and score a moment later as Wencley slammed a double to chase across the fourth and fifth tallies in the rally. The big inning ended after Eshelman singled to score Wencley.

Alexander started on the mound for Cass City and was relieved with two away in the second by Hopper. Hopper was touched for six of the seven runs and took the loss.

Alexander was touched for just one hit, but couldn't find the plate, walking five in his short stint on the hill.

C 100 320 1 7 10 0

Finding teachers still difficult

Finding teachers is easier this year, Supt. Donald Crouse acknowledged this week when asked about a recent Detroit News story that graduating teachers were having trouble finding jobs, but maintained problems still exist in teacher recruitment.

It all depends on what openings you try to fill, Crouse explained. There seem to be an ample number of biology teachers available presently, but I have recruited all over Michigan for a chemistry-physicist teacher and there is still a vacancy on our staff.

Whether there are enough elementary teachers looking for jobs now is impossible for me to say because of our proposed cut back in the number of teachers at the elementary school, Crouse said. There has always been an ample, and sometimes over supply, of social science and history teachers, the superintendent feels.

According to the news story, some 5,000 newly trained teachers will have lean picking if they seek jobs in Michigan next fall.

While pointing out the fallacy of a blanket statement about teacher availability, Crouse agrees with the reasons for the apparent surplus.

Budgetary belt-tightening by many Michigan districts has caused a significant reduction in job openings. More than 2,000 currently-employed teachers have received notices of termination of employment from Michigan schools.

In Cass City, seven elementary teachers will be cut if the millage proposal June 9 is again struck down.

In recent years teachers have had a seller's market and could take their time in selecting the best job from among a half-dozen reasonably good offers.

Pair switch plea to guilty in Circuit Court

In Tuscola County Circuit Court at Caro Randall Kuzniar and Edward Nicholas of Montrose were arraigned Tuesday before Judge James Churchill.

They were charged with intent to commit a larceny at Jerry's Sporting Goods store at Millington on Dec. 13. They had previously pleaded innocent and a trial date had been set.

Tuesday, the two changed their plea to guilty. A presentence investigation was ordered and the sentencing date was set for June 10 with their bond continued.

"If It Fitz..."

Bigots aren't lazy

BY JIM FITZGERALD

One thing I'll admit about my bigoted readers, they aren't lazy. They always have the energy and dedication to write long letters explaining that

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

State of Michigan in the Circuit Court for the County of Tuscola.
Lois Virginia Kinney, Plaintiff, vs Edsel Kinney, Defendant.

File No. 1652-B
Order to answer.

On the 1st day of May, 1969, an action was filed by Lois Virginia Kinney, plaintiff, against Edsel Kinney, defendant, in this court for divorce.

It is hereby ordered, that the defendant, Edsel Kinney, shall answer or take such action as may be permitted by law on or before the 30th day of June 1969. Failure to comply with this order will result in a judgment by default against said defendant for the relief demanded in the complaint filed in this court.

Norman A. Baguley, Circuit Judge.

Dated: May 1, 1969.

Clinton C. House, Attorney for Plaintiff, Business Address: 6484 Main Street, Cass City, Michigan 48726, telephone: 872-3377.

Martin Luther King was a Communist. As a guy who still owes Aunt Clara a thank-you note for Christmas 1956, I have an instinctive admiration for all letter-writers. The man who really cares wouldn't send canned greeting cards to Mr. Hallmark himself. The classy thing is to send a personal letter, hand-written or poorly typed to prove it wasn't really your secretary's idea.

This kind of class I ain't got. I haven't written my mother in 18 years. Instead, I sneak personal messages into this column and sell her a subscription (happy Mother's Day, Gertrude). Come to think, the only letter I can remember writing was to General Hershey, the one with almonds who runs the draft. I told him I was simply returning his greetings, but I spelled every word with a lisp and a limp, hoping he'd re-evaluate the seriousness of the national emergency. It didn't work, and I never again called a general darling.

Anyway, a jerk who won't write to his mother certainly hasn't got the ambition to write letters to the editor. But I stoop in awe of people who do, which is what I started to say in the first place. And I am positively enthralled with people who not only send me messages, but do it in a unique manner. Once I got a month-old cupcake with "This is chocolate, just your style" pricked out in the frosting. And there was that Goldwater fan who threatened to throttle my wife. His letter was fashioned from bits of headlines clipped from newspapers and pasted on a brown paper bag, just like in a kidnapping movie. This really made me feel like a bigshot. I relayed this letter to Efram Zimballist Jr. who drives Fords for the FBI. So far no arrests have been made. I think J. Edgar Hoover watches Ed Sullivan.

The messiest letter came in response to my column on draft-card burning. A reader burned my words and mailed me the ashes. Nobody likes a smart ash on his trousers.

Just now I received an envelope bulging with newspaper clippings. Some energetic soul collected dozens of crime articles. And he circled the words "Negro" and "black" each time they were used. I got his message: If we'd murder all the Negroes, there wouldn't be any more crime. And the Mafia could handle the killing at a cheaper rate per person than slaughter costs us in Vietnam. Beautiful.

You ordinary newspaper readers are in tough luck. You don't get to read these incredible letters because they are never signed and no editor publishes a letter if he doesn't know who wrote it. Which is the one thing that puzzles me most about the haters:

If they have sense enough to be ashamed, how come they don't have sense enough to think the cricks out of their twisted minds?

One way to live within your income is to keep your chin up and your overhead down.

Don't get yourself hopelessly in debt by spending what your friends think you make.

Ruth A. Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Freeman of Cass City, is a member of the graduating class of the University of Detroit. She is a 1965 graduate of Cass City High School.

The graduate reported she had taken civil service tests for her chosen field, biology. She said she may continue with graduate study in the general field of biology.

Her ultimate goal is work in the food and drug administration with a starting salary in the area of $8,000. Miss Freeman said she preferred working somewhere in the Tri-city area and that she hoped she would not have to work in Detroit or a large metropolitan area.

Urge electric 4-H projects

BY BERNARD R. JARDOT

Today's youth are being urged to "Tune in" and "Turn on" and our 4-H Electrical Science and Electronic Projects will help our members do this both figuratively and literally.

Our 4-H members start by learning some of the fundamentals of electricity and safety in its use. The next step in their project work can then be the building of such items as a trouble light, extension cord, lamps or a variety of other things.

The next step is generally the repair of small electric appliances, lamps and electrically driven equipment. The older members will then be able to show others how to care for and use electrical equipment. Every farm, home or shop will have some electrical items our members can become more familiar with.

The older members can switch on the power as they become more skilled. Also they will be able to take on larger jobs such as the installation of switches, circuits and plan wiring layouts for the home or farm.

It is my suggestion that we involve our older members in the electrical projects that will enable them to investigate the expanding field of electronics. They can experiment with electrical gear and build a portable radio, intercom or transmitter. Maybe they will invent new gadgets and new uses for electrical and electronic power.

As in our other 4-H project areas, I suggest that our leaders plan and conduct field trips and tours to see how we are supplied electrical power and the ever increasing use of electrical power in our society today.

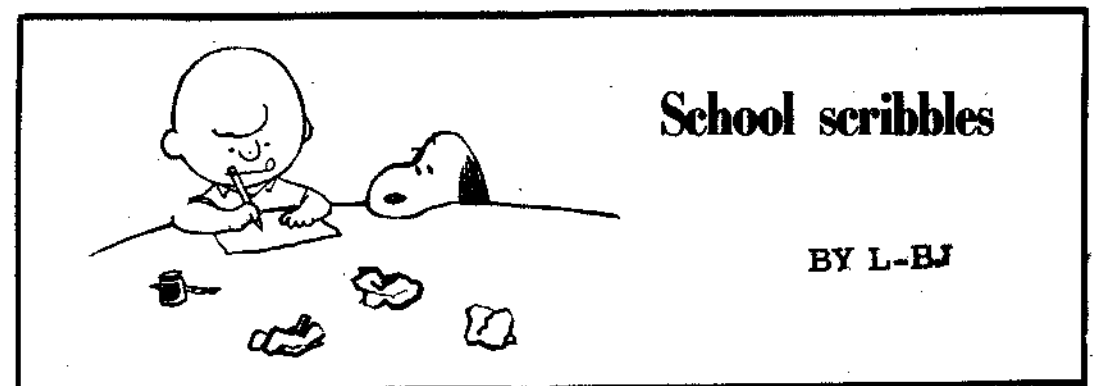

Yes our youth can be turned on with the 4-H electrical projects, why not start an electrical club in your community?

C. C. H. S.

It has been a tradition at C.C.H.S. to have a twirp week in the spring of the year to give a break in the monotony of a student's life. (Students are always in need of a change.) During twirp week students are allowed to dress more casually and to have a little more fun than usual through the week's various activities.

Contrary to the casual dress of the week, on Monday students dressed up. On dress up day the guys wear jackets and ties, and the girls wear their "Sunday best." Monday was also student teacher day and no bells day; meaning that students changed positions with teachers for the day and no bells were used between classes.

Tuesday students dressed in a manner appropriate to the occupation they have chosen. Although some came in very original costumes, a majority of the students dressed casually (girls wore slacks) and claimed to be college students. From a senior's point of view, Wednesday, Senior worship day, was probably the best day of the week. All underclassmen were required to bow to the seniors throughout the day. (Some underclassmen acquired backaches between classes.)

Early in the week some students completed questionnaires for computer match day, Thursday. The guys were required to walk their "Match" to classes; however, due to a surplus of girls, some guys ended up with three girls. (Being irresistible has its drawbacks.) Friday was the official "dress down" day. To come to school comfortably dressed was a blessing for the students but a nightmare for the teachers.

JOHN ASHER is a bartender and Linda Wright a Swedish barnmaid.

Friday evening the twirp week carnival was held in the high school gym, and a dance featuring "The Human Creed" followed. Students who failed to comply to the week's rules were fined a penny by one or more of the eight twirp week sheriffs. All fines and profits went to the Student Council, sponsor of twirp week.

Behind the Counter Druggist's role-

The list of "miracle" drugs that have been developed within the last two or three decades is an amazing one. It's been said that there is no other period in history during which so many advances have been made in protecting the health of so many people.

There's been a similar explosion in the amount of information that every member of the health team must have. Your doctor is attending more post-graduate courses; your pharmacist is reading more professional journals; your nurses and technicians are constantly re-learning new techniques. All of these have one objective in common: improving the patient's treatment.

It's not enough for a wonderful new drug to be developed by a researcher in a remote laboratory. It must be manufactured in quantity, and distributed throughout the country so that your doctor will have it when he needs it—even if he needs that particular medication only once a year. This is the pharmacist's key role today—making sure that the complex life-saving and life-extending drugs are on hand when needed.

But it's not just a matter of taking pills off the shelf and putting them into a bottle. The druggist's knowledge of the constant developments in pharmacology is an aid to the physician who may seldom have to deal with certain medicines. It is the pharmacist who is expected to provide an impartial, professional opinion on the drug's usefulness, the possible side-effects and other data needed to protect your health.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Sold two tickets for cancelled flights

By Dan Marlowe

I have a friend who insists that the Gods of Travel are bad tempered as far as she is concerned.

Taxis break down en route to airports; ordinarily simple connections are fouled up by unexplained complications; luggage is lost; and in fact everything that can possibly go wrong indeed goes wrong.

I used to pooch-pooch her notion because—as I stated firmly—I've been catching trains and meeting planes all my life with no undue complications.

Then I experienced first-hand an example of her grievance. It was in New York City some years ago. She asked me to see her to her train taking her back to North Carolina. "No problem," I assured her. "This is one time your supposed travel gremlins will be totally inoperative."

My first hint that the trip might be other than ordinary came when I arrived ready for escort duty. My friend had nine pieces of matched luggage accompanying her. It was a holiday, and I had allowed extra time. We arrived at Penn Station two hours early, as a matter of fact. I had trouble finding a redcap, but diligent search produced one. Baggage tickets were exchanged for baggage, and we went to have a leisurely sandwich.

Eventually I escorted my friend to the train platform a good 30 minutes before departure time. There was only one problem: the redcap hadn't showed up with her luggage. He didn't show up, and he didn't show up, and my friend grew more and more nervous. I kept trying to soothe her while the inexorably advancing minute hand of the station clock had me in need of soothing.

Barely two minutes before departure time I spotted the redcap advancing at a gallop down the long platform. The bags were piled high upon a luggage cart. Despite both our admonitions to him, the redcap had mistaken the train, which pulled out with my friend standing in a vestibule between two cars while the redcap and I ran along beside the moving train slinging bags into the vestibule. We barely had the last bag aboard before the train slipped into the tunnel out of reach.

So much for my pooch-pooching my friend's travel premonition. She had a recent experience even more unnerving. Booked on a direct flight from New York City to North Carolina, she arrived at the airport to find that that particular flight had been discontinued a week before.

Forced to fly to Washington to make a connection, she was sold another ticket on a flight that had been discontinued. Twice in one night she had been sold tickets on discontinued flights, and the airline wound up paying a $20 cab fee for her while she stayed overnight with friends in the Washington area.

Never again will I pooch-pooch her travel gremlins.

For some people the Gods of Travel evidently reserve a frown instead of a smile.

For the wedding trip the bride chose a light blue dress trimmed with white and a matching coat. She wore a white carnation corsage. The couple will live at Ubyly following four days in northern Michigan.

The bride is a graduate of Saginaw General Hospital

School of Nursing and is a nurse at Hubbard Hospital, Bad Axe. The groom attended California State Polytechnic College, San Luis Obispo and San Francisco Theological Seminary. He is minister at the Ubyly and Fraser Presbyterian churches.

Two bridal showers were held during the month of April.

Men of the sea:
fatalism to admire

By Richard Haines

"You are killing me, fish, the old man thought. But you have a right to. Never have I seen a greater, or more beautiful, or a calmer or more noble thing than you, brother. Come on and kill me. I do not care who kills who."

Those are lines from Hemingway's "Old Man and the Sea" about a lone old man capturing a small whale. They were lines I remembered on a recent tour of the Bay Port Fishing Co. fishing excursion, a special assignment.

The owner had told me it was the "last commercial fishing outpost" on the Great Lakes.

My first attempt to go out netting with the men failed when I had arrived at 5:45 a.m. at Bay Port a few weeks ago. High winds, I found out, deterred the men from going out because of difficulty handling the nets.

I had been the first to arrive. It was just commencing into daylight. The winds were brisk and the skies, dark and threatening. I could hear the cold waves slamming against the dark, watersoaked wharf.

Long rectangular, deserted buildings lined the dirt drive straight to the building farthest back that had a sign, "Bay Port Fishing Co." Most had tin siding and roofing and provided a stark portrayal against the grey sky and Lake Huron waters.

A couple old tug boats had been pulled up on the bank of a channel aligning the buildings. Boats upon dry land. They seemed just dropped there by old man Time - because he had no place else to put them. I stood gazing out into the waves of Lake Huron and it momentarily seemed a desolated world, hundreds of waves. Lonely waves, with white cold, 6:00 a.m. crests.

The waves, slamming the wharf, the wind, encircling my ears, were the only sounds except for the distant clang of loose tin roofing on one of the metallic-gray buildings. I could see the shack-like roofing. It was bent back over itself, somehow writhing in pain.

There I was, just like the owner said, the last commercial fishing outpost on the Great Lakes.

The altar was decorated with white floral arrangements of snapdragons and lilies. The bride approached the altar with her father. She chose a crepe gown styled with a round neckline and a straight skirt, the bodice and long sleeves were of Venetian lace. Appliques of Venetian lace enhanced the train which fell from mid-back held secure with bows. Her floor length veil was held with a bow; the center was seed pearl encrusted. She carried a colonial bouquet of white roses, baby's breath and lily. Her pearl and diamond earrings were a gift from the groom.

The bride presented a bouquet of white carnations and mums at the statue of the Blessed Virgin. Marcia Freye was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a Nile green, A-line, floor length, sleeveless dress fashioned with a stand-up collar of Venice lace. Her floor length veil was held secure with a bow. She carried white carnations, pale green baby's breath and lily streamers.

John Moran of Minneapolis, Minn., was the best man. James and Robert Freye, brothers of the bride, were the ushers.

A wedding reception was held at the bride's home at Owosso. Special guests were the bride's (maternal) grandmother, Mrs. Donna Poe of Brookville, Fla., who wore a corsage of tea roses, and a great-aunt, Mrs. Dora Russcher of Holland, Mich., who wore a carnation corsage.

Mrs. Freye greeted guests in a light blue, A-line, sleeveless crepe dress with matching accessories. Her dress featured a bow at the neckline with rhinestones in the center. She wore a white cymbidium orchid.

For their wedding trip the couple went to Colorado Springs, Colo.

The bride attended Ferris State College and the groom graduated from the University of Wisconsin. He mastered in management consulting.

The bride chose a gown of delustrated satin. The chiffon overdress and train were accented with lace and seed pearls at the bodice, neckline, sleeves and edge of the train. She carried an arrangement of stephanotis, white orchids and baby's breath. Her dress was an original design, hand-tailored by the groom's sister, as were the attendants' dresses.

Donna J. Auler of Toledo, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Irene M. Greenhoe of Okemos, Mich., sister of the groom, Carol J. Erne of Woodville, Ohio; and Marianne Susor of Toledo.

They wore blue crepe floor length dresses accented with blue chiffon sleeves and back panels. They carried bouquets of daisies with a velvet bow and streamers.

Thomas L. Greenhoe was the best man. The ushers were Richard Auler of Toledo, Ronald Heinrich of East Lansing and Thomas Heinrich of Grosse Pointe Woods.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony for approximately 200 guests at the Bancroft Hall, Toledo. Both mothers wore corsages of violets and rose buds.

Following the wedding trip to Niagara Falls the couple will live at Cass City, where the groom is band director at the Cass City High School. The bride is a graduate of Mary Manse College, Toledo, and will be employed as a psychometrist at the Caro State Hospital. The groom graduated from Michigan State University.

AROUND THE FARM
70-year-old weed seeds still sprout
By Alfred P. Ballweg

A farmer cannot relax in his war on weeds. Nature controls to a large extent the spread of weeds in spite of the farmer's maximum effort. Most of the more noxious species produce a multitude of seeds. The seeds may remain viable for decades. They may travel by wind or water, by attaching themselves to moving bodies, or by passing through the digestive tracts of birds or animals. One of the tumbleweeds, a bushy annual which when ripe detaches itself from the ground, has been estimated to bear from six to ten million seeds. As winds move the plant, the seeds scatter over the ground. Many species produce more than 100,000 seeds per plant. The seeds are patient. I recall an experience while County Agent in North Dakota where a farmer plowed up a meadow that had not been cultivated for 50 years and planted it to flax. Along with the flax came the most beautiful stand of wild mustard I had ever seen. Back in 1879 a professor filled twenty pint bottles with fifty seeds each of twenty weed species and buried them, mouth down, a foot and a half deep. Seventy years later, when the last bottle was dug up, the mullein and evening primrose seeds were still able to sprout. After forty years seeds of plantain, ragweed, purslane, pigweed and peppergrass, all common nuisance weeds, had been found viable. The superabundance of seeds and the long dormancy of which many are capable help to explain why it is so hard to eliminate weeds. A farmer this year may work a field so that, by cultivation and by using herbicides, no weed goes to seed. Next year when he stirs the soil again he exposes to light and warmth the seeds that since the year before last, or maybe for ten years, have been lying in wait. If only 1 per cent of a typical uncontrolled stand of weeds escape control in arable land, about 50 million new weed seeds are added to the soil per acre. A typical weed seed population of 200 million per acre can be reduced to about 250,000 per acre after a ten-year control program. An acre is not a large tract. If, even after ten years of effort to control weeds a quarter million seeds still remain in the soil, obviously the problems they create have not been licked. Buried seeds will come to life in other years. Whether in time the repeated applications of varied herbicides will lead to really clean fields only the experiences of years to come will tell. One comforting thought is that, unlike some insects, weeds have not developed resistance to chemical pesticides to which they were originally susceptible. While plants seldom produce more than one generation a year, insects breed much faster. The processes by which nature might manage to create resistant weeds would require many generations.

New hope for the retarded

By Mrs. Ann Ross Extension Agent

Mentally retarded children resemble other children more than they differ from them. The old myths of tendencies toward crimes or unusual destructive behavior have largely been put to rest.

How? Public education has brought about a new awareness of the causes and needs of the mentally retarded. While the brain does not reach full development in the retarded child, the majority can become marginally independent. And with special schools and education most retarded children needn't be confined to institutions.

With this recognition of the adjustments possible for the retarded, there is new hope for the family with a retarded child in today's community. However, there are still real community services that are crucial if the full potential of the retarded child is to be realized. Early diagnosis and a planned program of treatment is another essential.

In many communities the public schools have been active in providing special education for the retarded child. Follow-up vocational services and training are also necessary community services. The young retarded adult who becomes too old for school programs often faces a serious gap in training if these services are not available.

Parents of retarded children in many communities have joined in associations and have been crucial in aiding the personal adjustments of families with retarded children and also in bringing about new public understanding.

The Model

"Now I'm big—with a hat like Mommy's!" Amy was really full of herself when we went shopping yesterday.

I was amused, too, as I watched her imitate her mother on the way to church the next day. She really had that walk down to a "T."

I'm glad her mother is her model. She couldn't have a better one. Mary's love of God is reflected in everything she does. Her happiness in serving God and His church is contagious. I should know!

When we were married, I was a sometime churchgoer. Now, I teach Sunday School, sing in the choir and am chairman of the building committee. I find it deeply satisfying to know that my church needs me.

Every church needs the dedicated effort of its members. Experience the joy of serving God.
