

Special report: springtime is drag time for area youth

BY RICHARD HAINES

Tuscola County Sheriff Hugh Marr reports it is now "the worst time of year" for complaints from residents reporting drag racing near their residences.

Though he said the problem is not as great as it has been in the past, he said the game, "I can beat you," is in full session right now on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons.

Cass City youths report most drag races result from a very informal challenge, sometimes preceded by engine revving at the stoplight or another corner, or sometimes a restaurant.

"Wanna run it?" A pause, and then the response, "Where do you want to go?"

For most, the challenge appears to be too much to lay aside. Some, they said, drag only when they're asked, but "I do it when I'm asked, but I don't look for it," said one.

The prize, youths reported, is chiefly the esteem of licking an opponent. Sometimes though, "the loser buys" (a six pack of beer) or the races are run "$1 per gear" (whoever is running ahead at the point when the "draggers" are thrust into second or high gears).

Which youths drag? "Anybody—anywhere they got a car, more-or-less."

When that question was posed to Sheriff Hugh Marr, he said their experience shows a cross section of the youth population drag race, "that some drag racers come from the best families."

One family man and his wife he said, were once ticketed for drag racing with each other.

"They would race a 1/4 mile, or a 1/2 mile, change cars, and then race back," he said.

"This thing is a hobby to these people." Deputy James Jezewski said, "When they want to drag race, they go out of town. But in town, if you don't watch them, they'll run it from the stoplight every time."

Officers reported, and youths confirmed, that most present drag racing is done on Schwegler Road, 1 mile east of Cass City, on Koepfgen Road 2 miles northwest, and on South Cemetery Road.

A road commonly used by drag racers last year was Kelly Road beside Tuckey Block where one local officer reported they kept a lookout on each end of the road while somebody else flagged the races off to tire smoking starts.

Drag racers are particular in the roads they choose. A coarse blacktop is preferred over gravel or even a smoother asphalt where racing slicks or conventional tires are prone to lose traction, youths reported.

Youths reported numerous fellow drag racers visited Cass City last summer, especially from Sandusky and also Marlette.

Deputy Jezewski said about drag racers, "They want to see what their car will do, and drag racing is the way they find out."

Officers reported the presence of an officer's car quickly quells drag racing, but youths interviewed said they wouldn't hesitate to "outrun the cops" if they felt they had a good chance to escape.

Most of the cars are owned by the boys themselves, paid for usually with funds from their own job. Their engines are most always V-8's and the youths are quick to note how such things as power steering and different gear ratios

Seniors in final swirl

Saturday marked the beginning of the finale for graduation events for the Cass City class of '69 with their Junior-Senior Banquet being held at the high school.

The annual prom will be held this upcoming Saturday, May 24, and Tuesday, May 27, will be their last day of classes.

The annual "Swing-out" event will also be Tuesday when seniors will march through Cass City's Main Street led by the high school band at 9 a.m.

On Wednesday about 85 seniors leave for the annual class trip taking them to New York City via chartered bus. The trip includes sightseeing, night club and Broadway play visits and they will return Sunday, June 1.

A hectic schedule moves the class into baccalaureate services that Sunday evening at the high school gym at 8 p.m. with Rev. Richard Canfield of the Baptist Church presenting the address.

Graduation is Thursday, June 5, also at 8 p.m. at the gymnasium with an address by Dr. Harold Sponberg, President of Eastern Michigan University.

106 seniors are expected to graduate.

Sentence pair for breaking and entering Gun Club

Two Cass City youths were sentenced and five county men were arraigned in criminal cases heard before Judge Norman A. Baguley Tuesday in Tuscola County Circuit Court in Caro.

Gerald Roger Bresky and Randall Lee Aleksink of Cass City were sentenced to 36 months' probation for breaking and entering the Cass City Gun Club Mar. 23 with intent to commit a larceny.

In addition the first three months of the sentence will be served in the county jail. Bresky was allowed a credit for 56 days served awaiting trial and Aleksink was allowed credit for one day previously served.

Each was ordered to pay fine and costs of $400.

Four men pleaded guilty to larceny from a motor vehicle. Judge Baguley accepted a plea from Randy Lee Warren of Mayville and Michael Curtis Tompkins, Barry David Harris and Douglas Dewayne Wheaton, all of Fostoria.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered and sentence will be passed July 1. Bonds were continued.

Robert Woloshen of Caro switched his plea from innocent to guilty Tuesday. He is charged with larceny from Caro High School.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered and sentence will be passed July 1. Bond was continued.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

Perhaps everyone is guilty at times of reading headlines and jumping at conclusions not sustained by facts.

In school questions it always seems that it's the rule rather than the exception.

Maybe it's this way because the lion's share of local tax dollars go to educate our youngsters.

When it touches the pocket-book it is a matter of concern and with concern comes discussion.

Two of the principal topics today are the demands of the teachers and the "budgeted possible surplus of $1,300" listed in the revamping of the school curriculum if the millage vote fails to pass.

Every concerned taxpayer should view the teachers' requests in the proper perspective. We should remember that the figure now banded about is but the opening demand of the union team and not the amount that will be paid by the district.

It's a sure thing that when the final contract is signed, teachers' salaries will not be increased 20 per cent.

It's equally sure that a good many will be saying that the teachers will get whatever surplus money is available in the district.

They will say it regardless of the facts and a certain percentage will believe it. Regardless of what is said here or by knowledgeable people, the "why give them the money when it will just go to the teachers?" attitude will persist.

We feel this is an excuse, not a reason. The truth is that we can no more afford to be under the area wage scale than we can be over it.

We must be competitive with other districts to attract and hold good teachers....we must not pay over the area scale or the district is in an indefensible position when the bills are to be paid and the taxpayers are asked to come up with the money.

Cass City ranks well in this respect....is in the middle of the salary scale for this area and is likely to remain so.

The "surplus" in the budget has taxpayers saying that the school is asking for more millage than it needs and is asking for money without knowing what it will be used for.

It's not true, but it does require explanation. The catch word in the statement is "possible."

Taxpayers should remember that the school is big business...a million dollars big. In a budget of this size a one per cent error is $10,000. Figuring possible expenses for a year within 1.3 per cent is closer than most of us can come. And remember the school doesn't know exactly how much money the legislature will dole out in State Aid.

It's like figuring the expense of a $10,000 family budget a year in advance within $130...without knowing how much over-

ELKLAND TOWNSHIP Firemen heavily doused a stubborn motor fire last Friday evening at the junction of M-81 and M-53 when the auto in which Mr. and Mrs. Paul Silver were traveling began smoking and the motor burst aflame. Traveling from Detroit to Sand Point, the elderly couple called ahead to friends for help in completing their journey. The motor and front of the car were damaged.

Veterans feel Bay Port fishery end near

BY RICHARD HAINES

Hardy seafarers they were, men of the lake. Lake Huron that is. The three of them head "seaward" from Bay Port daily—weather permitting.

The three are Captain Albert Deming, Elvin "Germany" Harder, and John "Rip" Lobdell.

And they work for the Bay Port Fish Company, run by partners Henry Englehard and Mel Dutcher, which is one of the century's last commercial fishing outposts of the Bay City-Thumb coastline.

Originally started in 1927, it has teamed with up to 14 steel tugboats and 50 employees. They now have 3 tugboats and 20 employees.

Since the Great Lakes decline of the trout and whitefish, commercial fishing companies have declined with them and the Bay Port Fish Company is one of the very few left.

To investigate the operations of an industry laden with history, a tour on a regular fishing excursion was made.

Captain Albert Deming, a short, plump, congenial fellow, was flanked by two hardy seafarers, Elvin "Germany" Harder and thick-bearded John "Rip" Lobdell, when he took to sea.

It was 6 a.m. and a grey skyline threw a foreboding grey cast from the Lake Huron waters.

Our craft was a 36 foot steel tug whose dark grey hull has battered Lake Huron waves for over 25 years.

A rhythmic chug-a-lug came from the frugal 35 hp straight-8, an engine not running on all of its cylinders.

From the cabin to the stern, was a large working space for drawing nets and boxing fish. An old wooden floor, though intact, was slippery from the mucus of flagging fish, rain, and engine oil.

A long row of boxes ran down the center of the craft's working area. These boxes are the staple of the industry. They are about 19 inches by 27 inches with a depth of about 7 inches and the fish are heaved into these boxes when they are netted onto the boat from the big lake nets.

These boxes, piled on top of each other to keep flapping fish from springing out, are "weighed in" back at the processing plant. Chopped ice is then shoveled over them, and a top nailed on whereby each is then sold as a "lot", unless sold in smaller portions.

We plied the waves for an hour and for a reportedly 11 miles into a slightly misty Lake Huron. The misty horizon obscured landmarks from view and skilled captain Ab had been guarding a compass and his pocketwatch, perched near the dashboard.

Finally, he slowed the craft and "Rip" threw a "line" with a weight on the end overboard. Arm by arm, he lengthened the line into the depths of the lake.

"11 feet," he yelled.

The captain cranked to the left, and the boat thudded over every wave, its grey steel-hulled craft curved left and three seafarers peered over the horizon scanning for the buoys that marked the nets.

After about another five minutes Elvin spotted the marker that I couldn't see until we got closer.

"Where?", I asked.

"Over there," he said. My eyes strained in vain.

Finally, I spotted a tiny dark speck on the horizon and I said, "You mean that?"

"Yea," said the captain.

"Oh."

The Bay Port Fishing Company has over 60 trap nets offshore.

With 8 trap nets to a "line", there are about 10 lines in the Saginaw Bay.

The nets have a thin coating of tar from a "cold-tar" process that makes them stiff and manageable and less prone to tangle.

Our steel tug chugged alongside one of the nets. A series of bobber-like floats along with anchors keep the nets in position, where they remain unless high winds cause them to tangle.

With a long pole with a hook on the end, a "Pike pole", "Rip" hooked the edge of the net and brought one of its "lines" on board which the captain rapped around a towing-pulley a couple times.

The captain gave the lines gentle tugs and the ends of the net were drawn up next to the boat. It appeared easy.

A netful of shimmering perch and other fish splashed and flapped as they were lifted slightly out of the water.

With a small net, Elvin splashed a netful of fish from the lake net on Ab's box and Ab began sorting out the larger Carp, Suckers, Bass, and Catfish and small Pickerel. The Carp were running 10-15 pounds and Ab had to pick them up with both arms, which he then heaved four boxes aftward.

During the morning about 15 Coho were thrown away, "put back," Ab said, correcting me.

Michigan fishermen are not allowed to keep the glimmering white Coho, but Ab said the Canadian government not only allows their fisherman to keep the Coho, but subsidizes them as well.

The captain and his two fellow seafarers also put back Coho, small Pickerel, Pike, Suckers, Bass and small Perch.

In contrast to gill nets their trap nets do "not" kill the fish and the fish are put back unharmed.

One, a "long nosed one", a Garpike, was also "put back." Later, the wind picked up and the temperature dropped.

It started to rain.

"Hey, the wind has changed directions," said "Rip".

"I noticed that," said Ab, his seafaring instinct never leaving him.

Trips are made to each net normally every 3 days. Gusty conditions warrant a trip only every 4 or 5 days however, because of the lesser number of fish caught.

At one net, a large drifting log was hooked with their poles and towed about 200 feet from the nets.

It was getting colder, and the rainy wind had picked up. Large waves tossed the craft fore and aft with knee-jarring "thuds".

But the seafarers didn't seem to notice. Each of the three had worked "on the dock" most of the fishing seasons since 1940 and their hardy tasks had made them crusty men, the way hardship does to most men's characters. Their spirits remain high.

"This is the only job we know," said the captain and "I'll probably only last a couple more years."

We started back. Our catch totaled 800 pounds of perch and 250 pounds of Carp, an average haul.

In the tiny cabin, the four of us, except the captain, crouched on life jackets and coats, and the exhaust pipe of the old motor made the tiny cabin cozy warm, despite the big waves and wind outside.

That morning had meant hard work for the men and we catnapped to the steady lull and vibration of the motor during the hour-long trip back to the coastline.

A NET of bustling perch are lifted aboard from the trap nets with a hand net by Elvin Harder. The fishermen report a tremendous season for netting perch, but smaller ones, as well as other species, are "put back" into the Lake Huron waters.

Plan Memorial Day observance

Authorities this week announced traditional Memorial Day services in the area.

In Cass City the event will be held Friday, May 30, and in Grant Township, the traditional observance is set for Sunday, June 1.

Ed Goding Jr., chairman, said that the parade will start in the village at 10:30 a.m. and services will be held at Elkland Cemetery at 11 a.m.

Free flags will be an added inducement for boys and girls to participate in the parade by riding decorated bikes, Goding said.

Individuals and organizations wishing to participate should contact Goding as soon as possible, it was disclosed.

At Grant, the Rev. DeVore, pastor of the Owendale United Methodist Church, will be the guest speaker.

Scheduled to participate are the Owen-Cage marching band, veterans, Girl Scouts and the RLDS choir.

BY JOHN HAIRE

(And anyone else he can get to help)

You don't use it, you lose it. That's what the Gerald Fortnuns (Sally Hunt) and Jim Fritz reported via tape recorder Tuesday to Cass City Rotary. They described incidents of their Peace Corp stay in Paraguay. One of the most unusual was a language problem. Not Spanish . . . English. That's right, English. The trio say that as their Spanish becomes more fluent, it becomes harder to express themselves in English. The Cass Citizens say that they are now experiencing trouble translating uniquely Spanish phrases into English. It has been just a little over five short months since they left the country.

Cash Asher, now of Corpus Christi, Texas, a native of the Cass City area who left when 16, will have his books and papers about Michigan added to the University of Michigan Library's Michigan Historical Collections.

According to Robert M. Warner, director, the works have permanent research value. Incidentally, Asher's life history reads like something out of a Horatio Alger novel. He's done just about everything there is to do.

He left the family farm here and became a hobo. He criss-crossed the nation several times and worked for newspapers in various states including the big dailies. The Detroit Free Press was one.

He has been a public relations director, free lance writer, fishing expert and author of several books.

Now in his 70's, the last time we saw him he looked at least a decade younger than his age.

Slightly vain, Asher won't tell just how old he is, but says merely that he was born before the turn of the century.

What makes a couch a "fainting" couch. Does it have a special design or build?

I confess that I never heard of one until recently when I noticed that they were advertised. I thought another "typo" had slipped into the paper.

Is a fainting couch one constructed in a certain era? An antique?

Somebody must have the answer. Share it with me and I'll share it with everybody.

James Sutherland, Superintendent at Caro Community Schools, takes exception to remarks that there were no curriculum cuts after millage requests were denied.

He sent a resume of the over $100,000 in curriculum cuts to prove his point.

They reduce educational excellence at every level in the school, but are not immediately apparent.

Our cuts won't be as noticeable as the ones proposed in Cass City, Sutherland feels, but we aren't in as bad financial shape as Cass City . . . yet.

But another year without money will change the picture in Caro. Sutherland says he has a letter in to Gov. Milliken asking if the school would qualify for State Aid if it ran a full schedule until the money runs out and then closed.

I haven't received an answer yet, Sutherland says. But I'd rather go full tilt and then close than go to half days.

Closing the school appears to be a harsh solution. But isn't the alternative (half days) harsh, also?

Final rites today for Edward Rusch

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 p.m. at Little's Funeral Home for Edward Rusch, 70, of Cass City.

Mr. Rusch was an area contractor for many years and was known in the Cass City and Thumb area.

He died Monday at Hills and Dales General Hospital after a long illness.

Son of the late Gottlieb and Luisa Hipp Rusch, he was born July 14, 1898, in Huron County. He married Hazel Haley of Cass City Nov. 26, 1925, in Detroit.

Surviving are: his widow; two sisters, Mrs. Emma Kreger, Snover, and Mrs. Bertha Hildinger, Cass City, and two half-brothers, Arthur and Norman Wendorf, both of Snover.

The Rev. Richard Spencer, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, will officiate at final rites. Burial will be in Elkland Cemetery.

Letters to Editor

Offer tips for curing hair lice problem

May 18, 1969

Dear Editor,

I was really amused when I read the letter to you about the frustrated mother's daughters bringing head lice home from school. My letter might help. When I was a girl 10-11-12 years of age, I had a beautiful head of hair, could sit on it. One morning I was scratching my head so terrible that my mother said what's the matter with you? Let me look at your head. And to her bewilderment she said, you're not going to school today, you've got head lice, and she kept me home for two weeks, doing everything she could think of. She used kerosene, turpentine, and fresh butter. Well, the turpentine did it, but with that long hair it was no small task. And no health department to go to for advice. The nits won't come off just by picking them off, they have to go clear to the end of the strand. This was back in 1909. In those days no specialist of any kind could be found so I had to suffer with a sore head. The girls I got the lice from sat a seat ahead of me in school and those lice sure jumped into my hair. The mother said it was a nasty and dirty job. Well, I imagine their girls have short hair, and that wouldn't be so hard. I will say that it's no disgrace to have the lice but it is a disgrace to keep them. The lice will disappear but the nits will stay for a year.

Yours truly,
Mrs. Clara McGregory Kamps

Is the pill next at Cass City School?

May 18, 1969

Dear Mr. Haire,

I just read the article in the Cass City Chronicle about Sex Education. I was so disgusted after reading it that I just had to tell someone.

Teachers today want to educate children a little too much on this so called sex business. Why can't children be just children for a few years? Adults seem to think that children's minds should run on their level. In this day and age there is no such thing as a fairy tale anymore. The trend is to fill their minds with all this education that they don't even understand anyway. Naturally they are going to be curious and want to know, but why rush it? Why fifth grade?

It sure wouldn't surprise me if before too long these schools install a pill machine.

With all this education it certainly doesn't cut down the illegitimate babies and divorce. Thank you for listening.

Just a mother that cares

School's sex education will corrupt young

Dear Mr. Editor,

I read with dismay that the Cass City school system has so let down the bars as to have a nitty-gritty sex education program get it's nasty foot in the door. And nitty-gritty it will be whatever that is when it gets under way.

Dr. Rhoda Lorand, Ph.D., a well known psychologist in New York City wrote that, "I have read the scripts for Family Life and Health Education program entitled 'Time of Your Life' which was created by Dr. William H. Ayres and Mrs. Marilyn McCurdy and I can well understand why you are so distressed by them. The entire program is inappropriate for the age groups to which they are presented. . . Further, Dr. Ayres' statement 'Children are best able to learn about sex and development before they are exposed to the anxieties of adolescence' is

Soil conditions crucial to crops

By Don Kebler

Is your fertilizer showing the results of its use in the crops produced? If your answer is "no", maybe the reason is the fertilizer being used. Or is the reason one of improper application of the fertilizer nutrients?

Maybe it's both or maybe it's neither one. It might be substandard soil conditions, poorly adjusted equipment, rushed farming requirements, weed competition plus many other crop production short comings. Any of these alone or in combination can cause what appears to be the result of poor fertilizer use management.

At times I have taken plant tissue tests on poorly growing crops and the tests show high nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. Corresponding soil tests of the area show a sufficient supply of phosphorus and potassium and the fertilizer applied was adequate. Further observations showed such problems as soil compaction; improper seed placement depth, poor drainage, disease, insects, weeds plus other non-soil fertility related causes.

The message I am bringing out here is that commercial fertilizer materials are usually blamed first for poor crop growth. In many cases the fertilizer supplied is working at a sub-par level and doing the best it is allowed to do.

Over the last month I visited several fertilizer dealers to give them assistance on their soil fertility and fertilizer recommendation procedures.

I can remark they are making good fertilizer prescriptions for the crop needs. Several are making dual recommendations for each crop. This enables their customers to select the most efficient application methods and still supply the proper nutrients at the correct time.

They do the best they can and still have their recommendation problems. Many times they have to do some guessing on the farmer's past field histories. Without knowledge of past crop data of yield, nutrient deficiency, disease, fertilizer placement and programs, field abnormalities, etc., recommendation errors will be made. I have the same problem too. Another problem is for the farmer to apply the fertilizer as prescribed. Sometimes everything works fine, other times not. So if your fertilizer use is not giving the results expected, do some checking on what may be occurring. It may not be the fertilizer causing the abnormalities but something else.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By H. M. Bulen

How about this one. . . Did you know that a BIRD once lost a game for a baseball team? . . . In the minor leagues, a player once hit what looked like a sure home run . . . But before the ball went over the fence, it hit a bird in flight. . . The ball dropped inside the field instead of going over the fence; the batter got only a double instead of a home run; his team failed to score any runs that inning and was forced into extra innings where they eventually lost the game -- all because of a bird!

Do you realize what a jinx New York has been to Baltimore in sports this year? . . . The New York Jets upset the heavily-favored Baltimore Colts in the Super Bowl football game in January and the New York Knicks knocked the first-place Baltimore Bullets right out of the National Basketball Association playoffs, sweeping 4 straight games!

Can you imagine a team finishing as far as 80 games out of first place? . . . It happened once in major league baseball . . . In 1899 Cleveland won 20 games all year and lost 134. . . Meanwhile, the first place team that year won 88 games and lost 42, and if you figure that out you'll find that Cleveland was 80 games behind first!

You can't miss with electric heat.

For openers, it comes with a three-year operating cost guarantee. That's in writing. And is issued only by Edison-Approved Electric Heat Contractors.

If the operating cost doesn't live up to the guarantee, Edison will work with your contractor to see that it does. If things still don't work out, the equipment will be removed and your money will be refunded.

If you'd like to know more about clean, quiet, flameless electric heat, we'll have an Edison-Approved Electric Heat Contractor call on you. Naturally, there's no obligation.

Convert your house to the home of your dreams with modern electric heat.

"The operating cost of our electric heating system is guaranteed in writing," says Cecil Hanes of Orchard Lake.

Solons for creation of 20th Michigan Dept.

CITIES DEPARTMENT

Under the Lockwood-Traxler plan, the proposed department would coordinate state and federal programs in such urban fields as housing, mass transportation, outdoor recreation, water resources, employment, poverty and health services.

The department would be the 20th and final one permitted under the 1963 state constitution. The present 19 principal departments were set up four years ago.

Milliken asked an advisory committee of legislative leaders recently to study the feasibility of such a department. Lockwood, as Senate majority leader, is a member of the unit.

An executive office aide said the Governor apparently anticipated no legislative action this year when he suggested the need for an urban affairs department in a message to the Legislature.

However, the aide added, introduction of the Lockwood and Traxler bills means the "whole timetable might be pushed forward" by Milliken this year.

Competition for the 20th spot is increasing. Some lawmakers want a new department of youth services; others are demanding that liquor control commission be made a separate agency.

Traxler and Lockwood said the pressing needs of Michigan's cities underscore the reasoning for a department to administer and develop urban programs.

"Seventy-five per cent of our citizens live in urban areas, and yet we do not have a state department that is primarily concerned with the quality of life in our urban areas," Traxler said.

"Events in the cities during the past several years have exposed conditions of disadvantage and social failure of a depth previously unrecognized."

The two legislators propose that the State Housing Development Authority, now attached to the Department of Social Services, be transferred to the new agency. Enforcement of state housing codes would be shifted from the Department of Health.

Lockwood said the community affairs department would also be given responsibility for the resettlement of persons displaced because of public works projects. That job is now handled by the State Administrative Board.

Continued bickering within Michigan's congressional delegation has resulted in an impasse over creation of Sleeping Bear Dunes National Park, a conservation consultant reports.

Douglas W. Scott of the Wilderness Society of Michigan said the differences of opinion concern ways of protecting private property in the Benzie-Leelanau area where the park would be located.

He urged the State Natural Resources Commission to petition President Nixon, Congressmen and cabinet members to support Michigan's Sen. Philip A. Hart's bill to create the 61,000-acre park along Lake Michigan in the northwest part of the state.

Scott said an intensive information campaign should be launched by the Department of Natural Resources to alert Michigan residents to the "great importance" of the issue.

The annual used book sale will again be sponsored by the group during the July Sidewalk Sales. Anyone who has used books to donate may call Mrs. Brown, 872-3827, or Mrs. Kirn, 872-3079, to have them picked up.

SGT. SCHROEDER AT AIR BASE IN KOREA

Sergeant Gene K. Schroeder, son of Mrs. Ronald L. Webb of rural Cass City, has arrived for temporary duty at Kunsan Air Force Base in Korea.

He was originally destined for Da Nang, but the bombing of bomb dumps there caused a change in his assignment.

SGT. GENE K. SCHROEDER

Sergeant Schroeder, a munitions specialist, is assigned to a unit of the Pacific Air Forces. Before his arrival in Korea, he served at Langley AFB, Va. He is a 1964 graduate of Cass City High School and attended Michigan State University. He left Cass City April 17 following a 30 day furlough.

Hawks blow lead; lose to Lakers

The Cass City Red Hawks just don't seem able to stand prosperity in Thumb B League baseball competition.

Cass City has dropped three of five games played this season and in two of the defeats blew what appeared to be safe leads over conference foes.

They led six runs before bowing to Caro and this week were ahead of the Lakers by 5 runs before losing a 11-6 decision.

The Hawks scored twice in the first inning. Taylor walked, Hopper singled, Kolb singled scoring Taylor and came home a minute later on a hit by Bifoss and an error.

Cass City hammered out three more runs in the third before the roof fell in the fourth.

Alexander singled, Hopper walked and Kolb singled to load the bases. Smentek walked to force in a run. Wencley forced Hopper at the plate but two unearned runs chased across when the Laker catcher threw the ball into right field trying to double Wencley at first.

In the fourth the Lakers tied

Vague reports plague firemen on fire runs

The Elkland Township Fire Department answered a Deford call last Friday morning shortly after 9 a.m. and spent 1 1/2 hour trying to locate the scene of the blaze.

The site of the fire was a barn belonging to Carl German on Warner Road at Deford, which was extinguished by German himself with very little damage to the barn.

Firemen reported they had no resident name, only a vague address.

Mrs. Carl German said when the fire call was made, the operator was called and that "the line was crackling and someone else besides the operator was talking."

She said the fire truck once went past the house; however firemen could by that time see no smoke because it had been put out.

The fire department urges residents not to call the operator for the fire department. The call can be made just as fast, and the truck can arrive sooner, they say, when calls are made by dialing 2-and then the letters that spell 1-1-r-e, or 2-3473.

Library seeks records of early Cass City

The Elkland Township and Cass City Public Library is planning an historical section in the new library and is seeking the assistance of area persons to make it possible.

They are looking for pictures or documents of historical interest that pertain to the village. Material included will be properly prepared for preservation, display and reference use, authorities said.

Several interesting items have already been contributed. It includes an 1898 copy of the Cass City Enterprise, given by Miss Gertrude McWebb, and several copies of community programs dating to 1890, presented by Mrs. Alton Mark.

Willis Campbell donated photos of former 4-H members. Two research papers will be included in the collection in the section. Mrs. Dave Ackerman's paper about the fires of 1871 and 1881 and Mrs. John Bifoss's work about the changing industrial picture in Cass City have been submitted.

Several items have been given to the library by Ward Benkelman and Dorus Benkelman.

Others with items to contribute are asked to contact Mrs. Arthur Little or a member of the library board.

WSC hears facts about Australia

Miss Muriel Addison presented the program on Australia when the Woman's Study Club met at the home of Mrs. Harry Falkenhagen Tuesday, May 13.

Australia is a hard country, Miss Addison said. Like the United States, it has mountain ranges along its east and west coasts, making it difficult to settle the interior. This area is also a vast tree-less plain with very scant rainfall.

Australia is the smallest and the oldest of the continents and a third is in the torrid zone.

The interior of Australia is inhabited by aborigines. In the north, Negroes, in the south, people from India have settled. Inter-marriage is forbidden and the tribes of the north have never tilled the land.

Mrs. Paul Murray gave the legislative report. Members were urged to write to Dr. Rice protesting the new law regulating ambulance service.

Roll call was answered by members telling a fact about Australia.

In 1905 the Army purchased its first airplane from the Wright brothers.

Orion Cardew, industrial arts pioneer, ends school career

Industrial arts teacher Orion Cardew completes 44 years service to the field of education this year, with 32 of them in the Cass City system.

A gentleman-at-ease, Cardew's career in education began in the UP mining town of Gwinn in Marquette county.

The town was started, he said, by an ambitious mining company, National Mine, who practically built the town with its financial assistance to housing projects, schools, churches and community development.

By 1912, the town even featured blacktopped streets.

The school had a superior industrial arts department, he related, and his counselor advised him there would be a sharp demand for teachers throughout the State because of the upsurge of new industrial arts departments in many schools.

He took his counselor's advice.

He was on the board of directors of the defunct Cass City Community Club for three years and served as club president for one year.

Asked about retirement plans, he said nothing definite, but that he hoped to "do some traveling." On the list, he said, were California, Hawaii and Florida.

ORION CARDEW

When he graduated from Gwinn High School in 1922 he received his Life Certificate from Northern Michigan University. He continued and earned his BS degree there and followed with an MA degree in administration from the University of Michigan in 1950.

He landed his first position with Stephenson High School in Menominee County from 1925 to 1927 where he doubled as basketball coach.

He taught at Palmer High School in Marquette County from 1927 to 1935 and in addition to industrial arts, was high school principal for six years.

From 1935 to 1937, he taught at Algonac High School in St. Clair County and coached freshman sports besides teaching industrial arts.

In most of the schools he said he often pressed for improved industrial arts departments, and in some cases, started them from scratch.

He started at Cass City High School and has taught industrial arts 32 years.

He was junior class advisor 23 years and has fond memories of work with families of juniors who helped with proms, junior-senior banquets and other activities.

He served as district basketball tournament manager from 1938 to 1950.

Cardew feels the school's industrial arts department is a strong arm of the educational program, that the need for area skilled and semi-skilled production workers or craftsmen remains great.

He said it was unfortunate more students don't enter apprenticeship programs, instead of starting as laborers at a Flint or Pontiac plant.

He said the attractive wage scales disillusion youngsters, because their earnings would far exceed that of laborer if they would enroll as an apprentice and later attain a journeyman's card and join a union.

He reported journeyman plumbers on the east coast are pulling $9.50 to $10.00 per hour with wage scales for the same at $7.50 in the Detroit area.

The relaxed veteran of industrial arts said the good industrial arts student "has a natural knack of recognizing what's wrong with a machine."

"You can sense it with them," he said.

He said it was common for

No More Reaching Over the Flame to Lift Cover! The cool touch handle is mounted on the side—no more need for that long, hot reach to open and close the cover.

Greater Depth—The Broilmaster's greater depth (13 1/4 inches from briquets to lid top) means you can cook anything up to a 20-lb. turkey with the cover closed. This greater depth also helps eliminate excessive flare-up. And the grill affords 300 square inches of cooking area—real outdoor party capacity.

Easiest Way Yet to Dispose of Excess Grease—The chrome cooking rack slopes to the back, allowing excess grease to run off quickly through the drain hole and into a grease cup below the housing. The bottom of the grill also slopes to the rear to insure quick run-off of the grease.

Adjustable Cooking Height—Cooking rack can be positioned at the rear to 4 separate heights from the flame.

Permanent Briquets—Saves you trouble and mess—but doesn't change that good outdoor flavor.

Positive Positioned Briquet Rack—So the distance between the burner parts and the briquets remains constant. Rack is designed so it cannot be installed upside down—and is equipped with handles for easy removal.

Even Heat—Broilmaster's porcelain enameled, cast iron, "X" type burner insures a constant, uniform flame.

Easy to Light—Access hole for lighting the burner is conveniently located here. Burner can be reached easily with a small match—no need for a match holder.

Temperature Control—Flame can be set for full range of temperatures.

No injuries in area accidents

No injuries were reported in four accidents involving area drivers investigated during the week by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

Virgil Robert Mayrand, 23, of Kingston lost control of his car Friday when he swerved to avoid another vehicle at the corner of M-46 and Hurds Corner Road.

The car spun into a roadside ditch, Mayrand told Deputy Larry Walker. The left front fender of his car was damaged.

Margaret Elizabeth Peters, 24, of Cass City was ticketed for failure to stop at the junction of East Cass City Road and Hurds Corner Road Saturday after a car she was driving collided with a vehicle driven by Donald J. Vatter, 31, of Cass City.

Both cars were traveling west on Cass City Road. The right front of the Peters car and the left rear of the Vatter car were damaged.

Four teenage youths were uninjured when a vehicle driven by Thomas Hunt, 16, of Deford went into a roadside ditch to avoid a crash on M-81, a half mile east of Colwood Road.

Hunt reported that he swerved to avoid a car ahead that was turning without signaling when he lost control.

The right side of the Hunt car was damaged. Passengers who escaped injury included Charles Mestings, 16, Deford; Tom Russell, 16, Cass City, and Eldon Hutchinson, 15, Caro.

Deputies are investigating. Toby Dean Marris, 17, of Kingston reported to Deputy Ron Phillips that the car he was driving was forced off the road into a ditch on Bevans Road at the junction of East Dayton Road by an unidentified approaching vehicle.

The accident occurred Wednesday, May 14. The vehicle skidded over 100 feet before landing in the ditch, officials reported.

Marris was reportedly uninsured.

Hugh Brenneman 'Friendly' virus found to attack cancer

Everyone has been working to find the cause of all the diseases that afflict man, but there are many more microbes that are useful to man than are those that cause disease.

Doctors have now isolated what may be the first of the viruses which do not cause disease, and this one indeed may be a very useful one. It has the delightful property of selectively destroying malignant cells which are cancerous and doing little or no harm to normal cells.

The finding of this virus happened like this: three doctors were working on isolating fractions of cancer cells -- they were dissecting cancer cells. In this instance, they decided that before throwing away the liquid used in the process, they would inject it into normal animals. The mice injected with this liquid medium initially exhibited ruffled fur and dull eyes. By the next day, however, the mice were practically normal and running around as normal mice should.

The doctors were intrigued and repeated this process four more times. But, in the repeat, they also did blood counts on the mice. They noted that during the first few days one of the elements in the white blood cells, the lymphocytes, were reduced from about 75 percent in concentration to about 25 percent, a marked lowering, but still not dangerous to the animal, and the mice recovered from this. The doctors made an inductive leap. This was that there are diseases in man, cancerous diseases, that are leukemia, which consist in some instances of cancerous lymphocytes. Suppose those lymphocytes were cancerous and this virus got rid of three quarters of the cancerous lymphocytes?

There has been an excitement in research, based upon the belief that since viruses have been shown to cause cancer in animals, that there may be viruses which cause cancer in man. The idea that there would be a virus that did the opposite, that is, destroyed cancer, is intriguing. Research has been able to isolate this particular form of virus which they call the "friendly virus" ... the "friendly virus" is friendly because it attacks cancer cells.

Having satisfied themselves that if they give this virus to an animal that other animals or other technicians will not catch the virus (it is not infectious by ordinary means), this would indicate that based on this preliminary test in humans, that this type of virus can destroy cancer cells in humans, without affecting any of the other organisms. We can truly call this one a friendly virus and perhaps a great potential.

then they were ready to ask the critical question: "Does the friendly virus really work on cancer cells in animals or in humans?"

The doctors went to the naturally occurring cancerous disease in mice, and worked with two kinds of such naturally occurring cancer, leukemia and breast cancer. At the age of six months, the researchers estimated the cancerous process had begun, and at that time they treated them with the Friendly Virus, and of 21 mice treated with this virus, 21 survived. 100 percent of the mice survived their natural life span, which is two years. However, the controlled mice of the same strain were not injected at six months of age, and of these mice only 11 of them survived; 61 percent of them died of leukemia.

In the treated mice the friendly virus did in fact arrest the progress and had a lethal effect on spontaneously occurring leukemia in these mice.

When these viruses attack the cancer cells and destroy them, the body has its system of -- well, sewage disposal is the best analogy. The various organs of the body which are concerned with excretion, elimination and the process that handle this, go into high gear, so to speak.

Encouraged by the data they had in mice, the doctors also did some studies of dogs with the same results. Cautiously, they approached the treatment of humans in far advanced stages of cancerous disease. The reason for choosing far advanced stages was the usual procedure in a new therapy is to make certain that the therapy is not itself hazardous, and therefore the patient of minimum risk is the one whose disease is already advanced to the point where survival is virtually impossible. The human experiments were done and are now being done in England at one of the old and famous hospitals and medical schools.

The results so far are nothing short of remarkable. In that though those patients were so far advanced that helping them to survive was not possible, the evidence available objectively on post mortems done on these patients is that the virus did indeed selectively attack massive amounts of the cancerous tissue and destroyed it, while sparing the normal tissue.

This would indicate that based on this preliminary test in humans, that this type of virus can destroy cancer cells in humans, without affecting any of the other organisms. We can truly call this one a friendly virus and perhaps a great potential.

AAUW delegates tell convention highlights

Mrs. Stanley Kirn Sr., president-elect of the Cass City branch of the American Association of University Women, and Mrs. Richard W. Drews, member of the AAUW state board of directors, attended the Association Convention in Traverse City May 15-17. Mrs. Drews, in her capacity as state Publicity Director and Editor of the Division Michigan News Bulletin, conducted a publicity and bulletin editors session Friday morning for her counterparts of the 61 AAUW branches in Michigan.

In convention action, the Michigan Division of the AAUW voted to give a gift of $500 to the Coretta Scott King Fund, a fund to be used to award scholarships to women who will pursue studies in the areas of non-violence, peace, and Afro-American affairs. A goal of $150,000 by the Association Convention in Chicago next month is being raised during the one-year campaign.

Other resolutions adopted included AAUW support for: quality public education, recruitment of minority group teachers for suburban schools and enrichment of their curriculum to reflect minority group contributions, "altering the abortion laws so that the criminal code will not apply to abortions performed by licensed medical and osteopathic physicians in an accredited hospital licensed by the state," and "the development of the social environment to strengthen family life, to improve and expand health services including mental health and family planning, to assist disadvantaged groups, to reduce crime and juvenile delinquency, and to improve the quality of justice and the rehabilitation of offenders."

Our arrival back at the metal sided processing building right on the shoreline was greeted with a barking hound as we pulled abreast of the building near the dock. Partner Henry Englehard opened the sliding door and he peered over the boxfuls of fish.

Other employees then came to the doorway and I looked up to smiles and enthusiasm. The men were quick to start unloading and the boxes were carried up to scales and each was weighed and tabulated.

From there, a man grabbed the first box and began descaling the fish by individually placing them through a descaling machine where they lopped quickly back into another box sitting on the floor.

Three women then started dressing them. Sharp knives and agile hands carved off fish-heads and tails with smooth rapidity.

Customers to buy the fresh perch and carp were gazing over the "lots" of fish and the teeming activity of the employees throughout the building.

One employee opened a door to chopped ice in a small room where an overhead machine gorged out chopped ice which toppled on top of the mound.

He shoveled at the mound carrying shovelfuls of ice over to fish boxes where, covered with ice, the fish had flapped their last.

affect the performance of their auto.

Kelly Road resident Larry McClorey says drag racers still use the road that parallels their home and racing can be heard as late as 1 or 2 o'clock in the morning. "The sound carries pretty good in the country."

He reported also of close relatives driving west from Cemetery Road to his residence faced with two side-by-side vehicles coming towards them. Officers pointed to this dilemma as the real danger of drag racing - that of hitting an auto innocently traveling in the racers' direction.

Youths interviewed made little mention of this particular danger, their only qualm about two racers using both lanes was whether or not there was any shoulder beside the road to pull off on.

Few paved roads near Cass City have adequate shoulders, if any.

Sheriff Hugh Marr said parents of drag racers who have been contacted "have been very cooperative." "They are shocked and can't believe it, when we tell them their boy has been drag racing."

He added though, that telling the parents usually puts an end to the problem.

Youths interviewed said the accident-death of a friend has the effect of "slowing them down for a while" - but not for long and they're right back to it.

Induct 23 into school's honor society Tuesday

Twenty-three new members were added to the Cass City High School chapter of the National Honor Society in traditional candle-light induction ceremonies held this week.

Additions to the society's membership are made each spring by a faculty council, based on selections made from the list of eligible students by both teachers and students.

Candidates must have a grade average of B or better and membership in each class cannot exceed more than 15% of the class roll. Although scholarship is necessary for consideration, election to the society is never based on this alone. Students must also have excelled in service, leadership, and character.

The induction program, planned by Dave Ackerman, honor society sponsor, was held in the high school cafeteria Tuesday evening. Lynn Haire, 1969 Valedictorian, was chairman of the program. Speaking in the honor society was Marilee Turner, class salutatorian. Other students who participated in the program were Debbie Spencer, Linda Wright, Neil MacCallum, and Marsha Parrott.

Seniors who are graduating as Honor Society members are: Carla Calka, Cheryl Dorland, Lynn Haire, Steve Hosner, Tom Kolb, Neil MacCallum, Ellen Morgan, Joan Orzel, Marsha Parrott, Sandra Schuette, Eileen Smith, Karen Smith, Lorraine Smith, William Spencer.

Marilee Turner, Linda Wright. Those named from the other high school classes were:

ELEVENTH
Lynn Atwell, Betty Ballagh, Margaret Battel, Margie Clarke, Sally Geiger, Lee Taylor.

TENTH

NINTH
Penny Copeland, Susan Hoppe, Shirley Sherman, Sherry Turner, Bradley Uhl.

"If It Fitz..."

Colleges need war veterans

BY JIM FITZGERALD

I know how to end all the foolishness on our college campuses. But first we have to bring the troops home from Vietnam.

As you can see, I am here with going to solve 2 tremendous problems which have long stumped the best minds in the nation. Isn't it amazing that you paid only 10 or 15 cents for this newspaper? You big spenders should buy two and send one to President Nixon.

First, let's deal with Vietnam. All the U.S. has to do is say, "hurray, we won" and get out. Sure, nobody is going to be fooled. But when we finally do cease fire, in 6 months or 6 years, nobody is going to believe whatever phony reason Washington gives then, either. The marvelous difference is that, using my brand of phoniness, 600 or 6,000 or 60,000 young men will not bleed their last drop into the Vietnam mud.

Sure, I know the dominoes are supposed to fall Red as the U.S. retreats. I doubt it but, if so, so what? Do you think the average Vietnam citizen will be worse off without U.S. troops shooting? When you have been hungry and homeless and caught in a stupid crossfire all your life, it is hard to imagine that tomorrow is going to be worse. What could happen, the sun fall on the chicken coop?

Ok, that takes care of the war. Now I get devious. The next step is to discharge our troops directly into our colleges on the GI Bill of Rights. For taxpayers, it will be cheaper than killing Viet Cong. For the ex-soldiers, anything is better than working for General Hershey and an education, even if force-fed, is sure to make them more smart than sick.

As for the colleges, and this is the important part of my plot, the influx of thousands of veterans could be a last-gasp reprieve from the death house.

War veterans simply wouldn't put up with all the nonsense now messing up our campuses. I remember from World War II. The ex-GIs were there for 3 reasons: to learn, to drink beer and to renew relationships with females. They sneered at such childish things as panty raids and snake dances and water fights. If some punk freshman has barred an ex-infantry sergeant from entering the library because there were not enough black history books inside - the sergeant would have thrown the freshman over the clock tower.

Constant readers (Mother and Aunt Madeline) know I am not against dissent from our youth - or from their parents. I support anyone who protests war, racism, the draft or unsalted popcorn. But the protest must be peaceful in that it does not interfere with the rights of others - to get an education or to get across the street. When the protestors break laws, they should be prepared and willing to pay the penalty, ala Martin Luther King. They shouldn't holler for amnesty while still wiping the blood from their hands. A lot of dumb laws need breaking. But a lot of dummies are breaking any old law just for kicks.

A major point in my plan is that black men are fighting much more than their share of the war in Vietnam. This would mean a lot of black veterans on the campuses. They could plant some convincing combat boots into the fannies of their Negro brothers who don't realize that, just because it is immensely more justified, black racism doesn't make any more sense than white racism. And a bomb in the Literature Bldg. is as senseless as a bomb in Saigon.

It is a minority of students who are making battlefields of our campuses. But the majority are sitting around watching. Veterans of bloodier battlefields could spur that majority to laugh - or throw - the silly kids out of the dean's office and back into class.

Then a guy could get down to peaceful studying, beering and wenching.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ed Doolittle told the fellers at the country store Saturday night that business and industry has come down with terrible diseases called the franchises and the conglomerates. Ed said he don't know nothing about the new ailments, but, from what he sees in the papers, they is the worst things to hit this country since that epidemic of defense contract kickback.

The Government is special worried about the conglomerates, Ed said, because it hits the real big outfits. Big companies swaller up little ones when they git the conglomerates, and the Government is afraid the big company gitting bigger will corner the market on whatever they make or sell.

The franchises work different, and the Government ain't working day and night to find a cure fer it. The Government looks at the franchises somepun like they do smoking, allowed Ed, they jest warn folks it might be harmful to their health. The franchises puts a feller in business fer a price, and by setting up businesses all over the country it gits more of the business and makes it harder on the small operator, Ed explained.

After listening to Ed a spell, Bug Hookum told the feller that runs the store to watch out fer the franchises cause it was hitting ever kind of business. The storekeeper said he weren't worried cause the franchises don't go where they ain't no market. He said he had saw where the franchises was in everthing from fried chicken and car mufflers to dance halls and pet shops.

What the franchises do is set up standard equipment and a standard way to do whatever they git into, from pool halls to filling out income taxes. This way, the public can expect to find the same kind of hamburger from one end of the country to the other.

Bug said he had saw where one franchise tried chicken-outfit has jumped over in the franchise babysetting business and they is having a little trouble using a standard operation cause, like a official said, younguns has emotions and chickens don't.

Clem Webster was of a mind the franchises ain't as dangerous as some say. Clem had saw where the "typical franchise holder" pays $25,000 to work a average of 12 hours a day. In the first place, they ain't too many 12 hour workers around these days, Clem said, and in the second place them that ties up $25,000 in somepun probable will do right by their customers in hopes of gitting his investment back.

Actual, Mister Editor, Clem said the franchises may be a cure instead of a disease. He saw where this drugstiff went out of business after 40 year because he wouldn't put in a line of garden seeds, goldfish, toys and camping equipment that ever modern franchise drugstore has these days.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Former resident dies in Detroit

Mrs. John Anderson, the former Clara Belle Seeley, died at Ford Hospital in Detroit May 14 after a long illness.

She was born May 28, 1922, in Elmwood township. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seeley of Cass City. Besides her husband, she is survived by a son and three grandchildren of Troy. She is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Ralph (Aileen) Price of Caro and Mrs. Edward (Nellie) Anthes of Cass City, and four brothers, Clark, Oscar, Earney and Alfred Seeley of Cass City. One brother, Hollis, preceded her in death.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday, May 17, at the Price Funeral Home in Troy, with the Rev. J. Wallace Zink of Warren officiating. Interment was in White Chapel Memorial cemetery at Troy.

Thirty-two couples are signed thus far, and there are openings for two or three more couples, they said.

The Tuckeys first learned about the program through a brother-in-law in Fairgrove, Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Mantey, who will also be participating.

The program was founded by President Eisenhower and is sustained annually by private contributions. The group will hold special meetings, interviews and visitations to compare methods and procedures and meet with their occupational counterparts.

Tuckey, an engineer at Walbro, said their group would depart from New York August 26. Delegations from different states each have their own trips at different times, he said.

FIRING LINE

The spirit of the 'Bucket Brigade'

By Richard Haines

The volunteer fire department has to be one of the greatest of human institutions.

Every noon when the firehall siren sizzles across our fair village, my blood tingles.

But when it sings at times other than noon, my blood turns to solid adrenalin.

If at my desk when the alarm sounds, my first move is to dial in to the fire line and find out the location and gravity of the blaze.

With the phone still smoking from frenzied dialing, the next move is usually a 110-yard dash to the fire hall with a camera and notepad under my arm. And if one of the cars is handy, it's a fast career to the fire hall, or on to the blaze itself.

There's something thrilling about being the first behind the fire truck, or "wagon" as some of the old pros put it. The spirit of the bucket brigade lives on, folks.

I think if a man ever felt indispensable, it must be when he's behind the wheel of the fire truck racing to the heat of the situation.

And thusly are the excited citizens in a fast parade destined to the site of catastrophe and crisis.

Going to a fire makes one forget his worries; thoughts of the sticky door, the car payments, the unmowed lawn lie distant and remote.

Every once in a while, one indulges.

One of the indulgences of mine once was passing a fire truck while news reporting a couple years ago.

It was a voracious old tanker clocking better than 80 on a straightaway and this I reasoned (if you can call it reason) was one chance to really get to the fire FIRST.

You have to admit, getting a picture of the fire truck just arriving at the scene of the blaze, WOULD be a good front page.

Well, the darn' fire turned out to be a trial run. It was a trial for me too, from the fire chief that is. A massive scolding.

Something happens to the rescuers and firemen at the scene of danger.

It's a crisis. And something deeply human occurs.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Book re-lives boxing fight

By Dan Marlowe

An ex-sports writer by the name of Mel Heimer has written a book called THE LONG COUNT.

For anyone in the over-50 generation, there is only one "long count".

It took place in the second Jack Dempsey-Gene Tunney fight on September 22, 1927. Dempsey knocked Tunney down in the 7th round but didn't go to a neutral corner. Referee Dave Barry refused to begin counting until he had shoved Dempsey away bodily from the fallen Tunney. The latter accordingly had the benefit of Barry's delayed count and was on the floor from fourteen to seventeen seconds, depending on whose version of the incident is used as source material. Back on his feet, Tunney quickly regained control and almost knocked Dempsey out in the final round of the fight. The argument has raged ever since whether he could or could not have risen at a count of ten.

It all seems like yesterday to this over-50 generationer, but...

On May 24th Gene Tunney will be 73 years old.

Beatrice P. Berry, Register of Probate.

A month later Jack Dempsey will be 75 years old.

I don't really believe either of these facts, but figures don't lie.

Mel Heimer has done a superb job in reconstructing not only the incident of the long count itself, but also the long year intervening between the two Dempsey-Tunney fights in which Gene first won and then successfully defended the championship.

The book is also a glittering recreation of the fabulous '20's with all the glittering names paraded for the reader. It was a fabulous period. In the year between the two fights Lindbergh flew the Atlantic, Sacco and Vanzetti were executed, and Mae West spent ten days in a New York City jail for the outspokenness of a play she wrote herself.

But the book is mainly about the fighters of the era. And the fans. More than 120,000 fight fans saw Tunney take Dempsey's title in the rain at the Sesqui-centennial Stadium in Philadelphia. More than 105,000 saw Dempsey try in vain to regain it in the rain at Soldiers' Field in Chicago a year later.

It was pre-television, of course. Almost pre-radio. The gross receipts for the first fight were $1,895,000; for the second, more than $2,250,000. Dempsey was the catalyst. The crowd pleaser. Of the five million dollar gates in boxing history, Dempsey was involved in them all. These were the two Dempsey-Tunney fights, Dempsey-Carpentier, Dempsey-Firpo, and Dempsey-Sharkey. The five fights grossed almost $9,000,000.

THE LONG COUNT is published by Atheneum and is illustrated with nostalgic-inducing pictures of the period.

Here's a book that tells it like it was.

Emphysema strikes women too. The ratio today is one female to every five males.

Woodenware adds both charm and utility to the kitchen -- but to keep its beauty fresh and natural-looking, you need to give it a little extra care.

First of all be sure it's clean. A quick "once-over" wipe won't do. Unwashed woodenware can be dangerous. For example, particles of meat left in a cutting board breed bacteria. Or salad oils left sticking to a bowl can easily turn rancid.

But washing doesn't mean soaking. Soaking causes cracking, swelling and warping. To care for wooden bowls and other utensils, dip in warm sudsy water and rinse immediately. Wipe with a towel and let dry in a well ventilated place. Never put woodenware away until it's thoroughly dry. Wash your woodenware as soon after use as possible, too. This way you'll avoid having to scratch off dried foods -- and also avoid marring the wood surface.

It's especially important to keep chopping boards clean. You might add a bleach disinfectant to your warm sudsy water when cleaning your chopping board. And be sure to wash it after each use.

Often knife marks leave ridges where bacteria can multiply. Rub the ridges down occasionally with sandpaper to restore the naturally smooth surface for cutting and cleanliness.

It is not uncommon today for people under 30 years of age to be plagued by emphysema, a disease of the respiratory system.

Mrs. Harriet Rayl entertains WCTU

Mrs. Harriet Rayl was hostess for the Evergreen WCTU Thursday, May 15.

Mrs. Beatrice Soldan presided over the business meeting. Scripture reading was followed by a poem, "When I Have Time The Things I'll Do" and "The Ten New Commandments for Daily Living."

Lunch was served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. William McVety, 3050 Phillips Road, June 19 with potluck picnic dinner at noon.

Petitions had been sent by the group to senators regarding various issues and letters were received in response.

ents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Salgat.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Burdon's brother-in-law, Don DeNoyelles, 55, of Caro had a stroke Saturday, May 10, while at work with the Edison Co. Funeral services were held Wednesday at the Huston Funeral Home. Besides his widow, the former Mary Burdon, he leaves two sons, James of Fairhaven and Mark, at home.

Mrs. Elery Sontag and Mrs. Morris Sontag went to Metropolitan Airport in Detroit Friday afternoon to meet Morris Sontag, who spent the week end here with his family. Morris is employed in New Jersey and will move his family there as soon as housing is available. Mrs. Morris Sontag accompanied him to New Jersey Sunday evening and will return home about Wednesday.

HONOR V. SMITH

Mr. and Mrs. Elery Sontag attended a special Mass at Holy Spirit Catholic Church in Shields Sunday afternoon where 85 boys and girls received their First Holy Communion. The Sontags' granddaughter, Vickie Smith, was one of the girls making her first communion. The Sontags' granddaughters, Debbie and Jeannie Shope, of Owendale accompanied them. Mr. and Mrs. James Sontag, Mark and Terri also attended the Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Sontag are Vickie Smith's Godparents.

After the Mass, they all attended a dinner and open house for relatives and friends at the home of their daughter and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Shope and John of Owendale joined the group at the open house.

Gifford Chapter No. 369, Order of the Eastern Star, of Gagetown will hold a special meeting Saturday, May 24, at 8 p.m. It is Friends Night.

He marvels at the majesty of the clouds and the vastness of the sky. He thrills at the reflections cast upon the water by the rainbow palette of the setting sun. He is awed, humbled—yet, at the same time, fiercely proud.

His feelings contradict each other. For he knows he is a small creature dwarfed by the overpowering glory of nature, yet, at the same time, a man—a man created in the image of God.

Of course, we all need to be humble, but we also need to be proud. In one sense we are insignificant, and in another we are all-important. The problem lies in finding the proper balance between the two.

To understand the whole man—the all of you, you must turn to His Church where God is forever revealing the mysteries of His universe. Here we are taught truths that have endured throughout the ages. Here we must come if we are to find the proper balance in life.

Plan open house tribute for Irene Hall after lifetime of teaching

By RICHARD HAINES

Miss Irene Hall of Cass City completes a life-time at the school teacher's desk this spring. And hundreds of Cass City area folks will well recall classes she taught.

Her first teaching stint was in the one-room Allen School in Juniata township in 1924.

Miss Hall has taught children of the children - two generations of students from the Cass City area - and she says some of the same traits are observable in kids that were observable in their parents when she taught them in area township schools in the 1930's and 1940's.

"But that's water over the dam," she chuckled.

Following Juniata, she later taught at Paul School in Novesta township, Dillman School on M-81 in Elkland township, and Quick School in Novesta township.

She said the Quick School position was in 1934 in the midst of the "dear old depression" and she was hired for $30 per month.

The work was hard, she said, but the communication between parent and teacher was incomparable compared to that of today when teachers and parents seldom get down to brass tacks on how their child is really doing.

A Cass City graduate in 1923, she graduated from Tuscola Normal School and went on to graduate from Eastern Michigan University in 1931.

She said her position at the

Bingham School in Elmwood township was one held for 16 years where she was also janitor and cook. "In winter, the kids had something hot every day."

But in the spring of 1950, Bingham agreed to transport to Gagetown and she went with her children to teach 4th and 5th grades for 3 years.

She was later asked to teach junior high. She accepted and has taught this age group ever since.

"They needed a toughy for junior high," she said, "and I've been holding the fort ever since."

The 7th and 8th grades is about the most challenging age group in the school and she said, "I keep them busy and they don't have time to play around."

But her laugh is as hearty as her character is crusty and there is little doubt in junior high minds as to who's really running the show.

She said there are always one or two who try to rock the applecart. Asked what they're like in later life, she said, "They're still raising . . . they won't grow up."

Asked about the straight "A" student, she said, "The bookworms, ah yes, I don't think much of them - they get in that shell . . . and in many cases don't develop socially."

Asked what kind of junior high students become civic leaders and corporate presidents, she said "The good 'B' student, the student who's always into everything."

Miss Hall said she "just sort of fell into English" - but that's what I like to teach." She said the task as an English teacher wasn't easy - that it meant checking up to 90 papers every night.

Asked about the teacher who uses more oral tests so he can take fewer papers home, she said, "But what are you going to do when they go to college?"

A "considerable number" of her previous students who have gone on to college, counselor Charles Kelly notes, do not take English 101, because of their good background in grammar and English.

Perhaps that's where she gets the morale to check 90 papers per night, from the pride she receives in a job well done.

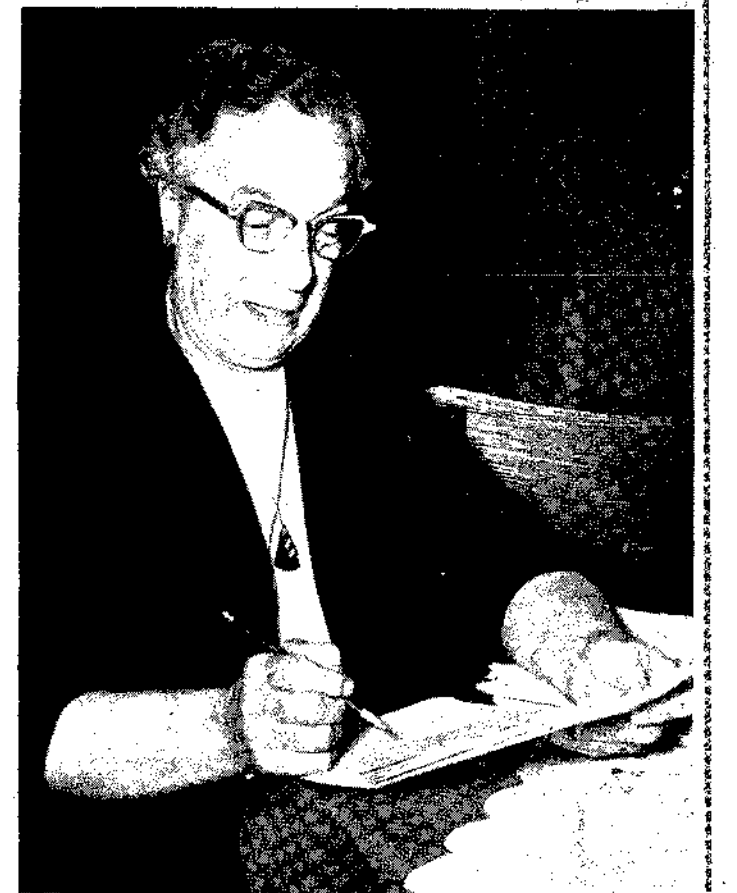

"But I can't spend all my life in that school house," she said, "I'm still going strong. I won't be teaching, but I'll be doing something."

Her lifetime of being single, she said, is largely because she has assumed considerable responsibility for her family including an invalid sister living with her.

The Owen-Gage Board of Education, Parent-Teachers Club and Education Association are planning an open house for her May 25 from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Gagetown School. She was reluctant to let them do it, but said she couldn't stop them once they got started. The public is invited. The open house will ring the last school bell for Mrs. Hall. Even though it's a recess, it probably won't be easy for her.

170 at Baptist ladies' banquet

The annual Baptist mother-daughter banquet was held Thursday evening at the high school cafeteria with about 170 attending.

Mrs. Cliff Owens gave the invocation. Mrs. Dick Shaw led group singing and introduced the program, which was presented by the "Musical Bassett family" from Bay City. Mrs. Bassett gave the address. The benediction was by Mrs. Pay McComb.

Around 20 men of the church served as waiters, with Pastor Richard Canfield as chef.

DEAN HOAG HANDS the first ball to Craig Helwig, Giant hurler, Monday and the 1969 Little League program was underway. Neither Helwig or his pitching rival for the Yanks, Rick Damm, was around at the finish as bats boomed and the potent Giants clobbered the Yanks, 18-7.

The sixth grade Sports Club Olympics began last Wednesday and will continue through May 28. Each sixth grade room is competing for this year's Olympic championship. After the basketball and kickball contests of Wednesday evening the standings are: Mr. Kuntz's room, 17 points; Mr. Albee's, 15; Mrs. Greenleaf's, 7; and Mrs. Brown's, 3.

Volleyball, Chinese soccer and medical war games were to have been held throughout this week, and track events will be held the final week of the Olympics.

The participants in the fifth grade Olympics, which began Thursday evening, will follow the same schedule as the sixth grade contests with the exception of dodgeball, which will be substituted for the sixth grades' volleyball games.

Mr. Nicklow's fifth graders won the basketball and kickball contest Thursday, placing themselves far in the lead with 20 points. Mrs. Grenevitich's fifth graders earned 14 points, while five were earned by Mrs. Milligan's students.

Trophies and ribbons will be awarded during the last week of May.

The junior high track team split a pair of track meets last week, being defeated by Caro on Monday but defeating Lakers Friday by a score of 80 to 29!

Caro showed strong running and field events to defeat Cass City 70 to 40. Cass City won two firsts in the meet -- Kurt Strickland in the 440 dash and the 440 relay team, which consists of Randy Kelly, Tom Mellendorf, Ken Graichen and Dick Bassett.

Against Lakers Cass City captured nine firsts: Randy Kelly, 60-yard dash; Eugene Salas, 75-yard dash and shot put; Kurt Strickland, 440-yard dash; Ron Turner, 220-yard dash; Eugene Salas, Kip Hopper, Steve Selby and Dale Vollmar, 880 relay; Randy Kelly, Tom Mellendorf, Ken Graichen and Dick Bassett, 440 relay; Drew Guernsey, long jump; and Al Powell, pole vault.

The team was cheered to victory at Friday's meet by one of the largest spectator crowds to attend such an athletic event this year.

This Friday Cass City's junior high track squad faces Sandusky here.

C. C. H. S.

Tuesday the ninth grade Civics classes went to the court house in Caro, where they attended the morning session of the circuit court.

Last Wednesday evening, C.C.H.S.'s A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Mr. Roger Parrish, presented a spring concert in the high school's gymnasium. The choir opened the program with three selections, which were followed by a number of individual presentations. Singing solos were: Vivian Englehart, Lorraine Smith, Tom Fulcher, Glenn Schroeder, Roger Nicholas, Geraldina Toro and Bill Spencer. Duets included two by Mr. Parrish and Tom Fulcher and

CLUB NEWS

The G.A.A. played softball Thursday evening to practice for the tentatively scheduled game with Bad Axe, May 26 at Cass City.

TID BITS

Saturday evening, May 17, the junior class honored the class of 1969 at the spring banquet.

The family-style dinner of Swiss steak was eaten by candlelight in an Italian atmosphere. Sophomore girls, uniformly dressed in red checked aprons, served tables.

Phil Keating served as the master of ceremonies for the memorable event. Included in the evening's program were Lori Smith, singing "Graduation Day"; Linda and Helen Whittaker, singing "The Italian Street Song"; the reading of the Class of '69's Prophecy by its author, John Novak; and the junior and senior presidents' speeches.

In closing, Mr. Robert Watson addressed the seniors.

In 1967 there were five times as many deaths from emphysema as there were in 1957.
