VOLUME 63, NUMBER 8

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN—THURSDAY, JUNE 5, 1969

FROM THE Editor's Corner

A "Playboy" world full of laughs and few responsibilities ...that's bachelorhood, says Richard Haines, Chronicle reporter, in his weekly column.

At 23 that's the way it probably is. But what looks good at 23 may be a little stale at 25 and at 30 what Richard describes at the "swingles" are apt to be feeling as if they are swung out.

After a bit the glitter wanes ...the parties, the trips, the girls, the crowd looks different. The people keep getting younger and the parties aren't swinging anymore like they used to.

Many of yesterday's wolves are found today at the Cub Scout meeting, the band recital ...the baseball park...the backyard grill.

And millions of single and married men (and women) read "Playboy" because it takes them from the hum-drum world of today...it's an escape into fantasy.

Married or single, freedom is a state of mind.

That's why being married is the excuse used for not being the swashbuckling man-about-town that he knows he could be if the matrimonial chains weren't holding him back.

But where did he go and what did he do when he was single? Probably, the same places doing the same things that he does now that he is married. (But maybe not as often). The idea that marriage significantly changes anything basically is more often than not as erroneous as equating bachelorhood with freedom.

It would be hard to call single soldiers in Vietnam free and the demands of school or the job effectively keep most bachelors and husbands alike glued to the grindstone.

Freedom of choice is the only freedom we really have. We are free to marry or not to marry, to work or not to work, to travel or stay at home. We are free in this sense, married or single.

The reason it seems different after we are married is that we remember the great times, forget the not so great and positively erase the very unpleasant.

And what is fondly recalled as the rosy, carefree days of irresponsibility may well be simply a faulty memory forgetting the very real problems of yesterday.

So real that suicide is the second leading cause of death (after traffic accidents) for today's teenagers.

In retrospect all problems diminish. None are as earth shaking as they were when we experienced them.

Coated with a decade of time nearly everything takes on a more rosy hue. It is well that it does.

Owen-Gage asks millage renewal

Brookfield Township Hall in Owendale will be the voting site of June 9 elections and millage proposals for the Owen-Gage School District.

Superintendent Allen Fennel reported the board is requesting a renewal of 3 mills for 3 years, which will allow them, he said, to continue their present program and make some minor improvements.

Fennel said two other propositions, which he termed "strictly a formality" would place $270 of 1951 and 1954 debt retirement funds into the 1967 debt retirement fund.

Also on the ballot is a 1/2 mill proposition requested by the Intermediate School District for special education.

Two candidates, Kenneth Wissner and Stanley Andrakowicz, both of Owendale, are challenging two incumbents for two vacancies. The incumbents include Thomas Laurie of Gagetown, board treasurer and board member for 12 years, and Eldon Dietzel, board president and member for 4 years.

A public meeting is scheduled Thursday night at the Owendale School to allow voters to ask questions on the millage propositions. Superintendent Fennel said he expected most board members to be present.

Monday's vote last hope for full school program

4 seek 2 board posts

Besides deciding the important extra operating millage question at the election Monday, voters will also name two members of the board of education of Cass City Schools in balloting at the high school.

Four area residents are seeking the two open board posts.

The incumbents are Horace Bulen and Donald Koepfgen. Bulen is the board veteran. He was first elected in 1961.

He is the current president of the board. Both Bulen and Koepfgen have been through the rocky road of curriculum cuts before.

A request for extra operating funds was nixed by the voters the year Bulen was elected and the battle continued through the following year (1962) when Koepfgen won a board seat.

Both men are committed to the concept of quality education. Bulen says that he is ready to continue to serve the voters if they want him.

Koepfgen says that with five children in the system he is naturally interested in the operation of the school.

Mrs. Alice Guernsey is making a second try for the board. She has exhibited a continuing interest in school affairs.

The mother of five children now in school, Mrs. Guernsey has often expressed an interest in trying to help promote the best possible curriculum at the school.

Active in school affairs, she has served as president of the Cass City Band Boosters and has been a volunteer member of school advisory groups. She moved to Cass City 12 years ago with her husband, Victor. She attended Michigan State University for two years.

Tom Herron is making his first try for a board seat. A 1960 Cass City grad, Herron offers himself as a candidate "with children in school."

"We need more young people on the board" said the 26-year-old who heads a family of four girls.

Herron has been self-employed as a building contractor the previous five years and recently completed a 6-year enlistment as an Army reservist.

Chronicle announces new price schedule

The Chronicle has been forced to bow to the continuing pressure of higher costs and is making the first adjustment in subscription prices in nearly five years.

Starting with this issue the price per copy of the paper will be 15 cents.

Adjustments in the cost of the yearly rate will go into effect July 1. At this time the yearly cost in Tuscola, Sanilac and Huron counties will be $4.50 per year. Two years will be $8.00. Outside of the three-county area subscriptions will be $5.00.

The Chronicle will accept renewals for any number of years at the present price until the new price goes into effect.

Cass City's second and final attempt to secure additional operating funds to maintain the present educational program at the school will be made in conjunction with the regular school election Monday at Cass City High School.

All registered voters in the school district are eligible to vote. It is not necessary to be a taxpayer to vote on an operating millage issue.

The school is asking for four additional mills for one year. The proposition that was defeated in the first election, 674 to 398, called for four mills for three years.

While operating millage would be increased, most taxpayers will pay less for building debt. Because a reserve has been built, debt millage payment will decrease one-half mill, Supt. Donald Crouse reported, on the five mills now paid for the new high school.

If the additional funds are authorized it will bring the total operating cost of the school to 18 mills, well below the State and area average.

Voters have been well briefed and should know what the stakes are in terms of curriculum at the school. An outline of the cuts suggested has been published and sent to all parents with children in the district.

The cuts will include:
● Half days for all elementary children in grades 1-6 for a quarter to a half of the year.

● Elimination of all of the athletic program with the exception of junior varsity and varsity football and basketball.

● Elimination of extra bus trips and cuts in service for regular bus service.

● Elimination of all vocal music, intermediate art and intermediate physical education.

Regardless of the outcome of the election there will be no other attempt to secure additional operating funds for the 1969-70 school year, the school board decided when it voted to make a second request for funds.

REV. FR. PIJNAPPELS makes a "general call" to Europe on his ham radio set.

Priest calling Asia, Africa, Europe daily

Radio hobbyist Rev. Peter Pijnappels of Cass City reports a "world-wide fraternity" of ham radio operators is developing as a result of a significant increase in conversations between peoples of different lands.

Fr. Pijnappels, priest for St. Pancratius, owns a sophisticated transmitter, receiver, amplifier, and 55 foot tower and conducts conversations with other private radio operators, especially those in Europe where he spent his boyhood in the Netherlands.

He said "increasing prosperity in Europe has given them equipment they wouldn't dream of having 10 years ago. He said the transmitter and receiver sets in Europe, most of them American made, cost 3 to 4 times as much as they do in the U.S."

Fr. Pijnappels said a general "world-wide feeling" is experienced through the numerous conversations with others in Europe, Asia, and even Africa.

Europeans are enthused to have chances to talk to the U.S. radio operators "about America," especially the Italians. He said business and politics are excluded from airway conversation by regulation of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC).

Fr. Pijnappels speaks French, German, Italian, Spanish and Latin, in addition to English.

Fr. Pijnappels' conversation style is a fluent and very gracious one and appears to be in harmony with the self-imposed courtesies commonly, but not always, observed.

His first move is to find if there is another party using a certain frequency. If not, he makes a "general call" to Europe:

"C.Q. Europe, C.Q. Europe, C.Q. Europe, if there is anyone in Europe come in please."

"This is K8 Charles Victor Rogers (K8CVR) making a general call to Europe, C.Q. Europe."

If a voice emerges, a slight adjustment of a dial or two soon brings it in clear and sharp, at least by radio standards.

dards which he says have improved remarkably in the last decade.

The voices are "most always clearly understandable unless another party has not checked for an "open" frequency not being used. If not the set then emits a garbled voice rendering other conversation difficult to understand.

Fr. Pijnappels' typical conversation then welcomes his fellow communicator, "We are very grateful to have this contact with you; you have a fine, melodious signal; you are doing a wonderful job with your equipment there, just beautiful."

After mutual introductions of name, call number, and country, the radio operators usually exchange information on the kind of equipment being used, weather conditions, occupation, family and travels.

The radio operators refer to a conversation or general call as a QSO, and one of Fr. Pijnappels is likely to conclude, "Perhaps next Saturday about this time we will be able to renew our acquaintance and continue our QSO."

Each conversation is then logged and the operator must make note of the day, time, band, frequency, strength and quality of signal.

A 55-foot tower stretches upward from beside his back doorstep and his transmitter is a Heathkit 101. He also has an amplifier Heathkit 200 and he has owned radios for 12 years.

Often, it is not possible to control the radio signal, he said, "though you can control the element of your antenna, climatic and environmental conditions affect the time of day, seasonal, and yearly changes that alter the radio beam to peculiar regions.

One example last week, he said, was when he was beamed for the Netherlands and he picked up another signal from Israel and talked at length with a radio operator there. Bonn, Hanover, London and other cities have operators usually easily reached, he said.

Within one-half hour it is common for him to converse with 3 or 4 operators on other points of the globe.

Report rush on new food stamps

A massive sale of food coupons was reported Tuesday by Ron Rogers, Director of the Tuscola County Department of Social Services. He said transactions were far more than what he had anticipated. About $20,000 have been sold since the program's inception May 1.

Over $6,000 worth of the county's new food coupons were sold as low income families and migrants jammed the basement of the county building's social services lobby, waiting in line either to fill out an application or submit their food coupon I.D. for an immediate transaction.

For the first month qualified persons buy food coupons at half price. The coupons are good at all retail groceries except for cigarette products, alcoholic beverages, soaps. After the first month the gain is less.

Public assistance recipients and low income families may participate. A low income family of 4 for example, qualifies if the breadwinner had monthly income of $265 or less with liquid assets less than $1,000.

The program is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Michigan Department of Agriculture with the aim of improved diets.

36 British bargains

At last! Cycles arrive

When Bob Alexander, Cass City, learned that there were motorcycles available in Europe for $35 he decided that it was a bargain just too good to pass up.

Now, several months later, the bikes have arrived and the cost has gone up. When the new owners picked the World War II vintage BSA bikes from the truck at the Walbro Corporation parking lot the price had escalated to $156. But the bikes are still considered a bargain. The four-fold increase was the result of several factors.

When the deal was first dreamed up the bikes were to be purchased as army surplus out of Holland and the order for 36 units was duly placed.

Meanwhile, an enterprising dealer had purchased the entire lot estimated at 600 units. Army authorities advised the Cass Citizens of the deal and said that the names had been passed to the new owners.

The agent contacted Alexander and the deal continued... but with a naturally higher price. The dealer's profit and freight from Europe cost three times more than the government received for the machines.

When the bikes arrived Saturday, it provided a circus-like atmosphere with over a hundred spectators watching the unveiling of the olive drab British-made machines.

The cycles were in various stages of use. Some seemed in nearly-new condition, others showing signs of having been over the road.

The bikes were assigned to the new owners by a drawing.

The majority of the owners are veterans and for many of them one of the first steps in their reconditioning program is a new coat of paint to cover the traditional army drab.

Some of the bikes were hard to start. Others fairly easy. But hard or easy, many of them were running the night they arrived. In fact several of the new owners have already suffered minor injuries resulting from falls experienced while road testing their "new" machines.

THERE WAS PLENTY of help around to unload this truckload of war surplus bikes Saturday.

"Bull's-eye!" The arrow flew straight to the heart of the target.

And so, straight to the heart of the matter fly the minds of young people today. In this age of advanced technology and far-flung communication, youngsters are better informed, geographically, politically, scientifically and economically than at any other time. No vague generalities, no sugar-coated probabilities will satisfy them. They want the facts and straight-to-the-point answers.

That's why your church recognizes the importance of having trained and devout leaders and teachers for its youth programs.

Graduation time salutes these people who give so much of their time and training to the Christian development of our children. Their dedication and devotion reflect their love of God in their ministry to the men and women of tomorrow.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Louis Pierce had better watch it or he'll be digging out clothes from the closet that he wore before he required open heart surgery Jan. 22 and weighed a robust 220 pounds. He wants to gain, but not THAT much.

Down to 135 the genial Cass Cityan has gained back 28 pounds since his ordeal and perhaps could stand a few more before he calls it quits. The trick is to quit while you're ahead, Louie.

In region 11 of the Michigan Education Association there are 45 schools negotiating with teachers and five have settled. Region 11 includes five counties. Of the five schools that have settled four are from Huron county. One of the schools is the Lakers and settlement there undoubtedly will be used as a starting point for negotiation discussions in Cass City and Tuscola county.

These schools are regarded as reaching an early settlement...which shows the changes in the school employment picture.

As little as five years ago all contracts were settled in the early spring for the following year. Now most aren't settled until just before school opens in the fall and for many accord isn't reached until after the fall term is underway. Still the picture isn't all that bleak in comparison with some districts...there has never been a teacher strike in the Thumb....yet.

All of us who feel that we are born losers can relate with the Curtis Cleland Jr. family. The Cleland phone was dialed on a TV give-away Memorial Day and everyone was out.

I use out instead of away advisedly...the prize offered was $65 but you blow the look if you don't answer.

The school ads published by the seventh graders were paid for by the students who operated a concession stand at the park. Four students, Cara Prieskorn, Lisa Champion, Kathy Johnston and Cindy Calka, did the lion's share of the work that netted $27.98 for the pro-school message.

****

There isn't much that can be added to what already has been said about Cass City's school situation. All that is left is an individual decision by every voter Monday.

A decision on whether or not education is important enough to dig down a little deeper than any of us really want to go.

A decision on the importance of a full educational program for the kids at a time when the tax dollar has been stretched almost to the breaking point.

A decision that we will live with for a full year and will affect the children for many years to come.

A decision that can and should be reached on the facts as we determine them in relation to the school's needs.

A decision on whether or not we can afford to turn down the request for four mills for operating on the basis that "taxes are too high already".

We need to decide the request of the school in the light of the program and the welfare of our children...and on the basis of whether present funds are spent wisely and well.

If you check and find that our program is as good and our costs less than most (and this has been established) isn't it reasonable to make a decision Monday in favor of the kids?

Guinther wins Paul Smarks trophy

Bob Sullivan, coach at Central Michigan University, told members of Cass City's athletic teams, cheer leaders and interested adults of Cass City's tradition and advantages during recognition ceremonies Tuesday at the High School.

Tom Guinther

Sullivan, a Thumb native who once taught in Cass City, conjured some familiar names to older community residents. Recalling the glory days of Cass City under Art Paddy, Bill Kelly, Irv Claseman and Mike Yednak, he said that Cass City is steeped in tradition and that it will return to the glory years.

What is needed is a team effort. A team effort not only from our members of the varsity teams, he pointed out, but by the community at large.

This school has sent some of the finest athletes we've had at CMU, he continued, as he told about Wally Hempton, Tim Burdon and other stars from by-gone years, and will continue to do so.

Be thankful with what you have here, he said. The Thumb is one of the finest places in the world to live and if you can, stay in it.

I'm going to come back some day, he said. There is nothing like it.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of the Paul Smarks award as athlete of the year to Tom Guinther by Athletic Director Robert Stickle.

Guinther was a regular in football, a member of the varsity basketball team and one of Cass City's better track performers.

It was the 14th year that the award was presented to a senior with outstanding character, scholarship and athletic ability.

Prior to the presentation, letterwinners for the various teams were introduced by the coaches. John Bifoss presented the varsity football and Freshman basketball awards.

Handling Junior Varsity basketball and football was Dennis Rlenstra while Bob Watson announced the letterwinners for the track team.

Jim Wynes announced the varsity letterwinners in basketball and baseball and Tom Woody handled JV baseball.

Mrs. Wynes introduced the Freshman, JV and varsity cheerleading teams.

Underclassmen shine

Hawk Diamond future rosy

Things should be looking up for the Cass City Red Hawks next year when the baseball season rolls around. Although the Hawks finished among the also rans in the Thumb B Conference this year, some of the leading stickers were underclassmen.

A Junior, John Smentek, was the second best hitter on the squad, smashing out a .424 average on 14 hits in 33 times at bat.

A couple of sophomores also were handy with the hickory. Kip Hopper smashed out 11 for 32 for .344 and Alexander went 13 for 38 for .342.

As good as they were, these underclassmen had to bow to a senior. Tom Kolb led the team at the plate. He smashed out 16 for 34 for a robust .471 mark. Wencley hit .355 on 11 of 31.

In addition to power at the plate in future years, the Hawks will benefit from experienced pitching. Hopper and Alexander were the mound mainstays this season and both have two years left. The Hawks finished 2-5 in the league and 4-7 overall this season.

They dropped their final two games of the year. Bad Axe overpowered Cass City in a slugfest, 10-7, and Frankenthum used sound pitching to register a 5-1 decision.

Bad Axe salted away the game with a six-run rally in the second that knocked Zawilinski from the mound. The Hawks scored one in the second and four in the fifth to make the game interesting. A two-run rally in the last inning was not enough for victory.

Leading sticker for Cass City was Smentek with three hits. Kolb and Wencley each stroked a pair of safeties.

Alexander took the loss against the Eagles. Frankenthum scored enough in the first inning for the victory. The winners netted two in the first and three in the fourth.

The Hawks scored their only run in the first on a pair of singles by Alexander and Kolb, a hit batter and a walk to Smentek.

Ask for half mill for Special Ed. in Huron county

A county-wide proposition will face Huron County voters Monday when regular school elections are held. Voters there will be asked for a half mill for special education.

Special education authorities say that there are now children on the waiting list for special education services. The last levy for special education, a half mill, was passed in 1962.

Any registered voter in the Huron Intermediate School District can vote on the proposition.

What are the chances of the St. Louis Cardinals finishing in first place this year?...Well, do you realize how few teams in big league baseball history have ever finished in first place three straight years -- and if the Cards do it this year it would be three straight years for them...Outside of the Yankees who have done it several times, the only other teams that have finished in first place three straight years in the last 40 seasons are the Athletics who did it in 1929-1930-31 and the Cardinals of 1942-43-44.

BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY OF MICHIGAN

AGRI-BUSINESS IN ACTION...

Sugarbeet growers in Michigan's Saginaw Valley have played a vital role in the agri-business economy of our state since the turn of the century. Their progressive efforts combined with those of the state's two processing companies have boosted the dollar value of the sugarbeet crop to nearly $35 million dollars annually. In 1968 farmers in 17 Michigan counties harvested over 84,000 acres of beets. A crop that will produce nearly 350 million pounds of sugar for the Michigan market.

If you live in the Saginaw Valley-Thumb area of Michigan, you no doubt know someone that helps fill Michigan's "sugar bowl" each year. It makes good sense to buy a Michigan grown product. Help yourself to Michigan Made Pure Sugar the next time you shop. Ask for it by name--Pioneer or Big Chief. These brands in the red, white and blue bags represent the finest that Michigan agri-business has to offer.

Colts raised by two Caro men earn national acclaim

BY RICHARD HAINES

A Caro mare given up and sold as finished, and later repurchased for only $350 is the brood mare of a race horse, "Reeds Waylay" that earned $58,393 in 1968. He won 17 of 26 races.

The brood mare, owned by Donald Tomlinson, cash crop farmer of near Caro, foaled the national winner on the Tomlinson farm, but the famed race horse was trained by Frank Altizer, Caro businessman and part-time horse trainer.

"Reeds Waylay", sired by a stallion from the Reed-Gage farm, "Waylay", is reported by one of its three Detroit area owners, Richard Abraham of Adrian, to have gained national acclaim and "if the coming year is as good as the last one, the race horse could be valued at over $100,000 with annual winnings of the same."

A joint venture between Tomlinson and Altizer, one of many they have made in the past since they have known each other since boyhood, brought "Jessie Reed" into Tomlinson's hands.

The mare was purchased from the Reed-Gage farm of Illinois originally by Nick Alexander of Cass City when Altizer purchased its colt, "Reeds Waylay".

Altizer had encouraged Alexander to purchase the mare, and when its colt, "Reeds Waylay" gained superb form on the race track, Altizer was optimistic and then purchased the mare from Alexander. But because he was short of pasture where the mare and her consecutive fillies could get out in the open and frisk around, he gave the mare to Tomlinson providing he could have its next offspring.

Tomlinson now owns the mare and so far its offspring in all includes:

- "Countyates" and "Lordyates", also sired by "Wayward" who together have won $57,200 in race sweepstakes in 1968. These are now owned by another party.
- "Mr. Vincent", a colt given birth while the mare was under ownership of Alexander. However Altizer purchased "Mr. Vincent", trained him and sold him to the Detroit group for $5,000. The horse is beginning its second year this spring on Florida race tracks.
- "Jessie Boris", a two year colt owned by Altizer while the mare was in Tomlinson's possession. It was sired by "Sir Boris", a stallion belonging to Altizer, but on the Tomlinson farm.
- A yet unnamed 3-month-old filly owned by Tomlinson and with the mare, Jessie Reed, on the Tomlinson farm. The mare has been bred by "Adios Clio" at a joint cost of $750 between Altizer and Tomlinson. The sire is described by Abraham as "one of Michigan's top sires."

The above does not include the national winner, "Reeds Waylay" whose fantastic winnings have favorably impressed both Altizer and Tomlinson. When Altizer sold him about two years ago for $10,000, he had won over $15,000.

He sold the winner because he was unable to both travel around the country entering the horse in races, and maintain his Caro appliance store. Since then the national prizewinner, "Reeds Waylay" has been clocked in the pace in the mile at one minute and 59 2/5 seconds. He has finished the trot in 2 minutes and 2 2/5 seconds.

Its trot races reaped $20,105 prior to 1968. In 1968, the horse brought $57,200 in the pace.

Abraham said if Jessie Reed's two young colts, one belonging to Altizer and the other to Tomlinson, are anything like their half brother, "Reeds Waylay", "They ought to do great."

Abraham praised the two Caro horsemen saying Altizer has "done a wonderful job" in training Jessie Reed's offspring. He said the two are the ones "who make the horses what they are; they are important people," he said.

Tomlinson said a favorable development of his new colt from the mare, Jessie Reed, would be a financial jackpot in rewarding his longtime interest in horses.

Though he seldom rides or races them himself, he said his present build-up of twenty horses and colts is strictly speculation as to whether or not another could be sold for the price some of Jessie Reed's colts have been.

Tomlinson said his growing herd is more of a hobby-oriented investment than a business, that normally he could expect little more than to break even.

He is able to grow the horses' feed and his teenage son, who wants to farm someday, is able to help him care for his herd.

Still, though, the horses have to be carefully trained if their muscles are to develop properly and their trotting or pacing form refined. That's where Altizer takes over.

Until then, most of Tomlinson's low-investment horses will sell from $100 to $300 and he says selling a hot prospect to the "money men" is purely calculated risk, a game of watching and waiting.

Another possibility is an innovation in recent years sponsored by a Michigan horse breeders organization where 10% of the winner's take is to go to the owner of the mare and sire. The program has been designed to improve Michigan stock.

Tomlinson says he could gain financially from any Michigan race won by any colts of Jessie Reed.

Altizer says patience and work pay off

Frank Altizer of Caro is the trainer of "Reeds Waylay", a stallion he owned, trained, and sold for $10,000. He was highly praised by Richard Abraham of Adrian, one of "Reeds Waylay's" three present owners who said "Altizer has done a wonderful job" in improving the horse's form since it was a yearling colt.

Altizer is actually a part time trainer and his working hours are spent at his Caro appliance store. He has a novel method for training his winners.

Altizer trains his horses in a back lot in which he has a 3/8 mile long track. With his hands firmly holding the halter, he hops in his 1957, 82,000-mile station wagon, clucks his tongue, and drives off.

He leads the horses around the track from 20 to 30 MPH about a mile each way.

He concedes this method isn't perhaps as refined as hooking up a racing cart, but it's faster, and of course much easier and exercises their muscles just as well.

Sitting beside and watching the horse also allows him to concentrate more on the horse's form, than if he were eating the dirt and dust in a cart behind them.

Altizer specializes in low-investment horses, puts them through a rigorous training for about two years, and then puts them to the test, usually on Detroit race tracks.

If they win, he makes money. But if they don't, he'll likely be selling them for little more than what he bought them for. "I like to experiment," he said.

If the horse becomes a solid winner, as "Reeds Waylay" did, he usually uses repeated test tracks to prove the horse and then sells to the highest bidder.

Altizer's limited time for horse training doesn't allow him to spend week after week preparing for and then actually racing on Midwestern and Kentucky tracks, so he sells them after he's proven them.

The tiny Altizer farm with its small scattered barns is the home of horses for 4 or 5 other owners and most of them use the dust-encrusted station wagon to exercise their horses around the track. But all of them are quick to express their confidence in Altizer's judgement and finesse in training horses.

The track, he says, costs him about $900 a year to maintain in good condition. In recent years, he said "his appliance store got smaller and his race track bigger," and that was the way he wanted it mainly because horses didn't continually ask for less hours and more money.

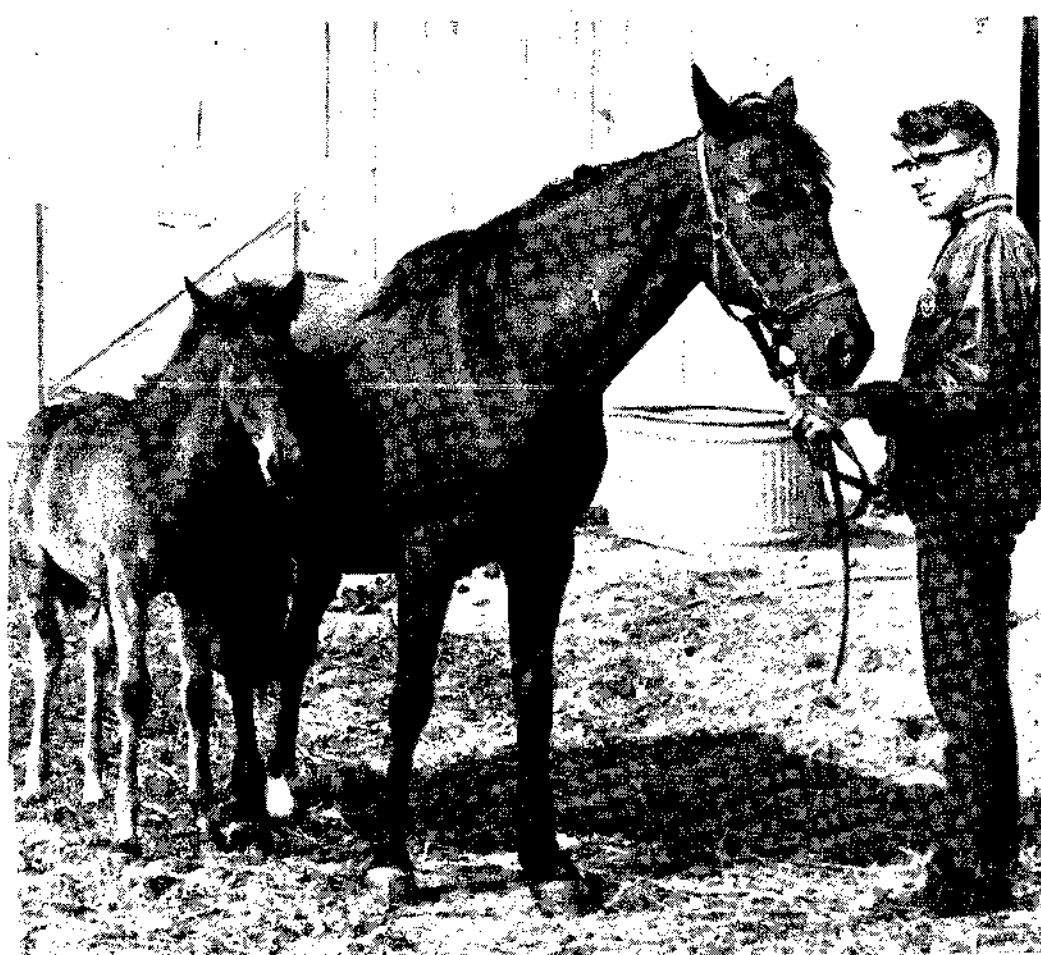

His other costs are for hay and oats and he says he doesn't give his horses special vitamins and minerals.

For the time he spends in the sideline, it isn't exactly paying as a business, but to Altizer, it isn't business, it's what he wanted to do all his life.

Still, he says, his income tax shows a plus and when you can train a horse like "Reeds Waylay", it even shows a big plus. "I've been lucky, I've made money, but most don't plan on it," he said.

"It takes work, patience, a little luck, and a little bit of brains to make a winner," he said.

One of the examples is his well trained $85 horse that went on to beat a horse he sold the year before for $1,000.

DONALD TOMLINSON'S son, Terry, 14, holds "Jesse Reed" with its three month old colt close by.

Young Bad Axe man dies instantly in auto crash

Services for Richard Michael Sweeney, 20, one of 14 brothers and sisters whose father, Malcolm F. Sweeney, died of a heart attack in May of 1965, were held Monday at St. Columbkille Catholic Church in Sheridan

Township, Huron County. A life-long resident of Bad Axe, he was killed instantly at 6:30 p.m. Friday when his auto left M-53 about 2 1/2 miles west of Bad Axe and struck a utility pole while traveling east. He was alone. Deputy sheriffs reported Sweeney obviously lost control of his car, which skidded nearly 600 feet before it struck the pole.

Coroner Alden A. MacAlpine pronounced Sweeney dead on arrival at Hubbard Memorial Hospital.

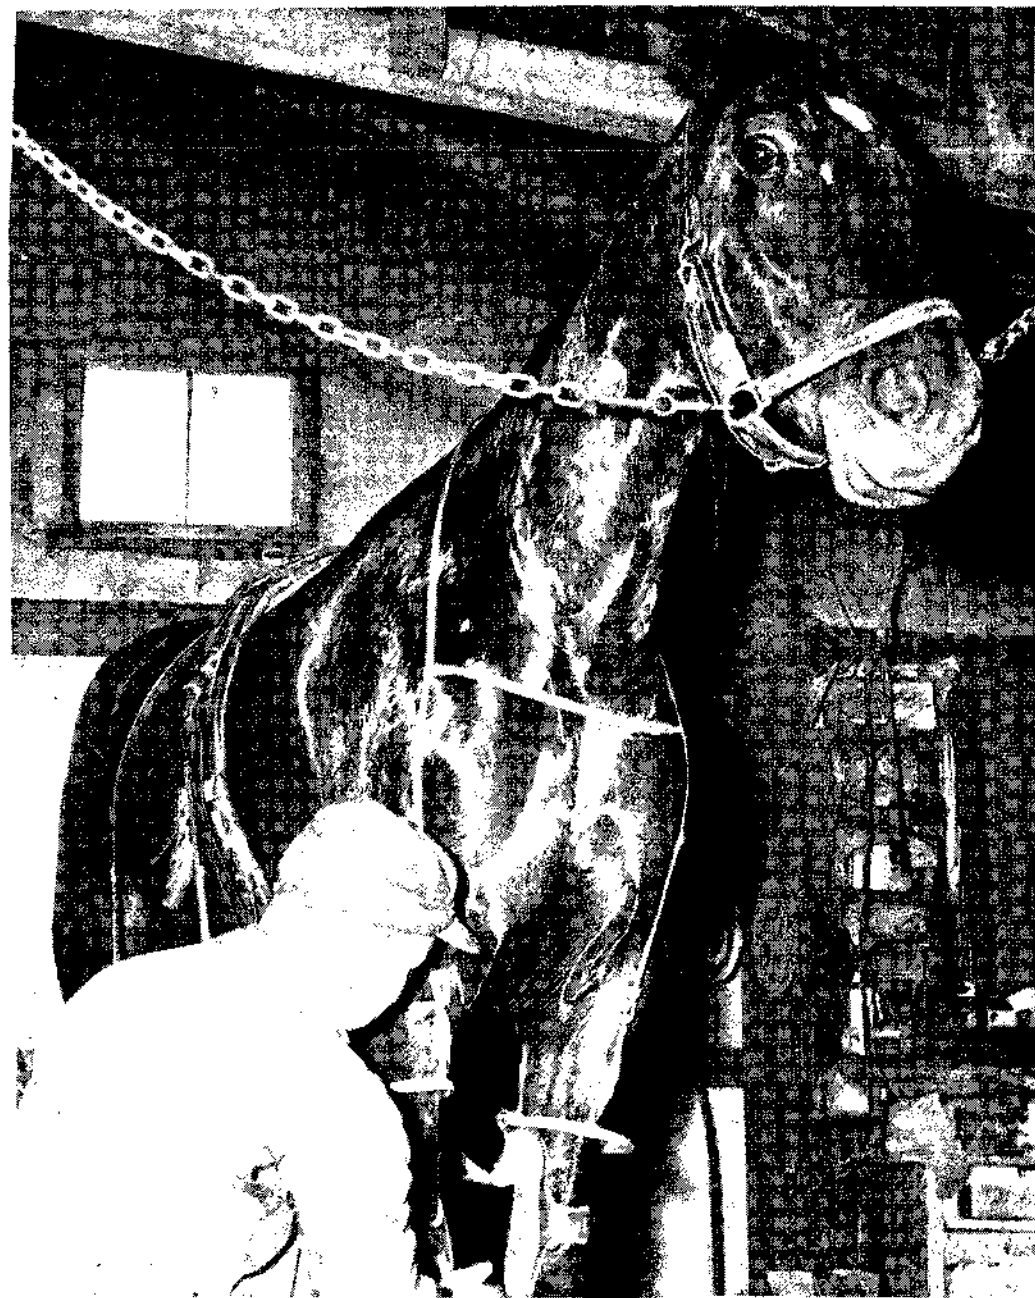

He was buried in the cemetery of St. Columbkille Catholic Church.

He graduated from Bad Axe High School in 1966 and had been employed by Marlette Homes, Inc.

Sweeney is survived by his mother, Mrs. Malcolm F. Sweeney, and 13 brothers and sisters including Helen, Donald, Ann, Carol, and Cathy, residing in Bad Axe, Joseph of Elkton, Edward of Cass City, Raymond of Missoula, Montana, Gerald of Lansing, William of Luke Air Force Base, Arizona, Mrs. James Trepkowski of Bad Axe, Mrs. Bernard McNeill of Bay City, and Mrs. Herbert Forester of Saginaw.

The above does not include the national winner, "Reeds Waylay" whose fantastic winnings have favorably impressed both Altizer and Tomlinson. When Altizer sold him about two years ago for $10,000, he had won over $15,000.

CASS CITY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Hard core issues stymie school negotiations

Negotiations between the teachers and Cass City Schools are at a virtual standstill following a meeting last week of the bargaining committee...hung up on hard core economic and fringe benefit questions and the uncertain economic picture of the school.

While waiting for the results of Monday's election, economic questions have been temporarily shelved and "non-economic" questions were on the agenda Wednesday, May 28.

Most of the four-hour session was spent knocking heads about the methods of staff reduction. Al Luce, board negotiator, refuses to bargain on the issue for the current school year, saying that staff reductions made necessary this year come under the present contract.

The teachers say that the reduction will not be effective until next year and that the way the teachers are terminated this year basically is a bargaining item at this time.

They want present teachers who are terminated because their major field of instruction is terminated to have the opportunity to switch to another open course in which they have a minor. The board team says that this is not under the teachers' jurisdiction under the present contract. I am willing to talk about it with you under next year's contract, Luce reiterated, but not under this year's agreement that's in force through June 30.

Despite the mutual agreement not to bargain on economic questions, teachers' salaries again were thrown into the conversational hopper.

But at this moment it appears that the teachers and the board are so far apart that bargaining is impossible.

Two of the knottiest problems are personal business days, a closed shop and an "index" system of increment pay.

The teachers want personal business days without explaining what they are for. Jim MacTavish says that teachers are professionals and they won't abuse the privilege.

The board team says that days off without explanation are vacation days and should be counted as such.

MacTavish says his teachers feel strongly about these issues and the school reps say that it's useless even to try to talk on the basis the teachers proposed.

The union says that all teachers should be required to pay part of the cost of the union's work...paying dues whether they belong to the MEA or not.

The school says that a closed shop rule might cause the loss of a good teacher who refuses to pay or join.

Already the road to labor peace appears so rocky that MacTavish is threatening to call for a labor mediator. It depends on what happens at our next meeting, (to have been held Wednesday, June 4) MacTavish said this week.

Friday last day to register for summer school

Cass City Elementary Principal Mrs. Bernard Freiburger reports that Friday, June 6, is the last day to register and pay for summer school.

The cost, which will be lowered somewhat if the millage passes, is $26 for the five-week program. The program is open to all elementary pupils of Deford, Campbell, Evergreen and Cass City schools.

She said notices have been sent to parents via the children and that registration counts Friday will determine which courses will be offered.

HAM RADIO OPERATOR

One Saginaw operator, he said, receives signals from Vietnam, and then as a free humanitarian service, calls by a phone hookup, their family in the U.S. and allows the families and soldiers to transmit conversations through his set. Father Pijnappels believes such radios will enhance the dialogue between different peoples.

It's a waste of time to expect everybody to be reasonable.

A probe is an official investigation that is aired just before the whitewash is applied.

Mothers saw their kindergarten sons and daughters present acts, songs, and skits at the Cass City Elementary School last week. The kindergarten was divided into two groups with rural Cass City kindergarteners in the morning show and city kindergarteners in the afternoon.

Showmen for the kindergarten graduation show were Tommy Loomis, (left) son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Loomis, and Barry Uhl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Uhl. The two introduced the various skits of the program for the morning show.

2 deer killed in area crashes

The Tuscola County Sheriff's office reported four accidents during the week, two of them deer mishaps.

Earl Ray Whittaker of Cass City was struck in the rear of his car by the auto of Randy Edward Dohring of Snover when Dohring attempted to pass and then fell back to avoid hitting an oncoming car.

Dohring was ticketed for improper passing and for driving with an expired operator's license. The mishap occurred on East Caro Road, a half mile east of Schwegler Road Thursday, May 29.

Two passengers in the Dohring car were Robert Towler of Snover and Ervin Schram of Port Huron. Sheriff's Deputy Larry Walker reported there were no indications of injuries.

Gordon A. Watson of Caga-town was injured when his motorbike struck the right side of a car driven by Ada June Burd of Caro as she was turning right at the junction of Colwood and Akron Roads.

Watson reported to Deputy William Wolzschke he saw the car's stoplights go on with neither turn signal on. As A. Burd turned right, Watson collided into the rear of her car. She claimed she used her signal to turn.

The mishap occurred May 28, and police reported Watson refused medical treatment.

Two Cass City residents reported car damage from deer that bolted in front of their autos during the week.

Jerry Dean Sugden and Kenneth S. Copeland, drivers of the cars, were not injured.

Sugden's car was hit by a deer on M-24 near Wells Road and Copeland's on the Bay City-Forestville Road about one mile east of Cemetery Road.

Rep. Harvey to visit in area counties

Congressman James Harvey will visit the eighth congressional district this week end. He will be in area counties Friday, June 6.

The schedule calls for visits at the courthouse in the county seats of Sanilac, Huron and Tuscola counties. He will be at Sandusky from 9 to 10 a.m.; at Caro from 11 a.m. to 12 noon, and at Bad Axe from 3 to 4 p.m.

Grads to hear Dr. Sponberg Thurs.

A near capacity crowd of parents, relatives and friends is expected to hear Dr. Harold E. Sponberg, president of Eastern Michigan University, speak Thursday night at Cass City High School at graduation exercises for the class of 1969.

Dr. Sponberg will speak about "Opportunity with Responsibility".

The highlight of the program for most of the persons attending will be the awarding of diplomas to the 106 members of the graduating class.

A complete program appears in the special graduation section that appears in this issue. The section is sponsored by local businessmen and industry in cooperation with the Chronicle.

Dr. Sponberg has been president at EMU since 1965, coming back to Michigan from Washburn University at Topeka, Kansas, where he was presi-

Campaign for minority reps on police forces fails

A year-long, federally-funded project to increase minority representation on Michigan police forces failed due to lack of enthusiasm by local officials and strict recruit standards.

That's the conclusion of a Michigan State University expert, Mrs. Carolyn Stieber, following an in-depth study of the "Police Recruitment Project of Michigan, Inc."

Mrs. Stieber, a staff member of the MSU national center on police and community relations, appraised the project, financed by a $15,000 U.S. Justice Department grant, in a recent edition of the monthly Michigan Municipal League Magazine.

The project was conducted from June, 1967, to June 1, 1968, with a goal of getting at least 1,000 police recruits, many of them Negroes.

Mrs. Stieber said final figures showed that 1,636 inquiries and 371 applications were received—but that only a handful of blacks were actually hired.

What accounted for so few responses?

"While the sincerity of the police seems beyond question, the recruitment efforts appear passive and routine," Mrs. Stieber concluded.

"The prevailing departmental attitude seems to be 'we are here—come join us! We do not discriminate.' This formula does not appear to be convincing many recruits of any race."

Moreover, she added, requirements that recruits take oral and written tests, attain a certain age and be a certain height and weight discourage many minority persons.

"Some departments that insist they would like to hire Mexican-Americans have height standards of 5-9 or 5-10, which very few Mexican-Americans can meet," Mrs. Stieber said.

"Chicago, on the other hand, recently gained 122 new men, many of Latin or Oriental descent, by lowering requirements from 5-8 to 5-7."

Mrs. Stieber asked that "why, in a tight labor market, is a pound or an inch disqualifying?"

****

The fact there are few blacks on major Michigan police forces and that even fewer gain promotion beyond patrolman accounts for hostility among Negroes toward law officers, the MSU researcher said.

"For many policemen the only Negro they ever see up close is the lawbreaker; the men with whom they work and the neighbors in whose midst they live are all white," Mrs. Stieber said.

****

"The only policeman many Negroes ever see is an armed, unsmiling agent of the white 'establishment'. If there are some Negro officers on the force, they are quite often viewed with great hostility as agents of their oppressors, so that Negro policemen may take on the added burden of a double minority."

Mrs. Stieber said the recruitment project did prove that Negroes will apply for police work but did not demonstrate how many blacks can be hired.

And, she added, odds "are probably against a dramatic success" in future efforts to get more Negroes on police departments.

Nonetheless, Mrs. Stieber offered these recommendations:

Increase Negro representation on a force so that it is at least near the proportion of blacks in a community. "Large departments that add only one or two Negroes will be no better off than they are now in respect to recruitment," she said.

Re-examine recruit standards so they are relevant to police performance and not merely tradition, convenient or expedient.

Central testing of recruits. "Each department insists on its own test, and there is no coordination among the 400 or so municipal departments or the various townships and sheriff's departments," Mrs. Stieber said.

Aggressive recruitment in the Negro community, especially with regard to returning Vietnam servicemen.

Nun shortage shuts St. Agatha Elementary

SCHOOL AT Gagetown's St. Agatha's finished Tuesday. The Date, June 3, also marked the closing of the school.

Sadness touched as Gagetown noted with regret this week the closing of St. Agatha's elementary school, whose school bells rang for the last time Tuesday.

Father Joseph Friske said, "Having the old traditional school phased out is like losing an old friend."

Sisters in charge reported some parents said their children wept the night they received notice of the end.

Re-assignment of the three sisters to Lansing and Detroit Dioceses is part of the Saginaw Diocese's policy of lowering a reported high teacher-to-pupil ratio in other schools.

The re-assignment was part of a 10 per cent crash reduction in teaching staff in Saginaw Diocesan Board of Education schools, on the recommendation of the superintendent, the Rev. Fr. Olin J. Mordick, who authorized the closing of the school.

Fr. Mordick said, "The board is very sensitive to the disappointment which the St. Agatha parents feel at this loss." He said there is reason to believe that a Sister may be stationed in the Caro-Gagetown area who will assist in the development of religious education programs in parishes which are ready to develop them.

The large majority of the 81 St. Agatha pupils are expected by administrators to transfer into the Owen-Gage system with a small scattering being transferred to St. Paul's in Saginaw, to the Unionville, and to the Cass City District.

The five-room facility presently in use was constructed in 1949 and its present fate is undecided. Father Friske said any future use of the facility might be some expansion on the part of the Gagetown Elementary School of the Owen-Gage District.

Michigan Mirror

Soapy Williams a leading contender for MSU post

DEMOCRATS HUSSE

Former six-term Gov. G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams has returned to Michigan, and Democratic Party regulars would like nothing better than for him to get the Michigan State University presidency's job.

No matter what his administrative qualifications, his political background rules him out in the minds of many university academic people whose backs bristle at the suggestion. The issue is not what the background amounts to, but that it exists at all. In general, university people do not want any former governor or other political figure as president of the institution. They prefer a man with a more academic background.

But House Speaker William A. Ryan, D-Detroit, has confirmed persistent talk that Democratic leaders want Williams in the $40,000 per year job in the worst way.

Whether they get their wish will depend on the MSU Board of Trustees, the unit that must select a permanent replacement to John A. Hannah, who retired last March to become director of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Democrats hold a 5-3 edge on the board but chairman Donald Stevens of Okemos, a staunch Democrat, insists the party label of the man selected won't matter too much.

Trustee Kenneth W. Thompson, Lansing Republican, said he has "no interest in the political affiliation of the candidates. My interest is in securing the best possible president."

Democratic trustee Clair White of Bay City said: "You wouldn't want to ask anyone to accept the presidency of a major university on a straight party line vote."

A 12-member ad hoc faculty-student-alumni selection committee, headed by Prof. Dale Hathaway, is screening candidates for the presidency. It will submit a list of three or more to the trustees this summer.

Dr. Walter Adams, an economics professor named acting president on a party-line vote last winter, says he has no desire to stay on the job permanently.

"This isn't my bag," Adams said. "I much prefer the classroom."

Adams reports he will take a sabbatical leave from Michigan State in January to do research and "get some badly needed rest and relaxation."

According to Adams, a college president nowadays "must have the wisdom of Solomon, the patience of Job, the strength of Hercules, the constitution of an ox, the energy of a beaver, the leadership of Moses and the charisma of Christ--besides a distinguished military record."

In addition to Williams, dozens of names have been suggested as "leading" candidates for the MSU presidency. Most are academicians.

At least five university presidents in Michigan alone have been mentioned. They are James W. Miller, Western Michigan University; William B. Boyd, Central Michigan University; Harold E. Sponberg, Eastern Michigan University; John X. Jamrich, Northern Michigan University; and Durward B. Varner, Oakland University chancellor.

All five have been connected with MSU in the past, with Varner holding the top spot as a vice-president to Hannah from 1955 until he went to Oakland as chancellor in 1959.

The list doesn't stop there. Former Health, Education and Welfare Secretary John W. Gardner has been mentioned as a possibility for every major college presidency to come up since he left the Johnson Administration and the Michigan State vacancy is no exception. Gardner, now head of the Urban Coalition, was reportedly one of the top three candidates for the University of Michigan presidency last year.

And, of course, now that Hubert H. Humphrey is a college professor instead of vice-president of the United States, his name has cropped up.

Also included is Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin, chancellor of the Univer-

"If It Fitz..."

Personal problems too much

BY JIM FITZGERALD

As I type this, Willie Horton is back in leftfield for the Detroit Tigers and I am back at my typewriter, as any fool can plainly see.

Willie walked out in the middle of the 7th inning. I quit on a Tuesday morning, about half way through editing that week's issue of my favorite weekly newspaper.

I went home and into seclusion, locking the bathroom door behind me. My family stood outside and begged me to get back on the job.

"The publisher just called," my wife said. "He has suspended you without pay until you return. It is costing you $8.73 a day to sit in there."

"Walter Cronkite just said on TV that you quit because you couldn't stand all the insulting letters-to-the-editor," my daughter said. "Especially the one from your mother."

"Yeah," added my son, "and Joe Garagiola said you are unhappy here and want to be traded to the Detroit Free Press. He said you're mad because your publisher won't pay your bar bill at the country club."

"There's a little boy at the back door and he's crying," my wife said. "He says you've got to get back on the job or the newspaper just won't be the same. And he'll never get the $2.50 you owe him for cutting our lawn."

My assistant pounded on the door. "The newspaper is in terrible shape without you," he said. "I remembered that you don't use periods after Mr. Dr and Jr but I forgot how you get rid of all those unused periods. They are rolling all over the floor and people are tripping."

"All your close friends are on the front porch," my wife said. "They both said to tell you the whole town is behind you. Those people who spit at you and throw rocks at your car don't really mean it. It is just their way of saying they love you, Jimmie, and they know you can do better."

"Yeah," added my son, "just go back and write something decent for a change and things will be ok again."

A note was slipped under the bathroom door. It was from Professor Gilmartin who taught me everything I know about writing, who encouraged me to enter the newspaper game, and who has always given me wise advice when I've been troubled. I've always said that Professor Gilmartin has been like a father to me, even if she is a woman. Unfortunately, I couldn't read Professor Gilmartin's writing. But I shall always treasure her note.

After 4 days, I went back to work. "I wasn't mad at my readers or my boss and I don't want to be traded. I love it here," I explained. "The pressure of personal problems simply got to be too much. But I feel fine now after 4 days in the bathroom, near my Right Guard and my Listerine and my Crest."

Mrs. Wm. Profit WSCS life member

The WSCS of the Trinity United Methodist Church held their annual guest night supper meeting at the church Monday evening.

Husbands of members and some 28 from the Salem United Methodist Church joined the group for a hobo meal prepared by Group 5, under the direction of Mrs. Robert Keating and Mrs. Don Shagene.

In a setting of yester-years Mrs. Grant Hutchinson presided at a program which included a slide-talk tour of Alaska, presented by Earl Harris.

Mrs. Clare Carpenter announced the recipient of the annual WSCS life membership. It was awarded this year to Mrs. William Profit.

Mrs. Howard Rexin was in charge of a brief devotional period. Mrs. Hutchinson urged member participation in the School of Missions June 25-29 at Al-bion.

The group adjourned until fall when they will meet Sept. 8. In this modern age it's often the rolling-stone type that ends up with all the polish.

Character is built on what a man thinks - not on what other people think he thinks.

C.C.H.S.'s seniors wound up their school year last week with final tests on Monday, swingout and baccalaureate rehearsal on Tuesday and the long awaited senior trip Wednesday through Sunday morning.

At one o'clock Wednesday afternoon, 86 seniors and four chaperones, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jackson and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woody, boarded school buses bound for Detroit, where the group met their chartered buses to New York City.

After a somewhat long and tiring bus ride through Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey, the seniors arrived in New York at 7:00 a.m. (EDT), where they checked into the Hotel New Yorker. Breakfast was served at the hotel and the remainder of the morning was free for getting settled.

Colby's cafeteria was the site for lunch, after which the group was taken on its first guided tour that took them uptown. (In New York City the area above 50th street is uptown, while south of 50th street is downtown.) Stops were made at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and Lincoln Center, and students were taken on a guided tour of the United Nations building. The tour was made in air conditioned buses. The air conditioning came in handy when the temperature climbed to 97 degrees that day!

En route students saw Grant's Tomb, Fifth Avenue and Millionaires' Row, Hell's Kitchen, Central Park, and the filming sites of "Rosemary's Baby" and "West Side Story."

In the evening the group took its first ride on the subway to Radio City Music Hall. Following the stage performance students were responsible for their own transportation back to the hotel. Many took the subway, while others took a cab or walked the twenty blocks down Broadway.

Surprisingly, everyone turned in at the one o'clock curfew -- the bus ride and the day's activities were a little too much.

Friday turned out as another beautiful day. In the morning the class was taken on a guided tour of Rockefeller Center, which consists of 15 large buildings extending from 48th to 52nd street between Fifth Avenue and the Avenue of the Americas. At the end of the tour the class assembled on the 70th floor observation roof.

In the afternoon the class was taken across the street from the hotel to Madison Square Gardens. On this guided tour the students were allowed to see a portion of the ice follies. Later in the evening some students returned to Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum for a pop concert and dance.

Friday evening the seniors had the choice of attending a Broadway production or visiting the Empire State Building. Those who went to Broadway saw "Cabaret," a witty musical starring Anita Gillette.

Saturday morning brought with it some more good weather and tours of Chinatown, the Bowery, Greenwich Village, the Lower East Side of Manhattan, and a cruise to the Statue of Liberty.

Saturday afternoon was free for shopping and getting ready for the return trip.

A tired group of seniors arrived in Cass City at 9:15 Sunday morning after a quiet ride home. Many didn't like New York and were glad to be home while others were ready to turn around and go back.

The trip was planned by Seniorama Tours of Trenton, Michigan. All meals and tours were taken care of by the company.

The trouble with a cheap education is that we never stop paying for it.

Consider the roots of poverty.

Half of the kids in the primary grades won't finish high school. In America today, one out of three high school students won't graduate.

If the dropouts don't wind up as delinquents or criminals (and their chances are ten times greater than average), they'll wind up with a family.

But with less chance to earn the money it takes to support a family.

The chances are two to one that a man with less than eighth-grade education will earn $3,000 or less. Too little to support a family.

So while we can skimp on dollars for education, we'll spend the money we save--and more--supporting the people who don't have the education they need.

Good schools with good teachers and good facilities can produce good citizens.

Which is why money spent on education represents the best investment we can make.

An investment that never stops paying.

Fertilizer ratio--an intricate balance

By Don Kebler

When I counsel with a farm operator on his soil test based fertilizer recommendations, I try to show him the easiest and least costly way to meet his fertilizer needs.

What process do I teach these operators? It is one based on long time soil type, reaction, crop research and not on the quantities of different nutrients taken in by the particular crop for a particular yield.

In this writing I am not going into the why's and wherefore's of making recommendations from reliable soil test data. This information is in the Michigan State University fertilizer recommendation bulletin E-550 and is available to anyone.

So here we are with a soil test on a silt loam soil, the crop to be navy beans following corn and with no barnyard manure plowed down.

The following plantfood nutrients recommended for a possible 30 to 50 bushel per acre bean crop is 40 pounds of nitrogen, plus 50 pounds of phosphorus plus 15 pounds of potassium per acre. Included in the fertilizer mixture are at least 5 pounds manganese and 3 pounds zinc per acre.

The operator tells me he has plowed down 25 pounds each of phosphorus and potassium. This means he really does not need to apply a fertilizer containing further amounts of potassium. He does need to supply the crop 40 pounds of nitrogen plus 25 pounds phosphorus plus the above recommended manganese and zinc at planting time.

Fifty (50) pounds of a 11-48-0 or 80 pounds of 8-32-0 plus 35 pounds of additional nitrogen plus the manganese and zinc would suffice. This won't work because he cannot apply less than 100 pounds of any analysis of fertilizer per acre with his planting equipment. Neither can he purchase this analysis containing the recommended manganese and zinc. So he decides to apply 100 pounds of an 8-32-16 analysis, containing the manganese and zinc, per acre and sidedress with 32 pounds actual nitrogen per acre. This decision cost him 7 pounds of phosphorus and 16 pounds of potassium per acre more than was recommended. Actually it cost him more. By applying 150 to 160 pounds of this 8-32-16 per acre at planting time and sidedressed 30 pounds of nitrogen per acre, he would have eliminated the broadcast application before plowing and the extra cost would have been less than 20 cents per acre. This would be nearly one dollar per acre savings.

To marry or not to marry

By Richard Haines

Ahh, the elations of being 23 and single.

The heart of a bachelor is a freer one. He has more time to ponder his every inclination, to test his talents, to gamble his bets of confidence in himself.

Perhaps the best thing about bachelorhood is a sense of privilege. Privileged, because they have a choice "had" husbands don't.

Every month, a full page ad in Playboy with a script below asks, "What kind of man reads Playboy?" and it shows a feller in the plushiest restaurants, the jazziest of resorts, all with the ever-present implication he's single.

Anthropologists call marriage a "social crisis" accompanied by ceremony so as to "define" the crisis, to direct the emotions into a situation that is explained and interpreted by custom.

But more than a bachelor's soul is sold to the gods. Who would be so illogical as to pay house mortgages instead of, say, hunt sunken ships; to pay insurance premiums instead of buying a 4-speaker stereo, to pay hospital bills for baby instead of getting good scotch and throwing nice parties.

One has donned us the "swingles". An apt term, I think, to describe the options on recreation and leisure increasing both in choice and quality.

Most importantly, a freer schedule is allowed under bachelorhood for such enterprising pursuits as, say, investing stock in a new ski resort, running for public office, making weekend jaunts to the North Country, the Mardi Gras, or Las Vegas.

And the point is that each of the bachelor's weekend plans can be altered with jolting suddenness. Plans for a weekend on the beach can be altered to a Detroit weekend with the Tigers without the bat of an eyelash.

No persuasion with anybody, no compromises, no baby-sitters, no relatives to apologize to.

And to the "bach" who loves doing things, these points are important. For me, writing a superscoop, monkeying around with outdoor photography, participating in group seminars, a good political campaign fight, sipping scotch and soda while perusing yesterday's New York Times, dawdling with my weekly column, or just smoking my pipe, my feet up, and brainstorming, are fine.

To me, these activities are leisure of the first order.

Then again, the question of "To Marry or Not to Marry" has some tributes on the other side.

When you're in the dumps, a spouse is someone with which you can share your self-doubt and disappointment when world seems to look upon you as inadequate.

And when you're feeling elated a spouse is someone you can talk, smile, and laugh with. And love with.

It is someone you can review the days office gossip with, or Uncle Garlie's new addition to his butterfly collection.

Income providing, I've pondered having lots of kids, especially boys.

And two would-be grandparents who have expressed more than normal interest in the subject are also intent upon the fortune teller's crystal ball.

Never-the-less, I think that as a candidate, a would-be spouse would find me sensitive, easily amused, and usually full of gusto.

My liabilities are that I sometimes become over-committed, sometimes mis-place a chuckle or laugh, and also become amused when others become distraught.

In other words, without really trying, I can occasionally be a chip off the old block.

Meanwhile back on the ranch, the crystal ball flickers.

Sp-4 David Bliss in Viet Nam duty

U.S. Army Specialist Four David T. Bliss, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Bliss Sr. of Cass City, was assigned April 22 to the Americal Division in Vietnam, as a mortar gunner.

SP4 DAVID BLISS

He is a 1968 graduate of Cass City High School and left April 9 following a 14-day leave in Cass City. He enlisted Oct. 30, 1968, and received training at Fort Knox, Kentucky, and Fort Polk in Louisiana.

Don't take too many chances on chance acquaintances.

Hugh Brenneman
Hobbies bring change of pace

Some primitive religions utilize self-denial and self-torture for the development of character, and for discipline of emotions. This is called ASCETICISM and it calls for a mode of life that abstains from indulgence in pleasure. The thought is that through the renunciation of the desires of the flesh and of pleasure in worldly things, one can subdue his appetites and reach a high intellectual state of spiritual affection.

There are still ascetic practices in some modern religions although they are perhaps less cruel and rigorous than the primitive ones. These include fasting, or abstention from certain meats and drinks, avoiding baths, hair-cutting and sex; they call for physical discomforts of silence, vigils, sleeping on the ground or tattooing.

The socially well-adjusted person should have some pleasure times...just plain fun. These are best if they are alternated with periods of work followed by periods of rest and recreation. It is the change that is important. The example: a school boy might play baseball after a day of study. On the other hand, a professional baseball player might learn to play the piano and from this get his relief from playing baseball!

It used to be said that "everybody should have a good hobby for when he retires" but this advice is lacking in several important respects.

First, it implies that hobbies can be postponed until retirement. But that just isn't so. A good hobby can't be picked up when one retires like putting on an old jacket instead of dressing up for the office. It takes a bit of doing to develop a respectable hobby. A good hobby may be an aid to better emotional health because it helps to release the tensions created by an active life, but it certainly isn't a cure-all. It is not enough in itself to satisfy an active-minded person in retirement. Actually it's just as important before retirement as afterward. It is an involvement in life just as asceticism is a rejection of life.

Life is sure to appear flat to those who expect it to be a continual round of pleasure.

The Want Ads are newsy too.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Have you got one of them houses on wheels yet? The feller that runs the store told us Saturday night that he ain't never seen the like of campers passing by his place this spring. He said we has come from "two chickens in ever pot" to "two houses for ever family" in one generation.

Actual, he said, them rolling houses was pritty thick on the road by the store through the winter. Last fall, he said he figured when the younguns had to stop riding and go to school the trailer traffic would slack off some. But now he figgers about as many retired couples has trailers as folks with younguns, so the old folks ride while the younguns is in school.

During the hottest spell last August, the storekeeper recollected, a family stopped in one of them campers that is built like a bus, where you set right inside and drive along. The feller driving got out and come in. He said he was looking for a fuse. He said the camper had blowed a fuse right in the middle of the cartoons on TV and the younguns was screaming bloody murder. Farthermore, he said his old lady had jest finished washing her hair and her hair dryer wouldn't work without that fuse.

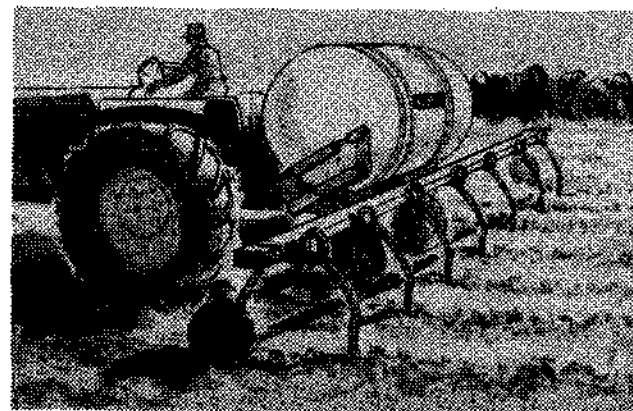

The feller said they wasn't going nowhere in particular. He said his camper had air condition and his regular house didn't, so they was jest driving around cause it was cooler on the road than in their regular house. The storekeeper said he was afraid to think how thick highways of this country would git with them rolling houses if we was to have a power failure winter or summer in some big cities. Ever family would git inside their air condition shells and hit the road like a endless line of turtles, was his words.

Ed Doolittle said his daughter that works in the city was a member of one of these travel clubs. One of their trips last summer was a tour into Mexico with a band of them air condition trailers. Ed said his daughter ter reported they took their own drinking water, had parties and saw moving pictures ever night when they camped. She said they had to rough it one night and cook over a open fire cause the cooking gas run out. Modern trailer parks, she said, is jest like motels, except the customer pervides the room.

More than 132,000 of them homes on wheels was sold in this country last year, Ed reported, and he figgered they would be more this year. Sharp politicians will be coming up with more programs on camping, Ed allowed, but the trouble is, they'll have to set up roadblocks to stop the campers long enuff to tell about 'em.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim.

Letters to Editor

Sex Education best in school says collegiate

May 28, 1969

Dear Mr. Haire,

I was glad to see that Cass City is thinking about adopting sex education into its curriculum. But I was surprised to read the letters from two concerned citizens regarding the teaching of "so called sex business".

The major charges seem to be that sex education is "unhealthy, immoral, un-Christian, and un-American"; that it will force children to grow up too fast; that it is responsible for an increase in pre-marital pregnancies, V.D., illegitimacy, and untold heartbreaks.

A careful examination of these charges reveals that they are not founded on fact. A quotation was cited from an "original Communist Manifesto" which was offered in proof of the un-American, un-Christian, Communist basis of sex education. Let's get the facts straight. The passage that was quoted is not found in the Communist Manifesto of Marx. I feel it necessary to ask just who's "Communist Manifesto" this came from. Who else has written one? Not only that, but the term "corrupt the youth" is not a Communistic term. A communist would not advocate corruption of youth because Communism is regarded as a purification of a corrupt capitalistic society. This sounds like a return to the McCarthy era.

We are also told that a rise in pre-marital pregnancies, etc., accompany sex education. But we are offered no proof on this matter. It would seem logical, then, to disregard this charge until some proof is offered.

Is sex nitty-gritty? Is it nasty? Only if it is made to be. I seriously doubt that anyone in the administration of our school would advocate anything in this line.

By forbidding sex education in the school, we are creating for ourselves a problem where are children going to get their sex education. From home? Fine. But the fact that illegitimacy, V.D. and the like exists now points to the fact that many people are not receiving this education. From the churches? How long had it been since the Cass City churches have had a relevant sex education program and how many children does it reach? I remember a sex class sponsored by area churches when I was in the sixth grade. Bad age? The churches didn't seem to think so. Not only that, but religion did not play an over-riding part in the class. Were the churches immoral? We have eliminated the churches, the schools, and in some cases the parents. Where do we go from here? Other children. We all know from our own experiences that children are some of the most active educators in sexual matters. And we also know that many of their ideas are misguided and erroneous.

The school is one of the only institutions that all children are exposed to. Let's take advantage of this fact. With the right attitudes and materials, a sex education program could be a workable tool for a society plagued with sexual problems. Before we start an all-out attack on sex education, let's find out what is being taught. Is it perverted? Is it unnatural? Or is it something that teaches facts about self-realization, boy-girl relationships and their consequences. We don't want children to grow up too fast...but let's not keep children in the dark about matters that they can understand. Let's teach them slowly and carefully and in good taste. In this manner, perhaps, we will prevent our children from HAVING to grow up overnight.

Sex is here to stay, says local pastor

May 29, 1969

Dear Reader,

If I, a clergyman, were to evaluate the need for sex education in the public school curriculum on the basis of pre-marital and marital counseling, then let me by all means say we need sex education in the schools. It isn't a question of how early in a child's life, but rather "how!" Because misinformation and unhealthy attitudes from parents and peers become a part of the child's make-up long before puberty, some agency and method must counteract with "the facts." The schools are more qualified than most parents in this respect. It is up to the parents to see to it that the "facts" taught in school are interpreted in a healthy manner. To begin with we have to accept our own sexuality as parents and say, SEX IS GOOD! Driver education does not guarantee a good driver. Home attitudes have a tremendous influence. Sex education does not guarantee moral behavior. Home attitudes have a tremendous influence. When parents carry on their responsibilities as parents, other agencies won't have to step in to do the job for them. Sex is here to stay. We might as well get it straight. Let's acknowledge it as a gift of God.

3 letter word changes story meaning

June 1, 1969

Dear Editor:

We read and hear reference to and protests against the use of a "four letter word". The import of this reader's communication concerns some little, three letter words.

In the news report of my talk at the Zonta Club on May 20, printed in last week's edition of the Chronicle, it was stated that I said: "The test of a community is in its income per capita, in its two-car garages and homes! My statement included three three-letter words: "The test of a community is "NOT" in the income per capita, "NOR" in the number of two-car garages, and lovely, new homes, "BUT" in the character of its residents and the composite impact of homes, school, churches and other institutions upon its children, youth and adults. By this test Cass City rates high as a wonderful town in which to live."

Sincerely,
Mel Vender

Farewell party for home agent

Mrs. Judith Schroeter Ghorashy was honored at a farewell party Tuesday, May 27, in the 4-H Building at Caro. The new Mrs. Ghorashy has served as Extension Home Economist with Ann Ross since July 1967 and will leave soon to join her husband at the University of Illinois.

The party, given by Extension women in Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties, featured surprise testimonials about "what I will remember best about Judy".

Participating from Huron on the program were Mrs. Clarence Terrill and Mrs. Jay Mittin of Bay Port, Mrs. Gilbert Tinney and Mrs. Robert Hogan of Port Austin and Mrs. Donald Young of Elkton. Sanilac county participants included Mrs. Rex Rasmussen and Mrs. Stanley Kohn of Sandusky and Mrs. Leo Sullivan of Marquette. Miss Betty Ketcham, Michigan State University program leader, shared in the program festivities.

Extension Agents Al Ballweg and Bernard Jarod told Judy what they will remember about her as did Mrs. Walter Modrow and Mrs. Leonard Russell of Tuscola county. Miss Cindy Williams, Caro, a friend of the honored guest, had several comments about their friendship.

A wedding cake made by Mrs. Russell decorated the cake table. Cookies were provided by Extension groups in Huron and Sanilac counties.

Mrs. Modrow served as mistress of ceremonies and group gifts were presented by Mrs. Ruth McConnell.

In the fifth grade most kids know of sex

May 26, 1969

Dear Mr. Haire:

I would like to express the opinion of a teenager and student in reference to sex education.

I can remember that in the fifth grade all the kids with few exceptions knew something about sex. Every once in a while little conversations would be passed around about it. Sometimes, and more often than not, the wrong ideas were discussed. These fifth graders are all aware of what is going on around them. They're not dumb, but unfortunately many have the wrong ideal. Since they discuss it anyway, I think that they should be taught correctly.

For you parents who think this age is too young, wouldn't you rather have your Johnny taught correctly then have him hear what Timmy's mom told Timmy and what Susie's mom told Susie? You see, they find out anyway!

When these boys and girls become young adults and are seniors in high school they should be informed and understand, but many are not. Many of the guys still laugh and are embarrassed to face the facts, which is really sad! Life is beautiful, not to be ashamed of or laughed at! And the one ashamed is Johnny, whose mom never really did tell him

ONE FOR THE ROAD World Series format changed this year

By Dan Marlowe

It's time to take a look ahead toward the World Series.

The Tiger script has been changed this year. Instead of leading from wire to wire, Mayo Smith has programmed the Tigers to come from behind (7 games behind Baltimore at the moment of writing). The new script calls for the Tigers to take the lead about September 15th and roll on to the triumphant finish.

So who will the Tigers play in the World Series this year? Even the World Series format is different.

First there is a three-out-of-five series between the winners of the eastern and western divisions of the American League with the same thing taking place in the National League. Only then do these two winners tackle each other in the traditional four-out-of-seven World Series.

In the Western division of the American League, the contenders are Minnesota, Oakland and Chicago. The Tigers will beat any of them. They've had it easy with Minnesota for years (Denny McLain especially, invaluable in a short series). Oakland would be tougher with its good young hitters, but the Tigers will take them if they make it. Chicago would give the Tigers the most trouble with its good pitching, but are least likely to make it in their division due to hitting deficiencies.

In the western division of the National League, the strong teams are the Atlanta Braves and the San Francisco Giants. Despite their present comparatively high estate, the Los Angeles Dodgers are unlikely to finish better than third. So it will be the Braves or the Giants most likely opposing the eastern division winner.

Before the season started the eastern division had been automatically awarded to the St. Louis Cardinals. But the Cardinals are in trouble, and not only from their slow start. The Chicago Cubs are in the National League's eastern division, and the Cubs are for real. Leo Durocher has the reputation of being the best manager in baseball when he has a pennant contender, and he's going to get a chance to prove it.

The Cubs have the best infield in baseball with Santo, Kessinger, Beckert and Banks. Kessinger and Beckert have been the best double-play combination in baseball since they came into the league, and both are now solid 280 hitters. Beckert, in particular, has the potential to become a great deal more.

The Cubs have five solid starting pitchers: Ferguson Jenkins, Ken Holtzman, Bill Hands, Rich Nye, and the recently acquired Dick Selma who may have the best arm in the league. They have solid relief pitching in Hank Aguirre (ex of the Tigers), Ted Abernathy, and Phil Regan. And in Randy Hundley they have one of the three best catchers in the game, the others being Bill Freehan and Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds.

The Cubs are weakest in the outfield. Billy Williams can play and hit for anyone, but Adolph Phillips is in and out of Durocher's doghouse. The Cubs started the year with a who's-in-right-field? situation, but Al Spangler is having the kind of year that ordinary ballplayers have in pennant-winning seasons.

So it's the Cubs versus the Tigers in the '69 Series. Make your hotel reservations now.

Visitors to the Michigan State University campus will find four MSU landmarks have been renamed. The old administration building, the forestry and conservation buildings, all located on West Circle Drive will be known as the Robert S. Linton Hall, Alfred K. Chittenden Hall, and the Albert J. Cook Hall, respectively. The old personnel building, located on Michigan Ave., has been renamed the H. Merrill Willis House.

The buildings were renamed in honor of former faculty members or administrators for their service to MSU. The action was approved by the university's board of trustees during their May meeting.

To the Parents of

5th and 6th Grade Students and Concerned Parties

With the plans already being made for the next school year, it is our feeling that those who pay school taxes and have 5th and 6th graders to be enrolled should know all the facts about the proposed sex education for their children. Unfortunately, the parents of these children have not been consulted or informed as to just what is in store for them. We feel that it is their right to know; also, their right to reserve, unto themselves, the teaching of this subject so personal, so much a part of family life.

In an effort to discredit those who oppose the usurping of this sacred family right, it has been not so subtly implied that the opposition is made up of members of a radical right wing group. Do not be misled. There are bound to be members of this group who protest simply because opposition is becoming so general across the country. It will surely find people of all faiths and beliefs with children they do not want exposed to outside of the family sex teaching. We are in no position to know all the people who oppose it here, radical or otherwise, and it would make no difference to us if we did.

We happen to be two of the very few that have seen the proposed subjects listed for teaching 5th and 6th graders in this area. The first ten lessons have little to do with sex, as far as can be determined by the lesson outlines we received; however, this may be something different once classes are instituted. Then come the final five lessons. This is the sex education that is being planned for your children. This is the part that every parent has a right to know.

If this is so good and so necessary in our grade schools, why has our school not presented the final five lessons to our local paper for printing and our editor printed them for all to see and judge? Is there some fear that the parents of the children to be exposed to these five lessons would be revolted and, in disgust, challenge the right of our school authorities to force this on their children?

If these five lessons are right to teach fifth and sixth graders, or any grade for that matter, then how could it be wrong to print them in our local paper - word for word as they are spelled out - so all the concerned people can see for themselves what is in store?

If the majority decides that this sex course is not what they want for their children, then what better way could we find to economize than by doing without the teacher of this subject.

When we suggest that the parents should decide this issue, we mean the parents who have children in the 5th or 6th grades or will have. By no means should the people without children to be taught this course, force their will on those who have. It is not their right to decide for the involved parents - either for or against the course. Is this asking something unfair?

Educators have been proven wrong in other instances. Not too long ago they made a decision to teach sight reading. They are now back to teaching phonetics. In the meantime, we have a generation of young adults that can't read properly or have no desire to. Professional people of all walks are not immune to making mistakes but with one difference. An error made by a professional group turns out to be more frightening and more damaging than the usual.

With the demands for basic education becoming more difficult each year to finance, we ask once again that our school authorities consult the child's parents - let the facts of this sex education be spelled out. Then let the parents of these children concerned decide if they want to furnish a teacher or start this new and different education of their children.

The school board, the superintendent's office, and the local newspaper have all gone on record as saying that nothing is definite as to the last five lessons. Indeed, it has been stated that even Delta College is not sure they will teach these. Well, we are sure that they are unacceptable to us and believe that other parents may agree.

Summer forage crops good for cattle farms

Livestock farmers who expect a shortage of summer forage should consider using sorghum-sudangrass hybrids which should be planted before June 15.

If planted early, these forage crops can make excellent pasture or greenchop for dairy, beef or sheep from early July through the first frost.

Planting dates range from May 20 to June 15. Early planting makes possible an earlier first harvest, longer harvesting periods and higher yields. These sorghum-sudangrass hybrids can be cut when 30 inches high. All will make two or three cuttings if not cut less than six inches in height.

In four years of trials at East Lansing, Sordan, Trudan 2 and Number 985 out-yielded the standard Piper sudangrass about 8 to 10 per cent.

The sorghum-sudangrass hybrids should be planted with 500 pounds of ammonium nitrate fertilizer plus 500 pounds per acre of 5-20-20 for quick growth and good yields. Thirty to 40 pounds of seed an acre usually provides good stands. Other varieties that have yielded well in tests include Haygrazer, Sweet Sioux, Chow-Maker and Mor-Su.

The crop scientist suggests that the forage be planted on good land with the seeding about one inch deep.

Hold services for Melvin Heckman

Funeral services were held Monday, May 26, in St. Paul's Lutheran Church at Linkville for Melvin Henry Heckman, 55, of Rescue Road, Gagetown. He died Saturday, May 24, in Hills and Dales Hospital following an illness of two weeks.

The Rev. Edward Reinker officiated and burial was in New Salem Cemetery, Sebawaing.

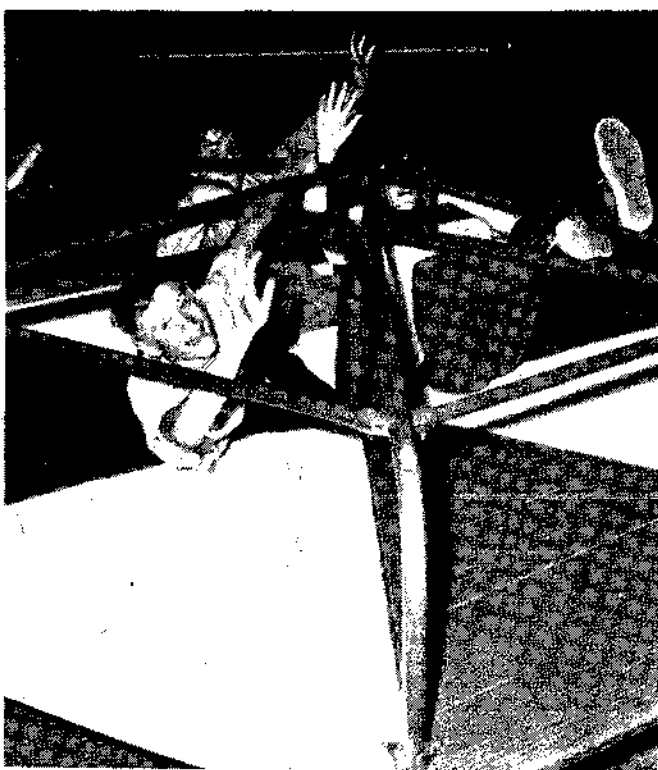

Mr. Heckman was born in Sebawaing Jan. 30, 1914, son of the late Henry and Ella Heckman. He married Dorothy Kain in Kilmanagh April 18, 1935, and was a farmer.

The Heckmans lived in Sebawaing until 1953, when they moved to Gagetown.

He was a member of St. Paul's Church of Linkville.

Surviving are his widow, Dorothy; two sons, Ronald of Essexville and James, a student at MSU; one daughter, Judith Heckman, at home; one grandchild, and one brother, Clements of Sebawaing.

Complete vo-ag projects at school

ONE OF SEVERAL group projects in the shop of the vocational agriculture class of Cass City High School includes this rejuvenated merry-go-round, being given a trial spin by junior higher's Mike Frederick (rear), Scott Guinther (left) and Craig Helwig.

RANDY HAMPSHIRE, Cass City Future Farmer, gives his custom made farm run-about a test run.

Lyle Clarke, Cass City vo-ag instructor, reports the completion of three major group projects constructed by students of the Future Farmers of America (FFA).

Randy Hampshire, sophomore, and co-workers, El Rogers and Lee Deering, have completed a farm run-about, made from a custom-welded chassis, a farm combine motor and a 1953 Ford "4 on the floor" gearbox. Hampshire said he would use it for such things as "fixing fences and other errands."

Painted fire engine red, it sports a full car-size front seat and measures roughly 5 feet wide and 10 feet long. He has been working on the project since January.

El Rogers and Lee Deering completed a Ski-Doo trailer fabricated from scrap metal.

Twins Duane and Douglas O'Dell have completed a horse trailer for transporting either of their two horses to fairs, shows and FFA activities.

The two are also sophomores and have fabricated the trailer's axle and steel frame and used plywood with reinforcement for sides. They set the value of their project at $200.

Several shop students have repaired and re-painted a merry-go-round from the school's elementary playground and others have made a farm wagon and rejuvenated a grain elevator.

Willingness to help noted

By Mrs. Ann Ross - Extension Agent

Today's world groans loudly with grief and strife. Yet last week I saw so many evidences of human love and concern that I am encouraged and humble because of the greatness in people.

A group of 4-H leaders came together for a day to study meat cookery principles so that they could better teach the youth in their neighborhoods.

Community leaders in one county gave serious consideration to the future use of space and resources so that the needs of people might be given priority in planning.

A local couple gave extra loving care and attention to the two older ladies who make their home with them.

A group of women held a club meeting in which they studied the topic of human prejudice so that they might - through understanding of prejudice itself - be more open in their attitudes toward others.

Efforts of a group interested in the history of one county have led to formation of an historical society which is concerned with preserving past records as a means of understanding the past and present as well as preparing for the future. One man gave his time to "tell others" of this project, and the others listened. An Extension club sponsored and organized the initial meeting of a Senior Citizens Club in a rural community. The day brought much joy in fellowship and fun and participation.

Many women went by bus to the inner city of Detroit to learn about urban families, particularly in regard to housing. They were concerned about living conditions of urban families.

All of these happenings and many others, occurred in Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties last week. They are tangible evidence that we humans do care about each other.

IN MEMORIAM
Donald Wernette Gerald Whittaker

Two years,
Two lives,
Death deals a low blow,
But it is higher up,
In the heart,
Where it hurts the most.
You are told of death
And you say,
"It was bound to happen."
Yet the realization of death refuses to sink in
You say,
"I can't believe it."
And we wonder,
"What will it be like without them,
Not ever seeing
Their faces again?"
Our stomach forms a pit,
Our mouths are closed,
No words come forth,
No words would fit.
Our eyes are wet
With tears of sorrow.
Oh, Death does a lot more
Than take a life from us!
Yes, they are gone forever,
But we will remember them,
For how could we forget.....

CLASS HISTORY

It was back in 1963 when we first stepped into the halls of C.C.H.S. Graduation seemed a long way off and we were mainly concerned with getting used to our new surroundings. We were readily identifiable because we were the kids who were always running through the halls. For our very first class officers we elected as president, Jean Russell; vice-president, Gary Vollmar; secretary, Fred Ryan; and treasurer, Carla Calka.

In the eighth grade, although this was our second year in the high school building, we were still a little wet behind the ears, but at least we had some underclassmen to pick on. The responsibility of running our class was in the hands of Fred Ryan, president; Joe Mark, vice-president; Robbie Bridges, secretary; and Carla Calka, treasurer.

In the ninth grade we elected Lynn Haire as our president; Carla Calka, vice-president; Jean Doerr, secretary; and Fred Ryan, treasurer. Now we began to feel a part of C.C.H.S., and, although we only had four short years to go, graduation seemed a long way off. The big news of the year was that a new high school was going to be built.

In the tenth grade, despite rumors that there weren't going to be any more Senior trips, we started planning money-making projects. Our big project for the year was a candy sale. Those running the show for that year were Terry Brinkman, president; Harvey Francis, vice-president; Tom Kolb, secretary; and Carla Calka, treasurer.

Then we were Juniors, just one step away from being mighty Seniors. With Tom Kolb as president, Harvey Francis, vice-president; Jean Doerr, secretary; and Carla Calka, treasurer, we had a busy year. We had the junior-senior prom to take care of and the customary Junior class magazine drive, in which we outsold every sales record at C.C.H.S. before us. Perhaps the most exciting thing of that year was the moving into the new high school building after Christmas vacation.

At last, SENIORS!!! After years of hard work, we were finally going to graduate. Lynn Haire, president; Sandy Schuette, vice-president; Ellen Morgan, secretary; and Carla Calka, treasurer, led our busiest year. We worked hard selling candy during the lunch periods and at sports activities to raise money for our five-day trip to New York City and we anxiously prepared for graduation.

It seems a long time since we first entered the old, venerable C.C.H.S., but, oh how short our stay really was--maybe too short. We decided to have our first class reunion in five years. It appears that although we can't wait to get out, we can hardly wait to get back!
