

FROM THE Editor's Corner

Last week Bob Sullivan, CMU coach, confuted the names of the more illustrious coaches to have served Cass City High School.

One of the names he mentioned was Art Paddy, a coach who left here 17 years ago. Paddy was a winner in Cass City. And while his style in basketball was one that I never particularly cottoned to, his style as a coach and a handler of boys was.

I became convinced that what most everyone else was saying was true, not when his football or basketball teams rolled through the regular seasons in the 1951-52 school year.... or he took his basketball team to the finals of the regionals at Flint before bowing...or when I looked at the glowing won-lost record during his tenure here.

It was in defeat that he stood out. It happened at the end of the great 1952 case year.

Cass City had literally toyed with the opposition as it raced through 16 games undefeated. (This year Paddy called it one of the three best teams he had ever coached and compared it to the team at West Bloomfield that went to the State tournament semi-finals before bowing this spring.)

Two of the victories in banner 1952 were over Vassar. They won 47-42 and 55-30 during the regular season.

There was no reason to expect that the tournaments would be any different.

Most Cass City partisans were already looking beyond the district tourney to Flint, feeling that this was the year that the Hawks would hurdle the regionals and vault into the limelight of the State quarterfinals.

After all, the tournament was on the Hawks' own floor and the season's play had clearly proven that Cass City had the finest team.

Cass City followed the script by rolling through the first two games of the tournament and so did Vassar.

In the finals, it looked like a shoo-in for Cass City. They were ahead by nine points and the Hawks all season had been tougher in the second half than in the first.

But, as basketball teams sometimes do, the Vulcans caught fire and a fellow by the name of Cobb had his once-in-a-lifetime night and started canning buckets with astonishing regularity. He hit again and again from the middle of the floor.

By the end of the third period the score was tied. It seemed back and forth with first one team, then the other taking a slim lead.

Cass City tied the game with just seconds left on the clock. Concluded on page 3

Frustrating night for board

School rejects bid for work on 2 parking lots

Monday was a frustrating night for the Cass City School Board. Several teachers were granted releases, the blacktop bid for the parking lot was 50 per cent over estimate and rejected, the school millage failed to pass, the summer reading program is finding limited acceptance and there are maintenance problems at several of the schools.

The sad news was revealed to the board at its regular session at the high school. C. R. Hunt was the only bidder for blacktopping of the parking lot and for creating a new parking area east of the school. The bid was $33,901.20. The estimate for the work was $22,850.

Much of the difference in the estimate and the price was in the cost of blacktop. Estimated at about $10 per ton, it was bid at $15.

Because the quote was so far over estimate and because just one bid was received, the board voted to reject the bid and receive new bids in about two weeks.

At the next letting the bids will be taken in two parts. ... one for blacktop and the other for leveling, grading and drainage work.

Leaving the school system will be Robert Hirn and Dennis Rienstra. Hirn will be entering the contracting business and Rienstra has accepted a post at Caro, where he will teach physical education.

Mrs. Nancy Hutchinson and Mrs. Ellen Wynes were granted maternity leaves for one year.

The board formally approved the contract for Russell Richards, the new high school principal. The two-year pact calls for $15,000 yearly plus $500 for moving expenses.

The problems of maintenance will cost the school many thousands of dollars. Supt. Don Crouse said that the cost was not yet budgeted, but the project outlined will be expensive.

The board agreed that many of the problems would cost more in the future years if they were let slide.

Two of the major problems are in the Intermediate School. Pointing of the brick and replacing of the windows are major cost projects.

The board, with the exception of Elwyn Helwig, wants to go ahead with the windows now and agreed to do so.

Plans tentatively call for new windows on all three floors of the west side of the building. The brick work is the continuation of a job that started last summer.

Campbell Elementary School will require extensive patching or a new roof, Crouse explained. Mrs. Jackie Freiburger said that the roof now leaks in about 15 places. Also needed is blacktop repair around the building.

Deford School needs lightning protection and bids will be taken for the work. A similar project several years ago died because of the cost.

NEW PROGRAM

Fifteen children from low income families will participate in a cultural enrichment program for six weeks this summer.

The program is Federally funded and administered by the Office of Economic Opportunity. It opens July 10 and the students will be selected by the grade

Contest for Father's Day ends Saturday

A promotion especially for father will be concluded Saturday when a lucky area resident will receive a $50 gift certificate from the Retail Division of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce.

Without obligation any resident can register at any member store with the Father's Day sign on the door and be eligible for the prize.

Residents may register as often as they wish. The more often they register, the better the chances to win, Keith McConkey, chairman, said this week.

The grand prize will be determined by a drawing Saturday afternoon at 4 p.m.

COLLEGE GRAD Bob Milligan has changed his major from dairying to teaching and research in agricultural economics.

Aims for doctorate

Bob Milligan: farmer turns to farm research

BY RICHARD HAINES

Bob Milligan, golden haired college grad,

Son of a dairy farmer,

He had planned a career in dairy farming, possibly in partnership with an ambitious younger brother on their father's farm, located 4 miles north of Cass City.

The bespectacled grad, with a slight problem in sight, now finds himself caught between two worlds: the sentimentality and love of the farm and of theory and inquiry as a student researcher at Michigan State University.

A reserved, but friendly young man, he sat on his father's living room sofa and related his beginnings as an active Future Farmer of America.

He went on to become State Secretary of the organization and received one of the highest honors in the State, that of "Silver" State Farmer.

On his father's farm, his FFA projects grew to 15 Holsteins and 50 acres, which he held in partnership with his father, James Milligan.

When asked about county fairs, he said they participated little. "We were never 'show' minded," he said.

Habitually shifting in his sofa, he said his father never encouraged him or discouraged him to inherit and take over the farm, but he hinted that deep inside he always knew his father would have liked to build their 560 acres into a full scale operation.

"I just got to like it," he said.

And when he entered MSU his academic performance in his subject major, dairying, bolstered his future farming plans.

As his education moved from the home to the world of Michigan State University, his wants and desires were slowly framed by the academic buildings of the prominent Midwestern university, and he became more interested in research.

Bob Milligan is one of the clean-cuts. His calm, sensitive manner is a compliment to the virtues of hard work and discipline he learned on the farm, virtues that put him near the top of the scholastic ladder.

He became a member of Phi Kappa Phi, a national scholastic honorary, and was a determined organizational worker for the several agricultural organizations in which he participated.

He served as chairman of the esteemed Student Advisory Council for the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

In his senior year, he helped professors in large scale research projects, one of which was studying salary scales of the Michigan farm laborer.

Though much of the project's phone calling was mundane, he said, "I liked it....though I would have liked to have been the managing investigator instead of the assistant.

His personal quest for self-discovery led to an interest in economic theory and he broadened his major to agricultural economics.

This summer he will be one of two MSU students in a national debate at Lexington, Kentucky, grappling with the topic, "Resolved, that the legislature enact legislation to retard non-farm corporations from the operation or ownership of farms." He will be required to debate both sides of the question.

Agricultural economics is a topic he relishes. Modern farming, he said, "is a matter of subsidizing capital for labor."

Plan memorial for Holmberg

The Cass City Board of Education voted to officially recognize Arthur Holmberg's long service to the school system Monday night by voting to hang a memorial to him in the new high school building.

A picture and a plaque were discussed but no formal decision reached. A committee was appointed to investigate and implement the board's decision.

Millage fails: school preps for curriculum reduction

Cass City's last hopes for a full educational program went down the drain by a narrow margin of 52 votes Monday as the electorate voted 572 to 520 against a proposition calling for four extra mills operating funds for one year.

The total was just slightly greater than the first vote. A total of 1096 votes was cast Monday as compared to 1072 previously.

For one reason or another, about 224 voters switched opinions in the time between the two elections.

Several observers of the school scene felt that the reduction in the length of the levy from three years to one year was responsible.

Others felt that the cuts outlined by the board caused many to decide to vote for the millage. Probably, it was a combination of both features of the second vote that caused the switch to the cause of the school.

Although the second vote was an improvement in the eyes of the pro-millage boosters, the end result remains the same. The reduced curriculum will start in the fall and there will be no further attempts to secure the added operating funds.

The half-day sessions will be started in the elementary school and junior high sports are down the drain. Art and vocal music have been discarded and changes in transportation are being worked on for next fall.

The new austerity program will be in effect at least through the 1969-70 school year.

BOARD ELECTION

Evidently the voters do not feel the troubles of the school are the fault of the board of education.

They returned two incumbent members to the board of education over the challenges of two other candidates. Donald Koepfgen led all candidates with 676 votes. Horace Bulen polled 603 votes; Mrs. Alice Guernsey, 447 votes, and Tom Herron, 326 votes.

OwenGage successful

Approve funds for 5 of 11 area schools

OwenGage school district's renewal request for three years received voter okay Monday, June 9.

The proposition passed with 230 in favor and 172 voting no, with nine ballots spoiled. Two board incumbents were re-elected with four contending in an at-large election. Eldon Dietzel received 286; Thomas Laurie, 271; Kenneth Wissner, 198; and Stanley Andrakowicz, 88.

A millage request for one-half mill for the Intermediate School District passed 232 yes, and 175 no, with 4 spoiled ballots.

Two minor transfer propositions to transfer the remains of two debt retirement funds into the 1987 consolidation debt passed 336 to 50.

Superintendent Allen Fennell said that the 75 St. Agatha students expected to transfer into the district's schools should not be a burden because of increased state aid allocated on a per-student basis.

He said two extra teachers would be hired if the new students transferred.

The board had previously expected to add a new elementary principal. Fennell said the salary for a new principal would depend largely upon the candidate's qualifications, but that

Rain and weevils bring 7th year of crop distress

Weevil infestation termed mild

BY RICHARD HAINES

A "gnawing" menace has crept into the heart of Michigan's dairyland. Mild infestation of the alfalfa weevil is reported prevalent throughout Sanilac County.

Area farmers have been bugged in recent years by the Mexican Bean Beetle, which has been controlled annually by spraying.

The Chronicle and Sanilac crop specialist Ed Strong investigated random fields in Sanilac county and found mild infestation throughout all fields inspected. Strong said they have been discovered in every field he has inspected in recent weeks.

Sanilac county has 90,000 acres of alfalfa and is the State's leading dairy county, strongly depending on alfalfa. The alfalfa weevil, termed by experts as the worst alfalfa pest in the U. S., can be largely terminated by spraying, however experts cite the total cost of such spraying as from $8 to $12 per acre.

Dairy partners Ron and Leon Chard, located about 3 miles south of Shabbona, were surprised, for example, to find their alfalfa infested with the dangerous green larvae, which later transform into weevils. They had read about its infestation in southeastern Michigan, they said, when last year it invaded 25 Michigan counties and was first discovered in Michigan in 1966.

The Chards have 100 acres of alfalfa and are prepared to start normal June cutting when weather permits. Extension agent Ed Strong urged them to cut as soon as possible to save the leaves of the plant which the larvae destroy and which constitute the most nutritive portion of the plant.

Strong said he was sending out special bulletins to all Sanilac dairy farmers on how to recognize and control the pest. He said the larvae hit the first stands of alfalfa the hardest and that cutting the crop controlled the larvae by controlling their food supply.

Dairymen Howard Hill and Elwood Morell, about 8 miles east of Cass City, were also astonished to find their crops infested.

Strong said most alfalfa was ready for cutting in the county, anyway, but that infested fields should be sprayed following cutting. Late treatment for the alfalfa weevil when the crop is in bloom only kills bees and gives no appreciable return for money spent on control.

To check infestation, he said farmers could pick ten random alfalfa stems from 5 different areas of the field (50 total stems) and then dissect the buds and stems from each. Farmers are encouraged to spray, he said, when from 15 to 25 tips of the samples show feeding by larvae.

Infestation is evidenced by tattered and silvered leaves, and later stunting of the plant. A stand of alfalfa heavily infested will be completely skeletonized.

Farmers pin hopes on late fall

Mild temperatures and lavish sunshine during the week restored countryside calm to area farmers after last week's off-and-on sequence of battering rainstorms.

However, the battering last week is only one of many area farmers have been subjected to throughout this spring.

Many have given up their hope of planting oats altogether, corn was delayed in most instances, and many are getting in beans, planted far past the recommended second week in June.

A further look back into recent crop years, however, shows that area cash croppers and dairymen haven't had what could be described as a normal crop season since almost 1962.

A period of roughly 1963 through 1966 brought extensive drought throughout the Thumb area, even to most of Tuscola County's clay-loam soils which have a sponge-like absorbance for retaining moisture.

But even harder hit during the drought was Sanilac County, the scene of an agricultural disaster program that offered cut-rate buys on surplus grains to stricken farmers to replenish hay, pasture, and silage shortages.

Many dairymen participated in the program because the feed and grain shortage threatened "bossy's" peak milk production in Sanilac County, Michigan's number one dairy county.

However the period of 1967 to the present brought on the exact opposite and farmers became plagued, not by drought, but by repeated drenchings. Hopes for a normal planting were drowned out as water-drenched fields and mushy clay-loam potholes delayed planting, causing planters to alter seed corn and other sowing to shorter maturity periods.

Soil specialist Don Kebler reported that Thumb under-lay clay subsoil compacted during the drought years. When hit with excessive moisture, he said, the clay layers, which normally act to hold a degree of moisture above them (an advantage during drought), absorbed much of the moisture, but in the process expanded spongelike because of movement and change, busted up soil capillaries, preventing the normal drainage of the excessive water.

"We are just beginning to get back to normal," he said, and untiled fields have a ways to go yet in developing capillary routes for excessive moisture to seep to underground water tables.

He said Sanilac county was affected more by the drought because of its lighter soils, which don't retain moisture as well.

One dairyman, Les Severance, located about 8 miles southeast of Cass City, reports that even during drought, field tilling helped develop capillary action to draw moisture upward from lower water tables, maintaining soil tilth.

Severance reported a good portion of their 260 acres of corn was planted in May, pre-

Supervisors in routine session

District Supervisor Ed Golding was appointed Tuesday by chairman, Harold Johnson, to arrange for a September meeting of the 7th District of county supervisors, in Tuscola County.

The quarterly meeting of county leaders includes supervisors of Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac, Lapeer, St. Clair, Oakland, Saginaw and Macomb Counties. Only one bid was received for an emergency vehicle for the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, that of Burton-Moore Ford for $3,360.

Supervisor Floyd Ducker presented a report on heating and electrical needs revealed in a preliminary investigation, showing limited capability of the county building's boiler with its expected life projected at less than five years.

He said heavy overloading of electrical circuits in the basement, because of expanded offices, is being rejuvenated but that over-all re-vamping of the building's wiring remained to be done. No costs or estimates were revealed and the supervisors took no action.

A special check lane crew of State Police issued a high number of tickets in Cass City Wednesday, June 4, when residents and travelers were checked for proper licenses and equipment on cars and motorcycles.

An abnormally high number of tickets were also issued throughout the area that account, in large part, for the total.

Minnie Amelia Hoppe of Cass City paid $15 fines and costs for driving on an expired operator's license (Jan. 17, 1969) in the village of Cass City.

Carl Acklin Crow of Cass City paid $15 fines and costs for using an expired driver's license (May 16, 1969) in Denmark Township June 7.

Leandra Gertrude Shantz of Gagetown paid $15 fines and costs for "failure to maintain equipment in proper condition."

She was ticketed by trooper Richard Miller June 4 in Cass City.

She paid an additional $15 for fines and costs for an expired driver's license (May 13, 1969).

Clara J. Seeley paid $15 fines and costs for an expired driver's license (June 7, 1968) in the village of Cass City on June 4, 1969.

She was ticketed by trooper Richard Miller of the Bad Axe post.

John Alden Asher of Cass City paid $103 fines and costs for reckless driving and not having operator's license on his person in the village of Cass City May 28.

He was ticketed by police chief Carl Palmateer.

Kenneth H. Bean of Cass City paid fines and costs of $35 for "minor transporting" on June 8 on Dupree Road in Ellington Township.

He was ticketed by deputy Larry Walker of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

Cyclist Robert Jaenicke of Saginaw paid fines and costs of $5 for failure to have a helmet on motorbike in the village of Kingston on May 23.

He was ticketed by trooper David Balash of the Bad Axe post.

Cyclist Wallace E. Curtis of Caro paid $10 fines and costs for not having a helmet on his motor cycle in the village of Kingston.

He was ticketed May 26 by Lyle G. Brockway.

William Francis Powell of Cass City paid $25 fines and costs for disregarding a stop sign at the junction of Grace and Humbarger in Elkland township. He was ticketed by trooper William Grace of the Bad Axe State Police post on May 26.

Harvey John Francis of DeFord paid $50 fines and costs for failure to stop in an assured clear distance ahead on May 22 on Cemetery Road.

The violation involved a mishap and Francis was ticketed by officer Paul Megge, deputy of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

Marlene Reive Brady of Cass City paid $30 fines and costs for violation of the speed limit (80 in a 45 MPH zone) in the village of Mayville.

She was ticketed May 26 by officer Hilton Sarles.

Robert Paul VanAllen of Caro paid $50 fines and costs for speeding 80 in a 55 zone in Elkland Township on M-81 on June 1.

He was ticketed by trooper Paul E. Cleaves of the Bad Axe post.

Douglas Gene Gray of Gagetown paid $15 fines and costs for unlawful usage of 1959 license plates.

He was ticketed May 23 by C. H. King, Gagetown constable.

Richard Clements Wasierski of Ubyly paid $20 fines and costs for speeding 65 in a nighttime zone of 55 MPH on M-81 in Elkland township.

He was ticketed by trooper David E. Coleman of the Bad Axe post.

Judge James Churchill presided Tuesday at Tuscola County's Circuit Court in Caro, sentencing a Millington man to Jackson Prison.

Mark Evans of Millington was sentenced for violation of probation when he pleaded guilty as a minor in possession and "being drunk on a public highway."

He was originally placed on probation for breaking and entering with intent to commit a larceny.

He was sentenced to Jackson Prison for 1 1/2 to 10 years and given credit for 75 days served during the disposition of the case.

Joseph Miceli was arraigned for larceny from a motor

Legion Auxiliary elects officers

Twenty-one were present Monday evening for the monthly meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Henry Cherry reported on the district meeting May 18 at Sebawaing and Mrs. Albert Keller Jr. reported on the district meeting June 8 at Yale. Mrs. Keller said that the seventh district is in second place in membership in the Department of Michigan and that 24 units in the seventh district are quota units.

She presented Mrs. Philip McComb, Auxiliary president, two citations for the unit for membership achievement.

District officers were elected at the Yale meeting and will be installed Aug. 10 at Reese.

Eugene Yorke of Richville is the new District commander and Mrs. Betty Cline of Port Huron is the new district Auxiliary president.

Officers to serve the Cass City Auxiliary for the coming year were elected Monday evening as follows: president, Mrs. Philip McComb for a second term; vice-president, Mrs. Vern McConnell; secretary, Mrs. William Anker; treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Little; chaplain, Mrs. Glenn McClorey; historian, Mrs. Cora Klinkman; and sergeant-at-arms, Miss Esther Buehly.

Executive board members will be Mrs. Garrison Stine, Mrs. Dorus Klinkman and Mrs. Keller.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served. The door prize went to Mrs. Vern McConnell.

Neither Kloc nor Laber were injured.

Deputy Larry Walker reported the tractor itself had a slow moving vehicle sign and a red light shining behind it, though the liquid fertilizer tank and drag behind the tractor had no lighting.

David Loren Crawford of DeFord claimed he was reaching for a cigarette lighter when he lost control of his auto on Cemetery Road one-half mile south of Kelly road on Sunday, June 8 at 4 a.m.

He was traveling north when the mishap occurred and his auto swerved sideways and rolled over.

Crawford was reported by Deputy Larry Walker to be uninjured.

Dwight Charles Gohsman of Vassar reportedly fell asleep at the wheel early Saturday evening, June 7, when he was traveling east on M-81 and struck the ditch one-half mile east of Scheigler Road.

Reported by Dr. Harry Crandell of Cass City, deputies Tesho and Gamet of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department investigated the accident, and reported the youth was taken to Hills and Dales Hospital for treatment.

Those students receiving aid from Michigan State University are Lynn Haire, Steve Hosner, John Novak, and Marilee Turner.

Sandra Schuette, Joan Orzel and Ellen Morgan received offers of financial aid from Central Michigan University.

Joan Orzel also received an offer of financial aid from Northern Michigan University.

William Spencer received a State of Michigan tuition grant and a scholarship award to attend Alma College.

Marsha Parrott has received financial aid to attend Oakland University.

Joe Mark and Gerald Mozen have received financial aid through Ferris State College.

Eileen Smith has received a grant to study at Huntington College in Indiana and Joyce Gordon has been awarded a scholarship by YFC as a winner in their Sweetheart Queen contest.

It is a high accolade.

Accident round-up

2 more Cemetery Rd. mishaps reported

Two auto mishaps occurred during the week on Cemetery Road, one a car-tractor collision and the other a car accident resulting from a driver reportedly reaching for something inside the car.

It was the second car-tractor collision in less than three weeks resulting from auto drivers claiming they did not see the slow-moving vehicle reflector on the tractors.

The two accidents further the statistical spiral of accidents on Cemetery road. There have been about 25 accidents on the road in the previous 15 months.

Robert Laber of Snover claimed he never saw any lights or reflectors on the tractor or fertilizer attachment belonging to Frank Kloc of DeFord when he collided with the tractor as they were both traveling northerly on Cemetery Road one-half mile north of Severance Road Sunday, June 8.

Neither Kloc nor Laber were injured.

Deputy Larry Walker reported the tractor itself had a slow moving vehicle sign and a red light shining behind it, though the liquid fertilizer tank and drag behind the tractor had no lighting.

David Loren Crawford of DeFord claimed he was reaching for a cigarette lighter when he lost control of his auto on Cemetery Road one-half mile south of Kelly road on Sunday, June 8 at 4 a.m.

He was traveling north when the mishap occurred and his auto swerved sideways and rolled over.

A carload of six youths escaped injury when they turned left into a driveway and was struck on the left side by Marie Anne Katharine Kurth of Oakland on Kingston Road one-quarter mile south of Mushroom Road.

The car of youths was driven by Roger Edsel Ford of Lapeer and five DeFord youths in his car included Carol Kinney, Ralph Kinney, Frank Brigham, Danney Brigham and Gary Brigham.

The mishap occurred as they were traveling north on Kingston Road on Saturday, June 7. The accident was investigated by Deputies Richard Hunt and David Mattlin of the Tuscola Sheriff's office.

Reported in "good condition" at Hubbard Memorial Hospital in Bad Axe is 13-year-old William J. Murdock Jr. who was struck by an auto while riding his bicycle along M-19, a mile south of Ubyly.

Gerald A. Reinelt, 51, of Snover, the driver of the car, told State Police from the Bad Axe Post that he came up behind the cyclist as both were headed north.

Reinelt said he sounded his horn and pulled to the left in an effort to pass the bicycle.

He said the bicycle rider also pulled to the left and struck the right side of his car just before the car left the road.

The boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Murdock Sr. of Ubyly.

Anita Nemeth of Cass City reportedly backed improperly from Leach Street in the village Wednesday, June 4, when she struck the car of James Robert Romain of Caro.

The left side of the Nemeth car was damaged. There were no injuries.

Several scholarships are awarded each year to graduating seniors by organizations within the community of Cass City.

This year the Rawson Foundation Scholarship was awarded to John Golding and the Walbro Corporation scholarship to George Mika.

The Business and Professional Women's club has awarded scholarships to Kaye Spencer and Karen Smith.

The Spanish Club scholarship has been awarded to Sandra Schuette and the Thelma Hunt Memorial scholarship has been awarded to Eileen Smith.

Hills and Dales Hospital awarded a three-year scholarship to Miss Ellen Morgan, a Cass City graduate from rural Snover, and a one-year scholarship to Joyce Seeley of Cass City to complete the second year of her nursing program at Delta.

Neil MacCallum turned down an offer of financial aid to accept an appointment to the Naval Academy.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

What's the best score for a round of golf ever shot by a woman?...

The Ladies PGA record for the best score on a regulation 18-hole course is held by Mickey Wright... Miss Wright set that record by shooting a 62... Not many men have ever done better.

Ever wonder which town in America has drawn the biggest baseball crowds in proportion to its population?...

Answer is Wellsville, N.Y., which was in the Class A New York-Pennsylvania League for many years...

Wellsville has a population of only 5,967 -- yet, they've drawn a total of 55,000 fans during a season to home games...

That's almost 11 times their population and would be equivalent to a New York City team drawing 88-million fans for one year!...

For the record, the most a New York City team has drawn in one year is just over 2-million.

What's the first time in history that an automobile went faster than a mile-a-minute?...

It happened in an auto race in Brooklyn in 1901 in a car driven by A.C. Bostwick... That was a fantastic speed in those days and drew headlines all over the country.

Dick Drews subscribes to the kick them when they are down, pour salt in the wounds school. Speaking without a shade of a grin he advised everyone in Rotary to play golf with Donald Crouse, Cass City School Superintendent, this year...and then quit while they are ahead.

After all, said Drews, he'll only be working half days next year and look at the time he'll have to practice.

One of the nicest features of the graduation Thursday night was the tribute to retiring Art Holmberg by Dr. Harold Spenberg, featured speaker.

He recalled Holmberg's work in education and asked for a round of applause for his efforts.

The result was a standing ovation that dwarfed that given any other speaker or the graduates themselves.

If you're looking for a way to get back to nature... away from it all... forget about a canoe trip on the AuSable River on a weekend in June.

There is more canoe traffic on the river than cars on Woodward Avenue.

Believe it or not there was a cop in the middle of the stream near Graying Saturday morning. A conservation officer and his assistant had donned waders and were standing in the middle of the stream. I thought they were directing traffic, but they weren't.

One officer checked safety equipment and the other seemed to be taking a traffic count of the hordes of canoes as they swept down the river.

We overheard Lynn Fuester remark that the price was up on the paper and then say that the Chronicle is more paper than it used to be.

It was a nice compliment and we are happy that someone noticed.

Just for fun (and a chance to boast a bit) we took the most recent two papers in June and compared them with the same two papers five years ago, the last time the subscription price was raised.

The news in the issues this year totaled 2,708 inches as compared to 1793 inches five years ago... an increase of one third.

There were 45 news pictures, not counting the 100 pictures of the graduating seniors, as compared to 26 in 1964.

And we like to feel that the quality was boosted with the quantity.

Flea Market termed success

Mrs. Dennis Rocheleau, program chairman, reported this week that the flea market sale held in Gagetown recently netted $200 for community projects.

Mrs. Rocheleau credited the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Densmore, who handled the details of the project, and Mrs. Joe Mosack, who donated the use of a building for the sale, for much of its success.

Provocative news.

Much of the news you'll read in The Cass City Chronicle may not delight you - - not because it isn't true, but because it is.

The larger your stake in what's going on, however, the more you need to know what all factions are saying or planning. . . and what the consequences are likely to be.

People of consequence read us not only to be entertained, or to find accord with their viewpoint, but to keep well informed. They use The Cass City Chronicle as a vantage point. . . a perspective on what's happening, good or bad.

You know all this of course. You and the more than 3,400 other families who buy and read The Cass City Chronicle each week.

APRIL 22, 1969

Meeting of the Tuscola County Board of Supervisors held April 22, 1969.
Meeting called to order by Chairman Harold E. Johnson with all members present.
Clerk read the minutes of the last meeting and were approved.
Chairman Johnson dispensed with the regular order of business and took up the matter of County Equalization and the meeting with the Township Supervisors. All Supervisors were present.
Supervisor Golding presented the following Equalization report for 1969.

SEE TABLE ABOVE

Moved by Golding supported by Kirk the report be accepted and approved. With a roll call vote as follows: Yes: Loomis, Graf, Golding, Ducker, Johnson, Kirk, and Woodcock; No: None. Motion carried by unanimous vote.

Supervisor Golding gave a report on the East Michigan Economic Development District.

Supervisor Woodcock made a report on the Saginaw River Flood Control meeting.

Chairman Johnson called a recess.

AFTERNOON SESSION—APRIL 22, 1969

Meeting called to order by Chairman Johnson with quorum present.

Prosecuting Attorney James J. Epskamp came before the Board and discussed the matter of a opinion on the Court Clerk.

Mr. Hamilton from Motorola came before the Board in regard to County radio's multiple band and frequencies in the Sheriff Department.

Supervisor Woodcock presented the following report:

Mr. Chairman:

Honorable Board of Supervisors:

Your Committee for Building and Grounds and Sheriff Committees recommend that the Sheriff Department be authorized to purchase two Multi-Band Motorola radio's to be installed in the Sheriff Department new cruisers being purchased. The old single band radios being taken out of present cruisers be allocated to Coroners as authorized by previous motion of this Board. New radios to be charged to capital items in the 1969 budget.

Signed: John F. Loomis

Floyd Ducker

Donald Graf

Moved by Ducker supported by Graf the report be accepted and approved. Motion carried by unanimous vote.

Supervisor Golding presented the following rules and regulations:

RULES FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF TUSCOLA COUNTY, MICHIGAN

Rule 1. The Chairman shall take the Chair each day at the hour to which the Board shall have adjourned. He shall call the Board to order, and if a quorum (4) be present he shall proceed to business in the manner prescribed by these rules.

Rule 2. He shall preserve order and may speak on points of order in preference to other members, and shall decide questions of order subject to an appeal of the Board.

Rule 3. He shall appoint all committees, except when the Board shall otherwise order.

Rule 4. He shall vote on all elections or divisions called for by any member, and on all questions taken by yeas and nays, except on appeals from his own decisions.

Rule 5. Upon the announcement by the Clerk that a quorum is present, the journal of the preceding day shall be read, unless otherwise ordered by the Board, and any mistakes therein corrected.

Rule 6. The Clerk shall make up and complete the journal of the Board in conformity with the rules and keep the several orders of business separate.

Rule 7. On the meeting of the Board after adopting the journal of the preceding day the order of business shall be as follows:

1st--Presentations of Petitions.

2nd--Reports of Standing Committees.

3rd--Reports of Special Committees.

4th--Communications.

5th--Notices.

6th--Motions and Resolutions.

7th--Unfinished Business.

8th--New Business.

9th--Special Order of the Day.

10th--Adjournment.

Rule 8. When any member is about to speak in debate or present any matter to the Board he shall rise from his seat and respectfully address himself to "Mr. Chairman". He shall confine himself to the question and avoid personalities.

Rule 9. If any member in speaking, violates the Rules of the Board, the Chairman shall, or any member of the Board may call him to order, in which case the member so called to order shall immediately sit down, and shall not rise unless to explain or proceed in order. In which case he shall first obtain recognition from the Chairman.

Rule 10. When two or more members rise at once, the Chairman shall name the member who is first to speak.

Rule 11. When the Board adjourns the members shall keep their seats until the Chairman announces the adjournment.

Rule 12. While the Chairman is putting any question, or while the roll is being called by the Clerk, no member shall walk out of or across the house, or when a member is speaking, shall not entertain private discourse, or pass between the speaker and the Chair.

Rule 13. When the motion is made and seconded, it shall be stated by the Chair or being in writing it shall be handed to the Chair and read aloud by the Clerk before being debated.

Rule 14. Every motion shall be reduced to writing, if the chairman or any member shall request it, and shall be entered upon the journal together with the name of the member making it, unless withdrawn or ruled out of order by the Chair.

Rule 15. After a motion has been stated by the Chair or read by the Clerk, it shall be deemed to be in the possession of the Board, but may be withdrawn at any time before a decision or amendment.

Rule 16. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but the following, and they shall have precedence in the order in which they stand arranged to wit:

1st--To Adjourn.

2nd--To lay on the table.

3rd--For the previous question.

4th--To postpone to a day certain.

5th--To refer.

6th--To amend.

7th--To postpone indefinitely.

And no motion to postpone to a day certain, to commit or to postpone indefinitely being decided shall be again allowed on the same day, and at the same stage of the question.

Rule 17. A motion to adjourn shall always be in order, that and the motion to lay upon the table, shall be decided without debate.

Rule 18. Any member who voted on the side of the question which prevailed may move for the reconsideration thereof in the same, or next succeeding day, and such motion shall take precedence over all other questions, except a motion to adjourn, but shall not be voted on the same day.

Rule 19. The first named member of any committee shall be chairman, unless the committee by a majority of their members shall elect a chairman.

Rule 20. Upon the submission of a motion, resolution or a nomination the vote shall be taken by one of the following methods:

By ballot, by voice or by calling the roll provided however, that the vote on all motions or resolutions for the purpose of appropriating funds shall be by "calling the roll" provided further that all motions and resolutions not receiving an unanimous vote, the yeas and nays by name shall be entered upon the journal, provided further that all elections shall be by ballot.

Rule 21. No standing or special committee of this Board shall be convened at county expense, between sessions, except by and with the approval of the chairman of the Board, and all committees so convened shall file an itemized statement of time and expense with the County Clerk for submission to the committee on County Officers Claims.

Rule 22. Any rule of the Board may be altered or amended by a vote of a majority of the members elect, or may be suspended by a vote of two-thirds of the members present or temporarily suspended by a vote of three-fourths of the members voting.

MILLAGE VOTES

it would be roughly $10,000 annually.

Fennell said teacher turnover this year was very light with one teacher retiring, the loss of a librarian, a junior high science teacher, and a commercial teacher. He said the commercial teacher vacancy had been filled, that the pressing needs that remained were for a math-science teacher or with qualifications for coaching football.

He said he hoped an English and librarian oriented individual could fill a vacancy left by the out-going librarian.

Fennell said the millage renewal will allow curriculum improvements in the areas of art, the requirement of physical education, sociology, speech, second year drawing, and possibly forensics and debate.

Asked about the school's immediate future, he said, "I say it looks pretty good, as long as we can continue to make improvements." He said he was pleased with the millage renewal and hoped it allowed the school to maintain itself "in the black."

OwenGage's three year teacher contract expires this year and he said vacations of involved personnel have only allowed them to have about two meetings so far.

He said "the next two meetings" should indicate whether or not the negotiations will be prolonged.

MILLAGE VOTES

A round-up of millage propositions indicates that Cass City's millage vote was in line with other narrow successes and failures in the area with five propositions passed and five defeated.

Coinciding with Cass City's defeat were those of Akron-Fairgrove, which lost a 4.5 mill levy 328 to 274; Uby, which lost a requested 6.95 mills for two years with a vote 354 to 320; Mayville, which lost 411 to 281, and Vassar, which lost 383 to 252.

Districts with favorable votes included Caro, with three mills for one year with a vote 707 to 629; Owen-Gage with three mills for three years, 230 to 172; Lakers with 3 1/2 mills for three years, 504 to 313; Unionville-Sebewaing with 6.25 mills for one year, 614 to 401; Kingston which passed 171 to 161, and Millington which passed three mills for one year, 270 to 130.

County Clerk Archie Hicks indicated that residents from Akron-Fairgrove and Mayville had called the county clerk's office for information about a new special election at the earliest possible time.

Gagetown Council Proceedings

A regular meeting of the council was held June 3, 1969 at 7:30 p.m. 8 councilmen present.

Mr. Kent, our attorney, Mr. Kesey, FHA supervisor, John Hill of Hill & Thomas contractors, were present along with Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Parker and Mrs. Joe Salcido.

A motion by England and supported by Comment to allow Hill & Thomas until June 9, 1969 without penalty, after that there will be a penalty of one hundred dollars per day, ($100.00) including clean-up, all trenches to be filled and packed, exclusive of blacktopping. Roll call vote. Stapleton, yes; England, yes; Burdon, yes; Deering, yes; Comment, yes; Polk, yes.

A motion by Stapleton to have Harold Goslin repair and tar the roof of the municipal building at the approximate cost of one hundred twenty dollars, ($120.00). Supported by Comment. Carried 6 votes.

A motion by Burdon and supported by Comment to pay FHA the interest due July 1, 1969 in the amount two thousand six hundred fifty-five dollars, ($2655.00). Carried 6 votes.

A motion by Comment and supported by Stapleton to pay Frank Strausberg & Son Inc., from major street funds, six thousand and one hundred ten dollars and sixty cents, ($6110.60) for asphalt paving on 4th Street, Lincoln Street, north to 50 ft north of A Street, and East State Street from the railroad east to Dodge Rd. (These are all major streets). Carried 6 votes.

A motion to adjourn. Carried

Signed Leota Ashmore, clerk.

Teachers-school still far apart

Negotiators inch forward in amiable session Wednesday

Maybe it was because it was the last day of school and the teachers and the school representatives were in a gay mood.

Maybe after the previous head knocking session, both sides were treading the bargaining waters warily.

But whatever the reason, the bargaining between the Cass City Chapter of the MEA union and the Cass City School District was more harmonious than previous discussions and the two sides even inched towards an agreement on a couple of the many issues that are holding up a new master contract.

True, the agreement is strictly tentative and still subject to change or even total withdrawal...but in light of the hard line stands by each side at previous sessions, it was a ray of light in a very dark room.

Al Luce, negotiator for the school, allowed as if some consideration might be given to grant more increment pay for experience of teachers representing in the system. (The district now allows up to 5 years). Of course, Luce continued, we'll have to take a long look at the economic ramifications, before coming up with any definite proposal.

Jim MacTavish, chief teacher negotiator, said that if there were consideration for transferring teachers, it might just be possible to get an early notification by teachers not returning to the system written into next year's contract.

Another pleasant chat between the two bargaining bodies followed the presentation of the school calendar for 1969-70. Students can look for much the same schedule next year as was followed in the school year just completed. Supt. Donald Crouse said that he wanted to wait for adoption until he could correlate Cass City's schedule with the remainder of the county.

But little difficulty is expected by either side on the adoption of the school's calendar.

Today (Thursday) was to have been the deadline day for negotiations until late in August for the teachers, according to a notification presented several weeks ago to school authorities. But in a last minute revision, the teachers agreed to a day-long session Friday in an attempt to reach agreement before the summer adjournment.

Judging by previous sessions, it is hard to imagine that the hard core issues facing the school and the teachers will be solved in the last crash bargaining session.

Final Pony loop sign-up set

Bob Alexander, league manager, issued a final call to boys 13 years old and older to join the Cass City Pony League this week at the final sign-up Thursday night at the Cass City Recreational Park.

Again this year, Alexander said, there will be two teams playing in Cass City.

Weather permitting: pool opens

Cass City youngsters are keeping a weather eye out at the municipal pool these days because the word is out - if the weather is favorable it will be open Saturday night. If not open Saturday, rain or shine, the facility moves into full operation Monday under the direction of Miss Ann Sheppard.

Children should be prepared for the same schedule this summer as was in effect in 1968. That means that free swim will be from 2 to 4 p.m. and pay-to-swim from 4 to 6 p.m.

Last year, crowded conditions during peak days during the free swim period forced authorities to break the swimmers into two groups for shorter swimming periods.

Something new has been added to the swimming schedule this year.

In an effort to make the pool more attractive to adults, an evening schedule has been arranged stressing family and adult participation.

Monday, Tuesday and Friday from 7 to 9 p.m. the pool will be open to all. Thursday night from 7:30 to 8:30 has been reserved for family swimming. It will be adults only from 8:30 to 9 p.m., following the family swim period.

Recreation events told by Woody

Tom Woody, recreation director, announced this week that the summer recreation program is open with most of the facilities ready for area residents.

He said that horseshoes, badminton, volleyball and archery are offered.

Special features of the program will include free movies on the tennis courts. The first is scheduled Wednesday, June 25, when Fred MacMurray will be starred in the "Absent-Minded Professor."

Free dances will be scheduled and other activities announced in the near future, Woody concluded.

Farm dilemma: rain, weevils

RAIN

marily because of effective tilling. He said, "We would rather have too much, than too little, moisture." The only way off-and-on rains can hurt us, is by its hampering haymaking, he said.

However, James McIntosh, 280 acre dairyman located about 7 miles southeast of Cass City, tells a different story. He has limited tilling. He still has 70 acres of beans to plant.

The recent three years of excessive moisture has discouraged normal crop plantings. His limited tilling has allowed him to get some of his corn in on time, but some got in late. He still has 70 acres of beans to plant.

Last year was worse, he said, and they didn't get in corn until around July 4. He said field tilling, some of which has cost him $115 per acre (after a portion of it was government subsidized) has definitely helped but he added, "If I had to till all of it, I'd quit first."

He said the excessive moisture has been felt financially. Floyd Kennedy, Evergreen supervisor, projects a possible hay shortage this year and perhaps even a more critical one next year.

Alfalfa clover, and brome seed, often planted with oats but not harvested until the following year, didn't get planted in some cases, he said, because the excessive moisture prevented the early April planting which oats require.

Last fall, area farmers were blessed with a mild fall with a late frost, which made up for the late plantings in achieving a full growing season. Providing most climatic conditions hold steady, most farmers are hoping for the same pattern this year.

However, if an early frost hits, it's going to be nipping pocketbooks as well as crops.

WEEVIL

The pest thrives in hot weather, laying from 300 to 700 eggs during its lifetime of one year. The young larvae feed first on the bud, and as they grow, move to the young leaves. They also eat clover and some types of beans.

The pest is a native of Europe discovered in the U. S. in 1904. In southern states burning fields in early spring exterminated them; however, Michigan winters are expected to significantly aid in their control.

Eggs of the weevil (Hypera postica) are reportedly abundant during May and early June and its larvae from mid-May to late June. The pupae occurs during June to early July, and the new adults emerge during mid-June to late July, eventually overwintering.

The larvae are about 1/20 inch long and white to yellowish-white in color. As they grow, they turn green and acquire a single white stripe along the top of their backs. Their heads are black and the larvae is 3/8 inch long when mature. The adult weevils are about one-quarter inch long with a slender snout and are usually brown, darkening with age.

Experts cite that additional costs and work involved in control of the alfalfa weevil have made alfalfa growing unprofitable in areas of low yield in other states. It is expected that a yearly yield of at least two and one-half tons of hay per acre will be needed to justify added expense of alfalfa weevil control in Michigan.

Authorities caution against panic in decisions to switch to other crops, however, as many have been also unsatisfactory.

Extensionist Ed Strong encouraged the purchase of rubber gloves, clothing and mask in spraying for the pest. He said two sprays were advisable, including Malathion costing 50 cents per acre in application and Methoxychlor which costs $3 per acre, which though more effective, is also more dangerous.

He said forward looking farmers must never be satisfied with the status quo. They can't go many years without expansion, he said, or else they will find themselves behind.

He emphasizes the wise use of credit for gradual, orderly expansion. He said that high property values for farmers desiring to sell in 5 to 10 years is becoming a "matter of whether or not they can hang on."

Bob said that government programs have only helped the large or corporate farm and not the family farm for which they were intended, and which still provide the bulk of agricultural production.

He added that the family farm is unique as a "competitive economic model" in terms of its "economies of scale."

When the college grad returns home for a week end, he is quick to accept the tractor seat and head for the fields. It is the farm he has helped work throughout his boyhood. "I still enjoy farming," he said. His father has adopted Bob's ideas for high moisture shelled corn and his specifications for dairy feed rations.

And with each home visit, his younger brother, Dave, always bargains him with questions on the farm's operations, options in land and equipment, new possibilities and new horizons.

"He's a progressive thinker," said Bob.

Armed with the counsel of his older brother, Dave then presses his father with questions on "doing this, or why we shouldn't do that."

His younger brother, just a high school senior, has recently built a mechanical device for attaching a planter behind a cultivator, saving a once-over on fields being planted.

The invention has become an exciting attraction on the Milligan farm, of late, and neighbor farmers are exhibiting keen interest in the machine. Bob plans graduate work this summer at MSU, possibly followed up, he said, "by a doctorate at Purdue or Cornell."

And followed up also, he later added, by the time he'll spend with his fiancée, also enrolled at MSU.

Giants from winning the Little League championship this year.

They raced to a two-game lead over the second place Yanks Tuesday night with a 10-2 victory as Jerry Toner pitched two-hit ball and whiffed 12.

The Giants are undefeated and there are just four games left in the regular season.

The closest any team has come to upsetting them was the Cubs. With Gibbas on the mound they made a battle of it before bowing, 4-2, Toner outdueled Gibbas.

The Giants took the measure of the Tigers and the Pirates behind the hurling of Rick Selby. In the 16-2 decision over the Pirates, Ed Stoutenburg crashed a round tripper.

The Tigers bowed 27-1 as Jerry Toner hit a home run and Craig Helwig smashed out a pair of circuit clouts.

In one of the closer games of the season, the Yanks defeated the Orioles, 7-6, sparked by a pair of home runs by Jimmy Root. The winning pitcher was Phil Bader.

PROTESTS SEX

Mrs. Bruce Gee carried her campaign to kill the proposed sex education course in the schools before the board Monday. She wants the complete program printed in the paper and the parents to have a look at a film describing the program now before the program is developed further.

Mrs. Bernard Freiburger said that Mrs. Gee was protesting too soon. All of the suggestions will be implemented before the program starts, board members explained, and no child will be forced to attend the program when and if it is offered here.

In last year's summer reading program there were some 60 students enrolled. Because the complete cost, $26, is now paid by the parent, the number enrolled has dropped to 24, Mrs. Freiburger explained to the board.

C. C. H. S.

Summer at last! C.C.H.S. finally closed its doors to students Friday noon.

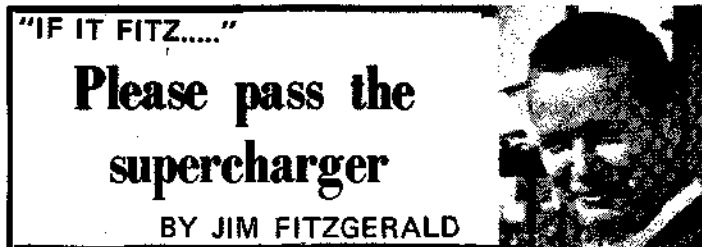

During the last week of school at C.C.H.S. it was advisable for those in the school building to wear rain coats due to much precipitation in the halls. (From water balloons and squirt guns.) In the midst of all this celebrating students actually took final exams on Tuesday and Wednesday. These second semester exams are often a hindrance to the semester averages because students usually don't care about grades during the last few weeks of school.

Thursday school was closed to allow teachers time for checking lengthy exams, averaging marks, filling out report cards and records, and completing other necessary "tid bits."

Thursday evening marked the end of 104 students' high school days. Many of the graduates were rejoicing while others cried. Graduation night is truly one of mixed emotions--sorrow at leaving friends, happiness because school is over, and excitement in the anticipation of the future.

Along with Friday morning came the results of not studying during the last weeks of school when students returned to school to pick up their report cards and headaches for seniors who partied all night.

School ended this year much the same as it has ended for many years, but when it reopens in the fall C.C.H.S. will have lost some old friends, Mr. Orion Cardew and Mr. Arthur Holmberg, and it will be the year of "The Class of '70."

BY JIM FITZGERALD

You know those people who give their summer cottages cutesy-cutesy names, such as "Her-Nan-Do's Hideaway" (his name is HERBERT, her name is NANCY, the dog's name is DOODLE and their guests sleep in lumpy hideaway beds). Every syllable has a double meaning and before you finish reading all the hilariously sweet signs in the front yard, your eyelids have sugared shut and you must be guided to the guest bathroom where a Bucolic Bazzooms joke book hangs from the ceiling.

Well, I've discovered how these people make a living. They own restaurants built around one central idea, a charming theme which must be followed throughout every phase of operation, from curb to kitchen. If the name of the place is Hansel & Gretel's Cafeteria, the only way you can find an exit is by following bread crumbs.

Such a place recently opened in Detroit, across from the Fisher Theatre. Owned by a car-racing nut, it is called The Steering Wheel. The entire front is painted black and white to look like the starter's checkered flag. My hick wife thought it was a Purina feed store.

Waiting at the pit stop to park your car are 2 men dressed in racing togs and crash helmets. I screeched to a stop, gunned my motor and said, "You have 32 seconds to change all 4 tires and check the carburetor. I am still 2 laps behind Mario and Barbara Stanwyck is waiting to kiss the winner."

Inside, everything and everybody is checked or striped. The waitresses, so help me, are called superchargers. I got a super charge out of their fender skirts.

You've seen piano bars, where the drinkers sit around a piano and tell Sam to play it again. The Steering Wheel has a car bar. The drinkers sit around a huge racing car, one of those Grand Prix things, I guess. The car doesn't do anything, not even idle a little. It just sits there and the people sit there and look at it. I wonder who will be the first drunk to drive it home?

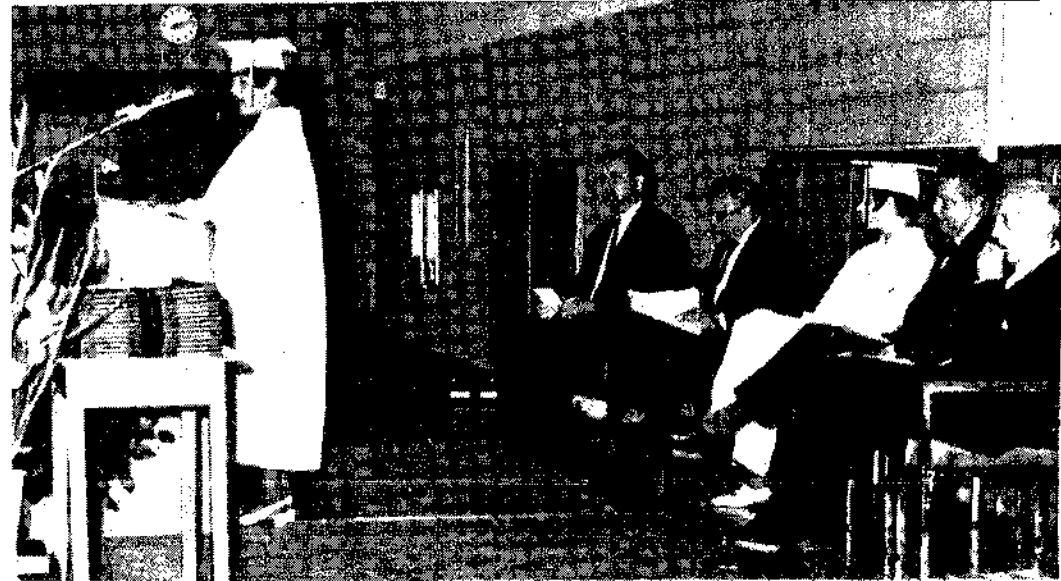

The menu, of course, offers food by laps, not courses. First lap, soup; second lap, salad; and so on. I kept looking for something like: "Our chicken freshly run over by new Fords on paved roads."

Our supercharger confided that the Pope had done her out of a good thing. Before he put the whammy to all those saints, she used to sell St. Christopher waters to nervous diners who needed courage before taking the far turn around the hot rolls and heading into the meat lap.

I heard the chef uses a hydraulic lift to frost upside down cake. Anyway, the food was splendid and the prices reasonable. All in all it was an interesting evening and I came away with a new ambition. Some day I want to own a restaurant with a newspaper theme.

For years, wise guys have been telling me newspapers are good for only 2 things - wrapping fish and training dogs. I will have a special dish and a special restroom for these jokers. Onward and Upward.

THE SALUTATORY was presented by Marilee Turner. Others on the program at the speakers' platform, from left, were: Jerry Cleland, Dr. Harold Sponberg, Sandra Schuette, Supt. Donald Crouse and Principal Arthur Holmberg.

SENIORS MARCHED triumphantly through arches of flowers to their seats of honor Thursday night during graduation proceedings.

Delayed jet and top space officials

By Richard Haines

The license of the photographer in taking such liberties is as great, it sometimes seems, as the glamor he can bring the subjects photographed. And the more the glamor of the event, the more a cameraman can put his subjects to task in claiming perfection.

And photographers can be a nuisance La Grand when they move in close to the front of the parade, or nose in and around police and firemen at a disaster.

The best photographers I have known never compromise what could be a good shot. Conditions and equipment tell him how to shoot, but he alone must make the demands upon others, but especially himself, to achieve excellence.

Never having worked for metropolitan dailies, I've never been in the pushing and shoving with the "big city" noses for news.

The biggest wheel I ever photographed was James Webb, who until recently was head of the U. S. space effort. I nabbed him when he arrived at an airport and was walking into the airfield to board his group's private jet.

He agreed to talk just a bit. The jet engines were running, the air strip waiting, and his staff of about 10 U. S. scientists and engineers marched in behind him.

Unruffled at this momentary cost to U. S. taxpayers, I wrestled questions and answers with him about ten minutes and then took a photograph of him with a couple others.

Still, the most touching episode I've witnessed or read about was an actual magazine photographer. It showed a picture of a camera lying in Vietnam mud, a bullet hole straight through the center of the lens. The photographer had been focusing on a gunner, and it was a 35 mm that you hold in front of your head to aim with.

The things photographers get into, puts them I think, in a brash class all their own.

My observation is that the restrained and inhibited never produce photos in the cream of photo history.

Forcing people into sitting,

standing, positioning and perching themselves unnaturally requires courage often in wanting, at least for many.

And the anxiety of the subjects as they gawk at you is matched only by your own at having the eyes of an additional audience upon you.

I think being a relaxed "subject" must be the ultimate test of a true gentleman. A person who can be himself (or at least appear so) while being harassed by a photographer, is a real plum.

On the other hand, there are those who fret and stiffen up and who gaze half frozen-like at the motions and instructions of the cameraman.

"Where do you want me to look," they ask. "What shall I do with my hands?"

To get a balanced and unified photo, I think a cameraman has to be a breed of savage pest.

"This way a little more, please, closer together, turn this way please."

I was once asked if I liked

"giving orders like that," and I mocked that it depended who it was. Now for instance if it was my boss, . . .

Final rites today for Mrs. R. Russell

Mrs. Rose Russell passed away Monday evening at the home of her stepdaughter near Cass City. She was born in New York City April 9, 1879.

Mrs. Russell and the late Will Russell were married at Caro in 1934. He died August 2, 1965. Surviving are: one stepdaughter, Mrs. William Roiston of Cass City; one stepson, Will Russell of Gagetown; one sister, Mrs. Bertha Wilson of Palm Spring, Calif.; one brother, Sherman Bye of Cass City; 11 step-grandchildren, and eight step-great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Hunter Funeral Home Thursday, June 12, at 1:30 p.m. Officiating will be Inez Giesek of Lansing.

Burial will be in Elmwood cemetery.

Caro State Hospital cited as inadequate

BAD QUARTERS

Dilapidated buildings and patient overcrowding have been uncovered in a comprehensive survey of Michigan's far-flung state-operated mental health facilities.

Some structures were described as "firetraps," and a 95-year-old building at the Kalamazoo State Hospital was found to contain no heat or electricity in patients' rooms.

Survey results were released by Director William H. Anderson of the State Mental Health Department and Gov. William G. Milliken.

"Michigan's state hospitals for the mentally ill and state institutions for the retarded are housing a majority of their patients in obsolete and inadequate buildings," Dr. Anderson reported.

"Equally important, though less apparent, is the fact that many buildings are overcrowded with patients," he said.

Milliken, who ordered an immediate inventory of mental health facility needs for 1970-71 budget purposes, told of visiting the Pontiac State Hospital and finding certain conditions deplorable.

"I saw some patients housed in antiquated buildings with rooms which lack electricity and get only the heat that comes from the corridors," the Governor said.

Dr. Anderson said state facilities for the mentally retarded now house 2,500 patients more than state fire marshal standards permit, representing "overcrowding of serious proportions."

Conditions were described as poorest at the Lapeer, Caro, Coldwater and Fort Custer State Homes. At Lapeer, Dr. Anderson said, many buildings now in use are dilapidated beyond repair and should be razed. "Lapeer has a resident population 60 per cent (1,190 patients) above permissible fire safety standards," the director added.

"At Caro overcrowding is more than 32 per cent, at Coldwater nearly 40 per cent, and the age and condition of the buildings in use are comparable to many of those at Lapeer."

Dr. Anderson said plans are under way to close the Fort Custer Home but that it will be nearly five years before evacuation can be completed.

The survey showed, Dr. Anderson said, that facilities at the state mental hospitals are also unacceptable, though overcrowding is not a major problem. New treatment techniques and improved staffing resulted in a 60 per cent patient load reduction and elimination of some obsolete buildings over the past six years.

Irvine Striffler dies in Ohio

Funeral services were held Monday for Irvine Albert Striffler, 63, of Marysville, Ohio, a past resident of Cass City.

He died June 5 and his burial will be at Marysville.

He is a retired chemist and director of the control laboratory of Nestle Corp.

His father was George Albert Striffler and his mother the former Cora Bell Benkelman, both deceased.

He is survived by his wife Mary Janski, and a daughter, Mary Ann, at home.

NOT SINCERE
The leaders of most nations are willing to smoke the peace pipe, but none want to inhale.

The hospitals at Kalamazoo, Pontiac and Traverse City—Milliken's hometown—were singled out in the report for deteriorating physical facilities.

Dr. Anderson said of the 7,000 patients in these hospitals, less than 40 per cent are housed in buildings constructed since 1910. He said some 3,000 are in buildings opened between 1875 and 1900.

"One of the buildings constructed at Kalamazoo in 1874 is still occupied," Dr. Anderson said. "It has no heat or electricity in patients' rooms."

It was noted that Newberry State Hospital, opened in 1895, has had only one new building for mentally ill patients since 1917.

By comparison, Dr. Anderson said, the other state mental hospitals—Hawthorn Center, Lafayette Clinic, Ionia, Northville and Ypsilanti—are in acceptable condition.

Dr. Anderson said costly new construction will be needed in the years ahead to solve the problem. He said current plans call for retardation centers in Wayne County, Oakland-Macomb Counties, Flint and Kalamazoo to handle patients now located at Fort Custer.

Milliken said he has assigned mental health construction a "high priority" in his 1970-71 capital outlay budget that will be submitted to the Legislature next January.

THE CHRONICLE

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ed Doolittle told the fellers at the country store Saturday night he felt like the feller that didn't know nothing, didn't believe nothing and spent his hole life arguing about it. When he died, Ed allowed, about all they could say fer him was that he shore could emphasize the negative.

Ed said he had thought it up one side and down the other and he don't see much hope fer man in this old world. Ed said he is agreed with Mark Twain that God made man cause he was disappointed with the monkey.

What has got him emphasizing the negative so strong, Ed allowed, was all this mess about Supreme Court Judge Fortas. It's hard enuff to git folks to respect the law under the best conditions, said Ed, but when you git doubt cast on a judge in the highest court in the land, it ain't no wonder so many people is thumbing their noses at the law.

When you git right down to it, man's law based on God's law is about the only hope we got, was Ed's words. He said we got 25 million laws in this country trying to enforce the Ten Commandments, and folks still figger ways to break the commandments legal. Ed said the longer he lives the more he's convinced the oldest perfession ain't what people say. Ed was of the opinion the oldest perfession is lawyers, cause that chas the Bible says was here in the beginning had to come from somewhere.

You can start with one good law and one smart lawyer, and by the time the lawyer slices the law up in a dozen "interpretations" all you got left is one smart lawyer, declared Ed. And to put the stopper in the jug, it's the lawyers that make the laws in the first place.

Ed said the Lord's Prayer has got 56 words, the Ten Commandments 297 and the Declaration of Independence 300. Going in June, the U.S. Congress had filled 25,000 pages with words on laws, changes in laws and "extensions of remarks" since the middle of January.

Actual, Ed said, troubles we are having with laws, lawyers and judges is jest signs of deeper troubles. We got a Congress making and changing laws so fast nobody can't keep up, and we got folks setting up nights figgering ways to git over, under, around and through laws that don't let 'em do what they want to do.

Mister Editor, the fellers was general agreed with Ed that folks got the idee they got a right to break laws they can't bend to suit theirselves. It were Bug Hookum that said putting Judge Fortas on the spot at least shows plain folks in this country still got somepun to say about how their country is run.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Mrs. Lorenz Bauer III

Susan Meissner and Lorenz Bauer III exchanged nuptial vows Saturday, June 7, at St. Peter and Paul church at Ruth, Michigan.

The Rev. John Rushman officiated at the 10 o'clock wedding Mass for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Meissner of Minden City and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz Bauer Jr., of Cass City.

The bride wore a gown of silk organza lined with satin, trimmed with lace and pink velvet ribbon graced with a lace trimmed train and a floor length veil.

Mary Jo Meissner, sister of the bride of Bay City, was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Patricia and Clara Bauer of Cass City and Marge Meissner of Port Huron. Julie Meissner, sister of the bride, was the flower girl.

Ron Fryer of Oscoda was the best man. Groomsmen were John Brown of Turner, Michigan, Ken Eisinger of Cass City and John Meissner of Minden City. Herbie Meissner was the ring bearer.

A reception for approximately 300 guests was held at the Verona Hills Golf Course Club House, Verona, Mich.

Following a wedding trip through upper Michigan the couple will live at Mount Pleasant, where the groom is a senior at Central Michigan University and the bride is a legal secretary.

Holbrook Baptists slate services

Mr. and Mrs. Lester C. Place, musical Evangelists of Spring City, Pennsylvania, will conduct a series of services in message and music at the Holbrook Baptist Church, located on Germania Road, one mile south of Bay City—Forestville Road, Cass City, Wednesday through Sunday, June 18-22, at 7:30 p. m., the Rev. Milton R. Gelatt has announced.

SerVICES shall convene with an inspirational song service led by Mr. Place with his wife accompanying at the piano, followed by well-known hymns and gospel songs played on the marimba, bells, saxophone, electric steel guitar and triple octave chimes. The latter instrument is an antique and one of the few still in existence in this country.

Gospel messages by Evangelist Place at each service will be supplemented with hand painted Skenofelts and 16 MM colored film.

A sacred concert will be presented Saturday evening.

Acts 2:1-13

Acts 2:14-21

Acts 3:1-10

Acts 3:11-26

Acts 4:1-12

Acts 4:13-22

Today it's just a skeleton against the sky. But tomorrow people will live in it, and it will become a home. Within its walls, the pattern of life will be carried out.

But will this be enough? As a home, will this house stand or fall as the years pass? Will the people who live in it develop into better, stronger human beings? Or will they acquire selfishness, greed, indifference, conceit?

Remember the foolish man who built his house on sand, only to have the rains wash it away, and the wise man who built his house permanently on a rock? The future of this house—the future of a home—depends upon its foundation.

In the story, the "rock" symbolizes the Church. Those who build their faith upon its foundation will take into their homes the strength to keep them standing, regardless of what life may bring.

Agent's Corner

By Mrs. Ann Ross
Extension Agent

Meat prices are soaring -- but there are ways to economize without losing valuable protein.

The first place to start is by buying cheaper cuts of meat, for example - liver and beef heart. Both are just as protein-rich as a serving of T-bone steak, but can be purchased at a fraction of the cost.

Another way to stretch the food dollar is to use bread and cereal as meat extenders. Surprisingly, bread and cereal products are good sources of protein when combined with a small amount of meat or milk. And the cheaper cuts of meat such as hamburger or stew meat work well in main dish casseroles.

There is also room for economizing within the meat group itself. The meat group includes eggs, dried beans and peas, nuts, as well as meat, fish and poultry. And they all provide substantial amounts of protein. Two eggs, one cup of dried cooked peas or beans, or four tablespoons of peanut butter have the same amount of protein as a two-ounce serving of meat.

Try economizing within the meat substitute group. For example, canned mackerel costs about half as much as canned salmon - but both make good-tasting fish loaves. And a delicious chowder can be made from cod fish, another inexpensive fish. Don't throw that ham bone away. Split pea soup or baked beans are two protein-rich main-stays that often begin with a ham bone.

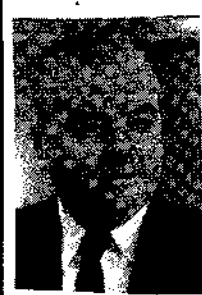

Still another way to cut costs is to reduce serving sizes. The recommended meat serving necessary to provide needed protein is four to five ounces daily. Despite the increasing meat prices some homemakers are still serving this amount or more at each meal to their families.

Don't forget, protein also comes from the other food groups. If you're eating a balanced diet almost half of your protein comes from the milk and bread groups. To cut costs, careful selection is essential. Less expensive foods can be as protein-rich as more expensive meat cuts.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Sam: a horse
crazy handicapper

By Dan Marlowe

A man named Sam Toperoff has written a book called CRAZY OVER HORSES.

Sam's book is a love letter to thoroughbred horses. Not to thoroughbred racing, but to thoroughbred horses.

At the age of 14, Sam was sliding out the side door of his high school in unexcused (and often undetected) absences to play the horses at nearby Belmont Race Track on Long Island.

From this precocious beginning, Sam graduated to a life-long study of the factors which get one horse to the finish line more quickly than his peers. Sam is a handicapper, as opposed to a horse player. A horse player will play every race every day. A handicapper will pick his spots.

The book is not a tract on how to bet the races successfully, although anyone who visits the track even occasionally can benefit from some of the pearls of wisdom dropped casually along the way. As the saying goes, this man has been there and back.

Handicappers necessarily develop philosophies to carry them through their inevitable losing streaks. (The author refers to these as his Blue Periods). These philosophies can be as over as the conviction that a route-running horse dropped back into a sprint will be a good bet the next time he is lengthened out again (his early speed supposedly sharpened by his encounter with sprinters). But they are more likely to take the form of subjective consideration of mankind at the finish line rooting home his horse.

Sam Toperoff speaks knowledgeably of betting factors to avoid and of correct money management. But his book rises far above the level of a manual when he speaks of the horses themselves. Sam is the type of handicapper who, even when out of action, to use the gambling euphemism, visits the track at sunrise each morning just to watch the horses work out.

He speaks glowingly of the courage of the thoroughbred horse, and sadly of its fragility. He speaks wistfully of the delights of the backstretch at dawn with its ammoniacal odors, its lusty breakfasts at the track kitchen, and its oddball characters from all walks of life, including the unlettered and the Ph.D.'s. Both types share a common interest, a continuing love affair with the thoroughbred horse.

The book speaks directly to those who take night-time jobs in order to have afternoons free for the racetrack.

It speaks directly to the young -- and the young in heart -- who stand outside a paddock fence and gaze upon the paddock's equine inhabitants with the look of eagles in their eyes.

CRAZY OVER HORSES (Published by Atlantic - Little, Brown) may not make any new converts to the ranks of horse-crazy individuals, but it will go far to reinforce the beliefs of those already in that category.

School Board members handed Mrs. Lois Binder, special education teacher, a strong vote of confidence when they unconditionally renewed her teaching contract for the coming year.

The storm about the color of the new water tower in Cass City proved to be a tempest in a teapot as only three persons attended the special session of the council to discuss the project.

Albert Whitfield, clerk-of-the-works, for the water project in Cass City, reported to the village council that the contractor laying the pipe was not living up to his contract. Marjorie Dillman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dillman, and William Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ross, were among Western Michigan University graduates who received degrees at commencement exercises.

TEN YEARS AGO

Mrs. Doris Klinkman was elected president of the American Legion Auxiliary, when the group met at the home of Mrs. Jake Gruber.

A pastoral change in the Methodist Church of Deford was announced by Marshall R. Reed, Bishop of Michigan. Rev. Alan W. Weeks was transferred from Port Hope to the Kingston-Deford churches and Rev. Donald R. Caister went from Deford to Clifford.

Theresa Ann Werdeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Werdeman of Cass City, received a Bachelor of Science degree in Nursing from Mercy College, Detroit.

Take It From A Pro Who Should Know— And Does

DANIEL W. HODOWANES of Warren was selected Driver of the Year last February by the Michigan Trucking Association. He has driven 21 years for Chrysler Corporation between plants in heavy city traffic for over a million miles without a blemish on his record.

Michigan's Truck Driver of the Year Says:

CONCENTRATION is the Key to Safe Driving

This little quiz Danny sometimes gives friends gives them a pretty good clue as to what kind of driver they are. Want to try it?

The last time you took the car out for a spin, did you:

- leave parking lights burning upon your return?
- leave a turning signal blinking unnecessarily?
- drive off without sufficiently wiping or scraping windows in inclement weather?

If you just happened to answer "yes" to all three — watch your step. They're common enough, everyday lapses, to be sure. But says Hodowanes — these are signs of a driver "not concentrating and a driver not concentrating is not doing his best to drive safely."

"If you want to be a good driver and a safe one, you've got to CONCENTRATE on being one," according to Michigan's No. 1 truck driver. He wheels a big semi through Detroit's busy traffic about 100 miles a day between plants. There are a lot of stops and starts and plenty of tight cornering. He has to CONCENTRATE!

Got time to read and think about one more little tip from Michigan Truck Driver of the Year? It's a good one and all of us should heed it every day, Danny says. Here it is: "Always stay clear-headed and never get behind the wheel in a depressed state. A wife can be very helpful to her husband by seeing that he doesn't leave home each morning with a lot of problems on his mind."

So, when you're driving, just concentrate on driving and nothing else, says this No. 1 professional driver. That's really all you've got time to do... safely. Right?

Hugh Brenneman Look for new medical horizons

If you had the eyes of a doctor and of a prophet, and you looked into the future far as human eye could see... what would you see? It really isn't too much to expect to look ten years ahead, and yet, even then the next decade will undoubtedly surprise us.

Certainly, the surgeons will continue to astound us as they move from one peak of accomplishment to the next. Organ transplantation will continue with the major limiting factor being the availability of donor organs and the physician's ability to stave off the rejection phenomenon. Undoubtedly, results will be obtained from efforts to develop artificial organs and make available artificial replacements.

There is no doubt that research laboratories will place new drugs in the hands of doctors to cope with problems. The doctors are now taking the measure of bacterial diseases; they are and will continue to search for antiviral agents. We can expect anti-cancer agents, at least for a few specific cancers, which will slow down or eliminate the uncontrolled proliferation of cells which brings about the spread of cancer throughout the body. There will be new vaccines to prevent infectious diseases.

One of the most unique areas of progress will be found in the means of measuring abnormalities in the blood and in other body fluids in the development of means to detect through the amplification of electrical discharges, evidences of disease in the heart or the brain or any muscle. Instruments and techniques will be developed to outline remote crevices of the body, perhaps by X-ray and even in a more sophisticated fashion by xerography, thermography and ultra-sound. Through these, they may be able to measure distortions produced by infections or tumors. These will not only help to make diagnosis more certain but will, undoubtedly, make treatments more specific.

We could go further and expect that the dangers of childbirth will be reduced, the pain will be controlled with greater safety, and new anesthetics and anesthetic techniques will reduce the hazards associated with that twilight journey the patient undertakes when hoping to benefit from surgical repairs.

But it isn't all beer and skittles... one of the big problems of progress is that it offers luxuries that just can't be made available to everyone, and yet there will be coming in the next ten years an even greater demand for equity.

The well-to-do have found that money alone cannot buy truly adequate care. The poor have exposed the inequities of the system - its denigration of people who were considered useful only if they were "good" charity cases for medical study. Heretofore, the market mechanism has not worked in the field of health because little choice has existed; now however, we may find the consumer making himself felt by expressing his desires through economic choice and stimulating the appropriate health institutions.

It's pretty hard to add up, but it seems that we can, as a nation, afford to explore new means of saving and prolonging life and probably we cannot afford not to continue these efforts. But, as our ability to prolong life improves, we shall have an increasing number of persons with failing organs and we cannot spend our whole economic and medical substance in a vain effort to prolong life for all.

Girl Scouts hold court of awards

A Girl Scout court of awards was held Monday, June 2, at the cultural center. Troop 170, with Leaders Mrs. Don Eria and Mrs. Scott Kelley, were hostesses to Mrs. Knight of Inlay City, who talked and showed slides of a trip to the Girl Scout Cabana in Mexico.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of five-year pins to 10 Junior Scouts who will enter the Cadette level of Scouting in the fall. The girls are: Cindy Tuckey, Nancy Greenwood, Sherry O'Harris, Cindy Guernsey, Joan Eria, Kathy Kerbyson, Nancy Koepfgen, Becky Peters, Carol Richardson and Dorothy Schwartz.

A fly-up ceremony was held May 28 in the elementary school when 21 girls advanced from the Brownie level to Juniors.

The Deford Junior Girl Scouts joined Junior Troop 170 of Cass City for a film and discussion on Civil Defense.

Several troops held year-end picnics as a final gathering for the year. All Girl Scout troops participated in the Memorial Day parade.

Letter to Editor

No voice at school-no taxes, say Eberts

Cass City, Mich.
June 9, 1969

Cass City Chronicle
Editor Mr. Haire:

In answer to the young parents saying that only parents with children in school should say what is taught there.

If we the people who don't have children in school and the senior citizens didn't have to pay school tax we would be very glad to have no say so of what is taught.

Or have they forgot the old saying. Who pays the fiddler calls the tune.

Yours truly,
Mr. & Mrs. Wm. Eberts

Wonder if Mr. Haire will print this?

AROUND THE FARM Fairgrove Twp. site of bean disease test

By Alfred P. Ballweg

Bean growers will remember 1968 as a year of bean blight in fields covering wide areas of Tuscola county the like of which we have not experienced for many years.

What will happen in 1969 remains to be seen but we do know that 1968 set the stage for an even far greater infection this year. It is one of the most difficult diseases of beans to control. While long rotations and clean seed are helpful in reducing blight, little is known about the disease.

In order that researchers may learn more about bacterial blight we are asking bean growers in Fairgrove township to assist our research people in developing better disease control programs. A letter is going out from our office asking bean growers in Fairgrove township to assist us in conducting a drill box and questionnaire survey. Along with the letter to bean growers is a questionnaire and a small plastic bag.

Growers are asked to answer the questions and to place a 1 pound sample of their bean seed in the plastic bag. It is important that this sample be representative of the seed growers are actually planting. Arrangements will be made to collect the questionnaire and seed samples at a later date. These could be brought into the Cooperative Extension Office by the grower if he wishes. We plan to have a twilight meeting some evening or sometime get-together in Fairgrove township at which time growers can bring along the questionnaire and sample of bean seed.

Also cooperating in this study is the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Information obtained in this survey we hope will help bean growers to avoid bacterial blight in coming years. A final questionnaire will be sent to cooperating bean growers in Fairgrove township at harvest time.

This has indeed been an unusual spring. I guess we could say most all of them are different. Summer is just around the corner and while over in the Kingston area a few days ago I stopped at a farmer's who was just finishing planting oats on May 29. This is pretty late when considering that as a rule we like to get oats in the ground by the early part of April. Much of our corn was planted late or not at all. If weather is favorable and we do not have an early frost most of the late planted oats and corn could still make a good crop.

Weather is a factor that makes farming a big gamble. Weather can make or break a farmer and especially a farmer just starting out. I can well remember my father's experience on our North Dakota farm in 1936. He had all of his crop planted—spring wheat, corn, oats and barley. It was all nicely up and off to a good start but moisture was on the short side. All that was needed was a good rain. My father and I left on a month's vacation hoping it would rain while we were away. We returned on July 1 to find it had not rained and the crop was completely dried up. Only a little corn grew in the potholes. As far as crop was concerned, it was a complete dry-out.
