FROM THE Editor's Corner

It was just two short years ago that the Thumb area could have secured a community college for a tax levy of just two mills.

Just two years ago a college for two mills... what do you suppose the cost would be today? It's anybody's guess. But if you would like to try to build a college, equip it and run it for two mills... well, good luck.

The sad fact is that in the immediate foreseeable future, the community college here is dead and under present conditions any attempt to breathe a little life in the corpse seems destined to become an exercise in futility.

Memory of the long hours and the dedicated work by civic leaders all over the Thumb in behalf of a Thumb college for the better part of three years was sparked by a couple of releases from Delta College this week.

One release pointed out that students planning to attend should make application before Aug. 1 for fall enrollment.

Delta's enrollment projections indicate that the college will be jammed long before September.

The second release talked about a new course Delta will inaugurate. Called "residential construction technology", it is designed to train pre-apprentice skilled tradesmen in the building trade.

It is one of six technology courses at the school, joining automotive, mechanical, architectural, electrical technology and drafting and design. So goodie-goodie for Delta... and what does it have to do with the Thumb.

Plenty if you happen to be an "all thumbs" guy like me and saving a board straight is a never ending, insolvable mystery and those instruction sheets in that kit yourself look like hieroglyphics from the stone age.

Repairing the leaky water faucet is just not my bag... it would be oh so swell if I could call somebody and have a reasonable hope that they would come within a day or so. What I'm trying to say is that we need more trained people and school might be the only place to get them.

The educational crunch gets worse each year at Delta. When it gets so severe the school is forced to limit enrollment, it's an odds-on bet that the first to feel the axe will be students outside the Bay, Midland, Saginaw area. And they should be. Taxpayers in these three counties accepted their responsibility and voted to pay for a college. Students there deserve and will get first consideration.

It makes for a gloomy Thumb picture and there is no relief in sight.

We have no one to blame but ourselves.

Council ups rates at swimming pool

The Cass City Village Council appeared fairly responsive Tuesday night to increased wage demands from three Water Safety Instructors and accordingly adopted immediate increases in swimming fees at the village pool.

Spokeswoman Ann Sheppard along with Karen Kerbyson and Lynn Atwell told councilmen comparable wage scales for qualified WSI's at Caro were $2 per hour. The village wage scale for WSI's is presently $1.30 per hour.

Councilman Edward Golding Jr. said the $2 per hour level was currently above that of local female production workers. Village president Lambert Althaver termed the requested hike "over-budget wages."

Miss Sheppard was moderately harsh in her criticism of the park's operation saying the park contained broken glass, the lavatories were unsanitary, and that "the rules were not being obeyed."

City engineer William Schram said that Cass City's free swim period "is a rarity" and probed the council on possibilities of eliminating the free period.

lod in meeting the budget hike. Councilman Del Rawson objected to the elimination saying it "would bring a tremendous uproar." He said the original intent of the pool program was to include free swimming for those unable to afford it, and that this was advertised when private contributions were being collected and raised for it.

Village secretary Ruth Hoffman said the park's program this year has brought "a lot of compliments." She cautioned though that while it was splendid to have three qualified Water Safety Instructors, "maybe it's more than we can afford."

Park Committee chairman Del Rawson said a hike from $1.30 to $1.75 might be feasible if the hours were cut. The hike does not include wages paid to life savers. He said the committee would investigate scheduling and make appropriate recommendations to the council.

At the suggestion of Rawson, the council adopted fee increases as follows: From 10 to 15 cents per day for youths with ages up through 12; from 15 to 20 cents per day for ages from 12 through 18; and from 25 to 35 cents per day for those over 18.

Season tickets were increased from $3 to $5 for children under 12 and from $5 to $7.50 for children aged 12 through 18.

INSTALL HEATER

City engineer William Schram reported the pool heater, donated by the United Fund, was scheduled to be installed "within a few days." Mrs. Hoffman said she believed the improvement would increase the number of youngsters participating in pool activities.

Petitioned: board sets 3rd tax vote Aug. 11

Voters in the Cass City School District will be asked for the third time to approve extra funds for operating at a special election Aug. 11.

It is the earliest possible moment that another election can be held and the school board took action to start proceedings after Vic Guernsey presented a petition signed by well over five per cent of the electorate asking that another election be held.

According to law, when a petition is received from five per cent or more of the electorate it is mandatory to hold the election.

President Horace Bulen said that because the board had definitely stated that no more requests would be made for funds this year no new vote could have been initiated by the board if it is to keep faith with the people.

"However," he continued, "I would be hypocritical if I did not say that I am happy that the petition takes the matter out of our hands and in good faith allows a third vote."

Bulen said that the closeness of the second vote indicates that a third vote will have at least a chance of passing.

The petition did not say how many mills should be requested in the third vote and the board will not announce a decision until its regular meeting July 8.

Best guess is that there will be no change and a request for four mills for one year will be on the ballot.

Several interested residents attended the meeting and aired views on the best way to make sure that eligible electors were registered and voted.

It was conceded that a house-to-house campaign was best and residents present indicated they would help, but no details were hammered out.

OTHER BUSINESS

Intermediate Principal Bob Stickle reviewed two new text books and the board okayed their adoption. The new texts will be for science in the seventh and eighth grades and for social studies in the 7th grade.

PARKING LOT BID

It appears that breaking down the bids for work on two parking lots at Cass City High School will save money for the school district... but nobody knows for sure.

Bids were opened Monday night at a special meeting of the Cass City School Board and five bids were received for the construction portion of the job and none for furnishing the asphalt.

Low bidder of the five was Clancey Brothers of Port Austin at $14,153.90 with completion within 90 days. Second was C. R. Hunt of Cass City which bid $15,975.00. Whalen Construction of Caro bid $18,658.00 and Lasky Construction Co. Inc. of Bad Axe bid $18,507.50.

Sheldon Contracting Inc. of Port Huron submitted a bid for both construction and asphalt for $42,061.20.

Two weeks ago bids for the combination job were let and only a bid from Hunt was received. This bid was $33,901.20, well below the combination bid received Monday but probably higher than the ultimate cost to the school.

Although an asphalt bid was not received, Williams Brothers had given Supt. Donald Crouse a phone quote of $11 per ton which figures to about $13,200 for the job. In addition, if the construction work is not marred so that no "touching up" grading of the area is needed, Williams indicated that the price would be reduced another $1,800.

If the verbal quote becomes concrete, the school will pay some $8,000 less for the job than the cost would have been if a combination bid had been accepted.

A good deal of discussion preceded the acceptance of the low bid. Clancey Brothers guaranteed completion in 90 days while Hunt specified 70 days and Grant Ball, representing the company, said that the work could be scheduled nearly anytime after about two weeks.

The board is concerned that the lots will not be ready in time for school next fall.

Donald Reid said that it has always been the policy to accept the low bid and made a motion to this effect. It passed 5-2, with Donald Koepfgen and Gerald Hicks dissenting.

An attempt will be made to work out a suitable schedule with Clancey and the blacktop concern for a quick completion at the lowest cost.

Boost teachers' salaries 8 per cent in new pact

The Salary Schedule Compared with Previous Year

Yrs. service	1968-69		Yrs. service	1969-70
	BA degree	MA degree		BA degree	MA degree
0	6500	6800	0	7000	7400
1	6730	7040	1	7250	7650
2	6960	7280	2	7500	7910
3	7190	7520	3	7750	8165
4	7420	7760	4	8000	8420
5	7650	8000	5	8250	8675
6	7880	8240	6	8500	8930
7	8110	8480	7	8750	9185
8	8340	8720	8	9000	9440
9	8570	8960	9	9250	9695
10	8800	9200	10	9500	9950

Teachers with master's degrees were boosted $600 and increment pay was jumped $155 yearly in 10 steps.

Teachers with BA degrees now receive salaries ranging from a low of $7,000 to a top after 11 years of $9,500. Last year the salary was $6,500 to $8,800. MA degree teachers' salaries now range from $7,400 to $9,950 as compared to $6,800 to $9,200 in 1968-69.

The teachers' original demands were for raises that figured to cost about 20 per cent.

In addition to the salary boosts, teachers were granted $10 per month towards the payment of health insurance. The school also agreed to deduct credit union and tax sheltered annuity charges for the teacher. A collection for life insurance was dropped because only three teachers were using the service.

Another important addition to the contract is the allowance for increment pay for teachers entering the system from other schools. The school formerly allowed up to five years and now allows unlimited credit.

It is now possible for a teacher with 10 years prior experience to enter at the top salary paid by the school.

Both the teachers and the school agreed that the policy makes it easier to secure experienced teachers for the system. There were several other minor changes. Payment for extracurricular activities remained unchanged.

Personal business days without explanation by the teachers was a hotly disputed item as was more freedom from non-instructional activity (principally supervision work in the cafeteria at noon).

The contract calls for two personal business days, but they must be approved by the administration, the same rule that previously existed. Teachers' requests for changes in the noon work schedules were dropped.

OTHER SALARIES

Other salaries were set after secret discussion by the school board Monday night following the meeting open to the press and the public.

At this meeting, secretaries and driver education teachers were granted raises. The superintendent's secretary was boosted $600 to $5,900. Two other secretaries were raised to $5,000 yearly from $4,420 and $4,500. All hourly employed secretaries were boosted 25 cents per hour. Hourly wages now range from $1.95 to $2.05 per hour.

Driver training instructors were raised to $4.25 per hour this year, retroactive to the start of the course and will be paid $4.50 next year. The school agreed to pay $10 per month health insurance to any of these employees desiring it.

"War is Wrong"—I-A Hughes seeks Peace Corps

BY RICHARD HAINES

His draft status is I-A. He's a friendly, college grad with tumbling fair hair, the type of fellow that always has time for a brief chat.

Larry Hughes of Cass City, a 24-year-old grad, an easy and outgoing type that says he'd "rather work for peace than for war" and who has had his army induction delayed three times.

Waiting...waiting...for his assignment into the Peace Corps. He applied last summer and has been accepted; however, the program's training limitations prohibit him from immediate entrance.

"They won't get out (of Vietnam) because of their pride; I'd be proud if we got out," he said. "I don't think they really want us anyway."

"I think the war is wrong." Larry was classified I-A in October 1966 while a student and received his first induction notice in February of 1967.

In a personal appeal to national leaders including Romney, Reagan, Dirksen, Robert Kennedy and others, he asked them to have his classification and induction overruled because he was still a student making normal progress in school.

An MSU Junior the following fall, he was allowed to continue in school. He was majoring in marketing and had developed interests in data processing with a bent towards international research.

In October of 1968, he was again classified I-A and requested an appearance before the board.

His appeal to the Tuscola Selective Service Board carried little weight, however, and on January 28, 1968, he received his second induction notice.

He immediately wrote them saying he wanted a personal appearance before the board. Which he made... in bandages and crutches... because of a recent knee operation.

The board thereby requested written confirmation on the extent of the injury and Larry obtained a letter from his physician saying, however, his knee was in perfect condition.

March 20 the third set of induction papers was received. Close to many MSU's hearts, however, especially Larry's, is spring vacation. Reluctant to let his Florida-bound colleagues down, he thought he'd join them... his colleagues, that is.

An Ohio mail drop-box was the recipient of his letter to his county board saying... "I'm in Florida." And by the time the letter arrived in Tuscola County, he was.

But while loafing and sunbasking on the banks of sun-lavished Florida beaches, the induction notice gave him points to ponder and he decided to contact the "volunteer counselors" when he got back to Michigan State.

"Write an immediate apology; you're draft delinquent" was their advice, which he followed. This time he made his fourth appearance, entering a plea for a student deferment in order to complete school and get his degree.

He told them he had only one and one-half months to go to finish four years of college. "We'll let you know," they said. And the board followed by shooting off a letter to the university requesting Larry's exact progress.

Sunday, June 8, he graduated in commencement exercises at Michigan State University.

He says he hasn't heard from them lately, however. "Maybe they're slow or something."

"Personally, I'd just as soon not serve," he said. Asked about the possibility of applying for conscientious objector (CO) status, he said, "I would like to think I could, but the folks... I think my parents would die. I can't see that, anyway."

It's turning out to be a "long, hot summer" for Larry. Having been accepted, he expects enrollment in a training program late this fall and probably assignment to South America.

The Peace Corps has a new and growing demand for the individual with a specialized background, he said with enthusiasm. Unfortunately, the only place where there's a demand for computer data processing is in Pakistan, he said.

Still, he hopes that his learning experiences, besides helping others, will broaden his background in international marketing research.

The program lasts two years, which, if he enrolled late this summer, would put him at 28 years of age, an age normally beyond army induction except in wartime.

He said corporate interviewers on the MSU campus would judge your potential with them by your draft status. "It was just that hairline away," he said.

"It does...it definitely hurts you."

"I want to enjoy what I do; I think the most important thing is being happy," he said.

He may try a career in business, but he said he won't keep it if he doesn't like it. One thing he wants to do is "make a couple thousand" to invest in the stock market before he (hopefully) leaves for the Peace Corps late this summer.

"The Peace Corps," he said, "is really a chance to make peace in the world. It really gives you a chance to help another out, maybe just 2 or 3, but it gives you a chance to share your knowledge with them."

"I'm your brother, ya know."

"I want to make this a better world to live in, not a worse one."

"I'm pretty idealistic, I suppose; I believe changes can be brought about. It is possible," he affirmed.

"If you're over 30 or 40, you've hardened; you just come to accept it."

"How many Koreans can we have," he questioned? "We've got all these inner-city problems, these riots and demonstrations. We need better living conditions and housing."

These people need a stake in life, not a helpless blind."

Asked if he felt the Communist threat a real one, he said, "No, there's a difference between Vietnam and World War II," he said. "Before we had a definite reason, Pearl Harbor, England, France. It was Nazism or fight."

"Look at Hamburger Hill," he said. "American lives are worth more than that. We're not animals, we've come farther than that."

"Besides, most of the peasants aren't ready for democracy," he said. "To make democracy work, you have to be involved in it. They're not ready for it yet, and in 1976 we weren't ready for it, and we didn't have it either. Only elites wrote the constitution, and only male property owners could vote."

Asked if he participated in last fall's national campaign, he said "No, but I was for Robert Kennedy until..."

Asked if he voted in Cass City's recent millage proposal, he said, "If you weren't a property owner, could you vote?" When asked if he wasn't ready for democracy, he answered, "I guess I've failed."

A product of Cass City, Larry was a first grader in the Quick one-room country school. He said he vividly remembers counting to 100 and reciting the alphabet in front of the class, more so than almost any of his high school experiences.

The fond memories from CCHS include a teacher that threw parties for them and let them use her car. "Had great times, nobody studied," he said.

"I don't mind Cass City, as long as I know I don't have to stay here," he remarked.

"There's nothing to do for entertainment, unless you go to Saginaw, Caseville, Detroit. I can look up my fraternity brothers in Detroit, maybe visit the 'Upper Deck'."

The lack of an informal meeting place for college-age singles in Cass City, such as beaches or live-bandpubs leads Larry to think, "If I had to stay in Cass City, I'd go insane."

But even for Larry, the village will have its moments of excitement and those will be the daily visits of the Cass City mailman.

The goats are gone at the Walt Goodall farm, northeast of Cass City, but English Spotted Deer have taken their place. Included in the "herd" of over a half dozen animals are two fawns and more are on the way.

Another exotic at the farm now are peacocks who raucously greet visitors as they approach. Over the years, Goodall's bent for fooling around with the unusual has provided many a story.

The most recent was about the walnuts that he grows.

One Chronicle subscriber is now paid six years in advance, the most lengthy subscription renewal since the change in price was announced effective July 1. (There are still three days left to renew at the old price).

Many are paid through 1971 and we have been deluged with renewals one-year in advance.

There is always a good deal of trepidation over a subscription price raise for most publishers, including this one. Only when soaring costs make it absolutely necessary is the action taken. . . . circulation is the lifeblood of any newspaper. When our subscribers feel that the paper is worth the extra cost it always brings a sigh of relief. . . . and of gratitude.

We were pleased to hear members of the school board say Monday night that they thought the press coverage of the school's negotiations with the union was a good thing.

In case you haven't guessed, the Chronicle is always in complete agreement with any sentiment that exposes public business to public scrutiny.

Caro and Lakers are among the districts that have settled with teachers for 1969-70. In order to get a comparison of wage scales I called the superintendents of the two schools. Neither was available; neither called back and the secretaries "don't know anything about that".

You'd almost think it was their money and not ours that they are spending.

I haven't been able to substantiate this, but the report is that Caro's top wage scale is way over the settlement reached here and the Lakers are considerably under.

Letter to Editor Register and vote in school millage election

June 24, 1969

To the Editor
Cass City Chronicle

Many of the people that I have talked with these past few weeks regarding the school operational millage election have expressed concern about the number of people who would be eligible to vote if they would only register.

I know it has been brought out many times before but perhaps it bears repeating:

Anyone over 21 years old, a resident of Michigan for six months and a resident in the Cass City School district for 30 days is eligible to register for voting on operational millage proposals.

Registration is through the township clerk. (Folks in Elkland Township must get in touch with Bob Hunter). The registering must be done within 30 days of an election to be eligible for voting in that election. Most of the township clerks are available most of the time for the registration. They hold office hours also from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., 30 days before the election. In other words, for the next election the clerks will have office hours from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. on July 11. But residents can register any time before that date.

Sincerely,
Victor M. Guernsey

Tells how man coped
with pain through the ages

Some doctors believe that the psychological nature of pain is so complex as to be almost beyond comprehension. They say it is almost wholly mental: A man during rage feels no pain from injury until after his anger has cooled; the same man waiting in the anteroom of the dentist may suffer agony in anticipation.

The early Christians, while being burned alive, signaled to their friends who waited for the ordeal, by raising their seared arms in the flames to signify that they felt no pain. Religious enthusiasm was their anesthetic. For the burning martyrs, the pain, despite the increased heat, had decreased. The flames had destroyed the highly responsive sensory fibers of the skin and the deeper tissues were less sensitive to pain.

PERCEPTION OF PAIN

There is difficulty in determining when perception of pain begins and ends. Some physicians feel that a dying man does not feel pain. . . . that the ability of the brain to translate signals of pain is lost before the power of speech and movement, before the heart stops, before the nerves lose their capacity to transmit pain signals.

Man has used, through the ages, any number of means to prevent or cure pain. He has used incantations, prayers, charms, drugs, radiation and the knife. He has tattooed symbols on his body to keep out the evil spirits. In China, as far back as 3000 B.C., acupuncture, the pricking with needles as a counterirritant, was used to relieve pain. A remedy for toothache was found on a Babylonian clay tablet dating back to 2250 B.C.

PAIN RELIEF

Ancient man used opium, surgery, heat, cold and massage to relieve pain. Even electrotherapy as shock treatment for neuralgia and headache was used through the ingenious application of the torpedo fish.

Before 1846, when anesthesia was first used on patients, surgeons had to be iron-nerved, steady, powerful and swift. Surgery was a last resort, the alternative to death. Pain had to be so intolerable that the need for relief from it was worth the risk of life. The surgeon in the operating room cut into fully conscious patients restrained by straps and powerful men. Only speed could reduce the torture.

TOMB TABLE

The story is told, presumably taken from inscriptions on the tombs of ancient Egypt, that an apprehensive, prospective surgical patient would be seated before a curtain -- the surgeon would leap from behind the curtain waving a sword, whereupon the patient would faint and the surgery began. On one occasion, due to the necessity for speed, the doctor cut off the right leg of a king's son, instead of the left one as he had earlier intended. He was right, fully disturbed at this mistake thinking he would have to pay with his life. However, the left leg became well before the doctor could be punished.

Thereupon, the king gave the doctor high honors because it was apparent to the king that the doctor knew what he was doing. . . . he had not been fooled by the evil spirit who had seemed to be residing in the left leg but was actually in the right leg which the doctor had wisely removed!

CHRONIC PAIN

A price we pay today for living longer is chronic degenerative disease, the characteristic of the most prevalent of which - cancer and arthritis - is chronic pain. Millions of man hours a year are lost through chronic pain. To find ways of controlling this variety of pain, which serves no purpose, and to improve the safety and effectiveness of analgesics in prolonged surgical procedures, as well as in childbirth, science must now apply modern techniques and tools with a diligence equal to that applied in research on disease itself.

Area kids are keeping a weather eye out these days for construction men at the municipal pool at the Cass City Recreational Park.

Most of them know that any day now a new water heater will be installed and that icy, icy water will be warmed by 15 degrees . . . the question is, when? . . . the answer is very soon.

The new heating unit was made possible by a contribution from the United Fund of $1125 and agreement by the village to pay for installation costs.

The pool heater is described as a 750,000 BTU model, sufficient for a pool with up to 4,700 square feet. Its size will enable the pool water to be heated more quickly and is said to run as economically as a smaller unit.

The large size heater is designed to care for any future expansion of pool facilities in the village.

Cass City Community Chest President Tom Proctor said that the United Fund board hopes that the expenditure of capital funds will bring greater use of the pool by adults as well as young people.

Sponsors aid ball program

Several sponsors have helped make the financial road easier for the Cass City Little and Minor Leagues, officials said this week.

Evans Products Co. of Gagetown donated all of the minor league catcher's equipment at an approximate cost of $150.

General Cable also helped the program, as did General Telephone Company. Several retail merchants contributed, authorities said. They included Harris-Hampshire Insurance, McCormick Real Estate and Insurance, Western Auto Associate Store, Kritzmann's, Inc. and Croft-Clara Lumber, Inc.

Major support comes annually from the Cass City Community Chest which gives $550 towards running the program.

Seek golf equipment for park program

Tom Woody, recreational director, said that golf clubs and equipment are needed for the park recreational program.

He asks that persons with equipment to donate call him (872-2859) or leave it at the municipal building.

An instructional meeting was held recently on the rules and etiquette of golf.

Giants sure to win in Little League

The only question that remains in the Little League is whether or not the Giants can go through the regular season without defeat.

Jerry Toner and company clinched at least a share of the loop title during the week by posting victories over the Orioles, 10-0, June 17 and the Pirates, 13-3, Thursday.

Toner was on the mound for the Giants against the Orioles. He allowed three hits and whiffed 15 in his six inning stint.

He rapped out a 3-run homer to aid his own cause. Zawilinski and R. Newsome each slapped out three hits for the winners.

Against the Pirates, Toner slapped out two home runs while Craig Helwig and Durrell Calster each garnered 3 hits. Dave Romig slammed a pair of safeties.

It is a rebuilding year for the Pirates, who won several championships before losing most of their veterans this season.

Methodists dominate early games in Church League

It's the year of the Methodists in the Cass City Church League. At least it has been in the opening two weeks of the season in games played at Cass City Recreational Park.

Decker and Deford Methodists are the only two teams in the league that have not been defeated.

Tuesday night, June 17, two other Methodist teams met and Shabbona failed to show any mercy for their church cousins from Owen-Gage as they walked off with a 13-3 victory.

Les Severance won for Shabbona and Owen-Gage used four pitchers.

In the late game, Sutton-Sunshine topped the Catholics in a slugfest, 13-10. Dale Smith was the winner and Dan Erla was charged with the loss. Johnny Robinson hit a home run for CCS and Erla bashed a circuit clout for the Catholics. Lowell and Dale Smith collected 3 hits each for the winners.

Thursday Novesta Church of Christ won over Trinity United Methodist, 4-3. Don Englehart was the winner and R. Kozan the loser.

In the nightcap it was Ellington Nazarene over Cass City Missionary, 15-3. Jerry Hillaker was the winner and was backed by three home runs.

Friday Grant-Fraser won over CCS 9-8. Roger Root was the winning pitcher. Dale Smith took the loss. Larry Hartwick hit a three-run homer. Lee Taylor singled in two runs in the last inning to score the victory.

Two games rained out were played Saturday, June 14.

The Catholics beat Owen-Gage, 13-0, in five innings. Jim Turner was the winning pitcher and Clark Erla hit a home run. Rick Turner was two for four and drove in 7 runs. Ron Turner hit a 3-run triple and Paul Bliss a two-run double.

In the nightcap, CCS beat the Baptists, 7-4. Dale Smith was the winning pitcher and Gary Mellendorf, the loser. Lowell Smith hit a home run for CCS.

In other action Trinity United Methodist topped Cass City Missionary, 17-7, and the Baptists topped Grant-Fraser, 8-0.

Gary Mellendorf won for the Baptists with a two-hitter and Larry Summers took the loss.

The standings:

Deford United Methodist	2-0
Decker United Methodist	2-0
CCS	2-1
Ellington Nazarene	2-1
Fraser-Gagetown	2-1
Cass City Baptists	1-1
Cass City Catholics	1-1
Shabbona Methodist	1-1
Trinity Methodist	1-2
Church of Christ	1-2
Owendale-Gagetown	0-2
Cass City Missionary	0-3

Anybody can win a game on any given night in the Cass City Minor League this season. After just three games there is not an undefeated team in the league.

In fact the race is so close that four teams are tied for first place.

In the small fry loop, the teams play 10 games and it looks as if the race might go to the final night before a decision is reached.

Four teams, the Dodgers, Angels, White Sox and Braves, have won two games and lost one. The Indians have won one and lost two games and the Mets have an 0-3 record.

There will be a managers' meeting Friday, June 27, at 8:45 at the park. If games are rained out the meeting will be Monday at 8:45.

Banks in flurry to hike interest on home loans

The rising tide of higher interest rates charged by banks is sweeping into Michigan triggering anew the drive for increased home interest rate legislation.

Several Michigan banks have announced they will follow the national pattern -- touched off earlier this month in New York -- of charging their best customers a record 8 1/2 per cent, up 1 per cent.

Bankers generally defended the higher "prime rate" as essential to meet a heavy demand for loans from corporations that had been priced out of the bond and short-term loan markets because of climbing interest rates there.

The surprise development started a new flurry of activity in the state Legislature to enact a controversial bill increasing the state usury ceiling from 7 1/2 to 8 1/2 per cent immediately.

Michigan's usury maximum covers conventional home and small business loans. Installment loans and revolving credit accounts are governed by another law.

House Minority leader Robert E. Waldron, R-Grosse Pointe, floor manager of the home loan bill, said the "pressure for the passage will be even greater now." He said some legislators were holding out because of predictions interest rates would fall.

"These predictions have not come true," he said. "We need some remedies right now."

Waldron said the Michigan money market will get tighter and tighter, and new housing starts smaller and smaller if the Legislature refuses to boost the usury ceiling.

The Michigan State Building and Construction Trades Council petitioned the Legislature to hike the interest rate in a hurry so more loans will become available to buy new homes and put carpenters, plumbers and others to work.

"Money is not going into any construction financing because of the 7 per cent usury ceiling," the Council declared. "It must be raised if we are to prevent further economic decline."

Three months ago, the Senate passed a bill upping the rate to 9 per cent for three years, but the measure has been stalled in the House because of strong opposition from state AFL-CIO President August (Gus) Scholle.

Waldron and House Speaker William A. Ryan, D-Detroit, proposed the 8 1/2 per cent maximum as a compromise plan, though Ryan's enthusiasm for the plan waned rather than increased in the wake of the prime rate jump.

"Some legislators feel interest rates have gotten out of hand," Ryan said. "It's pretty hard to say how they will react to this latest development."

The compromise bill is scheduled to come up for floor debate in the House soon, despite AFL-CIO efforts to keep it in the deep-freeze.

A key provision would limit pre-payment penalty points to one per cent of the home loan total for three years, and out-law this charge completely after that.

No restriction exists at present on the penalty point fee and some legislators have complained that financial institutions are going way over the 7 per cent usury limit by adding the charge onto home loans.

A ruling by state Attorney General Frank J. Kelley also spurred the drive for a higher Michigan usury ceiling. Kelley held that Federal Housing Administration (FHA) mortgages are exempt from the state law restricting home loan interest rates to the 7 per cent ceiling.

The FHA, which insures about 15 per cent of all Michigan home loans, presently charges an interest rate of 7 1/2 per cent, plus an additional 1/2 per cent for insurance costs, for a total of 8 per cent per year.

Erla's split pair at park Saturday

Name one team that Al Bosch has more trouble with than any other and he'll probably say Kentucky Colonels.

The Colonels sailed away the game with a two-run outburst in the fifth.

Hillaker touched winning pitcher Collins for two of his team's four hits.

In the nightcap, Erla's got a measure of revenge, taking a 5-3 decision behind the fireball slants of Elwyn Helwig.

Helwig shut out the visitors until the seventh inning when three hits in a row netted three runs. Erla's went in front to stay in the third with a pair of runs. They added another in the fifth and what proved to be the decisive margin in the sixth when they scored twice more.

The team touched Jackson for 11 hits including two each by Helwig, Hillaker, Cubbit and Knoblet.

Pool, park, parking perplexing council

Councilwoman Gladys Albee reported 20 youngsters have signed up for golfing lessons, that the recreation program's movie brought excellent attendance, but that the recent tennis court dance, with only about 60 attending, "had little dancing," and closed down at 10 p. m.

FEW DANCERS

Althaver acknowledged that recent attempts at sponsoring dances in the village weren't as successful as was hoped; however, he cautioned against throwing the dance idea out saying the program deserved further experimentation before terminating the program.

Edward Golding Jr. reported encouraging investigations on possible State and federal aid in extending Cass City's main sewers. Althaver expressed hope progress could be made and Rawson said the question of extensions, since they are designed to extend beyond the village's boundaries, automatically raised the basic question of "cityhood."

The idea of "cityhood" drew little response, though, from the council.

Althaver reported Novesta Township officials were becoming frustrated in their efforts to put legal backbone behind recent abandoned car ordinances, "because they infringe upon individuals' rights." He said the village "probably gets more complaints about abandoned cars than anything else," and he will continue to investigate.

Althaver said the lack of any report either from the firehall committee or the Elkland Township Board forestalled any action on the part of the council at Tuesday's meet.

Street Committee Chairman Mrs. Albee said she was encouraged from the townspeople's response to recent village blacktopping. "They like the black streets," she said and joshed, amidst council grins and smiles, that "Black is beautiful."

Althaver announced a request from the retail division of the chamber of commerce for a waiver of parking meter charges during the upcoming merchants' "Sidewalk Days".

There was a brief pause while the chairman awaited the council's response but when he asked if "there is any reason why we shouldn't," councilman Del Rawson responded saying the idea could have the effect of raising new car owners' discontent against the meters in general and recommended the chamber be allowed to waive the meter charges under the condition the chamber cover the meters with sacks or something similar reading two-day-no-charge. Another condition was that the chamber not advertise the no-charge in the promotion.

Althaver said that an accompanying "flea market" would allow private owners to display and sell private merchandise and ware. He said the chamber's original request for six parking spaces has been increased to 20.

Upon the recommendation of the police department, the council authorized the department to install nine parking meters on the newly paved portion of North Oak Street.

Althaver read a letter from the Tuscola County Technical Action Panel which will sponsor a meeting July 2 in the basement of the county jail explaining State and Federal programs for low-cost housing developments.

He believes the housing need is acute in the community saying, "It's definitely a problem, especially in locating newly employed families for local industry." Rawson said similar housing in Saginaw has been known to arouse jealousy from homeowners who had purchased low-cost housing without government subsidy.

Council secretary Ruth Hoffman expressed interest in attending the meeting and Althaver tentatively appointed her the assignment.

A letter was received from the Gavel Club that three picnic tables, on their behalf, have been placed in the park. Althaver reported the Firemen's Club has also placed two new tables in the park.

The council reported a savings of $65 in purchasing a tennis court net through Horace Bolen.

AROUND THE FARM

400 pound porker packs punch

By Alfred P. Ballweg

How safe are rural farm roads? From my experience after many years and many miles of traveling on country roads, I'd say they are as safe as any road to travel. However, I would hurry to add that one must always keep in mind that driving on rural roads is not the same as two-lane traffic going one way on a super highway. I can remember, as I'm sure many others can, when rural roads were just plain dirt roads with no gravel and during spring thaw or rainy weather they were impassable.

I have found country roads most interesting to travel because there is never a dull moment if you learn of interesting things to observe as you travel from farm to farm. A nicely kept farmstead with a place for everything and everything in its place is a sight to observe. Then again we also find those farmsteads where there is not enough room for all the farm machinery and other items left standing in the yard.

I learned long ago to have a lot of respect for livestock on the loose as you travel country roads. During my first year as agricultural agent in North Dakota, as I was passing a farm a 400-pound Berkshire sow ran out on the road and I connected broadside with the porker. It was somewhat like hitting an immovable object. The impact rolled her over and bent back my bumper. I too was a bit shook up. I got out of the car to find the sow had gotten up to walk up into the farmer's yard. While I was knocking at the door to tell the farmer what had happened, the sow lay down and died.

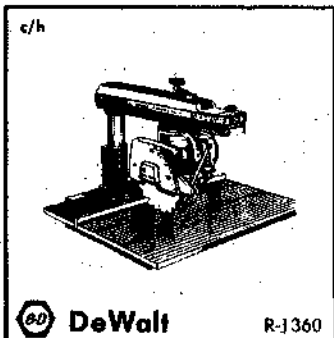

It is always important to watch the road and drive at moderate speed. Corners and intersections are always dangerous. I have never depended on the other car stopping at a stop sign. I think one of the greatest hazards of country roads is the one lane bridges and we still have a few of them even in Tuscola County. My driving is not good enough to pass someone on a narrow bridge wide enough for two cars. I would much rather have all of the bridge to myself. A common site on rural roads is farm machinery moving to and from fields. Why I've never connected with a piece of machinery I'll never know — I've had some close calls. On a country road one is pretty much on his own; intersections may block stop signs — oncoming vehicles can be hard to spot because of trees, brush, crops, farm buildings or curves.

A most dangerous stretch of country road is traveling over a hill. Who knows, even a farmer may be coming from the other side right in the center. An experience I shall never forget was coming over a hill on a rural road early one April morning in North Dakota and finding a farmer had just pinned himself under a tractor trying to cross a road ditch with a tractor pulling a hayrack. Fortunately the seat of the tractor had come to rest on the farmer's shoulder but pinned him firmly to the ground. Another motorist arrived at about the same time and together we were able to extract him from his narrow escape.

According to the National Safety Council nearly 70% of traffic fatalities result from accidents in rural areas and towns of less than 2500 persons. Though farm people comprise 5% of the nation's population, they accounted for 7% of the 1967 traffic toll.

Meeting of the Tuscola County Board of Supervisors held May 27, 1969 with the following members present: Kirk, Graf, Golding, Ducker and Woodcock.

Meeting called to order by Pro-tem Chairman Shuford Kirk.

Clerk read the minutes of the last meeting and were approved as read.

Several questions were discussed.

Mr. R. O. Kern, Attorney for the Village of Caro came before the Board and presented an Annexation Petition to change the boundaries of the Village of Caro, also with Proof of Publication.

TO THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF TUSCOLA COUNTY, MICHIGAN:

The Council of the Village of Caro, State of Michigan, hereby petition the said board to alter the boundaries of said Village by taking in and including in said boundaries of lands and premises situate in Section 4, Township 12 North, Range 9 East (Indianfields Township), Tuscola County, Michigan, and described as follows:

Commencing on the South line of Section 4, Township 12 North, Range 9 East, 1155 feet West of the Southeast corner of said Section, thence West along said South line to the South quarter post of said Section, thence North parallel with the East line of said Section 2640 feet to the South line of said Section to a point due North of the point of beginning, thence South to point of beginning.

The reason for the proposed change is that persons owning at least 66 per cent of the lands above described have petitioned the Common Council to take in and include their lands within the boundaries of said Village.

Attached hereto and marked "Exhibit A" is a copy of the resolution adopted by said Council.

This petition is presented in pursuance of Section 5.1470 Michigan Statutes Annotated.

COUNCIL (COMMON COUNCIL) of the Village of Caro, State of Michigan

Max E. Lawrence President

R. H. Smith Clerk

RESOLVED, that this Council (the Common Council of the Village of Caro, State of Michigan) determine to alter the boundaries of the Village of Caro, State of Michigan, by taking in lands and premises situate in Section 4, Township 12 North, Range 9 East (Indianfields Township), Tuscola County, Michigan, and described as follows:

Commencing on the South line of Section 4, Township 12 North, Range 9 East, 1155 feet West of the Southeast corner of said Section, thence West along said South line to the South quarter post of said Section, thence North parallel with the East line of said Section 2640 feet to the South line of the North half of said Section, thence East parallel to the South line of said Section to a point due North of the point of beginning, thence South to point of beginning.

Moved by Woodcock supported by Golding the Petition be accepted and approved. With a roll call vote as follows: Yes: Kirk, Graf, Golding, Ducker, and Woodcock; No: none. Absent: Johnson and Loomis. Chairman Kirk declared the motion carried.

Supervisors study tax assessments

Several Township Supervisors appeared before the Tuscola County Board of Supervisors in morning session Tuesday reporting appealed tax assessments in their townships have been revised, "both upward and downward."

The supervisors, mostly from southwest Tuscola County, called for action on the matter and the board appointed District Supervisor Shuford Kirk of Caro to set up a meeting between representatives of the county and those of the state tax commission.

A request was heard from Paul Findley of the Soil Conservation office for increased office help (secretary) and the request, along with a similar one previously heard from Magistrate John Bowles, was sent to the Finance and Personnel Relations Committee for study and recommendation.

The board reviewed alternatives to cope with the continuing deterioration of bridges in the county. Board chairman Harold Johnson said the heavier weights of vehicles, and the deteriorating state of them called for a long term plan of rejuvenation. He said the board is considering floating a mill for a construction program.

Johnson expressed high hopes for an upcoming meeting July 2 of the Tuscola County Technical Action Panel where State and Federal low-cost housing programs will be reviewed and technical assistance explained.

The board passed two resolutions. One called for the restoration of order to the State's campuses, and another disavowed pending Lansing legislation to abolish the income tax exemption on municipal bonds.

During the summer, groups for the 1969-70 bridge marathon will be arranged. Anyone who has not played or who is new in this area is welcome to

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor;

After the session at the country store Saturday night, Mister Editor, I am of a mind Ed Doolittle has got a rough row to hoe for the next three years. It was open season for Republican Ed during the Johnson and Kennedy years. Actual, he has been taking potshots at Democrat Administrations ever since the Roosevelt New Deal.

Well, sir, Saturday night Ed set and took it. Clem Webster got the session started by allowing it looks like Nixon is trying to out Johnson Johnson, and Clem said he went with Johnson as far as he could. Bug Hookum got in some hard licks at the new Administration.

Clem told the tellers he was full aware Mr. Nixon aired some big problems when he got elected, but he said he can't think of a single situation that has been improved. Nixon, allowed Clem, is trying to keep everybody happy by saying one thing and doing somepun else.

Per instant, Clem said when Nixon first went in office he said he was getting rid of the Job Corps and he was going to trim some fat off the post office. The Job Corps now has got a bunch of new centers and is going full steam, Clem said, and the fat in the post office is just being shifted around from one make-work job to another. When the North Koreans captured our boat, Clem said Nixon called for new leadership. When the North Koreans shot down our airplane he changed his tune. As for doctoring up the welfare system, Clem said, it looks like Nixon is trying to set up a hole new class of people by taking two million pore folks off the tax rolls. Clem said even Ed was agreed food stamps was a good way to help the pore help themselves, but now Nixon wants to give cash instead of stamps cause some folks is shamed to use stamps. If a man is hungry he'll swaller his pride, was Clem's words.

Bug Hookum said he can't help but think of what old Harry Truman said when Ike got elected. Harry said "he will enter the White House, and give orders, and nothing will happen." Mr. Nixon may be giving a lot of orders, allowed Bug, but the Vietnam war is going full blast, and money is gitting cheaper faster than ever.

Clem said he saw where students was planning "work-ins" this summer to git to know the working class. He said it was a good idee for students to git to know what work is, but he had saw where industries in this country invest a average of $25,000 fer every new job created.

The way Nixon is going, Clem said, he'll want to save industry by paying the students not to work.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

"If It Fitz . . ."

Sex education bricked up

BY JIM FITZGERALD

There is currently a lot of fuss about whether Junior should get his sex education in school or from the big kid next door. I say he should get it in school because it is getting harder and harder to get it anywhere else.

I speak from bitter experience. Modern architecture has just knocked the foundation from under my sex education. The publisher has bricked up the huge window through which I have watched the girls go by for the past 18 years.

This was an unusually splendid window for girl watching. It was on the ground floor, facing the main street. Most important, it was 10 feet high and probably 30 feet wide. It took a slow moving, hip wiggling girl a full half-minute to get out of view. You could see her coming, then full profile, then going. You could see her from shoes to hairdo, when the right girl walked by, it was a marvelous occasion indeed.

(I should add right here that when I say "girl" I am not necessarily talking about teenagers although they can certainly be lovely things when they comb the hair out of their mouths. Some of the finest looking women in my hometown are over 30, even over 40, and it is a definite pleasure to ogle them).

Anyway, these days I am working harder and enjoying it less. You should see what I have to watch girls through. There are 2 thin slits of glass in the new brick front, widely separated. It's like seeing a doll speed by in a convertible. Before you can decide if you're in love again, she's gone from your life forever. If something promising flits by one skinny window, I must turn my head quickly to catch a second glimpse in the other crack. There's no more sitting back and enjoying the scenery in leisure. I must keep alert, forever flicking my eyes from window to window in fear I'll miss a micro-skirt.

The whole procedure makes me feel sneaky - less like a connoisseur of beauty and more like a dirty old man.

What really hurts is that this brick-blow comes at a particularly bad time. As steady readers will recall, I am a leg man, brought up on Betty Grable. Oh, big bosoms are fine and I never threw rocks at Jane Russell. But they can be faked whereas a shapely leg has to be legitimate. Wax flowers are nice from a distance, but I wouldn't want my brother to look for bees in one.

So obviously, for me the mini-skirt was the greatest invention since seamless hose. With summer upon us, I was anticipating a marvelous season of trying to distinguish shorts from culottes from skirts. But here I am, bricked away from the world I love. I think my publisher reads too much Edgar Allen Poe.

It was bad enough, a few years ago, when he installed Venetian blinds. I often went home with striped eyeballs. Now I face a blank wall and can barely see a skinny window from the outer corner of each eye. I'll be going home with an eyeball over each ear.

There may be some of you who will claim that girl watching has nothing to do with sex education. You go to your school and I'll go to mine. Each year it seems to get tougher for a man to proceed Onward and Upward.

No love for Fort Wayne

By Richard Haines

In the beginning, when God created the beautiful and the divine, he must have forgotten Ft. Wayne in Detroit.

Located in southwestern industrial Detroit, Fort Wayne is the state's center for Selective Service physicals and also induction for army, navy and marine inductees, be they enlistments or draftees.

These Army people are interesting. They represent the only institution on earth that want you, if you want them; and want you even more - if you don't.

The center diagnoses 300-500 young Michigan men per day, and recently they diagnosed this one.

Most of the men hopping off the bus steps in front of the center are high school graduates. Many, though, never get past ninth grade; some are college men.

Their assortment defies description. There are grumpy faced, oily hair boys to the suave urban types, though much more of the former. They are primarily an unsettled lot, not having yet set forth towards a career.

One of the first phases of the processing is an aptitude test, or as one inductee said, a mental test, (as if all written tests weren't). It measured verbal, mathematical, and mechanical aptitudes and I scored as high on the verbal, as I did low on the mechanical.

A (Caucasian) oily-haired fellow with a southern, monotone drawl administered the test.

There were about 60 in our "group" throughout the processing and I was first in line when we had to drop everything but our shorts and go to "station" one, the blood sample station and one of 14 stations throughout the diagnosis.

At the next "station", I found out one fellow had fainted after his blood sampling. "He fell right over," one said. I know not if someone revived him, or if he "revived himself," by that time I was on to station two.

At this station, the chap behind me was asked why he didn't fill out the blank asking for next of kin.

"I don't have any," he said. When the official asked him if he didn't have any mother, father, brothers and sisters, he stood mum a moment . . .

"No."

Slightly sedate, he was a slightly stocky fellow with full, brown hair.

"Who do you list as your beneficiary on your insurance policies?" the youth was asked, who probably had no insurance.

The boy, ill at ease, just stood, shifting his feet.

"Well, why don't you just sit down here until you do," said the Doc.

The directions to each station were marked by a yellow line with arrows showing also numbers representing the number of the next-ahead station. Still, some of the guys, to the consternation of the junior officers, would go through a wrong door, miss a station, or embark down the wrong hall.

At another station, a chap next to me told a big, burly Doc with full graying hair he had had polio when he was born.

"It looks alright to me . . . normal muscle growth, no deviation."

"Get a letter from your doctor," said the Doc.

That sentence is a common one at Fort Wayne, because it has special meaning to those who hear it.

Because it means that it is the person being examined that must provide the burden of proof for all draft disqualifications. Examinees must have documentation (written proof) of the full extent of their symptoms and condition. The names of those symptoms and conditions are inadequate, especially in borderline cases.

This puts the examinees in dependence upon the doctors who sometimes send letters to the draft board, instead of to the examinee. One fellow, who had been there three times, said doctors should not be trusted and that a new physician should be obtained and a new examination made at once.

Often times too, draft boards, upon receiving letters from doctors, do not always relay the doctor's report in its complete form, robbing the draftee of the burden of proof he must have when the report gets in the hands of the Fort Wayne people. Their only recourse is then a personal appeal to the U. S. Army Surgeon.

Anywho, one of the more interesting of my experiences was a conversation I had with a neat appearing young officer who seemed to be enjoying the colored secretaries he had, as much as the authority he didn't, at least in some of his statements.

"This is the United States Army," he exclaimed. . . . "This is the largest organization in the world," he said, giving me the stare down, and with that as a start we got into the conversation.

When queried about possible legal actions taken against his decision he immediately phoned a superior (who "thought" the officer was right) and then he called Chicago who didn't know either, and the officer then (simply and mistakenly) let it drop at that.

Somewhat unwilling to recognize legitimate disqualifications, his authoritative sounding statements finalized the ruling, despite the fact that he was making a decision regarding a civil, and not a criminal pending court case, which minutes before he said he couldn't do.

Unfortunately, most of the boys who face this officer (and must provide the burden of proof to) are unprepared, too uneducated, and too inarticulate to do so.

Still another fellow being examined was asking for the laws determining physical disqualifications, only to be told by officers that there were "none on this base."

Odd, isn't it, that the Army, whose aim it is to protect freedoms abroad, encourage, perpetuate and control such lawlessness here at home.

Agent's Corner

Good food can cost less

By Mrs. Ann Ross - Extension Agent

Cutting down your grocery bill needn't mean cutting down on the nutrients your family needs.

It's possible to cut your spending in all four basic food groups and still come out on top nutritionally.

For example, although two servings are still required from the milk group (more for children), you can substitute non-fat dry milk for the fresh fluid kind and come out money ahead. Dry milk is excellent for cooking. And when mixed the night before and chilled in the refrigerator it's hard to tell from the fresh, skim product.

In the bread and cereal group, four servings are recommended daily. The "cook-them-yourself" cereals are generally cheaper than the ready-to-eat kind. And when purchased in larger packages or paper bags they are even less expensive.

Or you might try substituting plain bread for hamburger or hot dog buns. Commercial bakery sweets -- rolls, toasted breakfast tarts, frozen pies, are always more expensive than plain bread and jelly or honey.

And despite their higher cost, many aren't made with enriched flour.

In the fruit and vegetable group, at least one of the four required servings should come from the citrus family. Here your best buy at all times of the year is frozen orange juice or a powdered orange drink fortified with Vitamin C.

On the vegetable side, you need to serve deep yellow or dark leafy ones three times a week. Carrots, canned sweet potatoes and canned spinach are usually your best buys in this group.

In the meat group, where almost one-third of your food dollar is spent, each family member needs at least four ounces a day. To save dollars here, try more low cost protein foods -- such as liver and heart, dried peas and beans, eggs and fish.

To succeed run your train of thought on an elevated railway.

1000 at 4-H youth week program at MSU

BY BERNARD JARDOT

The World Needs Youth was the theme that welcomed our 4-H youth delegates from Tuscola County when they arrived at the State 4-H Youth Week program held recently at Michigan State University. There were nearly 1000 delegates from every corner of the state.

I would like to share some of the points of interest that were presented and discussed in groups that were made up of delegates from several different counties.

The World Needs Youth - For What They Are was the theme for the first day. Some of the questions asked our youth were as follows: "Who do you think you are?", "Are you really who you think you are?", "Do you try to make some people think you are something you are not?", "What do you expect of yourself?" and "What do your parents expect of you?"

JANET KOEPFGEN and Tom Russell, both of Cass City, were among the delegates from Tuscola County, who attended State 4-H Youth Week, held at Michigan State University.

ONE FOR THE ROAD
His 'dirty book'
column best
letter-getter

By Dan Marlowe

I'm asked rather often which column I wrote drew the most mail.

There have been several that drew a lot—one on Martin Luther King, one on old time dance bands, one on nicknames—but the champ is the column that follows, and I'll leave it to you to guess why.

"I used to be opposed to book censorship, whether federal, state, local, churchy, or individual. I was not only in the front pew of those protesting against censorship but among the loudest shouters. Then I had a reading experience which switched my polarities.

"Let me state for the record that I'm no stranger to 'dirty' books. I read Richard Burton and Octave Mirbeau and John Cleland and Frank Harris in the '20's, Henry Miller and Ferdinand Celine in the '30's. The first paperback edition I ever saw was a pirated version of 'Lady Chatterley's Lover' run off in Italy on English plates.

"But 18 months ago I saw a book capsule in a national magazine's review as follows: 'The publisher's extra-special dirty book for the fall line.' Then I began to see an occasional literary review praising the author's integrity if not his content. A friend mailed me a copy, but it was weeks before I read it.

"The old clichés are best. I couldn't put it down. It was a horror story to end them all, a story that takes place all day—and night—in our large cities. It's viciously cruel, barbaric, hard. It takes the breath away in the vicinity of the belt buckle, not the lungs, and I wasn't raised in a convent. Its subject matter, in the main, is unspeakable, its treatment even more so.

"So why read it at all? Because of the way it's written. The author has more impact than a 16-pound sledge upon a thumb nail. If he were a musician, he would be said to have perfect pitch. There is a word for his dialogue, and the word is superb. It's an extraordinary performance, and extraordinary any talent, but -- recommend the book? No.

"The book is almost all pure filth. It's life, but it's filth. I never thought I'd see the day when I'd back away from recommending a well-written 'naturalistic' novel, but the day is here. And don't bother telling me that I forgot to include the title of the book in this 'review'. I omitted it deliberately.

"It's one man's opinion that this is a book that should definitely have been written but just as definitely shouldn't be read.

"A paradox, but a fact." Now, readers, can you guess why the above column drew more mail than any other I've written?

But perhaps you already know that human nature is predictable.
