

HILLS AND DALES CHIEF X-ray technician Bob Hutchinson (left) and Dr. J. J. Zuzga (at right) observe the final touches of installer-technician Ron Parrott of Mt. Morris, and originally of Deckerville. The $6,000 machine will vastly speed the number of X-rays the hospital and the emergency department can handle in a given period.

Automation hailed by lab technicians

Technicians, it is said, are persons who make things work. And when they get machines that make things work faster, they have a natural right to be delighted.

One such technician is Robert Hutchinson, chief X-ray technician at Hills and Dales Hospital whose new film processor is letting him do just that.

Hutchinson is enthusiastic over the department's new automatic X-ray film developer that has made a 1 1/2-hour job a 90-second snap. A youthful, slender fellow with heavy black spectacles, Hutchinson marvels over the new machine with justified pride.

"No muss, no fuss," said the neat department chief. He said the new machine will trim labor in the X-ray department as much as 15 hours per week. He said the machine will allow technicians to spend more time attending the patients and will eliminate much of the M.D.'s waiting for patients' X-ray readings.

The processor, which cost Hills and Dales about $6,000 with installation was purchased from Acan Solutions of Mt. Morris. It features a continuous roller transport system using 90 gallons of hot water per minute.

Much of the push for automation, he said, stems from the increased flow of patients in recent years. He reported that last February the total number of X-rays was 406, up from 280 in 1968 and from 215 in 1967.

The big jump, he said, rises from out-patient services, resulting in part from a shortage of hospital beds. Out-patient services numbered 118 last year, up from 50 in February of 1968 and from 34 in 1967.

Hutchinson said the rise in out-patient services also is caused by Medicare, but possibly also because more people are coming to Hills and Dales that used to go to Tri-city hospitals.

He said prior to 1965, three part time personnel manned the department including present chief lab technician Jon Fahrner, registered X-ray technician Orland Kauffman, and registered technologist Jo Ann Brown.

Since then, Hutchinson has been added to head the department with Theron Middaugh who administered electrocardiograms and assisted in the X-ray department, as well as Michael Jayson, M.D., a radiologist in charge of special examinations on Monday and Thursday afternoons.

"We were taxed for time, and the new machine gets us out of the bind," said the X-ray chief. "Right now there are pieces of machinery we'd like awful bad, there are so many new things on the market, but we are adequate now."

"A hospital this size finds it hard to compete," he said, "but the hospital has done a miraculous job in keeping up with modern equipment."

FROM THE Editor's Corner

The bigots would have been aghast if they had seen the youth embarking for Europe in the Youth for Understanding exchange program last week at Metropolitan Airport.

Among the students were a group of college kids who made it with a Chorale group and were getting ready to tour Europe and the Iron curtain countries.

With hosts of parents and well wishers crowding into the departure area the concourse hallway was jammed.

And right in front of all these people no less than four white girl students kissed a black student good-by.

Don't jump to conclusions . . . they were kissing the way any friends might do . . . nothing sexual . . . just wishing a friend bon voyage as she takes off on high adventure.

Beatniks? Exhibitionists? Ultra Mods? Nope . . . just ordinary college kids with ordinary dress, hair cuts and manners . . . dressed about the same as my daughter.

The black student was clean shaven, had a short hair cut and wore a college sweater . . . he'd have been unrecognizable even in the 1940's when I finished school.

And there . . . my prejudices are showing. I naturally lean to short hair and clean shaves. Actually, if the boy wore long hair and a beard, does it make him any less . . . or any more?

White, black, yellow or red we all have our prejudices and our prejudices always defy reason. And because it does, it is the hardest of all to change. A different concept is rejected . . . despite reason . . . how many centuries was it that everyone knew the world was flat?

But if you believe that any solution will ever come in the black-white race problem, you must believe it will come from youth.

Certainly if you believe it is essential, as I do, that the races get along it is wonderful to know that the airport incident could happen. You'll never see it on a television report of a Student for Democratic Society convention report.

It was an isolated incident and you can't read too much in it. Except that it's still so unusual that I noticed it and am now writing about it.

What's really needed is a breaking of our relations with other races so that a white kid kissing a black kid good-by will not cause any more comment than any other good-by among friends.

Fed funds inadequate to meet farm pond demand

BY RICHARD HAINES

Swim'n days at the ole water hole used to be at the creek in back of the homestead.

As a kind of pond that fish could thrive in, and ducks splash in, the back water hole was also a common meeting place for neighboring farmboys on hot afternoons. The old days.

Now, the "feds" have moved in and affluent area farmers are cashing in on the green of a Federal program that puts fish, ducks and kids in blue cool.

Under an obscure title in a Federal program, country cousins are enhancing the value of their "country estates" while their urban counterparts are getting repeatedly turned down.

It's called "cost-share" through the Agriculture Conservation Project (ACP) of the Tuscola Office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Director George Schlan of the Tuscola ASCS office reports 32 made application for a share of the federal pie last year, and the number of this year's planned ponds is already up to 41.

The farm pond program, one of several "land use" titles in which farmers can opt "cost-share" for using conservation practices, was started in Tuscola in 1962 and has continued with an average of 12-13 completed per year through 1967.

The applications are administered by a small committee of farmers in most counties, which establishes priorities for the county.

Farm pond applications are therefore in competition with a number of other conservation practices for cost-share participation, as well as in competition with one another for the roughly $120,000 allocated annually to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The ponds, which vary from "swampholes to nice ponds" have an original cost to the owner of $120 to about $1,750.

Since January, however, the amount of Federal green has been limited to $250 because of the high number of applicants requesting cost-share.

The thumbs-up satisfaction of the Thumb counties is showing a unique increase, notes state assistant conservationist Kenneth McMannus, who said many other portions of the state are evidencing a decline in the number of applications.

Some of the applications turned down are those for properties with vacillating water tables and soils unable to hold water levels. While the ASCS committee is the financial hand that feeds the projects, the group providing "technical assistance" or advice for the project is usually the soil conservation service, the state fisheries, and the state forestry service.

Non-farm or urban property owners are consistently turned down because of the "farmer" qualification required by the national act. They can, however, receive technical assistance, and they often do.

Related farm pond story on page four

McMannus said the game biologists love the idea as much as the farmers do because it enhances wildlife habitat. Fish plantings are an additional cost to the pond owner, but once they're planted, they reportedly are not the fisherman's haven they're hoped to be. "They're hard to catch," said one Sanilac pond owner.

Lapeer ASCS office manager Robert Link reported the ponds, as a conservation practice, are important to land use especially in watershed areas, where there is often excessive runoff. He said one reason Congress opened this title principally to farmers is that they own the upriver lands where runoff can be controlled. "This is basically a problem of the farmers," he said, "and it relates to tree planting and other conservation practices."

Link said one of the biggest problems is "sediment pollution." There have been cases where sediment drifts onto river bottoms making a graveyard of plant and aquatic life upon which fish are known to

LOOKS TO FUTURE—Donald Koepfgen received a $700 subsidy for a $1,400 pond located off the south end of Koepfgen Road in a farm pasture about one-quarter mile from the Cass River. He uses it for fish plantings and recreation and ponders expanding it with ultimate hopes for it as part of a river frontage development project.

Gun Club to protest Thumb doe season

Representatives of the Cass City Gun Club will be on hand to protest the opening of the Thumb to antlerless deer hunting at a special meeting slated Tuesday, July 8, at 8 p.m. at the Tuscola County Conservation Club at Caro.

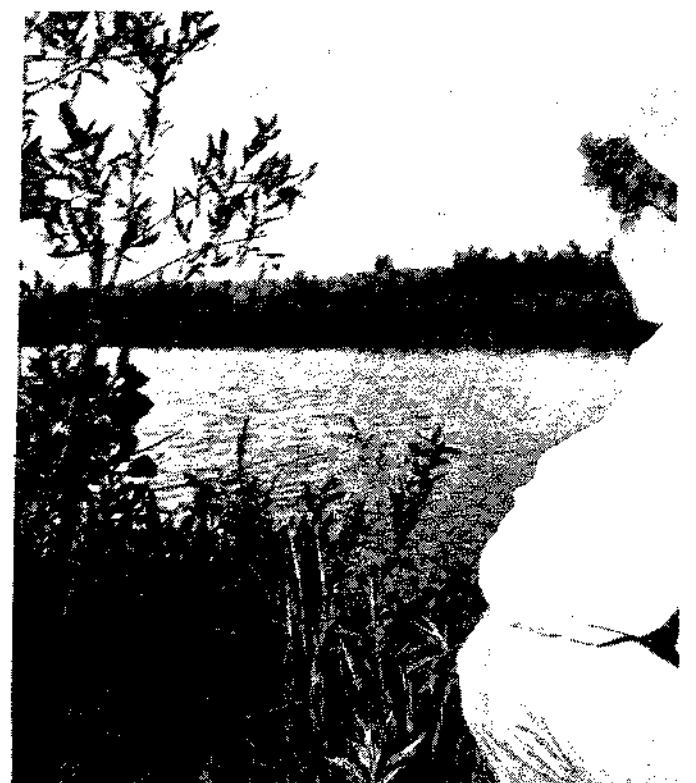

George Lapp, Cass City, Gun Club spokesman, said that it was largely due to the club's efforts that the Department of Natural Resources agreed to call the meeting.

How much good it will do is hard to say, Lapp said, but he will be present to let the department know how we feel.

Lapp stressed that the meeting was open to the public and is held under the auspices of District 9 of Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

The Thumb is divided into two districts. One is all land north of M-21 in St. Clair county and all of Sanilac and Huron counties. The second is all of Tuscola county and parts of Lapeer, Genesee and Bay counties.

Dave Arnold, deer specialists, and other members of the DNR will attend.

FISH COMING—Richard Donahue has ordered fish for his farm pond located south of the junction of Schwegler and Buehrig Roads, two miles northeast of Cass City. The pond, located in a very remote area off a two-track dirt road, has unfortunately been an attraction to night partying youngsters, he said. He said his family has used the pond for swimming and that it was valuable in enhancing the value of the property for future possible sale.

Member cooperation key to cycle club growth

BY RICHARD HAINES

A club that once rejuvenated a chicken coop for a clubhouse has now developed into a corporation worth upwards of $10,000 that has trouble spending money fast enough to keep from paying taxes.

The "Lucky Thumb Motorcycle Club", resting on a grassy knoll of Bevans Road, 10 miles south of Cass City, is led by a strapping Flint assemblyman, Marvin Armbruster.

Started with 12 charter members in 1962—a handful of cycle enthusiasts that envisioned what could happen when a group of men put their shoulders to the grindstone.

Armbruster, originally of Unionville, changed jobs a few years back, but he still makes the Flint to Cass City drive twice a month. He reportedly sets the pace at the clubhouse and his members say he hasn't missed a meeting since the club's inception.

"The Club" is spelled with a capital "C", because it's one built by the hands, minds and hearts of its members. Calling each other "the guys" they have built a clubhouse, and built a road to a nearby area they cleared of trees and stumps to build a quarter-mile "scrambler" race track.

It's been hard work, but it's their own.

The club meets the 3rd Saturday of the month, and for four years, they've been making payments on their 40 acre stake and only have roughly $1,000 to go. It's $1,000 they could have paid last year, but didn't, for fear of becoming a taxable corporation and losing their non-profit status. Armbruster said they may purchase adjacent land.

Improving the club property is a never ending job and the members love it. Recently a water well was added and public interest and attendance at races will soon demand an expanded parking lot. It will be hacked out of a nearby swampy woods.

Most urgent of future projects is expanding the clubhouse. Members want an enlarged kitchen and room for a pool table.

We've come a long way, says Armbruster with obvious satisfaction.

One of the president's many duties is operating the public address system at race time. Perched precariously in a skeletal wood structure overlooking a curve on the track he lets the crowd know just what is happening as the racers buzz around the track at 30 to 40 miles per hour.

The club now sponsors four races per year and each can gross up to $500. Last year there were five races but the work for members became so great that one was eliminated this season.

Keeping a track operating is no small task. It must be periodically pack-graded and brined. Led by the president members grab paper bags and go all out after a racing event

Ellen Nuechterlein weds in Iowa City

Marriage vows were spoken June 14 in Gloria Dei Lutheran Church at Iowa City, Iowa, between Robert Fritsch, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fritsch of Chicago, and Ellen Nuechterlein, daughter of Pastor and Mrs. Otto Nuechterlein of Key-stone, Iowa. The bride's father officiated at the ceremony while Pastor Paul Rothfusz of Elkader, Iowa, delivered the sermon.

The bride designed her gown of chiffon over satin, accented by a stand-up collar with antique pearls. Her headpiece was a cluster of silk petals trimmed with antique pearls. She carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of white roses and ivy.

Mrs. Richard Osslund of Cleveland, Ohio, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore a white linen gown with an Empire waistline of soft garters.

William Fritsch, M. D., of Iowa City, brother of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Robert Carp, Ph.D., and Dean Bonderman, Ph.D., both of Iowa City.

Mr. and Mrs. Fritsch, who received their Master's degrees from the University of Iowa, will reside on campus of the Lutheran School of Theology in Chicago where he is enrolled as a student.

Rabbit tracks

BY JOHN HAIRE

(And anyone else he can get to help)

The town of Mio is bigger than you think. At the last population census, it listed 500 persons. Is it possible to hide nine grown men in a town of this size?

You betcha. If they come from Cass City. Nine local businessmen left Wednesday noon on a golfing trip to Mio and I drove up to meet them after the working day.

After an evening's fishing, I cruised to the cabin where they were (supposedly) staying and found no one home. After a late supper I toured the entire town for about a half hour and they were nowhere. I checked the restaurants, library, drive-in movie, schools, churches . . . anyplace where you might possibly expect to find them. No results.

Finally at 10:30 p.m. I gave up and came home. Never did learn for sure where they went.

Three final observations concerning the sex education controversy in Cass City:

One is that it proves again that a vocal minority can sway public opinion out of proportion to their numbers. A recent nation-wide survey by a respected polling concern indicates that 85 per cent of the people desire sex education in schools . . . yet due to extreme pressure, some schools have dropped the course.

Last week, Roy Severance of Ann Arbor brought me a sample outline of the sex course used in a Michigan high school.

He felt the questions were outrageous. I felt they covered the subject. My concern would be with the way they were answered.

Since I've seen a course preview I think the answers would be the right ones.

Third, it seems a shame that an equivalent amount of interest can't be drummed up about the entire educational program. Letters to the editor about sex have been running five to one over letters concerning the millage issue that affects the entire school program.

****

What does a publisher-editor do when he retires? He writes books . . . that is if he's like Douglas Gallery, former co-publisher of the Tuscola County Advertiser.

Gallery's second book since he retired has hit the news-stands. Called "Country Cousins", it is a series of anecdotes about various topics that interest the author.

Written in a light, folksy style, travelers who have been to New York, antique hunters and just plain small town people will identify with the author.

It's recommended for light reading on a summer afternoon.

Sandra Geiger on Dean's list

Sandra Geiger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Geiger of Cass City, has been named to the Dean's List for the spring term at Northwood Institute, Midland. She is a freshman in a secretarial course.

Northwood Institute is a private, co-educational, residential college which offers specialized two-year business management oriented courses in a number of fields in addition to liberal and fine arts, and a four-year business administration program.

This is no accident

But you're our witness, anyway—to a piece-of-ful demonstration of how quickly and easily Maverick can be taken apart and put together. We designed Maverick that way for a good reason. When you're paying by the hour for service or repairs, speed is important. And at times like this, nothing can beat a simple machine.

Most new cars are more and more complicated. And more expensive to care for. Maverick's so simple to service, you can do it yourself—if you really mean it about being independent.

You won't feel like an orphan either. Our Owner's Manual shows you how to handle all the routine service. You can tune and time your engine, change plugs and points, adjust the idle, the headlamps, the handbrakes, do nearly 40 different service operations.

40th WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Buehrly was the scene of a lovely wedding celebration Sunday when Donald, Esther, Dale and Louise Buehrly were hosts at the 40th wedding anniversary of their parents.

Lawrence Buehrly, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Buehrly, was born June 30, 1902, and Ethel White, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred White, was born August 15, 1911. They were married at the home of the bride's parents in rural Cass City by the late Rev. C. W. Lyman, pastor of the EUB Church of Cass City.

Edward Buehrly, brother of the groom, and Isla White Cook, sister of the bride, were attendants.

The couple have three children, Donald and Esther, at home, and Dale of Greenland Road, Cass City; also two grandchildren, Larry and Christine Buehrly, children of Dale and Louise Buehrly.

About 125 persons attended the open house from Detroit, Dearborn, Saginaw, Port Huron, Sandusky, Carsonville, Sebewaing, Owendale, Caro and Cass City.

The couple received many lovely gifts.

A lunch of cake, ice cream, punch and coffee was served the guests.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Top jokes from a funny book

By Dan Marlowe

A couple or three jokes abstracted from H. Allen Smith's (a very funny man) joke-book, Buskin' With H. Allen Smith: An organization of distillers was holding a dinner at a big hotel in Washington while in another room at the same time the members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union were having a banquet.

Someone made a mistake in the hotel kitchen, and the dessert intended for the distillers --watermelon soaked in brandy --was served to the temperance ladies while the distillers received plain ice cream.

The banquet manager became aware of the mistake too late to make a change. He held his breath until both functions were over, then asked a waiter who had worked the WCTU banquet if any of the ladies had remarked upon the watermelon. "No," said the waiter thoughtfully, "but I did notice quite a few of them putting the seeds in their pocketbooks."

A mountain lad named Zeph missed school for three days, and his teacher demanded to know why. "Because my Paw sleeps nekkid," Zeph answered.

"What on earth does that have to do with your missing school for three days?" the teacher wanted to know.

"It's this way, teacher," Zeph said. "The other night there was a ruction out in the chicken-house an' it woke Paw up. He jumped out of bed, nekkid, an' he grabbed his double-barrel shotgun an' crep out've the house. Our old hound dog Blue come out from under the house an' he follered along behind Paw, an' Paw pushed open the chickenhouse door an' poked his shotgun inside. Just then ol' Blue he done cold-nosed Paw in the bein' an' that shotgun went off, both barrels, an' teacher, I been pickin' chickens for three days."

In the days before hurricane warnings, the 1938 hurricane that hit the New York City area, raged across Long Island, and smashed into New England produced the following story.

A dirty-rich gentleman living in the Hamptons out on Long Island was in Abercrombie & Fitch's big Manhattan store early that August. After picking up some expensive special fishing equipment he bought himself a handsome new barometer. He took it home and hung it on the wall in his huge mansion. A few days later he took a look at it and was startled.

He took it down from the wall and wrapped it for mailing, enclosing a note to Abercrombie & Fitch which said: "This instrument is defective. At 11:00 a. m. this date it registered HURRICANE. Kindly send a replacement."

He got in his car and drove to the nearest post office to mail the package, and when he got home, his mansion was gone.

Experts tell proper farm pond care

About 40 property owners, who either own or are planning farm ponds, gathered early Monday, June 23, at the edge of a superbly designed pond belonging to Bearne Rolner, three miles southeast of Millington, to hear a series of fish, soil, and conservation experts give pointers on pond planning.

A damp breeze and heavily overcast sky had poplar leaves fluttering overhead as the listeners, bundled in sweaters and jackets, heard experts tell of total planning and proper maintenance in a very informal outdoor "symposium", sponsored by the Tuscola Agricultural officials.

Tuscola Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) director George Schian told the group, that as a conservation practice, cost-share cooperators may receive 30 per cent reimbursement on costs and up to $250 in the development of multi-use farm ponds.

He reported a surge of applicants has used up this year's available ASCS funds for farm ponds and that 41 applications had been received with over half of these already receiving approval. With an estimated 120 ponds in the county, he said 81 have been cost-share cooperators in the years 1962 through 1967.

District Resource Developer James Neil asked the listeners, "If you have a farm pond what do you hope to do with it?" "Do you," he asked, "want to use it for planting fish, irrigation, scenery, runoff control, recreation, or as a publicly-used recreation facility?"

"Some put in fish and that's the end of it," he said.

He said a cool source of water and good pond depth (15 feet) was important for providing a fish habitat. He told the listeners that clear water, shallow water, and warmer water encouraged weed growth and that weed control was imperative for effective pond maintenance.

Neil said that water runoff, a flowing well, and spring fed water sources were all sufficient to develop a farm pond. Cases have been found, he said, where the water table was found a couple feet below the surface and an excavated pond immediately filled with water, fed by underground springs.

Dan Smith, area engineer for the soil conservation service for the Saginaw Valley area, said a good pond site must be located before deciding what type and size to build, whether it be "pit" or "fill". Loam soils, it was said, are sometimes blasted with dynamite for excavation purposes.

He emphasized using grass cover on exposed areas around the pond to prohibit soil from washing into the pond. This was preferred over a type of pond "beach", he said.

Jim Neil distributed leaflets on the identification of pond weeds saying this was the first step in effective control.

Bill Mason, fish biologist of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources with headquarters in Inlay City, said a permit was required before chemicals could be used in ponds utilized by the public. He said the permits could be obtained from the Inlay City office.

Mason said the federal government will stock, at no charge, brood bass or blue gills, but not trout in private ponds.

Trout have to be periodically re-planted, he said, because they will not reproduce in a pond as will bluegills or bass. He said if trout plantings are made, the planting of other fish should be avoided to avail the full food supply for the trout.

Michigan State University entomologists found a tiny, worm-like nematode that acts as a parasite in floodwater mosquitoes. The nematodes either kill the mosquito outright or disrupt its reproduction cycle so it can't reproduce. The MSU scientists are now rearing parasites and mosquitoes in controlled atmosphere chambers to improve nematode effectiveness.

Dear Mister Editor:

Clem Webster reported to the fellers at the country store Saturday night he had saw a reminder in the paper about who has say so over money in this country. Natural, it's the wim-men folks. Clem said the piece he read claimed wim-men spend 85 cent out of ever dollar spent by families.

Bug Hookum said he wasn't doubting Clem's figgers, but what he wanted to know was what his old lady had been doing with his 15 cent change all these years. Bug said he heard some feller say this is the only country in the world where men git their pictures on the money and the wim-men git their hands on it.

This piece Clem read allowed that wim-men is sharper shoppers and harder to suit than men. Clem said his old lady spent half the day in town shopping last week. When she got home Clem ask her why she didn't buy a solitary thing. Clem said she jest snorted and said fer the same reason you men go fishing and don't catch nothing.

Manufacturers say wim-men will swear at a product afore they will swear by it. Wim-men has to be showed beyond a shadow of a doubt that the product is what it's supposed to be.

Sometimes, Bug said, a product gits too good. He heard where this feller was complaining that the detergent his old lady used was so good he couldn't go to church. This feller swore the detergent got his shirts so white he couldn't wear 'em to church cause the glare hurt his eyes.

Even if that was a true story, Ed Doolittle said, it probable was more a excuse to stay home from preaching than the glare on the eyes. Ed was of the opinion the average feller wants just enuff religion that don't require him to go to church if he can come up with a halfway decent excuse.

Speaking of wim-men and the way they handle money, Ed recalled the time his old lady was in charge of the money fer her church circle. Ed said she lost the money and worried herself sick. She said she knowed the Lord believed she lost it and forgived her, but she said the wim-men in her circle would never believe or forgive.

Ed said if they was anything wim-men is particular about it's gitting their money's worth, and in this day and time that takes some doing. General, said Ed, men looks on money like they do time. It's somepun to use. He said he knowed, fer instant, that us fellers waste a heap of time discussing matters at the store, but he said he, fer one, don't consider time or money wasted when he enjoyed wasting it.

I reckon, Mister Editor, when you enjoy wasting time and money it comes under recreation.

BARN DESTROYED - A pole barn and 1,000 bales of hay were destroyed along with a $300 elevator and a stack of rough lumber at the home of Mrs. Nettie Krohn eight miles north of Cass City. Elkland Township firemen saved an adjacent barn when they answered the call Sunday afternoon.

Firemen save adjacent barn in blaze at Krohn farm

Elkland Township Fire Department to task for several hours after the 2:15 p.m. fire call. No estimates were made on the fire; however, Mrs. Krohn, a widow, said the building was worth more than its $1,500 insured value. In addition its contents were destroyed including 1,000 bales of hay, a $300 elevator, and what a neighbor estimated at 25,000 feet of rough lumber.

Big, gaping holes evidenced the drifting smolderings throughout the haystack which by Monday morning were expected to continue for two or three more days.

A large portion of the rafters of an adjacent barn were slightly damaged, but its tin roof was only discolored.

A morning check Monday by Mrs. Krohn evidenced newly developed smolderings at the base of a barn beam in the adjacent barn, which doused, showed smolderings about a foot deep and about two feet in width.

FARM POND

feed and depend.

When asked, all Tuscola, Sanilac and Lapeer ASCS officials "liked the idea" of opening the program to non-farm, or urban property owners.

Ken McMannus at Lansing was also strongly sympathetic to the addition of urban applicants but he said such a change would require an addition to the Act as passed by Congress, plus a supplemental appropriation.

He said getting last year's Congressional approval was rocky, especially in the House and he added that a slight cut is slightly possible in the program this year.

Farmers owning the ponds say it enhances the value of their property and that the ponds require little maintenance.

One Sanilac cash crop farmer, asked how he could afford to spend $1,600 for the pond he had built, said "some spend it for booze, I spend it on ponds."

Novesta officials not mentioned at council—Althaver

A story in last week's Chronicle about a Novesta Township ordinance saying that township officials were becoming frustrated with its abandoned car ordinance was incorrect, Village President Lambert Althaver said.

What was pointed out, Althaver explained, was that ordinance in Novesta was reviewed by our village attorney and he advises that certain portions were not applicable for village use.

I made no comment about Novesta officials, Althaver said, only the ordinance as it relates to Cass City.

To Improve With Built-Ins

For remodeling the kitchen with built-in range products — such as electric ovens and surface units — kitchen experts offer these tips.

Don't install the oven too high. Ideal installation height should be about 36 inches from the floor, with the oven door at countertop level when open.

Don't put built-in ovens and surface cooking units directly side-by-side. At least nine inches of countertop should separate the appliances to allow plenty of space for pots and pans.

FILTERING WATER

Attached to cold water line under kitchen sink, Aqua-Pure P50 home water filter takes unpleasant tastes, odors — of sulphur, chlorine and other substances — out of drinking water. Activated charcoal cartridge inside filter is changed twice a year.

Cereal Leaf Beetle can destroy crop

By Don Kebler

Last year I had four inquiries about cereal leaf beetles, the year before two, and in the past week over two dozen. So in the last three years the rate of cereal leaf beetle increase seems to be on the rise in Tuscola county.

Most all the field inspections made this year by me have been on oats with one on barley. This is what one can expect, because oat plants are the preferred food to the cereal leaf beetle and young. These beetles and young will feed some on the leaves of barley, wheat, young corn, rye and native grasses but generally not extensively.

The life cycle of this insect is as follows. The 3/16 inch long adults emerge for hibernation in late March. These adults are identified quite easily with its head and wing cover being a metallic bluish black color. The area between the head and wing cover area and the legs are orange-red.

These adults lay eggs in late April, early May in clusters of two to three yellowish eggs per leaf. The young larvae begin chewing out long strips between the leaf veins leaving only a fine layer of leaf tissue in the eaten area. These larvae are usually brownish black in color but when touched the watery black body excreta rubs off exposing their true yellowish color. After reaching mature size the larvae drop from the plants, form an earthen shell and pupate into new adults which emerge about the middle of June. The adults feed until fall leaving the same pattern of feeding as the larvae except they eat completely through the leaf. They then hibernate in field trash fence rows, earthen crevices and corn stubble until spring.

Unfortunately these adults do not all emerge from hibernation at the same time. Thus the egg laying period is spread out for several weeks and several hatches can be found in one field.

When is the infestation considered serious enough to warrant a spray control program? Generally if there are two to three larvae present per each plant and the plant has not headed yet, the larvae could do sufficient damage to warrant a spray control.

If the oats are just heading out with little or no previous leaf feeding damage, six to eight larvae may not do sufficient damage to reduce crop yield enough to offset the cost of spraying and possible spray damage. There are some in-between situations also and it is difficult for anyone to out-guess the question of spraying or not spraying.

I have already seen some oats with sufficient larvae damage to give the field the appearance of being frosted. These oats were just starting to head and the operators sprayed. We are watching the results for future reference. Reports have it that oats in Berrien county have serious infestation of 12 to 15 larvae per each plant and the crop was lost.

Pollution solution: DEMAND clean air

Whether you live in the city, suburbs, or country, the problem of air pollution is as close to you as your own lungs. We all depend on air as a matter of survival. Yet we may not be able to survive with the air we breathe unless something is done.

Every day of our lives, approximately 21,600 times each 24 hours, we breathe in the precious life sustaining substance known very simply as air.

The question is no longer "Does air pollution harm human health?" Long ago the answer to that was found to be Yes, a definite affirmative. Experts agree that a whole range of diseases is caused or worsened by air pollution; diseases from emphysema to myocardial infarction.

I recall flying into a major city and visiting the vice-president of the top industry of that city. I said to him, "There was a heavy smog over the city when I arrived and some of the smog was due to the smoke from your industry's stacks. Can't you do something about that?"

The executive said, "Yes there is."

I asked: "Then why don't you do it?"

His answer was "We'll do it when one of two things happens: 1. It becomes cheaper to take sulphur out of the smoke-stack than to bring it in in freight cars, or 2. The legislature tells us we must."

I don't think that is the attitude of all of the industries, but it does reflect the attitude of some. That is the reason why the people of this state and nation must rise up and demand that steps be taken to clean up our air. And don't blame industry alone. Look at the stacks of our great universities and you will see acrid smoke pouring out of them. And government buildings, utilities owned by government, are equally guilty. The men who run these simply will not do anything, such as installing smoke abatement apparatus, which will increase their costs unless everyone is forced to act simultaneously. I'm afraid only the public can bring this about. Unfortunately the public can probably do so only through laws.

Let's be specific: First, "What specific air pollutants are harmful?" "How much of them?" "Why?" Answers are being developed for these questions. Firm answers that may support preventive legislation.

Here are some of them: Soot and ash shrouding America's industrial cities may contribute to the increased incidence of gastric cancer in older residents. Recent studies have shown a statistical relationship exists between particulate air pollution and stomach cancer. Gastric cancer deaths in the highest risk group, ages 50 to 69, were almost doubled in areas of greatest suspended particulate air pollution. Even accounting for economic and ethnic predisposing factors, increased mortality, both overall and for stomach cancer, was evident in areas of high pollution. As expected, gastric cancer deaths were most frequent among persons of low economic status living in highly polluted areas. In the most extreme of these situations the calculated annual death rate for the malignancy was 135 per 100,000 males. But, not a single gastric cancer death occurred, during the study, in areas of highest average income and lowest pollution.

The pattern of increased gastric cancer mortality was similar for women in high polluted areas although the overall incidence was less than for men.

The question arises, "Why should not these air particles affect the respiratory organs, instead of the stomach?" The answer is that the mechanism by which larger particles (such as those from soft coal) could prove carcinogenic to the stomach and not to the respiratory organs isn't too clear. However, it is known that particles too large to slide along the nasal mucosa are cleared into the pharynx and swallowed. Of course, the suspended particles cannot be inhaled exclusively as the cause of gastric cancer, at least from current evidence. A multi-factor situation, including genetic predisposition, chronic exposure, and secondary irritations may exist.

Nevertheless, gastric cancer remains among the first four causes of death from malignancy in American men despite a fifty percent decline of this neoplasm since the 1950's.

"The potential for prevention by control of suspended particulate air pollution is technically feasible," say the experts: "Such controls can be implemented now even though the exact agent or agents of causation remain unidentified."

Some association may exist between myocardial infarction fatality rates and atmospheric carbon monoxide, we are told, although further studies are needed. Infant death rates in Los Angeles, hospitals neighboring high carbon monoxide-polluted areas, seemed to rise when pollution levels were elevated on the day of patients' admissions. Deaths in 36 hospitals during 1956 were analyzed.

All this is not to say that something is not being done. It is just not enough. The petroleum industry spent a record $382,000,000 in 1968, in its continuing efforts to help clean up the nation's air and water. This outlay of money came after the outlay of $358,000,000 in 1967 and $271,000,000 in 1966. Add them together and you have more than one billion dollars being spent by the petroleum industry alone on air and water conservation in 1966-68. But don't wait for the big boys to do the big job, it must be done by each of us in our home community if it's going to be successful.

Don't be content to pave the way with good intentions.

Giants win title

Little league set to start play-off

Drawings for the play-offs in the Little League were held Monday evening and the post season one-game and out-tournament gets underway Monday when the Yanks face the Orioles.

Tuesday night the Cubs face the Giants and Wednesday the Pirates and the Tigers tangle. Thursday the winners of the Yanks-Orioles and Giants-Cubs games play and the finals will be Friday.

The Pirates are defending champions, but are given little chance to repeat in a rebuilding year. Odds-on favorite to win will be the Giants who are undefeated in league play this year.

The Giants closed out their regular season Monday with an 8-1 decision over the Tigers. The Giants used one big inning when they scored seven runs to ice the decision.

Decker was on the mound for the Tigers and pitched well. Craig Helwig won for the Giants, striking out 14. Jerry Toner picked up three hits and Zawilinski slammed a home run over the left field wall.

In other action the Yanks split two games. Friday they were bested by the Tigers 4-3 in extra innings. Jim Root and Dave Eberline were locked in a pitching duel. Each boy pitched well for the maximum six innings allowed. Kim Copeland cracked a homer with one on for the Yanks.

Rick Damm took a tough defeat as he was plagued by shoddy fielding in the inning he worked. Saturday night the Yanks scored early and often to defeat the Pirates, 25-3. Phil Bader started on the mound for the Yanks and received credit for the win. Clarke Haire pitched the last three innings. Root slammed a home run.

Tuesday night, June 24, Jerry Toner pitched the Giants to a 10-1 decision over the Cubs. Toner struck out 15.

Leading the Giant attack were Toner, Zawilinski and Helwig with three hits each.

abutment, one-quarter of a mile east of Plaine road on Decker-ville road. Tuscola sheriff Hugh Marr reported the auto traveled 189 feet with its right tires on the shoulder before it jerked off the 2 feet high, 10 inches thick abutment and landed on its side in the dried creekbed.

Novak was traveling east and officers reported the cause of the accident is yet undetermined. Caro Hospital officials predict it will be one week before Novak can be discharged.

Bank in Bad Axe to change name

The shareholders and directors of Hubbard State Bank, which was established in Bad Axe in 1886 by Frank W. Hubbard, have approved a change in the bank's name to Community Bank, effective July 1, according to Albert G. Spaeth, chairman of the board of directors.

Under its former name, the bank has enjoyed a steady, sustained growth to a position among the leading financial institutions in the state. Total deposits reached a high of $28.8 million at the end of 1968, compared with $10.3 million in 1957, reflecting an increase of 260% in the 12-year period. Since merging with Elkton State Bank and Kinde State Bank in 1956, the bank has extended its banking services in the Thumb to seven branch offices covering six communities. Besides its two Bad Axe locations, the bank maintains full service branches in Minden City, Caseville, Uby, Kinde, and Elkton.

Erla's drop 1st game in Uby Loop

When Erla's suffers one of its infrequent defeats in the Uby Recreation Softball League it is Carling's that causes the trouble.

And the trouble makers were at it again Monday, June 23, when they topped defending champion Erla's 3-2. It was Erla's lone defeat in three outings in league action.

All the scoring was concentrated in the third inning. In the top of the third, Carling's bunched four hits for three runs off Elywn Helwig.

In the bottom of the third, a walk, a hit and a single by Hillaker netted two runs for Erla's, but they were unable to push across the run that would have tied the score.

The next night the Foodmen got back on the winning trail with a 4-2 decision over Nugent Motors. Al Bosch allowed five hits and was nicked for a pair of runs in the second inning.

It appeared that Erla's might suffer an unprecedented two losses in a row for six innings.

The champions trailed 2-1 going into the seventh. Then John Maharg doubled and rode home on a hit by Dan Erla. Dean Hoag walked and both runners came charging home on an error on a ball hit by Hillaker. That was the ball game.

Friday the same two teams met and this time it was no contest as Erla's scored early and often. They started with a single run in the first and then scored eight times on five hits in the second.

Al Bosch started on the mound and received credit for the victory. He held Nugent's scoreless while on the mound. Dean Hoag, who pitches infrequently, mopped up and was touched for the lone counter by Nugent's.

Set July 19 deadline for bean queen contest

Farm Bureau, National Farmers Organization, farmers' club groups, Granges and others have been asked to encourage qualified candidates to get their nominations in for the Tuscola County Bean Queen Contest, which will be held in conjunction with the 1969 Tuscola County Fair during the week of July 28 to Aug. 5, advises Fred Black of Akron, Bean Queen Committee chairman.

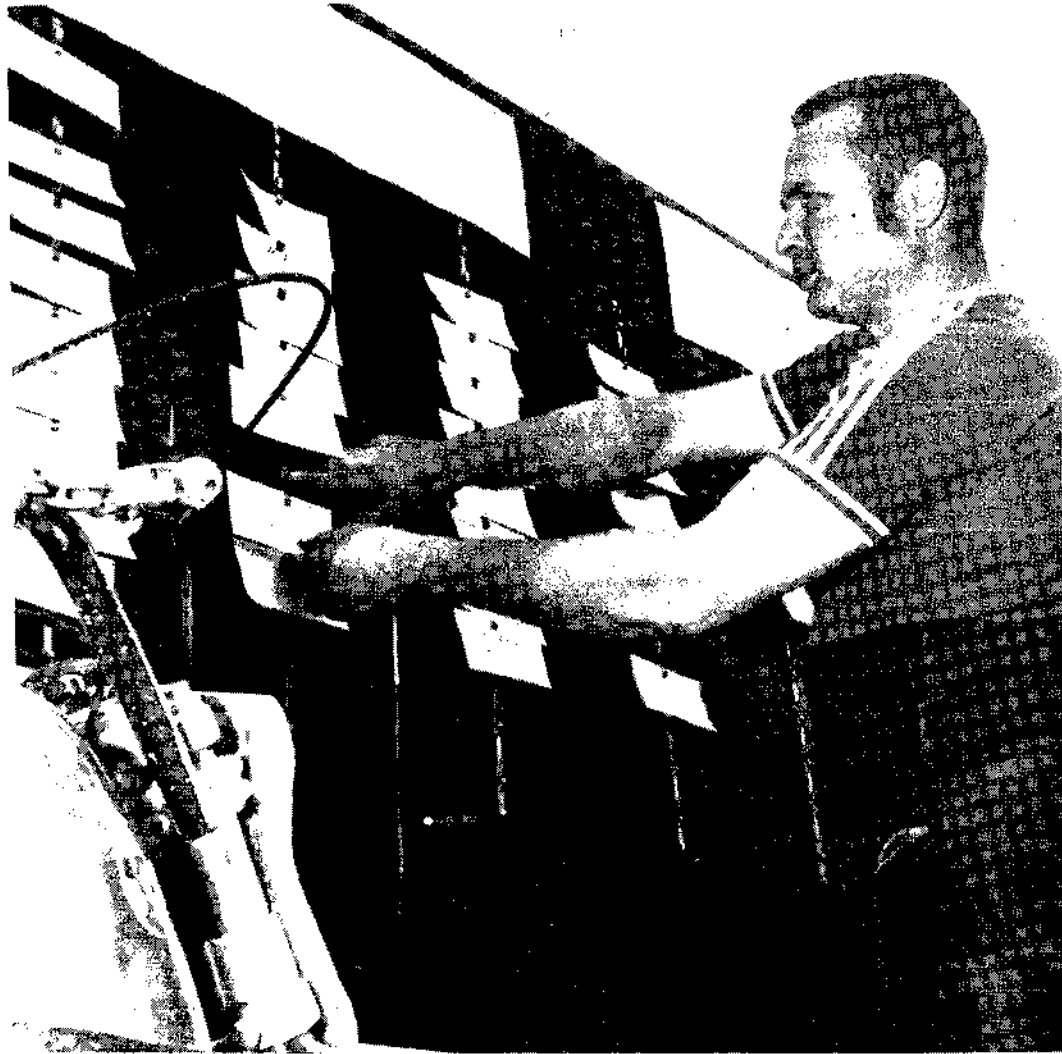

Applications for use by interested candidates are available through your local farmers' club groups and are also available through the County Farm Bureau and the Cooperative Extension offices in Caro.

At a meeting of the Bean Queen Committee, it was decided July 19 should be the deadline for entering the contest. Contestants will be called together the evening of Thursday, July 24, for a meeting with the judges and a lunch is also furnished, the courtesy of the Tuscola County Farm Bureau. The following Thursday evening, July 31, at the Tuscola County Fair, the Bean Queen Contest will be a part of the evening's program.

Contestants must be unmarried and a farmer's daughter who has or is now growing beans. Age limitation is 17 to 25 years, inclusive. County bean queens of previous years are not eligible.

For the past number of years, Tuscola county elevators have cooperated in providing funds to help finance the contest, as well as provide cash awards for all of the Bean Queen participants, said Black.

Other members of the Bean Queen Committee, in addition to Black, are Roy Hickey of Fairgrove, Elmer Kurpsel of Millington, Maynard McConkey of Cass City and Leon Keinath of Millington.

ANNOUNCES RESULTS - Ron Stolzman of Snover, a charter member of the club, places cards on sign near the race track announcing the winners of each heat and the qualified drivers for the finals.

Split legislature achieves average progress on bills

"MAJOR DEADLINES"

Their first major deadlines behind them, Michigan legislators moved into the second phase of the 1969 session with mixed feelings about their progress, or lack of it.

"What progress?" asked House Republican Minority leader Robert E. Waldron of Grosse Pointe. "So far we've done nothing major... mostly just housekeeping bills."

Democratic Majority Floor Leader George F. Montgomery of Detroit defended the House progress so far as "reasonable for this time of year."

"We haven't sent as great a number of bills to the Senate as in other years, but the ones we sent are vital," Montgomery added. "And we have a head start on next January because we have 150 bills ready to work on when we return."

Retorted Waldron: "The major things we've done are the things we do every year. I think our performance is the worst I've seen."

The "things" Waldron talked about included the public school aid appropriation and executive budget bills, and a $285 million water pollution control program.

The entire Legislature faced a new problem this year in addition to its other work: the House is controlled by Democrats; the Senate by Republicans.

Waldron was forced to give up the reins of control as speaker when Democrats took over the House numerically and elected Detroit Rep. William A. Ryan as top man.

Senate majority leaders are satisfied with the progress of the Republican-controlled upper chamber, although they criticized the speed of the entire Legislature as inadequate. Minority leader in the Senate, Sander M. Levin of Berkley, has been especially critical of Gov. William G. Milliken as responsible for any "lag" in processing potential laws.

He has reportedly said Milliken's supposed failure to take a leadership stand on many issues has caused a "haziness" in the session and not given it a true sense of direction.

Levin's position in the Democratic party makes it mandatory to criticize the governor, who is a Republican.

In terms of numbers alone, each chamber met its first deadline with an almost identical total of bills approved.

Senators introduced 1,073 bills and approved 308 of them. The others were either killed or sent back to committee. Members also processed scores of resolutions.

Bills were sent to the House to raise the interest rate ceiling on home loans to nine per cent, totally revise the banking code, permit law officers to "eavesdrop" (wiretap) and set up legal procedures for human organ transplants.

A massive measure to consolidate the state penal statutes into one criminal code never emerged from committee. A controversial bill to liberalize the state's 115-year-old abortion law failed to win floor approval.

Jointly with the House, senators approved the anti-water pollution bond bill, worked on the allocation of $100 million in recreation bonds, and passed one-half of the executive $1.5 billion budget.

In the House, representatives sponsored 1,875 bills and passed 300 of them.

Focal point of the House, however, lies more in what was defeated than what was approved. The main time-consuming was the aid to nonpublic schools legislation. Other major bills defeated include a permit for greyhound racing, and the outlawing of retail contests.

Major bills passed include a repeal of the one-man grand jury system accompanied by a strengthening of the multi-member citizens' grand jury, permission for Detroiters to elect councilmen by districts, setting several holidays on a Monday, removing the $1 uninsured motorists fee, and requiring motorcyclists to wear helmets.

The deadline for passage of all legislation is July 11.

The Building Year In Cass City ...

As well as the latest home modernization tips are presented in this 14th annual special section. We invite you to check the stories and the ads before you start building or remodeling . . . it could save you dollars or come up with just the remodeling tip you need.

Building permits indicate construction doubled

The dollar value of construction during the last year in Cass City has more than doubled over the year previous, and nearly tripled when compared to two years ago.

From July of 1968 to July 1969, a sum total of $313,750 in new construction was declared, according to a check of building permits. This compares with $125,650 with the year previous and $109,180 with the calendar year 1966-67.

A total of 21 permits were issued comparing with 20 the year previous.

Nine homes were started after July in 1968, compared to six the year before.

Six permits were issued for garages and carports. Seven were issued last year and 4 in 1966-67.

There were four permits issued for commercial buildings of which two were for remodeling. This compares with three the year previous.

Permits were issued for one office building and one pool. There were none issued in this category the year before.

The construction in the village is only a small part of the building story in the area. Much of the area's home expansion has occurred on primary roads outside the village limits. New homes are evident in all directions from the town as residents seek the space and economies of building on a lot "in the country".

Also of significant interest to persons in the growth and prosperity of the village is the growth in retail construction.

One of the highlights, of course, is the completion of Rolling Hills Golf Course. Others are the complete renovation of Mac & Scotty Drug Store and the addition at Erla's Food Market.

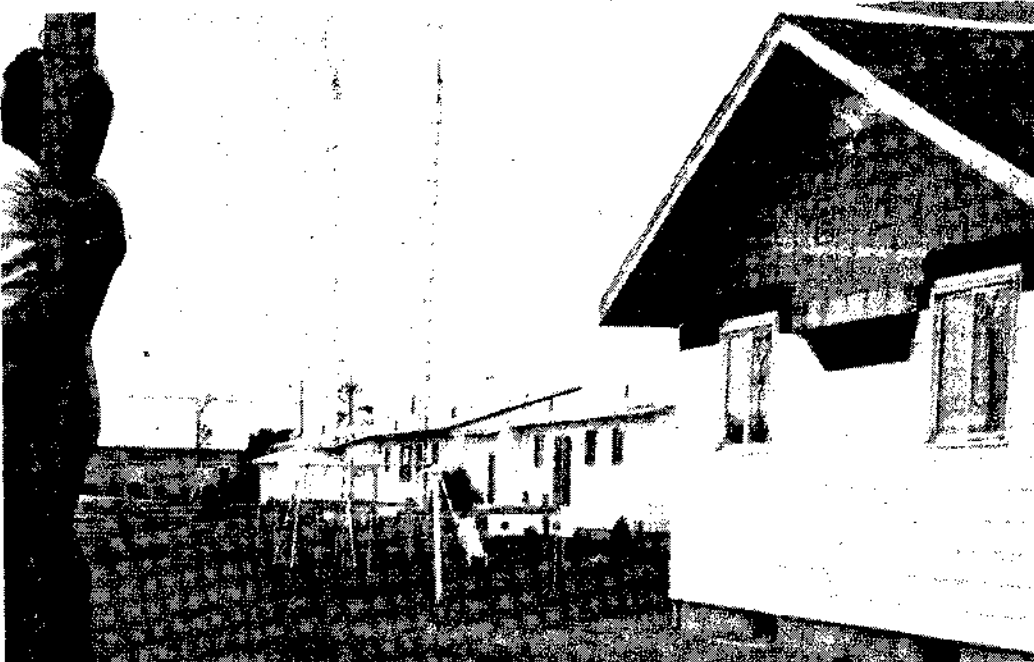

Several other enlargements are in the advanced planning stage and announcements by local retailers are expected at any time.

The boom in construction came despite record high construction and building supply costs and a very high interest rate.

While interest rates promise to be even higher in the year ahead, lumber prices have been reduced . . . although experts in the field feel that the lull may be temporary.

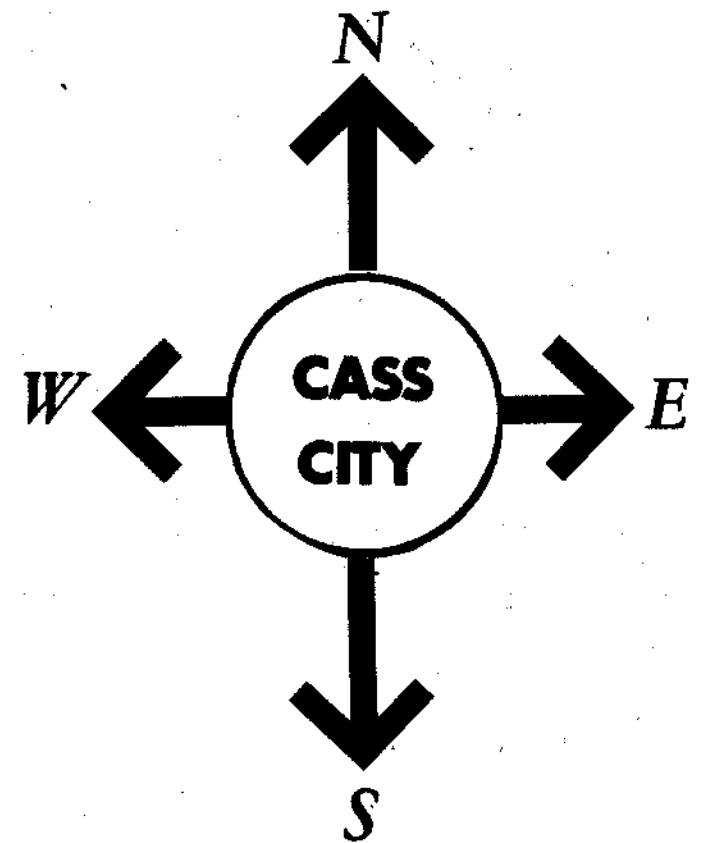

A RESIDENTIAL DEVELOPMENT has sprung up on M-81, east of Cass City. These are three of the new homes.

A CLUSTER OF HOMES is emerging west of Cass City on Koepfgen Road. In the backyard of his new home under construction, Rev. James Kidney gazes over those of his neighbors towards the Cass City Missionary Church of which he is pastor. A summer dedication of his new home is planned for the parsonage.

FOLLOWING A TREND in many communities today is the construction underway in "country" locations outside the village limits. Pictured here are several of the "suburban" homes stretching out in every direction from the village. In addition to the homes, a trailer park owned by C. R. Hunt on Doerr Road has shown steady expansion.

ABOUT MOLDINGS
Factory finished moldings, from Georgia Pacific, are available to do-it-yourselfers to give home improvements a professional touch. Moldings come in most standard patterns which include base, base shoe, door and window casings, cove molding and inside or outside corner moldings.

FOR SHOWERING
Precision showerhead called "Mark Sixty" has 60 directional spray jets which form a filled-in spray pattern instead of the conventional ring of water, with a wide selection of spray patterns and water intensities.

New Bathrooms, Most Wanted

As homes get older and families grow larger, the bathroom continues to lead the lists of most-wanted home improvements.

For homeowners planning to remodel or add a bathroom this year, here are some points to keep in mind.

The trend is to larger bathrooms. A 5x7 size was standard a few years ago. Today it's more likely to be 7x8 or 7x10 feet.

Another trend is to more color. Popular are yellow, pink and blue, but bolder colors such as red and orange are gaining in favor.

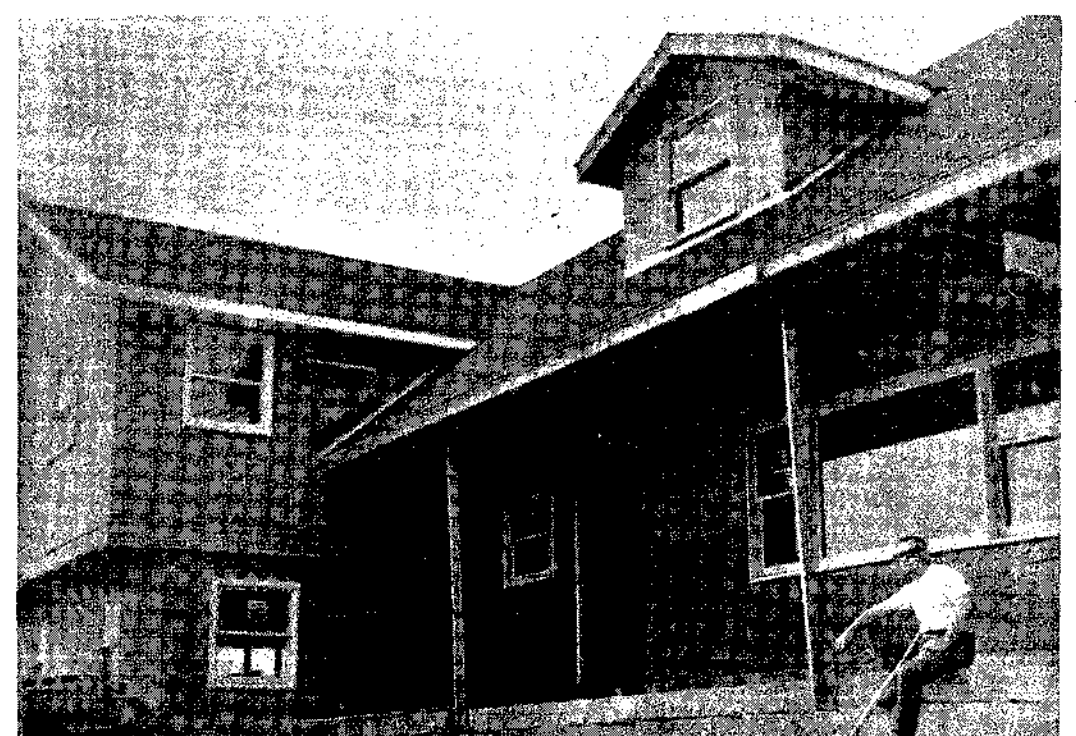

New products make the idea of bathroom remodeling even more appealing. Among them are off-the-floor water closets, for good appearance and easier cleaning, and vanity lavatories, with countertops, shelves or drawers.

Tubs come extra-long, extra-low or extra deep to suit preferences.

Both faucets and showerheads offer a wide range of controls to preset temperatures and regulate water flow.

Even medicine cabinets make news, with two compartments, swing or sliding doors and integral lighting.

AT THE SOUTH EDGE of the village are a line of several new homes on Woodland Street. Three of them have been built within the last year. The north end of the street is newly blacktopped.

INSURANCE AGENT Richard Hampshire pauses in front of his magnificent new home under construction just north of Hills and Dales Hospital. It will be a two and a half garage, multi-story home. He hints his old home on Oak and Seed streets is for sale.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Erwin Hall of Deford lost his ring finger and part of a second finger on his right hand in a sawing accident at his home.

A 500-pound Holstein yearling steer, owned by John Guinther, had both hind legs broken when it was struck by a Grand Trunk train engine.

Timothy C. Quinn, circuit judge for Lapeer and Tuscola counties, is a candidate for the new state Court of Appeals established by the new Constitution.

A request by the Cass City Chamber of Commerce to close Seeger street, a block north of Main street, sparked a discussion by the Cass City Village Council that ended with a crackdown on the practice in future years.

Teachers who are leaving the Cass City Public School system are: Wayne Wilson, basketball and baseball coach; Ronald Raulin, senior high science; John Schmittausler, junior high science; Mrs. Avis Youngs, early elementary; Mrs. Arthur Holmberg, late elementary; and Jon Fahrner, biology.

Robert Keating became the new president of the Cass City Rotary Club.

Parade winners in the float division sponsored by the Recreation program at the Cass City Recreational Park for their float "Cass City is a Dog-gone Good Town" were Mary Jane Croft and Betsy Hostetler.

TEN YEARS AGO

Two new teachers have been signed at the Cass City High School for this year. Miss Carol Josephine Mannino will teach English and the new government and sociology teacher will be Mr. Charles Whitley.

Robert Musall, 22, of Cass City was seriously injured when his motorcycle ran into the back of a car driven by Esther Dorman of Cass City, who had stopped for a left hand turn. Chuck Holm won the 25-lap feature race at the Owendale Speedway and the Australian Pursuit.

On the advice of George Villan, village planning expert, the village of Cass City will make residential area streets not over 31 feet wide, it was decided by council members. Richard Generous, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elger Generous of Gagetown, has been named to the dean's list of Flint Junior College.

William Muller, 4-H club agent for Tuscola county, will leave August 1 to accept a position as county extension agent for Mackinac county and will be located at St. Ignace.

A kick-off dinner launched the good will sales project of the Gagetown Community Park Committee.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Mrs. Andrew N. Bigelow recently resigned her position as one of the visitors of the Bureau of Social Aid in Tuscola county, an agency which deals with old age assistance, aid to dependent children and aid to the blind, to accept the position of acting postmaster at Cass City.

Rev. Dudley C. Mosure, minister of the Cass City Methodist church, received a telegram from the adjutant general's department at Fort Wayne, informing him that all arrangements had been completed for his entrance into the Army as a chaplain.

Listed among the 27 Michigan men wounded in the Mediterranean area is Pvt. Walter Kolacz, son of Mrs. Pauline Kolacz of rural Cass City.

Florabel Sullivan, a graduate of Cass City High School, was granted the degree of Bachelor of Science in education by Wayne University.

Sisters, Miss June Cook and Mrs. Joyce Cook Roberts of Conneaut, Ohio, have accepted the pastorate of the Assembly of God church at Cass City.

Jeanne Profit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Profit, has been chosen to be a member of the two-week high school music clinic conducted by the University of Michigan at the National Music camp, Interlochen, Mich.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The Michigan Educational Planning Commission at its recent meeting at Lansing recommended that the state government provide new state aid for the public schools up to 50 per cent of each school district's operating cost for the preceding year. The maximum aid for any one district would not exceed $34 per child in average yearly membership, in addition to the Primary School Interest fund distribution.

Six softball teams were organized with K. Gowen, M. Asher, E. Rawson, I. Parsch, K. Kelly and S. McArthur as captains.

Wednesday night shoppers in Cass City who enjoyed listening to concerts by the Cass City's Ladies' Band last summer will be glad to learn that they will be resumed this year.

Stephen W. Morrison, Tuscola county clerk, has been named a member of the committee on new chapters of the Michigan Society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

One hundred fourteen attended the fourth annual Striffler family reunion July 4.

The Tuscola board of supervisors appropriated $125.00 to assist beekeepers of the county in the eradication of foul brood.

Fire caught in some empty wool sacks in a store room of the Frutchey Bean Co.'s elevator, but was discovered soon enough so only a few sacks were listed in damage done.

The 1934 peach crop in Michigan will be the lowest in 46 years.

Paint Remodels

Fast facelift for a room can often be accomplished, by a paint job. Modern convenience paints feature ease of application, fast drying and variety of matching colors.

Pastels and light tints make small rooms seem airy, look larger. In large rooms, interest is added by combining pastel walls with accents of a deeper hue.

Potted Plants Add Beauty, With Ease

The modern look of container gardens reflects the need for maintenance-free outdoor living. Potted flowers and greens of all sizes and shapes mean release from the drudgery of caring for extensive planted areas.

Container gardens are weedless and mobile. They require a minimum of care and can be imaginatively used to decorate any outdoor area.

Decks and patios used for relaxing or outdoor entertainment are natural for potted plant displays. An expanse of wooden fence or garage wall benefits, too, from the addition of a clay pot garden.

Before deciding on outdoor locations for container plants, the requirements of the plant should be considered. Some locations receive full sun, while others are semi-shaded. Plants should be placed accordingly.

Geraniums will thrive in sun-drenched areas. Potted mums, available all year round, also do well in the sun.

Right for shaded areas are tuberous begonias, fuchsias, or vivid cinerarias. They'll do well on protected porches, underneath a garage overhang, or in the shade of a tree.

Also attractive for outdoor landscaping are planter boxes and hanging baskets. All plants in baskets or planters should be kept individually potted in clay containers.

A planter box of mixed green and flowering plants makes a colorful window or porch railing addition, and looks well on a patio or deck.

INCLUDE FAMILY

Paint up, fix up. Start now on those improvements, and make home improvement a family affair.

REDWOOD OUTDOORS

Redwood for garden structures may be finished with a bleach or stain. Or, it may be left unfinished, to weather naturally.

McDonald builds unusual features into new home

SANDY McDONALD, dainty four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McDonald, displays the intercom in the under-construction home of the family. Communication transfers to all rooms from any one speaker and the unit can connect with a stereo or its own AM-FM radio. In addition, each room's speaker can answer anybody ringing the front door's doorbell.

Jim McDonald's past experience in wiring and carpentry has allowed him to do most of the work on his new home located on M-81, about 3 miles east of Cass City.

"I couldn't have had a home like this if I had to have it done," he said. He said he's always dreamed of a big home for his family and after a lot of hard work it's slowly coming true.

One of the sacrifices has been living in a converted garage while the house was being built. Part of the garage had to be torn off, after the house construction was well underway.

One of the prize features of his home is a lavish fireplace. Made with fire-brick on the inside, it features a flip cover for ashes to fall into and he figures it won't need emptying for at least ten years.

The outside of the fireplace, which will border a back-yard patio, is a brick structure about five feet wide.

The house is ranch style and will be gas heated. The front door leads guests onto a foyer whereby guests can choose one of four doors either to the living room, family room, kitchen, or basement.

They hope to be in the new home by fall and fairly settled by Christmas.

Seek watershed project on Perry Creek for drainage

Property holders along Perry Creek in southwestern Tuscola County Soil Conservation District met at the Edward Roberts farm Tuesday, June 24, with the District Directors to consider the possibility of developing a watershed project under the Small Watersheds Act to solve flooding and drainage problems, according to Leon Keinath, director. The board was represented by Leon Keinath, Charles Wells and Bruce Ruggles.

Leslie Lounsbury, county drain commissioner, Ralph Wadleigh, of the Soil Conservation Service Watershed Planning Division of East Lansing, William Fobair, SCS Area Conservationist of Flint, and Wilbur Kellogg, SCS District Conservationist, Caro, served as resource people and explained the various phases of the program.

The property holders voted to make application for assistance and elected Edward Roberts, president, and Dale Reed as secretary of the group.

They will be making further study of the existing conditions with the assistance of the District and the SCS as soon as possible.

SEEK DUTCH ELM CONTROL IN EUROPE

Michigan State University entomologists are searching European countries to find parasites that might control carriers of Dutch elm disease.

One French parasite has already been released in Michigan to test its effect on the Dutch elm bark beetle.

The MSU entomologists believe that "natural" control with parasites can reduce the need for costly chemical controls.

FIRING LINE

For my twin:
life with gusto

By Richard Haines

"Southern Hospitality" comes to Michigan when mytwin starts getting big-hearted.

Often the thrower of 75-100 attending student free-for-all at Western Michigan University, he recently invited me to one, offering, no less, than to pay all my expenses. "Come on over to drink and have a good time," Bring some friends if you wish. There is sleeping room for 7 or 8 here."

He has an outgoing gusto and he'll often scoff at the seriously inclined, especially teachers and preachers.

Recently, he taunted, half in jest and wholly in earnest, "I work full time, go to school full time, and play full time!"

Playboy? Nope. While at junior college, he shared a 4-man A Frame chalet and I'll give you one guess who was king of the castle.

Then too, his gusto for life sometimes makes him a gallant knight. ...like the time he bought a 30-06 pump and his friends and he went out on Lake Michigan sand dunes and "played war."

When the news is big-its a telegram. ...like the time he passed the state X-ray boards as a registered technician and invited me to hit the California beaches with him to celebrate.

Then, several months ago he wrote nonchalantly, "Am taking out a $10,000 life insurance policy listing you as a beneficiary."

And then, if on times I'm supposed to call him and somehow forget, the phone will ring. "Richard!!!!", he booms.

"Yes, dear." And the boom then lowers.

The question which of us is smarter is an open question. Our get togethers inevitably evolve into a rendezvous of verbal punches, starting usually, from his arm gesturing sweeps. Rather, swipes.

Still, part of brotherly love is part of the ribbing and some time ago when I misdated a letter (only) a couple months off, he thundered back, "Where is your calendar? #%%#!!"

And since I let him use one of my gas credit cards, he normally owes me some and when I wrote several months ago saying I was short on crackers, he taunted, "If you would manage your &%%*%% finances better, you wouldn't have this problem."

I don't know what his mother wanted him to be, but I'm convinced he would've made a good preacher.

Take that, Bobby-o.

Water System Convenience in Vacation Homes

Nearly three million American families now have a second home that ranges from a summer cabin in the mountains to a fully equipped year-round house for weekends.

A second home can be wonderfully relaxing, but every prospective home buyer should heed this reminder:

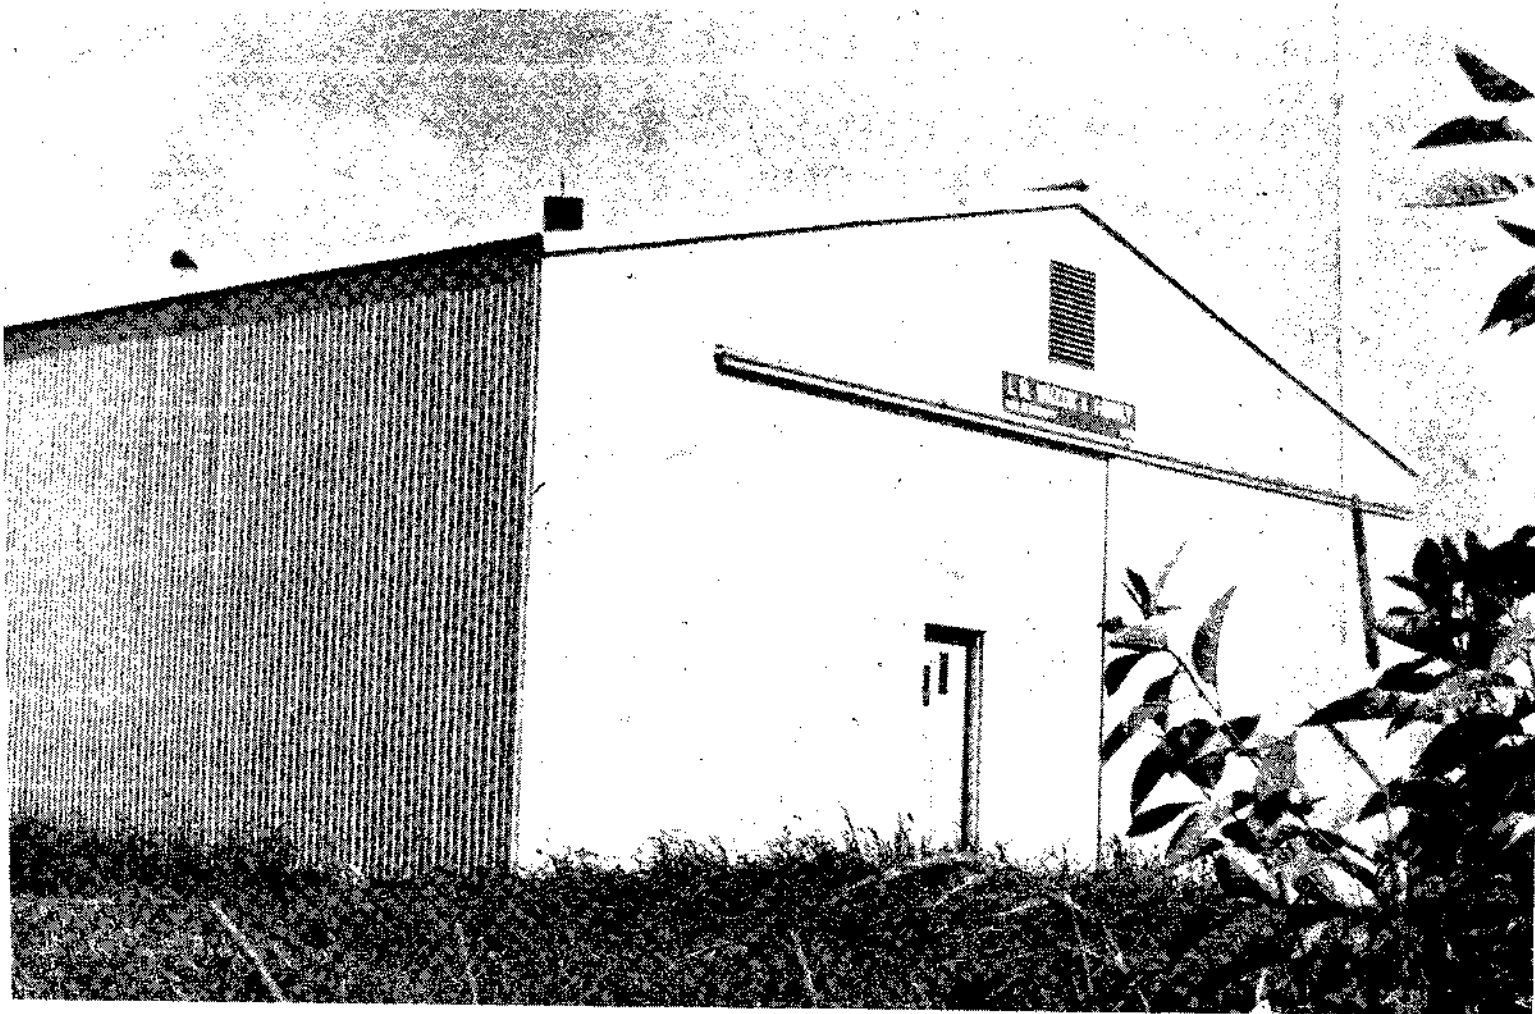

Make sure a new home has an ample supply of safe running water.

Surveys show that the average family moving to the country wants to take along as many city comforts as possible. This includes plenty of running water for cooking, bathing, dishwashing and laundering.

The solution may be a private water system, consisting of a well, an electric pump, controls for turning the pump on and off and a storage tank.

Installation should be made by a water system specialist.

The most common mistake is to mistake ambition for ability.

Five parasites, natural enemies of the alfalfa weevil, are being tested by Michigan State University entomologists. But until results are final, best bet is chemical control. Almost nonexistent in Michigan fields in 1966, weevil numbers were estimated at 2.6 billion in 1968 and no end to this population explosion is in sight.

HURRY UP and RELAX

Highways, superhighways, turnpikes, freeways, expressways—they crisscross America, leading in every imaginable direction. And, they get you there so fast, you are past the right exit before you know it. We live in such a speed-oriented world that, when we are not working, we feel we must "hurry up and relax." At times we even feel guilty when we are not busy about something.

We don't really like our foolish pace. We speak longingly of peace of mind and quietude, and we take tranquilizers by the ton. We search frantically . . . on vacations, on "lost weekends," on "fun activities" . . . but tranquility is hard to find.

Perhaps we are seeking too hard. Perhaps tranquility is not to be sought. Rather, isn't it what happens when you are at peace with yourself, no matter the circumstances?

You can be at peace with yourself only when you are at peace with God. He is the very center of your being, and His peace is freely given when you accept it.

Accept this great gift of God in the very best place of all—His Church.

Agent's Corner

By Mrs. Ann Ross
Extension Agent

It isn't always possible to distinguish food spoilage that's harmful to health from spoilage that's not. That's why proper storage of perishables is a must.

Spoilage starts when foods are stored under poor conditions or are held too long. But, there's no general rule for storage time that can be applied to all perishables. Temperature and the amount of moisture vary for different foods. For example, berries and cherries need little excess moisture or they'll mold and rot. On the other hand, lettuce and other salad greens need more moisture to stay crisp and keep their nutrients.

Quality-loss is another result of improper storing. Any perishable that loses quality by drying should be covered in the refrigerator.

With the exception of some fresh fruits like apricots, grapes, peaches, pears, plums and rhubarb, most foods should be covered. Even eggs need this protection they'll keep longer if stored in their original cartons or a tightly covered container, rather than the specially designed open egg pockets found in most refrigerator doors.

Put most other fruits and vegetables that may dry into the crisper. Wrapping them in plastic retards moisture loss, too. However, wrap your fresh meats, fish, and poultry loosely because they need circulation to stay fresh longer.

The homemaker can check the temperature in her refrigerator by placing a thermometer at different locations. If the temperatures tend to be above 42 degrees F., the control should be regulated to maintain lower temperatures. For general storage, temperatures below 40 degrees F. is usually recommended.

This is the year of The Triumph. From the lean and mighty 250 all the way up to the exciting new 750 Trident Triple, there's a Triumph model made specifically for the kind of riding you do. 7 great ones in all. And each an incredible piece of precision engineered machinery that looks and acts like no other motorcycle in the world. But then, The Triumph never has. Never will. 1969. If you're serious about motorcycling, make it your year—to Triumph!

Wares hosts to Philathea class

Nineteen members of the Philathea class of the Baptist church met at the Ferris Ware home Tuesday evening, June 24.

After playing outdoor games, the group had a wiener roast. The business meeting was conducted by Ferris Ware, who also presented devotions. Bill Ewald led the group in singing choruses.

The class's July meeting will be a bike ride, followed by a wiener roast at the park on Third St.

Economists contend that few motorists are rolling their own.
