

AN OLD FARM AXIOM calls for corn to be knee high by the 4th of July. Knee High is good, thigh-high better, but when it reaches the height of this corn grown by Al Merchant no one has a phrase to describe it. The corn is located on the southeast end of Milligan Road, two miles northeast of Cass City. Corn is recovering in the area after a late start because of the wet, cold spring. Posing to illustrate the outstanding field is Mrs. Marilyn Schott of Cass City. The corn is on the right.

Sportsman protest kills Thumb antlerless season

Three Michigan game biologists drew fire from over 120 militant area sportsmen Tuesday night at the Caro Gun Club when the Game Division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources held a "hearing" on their recommendations for the distribution of 275 antlerless deer permits for the expected take of 95 deer.

Angry sportsmen demanded a show of cause for the proposed program and after Assistant Regional Game Biologist Robert G. Strong, District Game Biologist Howard C. Greene, and State Biologist David A. Arnold answered questions and heard hunters' comments, Arnold announced, amidst wild applause, that the game biologists' recommendations for an antlerless hunt this fall had been rescinded.

No special reason for the change was given except that they "got together and thought over." The permits were scheduled to cover the Thumb area from I-75 to Flint, across M-21 to Port Huron.

One spokesman for the hunters was George Lapp, president of the Cass City Gun Club, who said "It went the way it should have." Lapp was largely responsible for raising the issue at a district conservation club meeting in Pigeon some weeks ago after he discovered the controversial issue had not been placed upon the agenda.

Lapp, a soft-spoken club president with a long history in conservation clubs, expressed caution that the game biologists can be overruled "just as easy as can be, but I hope not." The final decision will be Friday at the Higgins Lake Training School.

Cass City sportsmen were well represented at the meeting. A Cass City farmer, Don Buehly, stood up and told the group he felt the antlerless hunt would result in farmer's losing their land with the consequence of the relationship between farmer and area sportsmen ultimately deteriorating.

The group evidenced considerable animosity towards Detroit area "city-slickers and bums" who shoot indiscriminately. One man expressed fears unhappy hunters returning from the north would use their deer permit to shoot Thumb deer.

The group anxiously chuckled though, when Cass City's Lawrence Guinther said that a local man he knew deliberately hit four deer with a car and "I helped dress two of them out."

Several times the sportsmen threw verbal barbs at insurance lobbyists for allegedly pressuring the Department of Conservation to lower the antlerless collision rate through the issuing of antlerless permits.

An insurance man in the group, Donald Harbin of Harbor Beach Insurance Agent Donald Harbin denied insurance lobbyists were pressuring for the antlerless deer kill.

Passion for horse and buggy fatal for quaint Robert Rix

The Thumb's last advocate of the horse and buggy was killed on M-31 last Thursday. He had been in the area only about three years, but his jovial smile and wave from his carriage had earned him the insignia, "the sweet old man." Ironically, he turned his back on the auto three years ago and had not driven since.

Robert Nelson Rix, 74, was unhurriedly jaunting to Shabbona where he lived alone in a neat, white house among a cluster of homes at the Shabbona junction, about 14 miles south-east of Cass City.

Loaded up with groceries and dry goods, he was just two miles east of Cass City when an auto struck the rear of his carriage, killing him instantly. He sustained a nearly severed broken neck, a broken nose, and a badly bruised face resulting from a skid across the pavement.

He was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident by Coroner J. Benson Collon of Caro. He was the 19th traffic fatality in Tuscola County.

Rix was struck by the auto of Margaret M. Gillis of Minden City, an employee of General Cable, who did not see Mr. Rix's carriage traveling in the right lane until the car ahead of her pulled out to pass the carriage. Skid marks for 150 feet were visible as she attempted to stop.

Margaret Gillis suffered shock. In a remarkable escape of injury the pony, "Mack", received only a nick and bruises on its right hind leg.

"Mack" was one of the two ponies he owned and had loved. The other, "Trixi", waited at the gate at the rear of his home that night, and hasn't gone out to pasture for several days.

He had owned the tiny farm in Shabbona for three years, following the sale of his large farm near Yale. He came to the area with a new white pickup, but sold it when he built a new home.

He was often seen by area persons at horse pulling contests and he had told one reporter he had only small ponies.

because they were the only kind he could reach.

After his arrival to the area, his ponies made a quick hit with neighborhood children and his yard was often the scene of children's laughter. He adored his ponies, and to the chuckles of his audiences, often shared candy and even tobacco with "Trixi" and "Mack."

Living alone, he would often visit neighbors and reportedly loved to chat. During one of those chats some months ago, he told local store clerks a truck passed his pony and carriage and the pony swerved onto the highway. He reported to several friends how the area's roads and highways sometimes caused nervousness in the ponies.

He loved the past and one of his favorite stopping points was that of a blacksmith in Argyle where he had his ponies shod.

The pot-bellied stove in the center of the living room of his recently built new home was a showcase to his steadfast adherence to the ways of an earlier era, like when he farmed the Yale homestead which had been in the family for three generations.

Local store clerks often loaded up his carriage with his orders. One said he would "use all fours" to get onto the carriage, because of a critical arthritic condition.

A local youth who knew him well told how he sometimes complained of pain and soreness when in the midst of a winter, he alone carried hay, grain, and water to his two ponies.

Some townsfolk say they expected it to happen; to others it was a shocking contrast to his buoyant nature and his love of children.

What it means to his ponies, no one knows for sure. It is only known they are still waiting at the gate for his return.....

A SLOW MOVING vehicle on a state trunkline road spelled disaster Thursday for Robert Rix who had turned his back on the auto. He was fatally injured while driving his horse and buggy.

Unionville man 20th Tuscola fatality

Tuscola County's second fatality during the Independence Day week end, and twentieth of the year, was a middle-aged Unionville man who was killed while driving alone the evening of July 6.

Fred Ernest Heinitz of Unionville, 53, was killed when his auto left the Bay City-Forestville Road at the junction of N. Colling Road while traveling west and struck an abutment at the corner.

A nearby resident, George Sharp, told investigating deputy he heard a crash about 10 p.m. Sunday night, but because he couldn't see anything, did not investigate.

Sheriff Deputy Jim Wright investigated the accident after the office was called at 5:40. Concluded on page six.

Russell Richards: principal tells challenges of new job

Teachers will see a lot of Russell L. Richards, the new principal at Cass City High School, during the 1969-70 school year.

The 34-year-old educator feels that the primary responsibility of the principal is seeing that the educational program runs smoothly.

And to do the job right, he believes, frequent visits to the classrooms are necessary. Evaluating teachers is one of the more important parts of his job, Richards said this week as he explained his concept of his new job in the Cass City school system.

The principal naturally has to work closely with the superintendent, he explained, but my job puts me closer to the classroom than the superintendent, who has financial problems to solve.

I regard the principal as the educational leader of the community, he said. The details and clerical work can be handled by the secretaries in the office. I see my job as trying to produce the best possible program for the children of the community.

Richards has definite ideas about discipline. The most important single facet about discipline, he feels, is consistency. I believe that one student should be treated like another... regardless of who they are. Our standards will be set and they will apply equally to all, Richards explained.

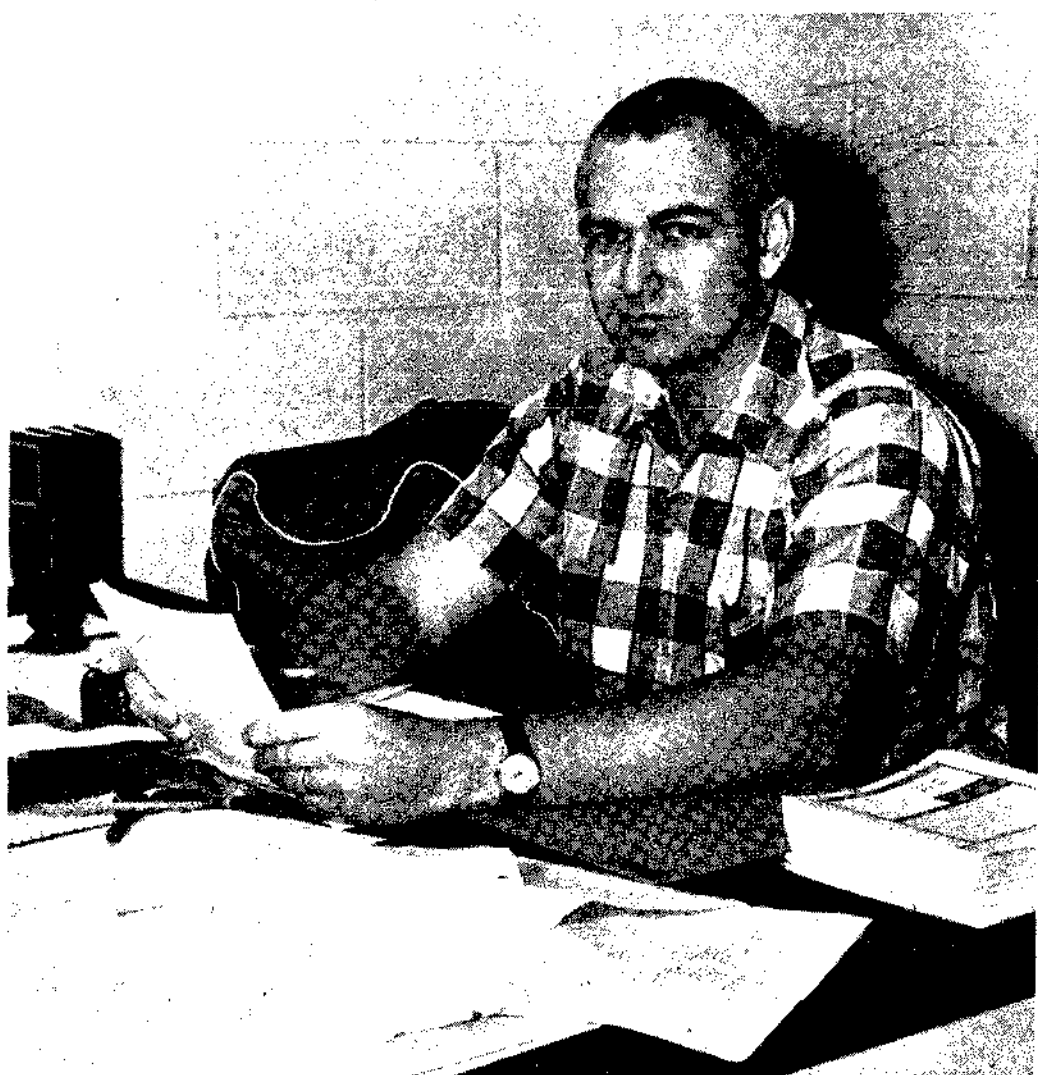

One of the hottest topics facing education in Michigan today is sex education, Richards says that he believes the key to a good program is the teacher.

"For example," he said, "I certainly wouldn't feel qualified to teach it. But in Eau Claire there was a doctor who taught the class that was in

RUSSELL RICHARDS: "The principal is the educational leader in the community."

FROM THE Editor's Corner

Natives of Cass City and most other Thumb small towns used to be proud to say that the chances were good that they knew everyone they were apt to meet at any given time on any given day... a stranger was a conversation topic.

Not anymore. The odds are great that a walk down the main stem today will bring you face to face with one or more strangers.

The old joke about anyone who came to town within the last 15 years being a "newcomer" just doesn't apply anymore. With the changing population and the auto, smaller communities have become more impersonal; the spirit of cooperation weakened.

The days of the spirit of "Christmas Town" where nearly the whole town pitched in because of community pride are probably gone forever in Cass City.

Civic leaders can no longer expect unquestioned cooperation merely because "it's for the good of the community". Personal self-interest is the rule of the day.

It's reflected in business, too. I can remember long-time businessmen in the community telling me that they wouldn't add this line or that product because Charlie down the street was selling it and might be mad.

This is one place where self-interest helps rather than hinders.

No businessman would think of using this approach today... no competitor would expect them to.

In fact, this type approach probably weakened the business community. The shopper goes where there is a choice and every successful businessman knows it.

In community spirit, Cass City is probably no better or no worse than any other town its size. We're growing... that's one reason the community spirit today is weaker than it was 15 years ago.

Communities grow or die and if they prosper it's inevitable that the enviable neighborly feeling of closeness among residents withers. A rule of thumb is that the smaller the community the better the cooperation.

Time was you not only knew everyone in town, but also where he lived and a little about what he did to earn a living. Today you may not even know all the people in the block.

Everytime we grow another notch we pay by losing a little of the traditional small town close ties with friends.

It's the price of progress. Some say it isn't worth it.

Hold services for Robert Rix, 74

Funeral services for Robert N. Rix, 74, of Shabbona Road, Decker, who was killed Thursday, July 3, on M-81 east of Cass City when an automobile collided with his horse-drawn, two-wheeled cart, were held Monday in Hubert V. Lucas Funeral Home, Port Huron.

Rev. Clinton Ball, pastor of Mills Memorial Methodist Church, officiated.

Mr. Rix, a graduate of Yale High School and Ferris State College, was a retired Yale area farmer.

Born Dec. 3, 1894, in Yale, he spent most of his life there until his retirement four years ago when he moved to Decker. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Mary V. Green of Imlay City, Mrs. Dorothy J. Black of Warren and Mrs. Eleanor Cheeseman of Port Huron; three sons, James C. Rix of Port Huron, R. Glenford Rix of Yale, Harold A. Rix of Port Huron; 17 grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Elmwood Cemetery, Yale.

Dr. D. Tuckey in Saginaw clinic

Dr. Donald L. Tuckey of Saginaw, gynecologist and obstetrician, is now affiliated with three other specialists in a clinic on North Michigan in Saginaw. The affiliation was effective July 1.

Dr. Tuckey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Tuckey and graduated from Cass City High School in 1953. He completed four years at CMU in Mt. Pleasant, after which he served three years in the US Navy. At the completion of his naval duty, he attended medical school at the University of Virginia for four years. He has been in Saginaw since 1965. His wife is the former Miss Kay Cabard of Capac and they have three children, Patrick, Elizabeth and Nances.

RUSSELL RICHARDS

demand by all the area schools and we were forced to wait to get him."

This doctor taught sex education classes after school and the students enrolled if they desired. It was very well received by the community and the students.

JIG SAW PUZZLE

Since arriving on the job July 1, Richards has been involved in setting up a schedule for the new school year.

The job has been complicated because he is looking for 100 places to put pupils to whom vocal music will not be offered this fall.

"I'd be glad to rework the schedule," he said with a wry grin, "if the millage passes in the next vote Aug. 11."

Richards has been in education since 1951 and feels that the lack of space and ever expanding pupil load are major problems in education today.

He concedes that problems of discipline are greater than they were when he first entered the teaching ranks at Mio High School.

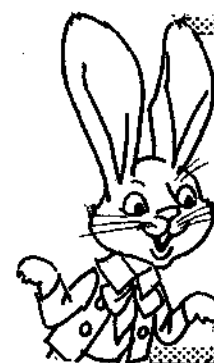

The reason is the lack of control in the homes. Discipline starts in the home and when it is lacking there the problem continues in the school.

"We in the rural area have less trouble than schools in urban areas," he said, "because family ties are closer."

Richards will be handling about the same number of students in Cass City as he did as principal in Eau Claire. The difference is that the Eau Claire school included all students in intermediate and in High School while his duties in Cass City will be with high school students exclusively.

Richards says that he expects his wife and family (3 children) to be moved to the community in August.

The principal has been wrestling with his new duties since July 1.

Rabbit tracks

BY JOHN HAIRE

(And anyone else he can get to help)

It's not a case of the right hand not knowing what the left hand is doing, but...the pool heater is now working... I think. The picture in section 2 says that pool authorities are waiting for a part. Now the part is here.

The hang-up for a part is over and Village Engineer Bill Schram says for sure that the heater will be doing its thing for area swimmers by the time the issue hits the streets.

Jim Hatch is up tight about dances for youth...the age group under 16 who aren't allowed to drive or go around in cars. On his own he organized and supervised five of these free dances with attendance estimated at 40 to 110, and says that it could be increased.

He made a pitch to the Cass City Rotary for funds to continue the free events that he started and said that volunteer help from other clubs would be appreciated.

Money is important, Hatch says, but adult help is more essential. If you feel as he does just give him a ring at Talk of The Town and he promises plenty of work.

Need a little extra help this summer? The Owendale Farm Labor and rural manpower office says that there are more applicants than jobs for summer employment. However, full-time help is scarce and there are openings listed at the office for full time employment on the farm and in industry.

About 25 Scouts attended the Tiger baseball game Saturday afternoon. Who do you think the boys cheered the loudest?

Al Kaline? Norm Cash? Bill Freehan? Willie Horton? Nope! But if you guessed Willie Horton you were close. Actually the loudest hurrahs were for Horton's eight-year old boy who participated in the annual father-son game. Without a trace of a smile the young Horton ambled up to the left field bleachers where the Scouts were seated and tossed two baseballs into the stands.

For young Willie it was serious business as it took three throws to get two balls over the wire fence in front of the stands.

Sad ending: added to Horton's two balls were a pair of homers hit in our section during the game, but local Scouts still failed to come home with a free ball.

The Grant United Methodist Church is closing. It is a regrettable loss to the rural community served by the church, located eight miles southwest of Elkton. Many Cass Cityans who never attended a church service there will regret its passing. For many of its 77 years the church staged an annual church dinner. It was home-style cooking at its best and always a highlight of the fall season.

Anyone who knows the Schneeborgers can tell you that they know a lot about saving a dollar...and evidently it runs in the family.

A first cousin of Clarence "Bud" Schneeborg, Miss Georgene Schneeborg, is quoted in the Tuesday, July 1, issue of the Wall Street Journal.

Talking about economy in cars, the Journal quotes Miss Schneeborg as an example of a person saving money on gas and insurance with a compact car.

What's more she had the costs figured closely and knew the business angles...just like the Cass City Schneeborgers. Like I said...it runs in the family.

Letter to Editor

No man can be made to feel inferior without his consent.

Urges prayerful consideration of sex program

1057 Martin Pl.
Ann Arbor, Mich.
7/6/69 48104

Dear Mr. Haire,

I appreciated very much your taking time to visit with me, for I know that an editor has to be a very busy person. Thanks, too, for the information you gave me.

I hope I haven't given the impression that I am against any and all sex-education. It's the way that the Slecus programs are doing it that I feel is far worse than anything that has been done so far and would be a move in the wrong direction.

I am including a copy of Western Voice bearing an article entitled, "Is early sex-education really dangerous?" It gives opinions from 4 outstanding doctors. I hope you find useful information in it.

In comparing the report in the Chronicle May 15 with other materials I have read, the Delta College presentation is none other than the Slecus endorsed and sponsored Family Life Education film "Time of your Life". This is referred to in the Western Voice article.

As a speaker from the Livonia school district said, the name of Slecus does not appear until much later in their programs. "At first the innocuous (less harmful) parts are emphasized, while the real nitty-gritty parts are glossed over or omitted."

Thank you for your considerations. May the Lord bless and guide us all in these serious deliberations for our children's sake.

Yours Respectfully,
Roy Severance

MIRAGE

A little trouble looks like a mountain to the man who is backed up against the wall.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By H. M. Bulen

Here's quite an oddity about golf balls. . . . Oddly enough, the number 1.6 occurs in both the weight AND the diameter of golf balls. . . . Golf rules say golf balls should weigh 1.6 ounces and be 1.6 inches in diameter.

With the All-Star baseball game coming up, here's one of those ironic oddities that make sports so interesting. . . . In the first All-Star game ever played, in 1933, the American League lineup had some of the greatest hitters of all-time such as Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Al Simmons -- yet the man who batted in the first run in the history of All-Star competition was not any of the great sluggers, but the weakest hitter on the team -- Lefty Gomez! . . . Strange, isn't it?

Here's a question for you about hunting. . . . Do you have any idea which animal is considered by experienced big-game hunters to be the most dangerous animal alive? . . . It's the cape buffalo, found in Africa. . . . Experts feel that more hunters have been injured by this beast than by any other, anywhere in the world. . . . Isn't it odd that big-game hunters fear the cape buffalo more than other animals such as lions or tigers which are usually considered to be the most ferocious.

Bill Sowden dies:

Donate lungs to science

The untimely death of a 24-year-old former Cass City resident may help science to find ways of preventing similar tragedies in the future.

Bill Sowden, Yale, died July 3 in Ford Hospital. He had been in the hospital since April, suffering from a kidney ailment.

The illness affected his lungs and the lungs have been donated to Ford Hospital for medical science research.

Mr. Sowden attended Cass City High School. He moved to Yale after he and Nancy Moody were married Nov. 7, 1964, in Almont.

Mr. Sowden was born July 13, 1944, in Flint and was the son of Mrs. Genevieve Kappen of Cass City and the late Francis Sowden.

Funeral services were held Sunday in Kaatz Funeral Home in Yale. Guy Modlin of the Yale Church of Christ officiated.

Surviving, besides his widow, are: two daughters, Trisha, 3, and Justin, 2; his mother, and step-father, Les Kappen of Cass City; two brothers, Donald of Romeo, and David of Almont; a sister, Mrs. Dale Melendorf of Cass City; three half-brothers, Marshall Sowden of Cass City, Clifford Sowden of Yale and Morris Sowden of Caro, and three half-sisters, Mrs. Delores Karr, Mrs. Myrtle Rabideau and Miss Susan Kappen, all of Cass City.

Burial was in Elmwood cemetery.

Jim Hatch prexy of retail board

Jim Hatch

The retail division of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce organized for the year when officers were elected last week.

Spearheading the activities of the Retailers will be Jim Hatch, the new president. He will be assisted by Vice-president Mrs. Joan Merchant and Secretary-treasurer Mike Weaver.

Hatch said this week that it was too early to say just what programs the retailers would come up with for the year.

Right now, he explained, we are involved in getting our sidewalk sale plans complete for next week.

Solons plan '70 campaign for liberal abortion laws

Abortion reform efforts were turned down in the current Michigan Legislature, but already plans are afoot to renew the campaign next year.

"We're temporarily down, but far from out," said Sen. Gilbert E. Bursley, R-Ann Arbor, chief sponsor of a bill to permit therapeutic abortions under prescribed conditions.

"Michigan's abortion laws will change next year--you can bet on that."

Bursley and Sens. John E. McCauley, D-Wyandotte, and N. Lorraine Beebe, R-Dearborn, are sponsoring a continuing study of abortion reform in Michigan until a vote can again be taken on the explosive subject.

"We want public hearings in areas where public opinion is uncertain," said Bursley. He listed these "uncertain" areas as Grand Rapids, Benton Harbor, Kalamazoo, Jackson, and Oakland County.

The study committee is composed of Mrs. Beebe's five-member Health, Social Services and Retirement Committee plus McCauley, and Bursley.

Bursley said the group will consider recently passed abortion laws in other states and review the proposition to change Michigan's 15-year old law for withholding abortion except in cases where the mother's life is in danger.

As presented to the Senate, Bursley's bill would permit abortions if the mother's mental or physical health were in danger; the child might be deformed; in cases of rape or incest. It was turned down by a close vote despite an impassioned plea for support from her male colleagues by Mrs. Beebe, the Senate's only woman member.

"The people of Michigan want this bill," said Mrs. Beebe, a mother and homemaker. "They have a right to see it on the law books of this state."

Mrs. Beebe predicted that public reaction to the Senate defeat of Bursley's bill will find many lawmakers changing their minds next year.

"The last word," she said, "has not been spoken."

SEX KNOW-HOW

Michigan's Legislature has asked schools throughout the state to halt a sex education course until the State Education Department sets up guidelines.

The measure, passed overwhelmingly in both the House and Senate, does not block the teaching of sex education. Instead it "urges" schools to stop specific courses in sex education--at least for now.

"They can go back to what they were doing, including sex information in physical education and health courses, before we passed the law (last year) mandating much more specific courses," explained Sen. Robert VanderLaan, R-Grand Rapids.

The sex education resolution was sponsored by Rep. William Hampton, R-Bloomfield Hills, after a member of the State Board of Education criticized a department bibliography of sex education materials.

Hampton said he joined with "ever-growing numbers of parents who are protesting the propriety of the textbooks and the methods currently being utilized in certain schools."

In particular, Hampton was "sympathetic with those parents of children in the early elementary grades who seem to be getting too much too soon."

Hampton's resolution also calls on the department to consult with school officials and "interested parent groups who might grant aid and voice their opinions on...this vital matter" before it recommends rules and regulations on sex education.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Five state Senators have been appointed to investigate the "possibility of excessive costs paid to medical and osteopathic physicians for services under Michigan's Medicaid programs."

The action follows charges that 82 Michigan physicians received between $25,000 and $169,000 each in Medicaid payments in the past fiscal year.

The committee will also look into indications that Michigan pays more for physicians' services and institutional care than the nation as a whole.

CASS CITY CH

SLUGGER - New home run king of the Cass City Little League is Jim Root, star center fielder of the Yanks. Root crashed two home runs in the opening play-off game with the Orioles Monday night. They were his ninth and tenth circuit clouts, breaking the old record of nine homers in a season.

ONE OF THE TOP players for the top team in the league this season is Jerry Toner of the Giants. Toner has struck out 74 in five games for his undefeated team. He also has been a leading sticker and has five home runs to his credit prior to the play-offs.

Yanks, Giants move up in loop play-offs

The Yanks moved into the second round of the Little League play-offs Monday night with a 9-4 decision over the Orioles behind the tight pitching of Rick Damm and the powerhouse slugging of Jim Root.

Root was responsible for seven of the eight runs the Yanks pushed across the plate. He opened in the first inning with a single with the bases loaded, driving in two runs, and later scored.

He powered a bases loaded homer the next time up over the center field wall and followed it with a three-run blast over the left home run wall. It was his 10th homer of the year.

Records are vague, but the 10 homers may be a record. Meanwhile Damm mowed down the Orioles for the first four innings. The next inning he yielded a run on a single and two throwing errors.

A couple more errors led to trouble in the last of the sixth, as the losers rallied for three more runs.

In the second game Tuesday, the undefeated Giants toyed with the Cubs in a 25-0 decision. Gibbs was on the mound for the losers and Craig Helwig hurled the shut-out for the Giants.

Gibbs never had a chance as the Cubs were virtually unable to field a ball Tuesday and the Giants compounded his woes with a lusty hitting attack.

The sluggers were led by Jerry Toner, who cracked a homer over the center field fence. But the Giants showed power all along their line-up.

The Giants will now face the Yanks Thursday night for the right to go into the finals against the winners of Wednesday night's game between the Pirates and Tigers.

Slate Barley tour, meeting July 16

The annual Thumb Malt Barley Tour is scheduled for Huron and Tuscola counties Wednesday, July 16. Growers and others interested in malt-barley will see fields of both the new two-row Coho variety and the standard Larker variety. In addition, a twilight meeting is scheduled for the same day at the Michigan State University oat and barley plots on the E. C. Korthals farm near Reese.

The tour starts at 11:00 a. m. at the Orville Gremel farm in Huron county where a field of two-row Coho barley will be viewed. The Gremel farm may be reached by going 5 1/2 miles east of Sebawaing on the Sebawaing-Owendale road and then 1 3/4 miles south on Riskey road.

Two afternoon stops are scheduled in Tuscola county. At 1:20 p. m. the tour will stop at the Leo Seurnyck farm on Jacob road, 7 1/2 miles east and 1 1/4 miles south of Unionville. Then at 2:00 p. m. the tour is scheduled to be on the William Matt farm at the junction of Colwood and Dickerson roads, 5 1/2 miles east and 3 miles south of Unionville.

Seventy-five acres of Larker barley is being grown on the Matt farm and the Seurnyck farm has 50 acres of the Coho variety.

The twilight meeting at the Michigan State University oat and barley plots on the E. C. Korthals farm is scheduled for 7:00 p. m. New strains of six-row barleys, and high yielding, high test weight oats will be seen at the plots. The Korthals farm is on Bradleyville road, 3 1/2 miles east and 1 1/4 miles south of Reese.

FALSE CONFIDENCE

There are times when a man's imagination takes unfair advantage of his true knowledge.

Erla's win tight Ubly loop battle

Erla's grounded the Air Force, 3-2, Tuesday, July 1, in a tight, well played game in the Ubly Recreation League.

Elwyn Helwig went the distance for the Foodmen and limited the Flyers to four hits.

Erla's forged into the lead in the third inning on a couple of errors by the Air Base, a walk to Erla and base knocks by Nicholas and Engelhart.

Erla's remained in front until the fifth when the Flyers rallied to score twice and tie the game. The losers picked up three of their four hits in the inning.

After this outburst, Helwig found his stride again and shut out the Air Base in the sixth and seventh, striking out four of the last six men he faced. Helwig whiffed nine and exhibited letter-perfect control as he didn't walk a man.

Meanwhile, Erla's bounced back in their half of the fifth to score the winning run. Hits by Knoblet and Erla after two were out turned the trick.

It was the bottom of the line-up that produced the power for the Foodmen Tuesday. The first three hitters in the batting order were blanked and the remaining six each collected a single safely.

Showdown in league action is expected when Erla's meets Carling's the second time around. The beer nine holds a victory over Erla's in their first encounter and a no-holds-barred second game is expected as the Foodmen attempt to bounce back into the league lead.

Everyone wins in church league

Competition is tight in the Cass City Church League with only Decker-Snover undefeated in loop action and all 12 teams registering at least one victory.

Action last week started with a Cass City Missionary win over Church of Christ, 7-6. The Missionaries came from behind to win behind Mark Tuckey. Don Englehart took the loss.

In the second game Deford Methodist edged Ellington Nazarene, 4-1. Louie Tibbitts registered the win with a one hit-ter. Ron Nicholas hit a home run and John Taylor chipped in a triple. Jerry Hillaker took the loss.

Tuesday Fraser-Gagetown had little trouble with the Cass City Catholics, winning 22-5. Roger Root was the winning pitcher and Jim Turner took the loss. The winners scored 10 times in the third. Larry Summers slammed a three-run homer.

(See Standings Column 4)

Tuesday's nightcap saw Decker roll over Trinity Methodist, 16-3. Dwight McKinney paced the winners' attack with a grand slam home run. Leeland Hirsch was the winning pitcher.

Thursday Shabbona edged the Baptists, 9-7. Elwyn Helwig tripled in the tying run in the seventh and the game went into extra innings. Shabbona pushed two runs across in the ninth for the win. Leslie Severance was the winner and Gary Mellendorf the loser.

Colwood-Cumber-Sunshine-Sutton (CCSS) measured Owen-Gage in the final game of the week in a slugfest, 15-11.

Dale Smith was the winning pitcher and Gary DeVore took the loss. Lowell Smith and Bill Corn hit for the circuit for CCSS. Owen-Gage sluggers were Dale Karn, who slammed two, and Joe Lorenz, with one home run for the losers.

Indians win two

Two games were reported this week in the Minor Leagues. The Indians won two games by one run. Saturday, June 28, they topped the Dodgers, 23-22, and Monday the Braves bowed, 9-8.

Against the Dodgers, Doerr pitched three innings and McAlpine finished. Warju started and was relieved by Severance.

The Indians were in front all the way in the game with the Dodgers just falling short of tying. Going into the final the margin was six runs, and the Indians just managed to salvage the victory. Each team collected 10 hits. Don and John Doerr and Don King collected two hits each for the Indians and Brian Warju picked up four hits for the losers.

In one of the best played games in the loop during the year, the Indians-Braves contest was not decided until the final inning.

The Indians' McAlpine and Doerr shared pitching honors for the winners with McAlpine getting credit for the win. Jeff Hartel went the distance for the Braves, striking out 10 in the losing effort.

Hartel tried to win his own game with a two-run homer in the sixth to take a one-run lead for the Braves. But the Indians bounced back to score two as McAlpine singled for the tying run and scored later on an error.

READY AIM FIRE—archery competition draws interested bowmen.

Glaspie wins all in archery, croquet

A total of eight different events was held in a marathon conducted at the Cass City Recreational Park last week.

Kim Glaspie was first in archery. Bob Kozan was second and 15 boys participated. Fourteen participated in swimming competition. Junior division winners were Kelly Gee and Ken Kerbyson. Senior winners were Karen Martin and Bob Kozan.

Four boys participated in a free throw contest won by Craig Guernsey. Nine boys played croquet and Kim Glaspie was first and Jim Doerr, second. Ken Kerbyson was tops among eight participating in shuffleboard.

Surprisingly enough, horseshoe pitching was one of the most popular competitive events. Rick Tuckey won in a play-off with Loren O'Harris, Kelly Gee and Bob Kozan. There were 16 competing.

Kathy Kerbyson won the diving junior division and Ken Kerbyson was second, Craig Guernsey was first in the senior division and Bob Kozan was second.

Jim Doerr was tops in the badminton tourney. Ken Kerbyson was runner-up.

The winners were awarded trophies.

GOLF LEAGUE
The morning golf league is well underway. Director Tom Woody said. There are some 25 persons entered. Games are played Tuesday morning and a rain-out match will be played Thursday.

Woody said that the league is open to all boys and girls 17 and under.

Green fees for using the golf course on league days is 75 cents. For 50 cents more, members can play the rest of the day until 5 p. m.

Persons in the program can play other week days before 5 p. m. for $1.00. Woody said. There were 20 boys competing in three flights in the handicap league. In the first flight competition Scott Guernsey posted the low actual score, 50, and Craig Guernsey the low handicap score.

In the second flight, Scott Guinther was low actual with a 51 and also had the low handicap count, 28.

In third flight, it was Rich Lowe with a 65, the low scorer, and Mike Lowe with a 28, the low handicap winner.

Forecast: operations via the boob tube

Admittedly, there is an increasing shortage of doctors. In the same breath it must also be admitted that probably there are not going to be in the foreseeable future enough doctors to meet all of the needs, not to mention all the demands for doctors' services that will be made.

CONSULTATION VIA THE TUBE

One method whereby a doctor can reach more people and increase his efficiency is to develop methodologies whereby he might be able to remain in his office and yet examine his bed patients in the hospitals. It will not happen tomorrow, but telemedicine, providing a large variety of services from a distant position may sometime be a reality.

Many experiments are going on which use television and other telecommunication systems for diagnosis. In Massachusetts, a telediagnosis system as a pilot program was set up. It was a closed circuit system designed to be as unintrusive as possible, so that there would be a minimum mechanical intrusion into the doctor-patient relationship. The television camera was installed out of view behind a two-way mirror. A special zoom lens was fitted to the hidden camera for closeups; this was used in order to relieve the patient of any anxiety that he might have about the proximity of some strange looking equipment moving in on him. The first equipment used was a black and white television. Color television is planned at an early date, and this will add another dimension to aid in diagnosis.

Proponents of the system see the possibility of a wide ranging network permitting the entire medical world to offer services on an expanded scale. A busy doctor could be called in to assist in an emergency at a moment's notice, and be on the case in the time that it would take him to walk to the television control station. The proponents even see a diagnosis system tied in with the Telesat Satellites, so that it would not be impossible to have consultations by teams of specialists separated by continents!

SALT WATER SAMPLES

Distance is no impediment. Physicians have already monitored astronauts thousands of miles in space and aquanauts thousands of feet below the surface of the water.

Much of the same type of monitoring is being carried out in the Sealab—a submarine type affair which has its habitat on the ocean floor and in which an eight member aquanaut team live and work for 12 days at a time. The Sealab's medical monitoring is from a surface support vessel which houses a biochemical laboratory and an atmosphere monitoring station, capable of making varied biomedical tests and measurements.

These are examples of immediate contact between individuals and individual physicians. In addition, the use of automated files and the transmittal of a mass of information via telecommunication media can well be a part of this total program. Thus, it is quite possible to bring to bear on a local situation a public health emergency for example—a vast array of research at a moment's notice. Experiments along this line are being explored in the nation's medical libraries.

PLAINLY VISIBLE is the spot in the windshield where Lee Kilbourn was thrown. He was treated at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

a.m. Heintz's body was reported to have become cold and stiff by the time the accident was discovered.

Lee Kilbourn, 17, of Deford was treated for lacerations of the right forehead and chin at Hills and Dales Hospital after he struck the windshield of a car being driven by Frederick Lee Hicks in Cass City Friday evening, July 4.

Hicks was uninjured. Patrolman Jim Jezewski reported Hicks lost control of his car when he and Kilbourn became alarmed while searching the car for a lighted firecracker, and struck a pick-up.

Hicks was ticketed for failure to stop in a safe, assured distance. The pick-up jolted into an auto, both of the vehicles belonging to John P. Klebba at 4181 S. Seeger. Both the front and the rear of the pickup were damaged and the front of the Hicks auto was also damaged.

Wallace R. Grossman of Cass City escaped injury when his auto was struck by that of Margie Maupin of Caro at the junction of M-81 and Chambers Road. She was ticketed for failure to yield.

Both sides of the Grossman vehicle were damaged. He had been traveling east on M-81 and his auto was thrown into the right shoulder ditch. The front of the Maupin vehicle was damaged and she also escaped injury.

Deputy Richard Hunt of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department investigated the accident.

Julia G. Magier of Cass City told Deputy James Wright the "wheel slipped out of my hand" when her auto slid off Kelly Road one-quarter mile west of Lampton into the Cass River.

The vehicle was retrieved by Bartnik's Service. The mishap occurred early in the afternoon on July 4. She was uninjured.

Patrick J. Zuraw, 19, and Cecilia Zuraw, 48, both of Cagtown, were treated and released from Bay City General Hospital Sunday after a two-car collision on M-25 at Knight Road. The driver of the other car, Howard F. Franklin, 22, of Essexville, was cited by police for failure to yield the right of way.

Hospital aide program stymied

A nurses' aide program operated under the Thumb Area Economic Opportunity Commission and using mostly Federal funds is stymied for lack of a teacher.

The program designed to teach 32 mothers who receive aid to dependent children funds to be nurses' aides has been authorized at Hills and Dales Hospital for the 4-county Thumb area.

Total cost of two six-week training sessions has been set at $24,134. The Federal government will furnish $19,998 and the remainder of the cost is the amount the use of facilities and supplies are judged to be worth. It is not a direct cash outlay.

Officials of the EOC have not yet selected a teacher and until they do, no definite starting date for the program can be set. A registered nurse is needed.

Frank Haythorn, hospital administrator, said that he hopes that the course can start by the end of the month. He explained that Hills and Dales was selected as the training site because the hospital has the necessary room for the program.

EOC officials say that the program is the first of several that they hope to start. Others contemplated include welding, building trades and machine operators.

Nater pleads innocent

Judge James Churchill presided in Tuscola County Circuit Court in Caro when an Applegate man was arraigned for uttering and publishing and several persons were sentenced on charges of parole violation.

Raymond Nater of Applegate was arraigned for uttering and publishing. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered. A trial date will be established soon.

John Swinton of Saginaw was sentenced for probation violation and his probation was continued. He was sentenced to the Tuscola County jail for 31 days with credit for 24 days served during the pending trial.

Theodore Smith of Saginaw was also sentenced for probation violation. His probation was continued and extended one year. He was sentenced to the county jail three months with credit for 25 days served.

William Davis of Caro received a probation violation hearing. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to the county jail for one year, with 96 days credit for time served.

Jerry Thomas Bland also received a probation violation hearing and was judged guilty and his probation continued with an additional two months sentence in the county jail, and an additional $100 costs. Henry Huizar of Vassar was arraigned for driving on a revoked or suspended license. A plea of guilty was accepted and a presentence investigation ordered. His sentencing date was set for August 19. His bond was continued.

Dietzel to head Owen-Gage board

The Owen-Gage school board elected officers at its regular meeting Wednesday, July 2.

President is Eldon Dietzel, Leo Seurnyck is vice-president and Fred Cooley will serve as secretary. Tom Laurie is the treasurer.

The board will meet twice monthly, on the second Monday and the fourth Tuesday of each month.

Bids were accepted for painting of halls in the Owendale School and for the purchase of 17 typewriters.

"If It Fitz. . ."

It feels so good to testify

BY JIM FITZGERALD

(This column is repeated from Nov. 13, 1966.)

"I can't do the Negroes any good by quitting," said a man last week in explaining why he continues to belong to a Detroit club that limits membership to us pretty white folks.

Maybe he is correct. But how about doing himself some good?

How about my newest hero, Congressman Charles Wellner of Georgia? Last week he resigned as a Democratic nominee for another term because he refused to run on the same ticket with Lester Maddox, one of the world's greatest bigots.

Maddox is Georgia's Democratic nominee for governor. He gained fame by refusing to serve Negroes in his restaurant. He chased the niggers out at gunpoint and gave his white customers axe handles to use on civil rights demonstrators.

Maddox is a first class example of all that is rotten in this country. His nomination is a horrible indictment of an entire state. It is even more sickening than the nomination of Mrs. Wallace in Alabama which I previously thought had cinched the upchuck championship.

Wellner's oath as a candidate required him to support his fellow nominees. But he couldn't stomach Maddox so he quit. Wellner admitted that his action probably didn't do the Negroes any immediate good, but I'll bet it made him feel good.

I remember a day at a soda fountain in Port Huron, many years ago. I was with a Negro friend. The clerk gave me my ice cream in a dish. The Negro got his ice cream in a paper cup. He dropped the ice cream on the floor and walked out. I threw my ice cream on the clerk's apron and walked out.

My little display of anger probably didn't do one Negro one bit of good. But hell damn, it sure made me feel good to testify. Even today, I won't go in that store and I feel good again every time I walk by it.

It is easy for me to say I won't belong to any organization that restricts membership on the basis of race or religion. In the first place, I hate meetings and am an aggressive non-joiner. In the second place, there are practically no Negroes in the Lapeer area. If any local organization wants to be the first in its block with Negro members, it will have to bus them in from Flint.

But I do belong to the Lapeer Country Club and a man asked me what I'd do if 2 dozen Negro families tried to join. I am a long-time hardhead, dating back to fistfights with rednecks in a segregated army 22 years ago. Such a question doesn't flinch me a bit. My answer is quick and simple.

I would hope the men were lousy golfers and the women all looked like Lena Horne. I would hope they were nice people and I would hope that the directors processed their membership applications exactly the way they processed mine.

If the directors barred the Negroes because they were Negroes, or because it might make other members "uncomfortable," or any such 2-faced nonsense, I would resign and play golf somewhere else.

I see it this way: The vast majority of Country Club members are fine people. But, as in every large group, there are a couple of birds that bug the majority. The type that, maybe, curses the hired help in a loud voice. Or tells everyone how rich they are. You know.

These are the guys I am always happy to see sit at another table. And if I can belong to the same club they do, I can damn well belong to one that admits Negroes.

I can't think of any more colossal gall than to dare to judge a man on the color of his skin or the size of his nose. Black or white, a gentleman is a gentleman and a jerk is a jerk. If he is to have dignity, a man must be measured by what he is, not what color he is. And any Negro who can afford to join the Country Club has probably got a lot more on the ball than I have. I couldn't possibly be a party, no matter how silent, to spitting in his eye.

For me, it is that simple. My quitting the club wouldn't help the rejected Negroes. But, as with the thrown ice cream, it would make me feel good. It would give me the feeling that, I suspect, a lot of people get from going to church.

THE NEW WATER heater for the pool has been installed but is not yet operating. Village Engineer William Schram said Tuesday that a missing part was expected at any time. Watching the unit being placed in the bathhouse is Lifeguard Ann Sheppard, Community Chest President Tom Proctor and Recreation Director Tom Woody. The unit was purchased with money from the United Fund.

Coming Auction

Saturday, July 12 - Ed Martette will sell personal property at the place located on M-53, just south of the Kinde school.

West new Veep at Diamond Crystal

The election of G. Alfred West as Vice-president - Personnel & Industrial Relations of Diamond Crystal Salt Company, St. Clair, was announced by Charles F. Moore, President and Board Chairman.

As Vice-president, West will continue to direct the Corporation's Personnel and Industrial Relations policies, employee relations, labor relations, manpower development, benefit plans and compensation administration. In addition, he supervises Diamond Crystal's public relations and communication programs.

West, who had been Director - Personnel/Industrial Relations, joined Diamond Crystal in 1945 as Assistant Industrial Relations Manager at the Company's St. Clair Plant. He was named Personnel Manager at Diamond Crystal's Akron, Ohio, facility in 1946, and became Corporate Training Supervisor in 1947, Plant/Office Personnel Manager at St. Clair in 1952, Corporate Manager - Training and Industrial Relations in 1959 and Director - Personnel and Industrial Relations in 1966. Before joining Diamond Crystal, West taught physical education and athletics at Libby High School, Toledo, Ohio, and St. Clair (Michigan) High School, where he also was Dean of Boys.

He received a B.S. Degree in Education from Central Michigan University in 1929 and he attended the University of Michigan Graduate School. West is Chairman of the Industrial Relations Committee of the Salt Institute; member of the Industrial Relations Committee of the National Association of Manufacturers; the Labor Committee of the Michigan Association of Manufacturers; the Legislative Committee of the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, and is a member of the Industrial Management Club.

Mr. and Mrs. West reside at 122 East Meldrum Circle in St. Clair. Born in Muirkirk, Ontario, West was reared in Cass City, and graduated from Cass City High School in 1925. He is a past president of the

G. ALFRED WEST

St. Clair Rotary Club, past member of the St. Clair County Library Board, past president of the Blue Water District Safety Council, and has served as Chairman of the St. Clair Community Chest, as Director of the Civil Defense Council and a member of the St. Clair Recreation Committee. He taught physical education and athletics in St. Clair High School from 1929 to 1936 and from 1937 to 1945. In 1936 and 1937, he was Football Line and Head Basketball Coach at Libby High School, Toledo, Ohio.

Diamond Crystal, the nation's third-largest salt processor, has plants in St. Clair, Michigan; Akron, Ohio; Jefferson Island, Louisiana; Long Island, Bahamas, and Wilmington, Massachusetts.

Wet spring brings weed problems

By Alfred P. Ballweg

With weather conditions this spring, some comments are necessary concerning weed problems and weed control results.

1. Weed problems are developing in corn which is making very slow growth and many fields are becoming quite grassy. With respect to control of quackgrass in these fields there is still time to apply atrazine and oil. Some knockdown of the quackgrass can be obtained with 2 lbs. of atrazine and 1 gallon of oil. However, effective quackgrass control requires 4 lbs. of atrazine and this should be applied with 1 gallon of oil.

Some control of nutsedge which is extremely prevalent because of the wet cool conditions can also be obtained using 4 lbs. of atrazine and 1 gallon of oil postemergence. Splitting the application and applying the first treatment when the nutsedge is 2 inches tall and following with 2 lbs. and 1 gallon of oil two weeks later will provide more effective control of nutsedge.

Annual grasses that have gotten to be more than 1 1/2 to 2 inches tall generally will not be effectively controlled with postemergence applications. Broadleaf weeds 4-6 inches tall can still be controlled with atrazine and oil.

2. Questions have arisen concerning the control of thistle and other weeds not controlled by 2,4-D postemergence in corn. Banvel-D in combination with 2,4-D at 1/4 lb. per acre of each will provide more effective control of thistles and smartweed than 2,4-D alone. There is a hazard to susceptible crops from drift of Banvel-D as well as 2,4-D. The thistle and smartweed problems should be of sufficient magnitude to warrant the additional hazard. Use the amine form of 2,4-D to avoid some of the risk. 3. Reports of Lorox injury to soybeans have been received. With excess rainfall it is a good possibility that the Lorox has leached to the bean seed level in sufficient quantities to cause injury, particularly on lighter soil types.

4. There is a possibility of crusting from rainfall in the dry bean area and conditions similar to 1968 will result in Epim injury. Crusting and conditions that promote slow growth of dry beans will increase the potential for this injury. Use of the rotary hoe to break the crust will reduce the injury potential and provide for bean emergence.

5. Many herbicides will be leached from the surface 1/2 to 3/4 inches and it is anticipated that late-season weed problems will develop in many situations. Where atrazine is being used for pre-emergence control in corn, the problems of fall panicum will increase.

AGRI-BUSINESS IN ACTION...

Sugarbeet growers in Michigan's Saginaw Valley have played a vital role in the agri-business economy of our state since the turn of the century. Their progressive efforts combined with those of the state's two processing companies have boosted the dollar value of the sugarbeet crop to nearly $35 million dollars annually. In 1968 farmers in 17 Michigan counties harvested over 84,000 acres of beets. A crop that will produce nearly 350 million pounds of sugar for the Michigan market.

If you live in the Saginaw Valley-Thumb area of Michigan, you no doubt know someone that helps fill Michigan's "sugar bowl" each year. It makes good sense to buy a Michigan grown product. Help yourself to Michigan Made Pure Sugar the next time you shop. Ask for it by name—Pioneer or Big Chief. These brands in the red, white and blue bags represent the finest that Michigan agri-business has to offer.

Jackson-Wald reunion at Caro

The 23rd annual Jackson-Wald reunion was held Sunday at the Caro Fairgrounds with 63 members present.

The oldest member attending was Mrs. Mary Brock of Caro and the youngest, Sheila Ann Mellendorf of Saginaw. The couple from the greatest distance was Joseph Wald and family of McQuire, New Jersey.

A potluck dinner was served and the same officers were re-elected: Tom Jackson, president; Arthur Jackson, vice-president; and Laura Datto, secretary-treasurer.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

You might recollect some time back the fellers at the country store give a hole Saturday night session to the Government's rain policy. It was decided at the time that the scientists was trying to make rain and the politicians was trying to say where the rain was going to fall.

Well, sir, this matter got another chance on the agender Saturday night. Clem Webster got wound up over all the talk in Congress and across the country about air and water pollution. He said it had got so bad to where this city feller went to the country and had to cut his visit short cause he got scared breathing air he couldn't see.

Clem was of a mind that Congress hems and haws about everything they take up except raising their own wages, and this problem of air and water pollution is gitting the same old run around. It is usual true, allowed Clem, that politicians spend a heap of time talking and preshuts little gitting things done, but he was of a mind that making clean air was going to be as tough as making rain.

They is some folk, said Clem, that loves the smell of pool rooms, and some can't stand the smell of horses. They is others that like to smell cigars, but git sick when they smell the stuff wimmen use in them permanent waves. They ain't no way, allowed Clem, the Government or nobody can clean up the air to suit everybody.

Bug Hookum said he could see them Congressmen trying to figure out what kind of air the folks back home want. It'd be as bad as deciding the best day to make rain. If farmers and ranchers need rain the worst way, the golfers don't want it. If the vegetable gardens need a shower, the hay on the ground and the cotton don't.

Ed Doolittle took the floor and allowed Bug and Clem wasn't taking the right look at water and air pollution. With the weather, Ed said, the thing was to change nature's habits, but with bad air and water, it is to change habits of folks. Ed said the politicians got off the rain making game fast cause they knowed with the set up nature's got nobody can git blamed for what ever weather we git. If people run the weather, they'd mess it up shore, Ed said, cause if it didn't rain on a feller's mowed hay it'd catch him Sunday at the church picnic.

Zeke Grubb put the stopper in the pollution jug, Mister Editor, when he said noise was a head ache, and between jet airplanes and racket younguns call music, the hole country is going deaf. Zeke moved to adjourn the session on grounds the fellers wasn't doing nothing but adding to the noise pollution.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Daiquiris on the Crook River

By Richard Haines

We coasted in slowly and he threw a rope over a corner of the old wharf. I shut off the boat's throttle. The skeletal wharf had only two poles stuck in the river and two old boards to the bank.

We were near a desolate bank of Crook River near the famed Devils Elbow on the Inland Waterway near my home area of Petoskey-town.

The friend with me was an ex-Boy Scout, and I'll call him "Scout". We located a remote, quiet sand knoll in the middle of nowhere. Right on the riverbank, it was surrounded with Cedars and Beeches.

It was my first camping expedition—the game of the tough and hardy. But after my first one, I'm not exactly sure I place myself in the Lewis and Clark class.

Scout pitched the tent after we toted all the junk from the boat. I stood around, shifting my feet. "Hey, how 'bout the drinks?" I asked, and I poured a husky rum bacardi for each of us. "The Outdoor Hilton will need a bar," I said, pleased with the fact I could make myself so very useful, constructive, and indeed, valuable.

Of course every camp needs a fire to dance to the gods to, and so we cut some brush, a few small dead trees, and played Paul Bunyon for awhile.

As the fire went down, Scout told me to push in the big stick on my end of the fire. I reached towards it, but there was a bunch of ants buzzing around the end, trying frantically to avoid the heat. I momentarily paused, then impulsively plunged it into the flames.

It was relaxing. . . . sitting at the fireside, sipping our homespun daiquiris and puffing our pipes as old man cheese loomed overhead.

But life at the outdoor Riviera wasn't completely idyllic. We divided the blankets up, both of them, and about 3 a. m., my tooties, without looking, were covered with frost, the back of my head was flattened, and my backbone had hardened into a cast iron pipe.

I "woke up" about 6 a. m. to the tunes of about 40 million tweet-tweets, each of them singing and in superbly harmonized discord. And there were just as many mosquitos at the edge of the tent and as I sat up one of them said, "There they are!"

I got up anyway and pushed myself into the northern Michigan morning coolness. "Good morning, world," I thought, "I've never seen you this way before, but then again, I guess you've never seen me this way before either." The sun was shining beneath a slight overcast, and the river was still moving with its stolid, irreversible current.

I ruffled the ashy coals and set some twigs upon them. Good old lighter fluid, I squirted some over the twigs and lit a match, but as the twigs were just burning out, little laps of flame stretched upward from a corner of the fire. Mmmmm.

"How do you like my fire," I taunted, as sleepy-eyed scout emerged from the tent, "every bit as good as Huck Finns, I'd say."

"What do you mean your fire, he lamented. It started from my coals."

It's breakfast time, scout. You know what that means. . . . cheer.

I told him I'd get some water for coffee, and I picked up our only, a medium sized frying pan, and went for the river. Brim-spilling full, I was carrying it back as I said, "I tried to get it from the most unpolluted part."

"Is the river polluted," I asked.

"No, but if I put my sneakers on I could've probably walked across it."

"Oh, it looks okay to me," he said. "There's all kinds of junk in it, and it looks like a couple of them are moving, but we'll boil the heck out of it."

"And if that doesn't fix it, this will," I said, reaching for the bacardi. So that, plus a few fire ashes, got us to a waking start.

The coffee boiled in a pan set right on a couple sticks burning in the fire. "I wonder if all pans get that black," pondered scout.

After "coffee" on went the canned ham. Scout is an all-around good camper. He's a good egg, and after the ham he put some on.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Girls: gut issue in education

By Dan Marlowe

It seems at times that every national magazine appearing in the past six months has contained at least a passing reference to the problem of the school dropout.

Educators plead that we're losing the potential of a good percentage of our youth. Politicians are aghast at the unenviable prospect of finding jobs for largely unemployable constituents.

But with all the publicity, I wonder at times if the educators and the politicians are really getting through to the kids about the seriousness of the situation. I doubt it, and I think I know why. Educators and politicians are dealing in abstractions, while kids nowadays deal in realities.

If school dropoutism is a gut issue, it should be presented to the kids as a gut situation. I'm thinking in particular of an area so basic there isn't a boy or girl alive who hasn't given some serious thought to the situation.

Preliminary figures from a recent sociological study indicate that 74% of the men and women in this country tend to marry in their own class, as respects both income and social brackets. Only 2% of the country's males tend to marry "above" themselves, although the figure is four times higher for the realistically-minded females, more conscious of upward social mobility.

The present-day application of this imbalance is that the male dropout necessarily relegates himself to selecting a wife from the 10% of the female population at the bottom of the intellectual ladder. And she's likely to be on the same rung as far as physical attractiveness is concerned, too, because human nature and the male high school teacher being what they are, it's almost impossible for a well-mannered, goodlooking girl of even minor mental attainments to fall out of school.

The girl dropout's problems are almost always emotional and or moral, a factor which should give the male pause if his eye roams even slightly in that direction.

So in the main we have a continuing excess of semi-educated females striving for upward mobility and scornfully regarding less-educated males as marriage potential. What's left for these less-educated males? The bottom of the barrel.

If the boy in school today, disenchanted with the educational process and on the verge of dropping out, were only to glance around him and reflect that if he doesn't get himself an education the girls available to him are likely to be the "dogs" of his world, it might cause him to reassess his situation.

And if the harveyd youth of today can't be appealed to on these practical grounds, they probably can't be appealed to at all.

When book shopping for your children, look to the medal winners.

Each spring, two major children's book awards are presented for the two outstanding books in the field. They are the John Newbery medal and the Caldecott medal. The Newbery award is presented annually to the American author making the greatest contribution to children's literature. The Caldecott award goes to the illustrator of the most distinguished picture book.

For pre-schoolers, the picture books, or Caldecott winners, are probably the best. Because young children have a short attention span, pictures are better than words. They encourage the child to develop his imagination. After hearing the story once or twice, he can "picture-read" it himself and tell it to his parents, brothers, and sisters.

If your child doesn't follow the word pattern of the book, don't be alarmed. Children of pre-school age "live" their books and often dramatize them—making themselves and their family into imaginary book characters.

Ezra Jack Keats is particularly good at depicting feelings and incidents that encourage a child to live his books. He received the Caldecott medal in 1963 for "Snowy Day," which illustrates a young boy's adventures in the snow.

Not only do young children develop their imaginations with high quality picture books, but many learn to appreciate the aesthetic qualities of good art. Why not visit your local library during the summer months and look for the best in children's books? If not available there, ask your librarian to order them from your Michigan State Library.

3 new reference books available at extension office

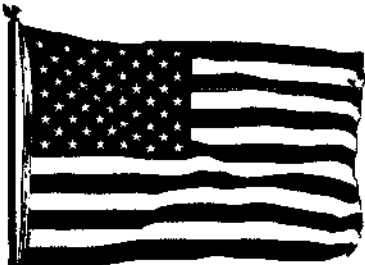

Three new quick reference handbooks dealing with housing and equipment needs for the production of beef, swine and dairy cattle are now available from the Tuscola County Cooperative Extension Office, announces Alfred Ballweg, County Extension Director.

They are: "Beef Housing and Equipment Handbook" MWPS-6; "Swine Housing and Equipment Handbook" MWPS-8, and "Dairy Equipment Plans and Housing Needs" MWPS-7. Each is well illustrated and speci-cally designed to serve as a working encyclopedia for farmers and livestock producers. The publications sell for $1 each, and can also be obtained from the Department of Agricultural Engineering, Michigan State University.

It's your privilege...

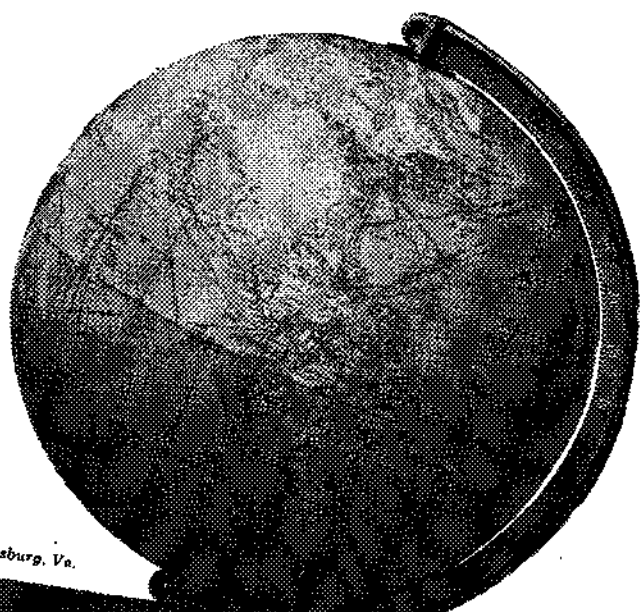

Here in America no one tells you that you have to work. Of course, when you do, you and your family enjoy self-respect as well as material benefits.

No one tells you, either, when or how you must play. But, when you take time for occasional recreation, you become refreshed, alert and ready for more work.

And no one tells you that you must worship the Lord, your God, regularly. But, when you do, you and your family are immeasurably blessed.

His mercy and loving-kindness will embrace your life. Knowledge of His infinite goodness and confidence in His eternal vigilance and love will sustain you at all times.

These blessings, and more, are yours so long as you keep alive the glorious American privileges of freedom to work, play and worship as you choose.
