CASS CITY CHRONICLE

FROM THE

I'm about to go on another

Over the years I've probably lost (and gained) more weight than anyone in town with the exception of Jim

I can't say about Jim, but the reason I'm always gaining is because of my affliction... I love to eat, Gerald Prieskorn calls me a foodaholic...I can't think of anything better than a huge steak dinner followed by luscious, luscious banana

Like most fatties, when I'm on a diet and going strong it always seems to me that I've finally got it licked... I KNOW I'm never going to be as heavy as I was... get down and STAY down, that's the ticket.

During these periods I'm al-most tempted to give all those size 38 trousers to the Salvation Army...after all Pm never going to need them again.

But then maybe Idon't REAL-LY believe it. Because I never do discard my fat-boy clothes and of course the svelte, streamlined real-me clothes are never discarded because it's only a matter of weeks before I'll be ready for them again.

To tell the truth, I not only have clothes for Thin John and Big John, but for all the Johns in between. Right now I'm well supplied with 35's, 36's and 38's...the trouble is right now I take a 37. But I'm not about to buy any more 37's because. as I said, I'm about to go on a diet and it will be only a matter of weeks before I'll be in my 36's and 35's and maybe Pil have to rush out and get some 34's.

Because I have lost so much weight, I know that all of you are anxiously waiting for the last word on the easy way to lose weight.

Sorry. There ain't any... and I claim real expertise. I've tried pills, high protein, low protein, no meats, all meats, no sweets, sweets before meals and a piece of candy between meals.

For a true foodaholic these diets are ridiculous.

A piece of candy before the meal just does one thing.. makes you want another and whets the appetite for the food to follow. Metrecal is fine if you use it in place of milk and everyone knows that the best part of any steak is the fat around the edge.

And forget about counting calories. If you don't become nauyou certainly will become discouraged.

The way to lose weight is to make up your mind that you aren't going to eat ANYTHING that you like and not very darn much of what you don't like. Avoid those thin, thin gluttonous eaters like the plague.

The key word is suffer. Remember at all times that you are really a martyr to the cause and that most good things in life are (to coin a cliche) either illegal, immoral or fattening.

Gagetown meet set to discuss area law needs

Tuscola County Supervisors are sending invitations this week to Huron and Sanilac sheriff departments asking them to participate in assessing Tricounty law enforcement needs. Sheriff Hugh Marr, president of a 14-county law enforcement district, said the state has $150,000 of special funds for special technical training programs and that the group would assess common needs that might qualify the three counties for a financial grant.

Law enforcement officials, representatives of the County Board of Commissioners, and from other tri-county villages and cities will attend the noon meeting at Sherwood Forest Country Club in Gagetown this Marr said Cass Cityofficials have been invited. The sheriff said the express purpose of the new technical training programs, sponsored by federal funds, is to upgrade the caliber and education of all law enforcement groups. He said eight million dollars would be available to Michigan law enforcement departments in the upcoming year.

A middle-aged woman, Miss Glenda I, Root of Flint, traveling on the road at the time received minor injuries after she stopped and ran around the corner of her car towards the flaming auto. She was bandaged by firemen.

Towler said it appeared the fire started near the right rear wheel. He said they smelled smoke, and when he pressed the brake pedai, there was no response. He pulled the emergency brake, stopping the car.

Millage levy dies in record vote

The last hope for persons in the Cass City School District who were in favor of increasing taxes for a full school curriculum went glimmering Monday by the slim margin of Voters turned out in record numbers to decide the issue finally for the 1969-70 school year. A total of 1263 votes was cast. Three were spoiled and 636 voted no while 624 voted yes.

The total was an all-time record for the school and 271 more votes than were cast in the last election for extra operating millage. It was the third try for extra operating millage.

Regardless of subsequent developments, the curriculum cuts previously announced will stand, Supt. Donald Crouse said this week. It would be impossible to fill the staff with the required teachers even if a vote passed at the earliest possible moment.

Meanwhile, the negotiations between the Michigan Education Association's teachers' union and several area school districts were at an impasse.

BIDS APPROVED

In the regular meeting open to the public the usual noncontroversial routine matters vere discussed.

Bids for various school sup-plies were received and okayed. Most prices were increased from the previous year. Insurance is $300 more, but liability coverage was also in-creased. Low bidder was P. J.

Closest bid of the night was for milk. Sani-Seal bid .0628 per half pint for furnishing white milk and .0678 for chocolate milk. The price was onehundredth of a cent cheaper than the bids submitted by London's Farm Dairy.

Meat for the hot lunch program will be furnished by Erla Food Center (hamburger) and Gross & O'Harris (hot dogs).

The contract with Neil Blank Bookkeeping Service at Imlay City will be renewed. The firm handles the payroll bookkeeping and writes the checks with a computer.

Last year the cost was 45¢ per check at $25 quarterly. The new rate is 55¢ per check. According to Supt. Don Crouse the service has been excellent and the cost will still be less than the price of hiring a person to do the work manually.

Lack of teacher kills shop in grades

Cass City Schools list only two vacancies on its staff for the 1969-70 school year, but a shortage of Industrial Arts teachers has forced a change in curriculum.

Because no teachers are available for Intermediate Industrial Arts, the Cass City Board of Education okayed a suggestion by Supt. Donald Crouse to drop the course and substitute typing.

Wayne Dillon, who taught at the intermediate level last year, is moving to the high school replace retired Orion

The switch to typing will cost the school $4,000 for new typewriters.

Monday evening teachers for the typing course and for social studies were still needed, but Supt. Crouse said that he felt they were available.

An ironic part of the intermediate curriculum now is that boys will be taking home economics but not shop.

Harrison finds action easy as city

This is the third installment of the Chronicle three-part series of presenting pertinent information to the electorate on what applications a home rule city charter would have on this community. The following third installment relates the experiences a comparable community has experienced of one such transition. We point out that Harrison from a fourth class moved city instead of a General Law Village to home rule. The state authorizations for both fourth class cities and General Law Villages (Cass City's status) were drafted in 1895. Both of them, according to Bob Hegel of the Michigan Municipal League, carry complex provisions which may, or may not, box in the goals of a municipality. As a fourth class city, it was financially self-contained

By Richard Haines. Harrison, Michigan, is a compact little resort town (winter population, about 1,300) located in the upper center of the state about one mile off I-75. It is the home of Wilson State Park which handles a reported 120 campsites. Its recent growth has been in fuel stations, motels and small restaurants.

and was not a part of the town-

"We're strictly tourism," said city clerk John Hutchinson, retiree and past local businessman. He said having nice streets, well-kept parks and a clean, convenient community is important to Harrison, It's part of "being a good looking community," he said.

The county seat of Clare county, Harrison was a fourth class city prior to March 24, when it adopted home rule. Harrison councilmen talked on-and-off of a home rule charter in recent years and it was over two years ago when the community voted to write . its home-tailored charter.

Their first task had been to sell the community on the need for home rule, said Wayne Bucholz, an elementary teacher at the local school, who was later chosen charter commission chairman.

Interviewed by phone where he was contacted in Lansing, Bucholz said they went to the Kiwants club and other groups to present their hopes for the their questions," he said. He added that the most common question was, "What will it do to our taxes?" When the question of whether or not to write a new charter came before the people, it was approved with ease." Writing it," Bucholz said, "took two But we got together some fellas who were interested and who worked together well." Every aspect of governmental activity had to be thoroughly examined, he said. One particularly probing commission member, he said, was Kirk Nigro, a high school government teacher and adult education director. It was Nigro, Bucholz said, who asked many questions throughout the charter's drafting, "but we were always able to answer him." Nigro told the Chronicle he was writing his masters thesis for Central Michigan University on the topic of home rule for Harrison. Cautious and unassuming, Nigro said the new city charter is "difficult to assess in this short period of time." "I think though," he said, "it will be easter to cope with problems, but this remains to Nigro said the Michigan Municipal League sent representatives and also sample charters to help the commission in the drafting of their home rule charter.

Later in the drafting, they hired consulting attorney, Nile Vermillion of Lansing, said Nigro. Hutchinson said that the attorney general, who had to recommend its acceptance or denial to the governor, praised its "expertly drafted" language. Councilman Hutchinson said. now we talk almost loathsomely of the past because "everytime something needed to be done and the council got ready to take action, there was a stall." "Before," he said, "we had to go to Lansing. Now, we can take a look at the problem and see where we can

The cost, estimated Hutchinson, of drafting the new charter was between $1,000 and $1,500. This included legal fees, the nominal fee paid the charter members, the cost of publishing the document (a legal requirement) and transportation to Lansing.

As a resort town, Bucholz said, there are a lot of streets they want blacktopped, curbs and gutters that are needed, and increasingly, a sewage plant that will have to be constructed.

Asked if these things wouldn't increase taxes, Bucholz said, "Yes, but only if we decide we want the services bad enough to do it." He added, that everything that needs to be done will be asserted by Harrison alone. Asked why they couldn't do this as a fourth class city, he responded, "Did you ever try going through a legislature? We can do things Cumber swings. At least it did when "Ollie" Brown ran the bar at the four corners northeast of town. But even in its best days, Cumber never provided any swingers for the Cass City Church League as reported last week.

They have written it down for me and here is what CCSS really means: Colwood United Brethren, Colling Nazarene, Sutton-Sunshine Methodist Church.

Regardless of how you say it they are still the best this season. They clinched the league championship this week.

Larry Hughes of Cass City beat the draft by enlisting in the Peace Corps...but just barely. After about six calls to Washington an official of the Corps called his Tuscola County Draft Board confirming his enlistment in the Peace Corps. He was to have been inducted the following day.

What do you do on a pleasant Sunday afternoon when the fire whistle blows? Follow the fire truck of course, Everyone knows this, including the firemen and police officials.

That's why the estimated 200 cars that paraded after the fire trucks Sunday were unable to get even close to the fire. Officials blocked them off, creating a mile-long line of Sunday drivers and traffic confusion.

Newell Harris tells me that he is one of the Puritans who get up every morning at 6 a.m. to rush down to the high school for the physical education program.

The other day, he said, six of these (what DO you call them) were there and they decided to have a basketball game. Three men to the side, full length of the gym.

For most of us that's not exercise, that's suicide.

There were about six of us watching the school election ballots counted Monday and for about a half hour things were

The election board counts "yes" and "no" ballots in separate piles of 25 each and then crisscrosses them in larger piles of 100. When the count was tabulated the "yes" votes tallied an even 600 and the "no" votes, 615...but there were 50 ballots missing.

The search started and about 10 minutes later a pile of 25 "yes" votes was found. The observers were all proschool boosters, including High School Principal Russell Richards and Intermediate Principal Robert Stickle, and there were guarded hopes that all was not lost.

It lasted for another five minutes when the last missing pile of 25 was found... "no" votes of course. You could almost feel the sigh of dejection that swept through the room... like air going out of a balloon...or like the heart going out of an educational program.

Large crowd at All-star game

The annual all-star game of the Cass City Church League drew the largest crowd of the season Thursday as team number one defeated team two,

Two players each from Church of Christ, Deford, Decker, Fraser-Gagetown, Baptists Owendale-Gagetown played for team one. Two players from Ellington Nazarene, Trinity United Methodist, Cass City Missionary, Shabbona, CCSS, and Catholics played for team two.

Mellendorf was the winning pitcher, Les Severance took the loss. Louie Tibbits hit a home run.

Monday, Ellington Nazarene upset the Catholics, 2-1. Jerry Hillaker won the pitching duel over John Maharg,

In the late game, Owendale-Gagetown slugged its way to a 13-3 decision over Church of Christ, Dale Karr and Earl Rayl hit home runs for Owen-Gage, Earl Rayl had a 3-hitter. The loser was Don Englehart.

Peters injured in race crash

Some flerce road battles ensued at the Thunder Road Raceway Saturday night as several drivers badly damaged their autos and a Cass City driver was hospitalized in a $520 purse competition event.

Roger Peters of Cass City was hospitalized at Hills and Dales Hospital when his 1932 chevy coupe dramatically rolled over seven times separating the entire car body from the frame.

He is reported in good condition with complaints of minor back pains.

Adrian Hutchinson of Cass City rolled his coupe in the Australian pursuit in the quarter with his car landing upside down in the infield. Pit mechanics were quick to turn his auto right side up. He was uninjured. The roof and the radiator of his coupe were damaged.

Larry Mathews of Kingston escaped injury when his car rolled four times, badly crumpling the top of his well kept chevy coupe. It occurred in the second half mile heat.

A brawlish audience in the grandstand about 500 strong egged on the roadfights as Jerry Keilitz of Deford placed first in the quarter mile dash, the quarter mile first heat and the quarter mile Australian pursuit. Keilitz expressed anger at unspecified drivers, however, claiming unsportsmanlike

Feds may buy school video tape outfit

Intermediate Principal Robert Stickle reported to the Cass City School Board Monday night that the Title I Federal program for the new school year has been submitted for approval.

According to the formula used, Stickle told the board, City's share will be $23,500 this year as compared to $18,500 last year. The money is used to hire teachers' aids and equipment. Stickle said that he hoped to receive authorization for video tape equipment for about $3,000. The machine could be used to rebroadcast important lessons over the school's TV system, he explained.

A fringe benefit would be using the equipment on basketball and football games for study of game action by coaches.

Kalwall windows are on the site and installation has started. Total cost of this major work is $17,712.

Another addition at the school will be a coming events sign. The $1,000 unit will not cost the school anything, Ken Maharg explained to the board. It is a gift from the Cass City Lions Club. It will be placed in front of the new high school.

The lettering portion of the sign will be 4 by 8 feet and the overall sign, 8 x 12 feet.

A request was made for payment for Ken Kennedy of $110 for tutors' fees in Detroit. The board will see if special education funds are available for the youth who was paralyzed in a swimming accident at a school picnic in June

"IF IT FITZ...."

Nice people are racists

BY JIM FITZGERALD

So spoke a friend of mine upon my recent return from a week end in Detroit. Yes, I said friend, Which brings us quickly to the subject at hand; the astonishment of several University of Michigan students who invaded Detroit to make a detailed survey of white attitudes towards blacks.

These door-knocking liberals found the prejudice they expected. Oh, white Detroit isn't as wary of Negroes today as in 1967, year of the riot. There are. in fact, a growing number of white Detroiters who recognize that blacks get a bum deal and something should be done about it. But please let someone else do it.

What surprised the surveyors was that truly "nice people" are racial bigots. Many of the students finally admitted they had been guilty of the same stereotyping they condemn when the other guy does it. They had decided all bigots were nasty rednecks who pick their noses and spit at black children. They weren't prepared for the graclousness and likeability of many whites who served the surveyors highballs and cookies along with sincere tch-tches over the plight of the Negro: "But my neighbors would never speak to me again if I sold my home to a Negro.

"I had to change a lot of my thinking," admitted one surprised surveyor who had been well charmed by a neighborhood of polite racists.

Well, I'm surprised the U of M kids were surprised. They must have been brought up in a liberal vacuum. The world is full of nice people who couldn't possibly be unkind to an individual Negro. But they are certain that blacks "are really happier living with their own peo-ple"--in some rat-infested ghetto. And they're certain the few violent, well publicized blacks are typical of all Negroes--but they'd never judge all Italians by the Mafia.

A big part of the racism problem is racists who don't know they are racists and will deny it to the death. They have that one blind spot: They cannot put themselves into a Negro's shoes and understand the humiliation and fear and desolation and bitterness of being a second class citizen. Will this restaurant treat me politely or refuse to serve me? When my child is first called a nigger, how do I explain it to him? If I buy a home in this nice neighborhood, will the neigh-bors be friendly or will they

How would you like to live with questions like that?

throw rocks through my win-

How can so many people be so wrong? I blame fear-fear of the unknown-or, to put it in modern jargon, a lack of communication. The U of M survey turned up a telling fact: whites who associate regularly with blacks are much less bigoted than whites who don't.

So I regularly take my family to a Detroit motel where at least half the customers are black. I want my children to sleep near Negroes, eat with them and swim with them. This is no big thing and no sermon is attached to these week-end vacations. I just want the kids to see what I see: black people are fat and skinny, loud and quiet, handsome and ugly, just like white people. Black fathers beam proudly and a little foolishly at their children, the same as I do. Black mothers look sharp and yell warnings when Junior gets frisky at the deep end of the pool, the same as all mothers every-

And I am not surprised or angered when a good friend razzes me about "swimming with the niggers." He is a good man, and I know it. But he could be better.

He simply wasn't pushed into the right pool when he was

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Clem Webster announced at and tries to change all of man's the country store Saturday night and natures's laws around. That that he won't be none suprised when scientists figger a way to turn off gravity. Afore the fellers got the idee the summer sun to the laws of economics. And had porebiled Clem's brains, he went on to explain what he had to Washington they bring along

But Clem said he was special concerned about economic laws, that is about as hard to change as the law of gravity, and ever time one of them college perfessors git a Guvernment job he works out his set of economic laws. Clem was of the mind, Mister Editor, that all the changes does is git everthing stirred good and proper fer the next Administration.

Ever onct in a while, Clemallowed, a new bunch comes along goes from court rulings that finds the victim guilty of having when a new Administration gits

a new batch of laws to rework Guvernment and to fit ever oc-

Clem, that backed the Democrats through the New Deal, and New Frontier and even some Great Society, allowed he was waiting fer President Nixon to start whipping the country back in shape, but so far all he can see is Mr. Nixon dodging ever new problem and passing new laws that give us more of the old problems. Fer instant, Clem said he had saw where Nixon was gitting ready to unwrap his new welfare and farming programs. So far all that has been unwrapped is speeches about what terrible shape the Democrats left everthing in.

Final, Mister Editor, Ed Doolittle got the floor and demanded equal time. He started off by saying what Clem was talking about was changing people, not laws. The sad fact is, said Ed, people want everthing they can git and then some, and that includes them doctors that has got paid $100 million more in Medicare than they saw, much less treated, patients fer. It includes them 17,000 farmers and ranchers too, Ed went on, that is gitting $25,000 or more apiece a year fer letting their land lay

They is somepun about people, Ed said, that when they git their head to the trouff they don't want to quit eating and they don't want to make room fer nobody else. The difference in farming and agriculture in this country, declared Ed, is that the little feller that works his land is farming and the big feller that gits paid by the Guvernment fer not farming is in agriculture. Them as has gits, whuther its $5 billion in farm paymunts or doctored up Medicare claims, was Ed's words, Personal, Mister Editor, Iam agreed with Clem that about the only law they ain't changed is the one about the squeaking wheel gitting the grease.

Cityhood? What are our priorities?

By Richard Haines

We had gone to press. Isat back, my infamous shoes upon the wastebasket. Sitting in front of my writertype. And I nondered the series we complete this week on cityhood. Wondering, if our own council really had it in them or not, cityhood or no.

Looking towards big 'm editor chief, I ventured, "I think the village councilmen are pretty good," And then I looked toward him for the affirmation or denial that would inevitably be coming. (After all, being editor for 15 years, can have its effects, ya know.)

His eyebrows raised, the corner of his mouth drooped, and looking somehow affronted restlessly pondered several moments (He's always rest-

Finally, he observed, "Yes .. most of them."

My eyebrows raised, the corner of my mouth drooped, and I offered, "That'll have to goon record as one of our more "Hairy" quotations.

At least it'll be on record here. For all my fans, Mother and Aunt Gwendalyn.

Continuing...

The town's pulse, though, has quickened somewhat as the topic of cityhood's shadow casts itself in, around and through the village's nooks and cran-

We believe a municipal government is only as good as the public men in it, on the council

As we expectedly discovered, some of the councilmen had been curious about this idea for some time, had pondered it, traversed their mind through the caverns of its complex meaning. Still, others had not. While we cannot and will not judge men on how versed they are on any one topic, it is not speculation that while some dream, learn and do, others sit back and dream-learn-do-And in the mind of this over-innocent observer, nothing is so low as the man who begrudges another politice, not out of legitimate argument, but one of rivalry and jealousy.

Often-times, the intrigue and emotions that spin in political circles can become a day-today struggle.

And its unfortunate because the challenges of the present and immediate future leave for all would-be crusaders a heyday because of the glamorous opportunities to make their own political st(e)ake. For the man who loves to shoulder the public burdens, and all its frustrating conflicts, for the man who likes the stress of rivalry, ambition, frustration, public demands, there is more than enough to suffice, (applause) Thank you, Mother.

But along with it, is its task which one described as riding a tiger, a man has to fight to keep on him or be swallowed.

The topic of cityhood will be probed as thorough, investigated as scientifically as we have individuals on the council and of public instinct who have the moral and physical stamina it requires in any major public

And with the examination of cityhood comes some exciting questions. Taking all our resources, our talents in consideration, what kind of community do we wish to develop? What hopes do we envision? Certainly, we have to be more than the pragmatists who meet the crisis of the moment. We need a scheme of ideas, goals behind which to propel our community. Do we desire a municipal government that somehow brings its people closer to its government? Can our town maintain the personal relationship in an era of encroaching de-humanization? What hopes for our bus-iness district? How can our elderly fall more into the mainstream of the community's daily life? How can we bring young people more into community pride building channels? What, gentlemen, are our priorities?

Half ine world suspects the other half expects the best of it.

Taking medicine It's long been known that most people don't follow their doctor's advice when it comes to taking medicine. Almost two-thirds of those included in a recent study didn't get their prescriptions filled, didn't take the medicine as directed, or stopped taking it.

Failure to have the doctor's order for drugs filled was either open ("I couldn't afford it right then") or hidden ("I must have lost it somewhere"), but it often reflected a fear of illness that was greater than illness that was greater than the fear of pain. You'd be surprised how many people are convinced that they have a hidden cancer, and will not be comforted by a pill or by any other explanation of their disother explanation of their dis-comfort.

Sometimes a medication is so unpleasant that the patient stops taking it. Or, as Dr. Bertram Moss points out in "Car-ing for the Aged," a stout or elderly person may find it too difficult to self-administer a suppository. Instead of leaving the medicine on the shelf, the patient should call the doctor and ask to have another drug prescribed, or for another method of taking the medi-cine. It may be better taken after a meal instead of before, or with milk instead of water or as a solid tablet instead of as a liquid.

And very often, as soon as the patient feels better he "for-gets" to take the medicine gets" to take the medicine needed to keep his disorder in line. It ends up in the medicine cabinet where it may be used improperly by another person, or where it will ultimately lose its medical value.

THE NEW HISTORY OF MICHIGAN'S THUMB by Gerard Schultz of Elkton makes fine reading for anyone interested in the early days of the

By definition, the Thumb includes the counties of Huron, Lapeer, Sanilac, St. Clair, and Tuscola plus parts of adjoining counties, with its only clearcut boundaries the shores of Lake Huron and Saginaw Bay.

Mr. Schultz's book is an updated version of an earlier one which appeared in 1964 and sold out so quickly that orders from libraries and schools had to remain unfilled. The new version has added material including more than 20 old-time photographs and accompanying commentary. The book also has a complete index, a matter of importance to the amateur and professional historian.

One of the more interesting chapters is the one headed "Notable Firsts in the Thumb". We learn that the Great Fire of 1881 resulted in the organization of the first disaster relief program of the American Red Cross; that Port Huron was the first city in Michigan to have a street car powered by electricity; and that the electric street railway was managed by William P. Edison, older brother of Thomas Edison, the inventor, who lived as a youth in Port Huron.

The very first census taken in Huron, Sanilac, and Tuscola counties was in 1850. Sanilac numbered 2112 people, Tuscola 291, and Huron 210. There were 52 heads of families in Huron county, and they gave their occupations as 4 farmers, 5 hunters, 6 carpenters, 3 coopers., 3 lumbermen, 4 fishermen and several laborers. The first census in Lapeer county was taken in 1840 at which time the population was 4278.

The Port Huron and Northwestern was the first railroad to push northward into the Thumb. It reached Croswell in 1879; and Carsonville, Deckerville, Minden and San Beach (Harbor Beach) in 1880, From Saginaw Junction the road was built westward and it reached Marlette, Mayville, and Vassar in 1881. East Saginaw was reached in 1882. The section from Port Huron to Almont was also opened in 1882. Another section extended from Palms Junction to Port Austin. The first trains reached Bad Axe and Port Austin in October, 1882.

In the chapter "Troubles and Triumphs", attention is given to the most savage storm in the history of the Great Lakes and resulted in the loss or severe damage of 24 vessels and the deaths of 188 men.

In the "Commentaries", the severe winter of 1946-47 is recalled. Roads were closed repeatedly, electricity was out, trains were stalled and newspapers were delivered by airplane to snowbound communities. Snow removal equipment which couldn't be replaced or properly repaired during World War II shortages gave out under hard usage.

Whatever your interest in the Thumb of Michigan, you are more than likely to find it covered in THE NEW HISTORY OF MICHIGAN'S THUMB, Copies may be obtained by writing Gerard Schultz, Elkton, Michigan. The price is $3.95. Joseph Gretz succumbs on job

Agent's Corner

By Mrs. Ann Ross Extension Agent

When you need oil, Although summer picnics are a pleasant escape from the daily meal routine--the basic rules in cleanliness and food storage must still be practiced, Dangerous food bacteria that can lead to death or serious illness can quickly turn a "happy pienie" into a solemn occasion. First on the list are clean especially for those in charge of serving foods.

Foods should also be covered and stored at proper temperto prevent bacteria Most of the problem comes in storage. Foods must be kept either cold or hot enough prevent bacteria growth. Below 40 degrees Fahrenheit is recommended to check rapid growth of bacteria in cold foods and above 140 degrees for hot foods. (The only way to be really certain that proper temperatures are maintained is to test foods with a thermometer.)

Cold food should be kept under refrigeration right up to serving time at the picnic. This means that if you're planning a cold dessert or salad that's going to require refrigeration -- keep it in your refrigerator until placing in the picnic cooler. And, be sure you have enough ice in your picnic cooler adequately to keep those cold foods really "cold." Creamed hot dishes, cream pies and puddings, gravies, shellfish and fish are more easily contaminated than most other foods are and are best left out of picnic planning. Fried chicken is one of the most mistreated foods "storagewise" -keep it either hot or cold right up to serving time or it's apt to spoil.

Potato salads and other types of salads made with milk or egg based salad dressing are favorite picnic treats, but can be deadly when improperly stored. To be extra safe (in addition to keeping cold) heavily marinate them with vinegar, lemon juice. Bacteria won't grow well in the acid base that marination provides.

Another summertime choicechicken salad--can be spiced up with pineapple which also has an acid base. Add a can of pineapple bits or chunks, and an ordinary bland chicken salad will be a less likely place for bacteria to multiply. You can also use this trick on naturally bland egg or ham salad sandwich filling.

Usually, the more surface that is exposed to the air -- the the chance bacteria growth will hasten. For example, a whole roast beef or ham has much less chance for harmful bacteria growth than sliced into separate pieces. Sliced lunch meats may also be offenders.

Remember - keep it hot, keep it cold, or DON'T KEEP IT!

Soil needs change in Tuscola county

By Don Kebler

There is a noticeable trend in the change of soil test based fertilizer recommendations in Tuscola county.

This trend is particularly so on heavy textured soils but is not absent in light textured soils either. Soil tests of ten to fifteen years ago on heavy textured soils generally showed a low phosphorus high potassium le-

This is not difficult to understand because the common fertilizers manufactured and sold in this area contained equal phosphorus and potassium. Consequently the application of these fertilizers tended to increase high potassium levels higher and just about maintain phosphorus levels on heavy

As this fact became known the fertilizer use trend has moved to a greater use of fertilizers containing twice the phosphorus to potassium on these heavy soils. Fertilizers containing equal phosphorus and potassium continued to receive of your fields in the last two

As the trend in higher phos-use progressed on these heavier soils so have the quantities of nutrients applied per acre been greatest noticeable change in the heavy soil's phosphorus and potassium levels and balance have occurred in the last three to four years, Perhaps the answer to this buildup and change may be largely due to increased fertilizer nutrient application while during the same period our total crop yields were generally below average. Remember, in the last four years not counting 1969 our county's crops suffered from two droughty and two wet seasons. Increased fertilizer nutrient applications plus lower yields should equal a higher soil nutrient level.

Regardless of the reason for this nutrient level change many farmers are receiving soil test based fertilizer recommendations far different from those obtained the last time they soil tested. My recommendation is. if you haven't soil tested any use priority on light textured years, have soil tests made in phorus to potassium nutrient Advertise it in The Chronicle.

Hugh Brenneman Seeing red can up the blood pressure

One out of every 12 men is at least partially color-blind, but only one woman in 250 is colorblind, Color-blindness is not something to be seriously upset about as long as the fact is known to those who are af-flicted. There is nothing that can be done to improve color vision, and after the fact of color-blindness is established there is probably no reason for further eye examinations since it does not change, at least as far as the doctors know.

There are several varieties of color-blindness. The most common is termed "red-green color blindness* because the individual has difficulty in distinguishing red from green, Rarer types make it difficult to differentiate between other pairs of colors, Total colorblindness is the very rarest type. People with this type can distinguish only shades of gray and blue-black, like a black and white photograph, Obviously, it is pretty important that people who have color-blindness don't enter a trade or profession where color is important.

Because so few people are color-blind, a wider use is constantly being made of color by those who are in the public relations and communications professions. These experts know how color can extend the power of good writing by helping to get the necessary attention.

Those who watch television know that color helps to create interest by giving an accent, a variety and a clarity to pictures, and has the total effect of adding interest to the mes-

Of course, color has to be used with discretion because it can be repugnant. Red, for example, is an attention-get-ting color. When the eye sees red, there is a bulging in the lens of the eye. This is not dissimilar to the bulge which occurs when the eye sees a close up object. So because of the similarities of the reflexes, red stimulation makes the red object appear closer. Therefore, all other factors being equal red is noticed before any other color. However, red is also associated with danger, and has been known to raise blood pressure under clinical tests. You can even go further and talk to the behaviorism scientists and they tell you that red is the best color to stimulate the creative process. Obviously the over use of color must be avoided particularly in reading matter.

Blue is a relaxing color according to some authorities. It is a cool color and some people think it lowers the blood pressure.

We all know green as the color of the outdoors. It is also conducive to action. Maybe that is the reason governments use green money, and gamblers use green cloth at the gambling casinos!

If you are looking for good cheer and happiness the color is yellow. That is the sun color. Anybody that is using colors is aware of how color influences judgment about size. Light areas appear to be larger than dark ones of the same size. Yellow or light green will make a specific space appear larger than the same space in black or dark brown. Surprisingly enough, people are emotional about color. They like or dislike them. Red is the most popular color, followed closely by blue. Blue causes the most negative reactions and is therefore a safer color than red, even though red is more popular. Some people have even based personality studies on the colors that peopple like or dislike. Those who favor purple, for example, should consider themselves uncommon!

Michigan Mirror

Michigan leads in support of schools

Anyone wondering why Michigan property owners have been complaining about their property taxes? The questions are answered by figures which came out of the state Treasurer's of-

The records show property. tax payments for 1969 reached the $1.5 billion mark this year. That's a jump of 14.46 per cent

And the department says property tax collections have risen 99 per cent over the past 10 years.

figures also show schools, which are receiving more and more state money every year, also taking a bigger bite of the property tax reven-

In 1967, 56.34 per cent of all property tax collections in the state went for schools. That figure jumped to 58.23 per cent last year and to 60.94 per cent this year. The percentage of the tax received by cities, counties, townships and villages was down slightly at the same time.

Soaring property taxes received a great deal of attention in the hearings held earlier this year by the Governor's Commission on Educational Re-Witness after witness said the state must come up with a different source for school finances. The source most often mentioned was the state income The Governor himself has said the state role in education "must be stronger and much more vital" than it is now. This presumably would include more state support for schools than ever before.

Michigan already leads most states in the percentage of school money which comes from the state.

A recent survey by the National Education Association showed that only 52.6 percent of school funding in Michigan comes from local sources. This compares with 69.2 per cent in Wisconsin, 66.7 per cent in Illinois and 64.9 per cent in

The Secretary of State's office is suspending drivers licenses at a rate nearly double that of a year ago.

Secretary of State James M. Hare says the hike is the result of a new law which requires suspensions of drivers licenses belonging to persons who do not take care of tickets they receive for driving offenses. In all of 1968, Hare's office suspended or revoked a total of 60,520 drivers licenses for various periods of time. By the end of the first six months of this year, his office had already lifted 51,000 licenses for varying times.

Hare said the new law is responsible for 17,000 of the suspensions and added, "The pace is picking up."

That much-maligned group in the driving public, the 25 and under category, has received another damaging report from the Michigan State Police.

Drivers under 25 make up 21 per cent of the driving public. Yet last year, police records show, they accounted for 38 per cent of all drivers involved in accidents. The same group accounted for 36 per cent of all drivers involved in fatal crashes.

Records also show youthful drivers are the most frequent victims of traffic death. Of the 2,388 persons who died on Michigan streets and highways last year, 770 of them were in the 15-24 age group.

"Although they may seem to be unduly criticized, the available facts establish young drivers under 25 years of age as an extraordinary high risk group." said State Police Director Frederick E. Davids.

"If the only assets required for safe driving were skills, reflexes and automotive knowledge, the average young driver could teach his elders," Davids said. "Instead, young drivers seem to provide proof that one's life style and driving style are inseparable. Since youth is a time of impulse, testing and competition, that stage of driving and its consequences are increasingly tragic on both the state and national scale."

Among other facts included in the report was the statistic that 81 per cent of all bicycle deaths occur to children under the age of 15.

It took 48 years to accomplish it, but North Carolina has finally imposed a cigarette tax, making it the 50th state to do so. Iowa was the first state to impose such a tax back in 1921. The other states have fallen in line one by one until North Carolina was the lone hold-But rising expenses finally turn to tobacco for money, and they levied a two cents per pack tax forced the lawmakers there to
