Theatre starting winter schedule

The winter schedule at the Cass Theatre starts this week, owner Dick Hendrick reported, and the theatre will again show Saturday and Sunday matinees and be open every Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Matinees will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. and shows run continuously from 5 p.m.

The first afternoon show will be "Tarzan and the Jungle Boy" Saturday.

Matinees will feature the same films as the evening performances except when the evening picture is rated R or X.

To celebrate the opening, Hendrick said free pop and candy will be given away to lucky winners in the theatre. The cry room has been refurbished.

Persons here five years ago and connected with the Cass City centennial celebration will recognize the company staging the sesquicentennial at Saginaw. The Rogers Company is still going strong.

For a big-time operation like the Valley show, the pageant is more elaborate (three stages and special backlighted screens) but the show is basically the same.

Most of the time it takes tender loving care to make a tree grow. For instance, did you notice how many of those shade trees planted by the village withered away when home owners failed to watch it daily?

But nature is perverse. Sometimes trees grow and grow and grow...despite conditions. One of these is a pear tree that is walled in on four sides by Main street buildings. It grows in an alley surrounded by the Ben Franklin and former Freiburger Grocery store.

Mrs. Freiburger brought me 4 beautiful pears taken from the tree this year.

The only trouble is that to harvest the crop you have to climb on the roof of one of the buildings.

Mrs. Spencer Elliott of Dallas, Texas, visiting the Cliff Ryans, is a collector of barbed wire. It's a big hobby in Texas. There is a book about the wire telling how old each specimen is apt to be. Hobbyists collect them and frame samples of each.

When Jim Reagh heard this he promptly submitted a sample that Mrs. Elliott had never seen. The wire is a ribbon about a half inch wide with saw teeth. Local residents know that the wire is at least 70 years old, how much older they aren't prepared to guess.

Anyway, the first thing that Mrs. Elliott plans to do when she gets home is get the facts on the sample from her "wire" book.

The second thing will be to frame it.

Mt. Morris lost a football game Saturday to Cass City's Junior Varsity...but the same day the school scored a major victory.

The entire sports program at the school hinged on an extra millage vote Saturday. If it failed to pass, Mt. Morris played its final football game of the 1969 season when it opened against Cass City. In fact, all sports were to have been abandoned. But the 10-mill levy was okayed and a full curriculum restored.

When Cass City's JV won from Mt. Morris it equalled last year's win record. It appears that the talent cycle is on the upswing in the community. Helping the cycle along is the new coaching staff. The results have been encouraging and with the JV showing promise and the junior high boasting some real talent, the future is bright.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By H.M. Bulen

Here's a football fact that may surprise you...The coach who had the most undefeated untied teams in pro or major college football in the last 50 years was not any of the coaches you might think of first—but it was Bernie Bierman who had a total of six unbeaten-untied regular-season teams—two at Tulane (1929 and 1931) and four at Minnesota (1934, 1935, 1940, 1941).

Very few fans—even the real good ones—can come up with the answer to this question...See if you know the real first names of each of these players who were voted a spot on the All-Time baseball team in the recent balloting—Pie Traynor, Honus Wagner, Mickey Cochrane, Babe Ruth and Lefty Grove?... What are their real first names? Here's the answer...R's Harold Traynor, John Wagner, Gordon Cochrane, George Ruth and Robert Grove.

Here's quite a football oddity...Washington State University got more points than their opponents last season—yet won only 3 of 10 games!...Washington State totaled 189 points during the year while their opponents totaled only 188 against them, but Washington State's record was 3 wins, 6 losses and one tie!

Cold-covered dairy barn newest concept on farm

For beauty there was nothing like the "Big Red Barn" that punctured the skyline in the Michigan countryside with its high peaked roof covering a loft full of sweet-smelling new-mown hay.

But like the span of horses pulling the walking plow, the threshing bees and the old hand pump that filled a watering tank for a varied assortment of livestock, beauty has bowed to practicality.

The newest concept in dairy housing is the system in which cows are housed, fed, watered and milked all under one roof. It's built to eliminate climbing and hand labor, and results in easier management of the dairy herd, according to Michigan State University agricultural authorities.

A 1968 MSU survey of 52 Michigan dairy farms on which new cattle housing facilities were built showed 30 cold-covered barns, 14 modified cold-covered barns and only 8 warm-enclosed housing setups. None had a loft for hay, which like the buggy whip, is also going out of style.

Towering silos with grass silage or haylage, corn silage and ground high-moisture corn, all fed by automatic unloaders and usually conveyed to the cattle by a mechanical feeder is today's answer to hay as a dairy feed.

A recent Michigan State University Science Research Report (No. 91) tells the difference between today's modern dairy barns—and cost estimates. The report, "Economics of Open-lot vs. Covered Free Stall Dairy Housing Systems," is available at county Cooperative Extension Service offices.

Warm-enclosed barns differ from the cold-covered systems in that barns are mechanically ventilated, are completely enclosed and are insulated in both ceilings and walls. Cattle are free to move about in the barn. Stalls, 4 x 7 ft., are available for resting or sleeping, but animals are fed from common bunks.

The cold-covered barn can have an open side or sliding doors that can open the south side of the barn to the sun.

The open lot system may have a bedded loafing shed or free stalls for the dairy cows but cattle are usually fed in the open, paved lot.

The difference is primarily in cost. Research shows that in southern Michigan the warm-enclosed, insulated barn results in little more milk production. But feed costs might be a little higher in cold weather with the open barn, as more feed would be needed to supply some heat for the cows. Costs for the enclosed barn run about one-third more.

Michigan State University scientists C. Ray Hoglund, agricultural economist, J. S. Boyd, agricultural engineer, and J. A. Speicher, dairy scientist, have estimated costs for building complete systems for 60, 80, 120 and 160 free stalls to house dairy cows. Like a home, they say it all depends on how fancy you want to make it, or really, how many labor saving conveniences you want to incorporate into the structure.

A modern example of a cold-covered barn has been in use a year on Robert Howland's dairy farm northeast of North Branch.

Howland's new barn is 176 x

50 ft. with the south side open with 140 feet of fence line feed bunks for silage and haylage feeding. There's a 5 ft. overhang roof that protects the bunk from the elements and forage is put into the bunks with a side-unloading wagon. Nearby is a bunker silo that handles 1,000 tons of silage. A tractor scoops loads the wagon from the bunker silo.

The dairy barn has 88 free stalls for milking cows and a holding area near the milking parlor. A double-four herringbone milking parlor, in which 8 cows can be milked at one time, is used. A modern bulk milk tank, a small office and two maternity stalls for calving cows are also completely enclosed in separate rooms in the east 28 feet of the barn.

Howland invested about $39,000 in the barn, milking parlor, bulk tank and maternity stalls. That's slightly more than $400 a cow, which is below the average of estimated costs by MSU agricultural authorities for this type housing.

The Howland herd size was increased from 55 to 88 cows in the first year after the new facility was built.

The only change the dairyman has made was to shorten the 4x7 ft. free stalls by about a foot by installing a neck-board to force animals to rear of stall. Many of his cows are heifers and smaller than mature cows. The shorter stall causes cows to evacuate in the alleyway, where a scoop on a tractor easily carries manure away. It saves both labor cleaning stalls and about 50 percent of straw needed for bedding, Howland says.

He is pleased by the performance of his cows which are averaging about 14,000 lbs. of milk annually. During the severe weather last winter he did not believe the animals suffered with the south side of the barn open. On sub-zero days he did encounter some problems with manure freezing in the barn, but those days were very few, Howland says.

Linda Calka to study at Harvard

A Cass City girl, Linda Calka, may be among the first girls ever to graduate from the prestigious Harvard University.

LINDA CALKA

Miss Calka is presently attending night classes at Harvard with an eye towards regular enrollment next year when she will be due to graduate.

The Cass City High School graduate transferred to Harvard from the University of Michigan. While at Michigan she had been accepted into the honors college where outstanding students were not required to attend classes and advanced by individual study.

Miss Calka's major is international relations and foreign studies.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Calka of Cass City.

Trouble comes when men hope to make enough money next month to pay this month's bills.

DELIBERATION

Haste makes waste, so avoid making quickie decisions that cost so much in time and money.

MARK OF EXCELLENCE

Local exhibitors cop blue ribbons at state and area fairs

Every year in the fall, you can count on Cass City area residents to bring home more than their share of championships in competition with the best livestock in Michigan and the surrounding states.

This year is no exception. Dr. Harry Crandell, a perennial titlist, this year shared top honors...with the boys in his family.

In the open division at the Michigan State Fair, the Crandells exhibited Oxfords. They won nine firsts and six seconds. Included in the array was the champion ewe, the reserve champion ewe and the reserve champion ram.

Ron Crandell showed the grand champion ram in the junior livestock division at the fair. Arden Lapp of Cass City showed the reserve champion ewe in this class.

At the Saginaw Fair, the Crandells had the champion and reserve champion ewe and ram.

Arthur Battel and son won honors galore in the Yorkshire Sire competition at the State Fair. The results included: mature boar, 1st place; senior boar pig, third place; and 6th and 9th place March boar pigs.

The mature boar was judged senior grand champion boar at the fair.

Other placings included: mature sow, 2nd place; 3rd and 4th junior yearlings; 2nd and 4th senior sows; 3rd, 9th, 10th place March sow pigs.

At the Saginaw Fair, Wilbert Goodall, Cass City, showed the grand champion Romney ram and ewe.

Walter Goodall showed the champion Corriedale ram and ewe and the Champion Cheviot ram.

Sally Goodall showed the champion Hampshire ram.

Seek day care home in county

Persons interested in providing home care for persons from Tuscola County are invited to attend a meeting in the basement of the Tuscola County Jail in Caro, Thursday, Sept. 18.

Three types of home care are needed. They are: Children of Aid to Dependent Children recipients; foster homes for teenage children, and homes for the care of older persons on a referral status from the various State Hospitals. In all cases a license is required and is issued after the home is studied.

Payment is provided on a monthly basis, but a genuine interest in assisting the individual is needed because payment scarcely covers costs.

ART BATTEL and his grand champion.

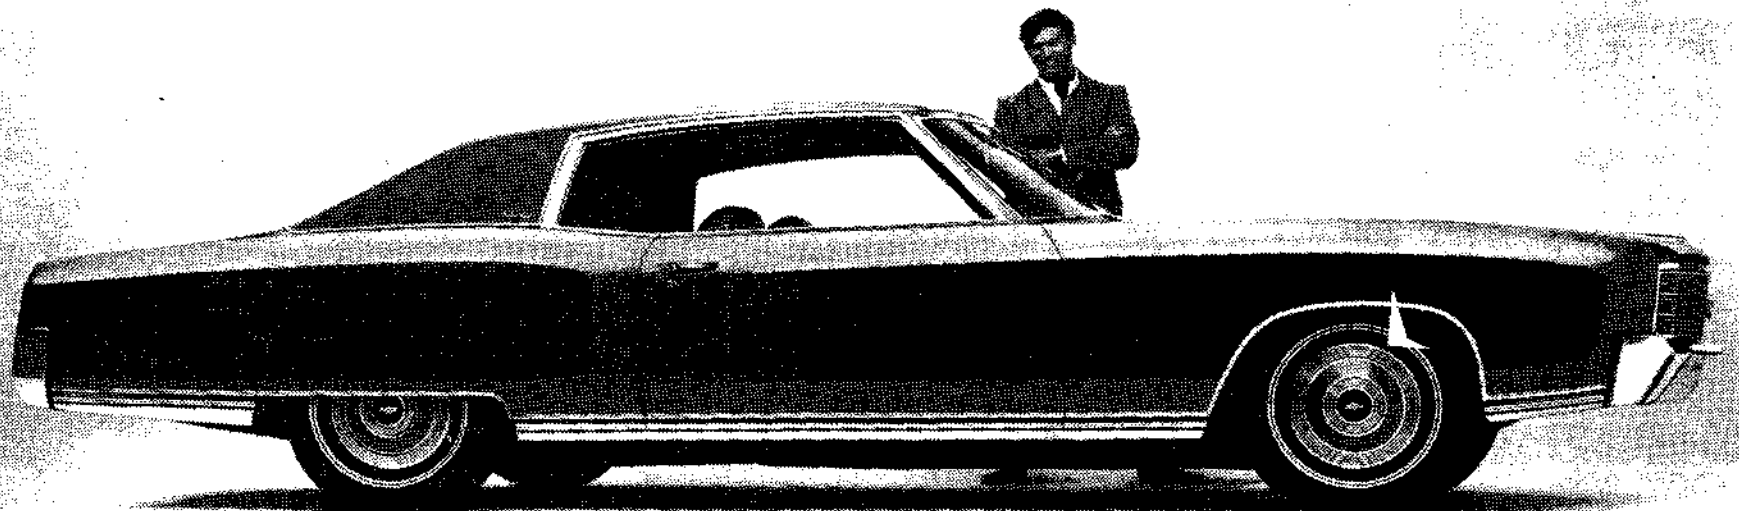

RON CRANDELL—continues in the tradition of the Crandell family with champion sheep. This is a grand champion ram.

THIS IS THE NEW COLD-COVERED DAIRY BARN where Bob Howland houses 88 cows in free-stalls on his Lapeer County farm near North Branch. The open south side has feed bunks. On the right are the walls of the bunker silo in which corn silage is loaded by tractor scoop into a side-delivery self-unloading wagon. At the far end, the barn is enclosed for the milking parlor, office, milk room with bulk tank and two maternity stalls. Many new dairy barns similar to this are being built in Michigan to cut housing costs and increase dairy labor efficiency.

On the move. The Chevrolet '70s.

Our new one: Monte Carlo

Our big one: Caprice

Our tough one: Chevelle SS 396

Monte Carlo. Our whole new field of one. The first truly luxurious personal car even us guys who work for a living can afford. Big 350-cubic-inch V8. Power disc brakes. Deep twist carpeting. All standard. Some car, the Monte Carlo. Some cars will be wishing we had never brought it out. Moving on. Caprice. The perfect car for "the big car man." For 1970 we gave it a new grille, new 250-hp standard V8, new fiberglass-belted tires, new colors, new trim. New headaches for higher priced cars. Moving on. Chevelle SS 396. The Chevellest Chevelle yet. Now you can order a Cowl Induction Hood to help the horses breathe. All 350 of them. Move on. To your Chevrolet dealer's.

Putting you first, keeps us first.

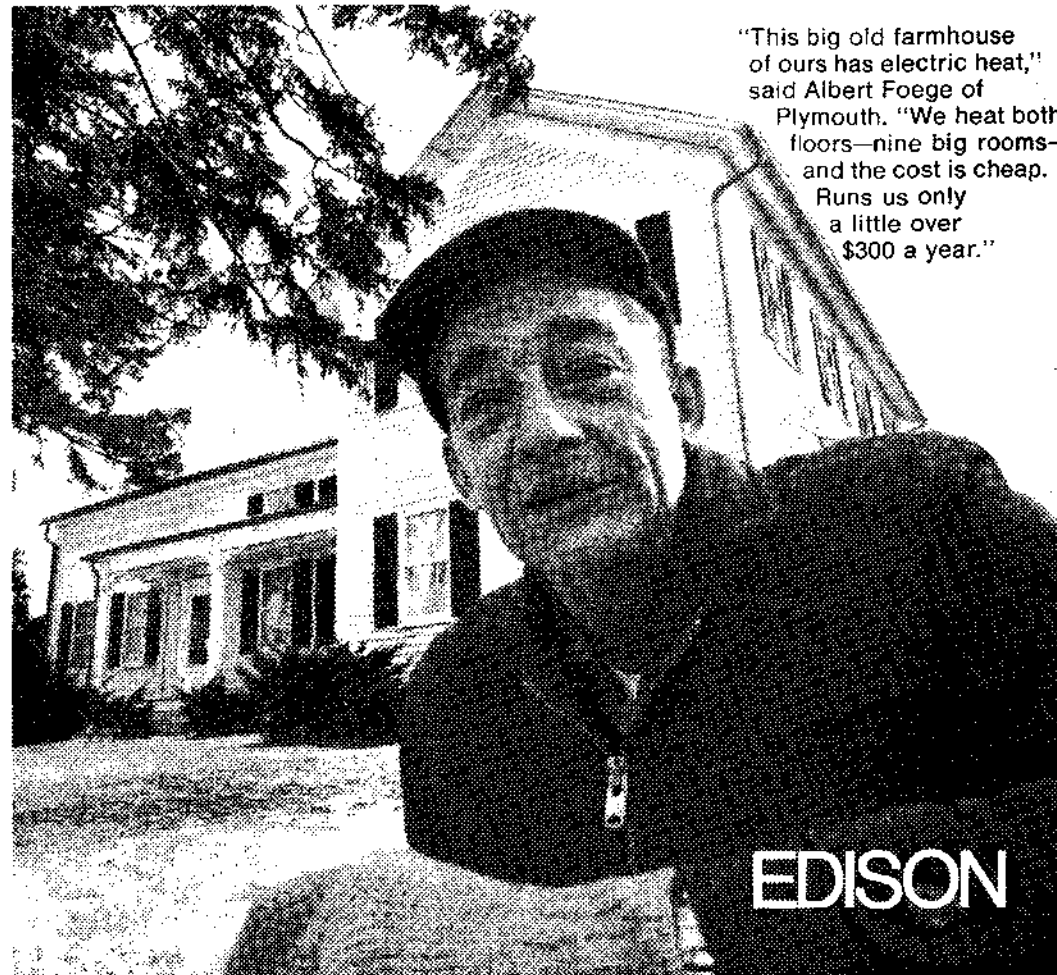

If you have the idea that electric heat is too rich for your blood, you'd be surprised at the number of average people who are putting it in their homes.

Their present homes. You'd find—just like they—a cleaner house than you've ever experienced. A quiet, even heat, completely worry-free. It's also more comfortable—never desert dry.

If you'd like a no-obligation estimate on installation and operating cost, call us for the name of an Edison Approved Electric Heat Contractor near you.

Don't wait for your next house to enjoy electric heat. You can afford it right now. Honest.

DREAM HOME YOUR HOUSE WITH ELECTRIC HEAT.

"This big old farmhouse of ours has electric heat," said Albert Foege of Plymouth. "We heat both floors—nine big rooms—and the cost is cheap. Runs us only a little over $300 a year."

Legal abortion boosters see campaign succeeding

Supporters of legalized abortion are gaining ground slowly around the nation in their attempts to make it easier for a woman to have an abortion. Bills to reform abortion laws were introduced in 24 states during the past year, and four of the states enacted them. Michigan was one of the 20 in which the bill was either killed in committee or on the floor of the Legislature.

The four states which liberalized the grounds on which abortions may be performed by licensed physicians were Arkansas, Delaware, Kansas and New Mexico. Six states adopted liberalized abortion laws prior to 1969. They are California, Colorado, Georgia, Maryland, Mississippi and North Carolina.

Thus, one-fifth of the states in the country have reworked their abortion laws in recent years.

Grounds for abortion usually included in the reform bill are: when pregnancy endangers the physical or mental health of the mother; when the pregnancy results from rape or incest; when there is a likelihood that the child will be born defective.

Opposition to the liberalization of abortion laws has been led by the Catholic Church, which condemns any abortion as the murder of a defenseless human being.

Many, though certainly not all, protestants and Jews support the reform proposals.

Backers of abortion reform in Michigan saw their hopes go down in a 16-17 vote in the Michigan Senate this year. They have not given up, however, and the drive for reform is expected to be renewed next year.

The backers plan to hold a series of public hearings on the subject before next year in addition to working among other legislators to get the reform passed.

Michigan isn't the only state where the proposal met narrow defeat and where it is expected to be back.

In New York, where an intense struggle is predicted, abortion reform lost in the state assembly on a 78-69 vote.

Trees Planted

It might amaze most Michigan residents to know that the state highway department does quite a bit of tree planting and landscaping.

For example, the department has just started an $8.25 million project to plant shade trees, flowering trees and shrubbery along 304 miles of Michigan's interstate freeways in the next four years.

The project is financed with 90 per cent federal funds and 10 per cent state funds. Actual work on the newest project is not scheduled to begin until next spring.

Landscaping is considered an important safety factor on the sprawling interstate system.

Highway planners place trees along the road to break up the monotony of a long drive along the divided highways. They also put curves in highways where they aren't needed in an attempt to keep drivers from growing drowsy. The result is a road which the driver "drives" on, instead of merely aiming the car straight ahead for several hours. The hoped for result is safer driving for everyone.

Motorcycle Dangers

It's more dangerous to have an accident while driving a motorcycle than while driving a car.

That fact, which is understood by all, is born out again in Michigan statistics for last year. Where the death rate for all motor vehicles is just under five deaths for every 100 million vehicle miles driven, the rate for motorcycles is 40 deaths per 100 million miles.

Based on deaths per 10,000 vehicles registered over the last five years, the average mortality rate for motorcycles is 11.3 while deaths for all vehicles is 5.4.

Safety officials say the reason for this is very simple.

"When you have an accident on a motorcycle, there isn't anything there to protect you," explained one expert. "In a car you've got the car body itself and you can have a pretty bad wreck and not get hurt."

"But when you're traveling 50 miles an hour on a motorcycle and hit something, you're in bad trouble because you're going to hit the pavement, a pole or something at that speed with your body," he said. "And your odds aren't very good in a situation like that."

34 dead: the grim statistics

A series of multiple fatality accidents has skyrocketed the death toll again this year in Tuscola County.

The record indicates that fatal accidents occur anytime, anyplace and any day. M-46 which was recently constructed to reduce hills and other traffic hazards proved to be among the most dangerous roads in the county. Eight of the traffic deaths occurred there.

Also highly dangerous are country dirt roads with no stop signs and no markings of hills and curves.

Driver error, not mechanical failure were the cause of the crashes.

Here is a listing of each of this year's fatalities:

Hold services for Guy Matthews

Guy T. Matthews, 74, of Detroit died Tuesday, Sept. 9, and funeral services were held in Redford Friday, Sept. 12. His wife died in January. Born in Holbrook in 1894, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Matthews. The Matthews family operated a country store at Holbrook for many years. Among the survivors are: one daughter, Mrs. Charles (Olive) Bowles of Farmington; one granddaughter, one grandson, seven great-grandchildren, a sister, Sophrona Ridd of Detroit, and two brothers, Clarence of Detroit and Harold of Torch Lake. Burial was in Moshier cemetery, Hemans.

Minor injuries in 3 area crashes

Tuscola County's death toll rose to 12 in the month of September and to 34 for the entire year, but area drivers were involved in just minor accidents.

Gary Dwaine Geister, 16, of Decker hit a deer Tuesday, Sept. 9, on Cemetery Road, about a half mile south of Severance Road. The car was damaged and the buck deer killed.

Douglas Partridge, 38, of Cass City escaped injury Thursday when he swerved to avoid hitting a car that was following a tractor on M-81, about a mile west of Cass City.

Partridge reported that his car left the road and hit a tree. The rear of the vehicle was damaged.

Two persons received cuts and bruises Thursday morning on M-81 near Deckerville Road. A car driven by Sherman Strickland, 19, of Caro was attempting a left turn into a driveway with turn signals on when a vehicle driven by William Perlaki, 52, attempted to pass.

In the mishap, Roselyne Strickland, 21, a passenger in the Strickland vehicle, and Elizabeth Perlaki, a passenger in the Perlaki vehicle, sustained minor injuries. Two other passengers were uninjured.

FIREMEN'S WIVES

"I usually try to slow him down." The wives say the firemen are keen in "looking out for each other." "There's a certain closeness between them," said Mrs. Jerome Root Jr. Mrs. Joe Gruber Jr. said when her husband was hospitalized for appendicitis the firemen sent flowers. "They all visited him while he was in there. They stick together," she said. "It's just like any other organization, maybe a little bit more."

She said the annual picnic of the firemen and their wives, "gives the wives a chance to get together." Some of the wives newer to the community say they have met many friends through the association.

Mrs. Copeland said, "It's a volunteer fire department; it's more or less a community thing." Mrs. Jerome Root Jr. may have struck a common chord among the wives when she said, "It's something everyone in town should take their turn at."

"When you're a fireman's wife," said Mrs. Kenneth Copeland, "you are concerned and you care. The wives," she said, "try to get the calls through; you're part of the team, the hookup."

"It's just part of being a fireman's wife," she said.

Sandusky first league foe

Hawks impressive in debut despite 29-8 loss to speedy Mt. Morris

CASS CITY SUSTAINED a long drive with this dash around end by Craig Guernsey. The Hawks moved to the five-yard line in the drive. Mt. Morris won 29-8.

If you were tempted to judge the Cass City Red Hawks grid team by the cold hard statistics following the team's opening game loss to the Panthers of Mt. Morris Friday, beware!

True, the Hawks lost 29-8 to the speedy visitors from Genesee County and, true, last year Cass City opened with a loss to the same team, 32-6. But right there the similarity ends.

Make no mistake, this is a better team than last year's was when the season opened. How much better the final record will be remains to be seen. The Hawks will face some rugged, experienced clubs in the Thumb B Conference and could be much improved and still have little to show for it in the won-loss column.

Then, too, the amount the team improves as the season progresses will do much to determine the final standings of the Red Hawks in the Conference.

It is likely that Cass City will jump off on the right foot in the first Conference clash of the season. The Sandusky Redskins will host Cass City and don't appear too much stronger than they were last season when they were the doormats of the league.

The Redskins were the only team Cass City beat last year, when the Hawks posted an 18-6 decision. In their opener this year, Sandusky bowed to Cross-Lex, 33-6.

TOO FAST

Friday, Mt. Morris was as good as it had to be to win.

The visitors' speed actually turned the tide. And the top Panther of them all was Mike Wood, senior back.

He lived up to advance billing by turning in the clutch plays on offense and defense. Things looked dark for Cass City fans in the first quarter... but got progressively better as the game wore on.

The Hawks received and after three plays made little yardage and were forced to punt.

The Panthers grabbed the ball and immediately started an 80-yard drive that resulted in a touchdown without giving up the ball.

Wood scored the touchdown when he took a pass and outran the Hawk secondary around end.

Mt. Morris used a pass combination with Wood on the receiving end to score again in the second quarter. He scored on an 11-yard heave.

The Mt. Morris back, the outstanding player on the field, set up a third score as he caught a 40-yard pass to set up a first and goal for the Panthers who later scored. Quarterback Randy Gunnels dashed to paydirt on a two-yard run.

Other Mt. Morris scores came on a Gunnels' field goal and a four-yard plunge by fullback Don Lurvey.

It was not until the final quarter that Cass City finally became untracked and roared down the field to score.

Mixing running and passing plays, the Hawks moved to the eight-yard line from where Quarterback Bob Alexander tossed a screen pass to Fullback John Smentek who scored. The run for point was good.

The marker came at 2:58 in the fourth quarter, too late to change the outcome of the game. But after scoring, Cass City came right back down the field the next time they got the ball and were moving towards the goal as the game ended.

In the first half, the Hawks mounted a drive that carried to the Mt. Morris five. It was stopped on a fine defensive play by Wood who racked up Alexander with a vicious tackle for no gain.

Coach Spencer said he felt that the team played well together and he said that the defensive play of tackle John Dillon was outstanding. Dillon was credited with 11 tackles on which he made first contact.

Corn harvest silage tips

By Alfred P. Ballweg

Start harvesting corn silage in the late dough to early dent stage of maturity and try to complete the harvest by the time all kernels are fully dented or the early flint stage of maturity.

Dry matter content of the whole plant will vary between 30% and 40% during this stage of maturity and dry matter content of the kernels will vary between 50% and 65%.

Recent research conducted at Michigan State University and other experiment stations show that dry matter yield per acre increases until it reaches approximately 35% or until the first killing frost.

High quality corn silage not only has a high digestibility factor for protein and dry matter but has a high percentage of its total dry matter in the form of organic acids, particularly lactic acid.

Recent research conducted at Michigan State University and Ohio shows a significant relationship between per cent dry matter of corn silage at harvest and digestibility of protein and dry matter. Both are maximized in the 30% to 40% dry matter range with a slight drop in digestibility as the corn plant matures beyond 40% dry matter.

Research conducted at MSU during the 1966 harvest season showed that silo capacity was reduced 10.6% by delaying harvest from 28% (early dent) dry matter maturity to 43% (early flint) dry matter maturity.

All corn silage harvested should be chopped at lengths varying between 1/2 inch and 3/8 inch irrespective of stage of maturity or dry matter content.

Finely chopped corn silage not only improves palatability but also grossly improves the type of fermentation which occurs in the silo, greatly increases the amount of dry matter stored per cubic foot of silo capacity and reduces the amount of oxidative losses during storage.

In studies conducted at MSU in 1966, identical 16' x 50' concrete silos were filled with corn silage chopped 1/4 inch to 3/8 inch in length vs. 5/8 inch to 3/4 inch in length. This was done with 28% and 48% dry matter corn silage.

Fine chopping increased silo storage capacity by 17% for both the 28% and 48% dry matter material.

All corn silage harvested for finishing feedlot cattle or wintering beef brood cows should be treated with a silage additive at ensiling time. In all cases the additive should contain either anhydrous ammonia or urea at a level to increase crude protein content of the silage from an average of approximately 8% to an average of approximately 14% on a dry matter basis. Likewise, the additive should contain calcium, phosphorus, salt and trace minerals at a level to make corn silage a completely balanced ration from the standpoint of protein and minerals.

These silage additives are now available on the market.

THE LARGEST PIKE caught this fall in the recent flurry of outstanding fishing was credited by Mike Frederick, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Frederick of Deford. The monster hit an artificial lure and took the youngster 20 minutes to land. Two fish were caught in 3 hours on the Cass River, south of Cass City.

Knowing half your subject is not the solution--it's always the other half you need.

A reception was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall at

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Zurek

Grace E. Klebba, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Klebba of Cass City, became the bride Sunday of Robert J. Zurek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Zurek of Ubyly, Saturday, Sept. 6, at Our Lady of Lake Huron Catholic Church, Harbor Beach.

Fr. Cornelius McEachin performed the double ring ceremony. Music was played by Mark Schmalitz. The church flowers were white gladioli.

The bride approached the altar with her father. She chose an A-line gown of chantilly lace fashioned with long sleeves. The train fell from her shoulders and was trimmed with chantilly lace. Her three-tiered silk illusion veil was held secure with a pearl headpiece and she carried an arrangement of orchids and white carnations.

Martha Klebba was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a green A-line floor-length gown with lime accessories and carried a bouquet of green tinted carnations. Bridesmaids were Bertha Klebba, sister of the bride, Irene Zurek, sister-in-law of the groom and Rose Mary Zurek, sister of the groom. They wore yellow gowns and carried bouquets of yellow carnations.

Thomas Bezemak, cousin of the groom, was the best man. Ushers were Donald and John M. Klebba, brothers of the bride, and Eugene Waserski.

The bride's mother wore a yellow flowered brocade dress and coat ensemble with brown accessories. The groom's mother chose a yellow with green brocade flowered dress and coat ensemble with beige accessories. They wore cybindium orchid corsages.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Well, sir, here it is the middle of September. You allus can tell summer is shot when new cars hit the road and younguns that drive 'em gits back in school. Seems like a mighty quick summer, but seasons and years has been gitting shorter for a long time now. I reckon it was the dying days of summer that put the fellers in such a meller mood Saturday night at the country store.

Ed Doolittle, that usual uses the sessions to lambast someone or somebody, allowed he was glad to be around to see another fall and he was thankful us fellers was in walking around good health. He said everybody in this old world ain't lucky-enuff to have a old lady to go home to and a bunch of fellers to stay away from home with.

There's a lot of misery of mind and soul, allowed Ed, but old and lonesome is the worst. The average human being can't pass through this world all by himself, said Ed, and the good Lord don't want him to. Ed had saw this piece in a magazine about folks that try to git along by theirselves, and how they is starving for somebody jest to talk to.

The piece said in the big cities they is these telephone services where you can call when you git so lonesome you can't stand it. Ed saw where one outfit in New York City charges $17 a month in advance to call a lonesome person twice a day. The business has 600 customers and is growing fast, Ed reported, and they is other free operations where if you're lonesome and broke you can call and tell yore troubles to a professional listener. Ed said it looks like the more we try to turn everybody into a number on a card the more we need one another.

The fellers was agreed living alone ain't much living, and they said it must be worst when you're lonesome in a big apartment building in a city full of folks. Bug Hookum said he batched a spell onct when his old lady went to stay with a sister that had a new baby. Bug said he enjoyed all the freedom that month he could stand.

Actual, Bug said, man ain't fisaical equiped to git along in the kind of world he's making.

He had saw where this feller in Alaska is dead set agin paved streets, electricity and running water cause onct all that progress sets in everthing gits in a worst mess. The first thing you know, this feller said, we'll be so busy with progress we won't have time fer one another.

Incidental, Mister Editor, I see where they is a booming business in $450 "executive sandboxes" fer people that git so tensed up running progress in their office jobs they have to relax by playing in the sand. Personal, I fligger anybody that'd pay that kind of money fer a office sandbox is more than tensed, they is a few bricks short of a load.

Yours truly, Uncle Tim

Slate classes at hospital

A series of four pre-natal classes, conducted by Mrs. James Champlin, R.N., will be held at Hills and Dales General Hospital, starting Sept. 30 at 8:00 p.m. in the hospital meeting room.

All expectant mothers are invited to attend the series and fathers are invited after the first meeting.

These classes are offered as a community service and do not obligate the parent in any way.

Attention all young home-makers between the ages of 17 and 27. A newsletter—THE UP-SWING—written just for you is now being prepared. It will contain some helpful hints on how to do things and some "slick tricks". This newsletter, because it is written just for you, will contain what you want to learn about. The young home-makers receiving THE UP SWING will have an opportunity to sound off on what they want to know.

There will be a section of the newsletter, entitled "The Off Spring", about children.

If you would like to receive THE UP SWING or know of anyone who would like to receive it, just call the Extension Office at Sandusky 648-2515 or Bad Axe CO9-9949 or Caro OS3-3161, or write to the Extension Office Federal Building, Sandusky, or County Building, Bad Axe, or Civil Defense Center, Caro, giving the name and address.

THE UP SWING will come out every other month beginning in October. Remember this is going to be your newsletter as you will help write it, by requesting what you would like to learn about.

Don't forget to contact the Cooperative Extension Office if you are interested or know of anyone who would like to receive the new young home-makers Newsletter THE UP SWING.

HOLD SERVICES FOR FRANCIS O'CONNOR

Funeral services for Francis O'Connor, 58, of Detroit were held Thursday, Sept. 11, at Little's Funeral Home. Rev. Kermit Phillips, pastor of the Cass City Church of the Nazarene, officiated.

Mr. O'Connor died Sept. 8, at his home in Detroit. He had been ill the past several years. Born in Vassar in August, 1911, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dennis O'Connor. He made his home in Detroit and had been employed at the Detroit Free Press. He was a former Cass City resident.

Survivors include five brothers, Ivan and Alton, both of Cass City, Morris of Elgin, Ill., Vincent of Millington and Louis of Detroit; one sister, Mrs. Marion Thomas of Detroit, and nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Elkland cemetery.

Behind the Counter X-rays

You may have been reading alarming reports about the "hazards of x-ray," and wondering just how dangerous it will be for you to follow your doctor's or dentist's advice when he asks you to have an x-ray taken.

"There is no conclusive proof that radiation exposures at low levels have caused injury to humans," reports the American College of Radiology. Like aspirin or sunshine, x-rays can be beneficial in controlled and limited amounts—and harmful, if used to excess.

Fortunately, the radiologist who is called on to take a "picture of your bones" is a well-educated specialist who has completed medical school before studying x-ray techniques. They expose their patients to as little radiation as possible, using modern equipment designed to reduce exposure.

As in many fields of medicine, you have to weigh the benefits against the possible danger. Millions of lives have been saved through the use of x-ray to make a diagnosis, and most doctors agree it is one of the most effective tools in medicine and dentistry.

Part of the recent clamor over x-rays has resulted from doctors reminding one another to observe precautions that have been observed for decades. Those warnings have been picked up and magnified to the point where we actually have people with "x-ray phobia." Which is not what the doctor ordered.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Deford and Cass City school district voters will be offered a second chance to approve annexation of Deford Community Schools to Cass City Public School District in an election Oct. 2.

Alfred P. Ballweg, Tuscola county extension director, will receive the District Service Award of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents in New Orleans, La.

With about 20 per cent of the Cass City area bean crop in, local farmers are reporting an average yield of 18 to 20 bushels per acre, according to local elevator operators.

A fire, caused by a chimney spark, and resulting water damage by fire fighters combined to completely destroy the two-story farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Daily Creason, four miles north and two east of Cass City.

Cass City civic and community organizations may now use school facilities at a somewhat reduced rate following the adoption of a new rental policy by the Cass City board of education.

TEN YEARS AGO

Larry Goodall showed the champion Cheviot aged ram and Dr. Harry Crandell exhibited the champion Oxford ram and ewe at the Michigan State Fair.

The Rev. I. J. Mikulski has been transferred from St. Pancratius Church in Cass City where he has been the pastor since June 12, 1956, to Sacred Heart Church in Caro.

Marlette will dedicate the $460,000 highway improvements within the village with a ribbon cutting ceremony, talent show, street dance and refreshments, all free.

Mrs. Grace Quick has been granted a masters degree in elementary teaching from Central University.

Mr. and Mrs. Duane Kettlewell and three daughters, who have been in Texas, are in Michigan again. Duane will be stationed at Marine City and they will make their home near Romeo.

In honor of their 50th wedding anniversary the children of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rockwell of Snover will hold an open house for their friends and relatives.

Charles Auten, Cass City dealer, was one of 7,000 Ford dealers from throughout the nation to visit Ford Motor Co., headquarters in Dearborn.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Fire caused by the explosion of an oil stove claimed the life of Ronald Lee, two-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wagner, and burned the contents and interior of the house.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Novel's acceptance illustrates change

By Dan Marlowe

I had an experience recently which reinforced a long-standing belief that the world is moving faster these days than we admit.

The experience began six years ago. At that time I was helping a friend plot a novel in which the chief character was a minister. The hinge of the story was the fact that while acting as a missionary in the Congo the minister lost his wife and daughter in a traumatic experience. Upon returning to this country, he lost his faith to an extent that he slid several rungs down both the theological and social ladders.

Circumstances then bring him back to his home town where none of his friends know of his recent experiences except the bare fact of the loss of wife and daughter. He is offered the ministry at his home church, accepts it with a good deal of self-doubt, and sets about rehabilitating himself. The plotting provided him with several theological and social problems which could be resolved in the light of the basic excellence of his character despite his temporary backsliding.

I enjoyed working on the manuscript-outline because I felt it had something pertinent to say. Since my friend was a nice person, I felt that portions of the book would be a bit too nice and not up to the nitty-gritty standards of today's editors. It wasn't my book, however, and I stood silently on the sidelines while it was written.

Results bore out my feelings in that there were a couple of editorial near-misses but no acceptance. The sum total of the rejection comments was that it was a nice little book which might have had a chance fifteen years ago but not in today's market, an analysis with which I was forced to agree.

The manuscript made the rounds for two years, then was retired. Recently my friend took it out of the file cabinet, re-read it, decided it was still a good story, and started it around again.

This time there was a change in the tone of the rejection slips. Specific questions were asked. In a man of the cloth, one query presented itself again and again, how could no mention be made of the problem of Vietnam? How could there be no mention of the black-and-white confrontation of today? How could there be no comment on the drug situation? On the question of sex education in our schools? And so on, and so on.

There was a simple answer to these questions, of course. Six years ago, when the book was plotted, any or all of these problems might possibly have been encountered on newspaper back pages, but certainly not in the headlines. All—and many more—have become of headline prominence only in the past six years. Which is why I say the world is moving faster these days than we admit.

Who, for instance, would dare to predict today what the newspaper headlines will be about in 1975?

Since 1950, advances in the special treatments required to reduce high blood pressure have reduced death rates for high blood pressure and the heart diseases it causes by 58% for men and 62% for women, says the Michigan Heart Association, a Michigan United Fund Agency.

Echo Chapter OES holds meet

Fifty-five attended the monthly meeting of Echo Chapter OES Sept. 10. Guests included the worthy grand matron of the Grand Chapter of Michigan, Mrs. Lucille Koken of Ann Arbor. Other guests were present from Kedron chapter from Caro and Gifford chapter of Gagetown.

During the business meeting, members voted to buy more dishes for the dining room.

Following the business meeting a service was presented in memory of two deceased members, Belle Knapp and Elizabeth Pinney. Presenting the memorial ceremony were Mrs. Keith McConkey, Mrs. Gilbert Albee and the worthy matron, Mrs. Ruth Whittaker, assisted by Mrs. Jean Golding as soloist.

Floral arrangements decorated tables in the dining room when Mrs. Almer Krueger and her committee served refreshments.

At a recent family gathering, Jimmy Sattler, 2, posed for a five-generation picture with his mother, Mrs. James (Linda) Sattler of Unionville. Also pictured are grandfather, Joseph Lorenz Jr. of Gagetown, great-grandmother, Mrs. Joseph Lorenz Sr. of Owendale, and great-great-grandmother, Mrs. Helen Kall, formerly of Detroit, who is making her home with her daughter in Owendale. Mrs. Kall is 87 years old and has one other great-great-grandchild, Tommy Sattler, one year old.

Cats are so much like women

Having a cat around the house is an old American custom. By tradition, the American cat is a Maltese; it always lies curled up, and pretending to be asleep, in the most comfortable chair in the house. If you tell her to scat she won't let on she hears you; she'll only nestle down a little more comfortably as if to say, "I know you won't make me give up my place here in this chair when you realize how cozy I am."

Cats are crafty. They also have other faults. The cat I owned was called Sin, because sin is what you always have with you. Sin had two major faults: first, she was a snob in reverse and, second, she exercised leadership ability. And of all the faults for a cat to have, exercising leadership ability is the worst. She did it by being winsome first, then reversing her field and being nasty. She stuck her needle-sharp claws into the calf of my leg as her way of saying, "You'd better get me a saucer of warm milk or I'll be really disagreeable."

If I didn't obey her in five minutes she'd start sharpening her already very sharp claws on the best piece of furniture in the house, that lovely French provincial chair with the antique brocade upholstery.

And there's this business of being a snob in reverse. The cat won't tolerate anyone who isn't of the humblest social rank: small boy with forty million freckles, the five-year-old girl who picks her up with both arms tight around the middle in a grip that must sometimes hurt. And when it really hurts, the cat will let out a screech, wriggle free, and go skidding away with all sails set, under a couch or a bed where you can't reach her with less than a broom handle. You can keep other kinds of pets, a mynah bird, a monkey, a crow, a coatiundi, an aardvark, if you wish. But after all, cats are interesting—they are so much like women.

This era in which we live has brought a phenomenal rise in the number of small animal hospitals.

The reason for this is that the number of pet owners has increased and reasons for owning a pet have changed. Today's pet is just that, and it has no further function. It is not a work animal in any sense, and usually isn't a hunting companion or a watchdog, a protector of property, or a babysitter. Fido has even been relieved of fetching the evening paper and his master's slippers.

These pets are given the full resources of the best in veterinary medicine. Every diagnostic facility is utilized and the most effective drugs are used regardless of expense. Explanations to worried pet owners are as thorough as possible and every phase of treatment is meticulously outlined.

Today's pet owner is a sensitive individual to whom the welfare of his pet is second only to that of his family. Few of them would consider taking a vacation without the pet along. Some motel owners cater to pets, often advertising that Fido is welcome if he brings his master. Cruise ships have special sections of the ship set aside solely for the care and feeding of the pet who, even then, finds it difficult to be separated from his owner for even a few hours each evening.

Today's fashionable pet owns at least one sweater, often hand-knitted by its devoted owner. The more affluent pet wears jewels in his collar. Pet grooming and beauty care has become a thriving business.

Rover dines well—his diet is scientifically formulated and comes in a variety of textures, shapes and colors to please the palate of the most discerning animal. His sweet tooth is satisfied by special dog candy which will not upset his stomach or erode his canine cusps. Truly, man is dog's best friend.

"If It Fitz. . ."

And now H-E-R-E-'S J-I-M-M-Y!

BY JIM FITZGERALD

While pondering upon TV's 3-cornered battle of the double-entendre and the free plug, I decided to use the Johnny Carson method to save my marriage.

My wife says I don't talk to the family enough. I always have my head stuck in the newspaper. Except after 11:30 p.m. when I ignore her in favor of the TV talk shows—either Carson or Joey Bishop or Merv Griffin (which one depends on who the guests are and how short their skirts are).

The old girl is right, I said to myself, there isn't much conversation around this place. The last time I talked to my daughter she turned out to be the little girl from next door who told me my daughter had been away at camp for 3 months. You're a bad father, I thought, and I determined to improve myself, ala TV.

I moved a desk into the living room and slid the couch at a right angle to it. I rejected the idea of having a second banana, such as Ed McMahon or Arthur Treacher. No one laughs louder at my jokes than I do, so who needs help?

At 11:30 I turned off the TV set behind the desk, and introduced myself to my wife. "Wake up the kids and send them in one at a time," I told her. "And when they are done, you can come in yourself. I will talk with each of you for 20 minutes. The family that talks together, stays together, and the wife doesn't write to Ann Landers so much."

Eleven-year-old Eddie was the first guest.

"It certainly is good to see you again," I told him. "Tell me about what you've been doing lately. How are things at school? Has your mother been treating you alright? What do you want to be when you grow up? What do you think of the war in Vietnam? Speak up, son, your father is interested in you."

"Well," said Eddie, "Jimmie Daniels and me got this used toy sale going in front of the house. We're selling everything we don't want to little kids who don't know the stuff is busted. We're open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day and we're also selling cotton candy and lemonade left over from last month's sale. I hope you'll tell your friends to stop by and see us, and bring their money."

The next guest was Chrissie, 13. The first thing she did was get in a fight with Eddie over who got to sit on the end of the couch nearest the desk. She won and Eddie left, moving his lips but no sound could be heard.

"You're looking beautiful, Chrissie," I told her. "But I wish you would pull down your skirt and button your shirt and take the kitten out of your hair-do. Someone might come in."

"Dahling," she said, "call me Chris. It's more me, don't you think?" "Ok, Chris," I said. "Now tell me, how is everything going in school? What do you like to study most? What colleges do you want to go to? Your daddy is interested."

"School is yech," she said, throwing one leg over the couch arm and onto my desk, "but it's where the boys are. Of course, I must find a boy who appreciates me for my mind and soul, not my beauty. Being beautiful is such a bore. What I really want is a boy who wants to do algebra with me."

"Thank you, Chris," I said. "Now I know you have to run, and on your way out, please tell your mother I'm sorry, but we're out of time. Tell her you just can't argue with that old clock on the wall. Tell her time sure flies when you're having fun. Tell her maybe she can come back tomorrow night."

"Why don't you tell her yourself?" Chris asked. "Because I never talk to her," I said.

C. R. GRIFKA, 53 DIES IN HOSPITAL

Clarence R. Grifka, 53, supervisor of Austin township, Saginaw county, died Friday, Sept. 12, at St. Luke's Hospital, Saginaw, after an illness of two months.

He was born June 16, 1916, in Austin township, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Grifka. He was a lifelong resident of the township.

He served as supervisor and director of the Thumb Electric Co-operative, Inc., since 1965.

Mr. Grifka and Claire Welton were married Nov. 29, 1939, at Smiths Corners. Surviving are his widow; five daughters, Mrs. Gerald Wojtalwicz of Detroit, Mrs. Dorel Schick of Rose City, Mrs. Raymond Reetz of South Lyon and Misses Emily and Tina Grifka, at home; a son, Charles Grifka of Deford; 12 grandchildren.

Also surviving are: eight brothers, August, Michael, Leo, Robert, Stanley and Marshall Grifka, all of Ubly; Albert Grifka of Chesaning, and Martin Grifka of Snover; five sisters, Mrs. Anthony Monowicz of Sterling Heights, Mrs. Leonard Warkowski of Bloomfield Hills, Mrs. Stanley Osentoski and Mrs. Raymond Puvawowski, both of Ubly, and Mrs. John Tilch of Royal Oak.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday in St. Joseph Catholic Church at Argyle. Rev. Richard Seifferly officiated with burial in the church cemetery.

Child Guidance speaker at Shabbona church

Robert Thrash, social worker of the child guidance clinic in Bay City, will speak Sunday evening at 7:30 at the R.L.D.S. Church in Shabbona. The public is invited.

Adults will be in charge of all children in the annex.

New era in milk business provides new career for women

Mrs. Nancy Bussure of Marlette shares a bulk milk hauling job with her husband. They take separate routes and meet about noon in Millington.

The era of the old milk cans is gone forever. The increasing value of the old milk cans is one of the changes brought about since the transporting of milk from farm to plant by bulk milk trucks.

Still another change appears to be a new career for women, previously available only to men. The career is bulk milk hauling and Mrs. Nancy Bussure of rural Marlette is probably the first in the Michigan Thumb to take the wheel.

Mrs. Bussure is the wife of a bulk milk hauler. And since the heavy and clang of milk cans has been replaced by the convenience of attaching a plastic hose to farmers' bulk milk tanks and flipping a switch, (and since her husband needs the help), Mrs. Bussure, for the last two months, has been hauling bulk milk.

The mother of four children, she sometimes brings along one of her three attractive daughters or son.

"Without my helper, it takes me longer," she said.

Her husband, who has been hauling milk for over 17 years, owns the two trucks the couple uses when they separately go to work on their own routes.

He leaves at 5 a.m. and she at 7 a.m.

The two meet at Millington about noon. There, the milk from her truck is pumped into his truck which he then transports to Detroit to a dumping station of the Twin Pines company.

The kids, are rewarded of course for their help.

A milk shake.

More than 800,000 Michigan adults—about one in six—have some degree of high blood pressure, and 7 out of every 10 are between 20 and 64, the Michigan Heart Association reports.

ARE YOU THE WINNER?

The Bridgestone 90 Cycle will be given away this Saturday in front of the Cass Theatre and McConkey's Jewelry at 1:30 Just before "TARZAN & THE JUNGLE BOY" starts at the Theatre.

Plan ahead. Fertilize now.

Remember your last Spring? Did you fertilize and also plant on time last year? Any manpower problems?

Next Spring? No one knows for sure how wet it will be. So spread as much fertilizer now as makes sense now. You'll be that much ahead when you plant.

Our Answermen already are helping growers plan, order, and spread for Spring planting. Will you wish . . . at planting time . . . that you'd called us now? Let's talk.

GAGETOWN STUDY CLUB

The first meeting of the Gagetown Study Club was held Monday, Sept. 8, at the home of Mrs. Millie Mosack. Roll call was a report on the club's annual project. Mrs. Rose Muntz and Mrs. Vera Hoadley gave the program.

Officers for the '69-'70 club year are president, Mrs. Inez Beach; vice-president, Mrs. Frankie Anker; secretary, Mrs. Esther Werdeman; and treasurer, Mrs. Gladys Laurie.

The Gagetown Study Club was organized in 1927, county federated in 1930 and state federated in 1946.

The Monday, Oct. 6, meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Lee LaFave.

Among those attending the wedding of Miss Jane Benitez and Burton Pawlowski in St. Francis Borgia Church, Pigeon, Saturday, with Rev. Glenn W. Cronkite officiating, were Mr. and Mrs. Nat Benitez, Mr. and Mrs. Regino Lopez and family, Frank Benitez, Albert Lopez, and Miss Caroline Campuo. A reception was held at the Dom Polski hall, near Caro, following the 5 o'clock ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. William Johnston and Cathy of Cass City were Sunday afternoon callers at the home of his sister, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Carroll.

Agent outlines benefits of 4-H

By BERNARD JARDOT

Why should a boy or girl participate in 4-H? Why should parents and community leaders support 4-H programs? Why should you as an adult or teen leader spend your valuable time and energy with youth in the 4-H program? Why should you businessmen and public officials support 4-H? Yes, why? Well because 4-H does make a difference to our young people involved in the 4-H youth program and yes to the adults who are involved.

If we ask active or former 4-H members what 4-H really meant to them they will give several key reasons depending on their individual interest and experiences. A very high proportion of long-time 4-H members will say "I made a lot of friends." Followed closely by the first answer will be "We did a lot of things." They want to do new things, to be challenged.

Another reaction high on the list is, "4-H is fun." It is fun to learn just for the joy of it. It is fun to get together for recreation with other young people. It is fun to go places and do things and meet people in many different occupations.

Other reactions may be as follows: "I learned I could do things." "I got a real kick out of helping other kids—seeing them accomplish things even they didn't know they could do till they tried." "Our 4-H club did lots of things to help in our community" or "The more I enjoyed 4-H, the longer I stayed in." Belonging in itself is both a value to youth and evidence that personal needs and interest are being met successfully.

Although the individual or local group may concentrate on relatively few 4-H projects, be they individual, group or self-determined, more than 100 well-developed 4-H educational projects are available. Regardless of the specific project or set of informal learning experiences, some common educational purposes are valued by young people, their parents, community leaders and educators as well.

Most basic, 4-H can help youth develop into responsible and creative citizens. This is one reason alone that justifies many times over the time and effort and energy required to maintain and expand the 4-H program. Yes, folks, 4-H does make a difference.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Nixon went to Saginaw Sunday to get her quilts she exhibited at the Saginaw Fair. She received two blue ribbons, four red ribbons and one white ribbon and also a blue ribbon on a crib quilt. They visited Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Ellis en route home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kernott of Pontiac were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Kady.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bogner of Detroit spent the week end with her mother, Mrs. Victoria Ulyan.

Teens often get behind the 8-ball by taking the wrong cue.

SERVICES MONDAY FOR WM. OTULAKOWSKI

William V. Otulakowski, 74, retired employee of Chrysler Corporation, died Friday, Sept. 12, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Walsh, of Ulyly, where he made his home in recent years.

Born Feb. 14, 1895, in Poland, he came in 1911 to Massachusetts. He worked there and in Maine lumber camps before coming in 1914 to Detroit.

He lived near Cass City and Ulyly the last five years.

A homing pigeon hobbyist, he belonged to the American Racing Pigeon Union, the Motor City Combine and was repeatedly champion of the North End Members Club of Michigan.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Casmere Czarnecki of Detroit; Mrs. Evans Gibbard and Mrs. Walsh, both of Ulyly; three sons, Richard of Detroit, Eugene of Brown City, and Stanley of St. Clair Shores; a stepdaughter, Stella Leszczynski, and a stepson, Leo Leszczynski, both of Detroit, 27 grandchildren, one great-grandchild, and three brothers in Poland.

Funeral services were held Monday in St. Ignatius Catholic Church, Freiburg. Burial was in the church cemetery.

New reflectorized plates to reduce auto mishaps

PLATES WILL SHINE

Little more than a month from now, Michigan passenger car owners will begin placing reflectorized license plates on their vehicles for the first time in history.

The state's 1970 plates, which go on sale Nov. 1 for passenger cars, will be treated for the first time with a material which reflects light when a light is shined on it.

The reflectorized plates were adopted earlier this year after the lawmakers became convinced they would be a significant safety factor and would aid law enforcement officers.

The plates are visible from half a mile away at night when the high beams of a car are shining on them. One result of this, in states where the plates are now in use, has been a cutback in the number of rear end collisions at night.

In North Carolina, rear end collisions were reduced by 13 per cent the first year reflectorized plates were used. Similar results were obtained from studies in Maine, Minnesota and Iowa.

Law enforcement officials voice approval of the reflectorized plates.

In addition to the safety factor, they say the plates make it much easier to identify a car at night. Fully reflectorized plates can be read from three to five times the distance from which normal plates can be read, they say.

The use of reflectorized plates has become common in recent years throughout the United States, and Michigan is the 39th state to adopt them.

Actually, the Legislature decided originally to use reflectorized plates back in 1959. However, the Legislature at that time failed to appropriate enough money to pay the added cost, and the plates were not reflectorized after an attorney general's opinion said they did not have to be if the money was not there.

No additional charge will come with the new plates, at least for the first year.

One reason for this is that motorists were charged an extra 35 cents a plate for their 1969 plates in anticipation that they would be reflectorized. This brought in a total $1,240,000 to the state treasury.

After the decision not to reflectorize the plates was made, motorists were given a 35 cent refund if they applied for it. However, $924,000 of the amount collected never was refunded and state officials say they have no record of where the money was deposited.

As a result, the lawmakers decided that it would be unfair to charge motorists an additional fee for the reflectorized

Tips for safe fertilizer use

Because of its low cost, many farmers began using anhydrous ammonia as a nitrogen fertilizer for farm crops. But, says farmers should observe the following safety precautions and guidelines for effective use of the fertilizer:

1. Apply at a minimum depth of 5 inches, or 5 inches below the seed if applied at planting time. For sandy soils a minimum depth of 8 inches is required. If the soil is dry, 10 inches is even better.
2. Where crop residues like cornstalks or small grain straw are present, prepare the soil for ammonia application with a field cultivator or a disk.
3. Allow the soil to become dry enough to mechanically support the weight of the tractor and the applicator without compacting the soil.
4. Apply only on well drained fields of fine-textured soils or loams not subject to flooding or ponding. Fall application should be in soil at temperatures of less than 50 degrees Fahrenheit. In southern Michigan, this is usually after October 15.

Thoughts are what we are

We are what we think all day long. Never underestimate the power of your thoughts. They are tremendously influential in molding character and action. They are, in truth, the parents of our behavior. Disposition and personality — even character — will very largely be determined by the thoughts we welcome to our minds each day.

Since it is true that a soul is dyed the color of its thoughts, it is imperative that everyone be given guidance in thinking about truths and values that are noble and eternal.

The Church stands in your community to help you and your children. Worship this week in your church, and find the joy that comes when life is centered upon values that last.

Caro publisher refutes Haire's column premise

Dear John:

I enjoyed very much your most interesting "Editor's Corner" of last week in which you compared the comments of two of your fellow publishers. I was disappointed, however, that you did not give an honest and fair picture of my view of the current discussions surrounding the migrant worker.

Your column led your readers to believe that Publisher Bob Myers of Lapeer was the champion of the poor and I was the enemy of the migrant and champion of the rich. A mere comparison of our two bank accounts will show who is champion of what.

A proper reading of my column will not lead a reader to draw the conclusion that I am opposed to migrants. In fact my column did not take a position, but tried to complete, very briefly, the total picture of the migrant-farmer relationship picture.

I said the Detroit Free Press report on the conditions of the migrant worker was one-sided and incomplete and it was. Your report on my column was also one-sided and incomplete. Your column tried to compare my position with Myer's position--this was like comparing a horse and a chicken. The columns were not addressed to the same topic. He spoke of the migrant worker's conditions. I spoke about the reporting of the whole picture.

Your column did not mention, for example, the following paragraph from my column: Let us not be misunderstood. There is a serious migrant problem. There are camp slums and there are many examples of human beings misused in the migrant field. But speaking only of these without speaking of the people concerned and trying is wrong. We say this--look at all of the picture.

In one paragraph you said this: "He points to knife fights and drunken camp brawls that have terrorized the neighbors of such camps. He speaks of welfare and church help and itinerants who give no community stability. He implies they are inferior."

John, you are the prejudiced one. You are the one that is implying inferiority from my comments. You conveniently forgot to mention that the same paragraph had both positive and negative comments. This is what the paragraph from which you lifted the lines said in total:

"...But speaking only of these without speaking of the people who are concerned and trying is wrong. We say this--look at all of the picture..."

Look at the farm auction brought on by rock bottom prices and sky high costs. Look at farmers begging for a loan at the bank. Look at the farmer surveying a field of crops hampered to pulp by hail. Look at the nice cars and trucks that many migrant workers drive. Look at the social agencies and churches that have devoted many hours to providing service and goods to migrants at little or no cost. Look at the lineup of Texas migrants getting Michigan welfare and goods. Look at the knife fights and drunken camp brawls that have terrorized the neighbors. But above all, do not forget to look at the many migrants who have become proud and equal citizens in so many of our communities--accepted and integrated without a thought for their social status of color..."

Your column misquotes me in another place. Your column said this: "Petzold points to extenuating circumstances and cites cases in which he feels the migrants have 'proven' that many aren't entitled to decent housing and wouldn't preserve it if they had it."

That is clearly incorrect. This is what my column actually said: "It pictured the bad-but failed to picture the many decent migrant homes that are found throughout the state. Photo angles were used to make the picture as bleak as possible. Photos were not only out of focus, but out of context with the whole picture. No one stopped to think that perhaps it was not the landlord, but rather the tenant that brought the houses to the condition they were in late in the season by poor housekeeping and squalid living habits."

I am in great sympathy with any human being that is being deprived of his right to fair and honest opportunities, who is misused for the sake of others. Every man or woman is entitled payment for the work he does and deserves a return for his effort in the same quantity that he invests in labor, goods and worry. I have admired the courage of the new leadership of the migrant workers which has developed in the state. The young men who are leading the fight to improve the conditions of their people are to be admired and listened to. Legislation is necessary to insure that the migrant worker is guaranteed his just return for his effort.

And here is where we agree with Mr. Myers. Bring the standards up--force the cost of food such as sugar, cherries and other crops migrants work in up where they belong. One must remember that it is not the farmer alone who is at fault--but it is the general consumer who buys the product of farmers and migrant workers at levels below what they really should cost that is contributing to the migrant workers plight.

A columnist recently remarked that some of the same political do-gooders who are so quick to support the grape pickers of California and the migrant workers in beet fields and cherry orchards wear furs that were harvested by underpaid fur trappers and eat food and drink wines that are the products of workers who are underpaid and live in poor conditions.

One of the great sins of all journalists is to oversimplify a problem that really has no black and white side to it but rather, is made of many involved shades of gray. Such is the total question of the migrant, the farmer, agriculture and all the things associated with these areas of our economic and social structure. My column tried, apparently without success, to point up the complexity of the problem--a problem that will not be solved if only one viewpoint is considered.

John, I've taken too much of your time already. I thoroughly enjoy your most excellent newspaper each week. Your newspaper ranks among the outstanding rural publications in the state and I have always been especially interested in your candid and thought-provoking columns.

We have enjoyed friendly relations for many years and I hope that this may continue for many years to come. I do hope that the people of your area appreciate the very fine job your staff and you are doing in giving their area a good newspaper.

With all good wishes,

Let's push for full school days

Dear Editor:

I think it is a fine idea to try and raise money for Debate, Girls' Athletics, Cheering, Intermediate School Athletics and Spring Sports.

But not one word have I heard in favor of "contribution, volunteer work or any support" in giving our grade school children a full day's education. I was just curious to know if this part of our school system is considered such a small and insignificant thing by so many. It seems to me if we are going to push for something this would be the first and foremost in our minds and pocketbooks.

Don't get me wrong, I am all in favor of sports, etc. I'm a great sports fan myself.

Our half days of school and switching of teachers will not hinder our more apt students, but what of those students that have a little harder time with their studies. I feel that changing teachers in the middle of the year could be very difficult for some.

I understand the need for all the cuts in school activities and education. What I don't understand is the feeling that sports come first. Why can't we at least put sports and studies on the same level.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Roger Deering
