

FROM THE Editor's Corner

I can remember when having a date was no reason to believe that the night would be devoted exclusively to that gal you came with...that basically you'd start, finish and spend all the time in between with just each other.

I can remember when it was not necessary to have a date to attend any formal or informal school dance.

I can remember when we danced cheek to cheek...but that's another story.

The story here is that it just seems that a lot of the purpose of a school dance... a lot of the fun... a lot of the value... have been lost.

School functions are designed for social interplay...helping students learn to adjust to new situations...how to meet and get along with others socially.

But paired off in groups of two or four it's hard to see how much of this learning can brush off.

Granted, teenagers (both boys and girls) can talk for at least an hour about whether to wear hair long or short.

But isn't it just plain boring to stand around talking or dancing with the same person all night?

Maybe this is the reason the "in" thing at school dances these days is to come early and leave early or come late and stay to the close.

Relatively few stay the whole route of a school dance anymore.

And no one goes to the Winter Prom or the Junior-Senior shindig without a date. The unlucky ones just stay home... both boys and girls.

Possibly because "way back when" in the pre-World War II days most kids didn't have enough money to take a date, about three-quarters of the students came stag...although most of the times they found someone to go home with.

The point is that everyone went that wanted to and during the course of the evening met a lot of students and mingled with kids that weren't everyday associates.

More than one fast friendship or budding romance started with a casual meeting on the school dance floor.

I can't help feel that this system has it all over the present day customs...was better for all concerned.

But then, my mother probably favored the minute.

KEN KENNEDY—after 18 months back home and in school.

Ken Kennedy continues therapy and schooling

Eighteen months after he was stricken in a freak swimming accident Ken Kennedy has come home to graduate from Cass City High School.

That is he will graduate if there is no movement developments in his legs, now paralyzed. If movement does develop he will immediately leave school and return to the rehabilitation center in Detroit to learn to walk again.

Meanwhile, a rehabilitation program is carried on daily at the home of his parents, the Emmerson Kennedys.

It is called a range of motion and is a muscle development program. Every joint in Ken's body must be moved about five times every morning. The joints tighten overnight.

Ken's school day starts at 10:30 a.m. and finishes at 1:45 p.m. His parents drive him back and forth. He will graduate in June.

In addition to his home treatment Ken is treated by a physical therapist once a week.

After graduation, the youth plans to enter State Technical Institute at Pine Lake, near Kalamazoo where he plans to study drafting. The institute is a vocational school for the handicapped.

While Kennedy does not have the use of his legs, his condition is markedly improved from what it was several months following the accident.

At one time he was unable to feed himself and spent the summer of 1968 motionless on his back. He was in and out of general hospitals for months as he suffered several relapses on his way to his present stage of recovery.

Chamber to sponsor paint contest

Spokesmen for the Cass City Chamber of Commerce this week announced that the annual free Halloween movie and the window painting contest would again be sponsored in the community.

A total of $55 in prizes will be offered to four winners of the window painting competition. First prize is $25. Second prize is $15; third, $10, and fourth, $5.

The Chamber will furnish the paints and supplies. The only rule is that only windows of merchants who have paid dues will be eligible to participate in the judging for the prize money.

In another action, the Chamber, with the Retail Division, will sponsor a Halloween show. Phyllis Diller in "The Traveling Saleslady" will be featured.

In other business, officials announced plans for Christmas decorations. The familiar small Chest drive for $10,000 opens Mon.

The Elkland-Novesta Community Chest drive will kick off its annual drive for funds Monday, Oct. 27, and hopes to have a concentrated campaign finished in the area by Saturday, Nov. 1.

The volunteer solicitors will be shooting for a record $10,000 goal...up from last year's $8,200 quota.

Because of the payroll deduction plans at area plants and businesses, last year the drive netted slightly over $10,000—the amount needed this year.

The Chest drive is the one big campaign for funds for all charities that is conducted in the village. In addition to the nationally recognized agencies that benefit, there are numerous local organizations that depend on the Chest money to operate.

They include Boy and Girl Scouts, park program, needy families at Christmas and others.

President Don Eria said that there is an emergency clothing fund set up for needy school children. Persons knowing of any hardship cases are asked to contact him or any member of the board.

Officers for the new year were recently named. Eria replaces Tom Proctor as president, Dick Hodges is the new vice-president, replacing Bob Hutchinson. Incumbent Secretary Mrs. Dorothy Scollon was re-elected. Mrs. Norma Wallace replaces Mrs. Helen Peters as treasurer and Bill Wallace is again the county representative.

Other trustees are Mrs. Marge Repshinska, Mrs. Ruth Spencer and Dean Jardine.

Volunteer solicitors are asked to pick up materials at the home of Dr. Ed Scollon Oct. 24-25 from 8 to 5 p.m.

A victory dinner will be held at the conclusion of the drive.

Schwartz jailed for calf rustling

Modern day rustling cost Richard H. Schwartz, 31, Gagetown, 30 days in jail plus a fine and costs of $100.

Judge John T. Schubel issued the sentence in district court in Bad Axe after Schwartz pleaded guilty of stealing two calves from a pasture owned by Raymond Fritz of Owendale.

Officers of the Bad Axe State Police Post said that Schwartz sold two calves for $127 at the Michigan Livestock Exchange stock yards in Cass City after the animals were reported missing.

School fund drive reaches $4,245

The drive for funds to restore sports and sports-related programs at the school has raised $4,245, according to a letter released this week by promoters of the program.

Total goal for the drive is $7,500. The drive sponsors said that there is still need for volunteers to help solicit funds and that donations from interested residents are welcome.

Miss Milligan reported to Chief Carl Palmateer who investigated that she swerved to avoid hitting a skunk and lost control of her car on Elmwood Road, about a half mile west of Koepfgen Road.

She left the road and hit a small tree. The car was totally wrecked.

Six persons were injured in two of five area accidents investigated by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department during the week.

Treated at Hills and Dales General Hospital for injuries suffered in an accident Friday were Raymond Bryan Spencer, 78, of Cass City and his wife, Elizabeth C., 70, of Cass City.

The accident occurred on Dickerson Road, near Coiling Road in Columbia township.

A car owned by Guadalupe Martinez broke down on Dickerson Road. Martinez reported that he had his wife, Marlea, waving a flashlight to direct traffic while he went for help.

Spencer reported that lights of a car approaching made it impossible to see the stranded car and he hit it.

Shaken in the crash were three of the seven children in the Martinez car.

Norris Lynn Lounsbury, 16, of Cass City damaged the car he was driving when he lost control while attempting to pass a car driven by Stanley C. Guwa, 32, of Caro.

Drivers escaped injury in a crash on M-81 and Elmwood Road Wednesday, Oct. 15.

Robert Milligan, 27, was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way when he drove a truck from Elmwood road onto M-81 into the path of a pick-up driven by Henry Williams, 47, of Gagetown.

A State Highway Department sign post was damaged.

A car driven by Jill Stilson, 18, of Cass City was damaged when it stalled on M-81 about 3/4 of a mile east of Cass City. Miss Stilson reported she was coming from a restaurant driveway when the car stalled and was hit by a car driven by Jay D. Brown, 31, of Marlette.

Both cars were damaged. Three persons suffered cuts and bruises in a crash at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 15.

Cars driven by Elwyn Hartwick, 35, of Vassar, formerly of the Cass City area, and Mrs. Marion Hall, 31, of Fostoria, collided head on, five miles south of Vassar on Sheridan Road.

Mrs. Hall and her daughter, Fay, 15, were treated at Caro Community Hospital. Hartwick escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Sheriff's officials said Mrs. Hall said she swerved to miss a truck just before the crash occurred.

Lady welders in pioneer Evans Products program

If she could become a guest on the program, chances are that Mrs. Betty Marshall, rural Cass City, would be a cinch to stump the panel of "What's My Line."

For Mrs. Marshall looks like a trim, feminine housewife. She is about what you'd expect a young mother of two to be.

And she is... after she gets through working for the day.

For during the regular working day Mrs. Marshall is a welder. One of the first to take a job under a new program at Evans Products Co., in Gagetown.

What's more, according to authorities at the plant, Mrs. Marshall is doing an outstanding job for the company.

Women welding is something new for the firm at Gagetown. It was brought about by the extreme shortage of available employees.

It was more or less in desperation that we decided to see if women could help fill our needs, Ken Nye, personnel manager, said.

We decided that we would advertise and check the response. While not great at first, it was enough for us to get started.

Mrs. Marshall was one of three women we hired to begin a welding training program.

Ordinarily, we figure that it takes about two weeks to train a new employee to become a welder on production, Lyle Taylor observed.

It varies with the natural abilities of the person taking the instruction. Mrs. Marshall started on production four days after she entered the plant.

The success of the pilot program has resulted in a continuing effort to train women as welders.

Since Aug. 19 when the first program started, there have been women taking welding instruction. Right now there are four on the training table.

A total of 15 have been placed on the production line. They spot weld racks and other pieces of equipment.

Mrs. Marshall says that the work isn't hard. The worst thing about it is that at first you're scared...you don't know what it's all about.

The hardest phase of the training program, Mrs. Marshall noted, is learning to keep your helmet from falling when not welding and learning how to hold the gun (welder).

Once this is mastered, she says, welding is duck soup... I like it better than the job I had before. You'd never get me to go back to running a press again.

But if you're a welder, you can't let a little grime and soot bother you. Asked if she would like to freshen up a bit before she was photographed, Mrs. Marshall said simply, "This is the way I look; why change it?"

Why indeed, echo officials at the plant. We've found, Nye said, that women are as good, and, in many cases better, than the men on smaller, light items that need welding.

They can't compare on the heavier items, of course, but there is plenty of lighter welding work to do, he explained.

We've found less absenteeism among the women than among the men, Nye said. And that's important when you consider the plant is working two shifts of about 55 hours each. We'd be working more if we could

Letter to Editor

Stay in Viet Nam, says fighting soldier

Oct. 17, 1969
Dear Sir:
I am writing you to express my views on the Vietnam War. At the present, I'm stationed in Vietnam, so therefore I should know a little bit about what I'm saying. Many people say they want Nixon to remove all troops from here. My personal view is it would be a big mistake. For one reason the South Vietnamese as yet, aren't fully capable of carrying on where we are now. They lack training, equipment, and the desire to fight. Plus if we were to remove all U.S. troops from here it would be a mark against the United States. I have many friends in other branches of the services and they all say the same thing "Let's stop them at their back door instead of our front door" and if we give them an inch, they're going to want to take a mile. And I'm not one to give them an inch. There has been thousands of United States troops that have given their lives to keep the V. C. on their side of the fence. And I'm willing to do the same. For I have the desire to return to a free nation. I want to be able to say what I want to say, do as I please, and worship the God of my choice. And if we pull out now, I may soon lose these rights as an American.
I also say this War is partially a money and glory maker for some people, but it always has been that way for some people. But, I feel I'm not over here for that reason. There is a lot of people in the states that think there's no war going on over here. Well, someone should tell that to the V. C. "Charlie", for he keeps shooting live bullets and rockets that are killing many people from the United States. It's far from being a game. And that can be proven everyday by the troops that go home in a Box labeled "Human Remains of John Doe Jr."

I can't express my feelings for the money and glory hungry people around, but my wife, a resident of Arizona, feels the same as myself. And I'm sure my parents, residents of Cass City, also feel the same as myself. I am a former resident of Cass City. So therefore, I have many reasons why I express myself-my wife, my parents, as well as myself.
If the people who aren't money and glory hungry, would take a good hard fast look at what we are really doing over here, and think what their husbands, sons, and brothers are doing over here as an American, their views would change.
I express myself as an American Soldier in Vietnam.

Thank you,
Frederick J. Horne

SLATE TB TESTS IN ALL AREA SCHOOLS

"We aim to offer every ninth grader in Lapeer and Tuscola Counties a tuberculin skin test as part of a special state-wide program this year," said Robert E. Rowe, M. D., director of the Thumb District Health Department. Through the ninth grade testing program all students tested will know if they've been exposed to TB and, secondly, we will have an index of TB infections in our area to compare with the state-wide results.
All ninth grade students in public and private schools in Lapeer and Tuscola Counties will be offered the test. This will involve a total of 2,000 ninth graders. Consent cards approving the testing will be sent home to the parents of all ninth graders and must be signed in order for the students to be tested.
The program will begin on October 27, and is scheduled for completion by November 7.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Neither the University of Michigan or Michigan State has got it this year in football.
But still it was a beautiful game Saturday. All of you fans from that other school at Ann Arbor who were bugging me (are you listening Dick Wallace?) read that final score. Now, then, read it again.

Given three guesses it isn't likely that you'll come up with the businessman who has been in harness the longest in Cass City.

And if you do, chances are even greater that you won't know within five years how long this individual has been operating on the main stem.

Just for fun before you read on take a stab at it. Made your guess?
Okay, here's the answer: Chet Graham who celebrated his 60th year at his barbershop Thursday.

Remember when I challenged Columnist Jim Fitzgerald to a game of pool for a steak dinner? Well, today's the day (Thursday). I'm due in Lapeer for the annual Gen-Tel free-loading press dinner on that day and before the bust Fitz and I intend to take care of the really important business.

As he accepts my challenge I've come to the conclusion that one of two things must be true: 1. that he is as good a pool player as he claims or 2. he is trying to psyche me out before the game starts.

He writes: "Challenge accepted..... come at 4 p.m..... come earlier if you want to lose more." There's more, but that's a fair sample. From it do you get the impression that he's trying to tell me something?

The pheasant season opened Monday in case you didn't know. I saw four hunters walking around town on opening day. No one I talked to had shot a bird or seen anyone who did. Many former avic hunters forgot the season was about to open. The interest in hunting has declined in a direct ratio to the decline in pheasants. Both are at their lowest ebb.

While the results on the field, judging by the won-lost record, have been disappointing for the Cass City Red Hawks football team, the results at the gate have been gratifying. Attendance is running about 30 per cent ahead of last year.

It would be nice to say that it's the result of a 30 per cent greater interest in the team this year, but I suspect that the better gate receipts are due to the weather.

We've been blessed with fine football Friday nights this fall. Last year, you'll recall, it rained nearly every Friday night. Home-coming was so wet that the float parade was cancelled.

Opening arguments heard in suit against Gas Company

A jury trial to determine whether Southeastern Michigan Gas Co. is liable for an explosion and fire that wrecked a home owned by Mrs. Helen Little opened Tuesday in Tuscola County Circuit Court in Caro.

Mrs. Little is seeking damages of $29,500. The case is expected to last at least through Thursday. The opening statements by both parties were heard Tuesday and pictures of the wrecked house admitted as evidence.

Big Future for Uses of Wood "Leftovers"

It wasn't too long ago that sawdust, bark, and wood chips were considered waste in mill operations. Today, they face a big future for a wide variety of uses in Michigan which could turn their disposal into a multimillion-dollar industry, reports the Department of Natural Resources (DNR). In breaking through the waste barrier to give sawmill operators a new profit-making edge, these by-products are gaining popularity for their use among home and cottage owners, campground enterprisers, horse and cattle raisers, and landscape architects. The reasons are many. Bark and sawdust do an excellent job of reducing weed growth and holding moisture around plants (Photo #1); they stabilize soil that tends to blow or wash away (Photo #2); they provide a good surface and hold down dust problems around playgrounds, on trails, and in other high-use areas where it is hard to grow grass (Photo #3); they make excellent bedding for cattle and horses (Photo #4); they can be used as landscape material in place of grass or crushed stone. In marketing this material at modest prices to serve so many uses, sawmill operators are able to reduce the amount they have to burn. This is a good stroke of business both in curbing air pollution and wood disposal costs. DNR foresters brand as "untrue" any talk about these materials being toxic to the soil. The DNR's Forestry Division in Lansing has a list of all active sawmills in Michigan where people can get sawdust, bark, and wood chips to meet their needs. —Michigan Department of Natural Resources

Farmers eyeing auxiliary power

By Alfred Ballweg

Electric power failures can be big trouble for dairy, livestock and poultry farmers. Emergency electric power systems proved "life savers" to some Michigan farmers last winter, and Michigan State University agricultural engineers say many more are preparing for future power outages.

Truman Surbrook, MSU Agricultural Engineer, says many more farmers are now thinking about auxiliary electric power facilities to pump water, run silo unloaders, grind and distribute grain rations, operate milking machines and pump milk from the bulk tank.

There are three main parts to an auxiliary power system: (1) an alternator, which is simply an alternating current generator, (2) an engine or tractor to power the alternator and (3) a transfer switch to connect the alternator to the farm and home wiring system.

The electrical connections between the alternator and the wiring system must be made through a transfer switch and installed by a qualified electrician.

This transfer switch keeps the alternator isolated from the power supplier's line at all times. This is important to prevent feedback of alternator voltage on power lines which would endanger the life of anyone working on the power line. It also eliminated the possibility of the alternator being damaged when normal power is restored.

A solid base for the alternator is another important feature to insure safe operation. The alternator can be mounted on a permanent concrete platform or on a trailer. Most Michigan farmers prefer a trailer. They mount the alternator on a heavy steel plate or concrete base on wheels. This provides a solid base while using the power-take-off of a tractor.

The tractor or engine that operates the alternator will need to develop two horsepower for each kilowatt rating of the alternator. For example, an alternator rated at 20 kw will need at least a 40 hp tractor or a 40 hp stationary engine.

If your alternator does not have a voltage meter, one should be installed. The tractor or engine should be running at the speed to produce the required voltage (110 or 220) before the transfer switch is turned on to apply the electric load to the line.

Farm representatives of power companies can be of great help to farmers considering equipment and can also advise on proper installation.

Most Michigan farmers have purchased units from 15 to 20 kw capacity, complete with installation of transfer switch, for $1,200 to $1,500.

Catholic women meet in Ubyly

The Huron County League of Catholic Women met Wednesday, October 15, at St. John's Hall, Ubyly. The Rev. Fathers Zigmunt Gaj and John Rusman welcomed the women, who came from nine parishes to attend the meeting.

A donation of $400 was made to Catholic Family Service.

Don Richards, of the Huron County Special Education Work Experience Program, narrated a slide program explaining the County's Special Education Program. He introduced Charles Carter, who is with the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Ford to speak at annual GOP fete

Gerald E. Ford, Minority Leader of the House of Representatives, will be the featured speaker at the 1969 Annual Republican Banquet, scheduled for Vassar High School Auditorium this Monday evening.

Ford, considered by many as the second most important Republican in Washington under the Nixon Administration, will address Thumb area Republicans on the topic, "New Directions for the 70's". The Minority Leader will meet members of the area press before his address.

Tickets for the event are still on sale. Tickets can be reserved by calling Caro 673-2151.

The delicious dinner will be catered by the famous "The Embers" of Mount Pleasant. Banquet goers will also be entertained by the Royal Palm Hawaiians, a music and dance group.

Presiding at the meeting will be William Burton of Caro, chairman of the banquet committee which includes Richard Biddinger, Rudy Petzold, Weston Raven and James Sparling. Carl F. Mantey, chairman of the Tuscola County Republican Committee, will introduce the evening's toastmaster, Harold McClure, Republican National Committee member.

The evening's speaker will be introduced by Congressman James Harvey, 8th District Representative.

GERALD FORD

Members of the county board of supervisors are serving as the ticket committee. They include Harold Johnson, Donald Graf, Edward Golding, Shuford Kirk, Floyd Ducker, Charles Woodcock and John Loomis.

The dinner is scheduled for 7 o'clock at the auditorium.

Here's a surprising baseball fact...The year Roger Maris hit his record 61 homers in 1961, he NEVER received an intentional walk all season...One reason was that Mickey Mantle usually followed him in the lineup, but still it's odd that a man hitting that many homers didn't get some intentional walks.

Need adult 4-H volunteer leaders

By Bernard R. Jardot

Adults who complain about today's younger generation should take action to help these young people.

Volunteer adult leaders are needed for area 4-H clubs and 4-H activities such as the county 4-H Service Club. October marks the beginning of the new 4-H year and new 4-H clubs and youth activities are now being planned.

The 45 project areas and activities range from archery to woodworking, from automotive care to wildflowers and from electronics to child care. Almost every interest area to youth—and adults—is covered.

If you are a nurse, you could lead a first aid project club. If you are a mechanic, you could work with an automotive or small engines project club. If your hobby is gardening or flowers, you could lead a horticulture club. Someone who enjoys photography will find an interesting 4-H photography club wanting a leader and others who like to bake, sew or knit could work with 4-H projects in these areas.

Projects and activities are designed to arouse boys' and girls' curiosity and raise questions. The more the young people learn, the more capable they become to experiment, explore and find the answers.

If you are interested in working with young people through 4-H, please contact the county 4-H office located at the Civil Defense Center, Caro.

BEHIND THE COUNTER

Nurse Shortage

Faced with a serious shortage of nurses that will probably get worse, hospitals are beginning to pay attention to two long-standing complaints: low salaries and poor working conditions.

Wages have recently been increased in a few parts of the nation, but the Health Insurance Institute reports the average is still only a bit above $5,000 a year. It's often much lower.

The shortage of hospital workers has also made the job more difficult. When a hospital is understaffed, a nurse must often do work that doesn't have much to do with her specialized training.

For example, she may be preparing medications that a pharmacist should be handling, or cleaning equipment, running errands, filing medical records and so on.

When all these unprofessional chores are finished, nurses may have time left to use only about 25% of their professional skills in the day-to-day bedside care of patients. Fortunately, administrators recognize the problem and promise to change it.

The picture would be even worse if it weren't for the women in the community who volunteer their services in U.S. hospitals, helping out at the reception desks and libraries and anywhere they are needed. They may work only a few months, so they often bring a fresh and cheerful outlook into the hospital wards they serve so generously.

Rotary governor speaks to Cass City club

Jim MacTavish aiding needy Indian boy

Adelbert D. Huber of St. Louis, Michigan, governor of the Rotary district of this area, addressed the Rotary Club of Cass City during his official visit October 28. The local club is one of 29 Rotary clubs in this district.

Speaking of the global growth of Rotary, an international men's service organization, the district governor said:

"Rotary is the pioneer of the service clubs and today numbers more than 13901 clubs with a combined membership of more than 657600 business and professional men. Spread throughout 146 countries in all parts of the world, Rotary clubs conduct activities to improve their communities, aid youth, elevate business standards and further international friendships and understanding."

The district governor also conferred with Lambert E. Althaver, local Rotary Club president, and Gary L. Christner, club secretary, on matters of club administration and plans for future activities.

Huber is one of 298 Rotary governors throughout the world who are serving as representatives of Rotary International in districts composed of member clubs. Each district leader is responsible for supervising the clubs in his area.

A member and past president of the Rotary Club of Shepherd Huber is in agriculture education. He was elected to office at the Rotary convention in Honolulu, Hawaii, U. S. A., in May, 1969, and will serve until June 30, 1970.

James L. MacTavish of Cass City, is sponsoring Roger, an eight-year-old American Indian schoolboy from the White Mountain Apache tribe, through Save the Children Federation, international child welfare organization of Norwalk, Connecticut. It was announced today by Dallas Johnson, Director of the organization's American Indian program. The sponsorship will provide the clothing, school supplies, personal books and spending money which will enable the child to take part in school activities. The average Indian youngster leaves school before the eighth grade, often for lack of these bare essentials.

Part of the sponsorship contribution will be pooled with funds donated by other sponsors to help the members of the tribe accomplish self-help projects of their own choosing. Indian men, women and young people are contributing all the labor to such projects as building health clinics, libraries and community centers. Sponsorship funds are supporting Federation summer programs where boys and girls learn vocational skills while they earn back-to-school funds. To combat the language barrier which is considered a major reason why Indian youngsters lag two years behind their non-Indian classmates in school, the Federation helps tribal communities secure building supplies and school materials for kindergartens where English is taught to five-year-olds before they enter first grade.

Founded in 1932, Save the Children Federation aids children, their families and communities in the Southern Appalachian Mountains, on the American Indian reservations and in many countries abroad, through the sponsorship program, an international self-help scholarship fund and annual collections of used clothing for the children of Appalachia. The Federation is registered with the U. S. State Department Advisory Committee on Voluntary Foreign Aid and is a member of the International Union for Child Welfare, and the American Council of Voluntary Agencies for Foreign Service, Inc. An individual, school or group interested in sponsoring a child should contact Save the Children Federation, Post Road, Norwalk, Connecticut 06852.

Hearing meeting set by Auxiliary

For the hard of hearing or those threatened by deafness or dizziness or problems of balance, the program at Hills and Dales Hospital meeting room Monday, October 27, at eight o'clock, is of particular interest.

Open to men and women, this explanation in sound and film of The Deafness Research Foundation and the Temporal Bone Bank for research of ear disorders is presented by the Women's Auxiliary.

Children who have had measles or mumps are particularly susceptible to having difficulty, for which this Foundation studies diagnosis and treatment.

The Deafness Research Foundation is not only young but has a fascinating story from its inception in 1958. Its accomplishments include: achievement awards in 1959 to such recipients as Bernard Baruch and Helen Keller and establishment of the Temporal Bone Bank Program in 1960. This is a national effort to have persons with medically documented ear disorders bequeath their inner ear structures, which cannot be seen or directly examined during life, to medical science.

Grants from various sources, such as the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation and the John A. Hartford Foundation, have financed the program which has four coordinated centers at the University of Chicago, John Hopkins Hospital (Baltimore), the University of California, and Baylor University in Houston.

These were established in cooperation with the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology (AAOO) and the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology.

The work of this new branch of research is so valuable that the Auxiliary hopes many will attend this enlightening program.

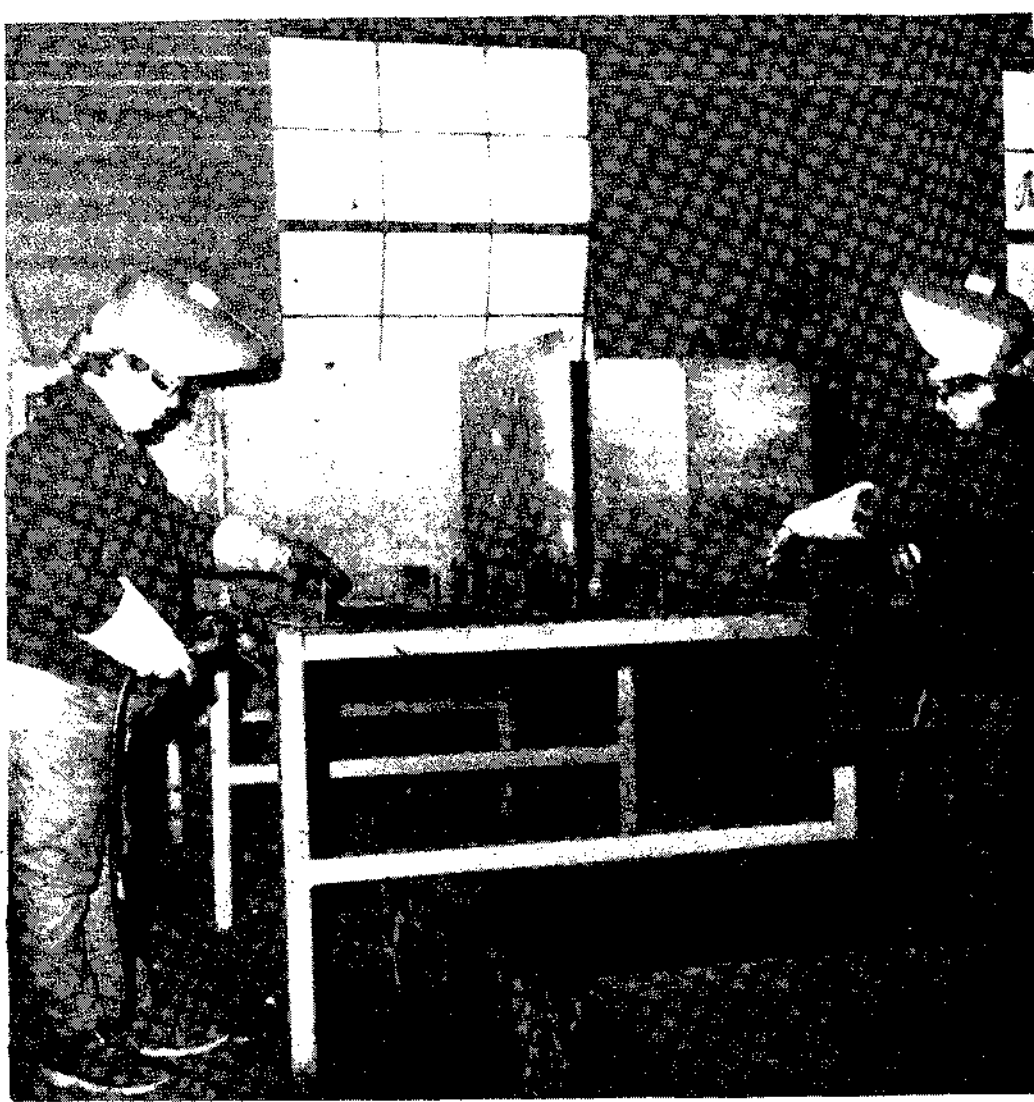

Name Hartwick to Welfare Board

The district board of supervisors approved minor items on the October agenda Tuesday while negotiating with county employees for 1970 salaries.

When the salary range has been set supervisors are expected to quickly finish drawing the budget for the new year. Meanwhile they approved the addition of property to the village of Caro and appointed members to two county boards.

Millard Cubiet, Democrat, and Edgar Ross, Republican, were re-elected to the county board of convassers for four-year terms.

Allan Hartwick of Deford was named to the board of the Tuscola County Department of Social Services. He replaces Elmer Haines, member and former chairman of the board, who resigned. The post pays $600 yearly.

THE TRAINING PROGRAM continues at Evans Products Co., Gagetown. Two more members of the distaff side are nearing the end of a cram course in welding to fill shortages on the line.

UNICEF drive set Tuesday in village

The annual United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF) campaign in Cass City will be held Tuesday night, Oct. 28, starting at 6 p.m., Mrs. James Jezewski, chairman, announced this week.

The workers will be volunteers from the second through the sixth grades. They are asked to meet at the scout rooms dressed in Halloween costumes if available.

All solicitors will be armed with milk carton collection boxes and wear badges to identify themselves.

The youngsters will be supervised by teens and adults from various local churches. The volunteers will be collecting change which will buy supplies and other essentials for the poverty stricken around the world.

Persons wishing to help are asked to leave porch lights on Tuesday, authorities said.

Besides Mrs. Jezewski, others leading the campaign are: Mrs. Newell Harris, co-chairman; Mrs. Lorn Hillaker, treasurer; and Mrs. Bruce Gee, secretary.

Circuit Court jury finds Ruso guilty

A jury trial and five other criminal matters were heard in Tuscola County Circuit Court during the week.

Thursday, Oct. 16, Leonard Ruso of Millington was found guilty of driving under the influence of alcohol in a jury trial.

Judge Norman A. Baguley sentenced Ruso to pay a fine of $100 and court costs of $150 or spend 30 days in jail. He was given 30 days to pay the fine and costs.

John H. Martinez, 17, of Bay City stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered for him on a charge of breaking and entering an occupied dwelling. The home located on Gilford Road belongs to Jose Garcia.

Monday two sentences were issued by Judge James Churchill.

David Greer of Vassar was placed on probation for a year for assault and battery. He was found guilty of assault of a 16-year-old girl.

Greer was ordered to pay a fine of $100 and costs of $100 at the rate of $25 per month. In addition he will spend 3 week ends, 48 hours each, in the Tuscola County Jail. The week end sentence starts Saturday morning and is concluded Monday morning at 9 a.m.

Lionel D. Daly of Mayville was sentenced for a second offense of driving on a revoked license. He was placed on probation for two years. He will spend three months in the county jail with credit allowed for 40 days served.

In addition he will pay a fine of $200 and costs of $200 at the rate of $50 per month.

Frank White of Caro was arraigned for drawing a no account check. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered for him. His bond was continued.

The men and women at Evans make racks for rail shipping, coil car covers, damage free freight loading equipment and other similar items.

One reason that the program has attracted the women to the ranks is that the pay is good.

Evans is an equal opportunity employer and equal opportunity means equal pay and equal pay means more money in the bank at the end of the week.

Probably more than these women could earn anywhere else.

Romance on a bus

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Until he showed up feeding squirrels, I had forgotten My Most Unforgettable Character, Harry Holmes, the singing bus driver.

Back in the late 40's, Harry drove the bus that went by my parent's home in Port Huron. Two blocks later, headed for downtown, he also drove by my girlfriend's home. I didn't own a car, so it was often Harry's responsibility to get Noreen and me to the movie on time.

Usually, I'd board the 7 p.m. bus at my corner, and then Noreen would get on 2 blocks later. This way I didn't have to pay her fare. She was a working girl and I was a struggling veteran trying to get through college on only $75 a month for beer.

It didn't take long for Harry to realize he was important to our romance. After he'd pick me up, he'd begin looking for Noreen. (She didn't always board at the same corner because sometimes she had to walk a block to Sharnaly's Market to sell empty beer bottles to raise her bus fare. We were a wealthy couple). If Noreen were nowhere in sight, Harry would slow down to 5 mph to give her more time to materialize.

Harry was easily the town's most popular bus driver. It wasn't simply that he was always friendly; always had a corny joke. He was also a singer. Not very good, but louder than the motor. And properly inserted into the lyrics was always the name of your next street. If you missed your street it was probably because you became bemused and thought Hoagy Carmichael had written something called Stardust on Rawlings St.

Noreen and I were an addition to Harry's repertoire. He let the other passengers know when his favorite couple made connections successfully. And, whenever one of us went downtown alone, he wondered aloud what the trouble was. He took a real interest in the courtship, following the ups and downs closely and vocally. Whenever I boarded a homeward bound bus alone and beery, he would teet-tch steadily for 10 blocks. I would have walked 15 miles rather than take another girl onto Harry's bus.

The Readers' Digest would end this tale with Harry bussing Noreen and me on the first leg of our honeymoon. But alas, she found another, a guy with a car, and I left town on another bus line. It was 20 years before I thought of Harry again....

Suddenly there he was, the star of a feature story in my hometown newspaper. He's retired now and spends much of his time in a lawn chair, feeding peanuts to pigeons and squirrels.

"I feed them rain or shine—that's half my life now," he told the reporter. "You have to keep busy or you just rot away...all I want to do now is live in Port Huron until I die."

Harry lives smack on his old bus route. Boy, what I'd like to do is go home and ride that bus and get off at Harry's corner and hand a bag of peanuts to my Most Unforgettable Character.

But I'm so damn busy earning bus fare, I'll forget to do it. And then I'll think of it again when I read Harry's obituary. That's life. What a shame.

Underdog Hawks seek upset in Home-coming battle with Hatchets

It's home-coming time at Cass City High School and students and old grads alike are poised for a big evening Friday starting with the Bad Axe-Cass City grid game and ending with the annual home-coming dance.

The Hawks would like nothing better than to come up with a victory before the local fans in the next to last game of the season.

It could change a season of frustration to one of achievement. The Hawks boast just a single victory this year following last week's 28-6 loss at Caro and a home-coming victory would be very sweet for coaches, players and fans.

For the Hawks this season have been just good enough to get beat.

Against the lesser teams in the loop, costly penalties and under peak team performances cost the team a chance for victory. Against some of the better teams, the Hawks were simply outmanned.

Despite the dismal record,

Cass City has shown steady improvement.

Following Bad Axe here Friday, the Hawks entertain Frankenthum, the team that has been running roughshod over all opposition. It is hard to figure the Hawks posting a win over the vaunted Eagles in the season's final.

So if Cass City is going to better last year's record (one win, one tie in nine games) Friday will be the night.

Not that Bad Axe is any soft touch. If the Hawks should win it will be a big upset. Last week the Hatchets rolled over Vassar, 30-0, and the Vulcans defeated Cass City.

Against the Tigers last week, Cass City was put in a hole the first time Caro got the ball.

Al Michalk went through the middle of the line on a quick opener slipped by the linebacker and was off for a 68-yard touchdown jaunt.

Ron Gardner passed to Mark Putnam for the extra points and with 9:02 left in the first period, the Hawks were playing catch-up football.

The Hawks came charging back later in the period to mount a drive. Starting on their own 25 they moved with precision to the Caro 15 before giving up the ball. A key play was a pass to Rich Miller for a first down. Miller broke three tackles while driving for 15 yards.

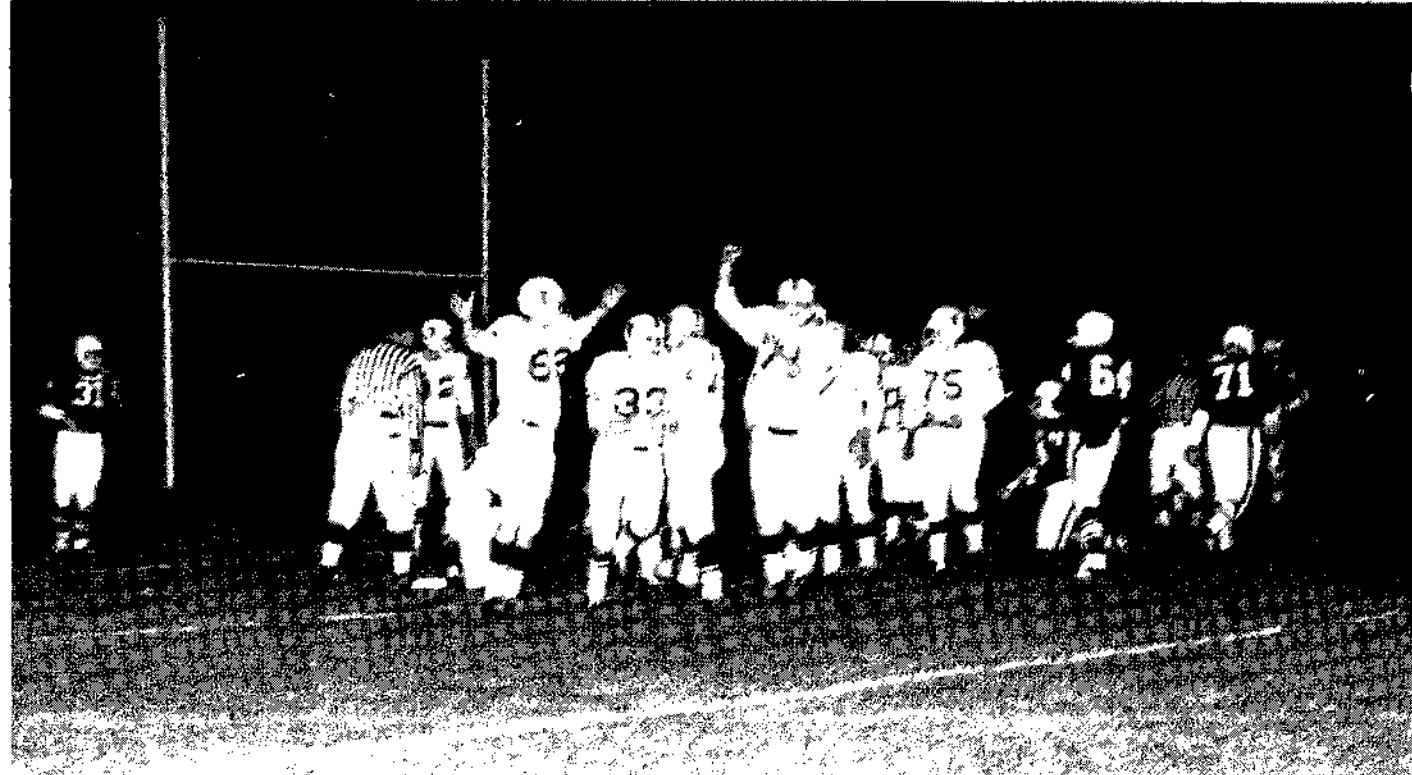

Cass City converted a break into its only score of the game. Marty Zawilinski recovered a Tiger fumble on the Tiger 6-yard line. Three line plays failed to push the ball across. Rob Alexander hit Miller in the end zone for the final three yards and the marker.

Probably the turning point of the game came on the next series. Charged up Cass City succeeded in stopping two ground plays cold deep in Tiger territory and it was third and long yardage.

On the next play Gardner tossed a pass that a Caro receiver snagged out of the hands of two Hawk defenders that kept the drive alive.

Caro eventually scored on a nine-yard run by Steve Holik to cap the 85-yard drive. A run for point was good and at the half, Cass City trailed 16-6.

In the last half, Caro dominated the game. Steve Nigg scored on a four-yard pass play and Putnam chalked up the final touchdown of the game on a four-yard drive.

THE HAWKS WERE jubilant after scoring a touchdown in the second quarter to pull within two points of Caro. But the Tigers were not to be denied as they posted a 28-6 decision Friday at Caro.

How does one determine the value of a dairy heifer calf? Certainly the return gained from a veal or cow beef sale is not the full value. The real value would be the total lifetime return a dairyman receives from the mature cow grown from that calf.

Top return dairy operations are those which not only use excellent practices in breeding replacement selection, herd health and feeding but have good housing too.

Lower return dairy operations strive for good breeding, selection, herd health and feeding but neglect good housing.

It is a known fact that a most important criteria for growing high value cows is the health management of the calves. Stunted, improperly developed, sickly calves will never develop into cows capable of the milk production genetically bred into the calves.

To go one step further, the largest single factor determining good or poor health in a growing calf is calf housing and its management.

Why is properly managed good calf housing so important? Calves give off more moisture than body heat prior to becoming mature cows. Mature cows give off more body heat than moisture.

Why is this physiological fact important? It is important because as calves generate more moisture than body heat unfavorable wet, cold and damp living conditions will develop in their housing area.

These unfavorable conditions are ideal for calf diseases to begin and perpetuate. The more sickness and the longer the period of sickness any calf endures, the less its lifetime production will be.

Good adequate calf housing today does an adequate job of maintaining proper humidity and moisture levels and temperature for healthy conditions.

In some of our calf housing facilities ventilation, natural or mechanical, is not adequate. Sometimes a wet and cold calf housing facility can only be made dry and warm by adding ceiling, footing and wall insulation. Sometimes auxiliary heaters plus insulation are needed besides mechanically controlled intake and exhaust fans.

A good dairyman should furnish whatever is needed to insure a good clean, dry well ventilated and proper temperature calf housing facility. The difference between vigorous, healthy top producing replacement cows and those weakened because of poor calf housing conditions can more than replace the cost of having good calf housing facilities.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

It's the inside story of pro golf

By Dan Marlowe

Wives, the problem of what to give your golfing husbands for a birthday present has been solved.

There haven't been many good novels about the professional golf tour, but DRIVE TO THE GREEN by Anthony Tuttle (Doubleday, $5.95) is for every golfer who ever swung a club in pleasure or in anger.

The reader is made an intimate part of the bittersweet day-by-day trials of the golfing professionals and their girlfriends, wives and families. He meets Arnie, Jack, Julie Boros, Dave Marr, Frank Beard, Tom Weiskopf, Gardner Dickinson, Lee Trevino and many another of the touring pros. And he meets the four fictional characters with whom the book mainly concerns itself: Walt Morrow, Phil Conti, Neil Binder, and Billy Corry.

Marrow has been at the top for twenty years, but family problems tie him into such a knot on the golf course that he can't force himself to swing a club. He is removed from a tournament by friends in the first stage of a complete mental collapse that sidelines him for most of a season. Walt Morrow's story is the story of his personal and golfing rehabilitation.

At the book's outset, Phil Conti is one of the tour's "rabbits", a young golfer staked by hometown friends, missing cut after cut, practicing desperately, eating inadequately, praying for a break. Then he suddenly puts it all together and tastes the acclaim of which he had dreamed for so long, only to find the periphery of fame not as he had imagined it.

Neil Binder is one of the game's long hitters, a sound, steady golfer whose business interests are managed by a cynical pair who have none of his love for the game of golf. Binder's ultimate stand against what he feels is the degradation of the game and himself versus the prospect of making a lot of money places him in direct conflict with his wife.

And then there's Billy Corry, the book's most appealing character. Young, brash, cocky, super-confident, he never saw the putt he couldn't make. Reveling in the women who thrust themselves upon him, Corry is the rookie-of-the-year who will match his game against anyone. In a classic encounter with a golfing type which feeds upon the unwary young pro, Corry outshines a hustler to the tune of $130,000 in an 18-hole match. Anyone who has ever pressed a $2 Nassau and then frozen over a putt on the last green will be unable to put this chapter down.

The business wheeling-and-dealing behind the golfing scenes is fascinating, and author Tuttle's expertise in this area makes the book interesting down to the final axe-stroke against the final quivering neck.

The story concludes with the end of the winter tour at Augusta for the Masters in April, and the golf course description is such that one can smell the dogwood and the bougainvillea.

This may well be the finest fictional representation ever of the very special world of the touring professional golfer.

146 girls enrolled in Scout troops

Girl Scouting in Cass City is on the upswing this year with 60 more girls participating in scouting. The increase resulted in the formation of three new troops, according to Mrs. Dick Greenwood, troop organizer and publicity chairman. Mrs. Greenwood works in assigning girls, finding leaders and promoting Girl Scouting through publicity.

Enrolled are 146 girls in eight troops. Meetings are held after school in Scout rooms and three troops are using school facilities.

New Brownie leaders this year are Mrs. Robert Vargo Jr., Mrs. Jack Hartwick, Mrs. Alvin McKee, Mrs. Carl Vandtver and Mrs. Al Porritt. Brownie leaders who worked last year and have returned for another year are Mrs. Duane Ruslio, Mrs. Robert MacKay and Mrs. William Kritzman. Brownies will work with elderly shut-ins in Cass City this year with Mrs. Ruslio's troop assigned to Heatherstone Nursing Home at Caro.

New Junior leaders are Mrs. John Zmierski, Mrs. Robert Fisher and Mrs. Carl German. Returning Junior leaders are Mrs. Richard Joos, Mrs. Don Erla and Mrs. Scott Kelley. Junior and Cadette troops will be remembering patients at the Tuscola County Medical Facility near Caro with letters and cards and providing centerpieces and entertainment.

After a lapse of three years a Cadette troop has been formed. Most of these girls are in their sixth year of Scouting. Leaders of the Cadette troop are Mrs. Gerald Whitaker and Mrs. Paul O'Harris.

All troops will be serving Hills and Dales Hospital at various times during the year. Mrs. K. I. MacRae is Neighborhood chairman. Her job is to oversee and direct leaders and Girl Scouts at Cass City, Gagetown and Deford.

HOW'S THIS FOR a day's fishing? Thirteen salmon, a Rainbow and a Brown trout were taken from the Muskegon River by Robert McTaggart, left, Dick Szarapski and Dick McTaggart (not pictured). Dick McTaggart is a resident of Muskegon and tipped the anglers off that the salmon were in the river. There were thousands of these Chinooks in the river, Szarapski said. The largest weighed about 19 pounds. Next year when the Chinooks come up the river to spawn they are expected to be in the 35 to 50-pound class. Think of that, said McTaggart in awe.

HUGH BRENNEMAN
Midwest theater: interest booming

Midwest theater goes among the most sophisticated in the country. It isn't unusual for them to see New York plays in New York and again from the local stages. They seem to enjoy both occasions equally. Those who participate in stage productions in the heartland of the U. S. range from various amateurs to skilled professionals. The work involved in preparing settings and scenery, even though it is done locally, is often truly monumental. The keynote of all these exhibitions of the performing arts is an enthusiasm—a contagious enthusiasm that makes the hard work and the long hours worthwhile.

Acting, directing, or just working backstage in a theater is a very exciting experience. There is a great deal of personal satisfaction in the putting on of a top performance, which is shared by everyone who takes part. This is true not only of the actors, but of the director, the set designers, the box office people, the girls who fit the costumes, and the people who hammer and nail and paint the scenery. These people are involved in what is known as the "community theater."

There are other types of theaters than the community theater....university theaters, regional theaters, and the national theater.

A national theater in the United States is a much hoped for dream among theater people. Theater enthusiasts would like to have a professional theater subsidized in this country, as it is in Europe, by Federal funds. There has been some movement in this direction but today there is still no national theater.

On the other hand, the regional theaters are doing very well. A regional theater is one that is supported by a large area—a district or region. It is a professional theater. Actors are hired and the entire company is paid. They may become the core of the national theater.

University theaters are primarily teaching theaters. Young people are trained for work in the professional theater. Also, some are taught to become teachers at the high school, college, or university levels. A university theater, in a sense, is a community theater which has a broad ownership. Michigan State University has a program which trains both undergraduates and graduate students. It has a company of graduate students who are working toward their masters and doctorate degrees. This theater is primarily interested in turning out people who are both scholars and practitioners of the theater.

Wayne State University has fashioned its theater program around what is called the "classical" theater. The classical theater, in this instance, is defined as Shakespeare, the Greek classics, plays of that nature.

The University of Michigan has an entirely different set up. Whereas it has the same type of program as Michigan State with undergraduate and graduate students, it also has a paid resident professional repertory company. It's a good one....recognized as one of the ten best resident professional companies in the world. Of course, any theater---community, regional, university or otherwise---must entertain an audience or it won't have an audience very long. By the same token a university theater does have the responsibility to provide examples for students on the campus of specific plays from specific periods. So, in a way, the university theater must act as a library of the theater, serving as a resource for other courses. For example, students who are studying Greek should be able to see a Greek play performed on the university theater stage. Over a four-year span, good students try to see certain plays from major dramatic periods. Also, of course, the theater must reflect contemporary developments.

The community theater is really very important to a community. Industry recognizes this. Today, when an industry is considering locating in a new community, it wants to know whether its employees will be able to participate in a community theater as well as whether there is opportunity to enjoy the other performing arts also. And, of course, the community players, on their part, recognize that they cannot thrive without the support of the local business community.

Many community theaters are influenced by Broadway but some of them are disregarding the influence of Broadway for in many ways Broadway is an unhealthy theater. Most authorities today say that very little experimentation is being done that is really exciting or new on Broadway. But, they say community theaters are beginning to become more influential and university theaters are changing, maturing, tending to bridge the gap between amateur and professionalism. They predict new developments in the theater which will provide less structured and less formal presentations with a greater emphasis on communication—probably quite a change in the style of writing for the theater. Sounds great.

State seeks 5-cent cigarette tax boost to 12 cents a pack

from many different corners, there is one beneficial aspect about them no one has proposed abolishing—they're taxable.

On Oct. 1, for the first time in history, there was a tax on cigarettes in every state of the union.

On Oct. 9, to bring the matter closer to home, Gov. Milliken asked the Legislature to raise Michigan's cigarette tax from seven to 12 cents a pack.

To those who can remember the time when cigarettes were two packs for a quarter, the prospect of paying that much alone in state taxes on them seems a little drastic. But a 12 cent rate isn't even unusual any more.

Iowa was the first state to impose a tax on cigarettes in 1921. Michigan was a relative latecomer to the scene, waiting until 1947 to levy the first tax on smokers.

Prior to 1947, some 32 states had levied taxes on cigarettes and seven more joined the bandwagon that year.

A 12 cent rate would by no means make Michigan the highest taxing state, either. That distinction belongs to Connecticut, which charges 16 cents for every pack of cigarettes sold there.

Other states higher than 12 cents are Florida (15¢), New Jersey (14¢), Oklahoma, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Minnesota and Rhode Island (13¢), and Arkansas (12.5¢).

States already charging 12 cents are New York, Vermont, Massachusetts, Maine, Illinois, North and South Dakota and New Mexico.

Agent's Corner

By Mary E. Kerr Extension Agent

Freshness is probably the most important factor in bread selection—so much so that many a loaf is subjected to the squeeze test. Pity is this is not a reliable test of freshness.

To get the most bread for the money, buy by loaf weight rather than loaf size. It's fairly easy to make cost comparisons on this basis since Michigan law requires that white bread be sold in standard loaf weights of 12 ounces; 1 pound; 1 pound, 4 ounces; 1 pound, 8 ounces, or 2 pounds.

Another thrifty idea is to buy enriched bread. Enriched bread is made from flour which has had 3 important B vitamins—thiamin, riboflavin, and niacin—and iron restored to it. Enrichment replaces these elements removed in milling white flour without changing appearance, calorie count, or taste.

Whole-wheat bread and enriched bread are similar nutritionally, so choice between them is a matter of taste and texture preference.

Specialty breads and rolls cost considerably more than standard types. Special packaging, such as rolls in aluminum pans, also increases the cost.

Diet breads, usually premium priced, may be lower in calories only because they are sliced thinner. Diet breads which are made with little or no shortening are less moist even when freshly baked.

Brown-and-serve rolls, English muffins, and some specialty breads will keep well for a week if refrigerated. Refrigeration actually hastens staling, but it does retard mold; so in hot humid weather it's a good idea to refrigerate other kinds of bread, too. But the rest of the time a bread box or shelf away from excessive heat and moisture makes a good bread storage area.

Daryl F. Randall at Fort Benning

Army Private Daryl F. Randall of Deford recently spent a two-week furlough at his home following advanced infantry training at Fort Polk, La. He is now attending NCO School at Fort Benning, Ga.

Pvt. Randall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin E. Randall, and wife Paula live at 5877 Main St. in Deford.

He completed nine weeks of advanced infantry training Sept. 19 at Fort Polk. His last week of training was spent in guerrilla warfare exercises, living under simulated Vietnam conditions for five days.

He entered the Army in May and received basic training at Fort Knox, Ky.

He is a 1967 graduate of Cass City High School. Before entering the Army, he was employed by Cole Carbide Ind. in Cass City.

The Daryl Randalls are the parents of a son, Daryl F. Jr., born last week in Hills and Dales Hospital.

His new address is: NCO School Daryl F. Randall, 81st Co. 8th STU. Bn. TCB, Fort Benning, Ga.

He is as astute a politician and has as many contacts as any man in Lansing.

Yet, he has one pet project that he has never been able to get the Legislature to go along with. That is a financial disclosure provision for campaigns.

The seven-term officeholder, who is retiring after the current term he is serving expires, is going to make one more try.

He served notice on the Legislature he will be after it again next January to enact "total reform of Michigan's financial disclosure laws with particular emphasis on more effective controls over reporting of political campaign contributions and spending."

EAST, WEST LOVE IS BEST

Sue and Lee were only names to me when I first saw their picture. Incredible — that the children I now mother tenderly, once were strangers!

It seems only yesterday Dan wrote he was bringing them home. How frantic I was with worry and self-doubt. Could I love, as my own, children with slanted eyes and tinted skins? Would I fail them? Could I fulfill Dan's faith in me? We had been longing for children, true — but not foreigners!

In desperation, I called my pastor. Calmly and with understanding, he spoke to me of God's love as the common denominator of all nationalities.

And so from the moment I saw them, Sue and Lee have been our own, bringing laughter and joy without measure.

How grateful I am for God and His Church and the wisdom they teach—in Christ there is no East nor West. Without this truth my arms might still be empty.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

The fellers at the country store put wimmen on the agender agin Saturday night. It were Zeke Grubb that said he had got a look at his old lady's fall and winter order books, and he wanted to know what kind of fashion wimmen will come up with when their hair gets longer than their skirts. Skirts is getting shorter ever season, Zeke allowed, and what little wimmen wears with 'em you can see thru.

Zeke reported he had saw by the papers where this feller that runs a rag company was agin miniskirts 'cause they ain't snuff cloth in one to make a decent wipe rag. This feller said he lost money trying to clean and resell miniskirts for cleaning cloths, and Zeke added that wimmen that buys 'em fer clothes lose money in the first place.

The fellers was agreed with Zeke that skirts is gone as high as they can go without being belts, and it were Bug Hookum that said it's jest a matter of time afore some slick feller with a wax mustash in New York City figgers this out. Then, declared Bug, they's going to be a full reverse in fashion and skirts probable won't stop till they is down around the ankles.

When the skirts is going up, said Bug, wimmen that's got more style than money can trim off a inch or two ever season. But when the hems is going down they ain't nothing to do but buy new ones. Course, Bug went on, wimmen throws away everything now. He said he had saw where the Salvation Army reported they is getting more fur coats and near new evening dresses give to 'em than ever afore. Wimmen in this country has got more money than they got sense, no matter how pore they are, was Bug's words.

That was when Clem Webster got the floor and said he had saw by the papers where that Russian spacewoman, Valentiny somepun, had come out with another one of her wise sayings. She said natural wimmen would go into space with men cause without wimmen there could be no order. Clem said Valentiny might of meant ordering the men around, but he figgered she was talking about keeping things organized. Clem was of the mind that Valentiny's idee of order in space or on earth makes as much sense as wimmen's idees on fashion.

Practical speaking, Mister Editor, they ain't no use to give wimmen our idees on clothes. Whoever said wimmen dresses fer men didn't know wimmen. They dress fer each other and the men pays the bills.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Personal, I am of the mind the fellers might as well of spent the session talking about the national debt fer all the good they done. A feller has got as much chanct talking to a woman that's made up her mind as he has stopping a hen that's trying to set.
