

School union threatens strike to secure agency shop

Members of the operating engineers (AFL-CIO) threatened to close down Cass City High School Monday night unless their demands for an agency (closed) shop were met.

Union representative Joe Jordan appeared before the board of education and said that the local bargaining unit had voted to strike unless the school wrote the agency shop clause into this year's contract which is still pending.

The operating engineers represent the custodians, bus drivers and cooks at the school.

The agency shop issue is the sole remaining area of disagreement between the board and the union.

Jordan told the board that the regular avenues of arbitration have been exhausted. We went through mediation and fact finding. The governor's fact finder has determined that our request was legal and should be granted, he said.

The school board's policy has been that it was unfair to ask persons who were not in favor of representation to pay union dues. Jordan says that the union is required by law to protect the interests of non-members and if the union does the work, it should receive the money. That's what the union is all about, he asserted, money.. more money for our members. The school board questioned whether the union had the support of 51 per cent of the three classes of workers it represented.

Jordan said that he would agree to a secret vote to be held under the auspices of a State representative.

If 51 per cent fail to vote for the union, we will no longer represent this school, he said. If 51 per cent vote in favor of the union with an agency shop then the agency shop clause becomes part of this year's contract.

The school board discussed this in a meeting closed to the 22 visitors present and the press. Supt. Donald Crouse said Tuesday morning that it was the feeling of the board that it would agree to the proposed vote if conditions are worked out satisfactorily in an upcoming meeting between the school-union bargaining teams.

The agency shop clause is the only unsettled issue in the contract at this time. Although it is illegal for the school workers to strike, "mass resignations" are legal, Jordan said. Call it what you will, he added, but it's still a strike. Our members don't want to strike because it will hurt the kids, he noted.

Otis Dorland agrees that a strike will hurt the kids, but that is about the only area in which he is in accord with the local at the school.

They got me in there under false pretenses, he said angrily, by saying that we had to run mechanically faulty busses. We can get along better without the union, settle our own differences, he continued. All the union does is take your money for nothing.

But most of the visitors were in accord with the union's stand. Call Parrott said that he felt the school would receive better cooperation, better work with an agency shop. Emerson Kennedy claimed that everything in our society is organized and without organization the worker is helpless. Look at the farmer, he said; he is unorganized and he is left out.

Anderson death ups county traffic toll to 44 for year

Everett Anderson, 25, of Vassar, a passenger in a pickup truck, became the 44th traffic fatality in Tuscola County Thursday in a mishap on Graf Road, about 400 feet from Deckerville Road in Almer township.

According to the report of Tuscola County Sheriff Deputies who investigated, the truck driven by Herman LeRoy Meyer, 27, of Fostoria went out of control on Graf Road, skidded 374 feet and hit a tree 15 feet, six inches from the pavement.

Meyer and another passenger, William Iverson, 24, were seriously injured in the crash. They were taken to Caro Community Hospital. Meyer was transferred to St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw where he responded to treatment and has been discharged to recover at home.

Iverson is still a patient in Caro where authorities list his condition as satisfactory.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Manly L. Fay, 73, of Cass City was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital for treatment of injuries received when the car he was driving left Schwieger road, about three-quarters of a mile north of M-81, and hit a tree Thursday.

Fay said he didn't know why he lost control in the accident that occurred at 1 p.m. Investigating were Sheriff's Deputies James Wright and Ronald Phillips and Cass City Police Chief Carl Palmateer.

Fay suffered severe facial lacerations and bruises in the crash. Isadore H. Micklash, Pigeon, stood mute when arraigned before Judge Richard Kern Monday in district court on a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol and leaving the scene of an accident. A plea of innocent was entered for him.

According to the report of investigating officers, Micklash hit the rear of a car driven by Rene M. Kendall, 36, of Cass City Friday.

The accident occurred when Mrs. Kendall was attempting a left turn from M-81, about a half mile east of Cass City. Two Kendall children, Kay, 13, and Kurt, 12, were shaken up in the mishap.

Micklash allegedly left the scene and was stopped after a chase by investigating officers.

Caroline Kaye Gemmell, 30, of Owendale was treated at Caro Community Hospital after the car she was driving collided with a train on Chambers Road in Indianfields township. Mrs. Gemmell told officers that she thought the lights ahead were on M-81 instead of the rail crossing.

Injury was avoided but a vehicle owned by Gerald Stilson, 43, of Cass City was damaged in a mishap on M-81 at Colwood Road Thursday.

The accident report indicated that Stilson was driving west on M-81 at about 4 p.m. when a car driven by Samuel W. Lucht, 80, of Pigeon turned in front of him.

Filing deadline near for village candidates

Petitions are now available for persons who want to become candidates for any village office, Clerk Celia House announced this week.

Deadline for filing is Monday, Dec. 29, at 4 p.m. and there will be four openings on the council because of resignations during the year.

Three two-year terms are up for grabs. Gary Christner, Dr. William Selby and Dr. D. E. Rawson are trustees whose terms expire this year. Christner was an appointee of the council replacing George Dillman.

The fourth trustee position open now is presently filled by Arthur Holmberg. Voters will be electing a candidate to fill the year remaining on the unexpired term of Ed Golding Jr.

In addition to the trustees the usual one-year terms will be decided in the spring election. Incumbents and their offices are: president, Lambert Althaver; clerk-treasurer, Mrs. Celia House, and assessor, Mac O'Dell.

Village authorities suggest petitions have at least 20 signatures of registered voters in the village.

Former resident killed in M-21 crash

Final rites were held Monday at Immaculate Conception Catholic Church in Lapeer for Ronald C. Russell, 41, Lapeer, who died in a one-car crash Thursday on M-21.

Russell was born and reared in Elmwood township and the body was taken to the Hunter Funeral Home in Gagetown before rites were held in Lapeer. According to the Lapeer County Sheriff's Department, Russell was travelling west on M-21 at 9:48 p.m. when the pickup he was driving crossed to the shoulder on the south side of the road and struck a tree. Police said that there were no skid marks visible on the road.

The accident victim was driving alone at the time of the accident. He was dead on arrival at Lapeer General Hospital.

The accident victim was a building contractor in Lapeer. Surviving are: his widow, the former Ruth LaFave; four sons, Timothy, Matthew, Paul and Patrick; three daughters, Mary Kay, Carrie and Sarah, all at home; his father and step-mother, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Russell of Owendale, a brother, Royce Russell, and a sister, Mrs. Jack (Harriet) Downing, both of Gagetown.

Robinson jailed for illegal deer slaying

Theodore B. Robinson, 46, of 4524 Jacob Road, Cass City, paid a stiff price for killing a fawn and two doe deer in Elmwood township Oct. 22.

Robinson was arrested by Officer James Gelhart of the Department of Natural Resources Dec. 3 and pleaded guilty when arraigned before Magistrate John Bowles in District Court in Caro.

He was sentenced to 30 days in jail. In addition he was fined $100 and ordered to pay $600 for the deer he shot. His deer license was taken for two years.

Communication gap rapped by school board Monday

Members of the Cass City School Board expressed concern with the communication between parents, students and the school's guidance counselors at the regular meeting of the school board Monday night at the high school.

Several board members said that they had received complaints about the program. Discussion revealed that the principal difficulty was that the parents did not know their responsibility.

Guidance counseling in Cass

City starts near the end of the year at the eighth grade level, Jerry Cleland, instructor, told the board. It is here that we evaluate the tests administered in the 7th and 8th grades as well as tests concluded in the elementary grades, Cleland reported.

From these tests we advise the student whether or not to pursue a college prep course or a vocational course.

The guidance teacher maintains files showing the student's achievements and abilities. He is also a source for information about various colleges, scholarship aid and class schedules. Job opportunities and vocations are handled through the office, Cleland reported.

Cleland reported that his department is looked to for leadership in changing youth values. For this reason, he noted, he participates in workshops concerning drugs, alcoholism and

Bakery sold to Sutters

Announcement was made this week of the sale of Konrad's Bakery by Mr. and Mrs. Konrad Konwalski of Cass City to Virginia and Tom Sutter of New Haven.

The Sutters are originally from Detroit, but have been operating a restaurant and bakery in New Haven for 5 1/2 years.

The couple has six children, four boys and two girls. They have a total of 23 years experience in the bakery business.

The new owners say that the bakery will continue to be operating under the name of Konrad's Bakery and that they will specialize in cake decorating.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

The grass is greener on the other side of the fence.

I can think of a half dozen guys in town, not including professional realtors, who do little except dicker in property and make more money than working slob like me (and the vast majority of the rest of us) after a month of laboring in the vineyards.

If I were to try to make a living this way, I no longer would worry about a diet...only about eating.

For the truth is that when I want to sell I immediately assume the buyer can see all the faults and when I buy everything suddenly takes on a rosy hue.

If I trade cars I'm going to be aware that the shocks are weak, it failed to start last week and it's a gas eating monster.

When I buy, I know that I'm going to be waited into trouble-free transportation and the car is going to run practically on perpetual motion.

So I get less and pay more. When I see an old cow pasture, that's what I see: an old cow pasture.

So one of those half-dozen slick dickers come along and see, not a cow pasture, but five or six small retirement home sites.

And what's frustrating is that shortly after they buy it, they sell it to six unsuspecting city dwellers and take off for Florida.

Besides making money, there's a suspicion that these fellows get their kicks from the deals they pull.

It's conceded that they have a good thing going, but there still is satisfaction in work.

I'm sure a craftsman like John West, a near-genius working with metal, receives immense satisfaction when he duplicates a part to keep a farmer moving, a Chronicle press rolling or a factory line operating.

When W. E. Walpole, Walbro president, drives to work each morning there must be more satisfaction in what he has created here than in the money he has made doing it.

And these men have counterparts on the farm, in business and in the skilled trades everywhere.

Even newspaper people have it. When I write a story that I feel is pertinent, entertaining and significant I like to re-read it, savor the techniques that I feel make it well done.

Not much different, really, than a good carpenter that stands back to admire a coffee table that he has designed and built.

Some carpenters (and some writers) keep at it for the sheer joy that it brings.

They'd do what they are doing if they never made a dime. Others of us must be prodded. I need to write to make a living or else I would never pen a line. So maybe it's good that I must.

Or maybe it isn't.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

It hasn't been exactly a Merry Christmas season at Cass City Schools. In addition to the strike threat, there have been an unusual number of accidents. This fall when the windows were installed in the Intermediate School a heater was left burning and a stove in the home economics room was ruined. Nov. 7 Mrs. Jeanette Lapeer suffered a whip lash injury in a bus collision at the Intermediate School and still is afflicted after spending 11 days in the hospital. Finally, Mrs. Phyllis Churchill suffered a concussion when hit on the head by a falling pan in the kitchen.

There was a surprisingly large number of fans from Cass City at the opening basketball game at Marlette Friday. If the school should come up with a winner, it might just be possible to play before a full house in Cass City.

If this is the year, it might just be that the balcony floor in the gym will be ready for overflow crowds. After a couple of years of squabbling with the contractor, the floor is ready for tile.

A winner and a new floor. It proves that all things come to them that wait...long enough.

Willis Campbell has become a Florida regular in the winter. One of the first to leave each winter, he is already on his way south. Before he left, he asked that the Chronicle issue periodic weather reports.

He just can't wait to hear about those days of 10 below with two-foot snow drifts.

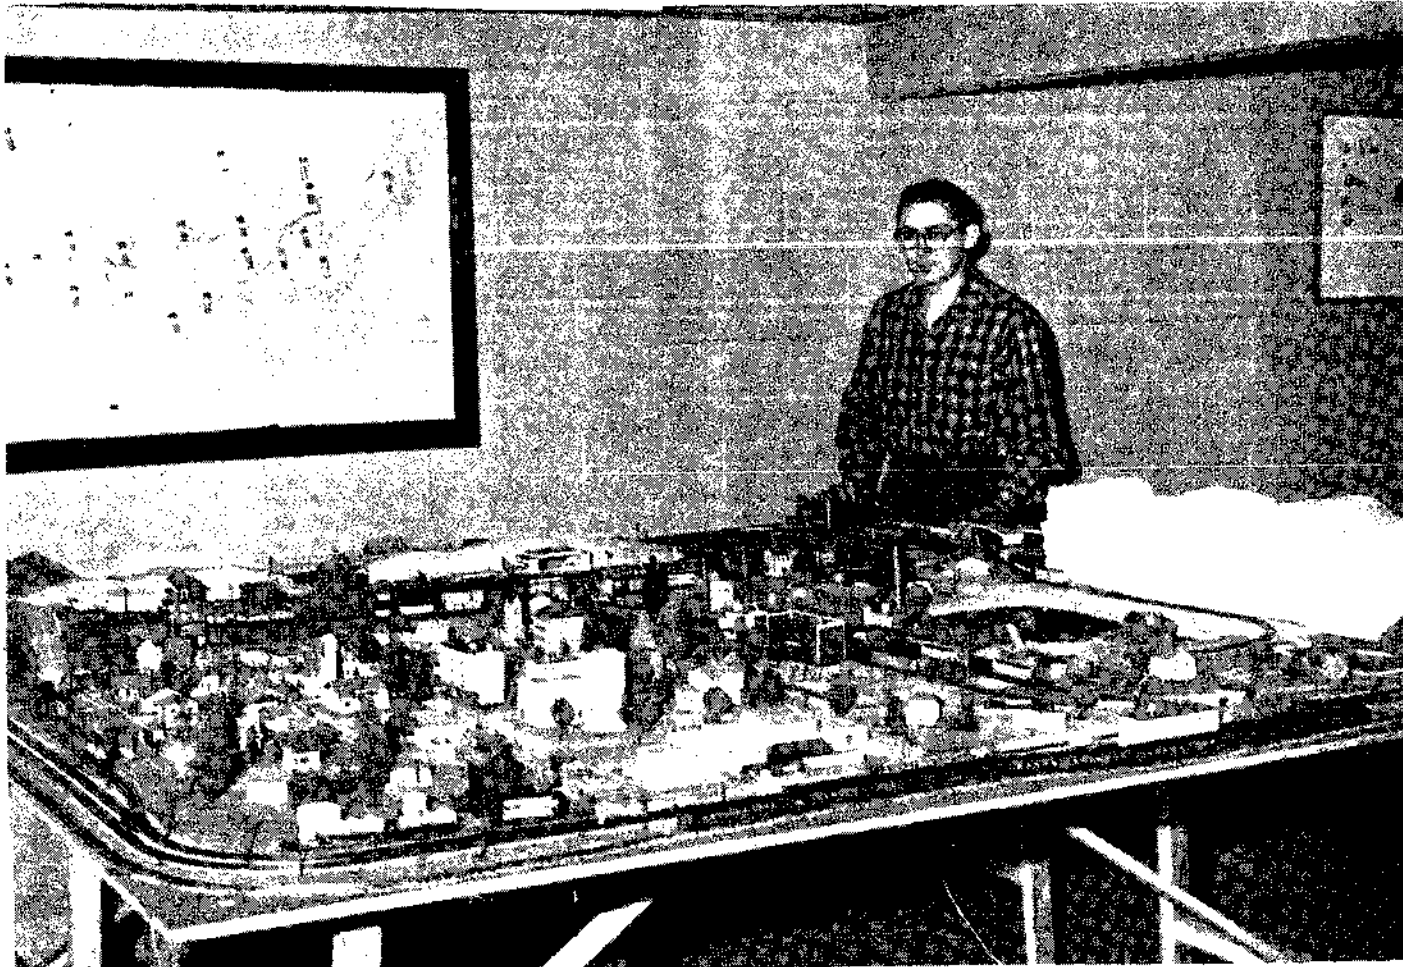

But how about days like today, Willis? It's a brisk 40 degrees, the sun is shining and it's truly a bee-u-tiful day in Michigan.

It was surprising that Mrs. John Palmer, Leach Street, won the $100 offered by the Chamber of Commerce Retail Division Saturday.

The odds against the winner being present must have been at least 50 to 1. These odds were reflected in the four other drawings held. None of the winners were present. They each received half of the prize money. The half not collected ($25) will be raffled in the final drawing before Christmas.

The Want Ads Are Newsy Too!

Still adding to $1,000 project Guinther's scale model railroad complex requires money, time, patience and skill

GERALD GUINTHER looks over the "railroad complex" that he has devoted most of his spare time to building since last March.

Time was that a highlight of Christmas for every boy in the family (and his dad) was finding an electric train placed carefully in the center of all the booty under the Christmas tree.

Invariably it was first noticed, first opened and first used.

But no more. The train was replaced by the slot car and today's hot ones are the "hot wheels".

Area merchants say that they haven't offered trains for several years...that they are not even available now on special order.

It's highly unlikely that the train sets of yesteryear will ever again regain popularity.

Trains for kids are dead. But there is still action in miniature railroads. Replacing the toy train is the model railroad setup.

Electric trains, for the most part, were for young boys; model trains are for older youth or adults.

One of these model train devotees is Gerald Guinther of Cass City. His appetite was whetted just before he finished his service hitch by models available in the post exchange.

Now the 22-year-old Guinther, an employee of Evans Products Co. which, incidentally, makes racks for train cars, spends much of his leisure time creating a model railroad in his basement. He has already invested nearly $1,000 since he began last March.

He has averaged two hours a day, five days a week since he was smitten by the model railroad bug.

The hours of work show in the railroad complex he has created on two pieces of four by four-foot plywood boards fastened in the middle.

On it are 50 buildings, 11 engines, 80 railroad cars and hundreds of related items.

Everything about the model is built to scale of 1:160, right down to the pews in the scale model church. All of the buildings were assembled by Guinther from do-it-yourself kits.

There is a quarter mile of N-gauge track winding around the grass, hills and meadows of the model.

Guinther operates the various trains with 14 remote control switches and can make them do everything on the tracks that their real-life counterparts do.

But it's not running the train that fascinates the young model buff, but creating the model itself.

For instance, the telephone "wires" are strung by using black thread and carefully gluing them to the tiny utility poles as it stretches around next to the lengthy track.

Despite the elaborate setup, Guinther estimates he is still about $250 and lots of hours away from doing everything he wants to with it.

But probably by next spring the last detail will be placed with tender loving care on the plywood and the model will be finished. When it is, the young craftsman will be finished with it.

I'll probably break it up and sell it by the piece to anyone who wants it, he explained, but it won't bring anywhere near the cost of the materials alone.

Most people want to build their own. The fun is in the building, he added, as he carefully made a minute adjustment to a pile of logs stacked by the track waiting for the engine to come by.

and if the fine is not paid Robinson will spend another 30 days in jail.

Gelhart did say that he recovered four deer hides that he found when he searched the Robinson premises under a search warrant.

SCHOOL PROBLEM

juvenile delinquency at his own expense.

There was general agreement that perhaps an "eighth grade" day was needed where parents and students visited the school and the guidance counselor. However, no concrete action was taken Monday.

OTHER BUSINESS

Golf is a reality at Cass City High School now because Tom Woody has volunteered to instruct the sport without charge. Grant Hutchinson has agreed to donate course costs and an unnamed benefactor has agreed to donate 10 cents per mile per car for transportation to meet.

The board went on record as requesting a second special education room to become part of the Intermediate School. No immediate action is expected from the Intermediate district, but the request is now on file, Supt. Donald Crouse explained.

Another Federal program that pours $20,802 worth of earmarked funds into the system has been partially approved.

Intermediate Principal Robert Stickle who administers the program here said the State Department of Education had vetoed a request for $3,000 to buy a video tape outfit. The remainder of the money, used here mainly for teacher aids, was approved. A new proposal will be submitted for the remaining $3,000.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By H.M. Bulen

How tough is it to make a pro football team?...Did you know that more than 35,000 boys play college football in America each year and of that number fewer than 350 make it to the pros...so of all college football players only about one out of every 100 are able to go into pro football.

Here's an oddity...From 1980 to 1967 the scoring leaders in the American Football League have all had one thing in common--their first names all begin with "G" --Gene Mingo led the league in scoring in '60 and '62, Gino Cappelletti in '61, '63, '64, '65 and '66, and George Blanda in '67!

Here's one that may surprise you...In the history of the National Football League, do you know which player has been picked on the All-League team the most consecutive years?...It's not one of the glamorous super stars you might think of first...It was Mel Hein, a center, who was chosen All-League 8 straight seasons from 1933 through 1940...No one else has ever topped that.

Mull more expensive project School to buy $250 landscape plan

A master plan for landscaping the high school grounds will be provided Cass City School District by Lester Begick, landscape architect in Saginaw.

Estimated cost is between $200 and $250. Landscaping of the grounds first received board consideration over a year ago. At that time, it was decided if a plan could be received from the Soil Conservation Service without cost that it would be to the school's advantage to use it.

However, no progress was reported so the board voted Monday to buy a plan and get started.

The plan cost is relatively small. However, another tentative remodeling plan promises to be much more expensive, if followed.

It is the remodeling of the home economic room in the Intermediate School. What is needed, Supt. Donald Crouse told the board, is a complete revamping of the room, including new drains under the floor. There should be seven or eight new stations in the room. A station includes cupboards, range, shelf space and possibly convenient access to a refrigerator. The costs of the appliances are small since an agreement with Fuelgas Co. and Detroit Edison Co. keeps the units replaced free after they have been originally purchased.

The board appeared sympathetic to the needs of the department, but were not willing to commit themselves to any program until the financial picture clears after a millage vote is taken sometime next year.

They did approve a new stove for the department to replace an old unit destroyed by fire. The school's insurance will pay $50 of the cost of the new unit.

Okay school for TV science quiz show

Cass City Intermediate School pupils will compete in the Science Quiz program sponsored by WNEM-TV on Sunday mornings at 11:30 a.m., according to an announcement made this week by Jim MacTavish, sponsor.

MacTavish said that Cass City had been accepted after trying for three years to become part of the program.

Ultimately the school will be represented by a four-member team on the basis of competitive tests and compete with 19 other schools in the Saginaw Valley.

The rules call for a student from each of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades to compete on the team.

Of the 44 students who have signed to compete just four come from the ninth grade. These candidates are: Joanne Eskilsen, Diane Gingrich, Roger Horak and Tim Stickle.

Dec. 18 Dow Chemical tests will be given to the candidates. The tests will be corrected by representatives from the Midland School District and two teams picked.

Jan. 25 these teams will enter final competition in a quiz program that will be video taped and presented over TV in February.

The winning team will then be eligible to compete against winning teams from the other schools.

Seventh grade pupils competing are: Janet Auvil, Linda Battel, Randy Bacon, Robert Carter, Greg Decker, Jill Field, Bill Frankowski, Kelly Gee, Sheryl Guc, Alan Herr, Mark Johnson, Nancy Koepfgen and Randy LaPeer.

Carol Little, Nora Massingale, Valerie Mills, Rick Nolan, Louie Papp, Cheryl O'Harris, Michael Sieradski, Carolyn Smith, James Spencer, Bruce Tuckey, Cindy Tuckey, Bob Vatter and Mark Gohsman.

Eighth grade students are: Brian Althaver, Melody Bacon, Sheryl Batts, Diane Brown, Cindy Doerr, Fae Hampshire, Greg Hampshire and Ken Hampshire.

Randy Hoffman, Katherine Kloc, Greg Mark, Edward Nizzola, Dana Truemmer, Charles Tuckey, Henry Langenburg and Cara Prieskorn.

Rubella drive opens

Dr. Robert E. Rowe, director of the Thumb District Health Department, announced this week that a drive is underway in Tuscola county to stamp out rubella.

The campaign will last through December and January and vaccine is available to stamp out this type measles that is especially dangerous for expectant mothers.

Plans call for the vaccine to be given to children in the kindergarten, first, second and third grades.

Cooperating in the drive are physicians and the Society for Aid to Crippled Children.

When pregnant women are stricken with rubella it often causes crippling, blindness or other diseases in unborn children, authorities said.

Soil district announces office hours

The Caro Office of the Tuscola Soil Conservation District will now be open Monday through Friday from 8 to 12 noon and from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m., according to Paul Findlay, District chairman.

Mary Lou Earl of Caro is now employed by the district, with some assistance from the county and the State of Michigan. She will be available to answer questions and provide additional information and materials about soil and water conservation.

Anyone having a problem or question in this field can now obtain information by coming to the office at 852 S. Hooper Street, Caro, or calling 673-3839 during the office hours.

Services Thursday for G. Hillman

Funeral services will be held Thursday at two o'clock for George Hillman, at Little's Funeral Home.

Mr. Hillman, 70, died Tuesday at Hills and Dales Hospital.

Born Aug. 22, 1899, in Chicago, Ill., he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hillman. He and Marie Crandall were married in Bad Axe May 4, 1953, and they made their home in the Cass City area.

Besides his widow, survivors include one stepson, Dean Murphy of Cass City, and one stepdaughter, Mrs. Arnold Schultz of Big Sur, Calif.

Rev. Douglas Wilson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will officiate and burial will be in Elkland cemetery.

Open center for handicapped

The Tuscola Association for Retarded Children recently opened a work activities center for handicapped people. The program will operate from the old Commons school building just south of Caro. It is designed to serve young adults between the ages of 18 and 30, who have a significant handicap (mental or physical). This building was purchased by the group and remodeled for the purpose of operating as an activities center. Mr. Rupert Cliff of Flint, was hired as director of the facility. He has had over 18 years experience in the operation of sheltered work facilities, 7 1/2 years as director of Ahead Inc. in Flint and five years with Goodwill Industries.

Authorities say this type of facility has long been needed by the handicapped residents of the area. They estimate there are over 300 persons in Tuscola county alone who could benefit from this service. Although the project is largely supported by the Tuscola Association for Retarded Children, other sources of support are presently being sought. The United Cerebral Palsy Foundation has indicated active interest in the program and donations of equipment and supplies have been received from private donors. The Caro Lions Club and Exchange Club have both promised to help. Any service club or organization interested in this project may contact any member of the Tuscola ARC Activities Center, Riley Road, Caro.

Cliff will be available for speaking engagements.

WOW! Hawks open cage year with 2 wins

READY TO DRIVE for the basket in Cass City's narrow win over Marlette Friday is Richard "Zike" Miller.

Santa Letters
Dear Santa,
I am 3 years old. I have been a good girl. I would like a guitar, trumpet, accordion, tinkler tools, donkey, and a doll. My sister Patty has been a good girl please bring her something nice, she would like a horse, 3 pairs of bell bottoms. Please bring Uncle Lee and Daddy something nice for Christmas.
Yours truly,
Ruth Ellen Moore

The young basketball season is just two games old and already Cass City High School's quintet has won more games than it did over the entire season last year.

Coach Fred Hurlburt's charges toyed with the Bulldogs from St. Charles, winning about as they pleased while posting a 66-44 decision.

Along the wall of Cass City's gym is a large banner reading "We're proud of our big defense" and Cass City fans are rapidly learning that the players have taken the sign to heart.

For it was again the defense that spearheaded the Hawks to victory Tuesday. Easy baskets have been few and far between this year and the defense has sparked numerous turn-overs by the opposition.

The only time all night that Cass City was behind was in the opening seconds when St. Charles scored a couple of free throws. After that Cass City took command.

Paced by the ball handling of Marty Zawilinski and the rebounding and shooting of Joe Hillaker, the Hawks raced into a 13-7 lead.

Hillaker, flanked by Rob Alexander and Richard "Zike" Miller, enabled the Hawks to dominate the offensive and defensive boards against the husky Bulldogs.

At intermission time Cass City was in front 32-16 and the only question remaining was what the final score was going to be.

Midway through the third quarter Cass City was able to give its bench a chance to see game action as Hurlburt substituted a new team which held its own against the visitors.

Again in the fourth quarter the second five played for about three of the eight minutes.

Hillaker led all scorers with 22 points. Tony Davis was next with 12.

Results of the first two games indicate that any of the five starters will be able to produce points on any given night.

JUNIOR VARSITY

The Cass City Junior Varsity posted a win after its heart-breaking opening game loss to Marlette. Cass City staged a last quarter rally to open a comfortable lead over the Bulldog JV squad and then coasted to a 41-37 victory.

MARLETTE GAME

Before the season started Coach Fred Hurlburt said that he regarded defense as the most important phase of the game and Friday night at Marlette the Cass City Red Hawks made a prophet out of him.

For it was the defense that won the opening game of the season for the Red Hawks. A tenacious, ball-hawking man-to-man defense that refused to allow the Red Raiders the easy basket all night. The score was 40-38 in the Thumb B loop contest.

Coach Hurlburt was pleased with the defense and said Monday that he felt the offense would get better as the players relaxed a little on the court.

It was the first game and the players were tight, he said.

Cass City started as if they were going to run Marlette right off the floor. Sparked by buckets by Rob Alexander, Joe Hillaker and Richard "Zike" Miller, Cass City jumped into a 16-5 lead at the end of the first quarter. The Hawks continued to dominate in the second period and maintained the lead.

At the half the score was 25-12.

But in the second half, Marlette came on strong. Cass City was hampered by the loss of Hillaker for the majority of the last half because of fouls. Miller also was out much of the crucial last quarter when he twisted one of his tender knees.

By the end of the third quarter, the score was 32-24. In the final period, the Raiders inched up to within two points but were never able to tie or take the lead.

A pressing Marlette defense in the last half was responsible for several turnovers by Cass City.

As might be suspected from the final score, Cass City's shooting left plenty of room for improvement. The Hawks hit just 31 per cent from the floor and only about 43 per cent from the charity circle. Both marks are below average for most high school teams. Marlette hit a woeful 20 per cent.

Hillaker snagged 15 rebounds to show the way in this department, closely followed by Alexander with 14.

Cass City exhibited balanced scoring. Hillaker had 11, Alexander, 10, and Miller, 9. Seven of the eight players who saw action broke into the scoring column. Marlette was topped by Tom Swell with 16.

JV'S LOSE

It was a fine night for the spectators. In addition to the tight varsity game, fans were treated to a one-point decision in the JV contest. Marlette took the decision, 49-48.

Marlette led most of the game until the dying moments of the fourth quarter, when Cass City

JOE HILLAKER used his height to advantage Tuesday against St. Charles. He converted many close-in opportunities like this as he netted 22 points.

TONY DAVIS found the range from the side Tuesday. This is one of several buckets he swished from his favorite corner.

Seventh graders split pair with Lakers

Cass City seventh grade basketball kicked off their cage season with a split of a double-header with the Lakers Tuesday at Cass City.

The Young Hawks "A" team took a 36-35 decision and then lost a one-point decision to the Lakers in the "B" contest, 23-22.

Coach Jim MacTavish said that the Hawks rallied after trailing 21-16 to take the opening game victory. The Hawks went ahead and held on for the win despite the loss of Don Karr in the third quarter and high-point man Jim Root in the final.

Root netted 10 points, Joe Zawilinski, 9, Jerry Toner, 7, Dave Eberline and Don Karr, 4, and Rick Damm, 2. Mike LePage of the Lakers netted 24.

A last half rally by the B squad failed by a whisker. Cass City had a chance to tie by converting a free throw with seconds remaining. Copeland led the scorers with 11 points. Hill had five and Stoutenburg, 4. Bauer chipped in with two points.

The eighth grade meets the Lakers Thursday at Cass City. Tuesday, Dec. 16, the seventh and eighth grade squad plays Bad Axe at Cass City.

Fertilize now and be one up on spring.

Outsmart unpredictable spring and get your fertilizer on now. You'll save on valuable time and labor too. Not to mention not having to fertilize as much come planting time. Especially if it's wet and you can't get into the field as often.

Q-Plan fertilizers start turning crop residue into rich, fertile soil humus through the winter. This gives your newly planted spring crop a prime atmosphere for growth.

Our Super Q-Plan fertilizers are specially formulated and custom-made for your soil, crops and practices. Exclusive Interlocked products and recommendations grow you more, more profitably, because they're tested and timed for maximum growing efficiency.

Be up for spring. See us now—about fall fertilization.

THE FINAL SCORE was immaterial Thursday when the teachers played the service clubs a game of donkey basketball. When the teachers went head first over a balky donkey, the students howled. When the club reps did the same, the adults laughed. When it was over everyone reported a good time and the Varsity Club was declared the winner. Lee Taylor reported that $404 was collected, half of which went to the school.

Saturday, Dec. 13 - Mrs. Elizabeth Sturm will hold a household auction at the place located at 315 Spring St. in Port Austin.

"If It Fitz. . ."

Unfair to girl watchers

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Spiro Agnew is right, TV doesn't show the whole story. Shirley Jones' legs, for instance.

The other day I arrived home from work in time to see the Mike Douglas Show. Miss Jones, the singing actress, was guest hostess. And there she was, in glorious color, in a mini-skirt. Oh my.

Now I saw Shirley win the academy award in Elmer Gantry. And I saw her as Marian the Librarian in The Music Man. I enjoyed her. But due to stupid costuming, I never really noticed her legs until this marvelous afternoon when she sat down to talk with Mike Douglas.

Steady readers (Mother and Aunt Madeline) will not be surprised to learn I am a leg man. They've heard it all before, many times. Despite being brought up in an era where the breast held full sway (that may be a pun), I have never faltered in my public championing of the well-formed female leg.

To me, Jane Russell always looked like she should wear a bell around her neck. But Betty Grable was something else. When she married Harry James, I didn't know whether to kill myself or take trumpet lessons.

Mini-skirts are the greatest invention since sex itself. Sure, a lot of women wear them who shouldn't. But one Shirley Jones makes up for a dozen silly broads with jiggling thighs. As long as I can look at girls like Shirley, I'll not be too critical of grandmothers with bare knees (Besides, I've seen a mirror of myself in Bermuda shorts and I don't feel qualified to throw the first stony stare).

Anyway, my son heard me panting at Shirley. And he heard me mutter when Mike Douglas switched his attention to other guests and there was no more Shirley on the screen. "She'll be on again tomorrow," said Eddie, who knows how to please his lecherous old father.

So the next day I arranged my schedule (I'd work under my desk blotter) so as to be home by 5 p.m. And sure enough, there was Shirley again, on camera for most of an hour. But what a rotten, lousy trick she played. She was wearing long, baggy pants.

"Those are elephant pants," my daughter explained when she found me pounding the TV with my head.

Elephant pants! I never heard of such a thing. But the name is appropriate. An elephant could wear them and have room for a spare trunk.

Why do well-stacked dames wear such protective covering? Is it some kind of gigantic tease, or what? I made a special trip to see Shirley Jones' legs. In that outfit, she could walk on tree stumps and no one would know it.

What about those stupid maxi-coats? Everytime I see one, I think the girl is trying to smuggle a boy into her bedroom.

The girls claim they wear 'em to keep warm. Phooey. They wear 'em because that's where it's at this season. My daughter will probably wear a maxi-coat for wading into snowdrifts this winter. But she'll have toeless sandals on her freezing feet. She says she can't wear boots because there isn't room for them in her locker at school. But she'll find room in it for 100 yards of coat if that's what the girls are wearing this season.

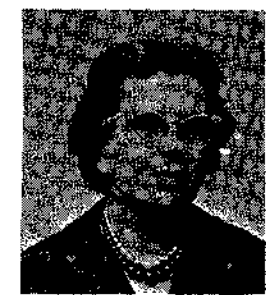

Women are silly slaves to greedy manufacturers who have no shame about how they hustle a buck. Women are nuts. And women like Shirley Jones are also unfair to girl watchers. Spiro should make a speech about it. I wonder if he knows that Shirley Jones stole her pants from the GOP elephant?

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Patera

Violet Loretta Sattelberg became the bride of Ronald Edmund Patera Saturday, Nov. 29, at St. Pancratius Catholic Church. Father Leo Gengler performed the afternoon ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sattelberg of Caseville and the son of Mrs. Chesterine Patera of Deford and the late Edmund Patera.

The bride chose an easy sheath silhouette gown of Edwardian styling in peau satin dipped with imported Venice lace featuring a high neckline, long sleeves, flared at the wrists, and a fitted waist. The floor length skirt was enhanced by a detachable chapel length court train. A petal headdress encircled with rosebuds atop tiny bows, encrusted with pearls and crystals, secured the bouffant veil of bridal mist illusion. Mrs. Delbert Krueger of Decker was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Janet Zuraw of Gagetown and Mrs. John McIntosh of Cass City. The matron of honor wore a royal blue crepe gown and the bridesmaids' gowns were royal blue velvet.

Attending the groom were Ronald Rutkoski, Lavern Rutkoski and James Merchant, all of Cass City. Ushers were David Burnette of Lapeer, brother of the bride, and Bruce Richmond of Bay Port, brother-in-law of the bride. Mrs. David Burnette attended the bride's register.

A wedding dinner was held following the ceremony at the Pigeon VFW Hall. Four hundred and fifty guests attended the evening reception at the VFW Hall.

The groom is a farmer and the bride is employed at Kleins Fertilizer Plant, Cass City.

AROUND THE FARM

Seed growers helping farmers

By Alfred P. Ballweg

Michigan Certified Seed Producers and the Michigan Seed Dealers Association met in annual conference this past week at Michigan State University to discuss mutual problems and hear reports of crop scientists in the field of new varieties, disease and insect control and the marketing of one of Michigan's finest products, "Good Seed."

I sat in on this meeting along with a good many of our Tuscola County growers, as I have for the past 18 years, who make up a large percentage of the total growers in Michigan. The production and marketing of certified seed is a very scientific business all in itself. To produce good seed required team work on the part of the grower, plant breeder, the pathologist, entomologist and those who help get this information to the grower. Without the plant breeder we would be out of business real fast. Varieties as such need to be constantly improved to meet environmental stress and market demands for the end product. It seems that a plant breeder can do just about anything with a variety of crop except make it talk. For example, to combat the threat of cereal leaf beetle plant breeders are putting hair or a fuzz on the leaves and stems of oats and wheat because the beetle does not seem to take to this condition too well.

Without the introduction of the "Sanilac bean" several years ago we could well be out of the navy bean business here in Michigan. Without research to come up with answers on proper fertilization, weed and disease control, etc., we could still be out of the navy bean growing business.

Once the crop of certified seed is produced, it then must be processed and distributed so it is available to growers throughout the areas where the crop is grown. This is where the producer needs the help of seed dealer or local elevator company. Most every farmer in Michigan does business with a local elevator manager who is in a good position to promote the sale of certified seed to farmer growers.

A most important part of the total program of producing quality seed is the part played by the Michigan Foundation Seed Association. It is the function of this segment of the industry to keep crops pure as to variety, select only the best and increase seed supplies of new varieties so that it then becomes available to certified seed growers. To increase new varieties with all possible speed samples may be shipped to far away places like even the Hawaiian Islands or South America for increase during our winter and then shipped back for planting here in the spring.

To get back to the plant breeder again, I would like to point out a development in malting barley. Rickel Malting Company of Detroit has for years been shipping into Michigan from Montana and Wyoming a two-rowed variety used in their malting process. Plant breeders have now developed a new two-row variety "Coho" that appears to have all the necessary qualities of the imported variety. If this proves to be the case Michigan or rather "Thumb" barley growers can supply this market and earn a premium the shipping costs into Michigan.

In summary let me say that when you get a dedicated group of farmers working hand in hand with other phases of an industry like growing Certified Seed, the end product will be better.

Mrs. Gary Priestly

St. Pancratius Catholic Church was the setting as Veronica Rutkoski became the bride of Gary Priestly Saturday, Nov. 8. Father Leo Gengler, assisted by Keith Priestly, brother of the groom, performed the Nuptial Mass at 3:30 p.m. The altar was decorated with red roses.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Enick Rutkoski, wore

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

You might recollect that the fellers had a discussion about worrying a few months back. Somebody come up with the idea that not but eight per cent of worrying was about some-pun that anything could be done about, and the fellers at the time was agreed worry ain't much more than a way to pass the time.

Well, Mister Editor, they was worrying about worrying agin Saturday night at the country store. Ed Doolittle reported he had saw where a head doctor was of the opinion that worrying about real problems was a sign of a healthy mind, and Ed allowed that if a feller ain't worried this day and time he jest ain't looked the situation up one side and down the other.

For instant, said Ed, he was worried about that $199 billions the Federal Government figgers to draw out of taxpayers during this fiscal year. Ed said he had saw back in June where the Government wasn't planning to spend but $195 billions, leaving $4 billions left over. Ed said he was worried about that extry $4 billions. He said that figger will turn from black to red afore the fiscal year is out, or they ain't a pork barrel politician in Washington. He said them fellers in Congress worries til they spend all they can git their hands on and then some.

Farthermore, Ed allowed, that $199 billions comes out to $900 for ever man, woman and child in this country, and he is worried cause we all have got to the place where we think our take home pay is our hole wagin. We had been paying them hid, painless taxes so long we don't think about 'em til we read in the paper where they went up agin. They take income tax, unemployment and Social Security out of our pay ever week afore we even see the dab that's left over, and we think we're ahead of the game if we don't have to send in more when we file our income tax forms.

Ed had saw this piece where they is 100 different taxes on a egg, 150 on a loaf of bread and 800 on a house, and he said he was worried cause we're paying all of 'em and we've got so numb we don't worry about 'em til we're reminded by the party that's out and wants in. When a feller is fired from his Government job cause he finds out the cost of one airplane is $2 billions more than it is supposed to be, and another feller that works for the airplane company is hired by the Government to refigger the costs, it's past time fer folks to worry about where they spend that $199 billions, was Ed's words.

Personal, they is a heap of difference in worrying about somepun and worrying with somepun, and I got to knock off this little piece and worry with the old lady's Christmas card list.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

AGENT'S CORNER

Parents—child swap ideas

One of the myths about the American family is that the parents alone socialize the child, and that the socializing is unidirectional.

Some of the current research is pointing up that the child also socializes the parent.

Those who have worked in 4-H, or as school teachers, or, more recently, as Head-Start teachers are well aware that the child does introduce his newly learned ideas into the home where they may or may not be fully received.

Dr. Betty Cogswell, University of North Carolina, emphasized the importance of the two-directional approach to socialization of family members at a recent conference at Merrill Palmer Institute in Detroit.

Dr. Cogswell suggests that it is highly desirable to have interaction and interdependence between parent and child. In this interaction, the parent may best serve as a catalyst or consultant to, rather than controller of, the child.

Some parents may find it difficult to accept the two-directional idea of socialization. They may feel that they are the teacher, the child is the learner. There is more research needed so that parents will see this aspect and accept this idea of reciprocal socialization.

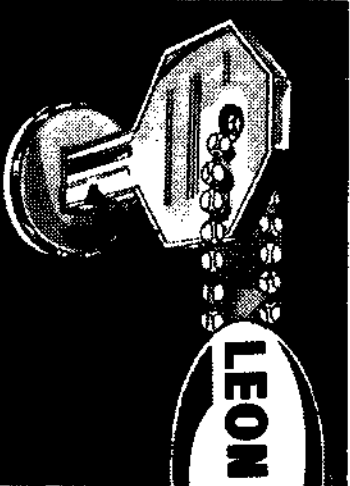

Other parents readily look to their children for new ideas from the world outside of the home. It gives the child a feeling of importance if an idea that he introduces at home is accepted by his parents.

Learning needs to be continuous throughout life and one can switch from teacher to learner again and again. Socialization of family members is two-directional.

Mrs. Edward J. Bilicki

Father Eugene Susalla officiated at the marriage ceremony for Rainell Lynn Chisholm and Edward J. Bilicki at St. Michael's Catholic Church, Wilmet, at 6:00 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 29. The altar was decorated with white gladioli and candelabra ornamented with ribbons and greens.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Chisholm Sr. of Cass City, the bride wore an ivory satin gown styled with an A-line skirt and modified Empire bodice enhanced with Venice lace and a Victorian lace neckline completed with bishop sleeves edged in Alencon lace. A matching mantilla edged with Alencon lace formed a chapel train.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Fred Hyde of Caro, sister of the bride. Jane Laurie of Gagetown, Jane Bilicki of Wilmet, the groom's sister, and Marilyn Frost of Saginaw were the bridesmaids. They chose gowns of ivory Venice lace and willow green crepe skirts styled with long sleeves and high ruffled necklines. At the midriffs they wore satin cummerbunds and bows. Matching bow headpieces completed their ensembles.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Bilicki of Wilmet, the groom was attended by Dave Lalko of Kingston, John Asher of Cass City, cousin of the groom, Bob Degee and Dale Allen, both of Kingston.

Following the ceremony a wedding buffet dinner was held at the Cass City Masonic Hall. A reception was held at the home of the bride for approximately 200 guests. Home decorations were in colors of avocado and gold.

For the wedding trip to Detroit and Canada the bride chose a brown velvet dress trimmed in gold. The couple will live in Cass City.

A bridal shower was held by the bridesmaids, Sharon O'Connor and Charlene Almas.

Cass City

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Tom Proctor, Cass City pharmacist, has installed a poison control center at the Hills and Dales Hospital emergency room. The cabinet contains a complete range of antidotes for poisons encountered in the home.

A recount in Almer Township on liquor by the glass ended in a tie vote, 413 yes and 413 no, Archie Hicks, county clerk, announced.

Homemakers study Polish Yule foods

Tuscola County extension homemakers were treated to a delightful evening of learning about Polish foods and customs. The evening included sampling of Polish foods such as beet soup, baked cucumbers, pickled herring, stuffed cabbage, and sauerkraut and kielbasa. Miss Brenda Varney of Caro modeled an authentic Polish costume. Fifteen ladies of Polish descent were present.

Dr. Mitchell Urban of the Caro State Hospital, who is from Poland, was the guest speaker. Dr. Urban told the ladies of Polish Christmas customs. The Christmas tree is decorated by the entire family. Each family member makes a decoration as his special contribution to the Christmas festivities. A lighted candle in the window symbolizes the hope that the Christ child, in the form of a stranger, will share the Christmas Eve meal with them. A thin layer of hay under the tablecloth reminds the family that the God child was born in a manger.

Two Christmas trees, decorated in Polish style, added to the atmosphere. Ladies serving on decorating committee were: Mrs. Grant Trisch, Mrs. Rod Varney, Mrs. Mario D'Addazio, Mrs. John Sokol, Mrs. Earl Butler, Mrs. Henry Airgood and Mrs. Alvin Dental, all of Caro.

HUGH BRENNEMAN

Bed rest and space weightlessness similar

Experts in space medicine spend most of their time looking at normal man in an abnormal environment.

The whole concept in space medicine is to try to protect the astronaut in whatever environment he finds himself, whether it be on earth, in space, on the lunar surface, or on another planet. The space doctors, therefore, get involved in a large number of activities that are aimed at providing the simple things that we take for granted here on earth, like water, food, waste disposal, etc.

They are very concerned with whether the spacecraft provides astronauts with an atmosphere that supplies adequate oxygen, gets rid of carbon dioxide, supplies adequate pressure to protect the individual astronaut from the development of dysbarism, the bends, or pain in the joints. When the astronaut is out of the spacecraft or is on the moon, he has a suit on and a back pack. The doctors must be sure that this back-pack provides him with oxygen to breathe and with the water for cooling so he can maintain a normal body temperature even though he is working on the surface of a planet which had wide extremes of temperature.

Another medical objective is the provision of proper food on the spacecraft. From the laboratories the doctors prepare particular types of food which will give the astronauts foods in their normal state, such as bread. Astronauts have sandwiches, ham salad, chicken salad, cheese. Other contingency-type foods are prepared in tubes. Bacon appears in sort of a dried state that is equivalent to several slices.

One problem that has occurred in flight is gas bubbles in the water supply. Spacecraft water comes from the mixing of hydrogen and nitrogen in the fuel cells which provide power, with water as a by-product. Hydrogen and oxygen bubbles occur in the water, and their ingestion by the crew causes gastric distress. A filter had to be put on the system so the bubbles could be filtered out. The astronauts have found that they can eat water in a spoon because of the surface tension. Now the men use spoons to eat most of their food, even the freeze-dried foods after they have been moisturized.

Plans have been made in case the astronauts become ill in flight. The doctors train them to recognize illnesses. The medical kit they carry aboard has many items so the doctors can prescribe from the ground. The only thing the doctors let the astronauts take without prescription is aspirin. Of course, there is a thermometer so that the doctors can get temperatures on call. There are nose drops in spray forms, eye drops, some ointments, medications for pain, decongestants and anti-diarrheal medications, drugs for sleep and some stimulants. There is even an ejector so that an astronaut can touch one portion of it to his leg, and it injects the material before he can change his mind about it.

The doctors changed the atmosphere in Apollo due to the fire which cost the lives of earlier astronauts. They changed the dock atmosphere to 60% oxygen and 40% nitrogen, then bled this off and tried to replace it with 100% oxygen, but never got better than about 95%. Within the Apollo program there has been no loss of red cell mass due to the nitrogen, so it appears that nitrogen protects the red cell. This nitrogen addition indicates to "earth" doctors that it may not be best to use pure oxygen on their patients.

Doctors have also seen some loss of bone density. This is similar to what happens on earth in some bed-rest patients. Weightlessness and bed-rest are not exactly the same, but this study of weightlessness has taught doctors a great deal about bed-rest. Bed-rest is a time-honored therapy in medicine, but doctors don't know as much about its beneficial effects as they would like.

In the earth hospital, there are intensive care units where the doctor watches the patient's progress on small oscilloscopes. This identical thing happens in the space medicine program. They calibrate these in advance on the surface and then compare the heart rate and energy outputs when the astronauts work and walk on the moon.

Space doctors feel strongly that man is going to be able to adapt himself to the type of environment as that on the moon, but they need data to show the time-course of the changes that occur in a weightless environment. For this, they need an orbiting laboratory in order to prepare for the mission to Mars which will be one or two years' duration. There is also a twenty-eight and a fifty-six day mission planned very soon, and the medical experiment hardware and the actual flight hardware is being built now.

When Should We Decide About Religion?

Some things are absolutely essential to manhood. One of them is knowing how to tie a necktie.

Obviously any ability must be acquired before there are regular demands for its use. That's why someone else decided that we must learn to tie our own tie.

All religious education is built on the same principle. Faith and moral understanding must be gained before doubt and temptation are encountered. Our parents, Our Church train us for constructive living.

Of course, there is nothing illogical in the oft-heard contention that, when a person is old enough, he can make up his own mind about religion.

That's exactly what millions of us have done!

But in almost every case our parents gave us adequate and continuing preparation for that decision. With the guidance of the Church we learned the value of faith and spiritual perception. Then we were able to make our vital decision from knowledge and experience!

Dry cleaners and textile manufacturers have used enzymes for special cleaning purposes and now these enzymes are available in home laundry products. There are two types of home laundry products that contain enzymes.

1. Pre-soak products—these are used prior to the regular wash cycle. The soaking time depends on the amount of soil in the garment and the water temperature. The stain and hardness and amount of water determines the amount of pre-soak product needed. To get the best results, follow the directions printed on the package. Pre-soaks are in addition to and do not replace laundry detergents.

2. Enzyme detergents—many all purpose detergents now on the market contain enzymes. These detergents are used in the washing cycle the same way non-enzyme all purpose detergents are used. For best results follow the directions on the package.

The enzymes in the laundry products will deactivate when chlorine bleach is used at the same time. It prevents each from performing its specialized task. If you use an enzyme presoak, chlorine bleach may be added to the regular wash cycle. The chlorine bleach should be added during the last half of the wash cycle if an enzyme detergent is being used.

Woodworking top project for 4-H youth

BY BERNARD JARDOT

Skill with a saw, hammer and brush is handy and also an asset to our boys and girls. As a result, woodworking is an example of a 4-H project area that attracts all youth, whether they are from the city, town, suburb or the farm.

In general woodworking experience usually determines which phase of the project the 4-H member will enroll in. It is apparent that the different phases of 4-H woodworking projects require different amounts and kinds of experience and ability.

It is also my impression that the 4-H woodworking project offers an opportunity for originality and creativity by the youth enrolled in this project area. Each boy and girl can discuss with a 4-H leader which items or activities they would like to work with.

One of our major goals in the beginning woodworking project area is to learn the proper use of hand tools. Some of the suggested projects may include flower boxes, breadboards, knife holder, doorstops, mail boxes, book ends, broom and mop holder, birdhouses, bird feeders and other similar items.

On the more advanced level the members may learn to use power equipment such as sanders, jigsaws and other wood-working equipment. Also the advanced members may select projects such as bookcases, workbenches, screens, lamp bases, lawn chairs, picnic tables and household furniture plus special projects may be made or items may be repaired or maintenance performed on them.

If you wish more information on the 4-H woodworking project, I would suggest you contact me at the Extension 4-H office in the Civil Defense Center, Caro. Also I may comment that we need more adult leaders to help out with our handi-craft clubs or to start new clubs in many areas in the county where no club now is organized.

One word leads to another and ends up in a speech or argument.

The true secret of happiness consists in letting the other fellow do the worrying.

From the Buck Bag column in the Houghton Gazette:

This drowsy little hamlet which only a few weeks ago was rocked by news of a panther sighting nearby is once again agog with excitement over a new but unrelated development.

On Wednesday last an itinerant woodcutter named Silvio emerged from the wilds in a highly agitated and almost incoherent state. Becalmed somewhat by a quantity of rotgut at a nearby bistro, he babbled his incredible tale. More to salvage the old codger's endangered mentality by humoring him than to attach any credence to his fantastic ramblings, a body of dignitaries (barflies) accompanied Silvio to the site of the avowed phenomenon.

Lo, there in the depleted soil of this wasteland was the irrefutable evidence that quickly made believers of us all. Pressed upon the barren ground was the stark, perfect imprint of a cloven hoof. Conjecture ran rife, the theorizing running from Pan, the ancient Greek god of woodlands, to ol' Beelzebub himself. Someone with foresight roped off the area and authorities arrived and succeeded in lifting a perfect plaster cast of the mysterious track.

From the distant laboratories of the Smithsonian and the plush offices of Baraga and Lansing the experts came: scientists, naturalists, ecologists, biologists, and other buffoons; and after exhaustive study and research, the verdict was inescapable. "Ordorilleus virginianusX", the white-tail deer was back! No Pan of the Woodlands or Abominable Snowman of the Himalayas, this, but a much rarer and more exotic species, the all but extinct white-tail!

Galvanized into immediate action, the Department of Natural Resources at once issued 10,000 additional antlerless permits for the area, and the license fee was raised five dollars to provide adequate law enforcement for the coming season.

With admirable foresight, the governor established an encampment of National Guard troops at McKEEVER on standby alert in case they are needed to hold the expected red-coated army in check.

And an apprehensive community digs in and prepares itself to ride out the onslaught. You'd better believe it!

Forest Service booklet is a valuable guide which includes tips on how to select a tree, how to care for it in the home, and how to dispose of it after the holiday season. It also contains a section of sketches and descriptions of the 15 evergreens which make up 90 percent of all the Christmas tree sales in the United States.

Entitled, "Buying Your Christmas Tree," the 24-page publication may be obtained free of charge by writing to the Department of Forestry and Forest Products, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Michigan 48823.

Milliken's school tax plan stirs national interest

The dramatic educational reform proposals unveiled earlier this year by Gov. William G. Milliken caused quite a stir in Michigan. Reaction to them will continue through the 1970 elections.

With all the clamoring within the state about the proposals most persons have missed the fact that quite a few other states are watching to see what happens here.

This interest in other states, which also are having their own educational troubles, is exemplified in the various editorial comments which appear in papers outside Michigan.

Comments have been both favorable and unfavorable. Some have been merely expressions of interest and curiosity in the plan. But they all show Michigan is being watched closely to see how she handles the educational problems which are hitting many other states besides herself.

For example, the Boston Evening Globe said the Governor's proposals involve "what most states probably will be forced to consider in the next decade: the takeover of public school financing from local communities."

It also indicated support for the parochial proposals, which it said recognize that "an intolerable burden would be thrust on the communities if parochial schools were compelled to close."

The Christian Science Monitor was less enthusiastic. It said "Michigan's school money problems are a little too complicated for its Governor's new school tax reform plan to handle."

"What's more," it said, "a provision for aid to private and parochial schools all but drags its worthier proposals under."

The New York Times printed a favorable review of the plan written by Fred H. Hechinger. Hechinger concluded passage of the statewide funding proposals would mean "school boards would be able to spend their energies on improving the schools instead of worrying about how to pay for them."

He said Milliken's proposal for statewide funding of public school systems was much the same as one drawn up for the first time three years ago by Dr. James B. Conant, one of the country's leading school reformers.

"Although the Conant-Milliken approach is dramatic," Hechinger wrote, "it is not as complete a break with realities as it seems. The states are already deep in local school financing," he said, noting already 25 of the 50 states pay more than half the total cost of education from state funds.

The Minneapolis Star said somewhat sceptically, "Whether such a major overhaul of the system, with its implications for school control, can win approval is extremely doubtful. But the prospect must not be casually discarded."

And the Christian Science Monitor said that no matter what happens to Milliken's proposals "a lot of other states will be watching."

The Bergen Record of Hackensack, N. J., was favorable in its evaluation of the program and said it agrees the nation is watching Michigan.

"Michigan has been caught in a trap, as New Jersey has, and Gov. William G. Milliken proposes doing something radical about it," the paper said. "We hope he prospers."

"The Michigan Initiative provides inspiration at the very least: later it may even provide an example," it concluded. "We'd better be paying attention."

Gov. William G. Milliken hasn't always found himself in agreement with President Nixon or Vice President Agnew, and one instance of this occurring brought some rather candid remarks from the Governor at a recent news conference.

Milliken was asked whether he agreed with Agnew's criticisms of various news media.

"As long as I've been here in this Capitol, I've recognized the fact that what you report, how you report it, what you say—more importantly perhaps, what you do not say—can have a vital bearing on legislative outlook, and on the political fortunes of an individual," the Governor said.

"Frankly," he said, "on occasion I have wished that I could do something to manipulate the news to make it more favorable from my point of view. I know I cannot do that. I know that I should not do that. I know that if we had that kind of a system, it would be unfortunate in the extreme."

"I would much rather," he concluded, "I think, have censorship by the press of the government than I would censorship by the government of the press."
