FROM THE Editor's Corner

It is almost an unwritten kaw at all levels of government when a surplus occurs, a way is found to spend the money ather than to cut back a little on taxes.

The first time the State Tax Commission came through Tuscola county and re-evaluated property the mill-rate for county taxes was reduced, alshough the total tax burden increased. But it wasn't long before the county was spending enough money so that the tax rate was bumping the tax limitation ceiling again and running in the red. Currently, history is repeating itself and it's not too rash a prediction to say that the county will soon be again levying all the tax it can without a special vote,

The property valuation increase has also boosted village revenues so sharply that a $30,000 surplus is forecast for the village in 1969.

That's more than four mills based on the $7 1/3 million valuation in Cass City today, approaching a third of the total amount collected through property taxes.

Property tax revenues in Cass City today are well over twice what they were nine years

Residents do receive more services for their moneytoday.

For instance eight years ago Cass City was served by one full time policeman and another part time officer.

Today there are three full time men on the force.

Another man has been added at the disposal plant.

And, of course, inflation has taken its toll and village dollars don't buy what they did eight or nine, years ago...or last year, for that matter.

But we're paying more for water and sewer to help defray part of these expenses. Costs for other village services have also been raised.

The last adjustment in the water-sewer rates put this department on a self-sustaining basis.

While it's not reasonable to assume that the village will operate in 1970 as cheaply as it did in 1969, it is reasonable to assume that with a cautious spending policy there could be an opportunity to not only hold taxes at the present level, but reduce them a mill or so.

ONE OF THE PROBLEMS with snowmobiles is driving in restricted areas and on private property. The tracks that stretch over the newly seeded area at Cass City Recreational Park is mute testimony that someone is breaking the law and making life difficult for snowmobilers everywhere.

Snowmobile ride fatal for 12-year-old Gary Parker

Funeral services were held township, Oct. 11, 1957. He riday for Gary Lee Parker attended the Novesta Baptist Friday for Gary Lee Parker, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Parker, of Decker who was killed in a snowmobile accident Tuesday night, Dec. 30, on Lamton Road.

The youth was riding on a toboggan behind a sled attached to a snowmobile. The snowmobile was driven by another son, Randy.

A neighbor boy was riding the sled to which the toboggan carrying the accident victim was attached by a rope. Mrs. Parker told the Chronicle that the rope either snapped or came loose, freeing the toboggan. She said that it was not clear whether the toboggan had stopped or not when it was hit by a car driven by Daryl Kietyka, 19, of Garden City. He reported that he did not see Gary in time to stop.

Gary suffered a broken neck and Mrs. Parker said that she doubted if he was standing upright when the accident occurred as had been previously theorized. The youth was pronounced dead at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Village ends year with $30,000 surplus

It was the holiday season and in keeping with the season Tuesday, Dec. 30, the Cass City Village Council helda "holiday" session.

It was the shortest agenda of the year. All of the village's business for the month was conducted in an hour.

For the first time in several months, trustees reviewed the financial statement, President Lambert Althaver announced that there was a surplus of $30,000 for the year.

While the village stuck close to its budget, revenues were d over the preurpiy inci vious year. Property taxes

Surviving, besides his parents, are: three brothers, Randy, Andrew and Larry; two sisters, Ellen and Karen, all at home, and his maternal grandfather, Jay Hartley of Caro.

Funeral services were held at Novesta Baptist church, the Rev. George Harmon, pastor, officiating. Arrangements were by Little's Funeral Home.

Burial was in Ellington cemetery.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Several area persons were injured during the week as the Thumb's accident triple threaticy roads, deer and snowmobiles-were responsible for several accidents.

Retherford was holding a rope and sliding behind an automobile. When he let go he skidded into a mailbox and broke his ribs.

It was an unlucky week for Retherford. The Cass City Senior was driving on Cemetery Road, near Delong Road Saturday when a deer darted in front of his car.

The youth was uninjured but the car was damaged.

Two other cars were damaged in deer accidents, as the drivers escaped injury. Steven Duriga, 23, hit a deer on Bevens Road, near Phillips Road, Thursday and Dale Leonard Wicox, 25, hit one on Cemetery Road, near East Sanilac Road, Sunday. Ronald John Curtis, 42, of Cass City reported to Tuscola County Sheriff Deputies that he was forced off the road by an unidentified car while driving on Dickerson Road near Jacob Road in Elmwood township.

He said that the car was approaching him on the wrong side of the road and he swerved to miss it, going into the ditch. The top and side of his car were damaged.

Thomas Bardwell, 18, was taken to Hills and Dales General Hospital for treatment Thursday after he lost control of his car on an icy spot in the road. The accident occurred near the Unionville and Dickerson Road corner. An unusual injury was the indirect result of an accident Thursday involving Linda Sue McLeish, 19, of Fairgrove. Miss McLeish lost control of her car at the corner of Colwood and Hobart roads in Elmwood township.

She was uninjured when her vehicle left the road and landed in the ditch. However, Francis Duane

Most economists are taking a wait and see attitude about 1970. There has been a slowdown and no one is really sure just what direction the economy will take.

Realistically, barring future rapid growth, it's unlikely that any tax cut could be more than temporary.

But even a token cut for a brief period would be welcome.

If only to prove that taxes don't always HAVE to go up.

WINTER'S GRANDEUR is graphically depicted on the River Road and along the Cass River these winter days. But the camera cannot capture the bitingly cold sub-zero weather the area has experienced in the last few davs.

Phosphate stimulates Cass River plant growth; pollutes stream day when there has been no rain for a week or more you can smell the Cass River. It's an obnoxious, unpleasant odor. It's a shame, you feel, that something isn't being done about this rape of one of our great natural resources.

And in a way you are right. It is pollution. But the odds are it's not the kind you were thinking about.

The villain, notes Nelson Willy, superintendent of Cass City Waste Disposal Plant, is phosphate.

Phosphate is a comparatively recently discovered culorit in the State Health Department's continuing battle to clean up our environment.

Phosphate is not a major pollutant itself. It causes pollution by causing the algae in the river to grow at an accelerated rate.

When the green water plant dies and rots: that's the pol-, ing and still no new baby born test here. lution in the Cass that you smell | at Hills and Dales General Hostoday, says Willy. pital.

If it weren't for the phosphate, A. There are a host of prizes Willy claims, the Cass River waiting for the new baby...when from Cass City to Frankenmuth he makes his delayed arrival, would be virtually pollution. The seven-day waiting period free. You can tell that it's a already approaches the longest at any time, they added.

Sometimes on a hot summer lot better than it was a decade ago, he confides, when you go Bass fishing.

The Bass are back in the river. Ten years ago they were practically all gone.

But identifying today's problem in the Cass River is much easier than correcting it, The State is in the midst of a massive crackdown on all disposal plants without proper phosphate control. Included are a new harsh law and an educational program. Willy says that he feels Cass

City will have until 1972 or so to shape up.

The veteran waste disposal engineer will probably be ready to tackle the problem long before the village is able to financially accept the burden.

He will be attending a course in phosphate analysis and removal at Gull Lake Jan. 19-23 with a grant of $99 from the Water Pollution Control Federation.

When removal becomes standard operating procedure in Cass City, Willy sees a giant costly expansion program as necessary.

phate into a mass and a place for it to settle out of the water is needed.

But today, Willy noted, we are operating at about 75 per cent of capacity. By 1975 I predict that we'll have to expand.

Willy guesstimates the expansion and the phosphate control equipment at about $300,000 to $400,000 on a share-thecost basis with the State.

Of immediate concern are automatic samplers. We need three at a cost of $2,000 each for 24-hour sampling, Willy said.

In Willy's budget this year (not yet approved by the council) is an allotment for air conditioning and window awning. They are needed for accurate sampling, Willy says. The variation of moisture and temperature in a room can throw test results way off.

While much needs to be done, much has aiready been achieved since the plant first went into operation 14 years ago.

The disposal boasts a new larger pump with automatic controls. It gives the plant protection. If one of the units fails, the new larger unit cuts in automatically and keeps the plant operating the way it was designed. And except for phosphate control the way it was designed has proved to meet the most exacting standards of pollution control.

Patches feted on golden anniversary cision-Making.

Around 225 guests were on hand Saturday, Jan. 3, when Mr. and Mrs. William Patch celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the Novesta Baptist church.

The Patches received many gifts, and a three-tier wedding cake and two heart-shaped cakes were made by Mrs. Andy Kozan for the occasion,

A brief program included a poem composed by Rev. and Mrs. Huboldt, pastor of the Baptist church at Harrison.

In economic terms, the area has been stagnating for much of this century. Menominee, for example, had 12,532 residents in 1900, but has only 11,289 today. The area originally was populated by miners and loggers. But as minerals became avail-Sons: able at a lower cost from other locations the higher cost U.P. products became noncompetitive. At the same time, the resources were detimber pleted. Now the Michigan Commerce Department, at the direction of Gov. William G. Milliken, has come up with a set of recommendations which it hopes will breathe new life into the long suffering area. The recommendations are the result of a study of the area made by Commerce Department Director Richard Whitmer, who made a trip through the area in September, visiting a total need it. of 10 communities. Whitmer's study group was not greeted with the greatest enthusiasm by some leaders in the area. One U.P. resident told him "I have been amazed at the number of studies of our economy that have been made during the last 10 years. It would be better to get the money to implement the earlier studies than to make more studies." ROTARY The 10 recommendations, which Milliken has under consideration, include such items as the completion of highway TRAVEL improvements, especially in the U.S. 2 corridor from St. Ignace to Escanaba, to improve communications. Whitmer also suggested establishment of a vocational education program for the U.P. to serve the needs of the area. He said his own department should establish an office in the U.P. and that the Governor should appoint a special assistant for the U.P. who would work and live there. Other recommendations involved studies of state investments in banks in the area and a study of the tax situation there.

The Rev. Doug Wilson, pastor of the Cass City Presbyterian Church, heads the new sex education course slated at the Cultural Center and sponsored by the Cass City Council of Churches.

The course is for high school students and of the six sessions just one is centered around reproduction, Wilson said. The others are related problems of family living. At the reproduction session a doctor and nurse will be present.

What we have here is a start, the pastor says. Actually, sex education should be an all inclusive program centered around the church, the school and the family.

What the pastor feels it should be is not at all what it is apt to be in the near future in Cass City.

Biting temperatures ranging up from zero have galvanized the village into action. We'll have skating at the park by Thursday if this weather holds, Bill Schram said Tuesday. Skating has been a losing proposition most years in Cass City. By the time the rink is built, the weather changes. And keeping water from draining away in Cass City gravel soil has defied the best efforts of rink proponents. Skating rinks on the tennis courts and using a plastic undercoating between the ice and the ground have been tried with poor results.

At the first sign of a thaw, the rink becomes unuseable and only concentrated effort makes it skatable again.

We're always on thin ice when we build a rink here, ****

Tuesday's victory was also regarded as an upset, but only a mild one.

The Hawks came out gunning in the first period to take an early lead and were in front from the opening whistle.

With Tony Davis and Richard "Zike" Miller showing the way Cass City burned the meshes in the first four minutes of the first quarter as they charged to an almost unbelievable 14-2 lead.

Then the Lakers started to hit and chip away at the Hawk lead. By the end of the first quarter the score was 17-12.

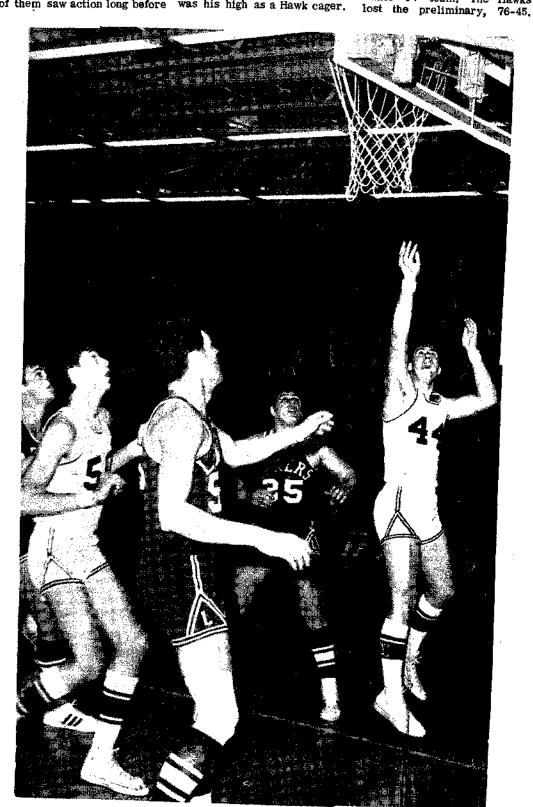

The second quarter was especially bright for Cass City fans. With the Lakers staging a rally Joe Hillaker committed his third foul late in the first period and Cass City played without their top rebounder for the entire second quarter.

Coach Fred Hurlburt was forced to turn to his bench and it responded beautifully. Rob Alexander led an assault on the boards and Davis killed the Laker zone with deadly outside shooting. The Hawks widened their lead to 39-26 at the intermission.

In the third quarter, the Lakers came the closest to going into the lead that they were to come the entire night. At one point the difference was just five points. But Cass City was able to meet the challenge and by the end of the third quarter had boosted the lead to 10 points, 56-46. The Hawks kept the margin

Letter to Editor

A mother's view of a son at war

Dear Mr. Haire:

With the holiday season all of us were most mindful of our boys in service, those who had leave and those who didn't. With a son in service, home on leave, the season was all the more meaningful.

One evening about a week ago I was drawn to put my thoughts on paper. It helped me by writing it and it gave my son and I an even better understanding of one another. I therefore submit it here that others may share:

As I lay thinking what I would put in the paper for news about my eldest son being home for Christmas, I quickly and quietly thanked God we had him here for Christmas and prayed he would be here for next Christmas, or, please God, that he just be next Christmas. I felt the anguish every mother must feel whose son must serve in this undeclared war and my mindharkened back to a Christmas centuries ago; to the Blessed Mother who sat by her Son's manger and pondered his future. This Christmas my babe was not wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger, but clad in Army shorts lying on our six foot davenport with his feet dangling off one end. And I, not the Blessed Mother, but truly a blessed mother sat by trying to help relieve an earache, the pain of which shattered his nights sleep. Our Saviour died for our sins and yet mothers of every generation since have had to sacrifice sons for truly man's greatest sin: war,

A modern day Judas lies dead in Detroit - not a betrayer but betrayed by his own emotions and heart that could not stand man's inhumanity to man and come back to a normal way of life, so instead he threw himself to his death. a lingering painful one. (God grant him peace now). "Come to the stable to see the Child." "Come visit while our son is home on leave."

"And He grew in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man." "My son is 19 and Uncle

Sam finds him most acceptable." (Please God don't let him kill or be killed.) "Why did you worry? Did you not know I was about my Father's business?" "Don't worry, Mom. Maybe Uncle Sam will send me to Germany instead of Vietnam." My anguish isn't new to mothers but it is to me personally. For WW II I was too young to even have a beau in uniform. When it was over, my brother was in the service a vear.

When the Korean War came, I was married and our son was Christened the day the 38th parallel was violated. Men who were married with families weren't called. Stuart had been in a year also in that brief interim of unwar.

So I never felt the tug of separation when sweethearts must part, or the loneliness when husbands must leave. But now I must know the worry of a mother seeing a son leave the family fold and I must join that group called Legion who must pray unceasing (and take a back seat to the girl friend, which is as it should be. Now he'll have another one praying for his return.)

How earnestly (and selfishly) I pray I will not be another mother to have her son sacrificed for what

Carla likes her new school

BY LYNN HAIRE

Upon completing my first term at MSU, I returned to Cass City with certain impressions of college life. To learn if these impressions were common among first term college students, I decided to interview some former classmates from C.C.H.S. (What a way to see everybody and find out how they are doing while working for my dad!) Letters were sent out from the Chronicle asking those who were to be interviewed to consider the following questions: 1. What do you like most and/or least about college and how is it different from high school? 2. What new experiences have you encountered? S. What advice, if any, would you offer to present high school students?

There was a surprising similarity in the answers. Every student, in some way, was affocted by the new studentteacher relationship at college, in which responsible learning is stressed. Some felt new classroom situations were too impersonal; however, a majority favored the new system over the techniques of teaching used in high school. It seems most students interviewed prefer being responsible for what they accomplish in a class,

Many indicated that college class systems, in which students don't have to attend the same classes five days a week, are a great improvement over high school, and the chance to choose classes and professors and to organize one's own class schedule, many felt, adds a great deal of incentive to students.

The most common new experiences came from living away from home. Students had to learn how to be independent, to make responsible decisions. and to live with other people.

Share these first term experiences, frustrations, and impressions with these graduates of C.C.H.S. '69

Jim can't say he likes freedom the most about college, because he feels there isn't much freedon at Delta--it's like a big high school, Jim does like the way the college is built, with all the classes in one large building, and the independence of instructors from each other and the school system, "College professors count attitude of their students and aren't pressured into grading according to a strict scale," Jim remarked. Although there isn't much he care; whereas, in high school they're doesn't like about college, Jim teachers demand assignments LEARN.

MSU Brenda feels college has afforded her individual freedom, the opportunity of meeting people and learning to get along with them, and more individual privacy than a small town. Free time is something Brenda found a lot of during her first term. She said she liked her free time both most and least about college. Most because MSU has so many extra-curricular activities to offer its students, but least because it sometimes gets boring sitting in her room at the dorm. GEORGE MIKA CMU

George favors college life because it gives him a chance to be on his own and to decide what he wants to do with his time; however, he strongly dislikes dorm life. "With five guys in a room it's hard enough to sleep, let alone study," George says, but he is willing to admit that living in a dorm helps at first because upper classmen are there to talk to and to help you. Although George dislikes dorm life, he feels it has given him experience in living with people and coping with difficult situations.

George thinks the class system at CMU is the major change from high school. He likes the college system because it allows the student the choice of class time and what to take, "When you choose your own classes, you'll naturally like them. What I like is not having the same class five days a week," George told the Chronicle. George also likes CMU's professors, "They don't care if you learn the material or not, but if you ask for assistance they will bend over backwards to help you."

Lately, probably because I've been hanging around the wrong beauty salons, I've been getting a lot of flack about women's rights. "You always complain about racial discrimination," these females tell me, "but what about sex discrimination? Name any activity and you'll have to admit that women must do it twice as good as men to get half as much pay."

There are some wise-guy answers to such a statement, of course.

Most of them stem from the solid fact that it takes only 9 months for a woman to do something a man can't do in 90 years, Artificial insemination allows Hazel to reproduce without the direct help of Harry, And in a few years, she won't even need Harry's indirect help. Blue-eyed-boy capsules, manufactured from reclaimed Burpee seeds, will be sold at the supermarket. Hazel can pop a baby pill in her mouth and, as far as the diaper industry is concerned, it won't make a bit of difference if Harry never comes home from poker club.

That's what Hazel can do without Harry. But no one has even suggested that someday are: don't worry about money because if you are an average student, you can always obtain aid, and, if possible, avoid working while you are a Freshman because you miss too much.

Steve likes college because it is a complete change from Cass City and he is on his own.

Harry might wear a maternity smock. So this gives Hazel an exclusive perch on the family nest. Without her, there's no family. And while she's home having kids, she might as well melt the food, push the washer button and tell the meter reader to wipe his feet. Let Harry go downtown and earn enough to cover her checks.

That's what the keep-emin-the-kitchen guys say. Not me. To each his own, and that includes women. If Hazel wants to run for President, or quarterback the Jets, she should be allowed, with no sex-strings attached. She should get the same pay as Joe Namath, if she can throw as straight. And she should use the same locker room

I'll admit I wouldn't want to marry this type of Hazel, but that's a personal preference based on my own quirks. Anyway, the feeling would surely be mutual. President Hazel wouldn't want me watching TV and drinking beer in the Lincoln Room when the guided tours came through.

But I'd vote for Hazel if I thought she was the best candidate. For instance, Spiro anyway.

There is currently a terrible stink about the alleged massacre of civilians in Vietnam. One of the most awful things, according to all reports, is the WOMEN were killed. Is it worse to kill women than men? Why? What kind of equality is that?

I'll admit I can't give tough answers to those questions. Probably for the same dumb reason I wouldn't want to kiss the President of the United States behind the ears.

"The faculty is super," Marsha says, "the administration really cooperates with the students."

"A small town just can't prepare you for city life. (Oakland is near Detroit). I have had to change my habits, such as going for walks at night and being friendly to strangers--- it's much more difficult to judge character in a city," she says. College is different from high school, if you like small schools. "Delta is just right for me,"Barb said. "It's something like a big high school." Delta has its weak points, Barb feels, mostly in the food department. Dorm life didn't suit Barb either, so she acquired an apartment.

Barb feels Delta is a good way to start out after high school. It makes adjustment to college life a lot easier.

WILLIAM SPENCER ALMA COLLEGE

Bill has an unfavorable impression of Alma. He feels the school is more like high school than college -- both in size and the attitude of the students. Bill commented that Alma, with 1250 students, is much smaller than many high schools, and the problem of organization is the same as in high school. Although Bill feels the school is academically good, he feels it isn't an intellectual growth experience and plans on transferring to U. of M. next fall.

Bill's new experiences have included the "art" of hitch-

KEN EISINGER FERRIS STATE COLLEGE

Ken likes being independent and free to make his own dicisions. He feels this aspect, decision making, is the major difference between high school and college life. "At college you have to decide whether to be socially active or scholarly," Ken says. Ken likes Ferris; however, he thinks college life too impersonal--studentteacher relations are verypoor and Ken has found that very few instructors will go out of their way to help a student.

Ken's new experiences have included a fraternity rush. He plans on pledging to a fraternity next term.

His advice to high school students is, "Get your grade point now, because you won't in college."

JOHN NOVAK MSU

John says that his new freedom is what he likes most and least about college life; he likes it most because he can do what he wants to, but he doesn't care for the responsibility that all freedom implies -the responsibility of making decisions. "It's hard to decide to study when you know you could be out having fun," John said.

John feels the unique experience in his college career has been learning to live with blacks--how to cooperate, understand, and get along with them.

John advises all present high school students, "If you can afford it, go to college -- at least for one term--to experience meeting, getting along and living with all sorts of people. In Cass City most of the people are basically the same, and most of our parents have similar backgrounds; whereas, at school you have people from all walks of life. It's like going from a small community to a large city. I have learned far more outside of class through experiencing the life at MSU than I have in class."

John added that a major difference between college and high school is one of competition. At high school you may be at the top of your class, but when at college you will be mediocre.

4-H leathercraft: creativity with basic tools

BY BERNARD JARDOT

How to make durable, useful and attractive leather products in the age-old way is taught to boys and girls who participate in the 4-H leathercraft project.

persons to express their creativity through the use of a few basic tools on leather, Patterns and instructions are provided for making comb cases, bag tags, coin purses, key cases, watch bands and other small items. Instruction is also provided in basic leather carving. When 4-H members have gained experience, they can make more challenging articles such as handbags, bookends, briefcases, archery quivers, gun

The project enables young cases, saddles and bridles. Also, some participants make moccasins, vests, shirts and gloves. They use leather dyes, figure carving and hand or machine stitching in advanced projects. Boys and girls interested in this, or any of the other 4-H projects, should contact the county extension office at Caro.

Pay no attention to what critics say-all they ever accomplish is criticism of others.

Is there life on other planets in other galaxies out there? This is a question we ask with increasing frequency these days. When God made our world, was it the only one He fashioned?

We may never know. The answer may lie far in the future. But it is an enticing subject to speculate about.

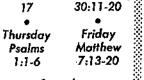

Many fascinating subjects are being discussed today-in church. If this surprises you, it only goes to show that you haven't been attending church lately. To keep in touch with this challenging world, start going not only to regular services but to some of the special discussions in your church.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

I am happy to report that all the fellers is alive and kick-We all lived thru the ing. Christmas and New Year holidays, in spite of all them statics we been reading in the papers. Like the feller said, reports of our gitting killed was great eggzagerated.

Zeke Grubb remarked at the country store Saturday night as how it is odd that we git a playby-play of all road accidents on holidays, but you don't see a count on regular days. To play it safe, the fellers staved inside the store from dark to closing time. Zeke allowed that if he was going to git listed in them holiday weekend statics, he was going to be a setting down, minding his own business static. and not a four wheel one. He wasn't going to let some drunk driver see two of him on the road and dodge the wrong one, Clem said.

The feller that runs the store said if he was ask to pick the safest place to be on Saturday nights and holidays he would say the trash can in the store. In all the time the fellers has been meeting, he said that can ain't been hit by nothing. He said if he heard the country was attacked, he would jump right in that can. Clem Webster said cars is the most dangerous travel they is, and ever year they make em faster and put more safety things on em. He said this car safety business is about like he heard Zeke Grubb's preacher say about his congergation onct. The preacher said one fifth of them wore out their knees praying and four fifths wore out their seats backsliding. Clem was of a mind that making a car that will run 130 miles a hour and then putting dual system safety brakes on it is jest backsliding at a profit.

Incidental, Mister Editor, Ed Doolittle was agreed with Clem that power and speed don't add up to road safety, but he said cars is gitting blamed fer a lot that ain't fair. Fer instant, Ed said he heard a feller say cars cause trouble with younguns. The feller said younguns ain't no meaner than they allus was, but they all got cars now so they can spread their meanness over a wider area faster.

Farthermore, cars may be the most dangerous, Ed allowed, but they don't git a hundred or two at one wreck like them big airplanes that statics say is safest of all. Ed said cars is like guns. Guns and car don't kill people, but people kill people with em. He was of a mind that folks ought to show the same respect fer a loaded car they show fer a loaded gun, and ever time the law gits a loaded driver they ought to give him automatic five year in jail to sober up. Personal, Mister Editor, Ed can look on the bright side and see where cars is doing more than wars, famine and disease to control the population.

Yours truly, Uncle Tim

BEHIND THE COUNTER

Medicine chest

Any first-aid instructions for poisoning should start with "keep calm" and "act prompt-ly." Call your doctor at once, tell him what happened, and the name of the product involved. Or take the poisoned person to the nearest doctor's office, or hospital emergency room. Take along the container involved.

If you can't get instructions from a doctor, make the pa-tient vomit. Keep his mouth open with a spoon handle; place him face down, with his head lower than his hips; and tickle the back of his throat with your finger. If he doesn't vomit, have him drink two glasses of water, or give 1/3 ounce of syrup of ipecac.

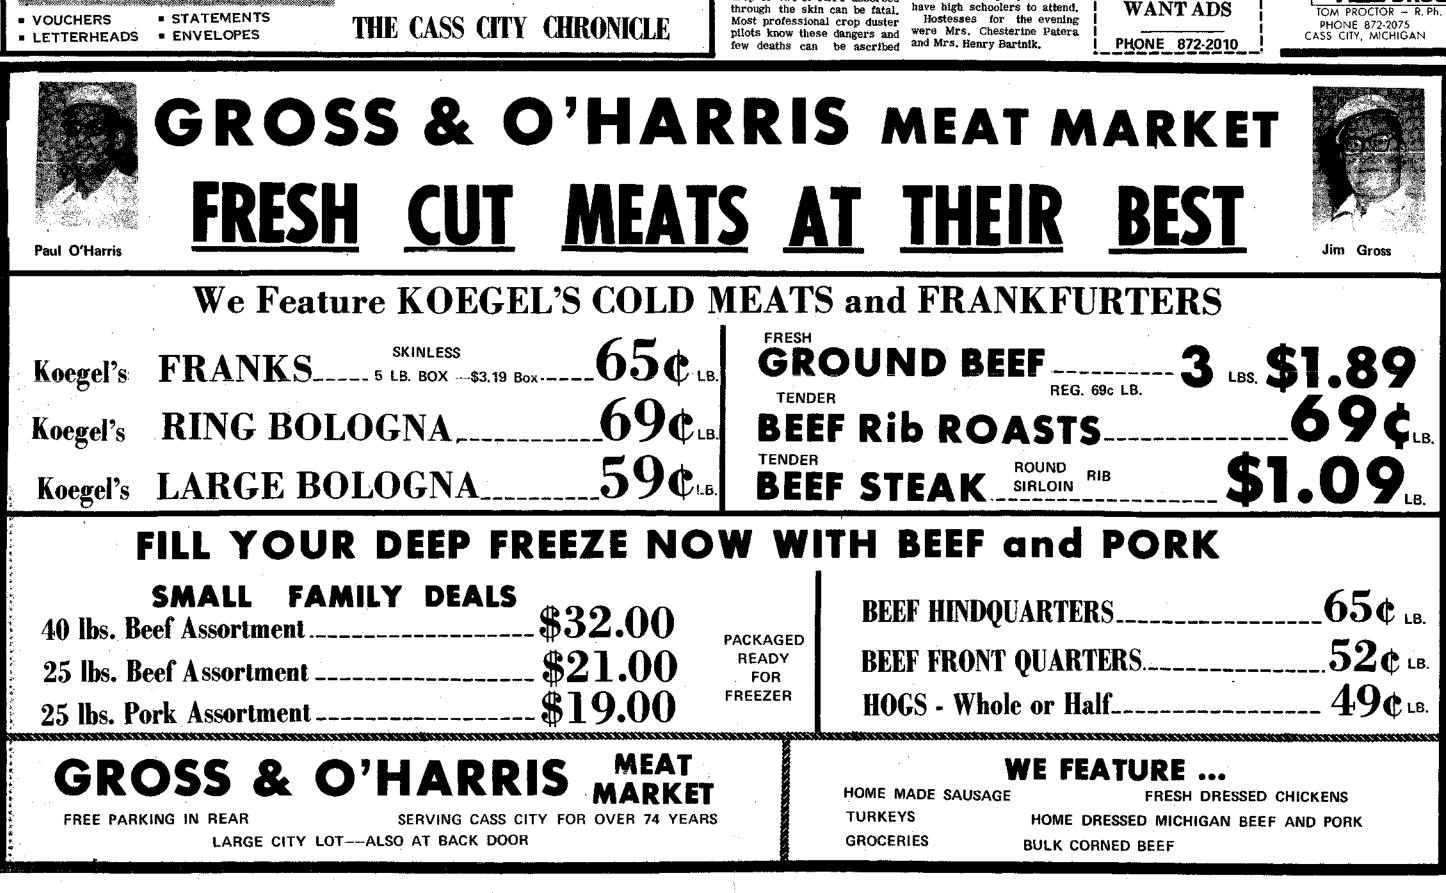

Don't force vomiting if the patient is unconscious, in a coma, or is having convulsions. Nor if he has swallowed a substance that burns the mouth or throat, such as lye or bleach. Nor if he has swallowed a kerosene product, like lighter fluid or paint thinner.

Of course, prevention is bet-ter yet. Keep all drugs and household chemicals out of the children's reach. Store medi-cines separately from food items. Store non-edible (or dangerous) products on high shelves.

Keep all products in their original containers; never re-use containers of chemical substances. Read labels before using any chemical product.

Always turn on the light when giving or taking medi-cine. Don't leave discarded medicines where children or pets can get at them. Clean out your medicine cabinet every once in a while, flushing old medicines down the drain, rinsing out the container and then discarding it. Don't pre-tend that medicine is candy.

We are in the midst of numerous newspaper, magazine and television roundups of the premier events of the '60's --the sizzling '60's as the decade called. It remained for the Wall Street Journal, however, to attempt a roundup of the forecasts made for the '60's by national news media before the decade began. These predictions were made by sources varied as Newsweek, Readers' Digest, New York Times Sunday Magazine, Changing Times, U.S. News & World Report, Nation's Business, Saturday Review, Life and other publications.

Sad to relate, the predictions contained more misses than

One national magazine really walked the plank. It saw Europe and the Far East, and "the one trend that seems inevitable during the '60's is a continuous reduction in armed forces manpower as weapons become increasingly potent. Another is the consolidation of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines."

It remains only to be said that the Armed Forces totaled 890,000 in 1959, when the prediction was made, while today they number more than 1.5 million. The federal budget was predicted to be in the $100-
