

Citizens must initiate drug prevention program

Approximately 400 persons attending the Drug Awareness Clinic last Thursday night at Cass City High School were told that Cass City does have a drug problem, but, as yet, it is relatively light. Robert Ennis, director of Monstronomy Incorporated, told the audience of adults and youngsters that local drug abuse is apparently confined to the use of amphetamines, marijuana, glue and codeine cough syrups, LSD, though in the vicinity, is not a problem and no heroin was reported.

The conclusions were reached following a two-hour program presented by Monstronomy Incorporated, a non-profit organization, made up of former drug addicts and their therapists, operated by the Sneed Psychiatric Clinic in Flint.

Earlier, the audience was divided into four groups of young people and one group of adults. Each of the youngsters' groups met and talked with one or two former drug addicts. The addicts related their personal experience with drugs and their struggle to escape drug addiction. The adult group was addressed by Robert Ennis, director of the program, and Jay Franklin, assistant director.

Ennis asked the adults if Cass City had a drug problem and if so what kind. The response was "maybe" and "some" and marijuana was named. The remainder of the session was used to answer questions from the audience and to describe various drugs and how they could be identified. Most of the questions centered around the identification of drugs or drug users. Mrs. Gerald Prieskorn, Cass City, who organized the clinic, felt there were too many questions along this line. "Many people were too concerned with what it looks like or smells like," she said, "rather than what we can do about it or why kids turn to drugs. I hope we can do some preventative things."

Ennis told the adults that there is a difference between drug abuse and drug addiction. Abuse, he said, is using a prescription drug for uses other than those defined by the physician. Addiction is physical and mental dependency upon a drug, he said.

Although there was an obvious shortage of high school students at the clinic, most of the information about drugs in Cass City came from the youngsters' groups. They had fewer questions than the adults, however, and were content to let the addicts question them. The young people generally felt that drug abuse was increasing in the community. They named glue, marijuana, diet pills and codeine cough syrups as the major vehicles of abuse. Several members of the group mentioned the use of LSD by four or five students but no heroin use was reported.

They were asked to estimate the number of students who have used or experimented with drugs at the high school level. Estimates ranged from 60 to 100 students. They were also asked what the police in Cass City do about the drug problem. "They know it's here," said one girl, "but I think they're too blind to see it; they don't want to see it." Her reaction was echoed by several other students in the room.

In one group Chris, a thin, blonde girl, a former addict in her early twenties, looked through pale blue sunglasses and told her young audience "We need a place to go." She told of the need for a "half-way house," that would be open on a 24-hour basis to help addicts. (According to Ennis part of the $200 fee for Thursday night's clinic will be used to establish such a facility in Flint.) "I've tried everything," she said, "every kind of drug available." She related her experience with drugs and told the youngsters the dangers that drug abuse could hold for them. She hopes to return to college soon for her degree in social work so she can become a therapist to other drug addicts.

The youngsters said that as far as they knew there was no set policy on drug use. They thought that if a student were caught taking drugs or was known to have used drugs he would be automatically expelled. Most of them said that understanding was the last thing they would get if their parents discovered they had ever used drugs and expressed a fear of what their parents would do. "They'd kill me," said one 16-year-old boy and his reaction was similar to the majority of others present.

Ennis said he felt that drug abuse was more widespread than the young people had indicated. He attributed this to the fact that Cass City is a small town and the youngsters were fearful that what they said might get back to their parents. Karen Kerbyson, 19, a sophomore at Delta College, said she got the same impression and that the program would have been more effective had the young people been divided into age groups.

To combat the spread of drug abuse Ennis suggested that his group or a similar group meet with all the high school students in the fall in a school assembly. He also recommended in-service training for community teachers to instruct them on identification of drugs and drug users and the method to be used to help them. It was also suggested that the school board establish a policy concerning drug use and develop a program by which the young drug user could be helped. Finally, Ennis suggested that a county or community help center be established to provide a system of assisting drug users. He offered his assistance and the assistance of Monstronomy Inc. in carrying out the recommendations.

The initiative to establish a meaningful program, he said, must come from the citizens. "We told you it was here," he said, "now what are you willing to do about it?"

Village clamps nightly curfew on Cass City park

The Cass City Village Council has voted to place a nightly curfew on the Cass City Recreational Park in an attempt to curb vandalism at the facility.

Meeting in an otherwise mundane session Tuesday night at the Municipal Building, trustees voted to have the police department close both park entries a half hour after the last function of the evening is completed.

President Lambert Althaver said that the windows in the football announcer's tower have continually been broken despite heavy wire fencing erected to protect it. He pointed out that toilets have been destroyed and looked as if they were smashed with a large rock and said that it was impossible to keep light bulbs burning.

Now that we have our new concession stand, he added, perhaps a curfew can curb some of this senseless destruction of the property that belongs to all of us.

Althaver requested Village Engineer William Schram to prepare a sign that would assure that motorists would have ample notice that the roads to the park were blocked.

Activities of the police department were reviewed. Gary Jones reported that the department has purchased three new guns for the staff at a cost of $64 each. They replace older guns and borrowed guns used by the department.

A brief discussion concerning traffic congestion in the alley between West and Leach brought no decisions other than that the entire situation should be reviewed by Chief Gene Wilson and the recommendations considered.

The memory of Ed Anthes, a village employee, proved more reliable than the official minutes. Anthes claimed that sick leave should accrue up to 60 days and the minutes, while not specific, appeared to say 30 days.

Not satisfied, Anthes had Schram investigate the Dec. 23, 1967, issue of the Chronicle and an article there definitely told that the contention of the village crew was correct.

The village Tuesday made it official by an official correction of the minutes.

At the May meeting of the council a new type water meter was discussed. It is attachable to the outside of homes instead of inside the house as current meters are.

The cost is $47 instead of $37 for the type presently in use. Because of the savings in labor required to read the meters the village voted to buy only the new type meters and when repairs are necessary present meters will be traded for the new type at a cost of $16.

The village voted to ask bids for the present police car because a new one is expected within weeks. If the bids prove the car is worth comparatively little the car will probably be kept as a second police vehicle.

A stratagem devised in the early sixties when Fred Auten was on the council is paying unexpected dividends.

At that time the salary of the clerk was reduced to a maximum of $150 per year and the treasurer to $450 per year.

The majority of the salary formerly paid to the clerk-treasurer was then paid as salary for a secretary.

The reason for the switch at the time was to eliminate having to pay a person untrained in bookkeeping for work he could not accomplish if he were elected to office.

In most cases the bookkeeper's salary and the elective offices went together. There never has been an untrained person named to the clerk-treasurer post in the village.

While the original purpose for changing never proved necessary, the switch has had unforeseen benefits.

Tuesday — first hot day of summer

FROM THE Editor's Corner

Rudy Petzold, our neighboring publisher in Caro, took a gentle swipe at the Cass City School system last week, saying that the school and the teachers weren't doing right by the kids by not negotiating this summer....not keeping the faith after residents voting additional operating taxes.

Praising the taxpayer this way is tantamount to taking a stand for doing your duty, home-made apple pie and motherhood. At first glance, who can argue with doing right by parents and kids?

But a slogan doesn't pay the tax bill and whether or not the union and the school meets every day, all-day, all summer has little to do with the quality and caliber of the education offered.

School bargaining is complex and I suspect that persons close to the scene might say Rudy is too far away to gain a true perspective.

In Cass City it was the teachers who broke off negotiations...but the teams quit not because of an insolvable impasse but because of a deadline imposed by the teachers before talks started.

I'd take a good sized wager that not one day of school will be missed because of contract troubles next fall.

The two teams are near accord, although neither will say so now during the summer recess.

Certainly it would be desirable to have Cass City be the first to settle as it was last year. It's a nagging thorn for the administration and the teachers that there is no agreement.

But to most parents and taxpayers the nitty-gritty question is not when the contract is signed, but the terms of the final settlement.

Caro, for instance, stands alone in the amount paid to teachers....above the salaries paid to staffs at other Thumb schools.

It hasn't been proven that the extra money provides a better staff at the county seat. One teacher moved from Caro to Cass City for the lower salary offered here. Teachers have gone from Cass City to Caro. But money, while important, is just one of the reasons for moving and, if salaries are within reason, in most instances is secondary.

When it comes to keeping the faith with taxpayers who voted extra money, perhaps Cass City is in a more defensible position than our neighbors from the county seat.

It's easier to justify a sa-

STATE POLICE Sgt. Zane Grey has the grim Tuscola County accident statistics.

Cut highway death toll with strict law enforcement—Grey

County supervisors, highway officials, and police officers from eleven county communities met Tuesday night to hear the results of a study of traffic accidents occurring in Tuscola county in 1969 and to pledge themselves to an all-out battle to reduce the number of accidents and fatalities in 1970.

The study, conducted by Sgt. Zane Grey of the Selective Enforcement Section of the Department of State Police, showed that Tuscola county recorded 34 accidents in 1969 which claimed the lives of 48 people. This placed Tuscola county tenth on a list of counties with high accident rates, although the other counties had three times the population.

Sgt. Grey said that the straight, level roads in the county may have actually added to the traffic problem by inducing high speeds. The volume of traffic on county roads is relatively light compared to similar counties, he said, which acts as an added inducement to speed.

"Enforcement," said Grey, "appears to be a very weak link in the traffic safety program in Tuscola County." Sheriff Hugh Marr said his department is severely undermanned and that most of the manpower in needed to investigate complaints, reducing the number of men available for traffic enforcement assignments.

According to Grey's report, indifference to traffic laws on the part of local citizens was partly to blame for the high accident rate in 1969. "There still does not appear to be a real awareness of the accident problem in the county," he said.

To remedy this situation the report suggested that traffic safety programs begin at the elementary and junior high school level. It was also recommended that efforts be made to inform the local service organizations of the serious traffic accident problem and to enlist their support.

"One indication of the lack of public knowledge and/or concern toward the accident problem," according to the study, "is the frequency that driving under the influence of liquor cases are reduced by juries to impaired driving." Juries, said Grey, apparently tend to prefer to find a driver guilty of impaired driving which imposes a smaller penalty.

Col. Frederick Davis of the State Police said, "There is a strong reluctance on the part of juries to take the license away from a driver. However, driving is a privilege, not a right; many people confuse that."

Col. Davis promised his support in initiating a crack-down on careless drivers to reduce the number of accidents and fatalities. "This message has got to be put to the licensed driver," he said, "that he must recognize his responsibility when he gets behind that wheel." He said too, that local citizens must be willing to report traffic violations and to act as witnesses if necessary.

He further suggested that the Tuscola Sheriff Department investigate the possibility of using planes and helicopters for air patrols. With this method speeders can be clocked from the air. Officers in the plane then radio patrol cars who can then ticket the driver. The value of a program like this is that patrol cars will not have to pace speeding autos.

In the first six months of 1970, 12 persons have lost their lives as a result of traffic accidents in Tuscola county.

Whoops! the man found a policeman

The saying goes that when you want a policeman there's never one around. It hasn't been established whether or not Francis Edward Spychalski, 24, of Bay City was really looking for a policeman in Cagatown early Sunday morning, but he managed to find one.

Officer Christopher Karl Taylor, 24, was on hand just moments after Spychalski backed his car into the front of Taylor's parked car—owned by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

Henriette says

good-bye to Cass

City Tuesday

Henriette de Barros Perazzi, an exchange student from Brazil who has been spending the last six months with the Harold Field family, left for home Tuesday. Like any visitor she was sad at leaving but happy to be going back to her native country and the family she has been waiting for her there.

Sixteen-year-old Henriette, a senior at Cass City High School, was graduated with her other classmates. But when she returns to Rio de Janeiro, she'll have two more years of education before graduation. After that she's torn between becoming a secretary and going to college where she would major in psychology.

At home Henriette attends a private school which is superior to Brazilian public schools. American schools, she said, have a great many more facilities and instructional materials than do schools in Brazil. American history and advanced

Adams-Avery wed in Detroit

Mt. Calvary Evangelical Lutheran Church in Detroit was the setting for the June 6 wedding of Barbara Lee Ann Adams and Jon Curtis Avery. The Rev. Edwin J. Rossow officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Adams of Grosse Pointe Farms and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Avery of Cass City.

The bride wore a white crepe street-length dress with a stand-up collar and lace trim at the waistline and at the edge of the long sleeves. A bow headpiece encrusted with sequins and pearls held her shoulder-length veil. She carried a nosegay of white carnations.

Attending the bride was her sister Deborah. She chose yellow crepe with voile long sleeves and smocking detail at the waist and wrists. Green and yellow ribbons braided with her hair formed a head circlet with bow and streamers at the back of the head. She carried a nosegay of yellow carnations.

Douglas Avery of Troy served as best man and ushers were John Mulrath and Ernest Bouck of Detroit and Roger Bouck of Cass City.

Soloist was Pamela Adams, sister of the bride, who sang "O Perfect Love." She was accompanied by organist, John Riske.

The bride's mother wore a yellow jacket dress with white accessories, while the groom's mother wore a mint green ensemble with white and mint green accessories. Both mothers wore green orchids.

A supper reception immediately followed at the home of the bride's parents.

An open house honoring the young couple was held the evening of July 27 at the home of the groom's parents.

They are now living in Lincoln Park. The groom is employed at Metropolitan Airport and the bride is employed by a mortgage firm in Detroit.

Mrs. Jack Burns

St. Francis Borglia Church in Pigeon was the setting for the Saturday afternoon wedding of Miss Sherry Kivel and Jack Burns with Rev. Father Glenn Cronkite officiating at the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. Robert Quinn of Caseville provided the wedding music.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. William Kivel of Elkton and the late William Kivel and Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Burns of Decker.

Given in marriage by her brother Gary, the bride approached the white gladioli decorated altar wearing a full bouffant gown of organza sheer over taffeta and imported French lace. The lace framed its fitted bodice which was complemented with a pearl and crystal beaded neckline and its tapered long sleeves. The skirt was a cascade of ruffles to the hemline. A removable Watteau shoulder train of chapel length completed the dress.

A jeweled petal lace head-dress secured the butterfly veil of silk mist.

A bridal bouquet of pom-poms and baby mums and yellow shasta daisies completed her attire.

Serving the bride as matron of honor was Mrs. Floyd Thompson of Elkton, wearing a sleeveless daffodil matze dotted Swiss floor-length dress, having an Empire bodice sashed and bowed with white satin with a mandarin collar and flowing back panel. A matching coronet with bubble veil completed her attire. She carried a bouquet of white shasta daisies.

The groom asked his cousin, David McNaughton of Cass City, to be best man.

Seating guests for the wedding were Chuck Esch of Pigeon, cousin of the bride, and Robert McComb of Lansing, brother-in-law of the groom.

Mother of the bride was wearing a beige lace dress with brown accessories.

The groom's mother wore a lime green dress and coat ensemble with black accessories. Each mother had an orchid corsage.

A reception - luncheon for 275 guests was held immediately following the wedding in the church hall.

After a two-week honeymoon, the newlyweds will reside in Cass City.

CASS CITY

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

We've a public service message to deliver this week. It comes from Ludington and a C & O railroad employee. A week ago our eldest was cashing in half of a round-trip ferry ticket and the young man noticed she was evidently from Cass City.

If you are from Cass City you must know Sam Wells? After he was assured this was correct, he promptly announced, "tell him Turtle said hello."

All of which leads to another item in the small world department. We paddled down the AuSable for two days last week and camped at a river site Friday.

The campfire was hardly lit before Bernard Jardot, county 4-H agent, strolled into camp and said hello while announcing that a group of Tuscola County 4-H'ers were camped along the bank waiting for the start of the club's annual AuSable trek.

I've said this before and probably will say it again. Behind everything that helps the community progress is a good deal of unheralded and, for the most part, unappreciated, volunteer unpaid labor.

This summer's bargain days in Cass City are an example. It was possible because Keith McConkey trudged up and down Main Street collecting money for prizes and promotion.

Denny McLain is big news again. So big that he's going to get a mention in this column. He's the only "outsider" that I can recall writing about. We want stories about local people and local anecdotes here.

But the McLain thing does have a local twist. We have a friendly bet with Gerald Whittaker, made last spring, that the Tigers' touted hurler will not win more than 11 games this season.

This Wednesday's game? He'll be out of there in seven or less.

Here's a plug for hometown business and prices. Last week on the way north I stopped at a discount store to buy a couple of things that I forgot to bring for our camping trip.

As I walked through the store I noticed two items in golfing equipment. One was a package of six plastic practice golf balls and the other, tubes for holding golf clubs in carts. At the discount house the prices were 49 cents for the balls and 19 cents each for the tubes.

In Cass City the same items cost 25 cents and 11 cents, respectively.

Price comparisons like this should be enough to get all of us to take a second look at hometown stores before automatically turning to the city for even the most trivial items.

Perhaps the only part of Jack London Square that the author

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Oakland waterfront

inspires writers

By Dan Marlowe

Notes from Oakland, California:

Jack London Square at the foot of Webster Street on the Oakland waterfront commemorates a writing man. Not so well known is the fact that Oakland's Estuary and fishing fleet inspired other top name authors.

Richard Henry Dana, author of TWO YEARS BEFORE THE MAST, antedated even London. With others from the crew of the brig Pilgrim he searched the area for water and provisions.

Bret Harte and Joaquin Miller both haunted the Oakland Waterfront absorbing impressions of the colorful life about the docks. Charles Edward Markham, author of the pastoral poem, THE MAN WITH THE HOE, played hockey from school to spend time with the ships' crews in the Estuary.

In 1888, Robert Louis Stevenson paced the docks daily while waiting for his chartered schooner, the Casco, to be fitted out for a South Seas voyage.

But of all the literary lights, Jack London was most closely connected with the Oakland waterfront. He was captain of an oyster boat there at the age of 15, and two years later shipped out as an able seaman on a two-year sealing expedition to Alaska, a voyage from which came the backgrounds for CALL OF THE WILD, SEA WOLF, and WHITE FANG.

Years later, when established as a successful author, he built the famed schooner, the Snark, and embarked with his wife, Charmian, upon an ill-fated cruise to the South Seas. Even before that he had taken part in another rip-roaring cruise around Cape Horn in the Dirigo.

Many of London's early-day waterfront companions, colorful characters with colorful names such as Scratch Nelson, Whiskey Billy, French Frank, and Harmony Joe, became immortalized in his books and short stories.

would recognize today is "The First and Last Chance Saloon." Constructed originally from the hulk of an old whaler used in working the nearby oyster beds, it stands intact. Weatherbeaten, with a decided list to starboard, every inch of its scarred interior is covered with photographs and signatures of writers who have made it a part of call.

Behind the saloon, London and his oyster-boat crew had a shanty built from driftwood and galvanized iron. From this base, Jack London operated as captain of the oyster pirates, raiding private oyster beds and selling the nocturnal catches along the waterfront the next day.

Just recently the Port of Oakland announced that it was having dismantled in Dawson City, Alaska, a log cabin lived in by Jack London during the severe winter of 1897-98 when he was participating in the Klondike Gold Rush. The cabin will be reconstructed on Jack London Square, complete with the hardworking author's signature carved on a log on the back wall.

Jack London wrote of what he knew. Just a few miles away is the area he captured forever in print in THE VALLEY OF THE MOON, still one of the best adventure yarns ever, and surprisingly up-to-date in its treatment of labor problems, etc.

Jack London Square, Oakland, ..don't miss it if you're in the area.

I
KNOW

By H. M. Bulen

Among the thousands of big league baseball games over the years, only one ever wound up with both teams getting--amazingly--exactly the same number of runs, hits, errors, walks and strikeouts.... This unusual tie game took place Aug. 13 1910 between the Pirates and Dodgers.... It was called because of darkness at the end of 9 innings.... At that time, each team had 8 runs, 13 hits, 2 errors, 2 walks and 5 strikeouts!... That's a million-to-one shot.... There's never been another big league game like it, and there may never be another one.

How do you figure this one... Only about 10% of the U. S. population is left-handed, yet almost 30% of major league baseball players are left-handed!

Here's an oddity... The Montreal Expos actually won more games on the road last season than they did at home--and you don't see that very often in any sport... At home Montreal won 24 and lost 87 for a percentage of .296... On the road they won 28 and lost 53 for a percentage of .346.

In case you've forgotten we're located right across the street from the Ku-Ku-Kow.

English were among two of her most difficult classes while at Cass City High School. One difference between the two school systems she noted was the absence of extracurricular activities such as dances in the Brazilian schools. Besides her native tongue, Henriette speaks French fluently as well as English.

Compared to Brazilians, Americans are a good deal less emotional, according to Henriette. Affection in her own family is expressed much more openly and frequently than in American families.

Henriette went home to her parents, a younger brother and two younger sisters. But, she left behind a family of five brothers and sisters and her American parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Field.

With her she took some souvenirs, including a few dozen snapshots, and a host of pleasant memories.

Former resident NABA president

Mrs. Doris Howse, of Port Huron, a former resident of Cass City, has been named president of the North American Benefit Association after 38 years of service with the organization.

Born in Cass City, she graduated from Cass City High School and Cleary College, Ypsilanti.

She served in a variety of positions with the NABA and was appointed supreme secretary-treasurer at a 1966 convention in Los Angeles.

One of her first duties as president will be presiding at the Quadriennial convention to be held at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal the week of July 19.

The NABA ranks among the leading fraternal insurance societies. Mrs. Howse is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Bliss.

Sympathy for the doctor

BY JIM FITZGERALD

A medical doctor confessed to me that he doesn't like to be called Doc. I know exactly what he means.

Looking around the crowded bar where the doctor and I sat, I could see 3 other "Docs." None of them is a doctor. One guy is called Doc because his late father was a veterinarian. Another man is a Doc because he used to jerk sodas in a drugstore. The 3rd man is a Doc because he once dated a nurse.

"I worked and studied a lot of years to become a doctor," my medical friend explained. "I like to be called Doctor. Or by my first name or my last name; or both. But not Doc. I think I've earned more respect than men who might be called Doc because they sell band-aids, or because they're in a cartoon with a rabbit who wants to know what's up."

Yeah. When a man earns respect, he likes to get it. Listening to Doc's (whoops) Doctor's problem, I almost sobbed aloud. It's not only that I'm naturally sympathetic and I had a lump I wanted him to look at between drinks. But I was reminded of the day I was promoted to Corporal. You probably won't believe what happened but keep reading anyway. There's nothing but reruns on TV while I've never told this story before....

It was late 1945 at Camp Polk, Louisiana. I had already been in the army about 2 years. My presence in Germany helped us win the war there. The mere threat of my presence in Japan led to our victory there (I was about to set sail for the South Pacific when Japan heard about it and surrendered.)

Despite this tremendous contribution, I was still a Private First Class. This rankled. My mother kept writing that all her friends' sons were admirals and generals. She threatened to pull the shade in front of the blue star flag in her window. I was ashamed. I was also dreadfully sick of doing KP and scrubbing floors. Corporals and sergeants didn't have to do that dirty work. Only privates.

Suddenly, my luck changed. I was made an assistant to the Catholic chaplain who was a full colonel. He was a vain man and he didn't want any lousy private working for him. He immediately promoted me to corporal. Wow.

I immediately purchased 62 sets of corporal's stripes and mailed out 32 change-of-address cards, mostly to my mother. I was stenciling stripes on my arm that evening when the sergeant said it was time for a GI Party. That means scrub the lousy barracks. I just sat there and laughed.

"It's great that we non-commissioned officers don't have to do such awful work, isn't it, Sarge." I said to my new comrade, slipping my arm around his shoulders. "Let's you and me slip over to the NCO club for a beer or 12. Let these slob privates scrub away."

The sergeant handed me a broom and showed me a written notice just received from the company commander. It said that, due to an unusual number of promotions, there were no longer enough privates to do all the KP and clean all the barracks. From this date forward, it said, corporals would also do KP etc. Just as if they were privates.

And when I fell on the floor, screaming and kicking and scratching at my new stripes, a dumb private looked at me and said:

"What's up, Corp?"

Former resident tops in contest

Mrs. Dorothy Jenkins of Millington, formerly of Cass City, won third place in a statewide student cosmetology contest held in Lansing.

She won similar honors at the school she is attending and was one of 23 stylists entered in the state finals. Contestants were judged on adaptability, execution and originality.

Mrs. Jenkins is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Crawford of Deford.

LOOKING OVER THE catalogue of courses at the University of Puerto Rico that he will attend this fall is Dan Rabideau of Gagetown.

Dan Rabideau set for foreign study

"Adios," will be the word August 3 when Daniel Patrick Rabideau, 19, takes off for a ten month stay in Puerto Rico. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Carroll, Gagetown, he will be spending his junior year of college at the University of Puerto Rico in Rio Piedras. With an impressive 3.0 grade point average in Spanish, his major, he was selected by the faculty of the Department of Spanish at Central Michigan University, as one of three students to receive a scholarship from the University of Puerto Rico. The scholarship covers tuition, books and room and board. Central Michigan University, in turn, awards similar scholarships to Puerto Rican students. While there, he will complete the requirements for his Spanish program in addition to taking courses in science and physical education.

When Dan arrives he will go through a week or two of orientation on the university's largest and oldest campus in Rio Piedras. The university, with its palm tree-lined walks, was established in 1903 and is the country's only public institution of higher learning, with an enrollment of nearly 22,000 students. Rio Piedras, near the capital of San Juan, is the country's second largest city.

According to Dan, there is some anti-American sentiment in Puerto Rico. He says there are two opposed factions. One side favors complete independence from the United States. The other is pro-American and proposes that Puerto Rico become a state of the Union. Dan disagrees with both. "Personally, I think Puerto Rico is too small for complete independence; it has to rely on American aid. But, their culture is so radically different from ours that I can't see statehood." American enterprise in Puerto Rico which has exploited the country and the people, is to blame, in part, for the anti-American attitude, says Dan. A 1968 graduate of Cass City High School, Dan says he's grateful to Mrs. Leone Shaw, Spanish teacher, for preparing him so well for college level Spanish and hopes to become a Spanish teacher himself when he receives his bachelor of arts degree from CMU in June 1972. He would like to have a job in a fairly large secondary school where he can teach Spanish exclusively.

"He's a very conscientious, hard working young man," said Mrs. Shaw, "and in my estimation he's a fine citizen. I think he's well qualified and will make a very fine Spanish teacher someday." At Central Dan was a representative to the Class Council his freshman year and a member of the Student Education Association.

Rev. Libby, 96, succumbs

The Rev. Frederick J. Libby, 96, uncle of Meredith B. Auten, died in Washington, D. C., Friday.

He was well-known in Cass City as he spent every Christmas from 1912 at the Auten home with the exception of the World War I years.

He annually was a guest preacher at the Presbyterian Church and was a frequent speaker at the Cass City Rotary Club.

He was dedicated to the cause of peace throughout the world and served as executive secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War.

His book, "To End The War," received favorable comments.

A memorial service will be held at the Friends Meeting House in Washington Thursday at 2 p.m. Attending from Cass City will be Meredith and Charles Auten.

He is survived by his wife Faith Ward Libby and many grandchildren and nephews.

Most folks find it much easier to criticize than to instruct.

GOOD START
Perseverance will not solve all your problems, but it certainly will work wonders.

AFTER SPENDING A week at the Bob Davis basketball camp at Georgetown College, Cass City High School students flocked to the gym to put to use some of the lessons learned. Carl Zawilinski and Tony Davis were absent when this picture was taken, but were named as members of the camp All-Star team. Steve Wells was a member of the camp championship unit.

Letters to Editor

Illegal Pot is ridiculous

TO THE PEOPLE OF CASS CITY:

If last night's audience at the drug clinic were a fairly representative sample of rural attitudes toward and knowledge of commonly used "pleasure drugs," our communications media need further development and more widespread use. For most adults who attended, the clinic will probably serve as their sole source of information while providing one ready-made set of opinions about drug use. This unintentional monopoly on opinions and information is dangerous, although it represents an improvement over total apathy and ignorance.

The "Enlightenment's" ideal, embodied in the U. S. Constitution's structurally restricted and divided government, stresses individual rights, capacities and obligations. We supposedly believe in each person's capacity to decide rationally what he may, may not, will, and will not do during his lifetime. Let me illustrate: I may not kill myself. I may shoot heroin, but I will not do it because it clashes with my judgement; on the basis of present information I know it to be more dangerous than worthwhile. I may and will hitchhike but will not accept rides from people who scare me. Although use, possession and transfer of marijuana is illegal, I know from experience that its illegality is ridiculous and unnecessary, so that is one law that I break.

Senseless laws detract from well founded, necessary ones. After you recoil in horror at the discovery that my roommate is black, after you tell me that the girl down the hall who has sex with her boyfriend is a beast when I can see that she is not, after you tell me alcohol for minors is dangerous or it wouldn't be illegal, I stop believing anything you say. I also stop limiting myself to activities that are strictly legal.

If you have a reason for your opinions, give me the real one—not a bunch of platitudes. Luckily I know enough to distinguish between marijuana, a non-addictive stimulant, and heroin, a dangerous drug that causes physiological addiction. State and federal law refuse to differentiate between "safe" drugs like marijuana, hashish and mescaline and dangerous ones like cocaine, opium or sleeping pills.

No matter whether you are using drugs, contraceptives, cosmetics or new shoes, you should know:

1. What you are getting.
2. What else might do the same job.
3. Possible side effects, beneficial, detrimental and neutral.
4. Your personal characteristics and tastes that may interfere with the product's acceptability to you.

Mellari, a tranquilizer, sometimes induces blackouts. Intrauterine devices sometimes cause pain and/or infection. Vitamin C pills neither cure nor prevent reactions to poison ivy, no matter how often the health center prescribes them. And so on.

Each of us must form his own conclusions on the basis of credible information he receives, and each of us must modify his conclusions with additional "facts" when he finds them. You can and I can. If we can't, it is time to dissolve our representative democracy.

Mary Lou Spencer

Claims accident story rates general apology

To Mike Walsh:

Your first real job but this is not your first or last real critic. You got carried away with big, big I. Me, my, 16 times in a nothing story, and if you are going to mention and run down every driver, and you are, why not run down the hippie, dope filled hot rod kids with $10 down, $50 cars with no brakes, mufflers but complete with bikini clad girl and no right front seat.

I say a general apology to the 99% of law abiding, sober, hard working drivers of all ages is in order and shall look for it on the front page next week.

The Spirit of '70

People sometimes make cynical remarks about flag-waving. But it sure beats flag-burning.

Our belief in this nation is something far deeper than mere patriotism. It is the expression of honor and respect for the institutions and blessings we possess as Americans.

One of those institutions is a church independent of state control. One of those blessings is the right to worship according to the dictates of conscience.

Of course, there are some earnest, well-meaning people who don't give a nickel for the Church — or to it either. Even their right not to worship is equally guaranteed by our Constitution!

That kind of freedom is hard to come by. It was hard to come by in 1776. And, in our opinion, it is best understood and most firmly preserved by those who thank God for it.

Behind the Counter Snoring

Snoring is more of a physical problem than a medical one, but a surprising amount of research has gone into the question of how to stop it. And, more recently, on how to cope with the person who snores.

Snoring has been defined as "breathing during sleep with a rough, hoarse noise" but that scarcely describes the wheezing, snoring, rasping and rumbling that can shake a bedroom wall. Sometimes the volume is so great, there's no point in moving to another bedroom—at least, not one in the same house.

The sound is usually caused by a vibration of the soft palate and uvula, that cone-shaped piece of tissue hanging down from the palate between the tonsils at the back of the mouth. Or it can be caused by obstructions or deformities in the nose, mouth or throat; the retention of fluids in the post-nasal area; or a swelling of the throat membrane.

The cures? If a person sleeps with one pillow, try adding a second—or vice versa. Tie a large knot in the snorer's pajama string, so that it's impossible to sleep on the back. Take a sleeping pill, wear earplugs.

Or, says one expert: "Train the subconscious mind to reject offensive acoustic snoring stimuli, just as it rejects various ambient noises amidst which one sleeps comfortably." He doesn't explain how that is done.

2 teams undefeated in Church league race

It's a little too early to tell just where the power in the Cass City Church League is. Through Monday two teams were undefeated but Gageton-Fraser had played just one game and the other team with an unblemished record, Colwood United Brethren, had been to the post only twice.

On paper, Trinity Methodist and the Catholics figure to be right up there with the loop powerhouses.

But the Catholics who were sailing along unbeaten ran into rough water when they faced Shabbona-Decker which was winless in two outings. Behind the slants of Les Severance the boys from Sanilac county demolished the Catholics, 6-0. John Maharg took the loss.

While the Catholic loss was a definite upset, form prevailed in the Deford and Owendale-Gageton clash. The Defordites sneaked by winless Owen-Cage 5-4.

Al McKee lashed out a base hit in the seventh to score the winning run. Ron Nicholas was the winning pitcher. Earl Rayl took the loss and Bernie Babich homered for the winners.

Paced by a bases loaded home run by Tom Spencer, the Trinity Methodists coasted by the Cass City Baptists, 10-4. Fred Hurlburt was the winning pitcher and Gary Mellendorf the loser.

Novesta - Ellington topped Owendale-Gageton Methodists, 16-9, in the nightcap. Don Englehart was the winning pitcher and Earl Rayl was tagged with his second loss of the week.

Scott Hartel and Don Englehart hit for the circuit for the winners and Jim Rayl countered with a round trip blast for the losers.

The standings as of June 29:

	W	L
Colwood United Brethren	2	0
Gageton-Fraser Presbyterian	1	0
Deford United Methodist	3	1
Trinity United Methodist	3	1
Cass City Catholics	2	1
Church of Christ-Ellington Nazarene	2	1
Shabbona-Decker United Methodist	1	2
Cass City Missionary	0	2
Cass City Baptist	0	2
Owendale-Gageton United Methodist	0	4

Top pitcher stuns Erla's in tourney

Erla's continued to share the lead in the Uby Recreational Softball League in a single game played last week as they rolled over helpless Air Base, 18-0.

The Air Base is the one weak team in the loop this year and the Foodmen had no trouble coasting to victory as the players fattened their batting averages.

LaRoche collected three for three and Elwyn Helwig lashed three hits in five tries in his first game of the season.

Nicholas and Albee each banged out a pair of safeties in the 13th hit attack.

Hillaker went the distance and limited the Flyers to just two hits, both in the first inning. After this he was better perfect and only one other runner reached base.

The Erla nine were not so lucky when they played in a Mayville invitational tournament Saturday. They faced Len Ackerman from Lansing and the Class A hurler was just too good for the local stickers. He hurled Akron to a 1-0 decision.

Erla's had trouble even trying to punt the ball. Ackerman pitched a no hitter and only one man reached base. In one stretch Ackerman struck out 10 in a row. He allowed only five of Erla's hitters to as much as a touch of the ball.

Al Bosch, Erla's premier moundsman, allowed only five hits and one run and had a shutout himself through the regulation seven innings. Akron broke through in the first extra inning for the decisive game winning tally.

Cass City wins again in Babe Ruth loop

Cass City continued undefeated in the Huron Babe Ruth League as they pounded Uby Monday, 26-2, at Cass City Recreational Park.

The team backed Gene Salas with a lusty 16-hit attack while posting their second win.

Salas and Hopper with two hits each were the leading sticklers for Cass City. Ron Karr chipped in with a home run to help the Cass City cause.

The next outing for Cass City will be Thursday when they play Bad Axe team two at 4:30 p.m. at Bad Axe. Coach Bob Alexander regards the game as one of the tougher games in the regular season slate of six games.

White Sox win knots Minor League

The White Sox defeated the Mets in a slugfest Monday, June 29, to again knot the race in the Minor League and keep the title race wide open. The score was 18-17.

It was the first loss in league play for the Mets. Both the Sox and the Mets now have identical 4-1 records.

It is entirely possible that the two teams will be deadlocked when the season ends in two weeks.

The Mets still must face the dangerous Dodgers while the big test for the White Sox will probably be the Braves which the Sox were due to face Wednesday.

Outside of the two front runners, only the Braves with a 3-2 record have an outside chance of slipping in for a share of the regular season championship. The remainder of the teams will be looking for a trophy in the play-offs.

The standings:

	W	L
White Sox	4	1
Mets	4	2
Braves	3	2
Dodgers	3	3
Angels	2	4
Indians	1	6

Golf League entries needed

Entries are needed for the Cass City Golf League. Director Tom Spencer announced this week. The loop for boys 11-17 has drawn fewer boys than expected.

Spencer said that the age requirement could be relaxed a little for boys younger than 11 providing they have experience and will be able to play without hindering the action in the league.

Meanwhile, the director said, adults should remember that the pool is reserved for them from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday.

The pool is heated, he added, and evening swimming is now really enjoyable.

Season pool passes are now available. For persons 18 and under the cost is $7.00. Adults will pay $10 and family passes cost $20.

Drawing nets over $1,000 for Betty Jo Agar

A benefit drawing for Miss Betty Jo Agar to help cover the cost of hospital and surgical care netted over $1,000, sponsors of the event said this week.

The drawing was held in Wilmet and the cut-glass vase was won by Harry Little of Cass City. An antique clock went to Mrs. Ann Zepin of Cass City and a dachshund comforter and two pillows were won by Mrs. Stanley Kinn Jr. of Cass City.

Mrs. Ross Ricketts of Kings-ton held the ticket that won a homemade afghan.

The Building Year In Cass City ...

As well as the latest home modernization tips are presented in this 15th annual special section. We invite you to check the stories and the ads before you start building or remodeling . . . it could save you dollars or come up with just the remodeling tip you need.

MOST OF THE construction work in the village this season will be on Oak and Church Streets. Nearing completion is the installation of curb and gutter on Oak Street. Most of the crew is now doing similar curb work on East Church Street.

BUILDING IS an area affair these days . . . as much of the building and modernization occurs on home-sites outside the village or for farming. Anyway you look there are signs of progress and expansion that promise a rosy future for business people and for the residents of the area. Although the area has been affected by the current economic slump the long-term outlook appears excellent.

Business building booms

Area home construction slumps

The construction boom that characterized Cass City a year ago has apparently ended, with more than a 42 per cent decrease in the total dollar value of area construction during the period covering July 1969 to July 1970 as compared to the previous year.

A total value of $178,392 in new construction was recorded during the past year according to a check of local building permits. This is a decrease amounting to $135,358 from the same period a year ago.

The decrease is especially notable in the construction of new homes. Out of a total of 22 permits issued, only one home was started after July 1969, as compared to nine for the year before, and six during the same period of 1968-69. Additions to existing homes accounted for three other permits.

Seven permits were issued for the construction of new garages, up just one from the same period last year and equal to 1968-69 period.

A total of seven permits were issued for commercial construction, only two of which were for new building, the remainder being repairs or remodeling projects.

Permits were also issued for two swimming pools, one tool shed and the new Rawson Memorial Library.

While new homes in town showed a decrease, several new homes are under construction in the area outside the village limits and do not appear in the building permit records maintained by the village.

An encouraging note for local residents has been the revitalization in the last year of the Cass City business district. Several stores have added new fronts and remodeling and enlarging of existing buildings has been accelerating all up and down the business district.

plan on modern ELECTRIC HEAT

When you build a new home or add on a new room, you naturally want everything to be new, clean and modern. That's why you should insist on flameless electric home heating—the truly modern kind of heat. It's quiet, trouble-free, as clean as electric light itself. And it can give you that wonderful exclusive feature—individual room temperature control.

An Edison-Approved Electric Heating Contractor will be glad to tell you all about comfortable, moisture-retaining electric heat. He'll figure your operating cost, and there'll be no obligation. And right now, your contractor's offering a $100 trade-in on your old heating system. Call him for an electric heat survey, or mail the coupon below.

WHAT MAKES A DELIGHTFUL HOME

Have you ever walked into a room that was warm, inviting and seemingly asked you to sit down and enjoy it? On the other hand have you walked into a room that seemed to be cold, sterile, and uninviting? Both of these rooms could very well be found in the same house.

Let's take a closer look at the home of John Q. Public. As we go through the house of the Public family we find it delightful, inviting and cozy. But, is it really? To the children it is okay but they don't feel they have a room of their own, even though each of them does have a bedroom.

However, their rooms are not personalized. How can a child's room be personalized? Pictures on the walls can be those made by the child. This encourages his creativity. When hanging the pictures it is best to put them at the child's eye level. He is better able to enjoy them that way, and it makes his room seem even more his own.

Children like gay, bright colors. They usually prefer bright oranges, yellows and reds over the traditional pink and blue.

Most important of all, the Publics could have let the children have a hand in decorating their rooms. Thus the children's rooms would be a room they could call their own rather than just a room where they sleep.

Remodeling Boosts Comfort and Value

Home improvement is bound to give the family more comfort and convenience for a long time to come. But the benefits don't stop there. American mobility being what it is, chances are the homeowner won't keep his present house forever. When the time comes to sell, the improvements the family has made — and enjoyed — can mean a quicker and more equitable sale.

Estimates are that one-fifth of the country's 60 million householders change residences every year. In the face of these figures, remodeling becomes important not only for immediate needs but also to improve the sales value of the house.

Meeting one of these goals need not mean compromising the other. The family and a potential buyer will be interested in the same things — an attractive home that offers long-term protection, comfort and convenience with minimal upkeep.

Wise planning and careful selection of quality building materials can satisfy both. An improved home also builds equity, and modernization costs can be more than realized in the eventual selling price.

These are some aspects to consider when viewing remodeling from a dual vantage point:

The Chronicle

OUTSIDE WALLS — Emphasis should be on durability and easy care. There are many new prefinished sidings, as well as traditional materials, that meet these requirements. If paint is preferred, choose a quality product that will last for many years.

HEATING — A good unit with an effective distribution system is worth the cost. It assures home comfort, and can save hundreds of dollars in fuel and service bills.

ROOF — Choose materials that offer long life, minimal maintenance, and maximum protection against heavy weather abuse and other hazards. As a natural focal point of the house exterior, the roof is also a perfect place for color and lasting beauty.

Heavyweight asphalt shingles — which have a minimum weight of 280 pounds per applied square — are a good choice. They are designed to give from 20 to 25 years of service with virtually no upkeep, carry the Underwriters' Laboratories label for fire-resistance, and come in a wide range of colors — including pastels and blends.

The self-sealing variety, with factory-applied adhesive that bonds each shingle to the one below, bears the UL label for effective wind-resistance.

ELECTRICAL SYSTEMS — Outlets and capacity should be sufficient for future as well as present needs. An increasing number of home appliances demand electricity, and a system that can't handle them is a potential fire hazard.

PLUMBING — Another area where quality and quantity are worth the cost. Repairs are inconvenient and expensive. Be sure plumbing facilities, including water heater, are adequate for present and future demands.

KITCHEN AND BATH — These two areas still top homeowners' "most wanted" improvements list. Discussion of family preferences and needs with a home improvement contractor, a plumbing supplier, an appliance dealer can help to define costs, firm up plans and clarify best use of space.

HARDWARE — This is one of those low-cost improvements that pays off big in beauty. Attractive pulls and knobs give an instant facelift to cabinets and closets for just a few dollars. They're among the "little touches" that favorably impress a homebuyer.

A man's character is determined by what he says no to.

Thumb women study at MSU

Several area women were co-eds at College Week for Women held June 16-19 on the Michigan State University Campus. This four day event on "Michigan Women Who Care" was sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service. The women enjoyed a variety of classes that ranged from Design Dimension in Fabrics to Your State at Work and from Drugs and Alcohol to Creative Family Vacations. In addition to the morning classes, informative afternoon sessions were presented. Mrs. Clifford Hardin, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, was featured on Tuesday. Mrs. Melvin Gengrich and Mrs. Frank Hensch, both of Bad Axe, were on the program Wednesday afternoon. Each of them described their participation in community projects.

The women also enjoyed Capitol tours, a live theater production and a reception.

Monday at the Michigan Association of Extension Homemakers meeting, Mrs. Leonard Russell of Akron was named the State Health Chairman.

Attending the four-day event from this area were Mrs. Leonard Russell of Akron; Mrs. Paul Findlay of Caro; Mrs. Wayne Adam of Snover; Mrs. Jean Callendar of Snover; Mrs. Ewald Beyer of Bay Port; Mrs. Gilbert Tinney of Port Austin; Mrs. Walter Jackson of Watrousville; Mrs. Jack McLean of Applegate; Mrs. Clarence Koth of Fillion; Mrs. George Thurston of Vassar; Mrs. Stanley Grabbitz of Sandusky; Mrs. Earl Kasserman of Pigeon; Mrs. Walter Schrader of Reese; Mrs. Alvin Crittendon of Caro; Mrs. John Knorr of Sandusky; Miss Mary Kerr of Caro, Area Extension Home Economist, and Miss Judy Marks of Sandusky, Area Extension Home Economist. There were also several area women who were one-day visitors at College Week for Women.

NEEDLESS WORRY

The longer we dwell on our misfortunes, the greater is their power to harm us.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

It was general agreed during the session at the country store Saturday that it is a good thing most folks don't have but one mouth to eat with. Otherwise, allowed Zeke Grubb, we'd starve afore we could decide which mouth to use.

The fellers was kicking around the trouble with all the hemming and hawing in the world, Mister Editor, and it was moved and passed unanims that if Eve had give Adam a choice of apples and pears she would of saved everybody a heap of grief, cause old Adam would be there yet trying to figger out which one to take a bite out of. It were that kind of a session, with everybody talking and nobody being able to decide what time to quit and go home.

Zeke got us started with this report, where his preacher was visiting this family that had come to church a couple times. Final, Zeke said, the talk got around to joining the church, and the feller said they just hadn't been able to decide which of the churches around they wanted to join. It turned out, Zeke allowed, that the family has been living around here fer eight year and they still is visiting a church ever now and then trying to figger which one to honor with their membership.

Ed Doolittle was of the mind that our hole way of living is based on not being able to make up our minds. Ed said he had saw where you can order this $4 book that tells all about 75 different models of washing machines, so's you can pick out the best features of em all. Ed said that if some wimmen decide to send off fer the book, they is shore to be in worst shape than ever trying to pick one out of 75. Jest waiting fer a woman to decide which way she wants to turn at a cross-road is enuff to make men decide to stay off the road complete, was Ed's words.

Another item that come up was where the Government has reminded that GI loans fer all World War 2 servicemen runs out this month. Bug Hookum said it would be a sight in this world to see the fellers that will panic sudden and ask for a loan, after trying to decide to start making house payments fer the past 25 year.

Take a thing like a holiday, said Bug, and try to get people to decide when to have it. The only thing you can bet on, went on Bug, is that the banks will decide to close on all the choices.

And I see, Mister Editor, where wimmen now has quit hemming and hawing about their hems and is trying to decide where their waste is. The way things is going, I perdict that wimmen's necklines, wastlines and hemlines will run together and they'll all run around naked.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Chemical May Help Cherry Harvest

A Michigan State University horticulturist has found a chemical that could make mechanical harvesting practical for sweet cherries. By applying the experimental chemical, 2-chloroethylphosphonic acid, as a foliar spray 7 to 10 days before harvest, the force needed to remove the fruit is cut in half. Thus, the chemical might make it possible to mechanically harvest sweet cherries with very little damage to the fruit.

ON SCHEDULE for completion this fall, hopefully in time for school, is the new Rawson Memorial Library at the corner of Pine and Seeger Streets.

Inflation calls for check of home insurance policy

The inflation which you have been feeling in the pocketbook may be undermining your security in a way you can't feel at all. It may be weakening the protection afforded by your home or apartment insurance policy.

Most insured homeowners or apartment dwellers tuck their policies away with their deeds or leases and then forget about them. This is partly understandable, since nobody likes to think about sudden, unforeseeable damage or loss to his home. In our economy, however, a policy that is just right at the time of issue offers less and less protection the longer it is forgotten.

The fundamental rule of property insurance is that it should put you in the same financial condition after a loss or disaster as you were in just before it. That is what each policy is designed to do when it is first calculated. But before the normal three-year renewal time comes up, inflation is likely to render the policy inadequate.

It can happen fast. In the five years from July 1964 to July 1969, the consumer price index for the nation rose more than 18 per cent, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. In just one year, from July 1968 to July 1969, it increased 5 1/2 per cent. (Base is the 1957-59 period.)

How can you keep your property insurance protection at the proper level? Frederick Watkins, president of Aetna Insurance, has these suggestions: 1-Remind yourself of the date your policy was issued and the sums for which it provides. Then estimate the effect inflation has had on prices in your area. (It may vary from the national average.) Your insurance agent or broker may help you get this information, or you can check with the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Labor Department.

2-Don't feel compelled to wait until renewal to conform your policy to the new economic facts of life. You can do so any time. And consider providing for future, as well as past, inflation.

3-Make an inventory of the contents of your home or apartment and keep it up to date. On a room-by-room basis, list your possessions — from rugs and drapes to tables and chairs, from clocks to appliances, from clothing to jewelry. For each item, list the year purchased the original cost and present cash value. (This last figure should reflect replacement cost less depreciation.) Your insurance agent or broker, or an independent appraiser, can help you with these calculations. Such an inventory can be very helpful if you suffer a serious loss.

4-Remember that some possessions appreciate, rather than diminish in value. Included are some antiques, works of art and jewelry. All the more reasons to keep your policy up to date.

5-If you own your own home, stay informed of its current replacement value. Since building costs have risen sharply in most areas, it would be more costly to replace than you may realize.

MEDDLESOME

The easiest way to get into hot water is to pipe up with a shower of criticism.

MENTAL ATTITUDE

The pathway of life is always wide enough for the man who wishes to go straight.

Hawaii motif in food for fun night

Tuscola County 4-H Foods Club members literally had a "taste of Hawaii" at their annual Food for Fun Night, June 24. The theme, "Let's Explore Hawaii," was carried out in costume, food, music and program.

Each club prepared different Hawaiian foods for everyone to sample. Mrs. Keith Green of Caro and members of the Birch Valley 4-H club were in charge of preparing a delicious roast sucking pig.

The 4-H'ers learned about Hawaii in other ways. Misses Bonnie Cartwright and Sue Reich of the Busy Beavers club gave reports on Hawaiian games and costumes. Eight members of the Akron 4-H Club sang "Blue Hawaii." Miss Beverly Stack of the Busy Beavers Club gave a report on her trip to the Dairy Foods Conference at Michigan State University. Miss Lillian M. Dunlap of Caro showed slides of her trip to Hawaii.

The foods developmental committee should receive the credit for an outstanding evening. Members of the committee are Mrs. Lyle Clarke of Cass City, Mrs. Keith Green of Caro, and Mrs. Arnold Ortnor of Unionville.

Quarter million dollar business a family partnership

The Richard Collings and the Ray Brinkmans of Colling, 11 miles northwest of Cass City, started a family partnership business about a month ago.

If you are thinking that it is the usual type family business where a couple starts on a shoestring and uses hard work, enthusiasm, and determination to succeed...well, forget it.

The Brinkmans and the Collings have their share of enthusiasm, willingness to work and determination but they also have invested something not normally associated with family.

And the added ingredient is money...a lot of money. The two families are in the chicken business to the tune of more than a quarter of a million dollars.

It's big business but it's still a family operation and only the family is hired to do the work.

Housed in cages in a giant building 33 feet wide and 576 feet long are 33,000 leghorn chickens. The modern egg factory is so automated that the work is easily handled by the family.

Much of the daily labor is gathering the eggs. It is handled by the children of the two families: Jan, 4, Sherri, 12, and Shelly, 14, Brinkman and Roy, Dick and Randy Colling.

Helping pack the eggs are Mrs. Colling and Mrs. Brinkman while the men take care of minor repairs and remove dead birds from the cages.

The families stress the old fashioned virtues. We believe, Mrs. Brinkman said, that children should have to work, to accept responsibility. That's one important reason why the new business was founded.

The other, of course, is the low prices paid for farmers' cash crops. With the children's college educations ahead, Mrs. Brinkman sighed, we needed another source of income.

It's a gamble, she added, but then all farming is a gamble.

However, the families have done much to eliminate some of the risk.

The building and equipment cost $160,000 and the money was obtained through Production Credit Association. The owners decided to pay a higher interest rate (9 per cent) because only the building and equipment is mortgaged. Other sources might have been cheaper, Brinkman explained, but my farm would have to have been part of the security for the loan.

Another big expense is feed. The families buy all of it from a concern in Pigeon and the chickens consume four tons a day. That adds up to over $100,000 in the 13 months the birds are producing. Each of the 33,000 chickens cost $1.75.

You can see, said Brinkman as a smile crinkled his deeply tanned face and he tipped his cap with a calloused hand, that we are going to need to gather a lot of eggs.

The slim, young-looking dark haired farmer seems quietly confident that it will all work out.

Hopefully, he explained, we'll be able to make our investment pay for itself in seven years.

If the Brinkmans had decided to enter the egg business one year sooner they would have been off to a flying start. A year ago, eggs were bringing peak prices. Today the wholesale market is 29 cents for Grade A large eggs; 20 cents for mediums, and 10 cents for small eggs.

Since the flock is young, most of the eggs are medium sized.

However, the production is on schedule. The chickens now produce 15,000 eggs a day and the count is increasing at the rate of 1,000 eggs a day.

The aim is to get 80 per cent production around 26,000 eggs every day. It takes the kids about four hours to gather them in and they are paid on a business basis...one cent per flat gathered.

The secret to the operation, of course, is the volume production. The chickens take very little room. Four are housed in every wire cage that measures just 12 inches by 18 inches.

The eggs roll into troughs in front of the cages for easy pick-up and feeding and watering is automatic.

The building is divided in the center by a refrigerated room and the eggs are stored here while waiting for twice a week pick-up.

The chickens are bought when 20 weeks old and kept for 13 months. When they are sold they are worth 40 to 50 cents each.

Despite the size of the operation, it is actually a sideline for both families...a $250,000 sideline...but still an adjunct to the farm operation of both families.

Brinkman farms 300 acres and Colling has 400 acres, plus 8,000 chickens at his farm. Both farms are in the heart of some of the finest farm land in the State.

THIS BUILDING is unique in Michigan. It is a power assist gravity ventilation pre-fab structure 576 feet long. Feeding is automatic from the two large storage units (at right) and chickens are watered from a valve that the birds activate by pecking. Twenty-two 24-inch fans circulate the air and result in only a one-degree temperature variation from ceiling to floor even on cold winter days. The fans are reversible...blowing into the building in summer and facing outdoors in the winter.

E. J. Cooper family reunion held Sunday

The annual reunion of the E. J. Cooper family was held at their farm on S. Crawford Rd., Deford, Sunday, June 28. The celebration also commemorated the 40th wedding anniversary of the Coopers.

A potluck dinner was served and games were played in the afternoon.

Among the 56 persons attending were: Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Cooper, Sheri and Cindy, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Monte and son, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Campbell and family of Deford, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Cooper and family of Mayville, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Cooper and family of Cass City, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Cooper and sons of Brown City.

Others were Mrs. Velma Gruber and girls and Larry Goffar of Lake Orion, Mrs. Glen Young and family of Clarkston, Mr. and Mrs. Rudell Abney and family of Pontiac, Mr. and Mrs. James Godwin and Mrs. George Godwin of Dothan, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. Julius Jones of Graceville, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Fox and family of Harrisburg, Ill.

Mrs. Emma Aiken and Mrs. Ina Richards of Pontiac were afternoon visitors.

Money could do more for folks if they expected it to do less.

THIS IS HALF of the crew that collects some 15,000 eggs daily at the Ray Brinkman farm near Colling. From front to rear: Jan, Sherri and Shelly Brinkman.

Cereal leaf beetle
infests bean crop

BY DON KEHLER

In the last week I saw the change in crop injury from that caused by cereal leaf beetle on oats to navy bean growth damage.

The first calls and field inspection occurred in the Vassar-Richville areas where over four inches of rain fell in less than a week. It didn't take long before calls started coming in from other areas of the county.

All the navy bean fields inspected had the same symptoms. Colored beans so far do not seem to be affected.

The first question generally asked was if the herbicide had caused the damage. This could have been entirely possible if it was not a fact that the same symptoms were found on bean plants whether herbicide was used or not used.

In all cases we found strips of emerged beans where parts or all of the primary leaf was completely gone. On others the edges of the leaves were curled and dried up. A few had yellowish areas on the primary leaves. Some had root rot, others did not and some the bottom of the root stalk was curved sideways.

So what was really causing this stunted, dried leaf, balding, root rot, curved root symptoms? There are several abnormal growth inhibiting factors causing the stress and damage. Excessive soil moisture, soil compaction, wind burn, sun scald, soil abrasion, too great a variation of day and night temperatures and herbicide damage.

I really can not place the blame on any one causal agency. Any one, or combination of causal agencies worked alone or together compounding the stress placed on the delicate just emerged navy bean seedling. Cultivation is perhaps the best solution now. This can open the soil which helps increase plant growth to compete against root rot injury or kill. Some have the urge to replant, but they are taking a chance going this route at this time of the year.

Thursday, July 2 at 7:00 p.m. we will be having a two-light tour of the corn variety plots on Ray Laursen's farm. All persons who attend this tour stop will see thirty of our best modern day corn hybrids being grown under our most acceptable methods for greatest yields. Ray Laursen's farm is located on Darbee Road - one mile north and 1 3/4 miles west of the blinker light in Fairgrove.

We'll be looking at and comparing some real excellent corn that would make anyone pleased to say was his.

Careful study pays off when revamping home

Although many home owners have found that household improvements protect and extend the long-term value of their property, such projects don't always achieve that effect.

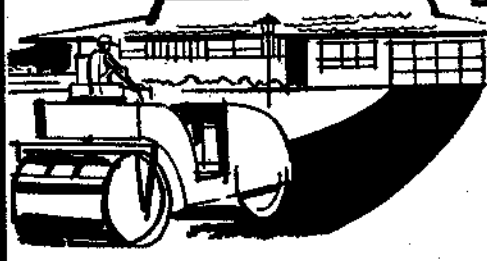

Some improvements tend to increase the value of a home more than others. Adding a third bedroom to a two-bedroom house surely enhances the worth of the structure. But adding a sixth bedroom to a five bedroom house might very well contribute less value to the property than the cost of the addition.

Similarly, improvements made to accommodate unusual taste or unique family circumstances may be of no advantage at all when the time comes to sell. In fact, remodeling projects that reflect highly individualized personal preferences can, in many instances, actually detract from the value of the property.

Contractors who specialize in remodeling point out that converting an untidy, catch-all basement into a family entertainment center is one of the soundest home-improvement investments any family can make.

WOMEN DEPARTMENT

The RLDS Women Department met at the home of Miss Lillian Dunlap of Caro.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Bruce Kritzman, women's leader. Mrs. Voyle Dorman had charge of the worship service. Roll call was answered by nine to "A Cherished Memory of Family Activity." The lesson from the study book, "Mission, Mission, Mission" on Gifts to Zion from Everywhere was taught by Mrs. Howard Gregg.

Mrs. Howard Gregg and Mrs. Wilbur Dorman will be co-chairmen of the next bake sale in July. Secret friends were revealed and new ones drawn.

Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Gerald Miller.

The July meeting will be with Mrs. Bruce Kritzman.

DIRECTORS MEETING

The Board of Directors of Sanilac County on the Council on Aging met Monday afternoon, June 22, at the municipal building in Sandusky. There were nine board members present.

Further plans were made on the county picnic to be held July 30 at the Sanilac County Park No. 2. There will be a potluck dinner at noon with the Crosswell group in charge.

Matt LaBelle of Sandusky was named a member of the Council which now numbers 10. Another open meeting is being planned for October. They also discussed the possibility of putting out a quarterly newsletter.

SPACE IS MONEY

But investigate before you invest in order to be sure that all of your basement space works for you. Mistakes can be costly, and one of the most expensive errors a homeowner can make is to maintain a massive, outdated heating unit in his basement. The space that an old-fashioned, bulky furnace or boiler squanders can be measured in dollars and cents, since space is money.

Some modern boilers and furnaces are exceptionally compact. Many gas units are no bigger than a two or three-drawer filing cabinet. And they need not be confined to the basement, but can be installed in a closet, kitchen, alcove, attic or laundry room—almost any inconspicuous place. Thus, the entire basement can be devoted to recreation or entertainment facilities for whole family use.

It is important to decide exactly what you are trying to accomplish. Make a list of the things you want done, and be sure that your ideas are workable. Check building codes and other restrictions, and find out if your home's construction will permit the changes.

AVOID CONTRACT PRESSURE

Next, draw a simple floor plan on graph paper, sketch your furniture in scale and clip out those pieces. As you make your layout keep in mind open traffic areas, a center of interest, conservation groupings, storage space and adequate lighting.

If you are having the job done professionally, be sure that your contractor is qualified by inquiring about other jobs he has done. Check the results with some of his former customers. A dime invested in a telephone call could save you hundreds of dollars.

Be wary of the itinerant remodeler. If you can't locate his company, future adjustments will be your responsibility. And be leery of the man who pressures you to sign a contract by saying, "If you sign tonight we'll start the job tomorrow." Skilled contractors usually are busy contractors, and they complete their projects in the order that they accept them.

FRENCH FRIED ONIONS

The new onion varieties, Spartan Banner and Spartan Gem, will soon give Michigan growers a shot at their share of the french fried onion ring market. The new varieties, developed by Michigan State University horticulturists, produce enough onion rings of good thickness and size to be well suited for french fries. Seed will be available in 1971.

Local girls attend Grand Bethel

Members of Cass City Bethel 77 attending Grand Bethel Session in Grand Rapids from June 17-20 were: Honored Queen Cheryl Curry; Senior and Junior Princesses Shelly Leitch and Kimberly Curry, respectively; Teresa Tracy, Guide and Past Honored Queen, and Marie Seddon, Fourth Messenger; Mrs. Claire Leitch, director of music, and Mrs. Basil Wotton, guardian and member of Grand Fraternal Sunshine Committee.

Mrs. Wotton was installed as a Grand Councillor of the Grand Guardian Council of International Order of Job's Daughters.

The members visited their grandmother, Mrs. Jane Steiner, at the Masonic Home at Alma Sunday. Other residents of the Home from the Uby Chapter and Gagetown Chapter were also visited.

Home falls can be fatal

People fall over everything including their own feet. Each year an estimated one million Americans fall and damage something - usually considerably more than their dignity. Falls are the second leading cause of accidental death in this country, topped only by motor-vehicle accidents. About 20,000 people die from falls each year, which is more than those from fires and drowning put together.

Home and office are two places where a great many of the deaths due to falls occur. Surprisingly enough, over 90% of the accidents are preventable. Although plunging elevator shafts and gaping manholes claim their occasional victims and make dramatic headlines, junior's toys and the family bathtub are statistically more dangerous. Office workers seem to be surrounded by potential assassins. These are not the personnel but rather the chairs, stairs, cabinets, wires and other office equipment that white collar workers manage to fall over, into or onto, thereby causing injuries which are often severe.

The most common falls occur in hallways and work areas and are caused by running, slipping or tripping over wires, desk drawers, file cabinet drawers, etc. Apparently some employees have a knack for falling over chairs, sometimes injuring themselves because they miss their seats completely. Studies made to date show that employees themselves, rather than faulty equipment, are primarily responsible for the majority of injuries. Undoubtedly some persons are more accident prone than others. A link has been developed statistically between non-conventional, or "deviant" behavior and accident proneness. The more deviant an individual is, the more likely he is to have an accident. The word deviant is defined as meaning the rejection of the "safe and sane" in favor of the non-conventional, - it describes the person who does not conform to the accepted norms of the larger society. Among these are persons who participate, for example, in mass protests and "happenings", read underground newspapers, cut classes, cheat on examinations, get into fights, and disobey the instructor. These are indicative of attitudes and values which are included in "deviant" behaviors, and result in more accidental injuries; in fact, persons involved in extreme deviant behavior are from 3 to 5 times more likely to incur accidental injuries than those who are among the conformists.

A relationship has also been established between alcohol and accidental injuries and deaths. Persons admitted to emergency services at hospitals for home accident injuries had a higher involvement with alcohol than those admitted for non-accident reasons. There was a greater involvement of alcohol in all types of accidents as compared with non-accidents. The greatest involvement was found in transportation accidents and in injuries resulting from fights or assaults.

Accidents have grown so frequent that all sorts of studies are being made. As a result such things as these are being found: The accident rate for employees with less than a year of service is twice that of people with one to four years. New employees have 3 to 4 times more accidents than people with 5 or more years of employment.

"Unsafe acts" caused 80% of all office accidents. Nearly all are the fault of the employee, although unfamiliar surroundings, new equipment or altered work tasks increase the likelihood of accidents, even among veteran workers. Several suggestions have been made for lowering the number of deaths and disabling injuries due to accidents. One is to learn to fall, for example; don't stiffen up and topple like a tree, relax and crumple like a sack, turn the body to permit landing on a well padded part, or catch weight on a broad part of the body to take up the shock. If falling forward or onto hands and knees, reach out only moderately with arms, have fingers spread to distribute the area of contact, and let the arms give and fold in toward the body. Roll, if there is sufficient momentum to do so.

Other suggestions have to do with the environment: don't run up and down stairs taking two at a time or attempt to save an extra trip by loading yourself up with so many unwieldy packages that you're walking blind. Don't prowl at night without a light. When changing light bulbs or dusting those high, awkward corners, bring out a stepstool or stepladder instead of making do with chairs, tables or packing cases.

Neat housekeeping is as important to home safety as careful habits. Remove the hazards and the possibility of an accident is lessened.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Marilyn Suranye of Caro is leading her nearest opponent by 10 books in the continuing contest for the coveted queen's crown of the week-long Cass City Area Centennial, July 17-24.

Miss Suranye has sold and turned in a total of 130 queen's ticket books. In close pursuit with 120 books sold is Mrs. Dwayne Peters of Cass City.

"Help!" was the loud, clear plea issued by Centennial Pageant Director Mel Eckerstrom this week as deadlines for pageant casting closed in on a production still some 40 persons undercast. Eckerstrom announced that he still needs 30 men and 10 women for various episodes in the six-night pageant set for July 19-24 at the Recreation Park.

Greenleaf township voters will decide whether or not a 20-year-old township man will be allowed to open a half-mile stock car track at a special meeting Saturday, July 17, in Greenleaf Township Hall.

The churches of Cass City will unite together on "Religious Heritage Sunday," July 18, to present a program in song and message emphasizing the contribution which the Christian faith and the various churches have made toward the moral and spiritual growth of the community over the past one hundred years.

TEN YEARS AGO

A barn on the Bruce Sherman farm, four miles south and three miles east of Cass City, burned to the ground Monday destroying a quantity of old hay.

June was a busy month for the Rev. Robert J. Searls. June 12 he assisted in ordaining his 70-year-old father into the ministry. Less than two weeks later he and his family cut their roots in Franklin where they had lived since 1954 and came to Cass City where Rev. Searls has taken the Methodist pulpit.

Robert Stickle, driver training instructor at Cass City High School, explained the changes in the driver training program at the school and told Rotarians of the results of the first few years of the program Tuesday noon at the New Gordon Hotel.

The Board of Trustees of the Cass City Methodist church this week elected Audley Rawson as its chairman for the 1960-61 year. John Marshall was named secretary. Others on the board are Delbert Profit, Chester Graham, Jack Hulien, Horace Bolen, and Audley Kinnaird.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Word was received this week from R. J. Baldwin, director of extension of Michigan State College, that the State Board of Agriculture has appointed H. William Newland as assistant county agent in Tuscola county. The appointment was effective July 5.

M. B. Auten pointed out the dangers of inflation in assisting black market, in a talk given at the Rotary Club luncheon Tuesday. A movie on the subject was shown following Mr. Auten's remarks.

A general discussion on the project of building a community house next spring was held at the Gavel Club dinner Tuesday evening. The house as planned is to serve as a meeting place for service clubs and as a recreation center in the park.

Reports of sales of war bonds in Tuscola county up to June 30 showed sales of $1,474,275.75, which was just $8,724.25 short of the county's quota of $1,483,000 in the seventh war loan campaign. The campaign will continue until July 7. Clarence Bougher, county sales manager is optimistic that the goal will be reached.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Among the thirty-four underclassmen at Michigan State College who made an unusually high scholastic record during the spring term was Bernita Taylor of Cass City according to Miss Eida Yakely, registrar. Her record was all "A's" in all but one subject.

Slot machines and punch boards have come out of hiding in late weeks in Tuscola county and county officers have issued a warning that after next Saturday all such devices found in the county will be confiscated and their operators prosecuted.

Rev. Charles P. Bayless, who has served as pastor of the Cass City and Bethel Methodist Episcopal churches for the past two years, has been returned here by the annual Detroit conference at Bay City.

The Board of Supervisors requested township treasurers to make special efforts to collect all taxes possible through the methods provided by law. There is a sum exceeding $150,000 in delinquent taxes in Tuscola county.

ENGAGED

Engagement Told

SANDRA KAY GEIGER

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Geiger of Cass City announce the engagement of their daughter, Sandra Kay, to Martin Keith Hyzer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hyzer of Caseville.

Martin is a recent graduate in Agriculture Technology at Michigan State University. Sandra is a recent graduate of Northwest Institute.

Wedding plans are indefinite.

DOROTHY MARIE BROWN

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Brown of Snover announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Marie, to John Brinker, son of Mrs. Isabelle Brinker and the late Earl A. Brinker of Sandusky.

Miss Brown is a graduate of Mariette High School and Brinker is a graduate of Sandusky High School.

Miss Brown is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Churchill of Cass City.

Character allows a man to be trustworthy on his own account.

Mrs. David M. Waid

Rev. Fred H. Johnson assisted by Rev. Robert L. Conley officiated at the marriage of his daughter Ruth Ann and David Morton Waid at Wesleyan Church, Mishawaka, Ind., at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, June 20. The church flowers were baskets of white gladioli and mums accented with aqua.

The organist was Mrs. DeWayne Beron of Marshall. Miss Carol Skiffington of Lansing sang several selections.

Daughter of Reverend and Mrs. Fred Johnson of Wenatchee, Wash., the former pastor of the Cass City United Methodist Church, the bride approached the altar with her father. She chose an heirloom ivory satin and lace gown with full flowing train designed by herself, fashioned from her mother's wedding gown. She carried a bouquet of white roses and mums centered with an orchid corsage. Her veil and the bridesmaids' headpieces were designed by the bride.

The maid of honor was Donna Zehr of Ligonier. Jane Johnson, sister of the bride, and Deborah Waid, sister of the groom, were the bridesmaids. They wore gowns of aqua crepe featuring sheer sleeves accented with ivory lace and matching headpieces, fashioned similar to the bride's gown. They carried baskets of white daisies with tints of aqua.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. E. David

Waid of Homer, the groom was attended by Tom Case of Flint as best man, Jeff Waid and Tom Blough of Jones, Mich., were the groomsmen. Bob Potter of Homer and Dan Byars of Mishawaka were the ushers.

A wedding reception was held for 100 guests at the Bethel College Dining Hall.

The bride's mother wore a pink crepe dress with a lace coat. The groom's mother chose a light green dress. Both wore gardenia and white rose bud corsages.

Following a wedding trip to northern Michigan, Canada and Ohio the couple will live at the Dalley Union Protestant Church, Cassopolis, Mich., where they will be assisting. Both are seniors at Bethel College. The groom is president of the Student Body Council.

TO HONOR VENEMAS FOR 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Venema, of Hurd's Corner Rd., will mark their 25th wedding anniversary Saturday, July 11 with an open house for friends and relatives at their home. They were married July 11, 1945 at the Colwood United Brethren Church.

North Elmwood Farm Bureau meets

The North Elmwood Farm Bureau Community Group held their June meeting at the Don Loomis home with 10 present.

The group voted to sponsor Miss Jane Laurie as their nominee for County Bean Queen.

Discussion for the evening was on problems of the welfare system in the county. It was the opinion of the group that there are too many people on welfare that are able to work and too many who have found work but are still drawing welfare payments. They pointed out that situations require higher taxes every year.

The load restrictions on farm trucks was also discussed. There are only three counties in Michigan that still enforce the weight limits. There will be a resolution by the community group this year asking that all the counties have and enforce the same load limits. The next group meeting will be a picnic July 12 at the Gagetown Park at 1:00 p.m.
