FROM THE Editor's Corner

Do General Motors and the AFL–CIO know today just about what the final settlement in the industry will be?

It's a thought that keeps recurring as the hassel between the union and the Big 3 unfolds in the news media.

And the reason that it keeps popping up is due to events at the bargaining table here when the school district and the teachers' union were blasting away at each other before this year's settlement was reached. There are many similarities between the auto negotiations and the mini-impact bargaining in Cass City.

It really is a cat and mouse game. The auto industry makes an offer of "the richest economic package in history" and the AFL–CIO labels it completely unacceptable because it fails to meet even one of the Union's demands.

Paralleling this at the local level, James MacTavish tells the board that the school isn't bargaining realistically when it wants to settle teachers' top salaries at $10,500 and the school negotiators respond that the offer is a darn good wage increase and the union had better grab it.

And all the time, both the school and the union know that neither is about to come to terms on this basis.

GM's Chief Negotiator Earl Bramblett is quoted as saying "It is a sound and realistic proposal under present conditions". I'll swear that the same or nearly the very same words were mouthed by Al Luce, speaking for the Cass City school district.

Actually, it's all part of the propaganda campaign aimed at casting the other party in the role of villain in the eyes of the public.

There evidently has to be just so much saber rattling before the teams get down to business. MacTavish announces grimly that there is just no way that the teachers will report to school this fall without a contract settlement.

And Supt. Donald Crouse replies, I don't think that would help your image in the community much and Luce says, I had this happen at other schools and they came away with less than we originally offered.

Sort of makes you think of UAW President Leonard Woodcock when he says that the company attitude can lead to a strike and union members could continue a strike long after strike funds were exhausted. We can still do it the old way if we have to, he adds.

Or of Macolm Denise of Ford who announces blithely that the substantial improvements it (contract offer) contains in both wages and benefits underscore our desire to reach a prompt and peaceful settlement.

While all this rhetoric continues the deadline nears and only then, seemingly, do both groups settle down to working out a contract.

I recall that William Seaton, former GM negotiator, once said that in all his years of labor bargaining the company spent the same percentage of its total costs for labor with every contract signed except for the World War II years.

In Cass City the school budget was estimated closely by the administration long before the master contract was ratified.

In Cass City the teachers and the school were never actually close to a strike.

Let's hope that the parallel evident between the two groups continues to the end.

No way can Michigan's economy stand a strike without really hurting.

FOR MANY OF these members of the Pioneer Club, a group of Senior Citizens, Medicare has been very beneficial, reports President Mrs. George Krause at a recent meeting in Cass City. However, there are snags in the complete health care program for the aged.

Drownings prod Odesa Lake controls

There have been more drownings in Tuscola County so far this year than the previous two years combined, a check of the records at the Tuscola County Sheriff Department revealed this week.

Already six persons have lost their lives in water mishaps as compared to a total of five the preceding two years.

About the only pattern discernible in the deaths this season is that all but one occurred in non-supervised areas.

Only the death of Steven James Mercer, the nine-year-old Mayville youth who drowned in a pond in the front yard of his home, deviates from the pattern.

Two of the victims were claimed in mishaps at Shay Lake when Floyd N. Richards, 31, and Henry Johnson Jr., 42, died.

A 16-year-old girl, Rebecca Mullins of Chicago, Ill., died in Odesa Lake.

Two others were claimed in the gravel pit at Anderson Park, a high risk swimming area for several years. This year Gary Malcolm Morey, 18, of Saginaw died in June and William Everette Bellman, Millington, 9, succumbed in July.

Sheriff's deputies say that Anderson Park swimming is especially dangerous because of the sudden, steep drop off in the swimming area.

It's quick and it's deep, say deputies who have dived to recover drowning victims at the site.

While none of the areas today has swimming safety equipment or supervision, authorities at private Odesa Lake reported to Sheriff Hugh Marr that they were installing more safety equipment.

Plans for swimming safety include lifesavers, roping off of approved swimming areas and mouth to mouth resuscitation equipment.

Rustling or bad luck?

Erla's search in vain for 7 missing cows

Seven cattle owned by Erla Packing Co. of Cass City are missing after a herd of 25 animals were mysteriously let loose last week from the pens at the company's slaughtering house, a quarter mile south of Cass City on Cemetery Road.

It was the second incident in the Cass City area involving cattle missing or rustled from meat packers.

Two head stolen from Michigan Livestock Exchange Yard were found when taken to Croswell for resale.

Richard Erla said this week that it is not definitely known whether the cattle, valued at more than $2,000, were stolen or are roaming around in the woodlands near the Cass River.

The reason for the doubt is that all 25 head were turned loose and all but seven found. "But we've really searched the area," Erla noted, "and we haven't come up with a trace. We've had three men on horseback looking for three days."

Meanwhile, authorities have notified stockyards to be on the lookout for the cattle and watch for evidence that hip tags had been removed.

Volunteer help created another complication. A rumor started that a $25 reward was being offered for each lost cow, dead or alive, Erla explained, and a crew on motorcycles started running through the area to find them.

It was necessary to get the police before the search ended.

Kaake faces rustling charge

Richard Roy Kaake, 22, of Decker waived examination Friday in district court in Sandusky on a charge of grand larceny of livestock after he rustled two Holstein cows from Michigan Livestock Exchange in Cass City.

The cows had been purchased by Merritt Packing Company of Carrollton, two of a herd of 17. When the packing company representatives came to the yard, they counted 15 instead of 17 head of cattle.

Bad Axe State Police Trooper Richard J. Richter investigated. He learned that two animals matching the description of the missing Holsteins were sold Monday at Croswell Stockyards for $614.

Kaake was arrested and police reported he has admitted the rustling in a signed statement. The youth was a former employee of the stockyard.

Judge Eugene Deegan placed Kaake on $500 bond while awaiting trial.

Bruce Hendrick accidentally shot in foot

Bruce Hendrick, 29, was treated at Hills and Dales General Hospital after he accidentally shot himself in the foot Friday morning while squirrel hunting.

The mishap occurred as Hendrick was returning to his house on Bach Road, six miles north of Cass City. The gun accidentally discharged as he was walking through the field to his house, according to the Tuscola County Sheriff's department.

The bullet entered on the inside of his ankle and came out through the bottom of his foot.

Hendrick said that he did not know why the rifle discharged and added that he thought the safety was on.

Full program slated for South African team

Cass Cityans have a rare opportunity to learn first hand about South Africa and meet six of its outstanding citizens Friday in an open meeting at the Cultural Center, Tom Proctor, Rotary governor-elect from Cass City, said this week.

Proctor is the chairman of the Rotary program that brought the six men into District 631 which includes the Thumb and he was in Frankenmuth Sunday to greet the men as they arrived here.

These men are really outstanding, he told Cass City Rotarians at their noon luncheon Tuesday. Besides being learned men they are fun to be with, Proctor feels.

Three of the seven visitors will stay at the homes of Rotarians Proctor, Jim England and John Graham. The remainder will be housed in Caro.

They arrive in Caro Friday and after a tour of the village will be in Cass City for the open meeting Friday night.

The team leader is Andrew VandenAardweg, 41, a chaplain in the armed forces. Peter Carwright, 34, is a lecturer in geography at the Teacher's College in Bulawayo, Rhodesia. Pompe vanMeerdervoort, 29, is an orthopedic surgeon. After his six weeks with the study group he plans to study at several universities.

Philip VanRooyen, 30, is a lecturer in architecture at the University of Pretoria.

Mike Raath, 29, is a curator of the Queen Victoria Museum at Salisbury.

Louis Cloete, 34, is an architect while the final member of the team is Jeff Chapman, 28, an assistant manager of Executor and Trust Company at Pretoria. He is the only bachelor among the visitors.

Besides the general meeting Friday, a full schedule is planned for the visitors before they leave for Pigeon Wednesday, Sept. 16.

During the week end they will be guests of Roger Little at the Littles' cottage on Saginaw Bay.

Monday they will participate in a school classroom exchange in Cass City and lunch with the Cass City Ministerial Association.

In the afternoon a study of the local school system will be followed by a tour of General Cable Corporation.

Tuesday morning they will participate in a local government seminar and lunch with Cass City Rotary. Tours of Anrod Screen Cylinder Co. and Walbro Corporation are slated in the afternoon.

The groups stay here will be capped by a Rotary swimming and barbecue party at the Proctor home Tuesday evening.

Custodial care top problem for senior citizens

If you measure progress by the number of programs available and the amount of money expended, Senior Citizens never had it so good as they do right now under Medicaid and Medicare programs designed to banish health care financial problems in old age.

Despite the ever widening public assistance programs serious problems still remain in Tuscola county and the Thumb, according to authorities in the field today.

The problem centers around the care for Senior Citizens needing custodial care..not the acutely ill.

For Senior Citizens needing general hospital care, Medicare has been an unquestioned boon... paying hospitals for costs that could bring financial ruin while generally upgrading service in many extended care facilities.

Byron Landholt, administrator at Hills and Dales General Hospital, reports that Medicare in most cases pays the expenses of patients on a cost basis for the time they are in the hospital.

There are a few minor problems and greatly increased bookkeeping requirements connected with Medicare, but generally results have been excellent, he feels.

Senior Citizens that have had occasion to use Medicare are enthusiastic about it. A check of Pioneer Club members, a group of Shabbona area Senior Citizens, revealed that several had been hospitalized and used Medicare successfully and without problems.

But Medicare extends beyond general hospitals. And it is in these facilities that the more stringent regulations have brought major headaches even though the Medicare policy of paying actual costs prevails.

Don Peterhans, Tuscola County Social Welfare Director, explains it. To qualify for Medicare patients, the Tuscola County Medical Care Facility was required to add more qualified, educated persons to its staff at salaries that these people are able to command.

A full-time pharmacist was needed. A dietician with a degree now must handle food preparation and nursing requirements were beefed up so that more registered nurses and other staff people were added. There are also endless forms to complete that add to administrative costs.

Undoubtedly, these reforms have upgraded patient care along with cost. The kicker, Peterhans points out, is that Medicare funds are in short supply. The government is feeling the money pinch.

Consequently, Medicare administrators are constantly telling the facility to remove patients from Medicare rolls... long before the maximum of 100 days is used.

"We only have 2 or 3 Medicare payment patients out of 123 patients right now," Peterhans said.

And when Medicare runs out patients either pay the costs themselves or are placed under Medicaid, a State supported plan for senior citizens with total assests of less than $1,500.

It's here that the increased costs created by Medicare requirements begin to rub...especially for the chronically ill patients who can't get in to state-supported facilities.

Medicaid pays costs only up to a maximum of $17.48 per day. After this it pays 40 per cent of costs up to $21 and nothing after costs pass this figure.

Right now the State reimbursement handles costs for the Tuscola County Medical Facility. The cost per patient day at the facility is $16, second lowest in the State. But other facilities do not operate as cheaply. In addition the county facility has a waiting list - all eligible residents can't receive service.

In Sanilac county, a newer facility at Sandusky has a patient cost running about $21 a day and its cost is about average in the State.

Money to make up the difference in costs and Medicaid payments comes from county taxpayers.

But larger than the problem of the facilities, is the problem of the patients.

Remember, that the Medicaid program is restricted to citizens with assets of $1,500 or less.

So the poor, but not destitute, really suffer.

Persons with money have no problem. If the cost of entering one of the plush new care facilities which range upwards from $15 per day is no hardship, there are many fine care centers available.

Beautiful new facilities in Bridgeport, Frankenmuth and other nearby areas have vacancies....are advertising for patients.

Extended care facilities have to be modern and up-to-date to meet stiff health department requirements. These regulations have caused many Thumb nursing homes to close because they no longer could make money and comply with the health department's demands. It left a void that has been filled in private homes.....the 3-bedroom custodial homes.

There is a wide range in the quality of these homes, authorities say.

They are State-licensed but are not subjected to the myriad inspections and regulations that extended care facilities experience.

Consequently, persons entering relatives in these homes should take a rather careful look at the staff and the facilities before placing loved ones for care.

Unquestionably, these custodial homes fill a need in the care of the aged. In Huron county for instance, Mrs. Nelson Severn of Elkton reports that there are 117 of a total of 159 beds now occupied.

Payment for this care is considerably less than it is in other medical facilities. The State pays on a sliding scale that varies between $140 and $210 per month under its medical assistance provisions. In certain instances the maximum goes slightly higher.

At any rate it is substantially cheaper. One hospital administrator said that the homes were generally doing a fine job considering the small amount of money available for custodial services.

But the difference between most 3-bedroom units and new medical extended care facilities is striking.

If the observations of the men in the field are correct, and it would appear that they are, equal patient care for all senior citizens is still over the horizon.

And for the poor it may continue to be so for some time to come.

AT VASSAR

All night session fails to avert strike

An all night bargaining session Tuesday failed to bring agreement between the Vassar Education Association and the Vassar Board of Education and school there failed to open on schedule.

It was one of two districts in the Thumb with serious difficulties. In Ubly a fact finder's report was rejected by the Ubly Education Association and accepted by the Ubly Board of Education.

However, school is open in Ubly.

In Vassar, class size, salaries and other economic matters are key concerns still to be resolved. Vassar is the first school in the county not to open on schedule.

Ubly's battle is over salaries. David G. Heibrun, fact finder, recommended a salary schedule of $7,300 to $10,000 in 10 steps for BA degree teachers and a salary of $7750 to $10,450 for teachers with masters' degrees.

The teachers are asking for a schedule with a range of $7,400 to $10,400 for BA degree teachers and $8,000 - $11,000 for MA degree teachers.

The fact finder said that limited local effort made establishment of higher salaries a problem in the district. Several districts adjacent to Ubly.... Bad Axe, Cass City, Sandusky, have settled contracts at about the figure that the UEA is seeking.

Area escapes serious mishaps

Tuscola County and the Cass City area survived the long holiday week end with only minor accidents, a check of area law enforcement offices revealed.

Stanley Herston, 17, of Hazel Park suffered minor injuries in a crash Friday on Weaver Road, about five miles southwest of Port Austin.

Herston's car stalled when he attempted a U-turn on M-25 and stopped cross-wise on the pavement. His vehicle was struck by a car driven by Gerald B. Ross, 25, of Cass City.

State Police ticketed Herston for improper lane usage.

Thursday Florence Fay Carpenter, 53, of rural Cass City lost control of her car on Koepfgen Road, near Milligan Road. She told Tuscola Sheriff Deputies that the car swerved when she hit a puddle of water and hit the railing of a bridge.

Harrison Dewayn Shotwell, 60, of Marlette killed a buck deer when it darted in front of his car when he was driving on Deckerville Road, a half mile from Plain Road in Ellington township Sunday at 12:15 p.m.

Elaine Crane, 46, and Gloria Hartwick, 45, both of Cass City, were shaken in a two-car mishap Sunday afternoon in Bay Port.

Investigating officers said that a car driven by Constance Reagan, 24, Grand Rapids, struck a vehicle driven by James Crane, 49, of Cass City.

Both cars were travelling south and Crane stopped at the M-25 intersection and his car was hit from behind.

No yield loss in third alfalfa cut

Yes. Farmers can take that third cutting of alfalfa any time in September or October without appreciable damage or yield loss -- provided the third cutting has started to flower.

"Research since 1964 shows that cutting alfalfa in September is a sound practice," reports Milo B. Tesar, Michigan State University crop scientist. "Studies over the last three years showed there was no significant difference in the next year's yield if alfalfa was cut for the third time on September 1, September 15, or October 1. Under all cutting treatments, flowering had occurred."

The practice of September cutting represents an about-face from the old recommendation of "never cut in September." The recommendation was changed when MSU scientists found that adequate food storage, as measured by starches and sugars in the roots, had taken place prior to winter in September-cut crops.

Many now have a third cutting which has not started to bloom, because the second cutting was delayed due to wet weather in late to mid-July. Such alfalfa can be cut whenever flowering starts without any yield reduction or stand injury next year.

Farmers who take a third cutting in September should use varieties that are winter hardy and, preferably, wilt resistant. These should be fertilized annually, especially with potassium.

Sure-things will come your way-but first you must remove all the obstacles.

The theory that all's well that ends well may be all right, but why not start right?

CHEVY'S NEW LITTLE CAR IS OPEN FOR BUSINESS.

We call it Vega.

We also call it "the little car that does everything well."

Because it does.

Everything? Everything.

Vega moves well, stops well, steers well, rides well, handles well, responds well, passes well, travels well, parks well, wears well, and is priced well under what you'd expect to pay for such a talented little car.

In our highway tests, Vega has been getting gas mileage in the neighborhood of the little imports, which isn't a bad neighborhood.

Yet unlike your average little car, ours steps right out when you step on the gas.

The engine is a specially designed overhead cam four with a lightweight aluminum alloy block. It turns slowly and quietly at turnpike speeds, with power to spare.

Disc brakes are standard in the front. So are bucket seats, except on the truck.

How we doing so far?

Numbers speak louder than words.

The wheelbase is 97 inches.

Total length is just under 170 inches, or nearly four feet shorter than a full-size Chevrolet.

Height of the coupe is just 50 inches, nine inches lower than the leading import.

Width: a nice stable 5½ feet.

Weight: 2,190 lbs. for the sedan.

Engine displacement: 140 cubic inches.

Fuel economy: about 25 mpg, with the standard engine and transmission, in our highway tests.

Horsepower: 90. You can order 110. (80 and 93 hp, SAE Net.)

Seating capacity: 4 adults.

What it all adds up to is a lot of little car.

Three cars and a truck.

Vega turned out so well that we couldn't turn out just one.

So we're turning out four: the sporty little hatchback coupe shown open and closed in the foreground below; the sedan, on the right; the Kammback wagon, on the left; and the little panel truck, in the rear.

Oh, and a special GT version of the coupe and wagon which we'll show you later on.

September 10th is Opening Day.

All 6,300 Chevrolet dealers are handling Vega, so you shouldn't have to go very far to see and drive one.

Chevy's new little car is open for business. Look into it.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(Any anyone else he can get to help)

Our nomination for the heel of the year is the guy that was in Fort's store a couple of weeks ago and helped himself from a canister placed on the counter.

The canister was there so concerned area residents could donate whatever they could to help the Dwaine Peters pay some of the expenses incurred following an auto accident where father and son were severely injured.

It was going along pretty good, too, Phil Retherford reported. There was over $5 collected in a short time. Change contributed by folks who wanted to help the family.

I know it was there because I counted it, Retherford noted, just before someone walked in and took it.

I think I know who it was, he continued, but I can't prove it.

A couple of high school youths broke the front window at the Chronicle last week while horsing around on the sidewalk. Nothing earthshaking about this, but it's nice to report that both of the youths came in to talk it over with me....accepting their responsibility.

A sequel to the incident caused a few raised eyebrows from pedestrians and created a few chuckles for the Chronicle staff.

An enterprising, imaginative practical joker took bogus "vampire blood" and smeared it around the window and on the sidewalk.

The "blood staining" immediately turned a mundane window breaking into an important conversation piece.

The ohs and ahs coupled with pedestrians' speculation of the amount of injury that must have occurred drew grins from all staffers who had originally been fooled themselves.

Why is it that most of us get a perverse delight in sharing life's little unpleasantries? It's Labor Day and it's raining and I don't feel a bit sorry for picnickers, swimmers or golfers as I sit behind my desk typing this trivia.

There are many farmers today who wouldn't think of betting for more than a cup of coffee who are really high stake plungers.

Any of them could sell their bumper corn crop before it's harvested for around $1.35 per bushel....and most of them would have been happy to take this amount when the crop was planted this spring.

Now, of course, corn blight in major corn producing areas has shoved the price up to $1.40 plus per bushel. What will happen to the price when the corn hits the market this fall is anybody's guess. If the blight really reduces supply, the price could skyrocket...but if the blight isn't all that bad the price will plummet.

Some farmers are hedging by selling a portion of the crop in the "futures" market. Some are selling all; others are selling none.

Every year, of course, farmers face a similar decision, but the unusual market conditions this year make the gamble bigger than it usually is.

"If It Fitz. . ." Why I go to Detroit

BY JIM FITZGERALD

I stood on a Detroit street corner and watched a long funeral procession drive past....

Every time I tell people my family is going to vacation in downtown Detroit for a few days, they shake their heads sadly and either question my sanity or praise my guts.

They use all sorts of 2-faced words to describe why Detroit is a lousy place to go. Only the non-hypocrites say plainly what they all mean: "You go to Detroit and those dirty niggers are liable to bust your skull and take your money."

One friend explained why he recently left Tiger Stadium before the game was over. He was sitting near some blacks who were drinking too much beer. He heard the expression "whitey" used several times.

"I got out of there before I got cut up," my friend explained.

Sure. And he went home in a chartered bus full of white men. Many of them were drunk. And if he'd received a nickel every time he heard the expression "nigger" used, he'd have enough money to make a ghetto almost liveable.

So it goes.

I go to Detroit a lot because I like to. That's the same reason I live in a small town 60 miles north. I don't like being asked to explain either choice. In this country, a man shouldn't have to justify why he goes where, or doesn't go. That's his business.

But people keep asking: "Why do you go to Detroit?" And I keep answering:

As a boy, I grew up in a home smack on U.S. 25 in Port Huron. I could step out the front door and hitch-hike 65 miles straight down that highway and end up in such marvelous places as Eastwood Gardens or the Avenue Burlesk with Scurvy or Briggs Stadium with Hal Newhouser.

I got the Detroit habit and I can't shake it. In 4 days in Detroit last week my wife and I ate great lobster at Joe Muer's, right on U. S. 25. We toured the Detroit Institute of Arts and lunched in Kresge Court. We saw the Tigers beat Milwaukee, in the rain, and we tunneled to Windsor to hear Lana Cantrell sing, in the lovely flesh. We visited little theatres, with bearded ushers, to see movies that'll never reach our hometown. We watched, fascinated, as 3 hookers plied their trade in a well-known bar.

We made our regular visit to renew a warm acquaintanceship with a nice man who is black. Our white skin was in the minority in many places, including a swimming pool.

To explain it selfishly, in Detroit I did things I wanted to do but couldn't do at home. Just as at home I do what I can't do in Detroit - make a living. I can't get along without that money - but I really don't know how I could get along without Detroit nearby, either.

I admit to selfish motives for fear someone might think I picture myself as some kind of bleeding hero. Hell, I know I could get my skull cracked by a racist Negro - or a dumb Irishman. I take all the sensible precautions in the big city. I know no mugger is going to ask how liberal I am before he slugs me.

My problem is that, somehow I am simply unable to judge a person - whether for cringing or kissing - by his complexion. And I am terribly saddened by a world that mostly disagrees with me, however politely and even unknowingly. A world that thinks I'm nuts to go to Detroit when I really don't have to.

..... So I stood in Detroit and watched the long funeral procession go by. And every person in every car was black, car after car. And toward the end I found myself hoping, practically praying, that just one white face would show up in that procession.

Just one, please.....

It isn't important what people say about you-the thing that really counts is what you make them believe.

Most families move through certain predictable stages in the life cycles of their members. Some sociologists divide the cycle into Beginning family and Preschool years, School years, Launching years Middle years and Aging years.

Can you analyze your family's present stage in order to prepare for the pridictable next stages?

Try to answer these questions about your own family:

1. How is our family like or different from other families?
2. How will our family change in this decade in
   a) make-up (who is in the family?)
   b) basic interests
   c) employment
   d) housing needs
   e) role of the parents
3. What can we do today that will help us during and after the changes occur?

The stages change and the people change. But if one thinks in terms of the family's usual progression through predictable stages, it is easier to understand what life is all about.

The modern automobile can outrun a tornado-and it's probably twice as dangerous.

A peck of trouble looks like a bushel to the man who is backed up against the wall.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

This true story was give the full attention of the fellers at the country store Saturday night, and after all the evidence was in the jury ruled that man bit off more than he could chew when he made the first computer. The fellers was agreed the computer has as much power fer good and evil as the split atom.

Zeke Grubb's preacher stopped by to set a spell and he had to fill his pipe five times afore he got the story told to the understanding of the least of us. I'll try to set it down fer you as a lamp unto the feet of all that comes after us. That was the way the preacher put it.

This young feller started from scratch in his ladies ready to wear shop, and he's been scratching ever since. About a year ago he bought a hole season's order of clothes, $25,000 worth. He opened some boxes and found out quick that sizes and styles was all jumbled up. He called the company and they told him what happended was the computer they use to fill orders must of gone off its rocker, if them things has rockers. They told him to send the clothes back and they would run his order back thru the computer.

He boxed all the clothes up and put em on a truck. The truck went to a warehouse where loads of frate fer disferunt places was made up. That night while the clothes was waiting to be shipped on, the warehouse was broke into and jest about all the clothes was took.

That set off a chain reaction, and the not in the chain is around the neck of the ladies shop owner, cause he's the small fish on the hook. He don't have clothes to sell, the company don't have the clothes, so they won't fill his order right or give him his money, the trucking company ain't got the clothes and the warehouse ain't got em, and their lawyers and their insurance company lawyers is using ever legal trick to keep from paying damages.

While the case goes round in court, the store has stopped going. The young feller had all his money tied up in them stole clothes, so he can't buy nothing to sell. Since he ain't doing no business, he can't meet paymunts on a loan, so he and his store is about to dry up and blow away. The lawyers keep gitting delays on his suit fer damages.

Mister Editor, I hope the young feller wins his case in a hurry and can save his business. Course the crooks that broke in the warehouse has the big hand in his trouble, and them high powered lawyers ain't helping him none, but that computer shore is a cessery, a complise or whatever it is you call a helping out crook. The computer ought to be locked up so honest folks would have to go back to counting on their fingers.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Michigan forecast: more teachers available for fewer job openings

For many years, one of the main problems faced by school boards in much of Michigan was the difficulty in finding enough qualified teachers to fill out the faculty.

The population explosion created a situation where the number of openings was larger than the number of teachers available.

Thus, anyone who wanted to be guaranteed of a job could go to college, get a teaching degree and pick and choose between offers from several schools.

That situation, however, has changed drastically, and it did so quickly.

The State Board of Education, in fact, says the state is now faced with an "oversupply" of teachers.

And it says the problem is "one that the state will need to learn to live with for some time to come."

The board says enrollments in schools already have hit a peak and will be going downward in the next years as the result of a slackening in the birth rate hit the schools. It predicts high school enrollments will hit a peak in 1975.

That would mean that while more and more teachers are being turned out by schools, fewer and fewer openings will be available for them to fill.

The president of the state board, Dr. Peter Oppewall of Grand Rapids, says several factors besides the change in school enrollments have caused the changed conditions.

"First," he says, "increases in higher education enrollment in Michigan have resulted in a parallel increase in teacher production. Teacher production rates have increased substantially during the past four years.

"In addition," he says, "teacher salaries, fringe benefits and working conditions have improved, and this has tended to retain many persons in teaching rather than encouraging them to elect other types of work.

"These same factors have attracted a number of former teachers back to the classroom, and teachers to come here from other states," Oppewall adds.

Several college and university placement officers reported trouble finding jobs for all of their spring graduates with teachers degrees, says the president.

"It is entirely possible that several hundred spring and summer graduates will not find teaching positions for the 1970-71 school year," he states. "With an opportunity to be more selective, employers are tending to place a greater emphasis on grade point averages and the nature of the experience reports from former employment and/or student teaching."

Another consequence, he said, may be the pushing out of jobs of the several thousand persons who have been hired to teach under temporary permit provisions because of a lack of teachers with degrees and permanent certificates.

THOUSANDS HELPED

Nearly one-third of a million Michigan residents are being fed today at least partly because of the U.S. Agriculture Department's food assistance programs.

The USDA's latest figures show 321,000 Michiganders are either receiving food from distribution programs or are able to purchase food stamps.

The Commodity Distribution Program provides more than 20 different foods to supplement the diets of needy persons.

The Food Stamp Program enables low-income persons to buy more food by exchanging money for coupons which are worth more for food than the money they are bought with could buy.

At last count, 288,940 persons were participating in 57 food stamp programs while 31,934 persons were involved in a food distribution program somewhere in the state.

In a survey of 11 midwestern states, it was determined more than two million persons received food assistance of some sort from the USDA.

Of that total, 400,000 were in commodity programs while nearly 1.7 million were participating in food stamp programs.

what's in a NAME?

People ask for brand-name products because they have become known for dependability and service through the years. These names assure us of quality.

We, too, are known by our names. Mention of John Smith immediately inspires a positive or negative reaction, depending upon the man's reputation. A good name is indeed our most priceless, yet most perishable, possession.

Day in and day out, our thoughts, words and actions must be on the side of goodness, for it is today which determines tomorrow's past — for good or for bad.

If we could only perform each act and utter each word as if they were our last, those by which we would be remembered, then how great would be the significance of our names!

In this confused era where better can we turn for guidance and help than to the Church? Here we will discover the teachings of Christ — the most hallowed name of all.

Animal pollution needs attention, too

By Don Kebler

Concern for environmental quality has embraced all sections of today's society and the livestock industry is no exception.

Recently Dr. C. R. Lassiter, Michigan State University Dairy expert, reported "Animals produce about one billion tons of waste per year and the concentration of animals, larger herds, and the close proximity of animals and people complicate the problem."

He further commented "Even though solutions to the waste problem may not be clear at the present time we have the scientific know-how to provide the necessary answers."

So as we stand now we have many factors affecting our environmental quality and no clear solutions. Those of us affected by smog, industrial wastes, etc. dislike it as much as those affected by animal waste effluvia. So regardless of the type of environmental quality deterrent we all desire it eliminated.

To eliminate the problem we have two possibilities, one to immediately close down the source producing the objectionable product and, two, to prevent economically the objectionable product from entering our environment after it is produced.

If the first procedure is followed a much more rapid improvement could be seen in our environmental quality than if the second was followed. However, to follow the first procedure could produce very serious economic repercussions on all of us and our society. To close down any offending industry, be it farming or not, reduces income to all participating in the industry plus income of those servicing that industry or marketing its products. This is only part of the picture. The loss of income by these people placed out of work no longer is available to the many merchants who previously sold these people consumer goods and services. Thus these merchants would see a reduced income too. These shut-down industries no longer can contribute to the tax revenue needs so the needs must be picked up by others. Reduced product outputs decrease consumer supply which could increase costs of those available. The effects on the community could be deteriorating and families suffer too.

To follow the second possibility would be most reasonable but it will require more patience, understanding, time and inconvenience.

I cannot forget a merchant's comment in a small South Dakota town having a large beef feeding lot nearby. He said "we in this town don't really notice the odor from the stockyards. After all without the yards this town and community might not be here today." Besides that he continued "I like to eat beef, so if all the beef feeding lots were closed because of odor I couldn't have a beef to eat." I'm sure his comments would hold true for milk, pork, poultry and lamb too.

Rotary sets schedule for travel series

Cass City Rotary's dual purpose Travel and Adventure series will start its fourth year Oct. 8 when Romain Wilhelmsen presents "South American Adventure" at Cass City High School.

The six travelogues are billed as dual purpose because the club uses the program as a money raising event for civic projects and at the same time is able to bring high caliber entertainment to the community.

The six lecture films feature six nationally known adventurers and explorers who have appeared on many of the more prestigious programs in the nation including National Geographic, Town Hall, Orchestra Hall and others.

Each is a professional photographer and narrates in person his film.

In addition to South America, the films will take viewers to Belgium, Austria, America and New Zealand. Of special interest will be the evening devoted to Michigan as Cass Cityans will have the opportunity to compare Michigan as seen by Robert Brouwer and our State as we think of it.

Rotarians are selling season tickets now. Students can view six performances for only $4. Adults pay $6 and a family admission for the season costs $15.

Rotarians emphasized that the season ticket is good for six admissions. It is not necessary to use the ticket once for each lecture. The ticket can be used to admit six persons to one performance or any other combination that adds up to a total of six admissions.

3 plead innocent in circuit court

Three persons were arraigned Tuesday on various criminal charges and all pleaded innocent of charges in Tuscola County Circuit Court in Caro.

Melvin R. Wheaton, Caro, stood mute on a charge of issuing a check for $116.88 to Craig Motors in Caro with insufficient funds. Bail was set at $250 and a trial date will be set.

Robert James Salres stood mute when charged with felonious assault against Paul Naugle Jr. He allegedly threatened Paul Naugle Jr. with a sawed off shotgun after an argument. The offense was alleged to have occurred in Juniata township.

Richard A. Lipan, 17, was charged with stealing three canoes with a value of over $100. The canoes are owned by the Mitten Bay Girl Scout Council.

He also stood mute.

Decker farmer hurt in mishap

A Decker farmer, Phillip Charles Smith, 28, of Snover Road, was injured Thursday, Sept. 3, when he became dizzy and fell on the turning power take off shaft of a hay chopper while it was stopped in a field.

State Police said Smith had stopped to check his machine when the dizzy spell hit. He was treated at McKenzie Memorial Hospital in Sandusky.

Illegal trail ride earns fine

The Department of Natural Resources succeeded in securing a warrant against cycle riders last week for riding on some 50 miles of illegal trails.

The charge on the warrant issued by Prosecutor James Epskamp was for violation of the permit issued by the DNR to Charles Nemeth for the trail ride sponsored by the Lucky Thumb Motorcycle Club.

As referee of the event Nemeth paid a fine and costs totaling $75 to Magistrate John Bowles in District Court in Caro. Nemeth was not a rider in the event.

Charge Saginaw driver in fatal crash

Emery LeDuc, 72, Saginaw, is expected to be arraigned late this month before District Judge Eugene E. Deegan in Sandusky on charges of negligent homicide.

LeDuc was charged by State Police of Sandusky following investigation of a traffic accident Aug. 26 at the corner of M-53 and M-46 in which Matthew Vining, 8, of Decker was thrown from a car and killed.

LeDuc allegedly was traveling east on M-46 when he went through a stop sign at the M-53 corner and hit a station wagon driven by Dorris Galloway of Decker. The boy was a passenger in the vehicle.

Bond was set at $100.

ONE FOR THE ROAD

Ice is nice for many needs

By Dan Marlowe

Ice is nice.

That's the slogan of a manufacturer and distributor of frozen water here in California.

The ice business is big business in the land of sunshine. Many of the companies have been in operation since the days when their main function was providing for ice boxes in homes.

"My last home ice box customer retired to a rest home only last year," says the general manager of one ice company. "She was an elderly woman who lived by herself. She could have afforded a refrigerator encrusted inside and out with diamonds and rubies, but she clung to her ice box. Twice a week we would deliver a 25-pound chunk of ice."

There are those who will insist that although ice has been with us for milleniums, it never realized its full potential until the invention of bourbon. Ice cubes sold at platforms, vending machines, supermarkets, and ma-and-pa groceries make up the largest use.

But far from the only use.

Construction companies in inland areas where the temperture soars into the 90's day after day use ice in their cement mix. This prevents the cement from hardening before it can be shaped.

Another use is in agricultural areas. Thousands of tons are needed during harvest time, blown in crushed form into trucks and railroad cars to keep the produce from spoiling in transit.

"We had a call for crushed ice last December, way out of the harvest season," an ice company vice president recalls. "Seems a guy had a lot filled with Christmas trees, and he caught a hot spell. The needles were falling off his trees. We sent a truck over and blew crushed ice all over the trees and saved them."

The National Ice Association publishes a brochure which recommends the use of ice in first aid. It can be used to numb a finger to remove a splinter, to stop minor burns from blistering, and to help stop bleeding. The brochure notes that many women use ice for skin care.

Regular city water is used to make ice, but filters at ice plants purify it still further. Ice is usually sparkling clear these days because the air is removed during freezing. The absence of air also means slower melting.

Not all ice ends up in cocktail glasses, construction cement, or on Christmas trees. Sometimes it's used in ingenious ways. A truck carrying an enormously heavy piece of machinery arrived at a factory recently and found that the cargo weighed far too much to be unloaded with any of the factory's equipment.

The solution was simplicity itself. Factory workmen manouvered a hugh block of solid ice to the truck's tailgate and slid the machinery onto it. As the ice melted, the machinery was eased safely to the ground.

So remember: ice is nice, and big business in the state of California.

New coach teaches fundamental football in opening practices

Followers of the career of Vince Lombardi, the late, great professional coach at Washington and Green Bay, won't have to ask any questions of Bill Philbin, Cass City High School's new head grid coach. If you know about Lombardi you already know a lot about Philbin.

Lombardi's philosophy and coaching strategy is the same as mine, Philbin told members of the Rotary Club in one of two speeches to local service clubs Tuesday. After the Rotary talk at noon, he appeared before the Gavel Club Tuesday night.

For like Lombardi, Philbin is a fundamentalist who believes in work, work, work. And like Lombardi, who is his model of what a coach should be, Philbin believes that there is nothing that takes the place of winning.

Football is a science, the coach believes, and the mental attitude is as important as physical attributes. We need to build up the winning tradition in Cass City, he says.

But the new coach doesn't promise that there will be a winner this year. We'll show up for every game, he says, in the only forecast that he will place on the record.

We are two or three men away from a sound football eleven, the new coach believes, and the team is young, inexperienced and not too fast.

The stress in 2-a-day practices has been building up quickness to compensate for lack of weight.

A better line on what the team will be like will come in a scrimmage with Reese Friday that is open to area fans.

We are building for the future, Philbin cautioned, and most of our players are young.

A glance at the roster backs up Philbin when he says the majority of the team is young. There are few seniors on the squad of 36 players that includes freshmen.

Several potential gridders have decided not to play football this year and a host of players were lost via graduation.

Philbin says that boys who don't want to play aren't any help to the team, anyway, and it's better if they don't report.

For one reason or another 10 of the 14 players who were scheduled for regular season duty last season will not be around when the opening whistle sounds Sept. 18 at Sebewaing. Gone are Tony Davis, Marty Zawilinski, Fred Hicks, John Wencley, John Smentek, Rob Alexander, John Dillon, Larry McClorey, Marty LeValley and Richard "Zike" Miller.

LeValley and Miller will be available for duty when the Thumb B Conference season opens Sept. 25 and are slated for heavy duty when they see action.

The new coach has been impressed by several junior backs. One is Fred Harbec... which comes as no surprise to veteran Hawk football fans. Harbec was being groomed for the important quarterback post last season and started a game.

He has grown three inches since last football season and now weighs 160 pounds.

But what is surprising is the progress made by Louis Salas. Philbin is high on the youngster. He believes he has the ability and determination to become an all-league back. Gene Hopper has been another pleasant surprise in early workouts and Philbin describes Kim Hopper with obvious relish as "one tough football player" at middle guard. Paul Bliss, a sophomore, will be at end and is the backup quarterback.

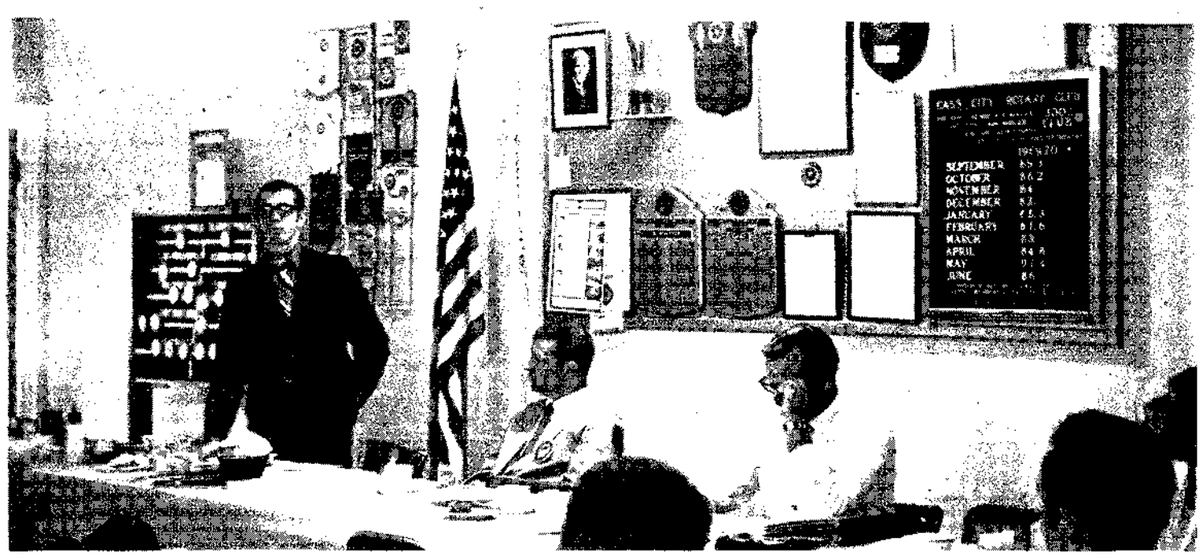
Greg Eshelman has shown improvement and his 200 pounds will be needed to help anchor the line. Bob Hennessey at center has shown plenty of desire.

Philbin says that Craig Guernsey, last year's leading ball player, has been slowed this year by bad knees. His present plans call for him to alternate at one of the back positions.

The new coach cautions local fans not to look for anything fancy when the Hawks take the field this fall.

In the two-a-day workouts held before school opened the team concentrated on simple plays, aiming for execution as near as possible to perfect.

What else would you expect from a disciple of Vince Lombardi?



WILLIAM PHILBIN told the Rotary and later the Gavel clubs that work, work, work, is the secret to a successful Cass City High School football team.

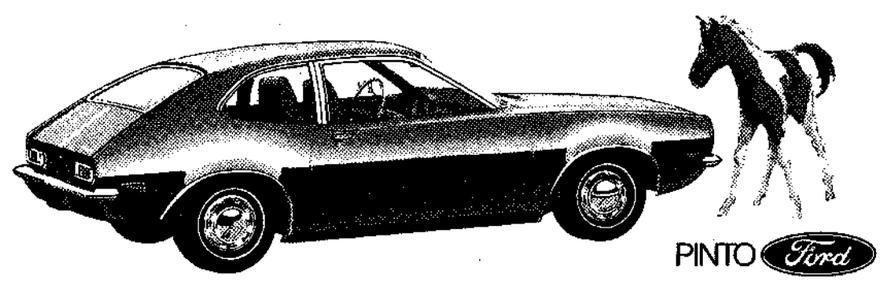
Meet Ford's new Pinto. The little carefree car.



PINTO Ford

If you have the questions, Pinto has the answers.

Q. What do you mean, "carefree"?
A. Pinto's designed to free you from car cares, big and little. Cares about high prices and big gas bills. Cares about parking. Cares about service and reliability. Power and stability. Quiet and roominess.
Q. You say Pinto is little. How little?
A. Pinto is only 3 inches longer than VW. But its turning circle is actually a little less, so Pinto can slip easily into tight parking spaces.
Q. And inside?
A. Pinto gives you more interior roominess overall than Volkswagen. And getting in and out is easier because Pinto's doors are a good half-foot wider.
Q. What about price?
A. Pinto is priced like the little economy imports, too.
Q. What about power?
A. Pinto delivers 75 horsepower and averages over 25 miles per gallon in simulated city suburban driving. The engine is front-mounted and exceptionally quiet for a car in this class. Pinto is the only American economy car equipped with a 4-speed, fully synchronized transmission at no extra cost.
Q. What else is standard equipment?
A. High Back bucket seats. Direct-Aire ventilation with upper-level fresh air outlets. Heater defroster with 3-speed fan. Two-speed electric windshield wipers. Electric windshield washers. Your choice of 15 exterior colors. And more.
Q. How about optional extras?
A. Pinto offers a 100-hp engine and 3-speed automatic transmission. Front disc brakes. Even built-in air conditioning. Tinted glass. Vinyl roof. "Flipper" rear quarter windows. Fold-down rear seat. Bumper guards and side molding with vinyl inserts to protect the paint. More than most imports offer—at prices economy-car buyers can afford.
Q. Reliability?
A. Pinto's engine has already logged 50 million owner-driven miles. And the strength of some of Pinto's parts makes ordinary little economy cars look puny by comparison. Parts like the starter motor, ball joints, rear wheel bearings are heavy duty. Craftsmanship? Pinto is the only American car with hand-matched transmission gears.
Q. What's Pinto like out on the road?
A. Pinto has a wider stance than any economy import, for better stability in turns and gusty crosswinds. For more road feel, and more precise handling, Pinto has rack & pinion steering—like Porsche and Jaguar—something you won't find on any other American car.
Q. Tell me about service.
A. Pinto is so simple you can do much of the maintenance yourself, if you like. The Owner's Manual shows you how. And Pinto's free Do-It-Yourself Key helps you perform minor service functions.
Q. Suppose I don't service Pinto myself?
A. You still save when your Ford Dealer does it. For example, Pinto needs an oil change half as often as the leading import. And a chassis lube only one-sixth as often.
Q. Sounds great—where can I test-drive Pinto?
A. Your nearest Ford Dealer. And if you have any more questions, he can answer them.
