(Any anyone else he can get to help)

All week I've been wondering if the unusual names of area Democratic candidates for State Representative and State Senator are a liability or an advantage to their respective campaigns. The Senatorial candidate is Alexander Wnuk and the Representative office seeker is Robert Thwing. It's probably very sure that their names will not be confused with that of any other candidate.

There are three referendum propositions facing the voters Tuesday. The vote here will be to grant the vote to 18-year-olds, deny public funds to private schools and nix the bond issue for public housing.

That sounds definite, doesn't it? In truth, the only proposition that I will vote without qualms is the 18-year-old vote. Whether or not to approve parochialism and public housing is a very grey area with me...but you can't vote maybe.

"Should have beans" suggested or observed: lumberman Cliff Croft, a story-telling comic. Sausage maker and meat packer Dick Erla, a politician. Industrialist Vic Guersney, a cheer leader. Housewife Mrs. Dick Erla, a sausage maker and professional kielbasa and sauerkraut chef. Speaking of "should have beans", the entire Chronicle staff says I should have been a doctor because it's impossible to read my writing.

For many years, visitors were surprised when they found 2 strong banks in tiny Cass City. Surprised because it's unusual. Even more unusual will be the local financial picture in the near future. It's an open secret around town that a Federal Savings and Loan Association is due to occupy the building that housed the former Talk of the Town. Then, this week, the Federal Credit Union announced an open house at their offices in the Hahn building.

I don't know if this is a record for a rural community of less than 2,000 persons, but if not it certainly must be regarded as providing a more diversified financial establishment than most similar communities enjoy.

Mrs. A. Stirton called to say that "the good things" are blocked out of the paper. She specifically called attention to the lack of litter on the streets of the community. Seager Street is cleaner this year than ever before, she claims, and the children and their parents should be recognized and commended.

Wash that window!

BY JIM FITZGERALD

One way to leave your wife speechless is to rob her of the stuff from which she fashions her most frequent speeches. (One thing about reading this column, you don't have to read Ann Landers.)

For 15 years, my wife Pat made the same speech about the picture window in our family room.

"That window has never been washed on the outside and your mother is coming this weekend," she would say.

Or: "That window has never been washed on the outside and it's Christmas."

Or: "That window has never been washed on the outside and the sun is shining."

And on and on and on. My first suggestion, made about 1955, was that she go outside and wash it herself. But Pat said there was a huge storm window that had to be taken down before the window could be washed on the outside.

Thomas Lee Ashcroft, 23, of Caro and Mary Frances Wrobel, 20, of Caro.

MATTER OF TIME Today when a man graduates from the school of experience his diploma is usually a social security check.

And no woman could lift that storm window.

5 years later I happened to be passing through the backyard on my way to the poolroom. I looked at the storm window and noticed it was screwed to the house with those funny screws that have + 's on their heads, instead of - 's.

The next time I saw Pat I explained to her that our screwdriver was for - screws, not + 's. She tried to tell me it didn't make any difference but I knew better. "If God had wanted - screwdrivers to go into + screws He wouldn't have made + screwdrivers," I said.

The next Christmas my rotten kids gave me a + screwdriver. 10 years later I happened again to be in the backyard, having taken a wrong turn on my way to Detroit. My wife threw the + screwdriver out the back door and then quickly locked the front and side doors, I found out.

So I graciously took down the lousy storm window and hollered at Pat to bring out her cruddy soap and water and wash the stupid glass before I stuck

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By H. M. Bulen

Some people think pro football teams pass the ball more often than they run with it, but that's not true...Someone has just compiled statistics to show that there was 21,462 total plays from scrimmage last season in the American and National Football Leagues, and 11,085 of those plays were runs while 10,377 were passes.

Of all the pro and college football teams in America, which one do you think has won the most total games in history?...It's not any of the big powers you might think of first.. Answer is Yale....Yale has won over 600 games in history, and no other team--college or pro--is close to that figure.

Oddly enough, the football press-box at the University of Iowa Stadium cost more when it was built a few years ago than the original cost of the whole stadium when it was built in the 1920's!...The four-deck press-box cost $490,000, while the whole low stadium was built for less than that in 1929.

Panel to share time-saving tips

By Mary E. Kerr - Extension Agent

Do you ever say, "I just didn't have enough time?" Everyone does, but some people say it less often than others. These have learned many time-saving tricks that seem to stretch 24 hours.

Mrs. Donald Sattelburg and Mrs. Don Kehler, both of Caro, and Mrs. Jon Jalbing of Milledgeville.

On Wednesday, Nov. 4, from 1-3 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. two panels of homemakers will be sharing time-saving homemakers' tips. The meeting will be held in the Civil Defense Center in Caro. All homemakers are invited to attend.

Members of the daytime panel will be Mrs. William Losch, Mrs. Paul Findlay and Mrs. Keith Green, all of the Caro area. Homemakers who do not work outside their homes are especially encouraged to attend this meeting.

In the evening, homemakers who work outside their homes will have an opportunity to learn ways to save time from three homemakers who also have outside jobs. Panel members are "Welcome to Michigan"

Even a school child can find Michigan's mitten on the national map. Michigan has more beaches than from Maine to Florida - 3,200 miles, varying from soft, rolling dunes to Maine-like, rugged shores. History is exciting in Michigan. Before the Pilgrims arrived at Plymouth Rock, the French were scouting the Great Lakes for a route to the Orient. There is a magic of the past at the impressive Forts of Mackinaw. Michigan's scenic timbered valleys and cradled lakes, spring cherry blossoms, tumbling water falls and sculptured rocks are breathtaking.

ONE FOR THE ROAD
In Palm Springs
ride the tram car
 By Dan Marlowe

Palm Springs, California:
 This community for the wealthy has been literally reclaimed from the desert by irrigation. Two hours' drive from Los Angeles, it sits in the midst of a wasteland of sand and rock. The breath of the desert is never far removed from this man-made oasis. In June, July, and August, temperatures of 115-120 degrees at noon are common. During those months it's possible to fire a cannon down Palm Canyon Drive, the city's principal thoroughfare, and hit no one. The wealthy never come during those months, and the natives sit by their air conditioners.

The major Los Angeles department stores and specialty shops have branches in Palm Springs. Art galleries abound, as well as Oriental and Mid-Eastern bazaar-type establishments catering to the well-to-do. The contrast is striking, since the desert with its smoke trees is barely two miles away, and roadrunners, those saucy birds who are the clowns of the west, run along the desert highways seeking insects, lizards, centipedes, mice, and snakes.

One of the don't-miss aspects of the area which all tourists are told about is the Palm Springs Aerial Tramway. Visitors drive up winding roads in their automobiles to the Valley Station at the 2600-foot level where they take the tramway itself. The tram cars, capable of holding 80 people, then climb on their cables an additional 6000 feet in 15 minutes to the top of Mt. San Jacinto where there is a lodge and restaurant.

The tram car is the only means of access and exit to and from the lodge. All employees and every bit of equipment, food, and water is carried up to the lodge via tram. The tramway cables with their five towers were set in place by helicopter. No road leads to the summit, the sheer cliff walls negating the possibility.

The trip from the Valley Station to the Mountain Station is a lightning-like passage through life, speaking botanically and geologically. During the 15 minutes it takes for the tram's ascent of more than a mile, the car passes above botanical and geological life zones similar from a trip from Sonora, Mexico to Anchorage, Alaska.

The temperature in Palm Springs during the middle of the day at this time of the

Michigan Mirror

Speed sale of '71 auto plates by cutting red tape

Anyone sighting a commercial vehicle with maroon and white license plates these days shouldn't be too quick to assume the plates are old ones.

Maroon and white, the color combination used on Michigan's 1969 license plates, is also the color assigned to the 1971 plates. And commercial vehicle plates went on sale Oct. 1.

Passenger car plates will go on sale Nov. 15.

The return to last year's colors has caused some confusion with several overzealous policemen and/or women ticketing vehicles who bought the new plates as soon as they were available, according to Secretary of State James M. Hare.

The colors were picked because the state goes into the reflectorized plate business this year.

They were the only colors on which tests had been run by the state when it was finally determined at a late date that the 1971 plates would be reflectorized and thus they had to be used.

The white lettering will be reflectorized by a "beading" process. In the process the paint used for the white will be an adhesive substance. As soon as it is put on the plate, the plate is covered with tiny, perfectly round, glass beads which stick only to the letters.

The Legislature decided to convert to reflectorized plates in 1968, but then reconsidered the decision early this year.

It was decided to go ahead with the beading just barely in time to give officials the time they needed to reflectorize the 1971 plates.

Actually, the Legislature first decided to reflectorize plates in 1959, but then didn't appropriate enough money to pay for the additional cost. The plates weren't reflectorized since Attorney General ruled they did not have to be if the money wasn't there.

Reflectorized plates were adopted for a number of reasons, with safety one of the most important.

The plates are supposed to be visible from one half mile away at night when the high beams of a car are shining on them. One result of this, in states where the plates are now in use, has been a cutback in the number of rear end collisions at night.

Law enforcement officials also approve of the plates, saying they make it easier to identify a car at night.

The new plates will be huge improvement over this year's "paleface" plates. Law enforcement officials have complained all year that the white on gold coloring makes it just about impossible to read plates at night.

Another innovation this year: vehicle owners won't have to show vehicle titles when they buy their 1971 plates if they keep a prepared application being sent them by the Secretary of State.

All the needed information is printed on the prepared applications by computer before applications are mailed. Hare estimates most of them will have been mailed out when passenger car licenses become available Nov. 15.

tions cost the taxpayers quite a bit, since each bill must be printed and filed at taxpayer expense.

Your action man in Lansing keeps in touch back home

Rep. Roy Spencer doesn't go on junkets. He comes back home to the district every week end to meet with the officials and the voters. He keeps in touch with the problems back home and he takes care of those problems. He's a representative who hasn't forgotten who he represents.

And when he's in Lansing, he's making a record we folks back home can be proud of. Look over these highlights of his past 10 years as our state representative:

- Honored by capitol newsmen as "an outstanding leader."
- Honorary degree Michigan Practical Nurses Association.
- Distinguished Service Award - Michigan Hospital Association.
- Honorary lay membership - Osteopathic physicians and surgeons of Michigan.
- Award of Merit - Michigan Agricultural Conference.
- Endorsement by organizations ranging from the Detroit Board of Commerce to the Teamsters Union.
- Cited by Official Michigan Magazine as a "skilled legislator who gets on well with both political parties."
- Recognized statewide for his efforts to bring equality in education and in school taxes.

-Supported by Michigan Farm Bureau for his efforts to assess agricultural land on agricultural use.

-Won an extra circuit judge and an extra district judge for Lapeer and Tuscola counties.

-Introduced and secured passage of amendments to the state income tax which return over $45 million additional money every year to the counties, townships, cities and villages.

-Co-authored this year's school aid act which will bring an increase of over $1 million a year to the schools of his 78th district.

Without extra aid, additional property taxes would have been levied, or school programs reduced.

Let's keep Roy Spencer as our Action Man in Lansing.

Proper housing cuts calf death rate

By William L. Bortel

High calf death rates associated with larger dairy herds can be reduced by the use of proper calf housing. The small calves are often neglected when herds get bigger. The calves often die from inattention because so much time is needed to care for the cows.

High calf losses--now averaging 15 to 20 percent in Michigan and Tuscola county--cannot be tolerated by the dairy industry. Calves become part of the mature herd in two years, so keeping them alive is important to dairy production.

Two housing methods can be used to keep the small animals healthy. A cold system, using three-sided pens to keep the calves dry and out of drafts, is best when used with smaller herds of six to eight calves. Hand feeding and watering, along with adequate cleaning procedures should be sufficient to keep the animals alive and well.

The second method involves using heated, insulated buildings.

Heated structures with an average temperature of 45 or 50 degrees are required for larger numbers of calves. The amount of BTU's needed depends on the weight of the animals and the wall surface area. Fans must be used with the heat source to provide adequate ventilation and maintain an equal distribution of heat throughout the structure.

An advantage of the heating building is that the animal pens can be half the size of those in cold buildings. This makes feeding and cleaning tasks much easier. Running water can also be piped into the building without danger of freezing in cold weather.

These factors allow lower labor requirements needed to take care of the animals in the building. Less labor and healthy animals make the cost of constructing a warm-calf building well worth the investment.

The price of a complete heated, ventilated and mechanized calf building to handle 100 cows costs less than one average-sized tractor and plow. Building such a facility will result in a handsome profit for the dairyman.

An increasing number of Michigan dairymen have been making wide use of calf housing since 1965. Before this time, the need for providing shelter and housing for calves was not widely recognized.

Letters to Editor

More credit due Senior float

An Open Letter To All Adults:

Monday evening I jokingly asked my son, Les, who he picked for the Clay fight. He didn't realize it was going on because Clay had been banned from fighting for draft evasion. My son said, "Doesn't seem to matter much what some guys do. They get away with it and go right on as before."

Yesterday, the 26th, my son's letter of registration was filled in and returned to his draft board - and what say does he have? Now the war is slowing up - and how we all pray it stays that way but even so how many of our senior boys have any plans past this June?

That's why I was particularly disappointed that more wasn't made of our homecoming night and the floats. My son will no doubt be angry with me for writing this for he quite vehemently insisted I not write about the floats. Sorry, son, but some things need to be said.

I'm prejudiced for sure and what mother isn't? My son worked hard on the winning float as did several seniors (did anyone notice the gang of cars around their building the night before Homecoming?). My sophomore daughter is in her first year as a majorette after years of practice and preparation. My Junior Higher has her first game to cheer at today.

I'm so proud of their "involvement". Their generation will next go into politics and governing the country. Let's hope their "involvement" continues.

But how much more appreciated the seniors would have felt if their efforts had been publicized. A lot of the fellows at least look forward to two years out of their lives when what they do individually means little.

a subsidy by the government for new housing. It would cost the State an estimated $7 million a year for 30 years.

Its primary beneficiaries would be lower income families and some moderate income families now priced out of the housing market.

That the need for more housing persists is unquestioned. New construction is not keeping pace with the rate of decay, or with the number of new families formed. Programs to date have not changed the patterns.

Persons favoring the proposal say that the bond money will spark business in the State and make housing available to those who need it.

Opponents say that government administered programs of this type (such as urban renewal) have not proved the answer to the need.

The parochial amendment is a test to see whether or not the State will be able to vote funds to private schools.

Parochial opponents say that it violates Church-State separation and the amendment would not cancel any vital services (bus transportation, health service, etc.) that are now offered the private school. They add that every taxpayer has freedom of choice of sending children to public or private schools and should be willing to pay if they select a private school.

Persons opposed to the amendment say that the private schools are taking the load off public schools and that if they closed, the public schools would be swamped.

They claim that the money coming back to these schools would be only a percentage of the taxes they pay and that the money they give to private schools in effect lowers the tax burden for every resident.

Luckily I got snaps of the senior float - but what prestige they would have felt if they could have put away a newspaper clipping and picture in their memoirs.

I'm proud of all our youth in this town. I don't know how any float is completed with the time given - but the kids come through. Let's not let them down but be behind every endeavor 100%.

I pray we aren't guilty of hypocrisy and double standards that are evident in such instances as Cassius Clay-Draft Dodger.

Sincerely,
A proud mother and citizen
Mrs. Stuart Merchant

Vote Parochial down

Election day, Nov. 3, is less than a week away. The most controversial question on the ballot is Proposal "C", the amendment to Michigan's Constitution which will prohibit parochial. Public school educators have a vital stake in the passage of Proposal "C", since parochial funds will come out of the total educational allotment of the State and local taxes. Likewise, the parents of public school children will certainly need to be concerned about the sharing of their tax monies with parochial and private schools, should Proposal "C" be defeated at the polls Nov. 3. This year parochial is only $22 million, but it is no secret that this is the first step toward full funding of private schools in the future.

The campaign against Proposal "C" has hit a new low for political deceit. The news coverage and paid advertisements against "C" are almost all gross misinterpretations about what will happen if "C" passes. The only things that

"C" will do are stop parochial and require auxiliary services to be given in the public schools for ALL children. It will also make clear the constitutional guarantee of separation of church and State.

The opponents of Proposal "C" have the resources of many major corporations, political machines, and churches on their side. Parents have the right to send their children to parochial and private schools if they have the wealth to cover the costs of their tuition and buildings. This is a luxury they can afford. However, they do not have the right to dip into public treasuries to support this luxury. Proposal "C" will prevent this.

Having been a public school educator for many years, I am very concerned about the future welfare of the public schools and will vote yes for Proposal "C" on Nov. 3.
