Village council eyes jump in water-sewer rates

Cass City residents will face an increase in the cost of government this year after a study is completed by the Cass City Village Council to determine how much water and sewer rates should be jumped to meet expenses of the service.

The move to study service with an eye to raising rates was reached Tuesday night at the regular council meeting after a review of the village's financial statement by the village auditors.

Under the new auditing system the water department is a separate department. Today's revenue from water and sewer charges more than covers the day-to-day operation of the department, but does not bring in enough money to cover the cost of paying off bonds issued for construction within the department.

What the auditor suggested and what the council evidently intends to do is to raise rates enough to pay off these bonds from water revenues.

This will be a departure from previous procedure when bond costs were paid from the general fund and the 13 mills in taxes raised by the village. President Lambert Althaver says that the cost of repaying the debt was considered previously in the cost of the department although it was not listed this way in the accounting procedure.

There is little doubt that if the council chooses to tighten the village's purse strings the village could continue to operate in the black without raising rates.

Last year, for instance, a $6,000 payment for a $12,000 front loader was wrestled out of village funds and was not previously considered in the village budget.

It's a sizeable expenditure when compared to local tax revenues of $100,000.

Althaver said that the council was trying to take a middle-of-the-road approach to spending. We are providing more services, he said, and today the village requires more services. Some responsible citizens feel that we are not moving ahead fast enough in this area.

Yet, we hold back, he added, so that we can hold village taxes at a reasonable level.

The village in recent years has made extensive additions to its equipment and updated much of the rest. This has reduced our maintenance greatly, Trustee Dr. D. E. Rawson said, without pinpointing the actual figures.

The addition to the equipment is continuing. The village will add a new combination village and spare police car this year. Trading in a used police car that was first added on a temporary basis when the present police car was purchased last summer.

guards and plowed sidewalks to be decided.

OTHER BUSINESS

A long campaign spearheaded by Trustee Rawson may result in some $20,000 for the park program. He told the council that the final details of the application have been worked out and the application forwarded to the concerned departments.

The amount allotted to Cass City will be increased, Rawson said, because of the cooperation of Evergreen, Elkland, Novesta and Ellington townships. The townships agreed to be counted in the area served and broadened Cass City's population base on which funds are allocated.

Blades then told the council that arrangements are underway to secure labor from the county from persons working to pay for "direct assistance" money received.

President Althaver complimented Rawson and Mrs. Gladys Albee for their work in preparing the application for park funds.

There has been a whale of a lot of work connected with this program and the part concluded on page 6

SAFETY CONTROLS

Village Supt. James Blades announced that safety measures for students will probably be installed this year. About the time that school is out, "walk, no walk" signals on the corners of Saeger and Main will probably be installed.

The State has also agreed to paint crosswalks in the downtown business area and will maintain them.

If these safety measures become a reality, it will leave only the question of crossing

Work halted by bomb scare at General Cable

A false alarm bomb scare at General Cable Corporation Thursday disrupted work schedules and resulted in an intensive search of the large plant.

According to Tom Bowers, personnel manager, a phone call was received at 5:45 p. m. and a high pitched squeaky voice mumbled something no one could understand and hung up. Two minutes later the call was repeated and this time the caller announced that a bomb had been planted in the building.

The police were immediately notified and the supervisors informed. An immediate search of the most accessible and dangerous areas was conducted, Bowers said.

When nothing turned up, the employees were told of the threat and given permission to go home or assist in an intensive search on a volunteer basis.

About 50 volunteered and the entire cord and wire plant was combed for about an hour and a half.

Normal work schedules resumed at about 8:30 p. m.

Spring is the selling season

Spring is a selling season. At least that's what four Chronicle liner advertisers reported to us this week as they called to cancel liner ads after a single insertion.

Erla's Incorporated sold a Dodge truck, Tom Woody, a '61 Corvair; Mrs. Ron Phillips, a stove, and Louis Walsh, a cultivator and other items. Chronicle liners sell fast and cost less, as little as 50 cents per insertion on a 3-week basis.

The way it works is that the missionaries receive pledges of support from churches and individuals. When they have enough pledged they leave, Beach decided to go to Korea while studying at Columbia Bible College in Columbia, South Carolina.

When he and his wife left five years ago they expected to have $250 monthly for expenses. This dwindled at the end to $215. Meanwhile, inflation tripled the cost of living and the cost of living in Korea became roughly twice the cost of living in the United States.

With their first tour over, the Beaches promptly signed for another four years. However, signing isn't enough. Money must be secured to pay their way while they

Fire aftermath: family looking for essentials

Life has never been a bowl of cherries for Joe Pierce and his family.

In the best of times, scratching out a living has been about all that he could manage for himself, his wife and five children.

In an attempt to better his lot he moved with his family from Mt. Pleasant, Tenn., back "home" to the Cass City area about a year ago.

Back home for a fresh start in familiar surroundings. He and his family moved their furniture into a home about 2 1/2 miles north of town to live. Things weren't rosy, but at least the family

Walbro—union talk scheduled

The first movement towards any possible settlement of the three-week old strike at Walbro Corporation came this week when a meeting was scheduled between the company and the UAW-CIO Tuesday, April 6.

Since the workers walked off Wednesday, Mar. 10, there has been steady, orderly picketing at all three Cass City plants. Emergency production during the walk off has been completed by supervisory personnel.

The family now gets by with money received from Aid to Dependent Children. Pierce isn't working steadily. He gets an occasional day or part of a day helping at a cemetery but it's not enough to keep the family going.

There doesn't appear to be hope for immediate improvement in today's economy. I know that the family would appreciate any help it could get, Mrs. Race said. Donations can be brought to my home at 4407 West Street or to the Pierces themselves on Cass City Road.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

Don't stop me if you've read something like this here before. Every so often I get tired of listening to companies squirm and dodge and wiggle to get off the pollution hook by pointing the finger the other way or by trotting out the fear of what something new and untried will bring.

Last week was a big one in the alibi department. General Motors President James Roche is reported in the papers as saying that business has to stop being irresponsibly attacked and points to crusaders jumping on the band wagon of any popular cause. . . yet the Chevrolet foundry at Saginaw belches out smoke and pollutants that sting the eyes and offend the nostrils.

Then Jay Van Andel, chairman of Amway Corporation, sends out a brochure entitled "Phosphates, the cure worse than the disease?"

"Hasty action," he says, "to remove some or all phosphates from detergents and to market huge quantities of non-phosphate laundry products in their place will result in playing a game of chemical Russian Roulette with our lakes and streams."

And at the same time every sewage disposal facility in the State is on notice to get equipped to remove damaging phosphates from sewage before it hits the streams.

The cigarette companies put out reams and reams of propaganda telling how it has never been proved that cigarettes actually can cause lung cancer and heart disease. . . but individually doctors all over the country have kicked the habit because of the health hazard.

When attacked, there seems to be almost a standard procedure to follow. This play is to agree in principle that pollution is nasty and that every effort is being made to cure it. . . . appoint a committee . . . make token adjustments . . . point the accusing finger at the other guy as the real culprit.

Individuals are probably more irresponsible than business. . . but mostly are unnoticed. When they use up what's left of the DDT on hand rather than destroy it and then point to the farmers using chemicals in the fields they are playing the same game that business plays. Farmers do the same when they point out correctly that they are responsible for only a small fraction of pollutants entering streams and lakes through the soil.

But sooner or later all self-interest rationalizations will be shelved for the common good. Shelved because as today's youth accept the reins they will no longer allow anyone to run roughshod over our heritage.

Business will react when the demand is great. . . it always does. We will have a clean environment when we refuse to accept anything else.

Despite what appears to be agonizing slowness to today's leaders in the pollution battle, there is an irresistible tide swelling across the nation. It promises to engulf anyone who refuses to realize that simply providing jobs is no longer an excuse for raping the country.

Ross Beaches: missionary family ready to try again

Ross Beach looks like a farmer, acts like a farmer, is a farmer. A very unusual farmer, but still a farmer. Basically, that is.

Actually, Beach and his wife, the former Mary Evelyn Leslie of Cass City, are missionaries first and farmers second.

But it is his farm upbringing and his farmer orientated education that Beach used for five years while witnessing for Christ in Korea.

Beach was brought up on a farm in the rural Gageton area. He graduated from Cass City High School and attended Michigan State where he earned bachelor's and master's degrees in vocational agriculture.

Today, back home for what he hopes will be an interlude between assignments in Korea, he speaks softly about Korea and the problems facing the Christian missionary in a country with a Buddhist culture. As he quietly answers questions in his neat business suit, looking occasionally to his wife for confirmation of shadings of meanings in his answers, it's still easy to picture Beach with his lean, almost gaunt, face and his neat carefully combed hair working on the 2,000-acre land program in the Korean mountains.

For in Kang Nung at the Korean Christian College, Beach was chairman of the world development department and overseer of the land program.

His wife, who is a graduate of Taylor University in Indiana, taught English at the school.

The income from the 2,000 acres under Beach's supervision is expected to provide income to support the college. But there were headaches, king-sized headaches, connected with the program from the beginning. The 2,000 acres was to have been for pasture development for a beef program. The total equipment available was a 10 horsepower tractor.

To meet the crisis, Beach came home a year ago and lined up a tractor, mower, rake, plow and similar equipment. Whether or not the equipment is solving the need is still unsure. It took a year to arrive in Korea and is just now starting to play a role in the land development.

The Beaches were sponsored by The Evangelical Alliance Mission (TEAM) for their five years in Korea.

ONE BONUS FOR the Ross Beach family while they served in Korea was the addition of a daughter. Bethanne was an orphan that the family was successful in adopting.

Nader for President

BY JIM FITZGERALD

I ordered ham on white bread but the waitress brought rye bread. I don't like rye bread but I ate it anyway, without a murmur. And I left a tip. I like to think I'm a sweet guy who doesn't want to cause any trouble.

vealing that her father is a rye-bread mogul whose product is unsafe to chew at any speed. I wish I could be like that. I am always paying people to stomp on me. I never complain. I tell my wife I don't want to create a scene. The whole truth is, I'm afraid the scene will feature some brute socking me in the nose. Or some woman throwing a hysterical fit because she has 16 starving children and I won't tip her $1. I'm not nearly so sweet as I am chicken.

It's incredible how many car dealers I've met this way - all of them nice guys with a healthy disdain for wise-guy newsmen who would dare to write something nice about a jerk like Nader.

Ralph Nader is my hero. He complains about everything. When he walks by, GM pulls down the shades. I'd like to see him elected President and I think it could happen. Nader's bag is to insist that consumers get their money's worth. I'd sure like to get my money's worth out of the federal government. We've been paying for Cadillac and getting scooters. Nader is just the guy to cut the nonsense and take in paying boarders at the White House. As I type nice words about Ralph Nader, I keep glancing fearfully over my shoulder. I know a lot of car salesmen. I don't know why this is, but I suspect it has something to do with my life style. If I hung around libraries, I might

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Among the dozen or so area fans at the State High School basketball finals at Ann Arbor Saturday were six Cass City High School athletes.

They undoubtedly were exposed to high school basketball as good as any played anywhere but they couldn't have helped but notice that things off the basketball court aren't nearly as great.

A mini-riot followed the final game and it was reported that "C" champion, Shelby, was delayed on the way home because bus tires were slashed.

The black-white confrontation was in the air. . . worse than ever before. . . and the lessons of good sportsmanship forgotten by fans of both races.

Folks around town were doing a double take the last few weeks as they drove west of Cass City on M-81. It was because of a barn, about two miles from the village. . . well this barn did (does) also. It leaned one way during the most recent snowstorm and when a strong wind came up it swayed back in the opposite direction.

You've heard about trees swaying in the wind. . . well this barn did (does) also. It leaned one way during the most recent snowstorm and when a strong wind came up it swayed back in the opposite direction.

The consensus of the coffee table pundits is that it has now swayed its last and the only way it will move next will be straight down as it topples.

Supt. Don Crouse promised members of the Cass City Rotary the "inside story" about the Reese school strike next Tuesday when Al Luce, professional negotiator for that district, will speak. Luce, of course, also represents Cass City Schools at the bargaining table.

Actually, Crouse was speaking with tongue in cheek because he knows that Luce is too experienced, too clever and too professional to reveal any of the real "in-fighting" that occurred in negotiations.

I've sat at the bargaining table with Al and let me tell you, he's as smooth as that Mercedes-Benz diesel he drives to work. Regardless, you can still expect to find his comments on the general teacher-school situation both enlightening and entertaining.

A New Image Conference was held last week end by the Michigan Federation of Business & Professional Women at Shanty Creek Ski Lodge at Ball Lake. Leaders of local BPW attending were Verna May MacRae, Director of District XI of Cass City, and Ina Weston, District Secretary of the Bad Axe BPW.

The keynote speaker was Mrs. Priscilla Jackson, Founder and Director of Continuum Center for Women at Oakland University.

An interesting panel discussion featured three MSU students who led "Dialogue" which gives the Youth of Today an opportunity to discuss current problems.

Plant Glacier... the high yielding alfalfa

Reports on high Glacier yields come from many areas, many kinds of soils, many types of farming operations. Farmers prove that Glacier responds to good management practices, gives a good crop the seeding year, and up to 10 tons or more in following years.

Glacier is a leafy, tall-growing Flemish type alfalfa that starts early, is disease resistant and winter hardy. Glacier frequently provides an extra cutting per season.

I sold out on Glacier last year! Come in and order what you need now.

PAUSE ON GREEN

When a traffic signal turns green, pause a second before you move your vehicle. A green signal does not automatically give you the right-of-way.

According to the staff of Michigan State University's Highway Traffic Safety Center, "You must yield to vehicles and pedestrians legally in the intersection." Look to the left and right, then proceed cautiously.

Expert drivers have this kind of know-how.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:
 Dear Mister Editor:
 It was full agreed at the country store Saturday night that April Fool's Day is in the same class with World Day of Prayer. Zeke Grubb told the fellers that ever day is a good day for both of em, and they ain't much use in setting aside a particular time.
 Zeke allowed April was as good a time as any to take up revenue sharing and hauling counties in the court fer not paying their share of federal programs. Zeke was of the mind that forcing states and counties to go broke trying to match federal give aways makes as much sence in April as it does in January. Zeke said he was with the feller that said no citizen is safe when Congress is in session.
 Ed Doolittle has stood solid agin revenue sharing all along. He says it ain't right to give states tax money they don't have to collect. Ed allowed it's bad enuff fer states and counties to depend on Washington fer matching funds that they can't match, but it'll be worst to send all our money to Washington and get a dab of it back with d'rections how to use it. Ed said he is reminded of the feller in Russia that raised hogs. Ever time he got hogs ready fer market, the Government took em, sold em and give him back the squeel.
 As fer the welfare programs, Ed said, the federal Government might jest as well take it over and do away with the middlemen. At least, he went on, this would cut out the cost of taking all them counties to court fer not holding up their end of programs they are forced to put money in.
 Bug Hookum said he ain't worried about the counties, not since he has saw by the papers where the courts say you can't give $30 or 30 days sentences no more. The court says this ain't treating the poor man right, cause it turns loose them that has $30. Bug said he reckons everbody will have to pull 30 days now, or the courts will have to turn everybody loose. If the counties are broke, Bug said, they'll probably be turned loose, since the jails is full all the time anyway.
 Practical speaking, went on Bug, the big test will be when everbody is out of work and getting checks from Washington. If we can pull that off, allowed Bug, we can do away with the courts cause nobody will have the $30 and they won't be room in the jails fer us.
 Mister Editor, the fellers unanimous adopted a motion calling fer April Fool ever day, except two month afore ever national election. They were agreed that when elections git close, ever politician has the medicine to make this country well, and all he wants fer it is our vote.
 Yours truly,
 Uncle Tim

Althaver names standing village committees

Wildlife: Who Needs It?

President Lambert Althaver this week announced his selections for standing committees of the village council and other village boards.

They include: President Pro Tem, Delbert E. Rawson; Finance Committee, Rawson and Gary Christner; Parking Committee, Bernard Ross and Rawson; Park, Pool & Tree Committee, Rawson and Mrs. Gladys Albee; Safety (Police) Committee, Christner and Gary Jones.

Clinton C. House was re-appointed village attorney and Lester Ross and Mrs. Evelyn MacRae, reappointed to the planning commission for three-year terms.

E. L. Schwaderer was named to the zoning board of appeals for three years.

Committee has done it all, he said. For the fifth straight year, Nelson Willy received a certificate for going through the year without a time-loss accident at the waste treatment plant.

The council also passed a resolution endorsing a revenue sharing plan that would bring Federal funds back to local units of government.

The local Headstart program now operating at Willis Campbell Elementary School may shift to the former library building.

The administrator of the program was to have appeared before the council to talk about it, but the meeting was delayed as snarls with the Chicago office need to be worked out, Blades said.

Kenneth James Holman, 37, and his older brother, Albert Emerson Holman, 40, were bound over to Circuit Court Friday to stand trial for the slaying of Robert Albertson, 25, of Brown City.

The decision of District Judge Richard Kern came after a day-long preliminary hearing in Tuscola County's District Court. The Circuit Court arraignment of the Holman brothers is scheduled for April 12 before Circuit Judge Norman A. Baguley.

Kenneth Holman has been a resident of the Kingston area but is more recently known as a horse trainer from Akron, Ohio. Albert Holman has been a resident of the Kingston region, renting a house trailer on the White Creek Road.

Both men had been on bonds of $50,000. Judge Kern continued the bond on Albert Holman but remanded Kenneth Holman to the Tuscola county jail and ordered him held without bond.

The preliminary hearing began at 9:30 Friday morning and concluded about 4 p. m. after prosecutor Leo Maki presented physical evidence linking Albertson and the Holman brothers together at a Clifford bar the night of Friday, March 5, and early Saturday morning, March 6.

A money clasp, described by a witness as similar to one he saw in Albertson's possession that morning, was testified to as being found in the Holman trailer at a later time.

The prosecution names robbery as a motive claiming that Robert Albertson, who came from Brown City Friday night to Marlette to visit his father, had about $400 in his possession. His body was discovered sprawled along the side of Mayville Road shortly after eight Saturday morning, March 6, and his wallet and money were missing.

The Holman brothers have court appointed attorneys. Judge Kern appointed H. Dale Cubbitt of Bad Axe to represent Kenneth Holman and Allen Keyes to represent Albert Holman. Albertson died of a series of injuries including a fractured skull and a lung punctured by several broken ribs.

carry on the work. Only now $500 monthly is needed. How do they get it? By speaking to churches and groups, telling their story and hoping for more financial pledges.

While they are home, Beach hopes to spend a year teaching vocational agriculture and let the money from his backers build up to cover transportation costs back to Korea.

If he doesn't find the money, he won't be able to return. If he doesn't, TEAM will lose an investment of two years when both Beaches attended school six hours daily for two years to learn the Korean language.

When he returns, it will be to a new location and a new job... but the basic aim will be the same. Converting Koreans to Christianity.

How successful were the first five years? Here Beach hesitates... it's obviously the most important question of the interview to him.

We've had some very rewarding witnesses at the College, he said, but the work has been slow... the traditions of the Koreans hard to break. The best way to do it is by personal witnessing of the Koreans themselves, Beach feels, and he's ready now to go back and see if more of them can be converted so they can spread the gospel among themselves.

He's convinced this is the way it must be done and he's ready and willing to devote four more years of his life to doing it.

Allen injured in mishap in Cass City

Myrtle V. Allen, 60, of Cass City suffered lacerations in an accident Friday at about midnight, according to a report of Bad Axe State Police.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Sharon K. Allen, 28, of Cass City. According to the report, the Allen vehicle turned in front of a car driven by Dennis P. Francis, 17, of Deford at the corner of West and Main Streets.

Both drivers and a passenger in the Francis vehicle were uninjured.

CONFUSED

Many a man allows mind-made obstacles to keep him from really striking his stride.

Name high school honor roll pupils

Students in Cass City High School with "B" or better average in all subjects are listed on the fourth quarter honor roll, Principal Russell Richards announced this week.

Students listed with an asterisk earned all A's.

On a lonely hill a man died slowly, nailed to a cross.
His crime—goodness.
He walked the hills of Judea and the shores of Galilee, healing and comforting, loving everyone He met. Confidently, simply, He spoke of the Kingdom of Heaven, and crowds hurried to hear His vital words.
To some, His clear, sure talk of the Kingdom and the Way and of Himself the Son of God seemed a threat. And so He suffered on a cross, while a faithful few huddled in its shade and wept at the sacrifice.
Today, the shadow of that cross circles the globe, as people gather in churches around the world to remember that first Good Friday and give thanks for Jesus, the gift of a loving Father. His life and death and resurrection point the way for every man to find joy in the reality of God's love.

Ryan steering abortion into legislative dead end

Each member is equal, at least theoretically, in any group or organization where each member has one vote. That was the theory behind the "one man-one vote" rulings handed down by the Supreme Court in recent years. But theory often doesn't translate into reality. One need look no further than the Michigan House of Representatives for an example. In the House, as happens in most legislative bodies, some men are more equal than others. The "most equal" man in the House is Speaker William A. Ryan, a master in the art of rounding up 56 votes (a majority) any time he really needs them.

It does mean that the process originally designed to permit democratic consideration of issues -- a vote by the elected representatives of the people -- won't be used. Instead we see some legislative procedures calculated to avoid this. This sort of maneuvering angers younger citizens who argue that the present government is not responsible to people's needs.

his district feel about things. But some of State Rep. Richard Friske's constituents decided he did more editorializing than asking in a recent questionnaire he mailed out. One question, for instance, asked, "Should the state ignore the principles of the Bible, which is the law of God and morality, and legalize murder by abortion?" Another asks, "Would you object to paying less taxes each year if you felt the government could--by trying a lot harder--get along with less revenue?"

Effect a situation like this has on important legislation was shown when the abortion reform bill, which passed in the state Senate, arrived in the House. The speaker of the House is the one who assigns bills to committees for study. Ryan, a devout Roman Catholic, makes no secret of the fact he opposes abortions. As a result, he decided to assign the abortion reform bill to the House Committee on Social Services and Corrections, whose membership is split 6-3 against abortion reform. The bill's backers, on the other hand, wanted the bill sent to a more favorable committee so that it would make its way back to the floor. Had Ryan been in favor of abortion reform, he most probably would have sent it to a committee which had a membership more favorably disposed to the idea of abortion reform.

Backers of abortion reform aren't throwing in the towel, however. Like others who are frustrated with some workings of "the system," they are going to take their case to "the people" if they have to. Only in this case, instead of marching in parades, they're going to start a petition drive if they have to go over the heads of the Legislature. The backers announced that if the bill doesn't pass, they will work to petition a proposed law on the 1972 general election ballot. That device has already worked in one state--Washington--and they feel it will work here if they need to use it.

250,000 signatures are needed to get the issue on the ballot, but with all of the women's groups who are supporting abortion reform, that shouldn't be that big of an obstacle. "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned," goes an old saying. And there are a lot of women around who feel that they have been scorned by the Michigan House of Representatives.

QUESTIONNAIRE GETS NOTICE

Legislative questionnaires are usually pretty ho-hum affairs. The lawmaker asks his constituents to mark either yes or no to a series of questions such as, "Should Michigan's abortion law be changed?" He waits for the answers, has an aide tally them up, and gets an idea of how the people of

In theory then, each member of the House has one vote, but Ryan was able to make it improbable that the bill will not pass the House. Barring some unforeseen development, it won't get to the floor. That does not mean the bill would pass if it made it to the floor, because an early count indicated it would have a stiff time of it in a vote.

Baptist aim is Higher, Still Higher

"Higher, Still Higher" is the theme for this year's annual Sunday School contest at the First Baptist church. It begins Sunday, April 4, and will continue through May 30.

Purpose of the contest is to increase Sunday School attendance, and members "gain altitude" by bringing visitors. The top five winners will be awarded a jet airplane ride from Tri-City airport to Flint and dinner at a restaurant. Other prizes will also be awarded.

Each week of the contest will feature special events, including a well-known puppet show, special musical talent, etc. Sunday, April 4, Paul Carmichael of Grand Rapids will play his accordion in all of the services at the church. Visitors will be registered at the "flight operations desk" in the church lobby and "stewardesses" will escort them to their respective departments. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rayl, youth sponsors, and the youth group are in charge of flight registration.

All Sunday School members from primary through adult departments are eligible to participate. The nursery and beginner departments will be having individual special events during the contest.

A committee will provide transportation to Sunday School for anyone wishing to attend. Transportation can be arranged by calling the church office, 872-3155.

Attendance in Sunday School last week was 215.

BETTER HEALTH

Give drugs to the hopelessly ill

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

For years I have been protesting against the tendency of many physicians to allow elderly patients with scattered cancer to go on suffering without adequate medicinal relief. When I ask the doctor why he isn't giving the old patient enough medicine to give relief, he says, "I might give him a habit." I have several answers to this. One is that if the cancer is widely scattered through the man, it is very likely to kill him within two or three months; and he won't have time to develop a habit. Also, even if at the age of, say, 88, he were to develop a habit, that, to my way of thinking, would be immensely better than to let him go on suffering day and night without the help that we could and should give him.

Another point which does not seem to occur to my friend the doctor is that commonly the elderly man who is dying of some pain-producing disease, is largely, or entirely, confined to his bed or his room, and there is almost no chance of his going out and hunting up a peddler of morphine or heroin; hence, we who are taking care of him can see to it that he does not quickly start running up the dose.

There is another reason today why in many cases we doctors are not giving enough medicine to relieve pain, and this is our fear of criticism from the Bureau of Narcotics in Washington. Actually, only once in my life have I felt the need for getting their approval and backing. I had a man who, after an injury to his spine, was left with pain so severe that, as he said to me, "I can stand it during the day, but at night I can't sleep with it, and if I can't sleep at night, I can't do my work well and my wife and I will soon be on relief." I immediately wrote to the Bureau of Narcotics, explaining that the man was a brilliant chief engineer of a big company, and I thought it was far better to run the risk of his getting a habit than to ruin him by denying him relief from his severe pain. I got back a kindly letter, saying that the doctor in Washington agreed with me heartily.

Another thing that I have often done is that when I have had a patient who much needed a strong pain-relieving drug, I did not make any charge. This showed the Bureau in Washington that I was not giving the drug for money, but just to help the person. Actually, the strong-willed engineer did not get a habit for many years.

I thought of this today as I read an article by Dr. Raymond Miller, criticizing physicians for failing to provide adequate relief for cancer pain. There are, of course, a variety of methods which could conceivably control or modify pain in a cancer patient -- general pain killing drugs, "local" anesthesia, such as a dentist uses; physiotherapy (such as massage); radiation therapy, perhaps with X-rays; surgery, such as perhaps the cutting of a nerve; psychotherapy, or giving encouragement; and hypnosis.

As Dr. Miller says, all of these can help, but he feels that other measures must also be taken. The patient's response to his disease and his treatment is influenced by a number of factors, such as the nature of the pain itself -- whether it is acute, chronic, or intractable. He points out that feelings of anxiety or depression can add to and magnify the person's pain. Most frustrating for the patient, his family and his doctor is intractable pain. Dr. Miller says, "In my experience it always results in the rapid production of a depression, often an agitated depression, which only intensifies the amount of suffering the patient must endure. In addition, it increases the difficulty of the treatment."

My own feeling in handling these cases of pain, especially in older persons with perhaps a scattered cancer, is to start by giving them enough medicine for relief. I explain to the patient that it is to his disadvantage to take the medicine when he does not need it, because by doing so, he may soon become insensitive to the medicine, and it will no longer give him the relief he craves.

I'll never forget the lesson taught me by my brilliant old professor of college days. When I became his assistant, he sent me one night to treat a woman who was much distressed because she could not sleep. I gave her the usual dose of a good sleep-maker and went home. The next day my chief was annoyed at me because the woman had complained that she did not get a bit of sleep. My chief asked, "Don't you know that when you give a medicine, give enough of it to get the physiologic effect that you want? Don't just give the dose in the book and then go home."

Another important lesson in pharmacology which I did not learn in college, but which has served me well, I learned one night as I sat at dinner with a fellow physician who quickly drank down four martinis. When I asked him how he could stand so many, he said, "I have a great resistance to all drugs, and hence alcohol has very little effect on me." I, with my greater sensitivity to drugs, would feel uncomfortable after even one martini. Not enough of us physicians realize that people differ greatly from one another in their response to drugs.

I thought of this as one day I saw the wife of a banker, who was having a violent menopausal syndrome, with terrible sweats, hot flushes and "tizzies", after a hysterectomy. She had been to several able physicians who had been unable to give her relief. I asked her if she could drink several highballs without feeling uncomfortable, and she said she could, and was quite insensitive to drugs. I had her increase the dosage of hormone she was taking beyond the usual one, and until she got sore breasts. Then she was to cut down the dose until she got relief without sore breasts. She experimented, and soon found that with three hormone pills (instead of the one pill usually prescribed) she was comfortable and happy.

One of the best drugs I had found to relieve pain is oxydrene. I have been prescribing it for several years, so far, without any signs of habituation in my patients. With it I have kept several able people at work who otherwise would soon have ended up in bed.

Dr. Alvarez regrets that he is unable to enter into correspondence concerning personal health problems. However, he has provided a number of booklets covering a large list of medical subjects. If you would like a copy of his booklet, "What We Know About Cancer," just send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope along with your request for it to Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Dept. CCC, Box 987, Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

ONE FOR THE ROAD Tax chiselers are nothing new

By Dan Marlowe

There's - Nothing - New - Under - The - Sun Department - Exactly 101 years ago Mark Twain wrote the following after a visit from an Internal Revenue agent left Twain with a tax liability of several thousand dollars:

"I am acquainted with a very opulent man, whose house is a palace, whose table is regal, whose outlays are enormous, yet a man who has no income, as I have often noticed by the revenue returns; and to him I went for advice in my distress. He took my dreadful exhibition of receipts, he put on his glasses, he took his pen, and presto!-I was a pauper! It was the neatest thing that ever was.

"He did it simply by deftly manipulating the bill of 'Deductions'. He set down my 'state, national, and municipal taxes' at so much; my losses by 'shipwreck, fire, etc.' at so much; my 'losses on sale of real estate'; on 'payments for rent of homestead'; on 'repairs, improvements, interest'; and other things. He got astonishing deductions out of each and every one of these matters -- each and every one of them.

"And when he was done he handed me the paper, and I saw at a glance that during the year my income, in the way of profits, had been $1,250.40. 'Now,' said he, 'the thousand dollars is exempt by law. What you want to do is to go and swear this document and pay tax on the two hundred and fifty dollars.'

"Do you," said I, 'do you always work up the deductions after this fashion in your own case, sir?'

"Well, I should say so!" he returned. "If it weren't for those eleven saving clauses under the head of Deductions I should be beggared every year to support this hateful and wicked, this extortionate and tyrannical government."

"This gentleman stands way up among the very best of the solid men of the city--the men of moral weight, of commercial integrity, of unimpeachable social spotlessness--and so I bowed to his example. I went down to the revenue office, and I stood up and swore to lie after lie, fraud after fraud, villainy after villainy, till my soul was coated inches and inches thick with perjury, and my self-respect gone for ever and ever.

"But what of it? It is nothing more than thousands of the richest and the proudest, and most respected, honored, and courted men in America do every year. And so I don't care."

Thus wrote Mark Twain in the year 1870. But we're better citizens nowadays. Aren't we?

Many signs of spring peek out

Maybe spring is here at last . . . not that there won't be a sudden snowstorm that wipes out all visions of green trees and the fact that the calendar tells us that March 21st is past, but you might consider these random items from the past week:

The warnings of grass fires and the beginning of a daily watch on the humidity and wind velocity by the Department of Natural Resources began Monday. It replaces the warnings of slippery roads and lists of schools closed by blocked roads.

The DNR reports that the danger of grass fires was moderate but continued dry weather and fresh winds could make the threat serious as the week develops. One grass fire was reported on Deckerville Road, at White Creek.

Three automobiles plunged through rotting ice on Saginaw Bay near the Mud Creek area south of Caseville over the week end. The cars went into water between four and five feet in depth and none were lost but there were a few very wet drivers who had strayed away from the main track when they returned from ice fishing.

Huron County Sheriff's deputies and Bad Axe State Police have been investigating a dozen break-ins at cottages near Oak Beach and south of Caseville as more and more residents of those areas check their property. No accurate estimate of the damage or loss was available by press time but the break-ins range from the theft of an electric range and several antique dressers and the robbery of another cottage where three rifles and a shotgun worth $320 were taken.

The rapidly growing population of geese, ducks and swan are keeping the skies filled at the Fish Point game refuge near the Gotham and Ringle Roads northwest of Unionville. The migratory waterfowl are stopping to pair up and feed before taking off for Saskatchewan or the Arctic Circle.

Hidden Admiration

Having a big brother isn't always the best, To tease & to torment is his number I quest. You find yourself thinking you don't really love him. But when he leaves for the Army you just have to hug him. He's miserable and you know it, Though he tries not to show it.

And when he comes home on his very first leave, He's no longer skinny, but beautifully lean. You're bursting with pride for that tall handsome guy, But all you can do is put your arms 'round him and cry and cry. Only then do you realize how much he's been missed.

And then comes 'Nam', With him farther away, but closer to God. You remember the nights he sat on the porch so late, Strumming his guitar while contemplating his fate. He's over there now counting the days till he's done, When he'll come home a man, and in my eyes, number 1.

Happy 21st Birthday, Joe, from Evelyn. 4-1-1
