

FROM THE Editor's Corner

I write this just prior to taking off for the annual Michigan Press Association's annual convention held this week end at East Lansing.

The convention is the excuse that publishers and editors from all over the state use to converge on Kellogg Center at MSU to greet friends and cry a little about business around refreshment tables furnished by suppliers to the printing industry.

Over the years I've transformed myself from an Eager Beaver attending most of the business sessions to a backslider who attends practically none.

And I guess this is normal. At first exposure everything is new, different. When the State's top politicians lined the speakers' table I was impressed and ready to listen.

But after a decade or so there is a sameness about it all. . . only the faces change. The messages always strike a familiar cord year after year.

It takes an exceptional speaker to capture and hold the attention of news people who are bombarded more or less continually all year on the banquet circuit.

Every so often one comes along with theories that challenge, stir, and you think about after you leave the conference room. One such talk that I remember discussed creating life in a test tube and the ability to grow certain organs outside the body.

He then told about advances in experiments leading to this end.

This must have been a dozen years or so ago and while most of us were interested we shrugged it off the same way we rejected the wild notion that a man would land on the moon.

Now it doesn't seem as far fetched as it once did. Science is closer to creating test tube babies and vital body organs now than it was a decade ago. Still, progress has been slow, slow.

You'll find many who will say with assurance that science will never succeed in this area and they may be right.

Maybe it would be better if they are.

When the speaker told about the progress via the test tube, he also outlined some of the problems that this "imminent" break-through could bring.

He outlined the lengthening of the life span and the power in the hands of technicians over life and death that granting or withholding artificially made organs could bring.

Who will decide who should live or die? was one of the questions he hurled at nearly 1,000 newspapermen.

And of course no one had the answer then other than their religious faith and we aren't any closer to having the answer today. No one really likes to think about these things because the problems are so complex, so vast that the ordinary Joe figuratively throws up his hands, has another beer or goes bowling.

He places questions like this in the same category with the atom bomb. The best way to deal with it is to ignore it.

Meanwhile the population bomb is tick, tick, ticking away . . . and while it may not be as quick as the bomb it could be even more deadly.

WEDNESDAY MORNING Cass City was struck by a veritable heat wave as the temperature pushed its way upwards from 10 degrees. Compare that to the temperatures recorded at the high-low thermometer at the disposal plant on previous days. Monday the range was 16 degrees below zero to 20 degrees above. Sunday the mercury dipped to 18 below to a high of 20 degrees and Saturday the frigid -18 was duplicated although the top temperature climbed to a balmy 24 degrees. Nelson Willy checks the gauge for the Chronicle.

Fatal accidents avoided

Several injured in minor area crashes

Although Tuscola county has not yet counted its first fatality of 1971, a young Mayville man, Richard Harris, 29, was killed Sunday night in a one car accident in Lapeer county, seven miles south of the Tuscola county line. Harris, who lived at the Snover and Schott Roads, was a teacher in the Marlette schools.

According to Lapeer county Sheriff's Deputies, Harris was driving north with his brother, Roger, a passenger.

A quarter mile north of the Burnside Road, Harris lost control of the car, swerved to the left across the center line, struck a snow bank, broke through a guard rail, snapped off a utility pole and turned over.

Roger Harris was not seriously hurt but Richard Harris was killed.

Genevieve Abbe, 46, Owendale, and her four passengers, Mary Blondell, 62, of Owendale, Elizabeth Szidik, 52, of Owendale, Joyce Nieschulz, 25, of Sebawaing and June Günsell, 31, of Sebawaing, were shaken up in a two-vehicle accident that occurred at 3:15 p. m. Monday at the intersection of the Bay City-Forestville Road and Cemetery Road.

According to the Sheriff's report, the car carrying the five women had stopped for the four-way stop sign when they were struck from the rear by a pickup truck driven by Lavern Shiotti, 52, of Elkton.

Shiotti told officers that his truck slid on the ice.

Three-year-old Jeffery Ware, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferris Ware, was treated at Hills and Dales General Hospital Monday for injuries suffered in a two-car crash in Cass City.

Jeffery was a passenger in a car driven by his mother, Carolyn. He was injured when his mother was turning onto Church Street from Leach Street and collided with a car driven on Church by Manuel James Sapien at 11:45 a. m.

Mrs. Ware and Sapien were uninjured. The Ware car was badly damaged.

Two Gageton residents escaped injury when the car they were riding in flipped over Saturday at 7:30 p. m.

John Comment, 20, was the driver of the vehicle on Owendale Road, 2 1/4 miles south of Owendale, when he lost control of the car, flipped and landed in a roadside ditch. Comment said that he struck loose snow on the road.

The other passenger was Richard Fluegge, 21.

No decision was reached, but it is likely that money from local tax sources will be earmarked for library operation.

Money was one of two pressing problems of the board. The other was finding a way to stop vandalism at the library.

The library board indicated that it was willing to put up a reward for the apprehension of the persons responsible and asked if this were the best approach.

The matter was referred to Chief Wilson for further discussion.

Several other items concerning the library were disposed of. The village agreed to clean the parking lot of snow after more critical areas are cleared and appointed Mrs. Lucy Auten to the board. She replaces Mrs. Robert Keating who resigned.

Most of the four-year term Mrs. Auten is filling remains to be served.

For several years now the Rawson Memorial Library has been able to operate without financial assistance from Elkland township or the village of Cass City.

The reason for this enviable condition was that penal fine money has been great enough to pay the facility's cost of operation.

Now, said three members of the library board attending the regular meeting of the Cass City Village Council Monday, the time has come for the village to consider the library at budget time.

The reason is twofold. The first is that the cost of running the library with the new building is much greater than the older, smaller building it replaced.

Second is that the amount of money received from penal fines is decreasing. In 1970, the library received $8,900. In a peak year in the past $14,000 was received.

The reason, says Police Chief Gene Wilson, is that the money is siphoned off by the newly organized District Court.

Anyway, Mrs. Iris Tuckey, Mrs. Evelyn MacRae and Mrs. Esther McCullough asked that several hundred dollars be included in the 1971 budget for library expenses. They also informed the council that the Elkland township board had agreed to help again if the village did.

place left to put them. The space problem is repeated in other offices and is most acute in the register of deeds office.

Switching to microfilming appears to be the answer and before long it is possible that the county will be forced to buy a machine for this purpose for $15,000.

Mrs. Hicks doesn't really like to think about this like she does another part of her job: serving the public.

I like to meet people, she said, and give them the fastest service possible when they need information about births, deaths, marriages and other statistics available from this office.

Sooner or later, she added, most county residents come to the clerk's office and the nicest part of my job is being able to send them away with the records they need.

She may be responsible for doing it for many years to come.

Cost spiral continues

$300,000 budget seen for village in '71

A total budget that will reach over $300,000 is in store for residents of the village of Cass City as the cost of running the community continues to leap upwards.

While no budget will probably be hammered out before the March deadline, the village council anticipates no reduction in taxes despite a surplus of $33,307.36 in the operating account and a total of $51,360.49 on hand to start the new year. The continuing increase in the cost of village government must be laid to inflation and a more complex system of services to the community.

In the last five years, the village has experienced almost no increase in population, but there has been an increase in operating costs that reaches 50 per cent when compared to the financial statement for 1966.

In 1966, total expenditures for all purposes was $202,574.44 and total receipts for all purposes was $231,594.92 which included money in an investment account from previous years of almost $30,000.

One of the reasons for the increase has been an expansion of the personnel in the various departments. The police department has gradually expanded from a two-man force to a three-man force with a fourth man putting in enough hours to approach a full time employee status. The full-time staff at the disposal plant was doubled with the addition of a helper for Nelson Willy.

There are more men working now, and they receive more money. The upward cost spiral will undoubtedly be followed in 1971.

This was apparent when the first look at employee wages for 1971 was taken by the Cass City Village Council Monday night.

President Lambert Althaver said that the employees were reportedly thinking of raises in the 10 per cent bracket.

He said that in the last few years wages had increased from 7 to 10 per cent. He also said that he felt that a 10 per cent wage increase was a high percentage.

New Village Superintendent James Blades was asked to get comparative figures for the council to look at before a proposal to the employees is made.

Presently, the public works department employees are paid $3.08 to $3.12 per hour. Any settlement, Althaver said, should equalize the difference in the wage scales.

Chief Gene Wilson reported that he was asking 10 per cent for himself and other officers and 15 per cent for John Rand. Rand receives $130; William McKinley, $156, and Wilson, $179.

Willy receives $188 as head of the waste treatment plant and is asking 8 1/2 per cent raise. His assistant receives $140 weekly and Willy is asking 10 per cent for him.

All wage adjustments will be retroactive to Jan. 1, the council agreed.

Supt. Blades said that it was gratifying to him to learn of the high esteem that all of the village employees had evidently earned in the village.

In my visits as a planner to many communities, he added, it is the best that I have ever seen.

STUDENT SAFETY

Plans under discussion by a committee organized to promote school safety were revealed by Councilman Gary Jones.

Several tentative projects are under study, but it is unlikely that any significant steps will be taken to aid the children this year.

SERVING THE PEOPLE is what she likes best, says Mrs. Elsie Hicks, Tuscola County Clerk, after one year on the job.

Elsie Hicks reviews first year as county clerk

This week marks the first anniversary for Mrs. Elsie M. Hicks as Tuscola County Clerk and affairs of the office are going along now as they did when she took over. . . quietly and smoothly.

Actually, 1971 marks a dual anniversary for Mrs. Hicks. It is her first year as clerk and her tenth in the clerk's office.

Mrs. Hicks joined the office at the request of her father-in-law, the late Archie Hicks, and when he died suddenly a year ago was appointed by Circuit Court Judges James Churchill and Norman A. Baguley to fill the vacancy.

It was an election year and the election provided the new clerk with her few anxious moments since she became clerk. And the anxiety wasn't caused because she was a candidate.

However, it is unusual for any candidate to be elected to county posts without opposition when they have never demonstrated their power at the polls. And as a woman in a position traditionally filled here by a man it would appear that she would have been especially vulnerable. After all, there are only lady clerks in 17 of Michigan's 83 counties.

But Mrs. Hicks passed this test with flying colors. She was re-elected without opposition. The clerk's anxiety about the election stemmed from the newness to the myriad duties the office has conducting an election.

With elections out of the way for another year and a half, Mrs. Hicks can occupy herself with the more routine affairs of her office. This includes keeping up with the constant changes sent from the State. Something new almost every day, Mrs. Hicks sighed.

What isn't new are most of the key people in the office. Three of the four persons flanking Mrs. Hicks in the office have been working from five to 10 years. I used to work under Mr. Hicks with these girls; now they work with me, the clerk says, and the transition was completed without even a hint of difficulty.

While the duties of the other veterans in the office didn't change, Mrs. Hicks' job definitely did.

Before appointed clerk, she was circuit court clerk and occupied with the court's business. Now she spends two days a month or more as clerk for county commissioners and the rest of the time handling the duties of her office.

The clerk's office is one of the busiest in the courthouse and one which the public has much contact with.

It is also the record keeping branch of county government. And the records are nearly outgrowing the space available for them.

Mrs. Hicks estimates that in five years there will be no

It is almost certain that nothing will be accomplished before spring.

The painting of sidewalks with school crossing at the corner of Ale and Main will probably be the first step because it is the simplest and cheapest.

Another suggestion was a school sign with amber flashers north of the school to warn motorists approaching on North Cemetery Road. Another was the installation of walk, wait signs at the Seeger and Main Streets intersection.

However, the cost makes this prohibitive unless State aid can be secured. Blades was asked to look into the matter.

Another suggestion discussed at the meeting with school board representatives was the purchase of sidewalk sweep-type cleaner that is used in some communities to clear uneven sidewalks such as Cass City has. This item was not discussed with the council.

Court orders

Israel examined

Hurley Israel, 31, Deford has been directed by Tuscola County Circuit Court to undergo psychiatric examination at a forensics center.

Israel is charged with breaking and entering a cabin and with breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling. . . Both crimes alleged to have been committed in mid-September.

Israel has been in the Tuscola County Jail on bond since his arrest Dec. 12, 1970. He appeared Monday before Judge Norman A. Baguley.

Scouts need leaders

Cass City and the nation observe Boy Scout week Feb. 8-12 and on the eve of the event, Scoutmaster James MacTavish reviewed the outlook for scouting in the village and area.

Realistically, MacTavish says, I must conclude that Scouting in the village is not at the high level that it once occupied.

It's not that the boys aren't interested, MacTavish says; it is simply that there aren't enough leaders to conduct the program.

A few years ago the scout program included some 75 scouts in two troops. Now we have around 35 in my troop. There are other boys interested, MacTavish said, but no place for them to go. I can't effectively handle a troop bigger than the one I now have. It's impossible.

It also may be impossible for some 20 Webelos Scouts to move up into the Scouting program next year when they should be joining a troop, MacTavish explained. It's not money that is holding us back, he said, it's men.

Currently, Scouts in the Cass City troop are meeting regularly, advancing in Scout work and participating in Scout programs.

The next will be the annual Klondike derby slated at Cass City Feb. 13 and a Polar Bear to be held in the very near future.

Cass City has two Scouts that will probably become Eagles this year. . . the first Scouts to attain Scout's highest rank in many, many years, MacTavish said.

Brian Althaver is all but ready, and Randy Bacon needs only a couple of merit badges to qualify.

But to put Scouting here back where it once was, more leaders for another troop are needed.

I'd be happy to deal with a new troop if someone would like to take over this one, MacTavish continued. The important thing is to make it possible for more boys to become involved in Scouting.

"If It Fittz. . ."No more confessions?

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Pope Paul has asked the world's 3,199 Catholic bishops to study a Vatican recommendation to eliminate obligatory, head-to-head confession. Instead, congregations would con-less sins jointly and not specifically, in a prayer of general confession. In return, the priest would give them joint absolution, urging them to go and sin no more — but to hurry back if they do.

If the bishops approve, private confessions could be eliminated within a year, according to Vatican sources. I'll leave it to the theologians to decide if this would be good or bad. My concern is more commercial.

What would be done with all those emptied confessionals? To me, confessionals have always been marvelously spooky yet functional contraptions. I don't think they've changed much since my childhood when I went to confession every Saturday even if I had to lie about how many lies I'd told so the priest wouldn't think I was wasting his time.

In those days, and probably today, most confessionals had 3 separate compartments, each about the size of a phone booth, and each shrouded in pious darkness. The priest sat in the middle, preferably on a swivel stool. Small screened windows with sliding doors allowed him to talk to the sinners, one at a time, in the other 2 compartments. The sinner in 1 compartment was not supposed to try to hear what the sinner in the other compartment was confessing to the priest. But what could you do if the other sinner was a lousy whisperer, or the priest was hard of hearing? The nuns used to tell us to plug our ears but that was asking an awful lot of a little kid who knew his rotten sister was in the other compartment. If these confessionals are abandoned, there will probably be many suggestions for what to do with them. A confessional planter would certainly make a great conversation piece in the recreation room. A non-plumber might find triple use for one 50 yards behind his cabin in the north woods. A New York landlord might rent one as a 3-room apartment to a family of 12 Puerto Ricans. How about mini-offices on wheels for psychiatrists who want to go where the neuroses are? They could park them in front of Catholic churches where old-fashioned parishioners might be wandering around looking for someone to talk to.

A used confessional might be useful to the genius who will inevitably create the TV show, "Son of Dating Game." Graduates of the parent show could be called back to confess what they did on their dates. The contestant would sit in the middle. You take it from there. Obviously, the possibilities are unlimited. Probably the best idea for the individual churches would be a public auction of confessionals. The bidding could get fierce between users who have become addicted and don't want to quit cold turkey. These auctions could be the greatest fund-raisers since bingo.

If you assumed that the State would be automatically reimbursed for that bridge destroyed by tanker fire on I-75 at Flint a couple of weeks ago, you're wrong.

According to a representative of the State Highway Department, collection could be a lengthy process. Without going into details, the case will stem around road conditions, driver speed, negligence, and similar questions. Incidentally, the cost originally pegged at $1 million is more likely to be $400,000 or less. Regardless of the final cost figure, the whole affair may turn into a taxpayers' nightmare and a lawyer's bonanza.

I learned all of this last week as a hospitality room guest of an insurance company at the Michigan Press Association convention at East Lansing. Not the company, incidentally, that has the tanker insured.

Evidently the abortion traffic to New York is big business. The Chronicle received an ad this week from a company that schedules "safe, legal abortions" for a fee in New York City. Don't ask what company, because we didn't run the ad and won't reveal the name. But it is an indication of changing times, isn't it?

There is a reason why it's illegal for snowmobilers to use the municipal park. In fact, two reasons. The first is the obvious damage that could occur to the grass and playing fields. The second is that the hill created at the north limits of the park was designed as a sledding area for youngsters. Obviously, snow machines and kids on sleds don't mix.

I don't know of any tickets issued yet for violations at the park, but there could be.

Even worse, for snowmobilers, is that constant disregard for the village's lenient ordinance could bring a law change and crackdown that no one really wants to see.

To tell the truth, this new President's Day holiday can be confusing. Monday is, by Federal decree, the official holiday. It comes after Lincoln's birthday this Friday. Washington's real birthday is Monday, Feb. 22.

The post office never did close for Lincoln and always shuts down for Washington. . . probably because the postal department operates in the south, huh.

But Michigan banks close not only for Washington, but also for Lincoln. It could be a mini-bank holiday for firms closed normally on Saturday.

Cass City banks chopped this delightful prospect almost before you could say Cherry tree by announcing they would be open a full day Saturday.

Oddly enough, a man was once chosen "Coach of the Year" in football even though his team had a losing season! . . . In 1936 the "Coach of the Year" was Dick Harlow of Harvard. . . Harvard's record that year was 3 wins, 4 losses and a tie.

Here's an oddity about basketball star Lew Alcindor. . . When he first joined the National Basketball Association, he played in more losing games in 5 days than he did in 3 years of college ball! . . . In college at UCLA, Alcindor played in just 2 losing games in 3 years, but early in his first pro season with Milwaukee he played in 3 losing games in 5 days!

Lawful to feed cattle more stilbestrol now

Federal Drug Administration
(FDA) changes for stilbestrol feeding rates offer cattle feeders more potential for profit,
points out Bill Bortel, Tuscola
County extension agent.

New regulations allow feeding rates of 20 milligrams per head for cattle that weigh more than 750 pounds. Research indicates that this higher level will be a money maker compared to the previous limit of 10 milligrams
per head daily.

Stilbestrol formulations at the 20 milligrams rate are now generally available in Michigan.

Remember that cattle given stilbestrol must be fed as long as cattle not given stilbestrol,
if they are to grade satisfactorily at slaughter. Stilbestrol must not be fed to breeding stock or dairy animals, according to the Federal Register,
which lists regulations controlling use of stilbestrol.

Also, be sure to comply with the 48-hour withdrawal period
for stilbestrol that's required when cattle go to slaughter. The FDA says it will prosecute when stilbestrol residues are found.

BETTER HEALTH

Sex revolution started in 1920's

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

In the journal GP, an able professor of gynecology and obstetrics in New York City, Dr. Schaefer, pointed out in an article that Dr. Kinsey's information which was collected in 1938, showed that already 20 per cent of college girls were not virgins. Other studies showed that the revolution in sexual mores was started in the 1920's, and not in the 1960's.

There has been a big increase in early sexual activity.
Recent studies show that about 50 per cent of engaged couples have had sexual relations, and the average couple now marries before the age of 20. Quite a few teen-agers marry, and this is bad because 50 per cent of such early marriages end in divorce. The young people are not mature enough, and often they haven't the necessary income to support two people. Of the young people who quickly get divorced, about 70 per cent later marry again, with a better chance of success. Only one in seven of these second marriages ends in divorce,
which shows that young people
had better wait a bit before they marry.

As Dr. Schaefer said so well,
many people never become mature, but others develop sufficient maturity between the ages of 18 and 21 to take care of their problems intelligently.
A few hundred times, as I have watched patients of mine drifting toward a divorce, my impression has been that both were too childish to succeed in making a successful and happy marriage. One reason why we now hear so much about the troubles of adolescence is that adolescents now constitute such a large percentage of our population--more than ever before.

Dr. Schaefer thinks that it is wise for a teen-ager to let his parents know something about his or her love life, so that they will not be so dis-trusting and fearful. I fear, however, that with some parents, any confidence will cause trouble. It can help a child's sexuality if he senses that the relationship between his father and mother is beautiful. Things are bad when he sees his parents fighting.

I like Dr. Schaefer's statement that parents must accept the fact that they have no right to demand gratitude, love, or respect from their children;
they can only win such things
by giving the children understanding, love, respect, and the right to make many of their own decisions. It is no use trying to control the sexual situation of a youngster through distrust, interference, bitter criticism, punishment, or lectures on moral behavior.

Many a time, I have seen that all a too-well-guarded child
wanted was to get far away from home -- perhaps to get away to some college far from home. Or a girl may marry unwisely, mainly to get free of her mother. Many a girl, when she gets away from home, tries out everything that her mother kept insisting that she never

do. She quickly tries alcohol, tobacco and sex. Unfortunately,
in trying to rebel against her mother, she may hurt herself seriously. The girl may find that physical sex without love is usually not satisfying, and may even be disappointing and lonely, and promiscuous sexual relations can result in serious venereal disease. Emotional hurt often comes when, after a girl has done something that is unacceptable to society, society strikes back at her to show its disapproval.

Today many parents are struggling with the question of whether they should permit their sexy daughter to have contraceptive pills. Some parents feel that if a girl chooses to have sexual relations, she should take the responsibility for getting the contraceptive pills to protect herself from an unwanted pregnancy. More and more parents are giving the doctor permission to prescribe contraceptive pills.

As Max Lerner wrote a while ago, many a girl with stern
parents, when she goes to college, gets the first taste of "the sweetness and terror of freedom". However, as Lerner said, the Victorian ideas that

Spray cows now to kill lice

Most cattle herds are infested with lice now, and severe infestations will probably develop this winter if you don't take control measures immediately,
warns Bill Bortel, Tuscola
County Extension Agent.

Problems develop in winter
because long hair offers lice
good protection and confinement increases spread of lice. As lice infestation becomes more severe, cattle will rub and leave traces of hair. Lousy cattle develop a rough hair coat.

Backrubbers provide some control of lice, but cattle must be sprayed to eliminate a heavy infestation of lice.

Use an insecticide containing ciodrin and dichlorvos. Apply enough spray to wet the hair to the skin. Cows may require up to one gallon, depending on the active ingredient percentage
in the spray and the hair length.

Use a high pressure sprayer
to efficiently wet the animals with the spray solution. After spraying animals in cold weather,
immediately turn them outside to speed drying.

If temperatures and wind are so severe that spraying is likely to cause pneumonia or other health problems, use a three per cent ciodrin dust. But dust applications may have to be repeated about every two weeks
for effective control of lice.

When using any insecticide,
read the container label carefully and follow instructions closely.

For more detailed recommendations on parasite control,
contact the Tuscola County Cooperative Extension Service office in Caro.

Mercury in tuna not at danger level

By Mary E. Kerr

This information comes through Lysle Hutton, District Extension Consumer Marketing Information Agent.

The problem of mercury in tuna fish was brought to the attention of the Food and Drug Administration by a chemist of New York University, Dr. Bruce McDuffie.

On Thursday, Dr. McDuffie reported in Binghamton findings on tests he had made on 42 people on weight-losing diets containing a high proportion of fish. The tested dieters had been on the high-fish diet at least 16 months. These dieters were compared with a control group of 20 persons whose diets contained no appreciable amount of fish.

Tests included examination of mercury levels in blood, hair and urine. He found the blood of the dieters contained 1.0 micrograms of mercury in every 100 milliliters, well within the "normal" range of blood mercury values, but five times higher than the blood mercury level of the 20 nondieters. Blood mercury levels for four of the dieters were 10 times the average of the control group, but still a small fraction of the level considered toxic, Dr. McDuffie reported.

He said that 150 parts per million of mercury in the hair are considered an indication of mercury poisoning. However, he found an average of 8.9 parts per million in the hair of dieters, the highest having 41 parts per million. The average for the nondieters was 3.1 parts per million of mercury in the hair.

Urine levels showed similar levels, none of which were considered hazardous, the chemist said.

He warned, however, that further research is needed on the effects of long term consumption of low level mercury in foods. As researchers examine fish preserved long ago, they are finding that high levels of mercury have existed in sea water for hundreds of years.

Beliefs guide

4-H program

BY BERNARD JARDOT

What we believe is one of the most important things about us. Beliefs control behavior if we are free to act as we think we should. If we can accept some beliefs, which are in keeping with what is known about the nature of man and his universe, our practices will improve.

I mention this in relation to what we believe is important in our 4-H youth program objectives. It is the following beliefs that have made our 4-H youth program so successful at the local, state, national and international levels.

We believe that the individual is the most important thing in our program. That each person is unique and different in his feelings, needs and attitudes.

The task has to seem worth doing to the individual; it has to make sense to him. This is why our youth today ask that we make learning more relevant. Their feelings and attitudes control their behavior while knowledge does not.

Our task is to build better people. To build better people, self-esteem must come first, and what the child learns about his world will follow, in terms of feeling, attitude, courage and adequacy.

These are important beliefs that will become important factors in guiding our actions with our 4-H members if we are to fulfill our objectives of the 4-H youth program. This must involve the 4-H staff, leaders and parents who will help our youth in their 4-H programs.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

With the groundhog to make his prediction this week, the fellers at the country store got to wondering Saturday night if he deals in anything besides the weather. Ed Doolittle said he had a list he would like to get some expert opinion on, so natural he didn't want to bring them up during the session.
Ed ask if the Government has ever give serious study to the groundhog, and nobody didn't know that either. Ed allowed that a Government that can spend hundreds of thousands of dollars on researching hawks
wings, owls eyes and the navigation equipment of bats and porcupines had ought to be able to appropriate a few thousand fer groundhogs.

Serious speaking, went on Ed, the groundhog ain't give much attention as a weatherman, but folks like to talk about him if, fer no other reason, to keep from hearing all the scientific stuff about how the weather is figured out.
Bug Hookum was agreed with Ed that folks git too cared away with useless learning. Bug said he worries what will happen to this country when everybody has a degree in some subject.
Across the country, Bug allowed, universities is multiinstitutional complexes, colleges is universities, technical institutes grow up to be community colleges, vocational schools git to be technical institutes and all the high schools
turn out younguns fer higher education.

While the schools of higher learning are doing reserch in pinup calenders and comic books, and the younguns is taking courses in movie appreciation and ping pong, Bug said, bricklayers and plumbers in this country got more work than they can do at $11 a hour.
It ain't no wonder, declared Bug, that the educated is the ones out of work.
Clem Webster was agreed with Bug that students in what they call the liberal arts has plenty to be liberal with. They got all the time in the world
while they spend money their

Fertilize for corn yield goal

By William Bortel

The Tuscola County "Corn Clinics" attracted 218 corn producers. Growing corn as a profitable crop in Tuscola county was discussed emphasizing the importance of modern day culture practices and seed corn buying recommendations.

Management practices for high yields illustrated the importance to fertilize for your corn yield goal. If you are satisfied with 100 bushel corn, fertilize for only the 100 bushel. A 150-bushel corn crop requires 175-200 pounds of nitrogen.

Good weed control is essential for respectable corn yields, especially with the new shorter hybrids. Atrazine used at the (1) active pound rate in combination with Lasso used

at the (2) active pound rate is good on annual grasses and broad-leaved weeds. This combination is more effective on the late summer grasses than the straight atrazine. This is an excellent recommendation
for the bean grower.

The seed corn maggot can prevent sprouting and must be treated on the Tuscola livestock farms, with continuous corn and farms with heavy soil.
Diazinon used at 2 actual ounces per bushel or Dieldrin used at the 1 ounce of 50% WP to 100 pounds of seed are excellent seed box treatments.

Further culture practices included rate of planting. Varieties should be selected that are bred for thick planting and that the good well-drained soils
should have a final plant population of 22,000 to 24,000.
Early planted corn will require more seed since 15% of the corn never comes through the ground. It is further recommended to use 24 cell plates for a more uniform stand of corn and round kernels have a tendency to feed more uniformly into the planter.

What type of corn should you as Mr. Corn Producer buy in 1971? It is highly recommended to use "N" cytoplasm corn,
however, the most important factor is, don't sacrifice production of a high yielding modern day hybrid for a poorer hybrid with "N" cytoplasm. It will be extremely important to plant all corn early in 1971
since it was found that the early planted corn last year
had considerably less blight damage. Also, if you plant a
"T" cytoplasm corn or a blend,
it may prove very profitable to plant a little more seed per acre this year. Many of the top yielding hybrids with "N" cytoplasm have already been exhausted, so get your corn sown for immediately.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

If ever a man's job became obsolete, it was this fellow's. And what a job it was. He learned everything first, then imparted the news to others.
If he had a good memory, he was usually the best informed man in town.
Who else read every release and then shouted it all over town? He also was the principal advertising medium for the tradespeople and shopkeepers. He announced their products, services and special sales.

And in most communities the town crier reminded men of the approach of the Sabbath, urging them to be present for worship at the appointed hour in the churches of the community.

The newspaper made the town crier a has-been. It has taken over all his functions and performed them more efficiently. That includes reminding men of the day of worship, and, through advertisements such as this,
urging us to worship.

You see one thing hasn't changed. Man's need for God!

ONE FOR THE ROAD Death penalty becoming obsolete

By Dan Marlowe

The times they are a-changin'.

For the better?
That depends upon your particular seat in the grandstand. Consider: The U. S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit recently handed down a decision declaring the death penalty unconstitutional in rape cases, at least where the victim's life was neither taken nor endangered.

In such cases, the three-judge panel ruled unanimously, the death sentence violates the "evolving standards of decency" implicit in the Eighth Amendment's prohibition of cruel and unusual punishment.

The court also noted that rape is a capital offense in fewer than one-third of the states, and elsewhere only in Malawi, Nationalist China, South Africa, and South Viet Nam. The ruling is the broadest rejection of the death penalty ever handed down by the U. S. Court of Appeals.

At the very least it would seem an almost intolerable burden had been placed upon juries to decide if the rape victim's life had been "endangered". But even more significantly, juries in some parts of the country seem to have taken it upon themselves to decide that the death penalty is obsolete, and they are taking their own measures.

In Oklahoma City a jury decided upon a guilty verdict for a black man accused of abducting and raping a white woman at knife point. They then reconvened to set the penalty as Oklahoma juries are required to do by law. The prosecutor asked for the death penalty, terming a life sentence "a slap on the wrist."

The jury did not bring in the death penalty. Instead, they brought in a sentence of 1500 years. That is not a typographical error. The sentence was 1500 years.

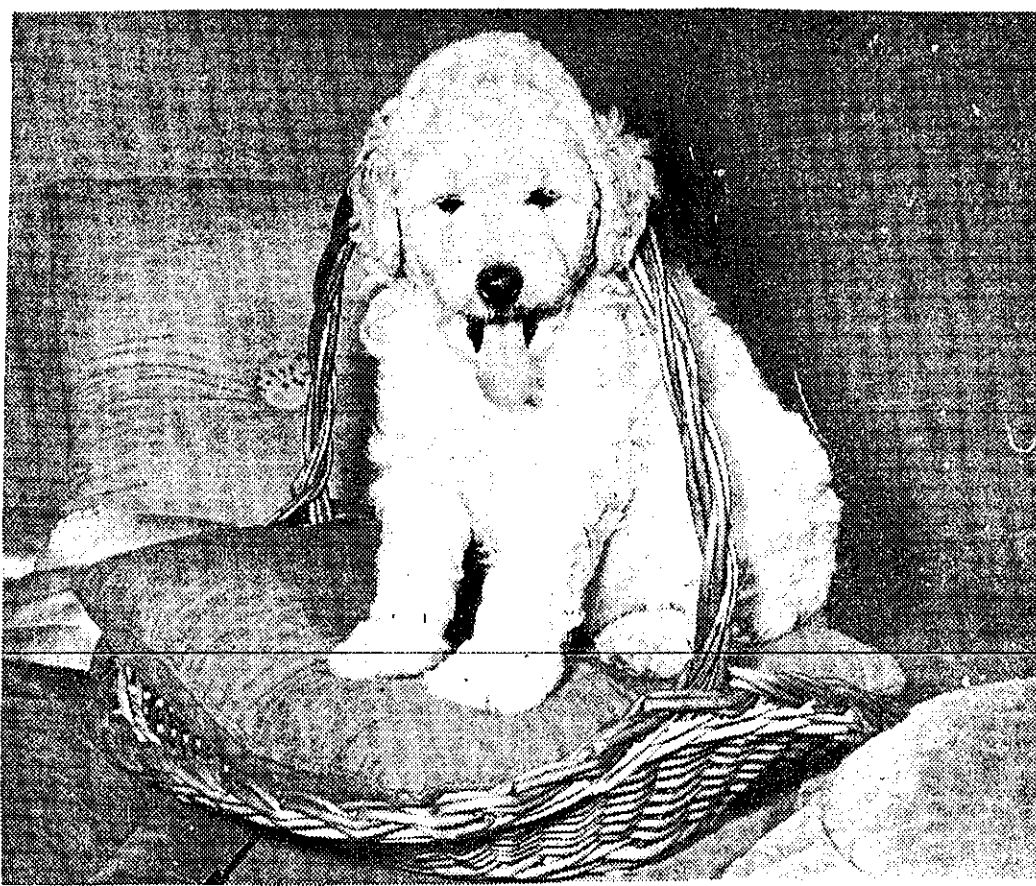

The jury foreman explained the rationale afterward. "We decided that a life sentence would probably mean parole in less than 15 years, and we didn't want that man on the street again."

The public-defender attorney for the defense announced that he would appeal the sentence as "cruel, inhuman, and excessive."

Conceivably in practice the 1500 year sentence could be treated as a life sentence and the "lifer" considered eligible for parole in 15 years. But the gigantic sentence—the longest known for a single offense in the U. S.—was a clear statement of the jury's feeling about the ineffectiveness of the present death penalty, since the jury had made it its business to know that no death penalty had been carried out anywhere in the U. S. in the past three years, although hundreds of men still remain on Death Row with their cases in varying stages of appeal.

If the death penalty is no longer a penalty, it's obvious that some juries are searching for meaningful alternatives.

Rehearsal time for resolutions is over, now comes the real test.

NEEDS ATTENTION---This little fellow is almost ready to go to a new home—but will the new owner be prepared to take care of him? Owning a pet takes time, money and love, and anyone thinking about becoming an owner should consider the responsibilities.

POINTS ON PETS

Would-be owners consider duties

By ELOISE KEELER
Copley News Service

Before losing your heart to a cuddly kitten or playful puppy, make sure you are willing and able to take on the responsibility of owning a pet.

Increased traffic, leash laws, soaring costs of veterinary care, boarding and professional grooming, have made pet owning a major project not to be undertaken lightly.

Here are points to ponder before adopting a new furry, four-footed member into your family.

Do you have a securely fenced yard? Thousands of pets are injured or killed every year in traffic. And many communities have ordinances against dogs running loose. More and more cats are being kept indoors or part of the time indoors, part in outside runs or escape-proof yards with wire at top of fence slanting inward.

Puppies should be inoculated against three diseases — distemper, infectious hepatitis and canine leptospirosis (shots for all three may be given in one injection); kittens against feline enteritis. Your veterinarian will tell you how many shots are needed and when for your pet's full protection.

The American Veterinary Medical Association now recommends yearly booster shots. And in rabies endemic (wooded) areas, dogs may require rabies shots to be licensed.

Puppies should also be checked by a veterinarian for worms. And when a pet shows any signs of illness or injury he should be taken to a veterinarian.

Your dog and cat will need well-balanced diets. Top-quality commercial canned, dry and moist pet foods, developed through research by big companies, contain needed nutrients and vitamins. But according to pet nutritionists, they should be supplemented with some fresh meat, chow, meal or kibble, condensed milk or cottage cheese, cooked eggs and small amounts of greens such as finely chopped lettuce.

Puppies and kittens should be fed three or four times daily; mature pets once or twice a day — cats generally twice. They also need fresh water available at all times. Food and water bowls should be clean.

They should have snug, draft-free places to sleep. If you don't want to invest in a commercial pet bed, use a carton cut down so pet can easily get in and out on one side, with blanket or shredded newspaper on bottom.

Most cats will instinctively use a litter box if it's kept clean, dry and odor free. But housebreaking pups takes time and patience. You'll find products at your pet store to help with this irksome chore, plus disinfectants, deodorants and spot removers.

It's also important to keep your pet clean and free of parasites. Some breeds of dogs such as poodles and cocker spaniels, need monthly professional grooming in addition to regular brushing and combing at home. Long-haired cats should be combed out several times a week, and coats of all pets need some attention if only an occasional rubdown.

$1 million county road bonds sold at 4.25 rate

Tuscola County's Road Commission sold $1 million worth of construction bonds Monday afternoon to the investment firm of Hornblower & Wicks of Detroit and Chicago with an interest rate of 4.25. Hornblower & Wicks was the lowest bidder among nine potential purchasers of the bonds but all of the bidders were in the four to five per cent interest range.

The bonds, to be paid off in 15 years, will go toward construction of 20 bridges on Tuscola county primary roads and is separate from the road commission's five-year project of refurbishing bridges on rural roads and spanning dredge cuts that will be paid from the millage levy voted by the residents on Nov. 3.

The bid is considered extremely good and came about for a number of reasons including the short term of 15 years and the amount of the loan. The monies to pay off the bonds will come from other revenues to the road commission besides the special millage approved last fall and the bridge construction can be expected to get underway this spring.

Commissioners met twice the end of last week taking up a number of routine matters that had been incomplete after snow interrupted the regular session last Tuesday. For one thing the commissioners acted to give all county employees fully paid hospitalization following the contract lead of the Sheriff's department.

The board also worked privately toward a contract of some kind for a building that will house the department of social welfare. There is no word on what or where the building will be or whether it will be purchased or leased but the commissioners express the hope of having a definite decision in the near future.

The Department of Social Welfare is housed in the downstairs area of the court house.

The commissioners, Thursday, awarded the firm of Wilsie-Simpson Chevrolet and Cadillac Inc., the bid for three new Oldsmobile sheriff's patrol cars for $8,845 and two trade-in vehicles. There were three bidders, all from Caro, with the firm of Bell-Greig close behind Wilsie-Simpson and Burton-Moore Ford the third bidder.

Bell-Greig Pontiac was the low bidder if the department traded in three patrol cars for three new ones.

However Wilsie-Simpson was about $100 lower if the department kept one of the cars and only traded in two vehicles. In the final decision Sheriff Hugh Marr asked to keep one of the older cars for the use of Detective Sergeants William Bliss and Bruce Tait and Wilsie-Simpson was the low bidder. The new specially equipped cars will be delivered within a few weeks.

Alexander's 33 points helps Hawks break 4-game losing streak

Cass City broke a four game losing streak Tuesday night with a win over helpless Vassar, 58-48, to virtually assure that the Vulcans will end up in the Thumb B Conference basement.

The Hawks were lifted past the Vulcans for the second time this season by Rob Alexander who scored 33 points, for his best scoring effort of a three-year varsity career.

And the Hawks needed nearly all of them to win. The game was a listless affair. Neither quintet appeared fired up and a small mid-week crowd did nothing to stir up an excitement.

It was a game between also-rans in the League this season and while the game itself was close, closer than the final score indicates, it did nothing to generate the enthusiasm that nip and tuck cage games sometimes do.

The teams ended the first quarter all knotted at 12 points each. At the end of the half, Cass City was in front by five points, 26-21.

In the third period Vassar rallied to tie the score again only to fall behind by the end of the quarter, 38-35 as the Hawks stiffened.

The game remained close until mid-way through the final period. Alexander netted 10 of his 33 points in the last quarter to pace the rally that won the game.

The only other Hawk to hit in double figures was Paul Bliss who netted 11. Mike Smith paced the Vulcans with 20 points.

The Cass City Junior Varsity also got back onto the winning side of the ledger with a 68-56 decision over the Vassar JV's.

Kip Hopper scored 19 to lead the attack for the Hawks. Friday the Hawks will be at home to another of the league's stronger teams, Bad Axe. The Hatchets easily defeated the Hawks in the first round, but have been having trouble in recent games due to the loss by injury of Lloyd Schinnerer. He will be ready to face Cass City Friday.

An added feature of the game will be a Judo exhibition between the JV and varsity contests, authorities said.

MARLETTE GAME

The high flying Red Raiders from Marlette perched at the top of the Thumb B Conference with Caro last Friday after a convincing victory over Cass City, 64-44, on the Raiders' home court.

It was Cass City's fourth loss in a row in league play bringing the team a 2-7 loop record and an over-all mark of 3-9.

Cass City played two different games in the loss to Marlette. In the first and third periods they were unable to mount any kind of sustained offense. In the second and fourth periods the Hawks outscored their hosts.

Marlette raced into a huge lead in the opening stanza on stone cold shooting by Cass City while the winners were rebounding and shooting well.

But the Hawks were able to come bounding back in the second period and at one point cut the Marlette lead to a mere four points.

But the Raiders applied the pressure again and took control. Cass City never threatened again.

By the intermission, Cass City trailed 32-24 and in the third quarter the Raiders hit from all angles to remove any doubt as to the outcome of the game.

With a 21-6 margin in the period, Marlette was in front 53-30 at the end of three quarters.

Reserves flooded the floor in the final quarter as coaches gave their benches a chance to see action after there was no longer any doubt as to the outcome.

As might be expected, Cass City's shooting average was not outstanding. The locals hit 40 per cent from the floor for a slightly below average mark. From the free throw line the Hawks were able to convert just 8 of 18 for a very poor 44 per cent. Marlette hit 23 of 51 from the field for 45 per cent and 20 of 30 from the charity circle for a respectable 66 per cent.

Rob Alexander was the only Hawk able to get into double figures. He scored 19 with 9 of 23 field goals and one out of one from the free throw line.

Dave Mutch scored 19 for Marlette and nine Raiders broke into the scoring column.

JUNIOR VARSITY

The Cass City JV squad also lost, 56-52, to continue a second half losing streak. In the first round, the Hawks defeated the Raiders in the JV battle.

Library offers several new books

The Rawson Memorial Library offers patrons a collection of books received this week.

Included are the novel, QB VII, by Leon Uris, the author of Exodus and Topaz, and several non-fiction books: "Your Environment and What You Can Do About It" by Richard Salt-onstall Jr.; "The Orangeburg Massacre" by Nelson and Bass; "The Conquerors" by Allan Eckert, which is the story of Pontiac's uprising; "Krushech Remembers" by Edward Crankshaw, and "The Land and Wildlife of Australia", one in a series by Life editors.

Mackinac bridge: safest place in State to drive

Michigan drivers looking for a safe place to drive their car or truck would be advised to head north.

On the basis of statistics compiled during its 13 years of operation, the Mackinac Bridge appears to be about the safest stretch of highway in the Wolverine State.

An average of only one of every 300,000 vehicles crossing the bridge is involved in a collision. Most of these are the rear-end type caused by drivers gawking at the magnificent scenery of the Straits of Mackinac instead of looking out for the car ahead.

These rear-end collisions vary in frequency from a high of 10 in 1966 down to only one experienced in the year 1960.

Collisions on the fare plaza occur a bit more frequently with one recorded for every 260,000 vehicles going through.

These are attributed to such causes as bad brakes, reaching for money and not watching the road and just plain poor judgment. There was only one of these in 1960 also while the eight experienced last year tied it with 1961, which also saw eight such accidents.

Actually, the worst thing that there is a chance of happening to you is either running out of gas or having a flat tire.

An average of one of every 22,000 vehicles crossing the bridge runs out of gas, despite the fact that it is only five miles long. The record for this was set in 1959 when 96 motorists didn't get to the other side before their gas tanks ran dry.

Your chances of a flat tire are even better, since one of every 19,671 vehicles gets halted for that reason.

Mackinac Bridge patrolmen have assisted in the changing of 910 tires since 1958, with the peak year coming in 1959 when 125 vehicles, or one of every 10,000, didn't make it across.

The Bridge Authority supplies tire changers and enough gas to get a motorist the rest of the way across at no charge.

"But we must confess," says Bridge Authority Chairman Prentiss M. Brown, "that altruism is not our main objective in supplying these services. We are largely interested in moving vehicles off the bridge and fare plaza as quickly as possible so they will not obstruct traffic and become a danger to other bridge crossers."

The bridge also comes out high in the grimmiest of highway statistics--fatalities.

In its 13 year history not one person has been killed, despite the fact close to 100 million vehicle miles have been driven on it. This stacks up against State Police records which show that in 1969 there were 4.89 fatalities for every 100 million vehicle miles driven over Michigan highways.

That rate would be somewhat lower for limited access highways such as interstates, but it still would not be zero.

"The fact that the bridge is lighted at night, has a median strip and is continually patrolled no doubt influences the safe driving record established since its opening," Brown says.

FLYING HIGHER

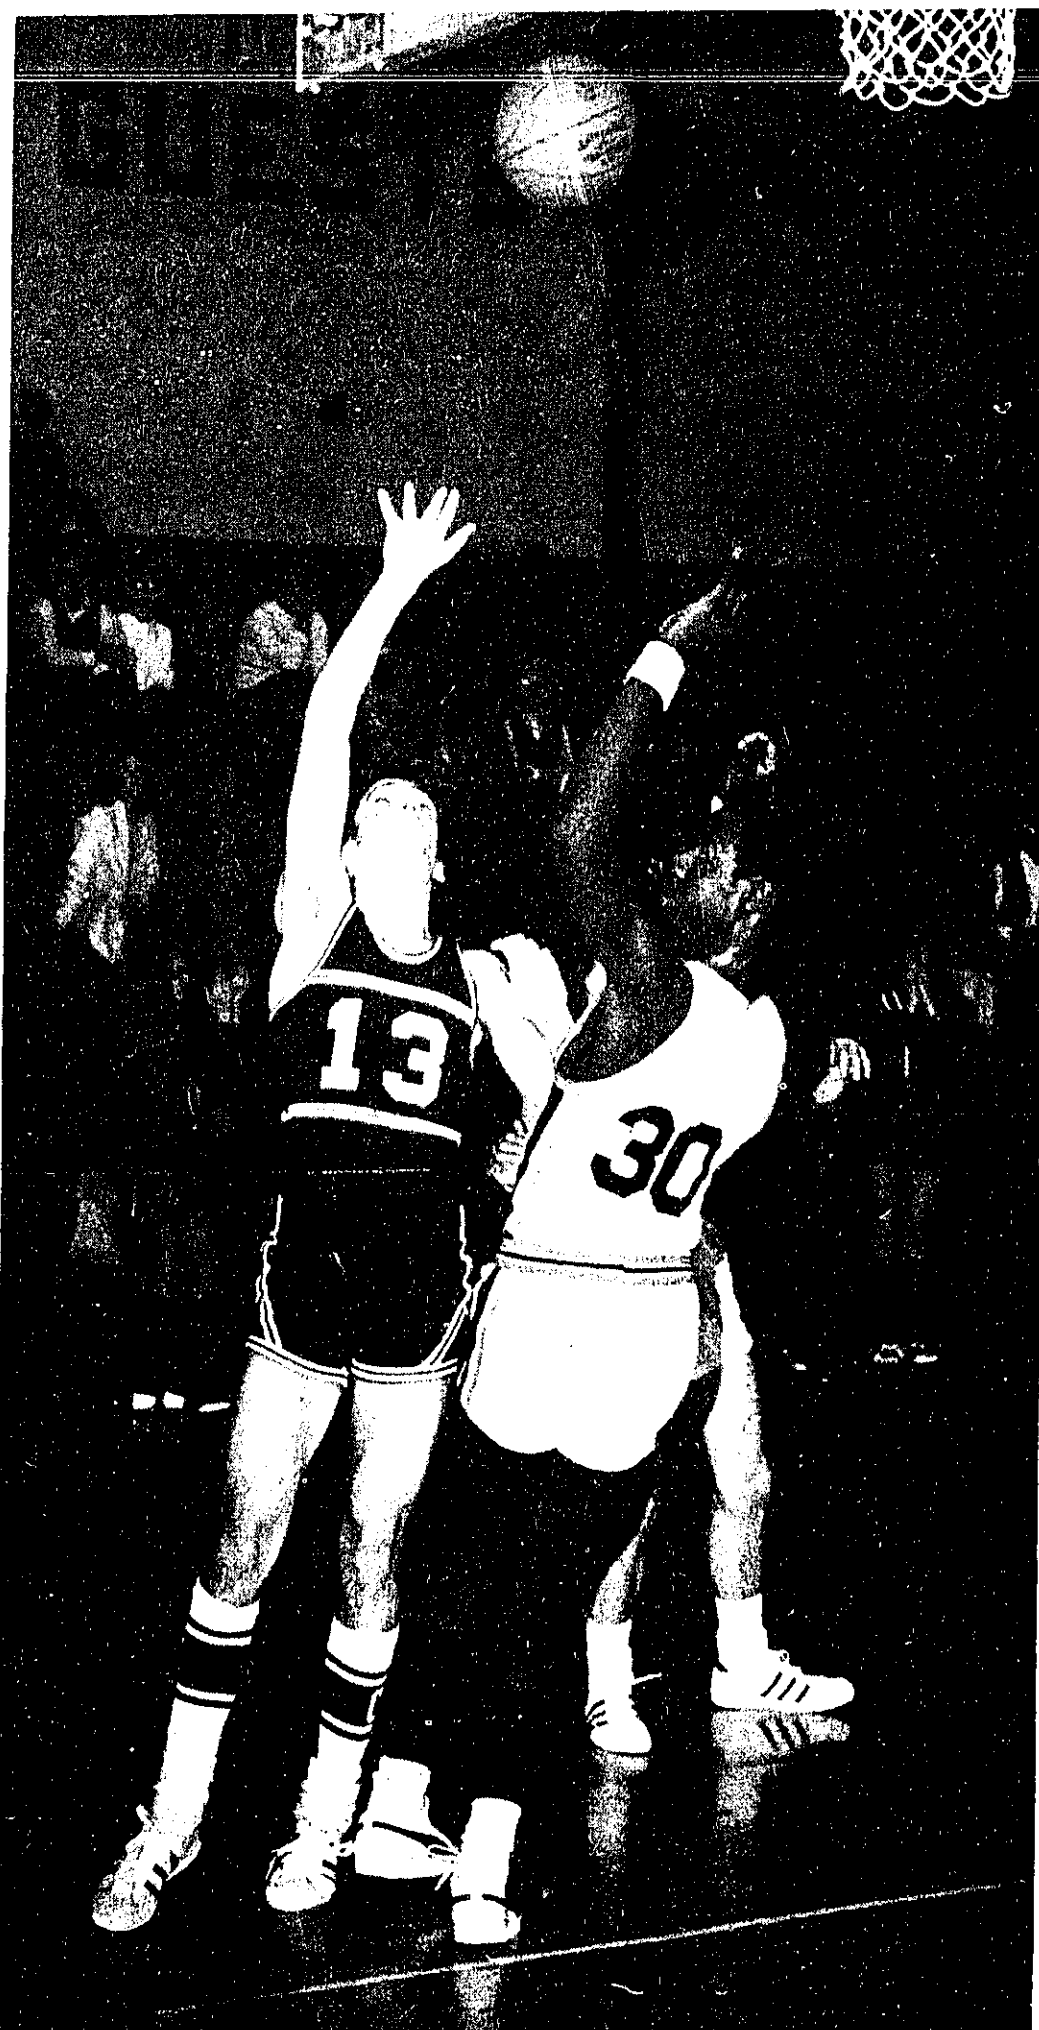

The aeronautics industry got higher off the ground in Michigan during the 1970's.

Statistics accumulated by the Michigan Commerce Department show that the number of takeoffs and landings at eight major Michigan airports nearly doubled between 1960 and 1970.

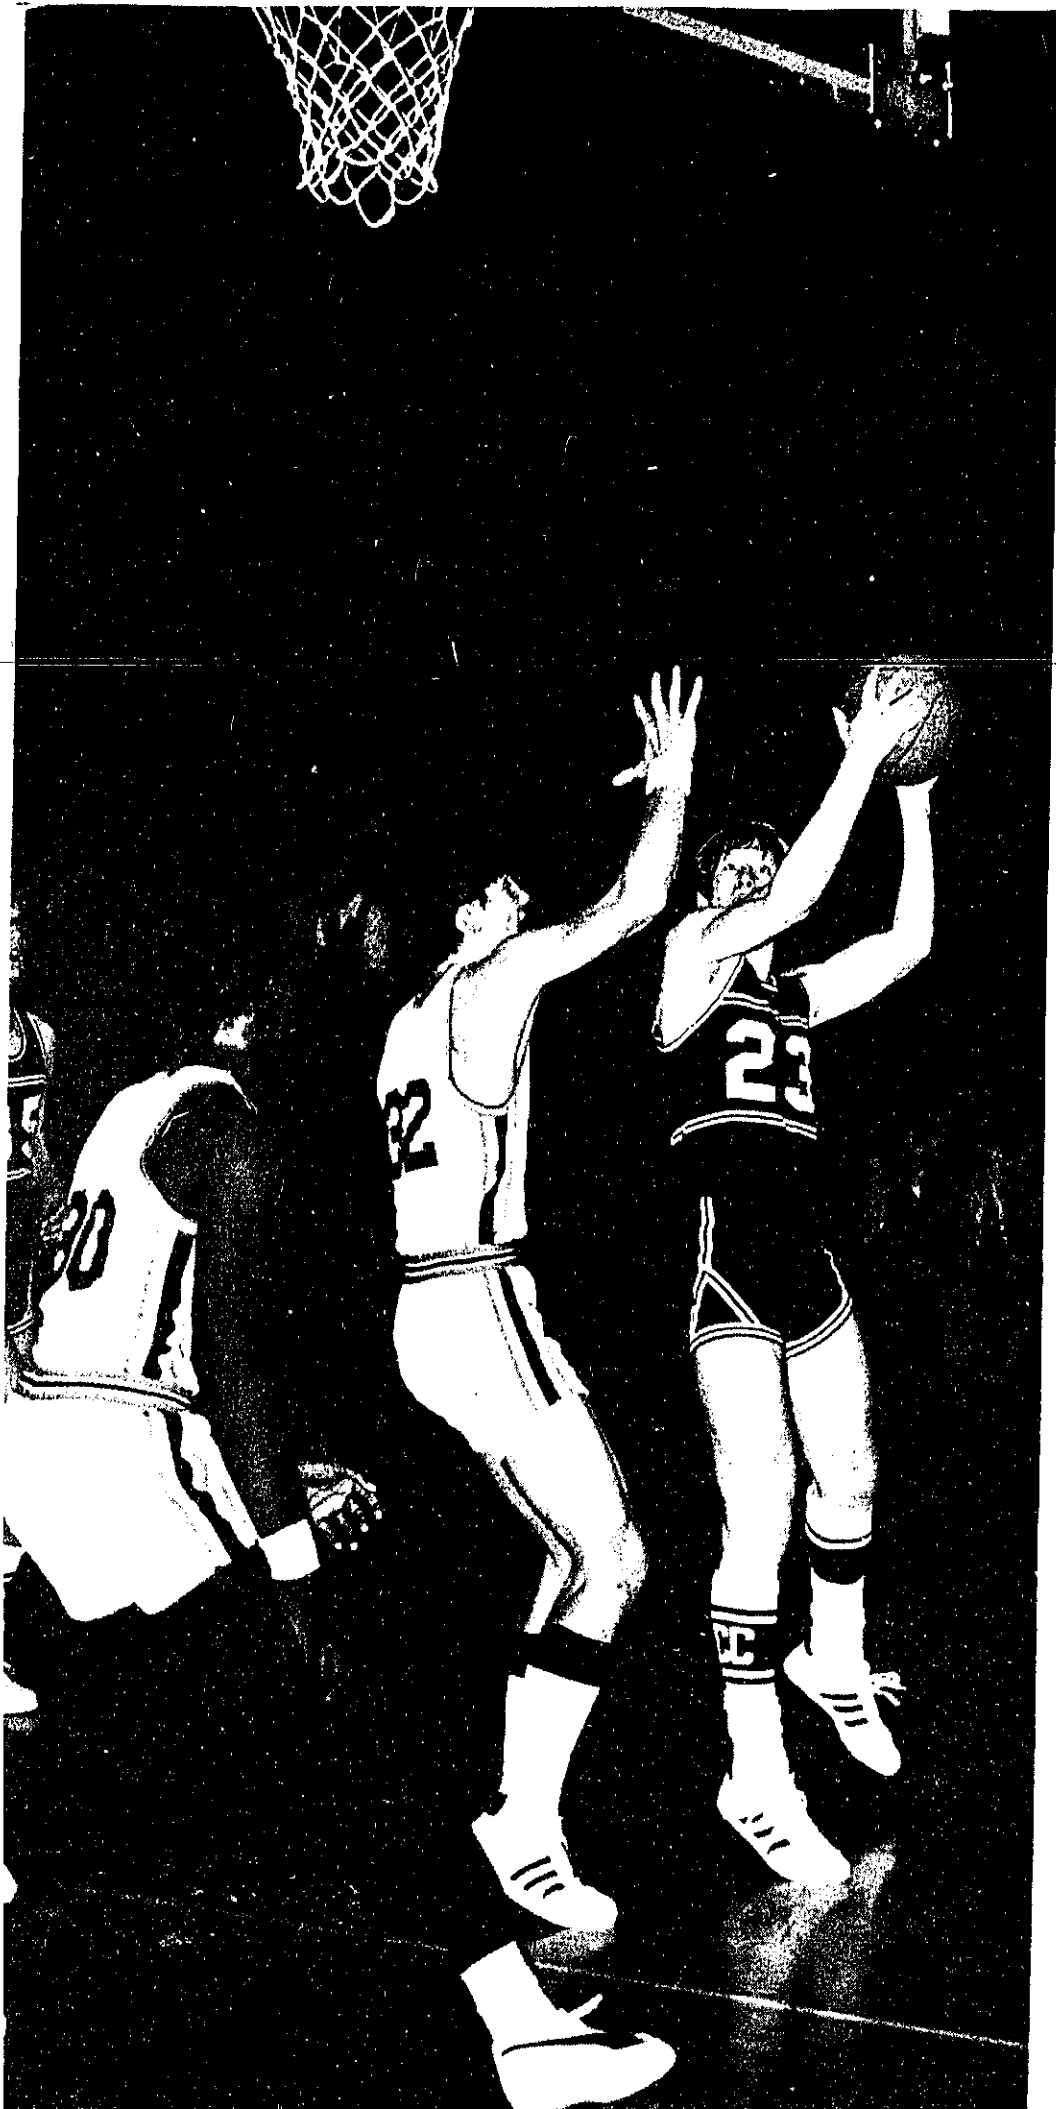

The number of landings and takeoffs at tower-controlled airports is a good indicator of total operations from general aviation at the nearly 300 licensed and approved airports, the commission said.

It said total takeoffs and landings went up from 777,751 at the eight airports in 1960 to 1,333,505 in 1970.

The airports involved in the figures were Battle Creek, Detroit City, Detroit Metro, Detroit Willow Run, Flint, Grand Rapids, Lansing and Muskegon.

MIKE SMITH OF Vassar intimidated Paul Bliss on this shot which missed, but Bliss scored 11 for the night to help the Hawks to victory Tuesday.

SCOTT GUERNSEY WAS clobbered shortly after this shot was taken but he converted the free throws to aid Cass City to victory Tuesday over Vassar.

Seventh grade continues to roll undefeated

Cass City School's Seventh grade continued undefeated with a 69-50 decision over Bad Axe, but the previously undefeated Eighth grade lost its first game in six starts to Bad Axe, 48-42, in games played at Bad Axe Monday.

The Seventh grade broke open a tight game in the last half to win. At the half the Hawks were ahead 28-23.

Dave Zawilinski scored 29 points to show the way and has 106 points in five games. Chuck Bliss netted 18. Other scorers were: Ken Lowe, 9, Clark Hillaker, 5, Tom Smentek and Dave Romig, 4, and Kirt Kendall, 2. Hillaker had 9 rebounds.

The Eighth grade fell after falling behind 26-13 at the half and as much as 16 points in the last quarter.

A rally fell short although Cass City came as close as two points before dropping back. Jerry Toner netted 12 points and Jim Root had 9. Other scorers were: Joe Zawilinski, 5, Dave Eberline, 4, Dan Melendorf, 3, Don Karr, 2, and Ben Hennessey, 6.
